13:9, 10 but also my hands and my head: Given Jesus' dramatic statement, Peter had no choice but to submit. Only this time he went too far in the other direction. At first he wanted to tell the Lord what to do (v. 8). Now he wanted to dictate the manner in which Jesus did it. But Jesus told him he did not need a bath; he only needed Jesus to wash his feet that were dusty from the road. This is symbolic. A believer has already been “cleansed.” He or she only needs the cleansing of daily sins that comes through confession (see 1 John 1:9). Thus Jesus' washing of the disciples' feet not only is a model of service, but it represents the ultimate in service—forgiveness of sins.

13:11 You are not all clean: This is the second indication of the presence of a traitor among the apostles (6:70). Apparently this comment did not attract much attention.

13:13 Teacher and Lord were the ordinary titles of respect given to a rabbi.

13:14, 15 you also ought to wash one another's feet: The Lord was using His practical action to give an example of love to His disciples (v. 1).

13:18 Jesus quoted Ps. 41:9 to explain the action of Judas. Lifting up his heel was a gesture of insult, or a preparation to kick. The blow had not yet been given. This was the attitude of Judas at that moment. He was eating with the disciples, but he was ready to strike.

13:21 troubled: Faced with bereavement (11:33), His own death (12:27), and betrayal, Jesus was deeply stirred.

13:23 leaning on Jesus' bosom: At this time people did not generally sit at a table to eat. They reclined on the left side of a low platform, resting on the left elbow and eating with the right hand, their feet extended outward. Reclining in such a way, a man's head was near the bosom of the person on his left. The disciple whom Jesus loved is never named in Scripture, but the tradition of the early church designates him as John, the author of this Gospel.

13:24 Peter . . . motioned to him to ask: Evidently Peter was not sitting next to Jesus. He was nearer to John, so he beckoned John to ask Jesus who was going to betray Him.

13:27 First, the devil put ideas in the head of Judas (v. 2); here Satan entered Judas. Note that Judas's actions were the result of the deepest thoughts of his heart.

13:30 it was night: Not only did Judas go out into the darkness of the night, he had also entered into spiritual darkness, separated from Jesus, the Light of the World (8:12; 9:5).

13:31, 32 the Son of Man is glorified: Jesus would be revealed as the divine Son of God and Savior of the world by His death and resurrection, and the gift of the Holy Spirit. God would be glorified in Him in that God's love, truth, and righteousness would be revealed in what Jesus was doing.

13:33 The time had come for Jesus to announce His departure to His disciples. Little children is an expression of tender affection used nowhere else in the Gospels. John did not forget the expression; he used it repeatedly in 1 John.

13:34 The command to love was new because Jesus gave it a new standard. Moses said, "Love your neighbor as yourself" (see Lev. 19:18). Jesus said the new standard was as I have loved you. Jesus gave His disciples the example of love that they were to follow (vv. 1–17).

13:35 By this: Unbelievers recognize Jesus' disciples not by their doctrinal distinctives, nor by dramatic miracles, nor even by their love for the lost. They recognize His disciples by their deeds of love for one another.

13:36 Lord, where are You going: This question, which Jesus had already addressed twice before, indicates that Peter completely missed the point of what Jesus said in vv. 34, 35.

13:37 I will lay down my life: Peter was ready to die for Jesus. Unfortunately, he was not ready, at this point, to live for Him. He was ready to attack single-handed a cohort of soldiers with his sword (see 18:10), but he was not willing to wash the feet of his brothers as Jesus had just done (see 13:4). Actually, Peter had things backwards. Christ was about to lay down His life for Peter, instead of Peter laying down his life for Christ. In spite of all this, Christ did not give up on Peter (see Luke 22:31, 32). Later Peter would die for Christ (21:18, 19). Church tradition states that Peter was crucified upside down, at his request, for he felt himself unworthy to be crucified like his Lord.

13:38 till you have denied Me three times: At these words of Jesus, Peter was stunned and said nothing. He is not mentioned again until 18:10.

14:1 After announcing Judas's betrayal (13:21), His own imminent departure (13:33), and Peter's denial (13:38), Jesus told His disciples not to be troubled, but to trust Him.

(Gk. pisteuō) (1:7, 12; 2:23, 24; 3:15, 16, 36; 4:39, 41, 42; 6:47; 11:25; 14:1; 20:31) Strong's #4100

The Greek word for believe literally means “to place one’s trust in another”; it occurs over 90 times in the Gospel of John alone. To believe in Jesus is to believe in His person and to trust in Him completely for salvation (3:15, 16). Many of Jesus’ contemporaries believed in Jesus’ miraculous powers, but they would not believe in Jesus Himself (6:23–26). Others wanted to believe in a political Messiah, but would not believe in the One who suffered for their sins (Mark 15:32). But we must be careful to believe and trust in the Jesus presented in the Scriptures, in the Son of God who sacrificed His life for our sins (Gal. 1:3, 4; Phil. 2:5–8).

14:2 Mansions refers to dwelling places. Everybody has a longing for a permanent, secure place. Such places have already been set aside for all of God’s children.

14:3 I will come again and receive you: Peter may have failed Jesus (13:38), but Christ will not fail to return for Peter and for everyone else who has believed in Him (see 1 Thess. 4:16, 17).

14:6 Through His death and resurrection, Jesus is the way to the Father. He is also the truth and the life. As truth, He is the revelation of God. As life, He is the communication of God to us.

14:7, 8 known My Father also: Jesus came to reveal the Father (1:18). To know Jesus is to know the Father (see 1 John 2:23). show us the Father: Jesus had just said that to see Him is to see the Father. Yet Philip asked to see the Father. Like Thomas, Philip seems to have been slow to comprehend (v. 5).

14:9 The Lord rebuked Philip because he should have known the answer to the question he asked. He who has seen Me has seen the Father: The Lord patiently explained again that He was revealing God the Father to them (v. 7). It is impossible to escape the claim Jesus was making. Clearly, He was claiming to be God.

14:12 Jesus had accomplished the greatest works possible, including raising the dead. How could He say that believers would do greater works? The answer is seen in the extent of what the apostles did. Jesus’ work on earth was confined to Palestine; the apostles would preach everywhere and see the conversion of thousands. Peter’s message at Pentecost brought more followers to Jesus than did Jesus’ entire earthly ministry. The disciples were able to do this work because Christ would go to the Father and send the Holy Spirit to empower them.

14:16 All three members of the Trinity are mentioned here. Jesus prayed to the Father who would give the Holy Spirit.

14:17 The Holy Spirit is called the Spirit of truth (see 15:26; 16:13; 1 John 4:6) because He is truth and guides us into all truth (see 1 Cor. 2:13; 2 Pet. 1:21). Neither sees Him nor knows Him does not mean merely that the world is not able to visually identify the Holy Spirit because He is spirit. Something more is meant: The Spirit of God is active in the world, but His acts go unnoticed by the world (see 1 Cor. 2:14).

- 14:18 orphans: Earlier, Jesus called the disciples “little children” (13:33). Here He told them He would not leave them fatherless; He would come to them. There are three suggested interpretations as to when that statement would be fulfilled: (1) after the Resurrection, (2) at Pentecost, in the person of the Holy Spirit, and (3) at the Second Coming.
- 14:19 you will see Me: Jesus would come to the disciples (v. 18), but not with the same kind of presence they experienced at that moment. The world saw Jesus only in the flesh; the disciples would see Him in a spiritual sense.
- 14:20, 21 These two verses are the conclusion of Jesus’ answer to Philip’s request, “show us the Father” (v. 8). As the believer lovingly obeys Christ’s commandments, he or she will experience a more intimate knowledge of Him.
- 14:22 The disciples had expected the Messiah to come publicly and deliver Israel from Rome and the corrupt priesthood of the temple. Jesus had said that the disciples would see Him, but the world would not (v. 19). Judas (not Iscariot) wanted to know how that could be.
- 14:23 loves Me . . . keep My word: In response to Judas’s question (v. 22), Jesus explained that His manifestation to the disciples would be in response to their love and obedience. make Our home with him: If a believer loves and obeys the Lord, he or she will experience fellowship with God.
- 14:24 not love . . . not keep: If a person does not love Jesus, he or she will not obey Him. Disobedience is a serious matter, for Jesus’ words are the words of God.
- 14:25, 26 Jesus told His disciples these things while He was with them, but when the Holy Spirit came, He would remind the disciples of all things that Jesus had said, and would teach . . . all things (see 1 Cor. 2:13). This promise was primarily fulfilled through the lives of the apostles in the writing of the NT. Matthew and John wrote down Jesus’ words. Peter wrote about the gospel in his two letters and may have dictated some of his memories of Jesus to Mark.
- 14:27 Peace: The customary good-bye among the Jews was to say shalom, meaning “peace.” The Lord was about to depart, so He added to this farewell by saying, My peace. The word My is emphatic. This is no conventional wish; this is Jesus’ personal, special grant of peace. The peace that Christ gives banishes fear and dread from the heart, for Jesus is in control of all circumstances.
- 14:28 My Father is greater than I: This does not mean that Jesus is less than deity. Greater indicates a difference in rank. As the humble, submissive Son, Jesus submitted Himself to the authority of His Father (1 Cor. 11:3; 15:28).
- 14:30 He has nothing in Me indicates Jesus’ sinlessness. Jesus’ yielding to what was about to happen did not mean that Satan had any power over Him. Jesus would soon voluntarily yield to the death of the Cross, in loving obedience to the Father (v. 31).
- 15:1 true vine: In this phrase the word true is emphatic. My Father: With such a vinedresser, the branches can experience complete confidence and security.

(Gk. ampelos) (15:1, 4, 5; Matt. 26:29; James 3:12) Strong's #288

This word can describe a single grapevine or an entire vineyard. Either way, the image evokes the picture of corporate dependence. Israel was the vine of God's planting, but it failed to bear the proper fruit (Is. 5:1–7; Jer. 2:19–21). Jesus, with His believers incorporated in Him, is the true vine—the true fulfillment and actualization of the vine. As the entire race of Israel sprang from the patriarch Israel, the new generation of God's people is here viewed as originating from Christ, organically united to Him, as branches emanating from the vine. This is a fulfillment of Ps. 80:17, in which “the son of man” is said to be the vine planted by God.

Go to the List of Word Studies

15:2 Every branch is said to be in Christ. Paul uses the phrase “in Christ” to speak of a Christian’s legal and family position as a result of God’s grace. The emphasis of in Me in this passage, however, is on deep, abiding fellowship. Jesus’ purpose was to move His disciples from servants to friends (vv. 13–15). This would involve a process of discipline in regard to His commandments. not bear fruit: No plant produces fruit instantaneously; fruit is the result of a process. Such is also the case with believers. Prunes means “cleanses.” Once the fruit is on the vine, the vinedresser cleanses the fruit of bugs and diseases. The spiritual counterpart is cleansing which is done through the Word (v. 3).

15:4 For the branch to produce more fruit, it must abide, which means to dwell, to stay, to settle in, to sink deeper. The way to abide in Christ is to obey (see 15:10; 1 John 3:24). The believer who lovingly obeys the Word of God produces much fruit.

15:5 can do nothing: Apart from Christ, a believer cannot accomplish anything of permanent spiritual value.

15:6 Not abiding in Christ has serious consequences: (1) The person is cast out as a branch, indicating the loss of fellowship; (2) the person is withered, indicating a loss of vitality; (3) the person is burned, indicating a loss of reward. The fire here is figurative, symbolizing either fiery trials (see 1 Pet. 1:7; 4:12) or the fire at the judgment seat of Christ (see 1 Cor. 3:11–15). Failure to abide produces spiritual disaster. they gather them: Note the movement from “He” (the Father who is the vinedresser, v. 2) to “you” (the believer who does or does not abide, v. 4) to “they” (unbelievers looking for signs of life; see 13:35).

15:8 By this: Notice the striking parallel between this verse and 13:35. The love of 13:35 is pictured as fruit here. The text has come full circle in showing how strategic it is for disciples to love each other, as Christ’s method of evangelizing the lost. “They shall know” becomes so you will be Christ’s disciples. Where there is good fruit, there are also seeds for propagation.

15:9 As the Father loved Me, I also have loved you: The love of God the Father for God the Son is the measure of the love of the Son for believers.

15:10 abide in My love: Christ loves believers unconditionally (v. 9). But as believers obey Christ’s Word and abide in His love, they come to experience and understand His love for them more and more (see Eph. 3:14–19).

15:11 That your joy may be full is an expression peculiar to John (see 3:29; 16:24; 17:13; 1 John 1:4; 2 John 12). It describes a believer's experience of Christ's love: complete joy.

15:12 love one another: To abide, a believer must obey (v. 10). To obey, a believer must love other believers (13:34, 35).

15:13 lay down one's life: In rashness and with confidence in the flesh, Peter had offered to lay down his life for Jesus. In actuality, he was not ready to die for Jesus; he was not even ready to live for Him (18:17, 18, 25–27). The supreme example of love is Jesus' humility in sacrificial service (13:15).

15:14 if you do: Jesus is our model for love (v. 13). Intimacy with Him is the motive for loving as He loves. If believers obey His command to love, they enjoy the intimacy of His friendship. Note that friendship, unlike sonship, is not a once-for-all gift, but develops as the result of obeying Jesus' command to love.

15:15 No longer . . . servants: Until this point, Jesus had called His disciples servants (12:26; 13:13–16). A servant does what he is told and sees what his master does, but does not necessarily know the meaning or purpose of it. friends: A friend knows what is happening because friends develop deep fellowship by communicating with one another.

15:16 I chose you: Jesus had initiated the relationship with His disciples (see 1 John 4:10). It started with selection, moved to servanthood, and grew to friendship. that you should go and bear fruit: Having chosen the disciples, Jesus commissioned them to bring forth permanent fruit through prayer.

15:18 hated Me: As Jesus spoke these words, the Pharisees were planning to kill Him (11:45–57). The world hated Him, so it should not be surprising that the world hates His followers.

15:22, 23 no sin . . . no excuse: The world's hatred of Jesus was a sin against God, for He revealed the Father Himself to them. My Father also: Since Christ and the Father are one, those who hate Christ hate the Father.

15:26, 27 He will testify . . . you also will bear witness: As the disciples spoke, the Holy Spirit would bring inner conviction to unbelievers concerning Christ. This in turn would make the disciples witnesses for Jesus.

16:2 They will put you out of the synagogues . . . kills you: The persecution that the disciples would face included excommunication and even execution. Excommunication had economic as well as religious implications, because much of the life of an ancient Jew revolved around the synagogue. Offers expresses the idea of offering a sacrifice. The murderers of believers would imagine that they were offering a sacrifice to God.

16:4 at the beginning: Jesus had been preparing His disciples to assimilate the truth (see Prov. 22:6). In His wisdom, the Lord never gives us more than we can handle.

16:5 none of you asks Me, "Where are You going?": Peter had asked this very question (13:36) and Thomas had suggested it (14:5). However, things were different now. The disciples had learned about denials, suffering, and death. To go with Jesus involved the most serious consequences.

16:7 The disciples must have thought, "How can it be to our advantage to be alone? The Romans hate us because they see us as disturbers of the peace. The Jewish leaders hate us because they see us as blasphemers. You alone love us, and You are leaving us." So Jesus explained the benefits of His departure. When Jesus left, the believers would have (1) the provision of the Holy Spirit (vv. 7–15); (2) the potential of full joy (vv. 16–24); (3) the possibility of fuller knowledge (vv. 25–28); (4) the privilege of peace (vv. 29–33). I will send Him: Jesus explained that the Holy Spirit will convict the world (vv. 7–11) and communicate truth to the apostles (vv. 12–15). to you: The Holy Spirit would not be given to the world, but to believers. The coming of the Spirit would be more profitable to believers than even the physical presence of Christ, since the Spirit could dwell in all believers at the same time.

16:8 Convict means "convince" or "reprove." The Holy Spirit would demonstrate the truth of Christ beyond the fear of contradiction. The Holy Spirit convicts unbelievers through believers who witness about Christ (15:26, 27). Believers are the mouthpiece for God's voice. The content of the witness that the Spirit reinforces includes truth about sin, righteousness, and judgment.

16:9 of sin: Note the singular sin, not sins. Our witness should not focus on sins (adultery, gluttony, pride, and other sins), but on the full payment that Christ has made for all sin. Reception of the full pardon is the only cure for the disease of sin.

16:10 of righteousness: After Christ's departure the Holy Spirit would convict the world of the nature of righteousness and the need for righteousness. Jesus' work on the Cross was completely righteous. This is demonstrated by the Father's emptying of the tomb, signifying His satisfaction with the righteous payment and His acceptance of Christ into His presence.

16:11 of judgment: Satan, the ruler of this world, rules in the hearts of unregenerate people and blinds their minds (see 1 Cor. 2:6–8). Satan was judged at the Cross, and the Holy Spirit would convince people of the judgment to come. Satan has been judged, so all who side with him will be judged with him. There is no room for neutrality. A person is either a child of God or a child of the devil.

16:12 You refers to the apostles. Technically, what the Lord says about the ministry of the Holy Spirit in vv. 12–15 applies primarily to the apostles. The Holy Spirit's ministry to them was threefold: (1) He would guide them into all truth (v. 13); (2) He would tell them of the future (v. 13); (3) He would help them glorify Christ (vv. 14, 15). Jesus' words were fulfilled in the apostles' preaching and writings. The Holy Spirit guided the apostles by revealing to them not only the truths embodied in Jesus' life and death, but also the glorious future of all believers. The apostles, in turn, wrote it down in the NT, which glorifies—that is, reveals—Jesus Christ. The word bear means “to carry a burden” and is used later of Christ carrying the Cross (19:17). In other words, there were truths that they could not understand (v. 13) or handle until the Holy Spirit came at Pentecost.

16:13 Spirit of truth: The phrase means that the Holy Spirit is the source of truth (14:17; 15:26). guide: The Holy Spirit would not compel or carry the disciples into truth. He would lead; their job was to follow. All truth refers to the truth necessary to be mature saints and thoroughly equipped servants (see 2 Tim. 3:16, 17). Things to come includes truths about the church (see Eph. 3:1–7), as well as future events.

16:14 For indicates that the last part of the verse explains glorify Me. The Holy Spirit glorifies Christ by declaring Him or making Him known. It is the work of the Holy Spirit to throw light on Jesus Christ, who is the image of the invisible God. Christ is to be on center stage; that is the desire of both the Father and the Spirit. The apostles received truth from the Holy Spirit, truth about things to come, and truth about Christ. Then under the guidance of the Holy Spirit they wrote those truths in documents known today as the NT (see 14:25, 26; 1 Cor. 2:13).

16:15 To say that the Holy Spirit will take what belongs to Christ (v. 14) does not mean He will concentrate on Christ to the exclusion of the Father. There is no division within the Godhead. What the Father has, the Son has (17:10). What the Son has, the Spirit will declare (see 1 Cor. 2:13). However, the focus will be on Christ because He is the “image of the invisible God” (see Col. 1:15). His steps are the only ones we can follow because He is the only one we have “seen.”

16:16 You will see Me has been interpreted to mean: (1) the disciples would literally see Jesus after the Resurrection; (2) the disciples would spiritually see Jesus after the ascension because of the work of the Holy Spirit. Verse 22 seems to support the literal sight after the Resurrection.

16:18 A little while: The biggest question weighing on the disciples' minds was the time factor. They simply did not understand the strange intervals marked by their separation from Jesus.

16:20, 21 weep and lament: When Jesus died, the disciples would openly express their intense sorrow. The world would rejoice, assuming that it was rid of Jesus. But the sorrow of the disciples would be turned into joy. This is not merely a case of sorrow being followed by joy, but of sorrow becoming joy. The sorrow itself would be transformed. The death of Jesus would be first a sorrow and then a joy. To explain His words (in v. 20), Jesus used the example of a pregnant woman. A woman . . . in labor has sorrow, but the very sorrow is transformed into joy in the birth of the child.

16:22 I will see you again refers to Jesus' postresurrection appearances. your joy no one will take: The disciples' sorrow would depart; their joy would remain. Jesus' death and resurrection brings the joy of forgiven sins (see 1 Pet. 1:8) that the world cannot take away.

16:25 An example of figurative language is the allegory of the grapevine in 15:1–8, which presents the work of the Father in producing the fruit of love in believers. A figure of speech can be more vivid and graphic than ordinary prose.

(Gk. paroimia) (10:6; 16:25, 29; 2 Pet. 2:22) Strong's #3942

The Greek word can mean “proverb” (as in 2 Pet. 2:22), “enigmatic saying” (as in 16:25, 29), or “similitude.” John did not use the Greek word parabolē, meaning “parable,” which is common in the synoptic Gospels; and the synoptic Gospels do not have the word paroimia. The two words are nearly synonymous. The only difference is that in John’s Gospel the word paroimia may connote the idea of a similitude or analogy. Whatever the exact definition, Jesus’ similitude was not understood by His listeners because their sin had hardened their hearts and had made them unable to comprehend the spiritual truths about which Jesus spoke (see Matt. 13:10–17).

16:26, 27 In My name means by Christ’s authority. I do not say . . . I shall pray the Father for you:

Because Jesus provides forgiveness of sins through His death and now intercedes for all believers at the right hand of the Father (see Heb. 7:25), we have direct access to the Father. We do not need the intercession of a priest, because Jesus acts as our High Priest before God. For indicates that v. 27 explains the previous verse. After Jesus’ departure, the disciples would be able to pray directly to God the Father, who loves them because they believed in and loved His Son, Jesus.

16:29, 30 we believe: Jesus had read the disciples’ hearts (v. 19) and answered their questions. Like the Samaritan woman, they concluded that He knew all things (4:39). To the disciples, Jesus’ supernatural knowledge proved His divine mission.

16:31 now believe: We continue in the Christian life the same way we begin, by believing in Jesus. The more we learn of Christ, the more we have to believe. The more we place our trust in Jesus, the more we receive. The more we receive, the more we can accomplish for His glory.

16:32 you will be scattered: The disciples would desert Jesus. Knowing this, Jesus still loved them, an amazing example of unconditional love.

16:33 Tribulation is literally “pressure,” and figuratively means “affliction” or “distress.” Be of good cheer means “be confident and courageous.” When we place our trust in God, He can give us peace in the midst of pressure. See Phil. 1:27–30 for Paul’s explanation of the principle of joy in suffering.

17:1, 2 the hour has come: Throughout the Gospel of John, Jesus referred to the Cross as His “hour” (2:4; 7:30; 8:20; 12:23; 13:1). The time for Him to die had arrived. Glorify Your Son: Jesus was asking that His mission to the world would be made known through the Cross. The reasons for this request are twofold: (1) that Your Son also may glorify You. In the Cross, Jesus reveals the Father to the world, that is, His love and justice; and (2) that through Jesus’ death on the Cross, God would provide forgiveness of sins and give eternal life to all those who believe in His Son.

17:3 that they may know You: Eternal life consists of a growing knowledge of the only true God, as opposed to false gods.

17:4, 5 I have glorified You: Jesus made known the Father by completing the work God gave Him to do. glorify Me: Jesus looked to the Father to restore Him to the glory He had in heaven before He left (see Phil. 2:6). This is another indication of Christ’s preexistence and deity (1:1–14).

Word Studies

glorify

(Gk. doxazō) (7:39; 12:23; 13:31, 32; 17:5; Rom. 1:21; 8:30; Gal. 1:24)

Strong's #1392

This Greek term means “to give glory,” or “to make glorious.” It was one of John’s favorite expressions concerning what would happen to Jesus as the result of His crucifixion and resurrection (see 7:39; 12:23, 24). These events would show the world that Jesus was no ordinary man. The resurrection, especially, would show that He was the glorious Son of God worthy of all honor. In His final prayer, Jesus asked the Father to be glorified alongside of Him (that is, in the Father’s presence) by means of the glory He had with the Father before the world existed. In other words, Jesus was praying to enter into that pristine state of coequal glory with the Father, a position He possessed from eternity as God’s only Son (see 1:1, 18). He would enter into that glory in a new way—as the God-man, the crucified and risen Lord Jesus Christ.

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 17:9 I do not pray for the world indicates that Jesus was praying only for present and future believers (see 17:20; Luke 23:34).
- 17:11 This verse reveals Jesus’ keen sensitivity to the plight of His disciples brought on by His departure. He was going to the Father, but they would be left behind. Jesus asked the Father to keep the disciples through His name, that is, to keep them true to the revelation of God that Jesus had given to them while He was with them. The disciples would have a new union with the Father and Son through the future indwelling of the Holy Spirit.
- 17:12 none of them is lost: Jesus protected the disciples during His earthly ministry (18:9). Judas, the son of perdition, is distinguished from the rest of the apostles. He was never really one of those given to Christ (18:8, 9). He had never really been a believer (6:64–71); he had not been cleansed (13:11).
- 17:13 I speak in the world: Jesus prayed aloud (v. 1) so that His words would comfort the apostles when they remembered that Jesus gave them into His Father’s keeping.
- 17:14–16 of the world: This verse has profound implications for discipleship. Our desire should not be to isolate ourselves from the world, but to use Christ’s word and the Holy Spirit’s power to serve Him while our life lasts. Yet at the same time, we should not become like the world, succumbing to the evil influences of the world. The term evil one can be translated as a common noun, evil, or as a reference to a person, Satan.
- 17:17 Sanctify means “to set apart.” There are two ways to understand this statement: (1) as separate for holiness, or (2) as set apart for service. According to the first view, Jesus was praying not only that the disciples should be kept from evil, but that they should advance in holiness. However in v. 18, sanctification seems to refer to the disciples’ mission, indicating that sanctify may also mean that Jesus was setting apart His disciples for this. Your word is truth is a strong statement of Jesus’ confidence in the veracity of Scripture. People’s opinions may vary, and experiences are notoriously untrustworthy, but God’s Word always remains true.

- 17:20 those who will believe: Jesus not only prayed for those the Father had given Him (v. 9) but for all future believers—for their unity (vv. 20–23) and their future glory (vv. 24–26). If you are a believer, these words are Jesus’ prayer for you.
- 17:21 all may be one: The present tense of the verb “to be” indicates that Jesus was praying for the unity that takes place through the sanctification of believers. This is what Jesus was commanding in 13:34, 35: His followers had to love each other so that the world may believe in the reality of Jesus’ love. The loving relationship of believers to each other is the greatest witness to Jesus Christ.
- 17:22 The glory, the revelation of Jesus Christ through His disciples, is the means to unity. Such unity begins with belief and correct thinking about Jesus and God the Father, that is, with doctrine. But correct belief must bear fruit—a life that demonstrates God’s love and produces the unity between all the believers.
- 17:23 I in them, and You in Me: The mutual indwelling of the Father in the Son and the Son in the church is also the means to unity, the ultimate expression of God’s love (see 13:35; Rom. 8:17).
- 17:24 May be with Me is a prayer for the future glorification of believers. may behold My glory: The apostles saw Christ’s glory in His words and works (v. 22). Christ prayed for all believers to behold His glory, unveiled in the full revelation of His deity.
- 17:25, 26 The ultimate reason for future believers to know the love of God is so that God’s love may be replicated in them, thus drawing the entire world to Christ.
- 18:1 The Brook Kidron was a ravine between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives.
- 18:3 A detachment was a cohort of about six hundred men, or one-tenth of a legion. However, sometimes this Greek word was used for one-third of a cohort, or two hundred men. These soldiers were probably the experienced Roman troops stationed at the Antonia, a fortress near the temple. The officers who came with the detachment were members of the temple police under the command of the Jewish council, the Sanhedrin.
- 18:4 knowing all things: Knowing He was about to be arrested, Jesus could have escaped, but He did not. He submitted Himself voluntarily to the ordeal that was ordained by God.
- 18:6 fell to the ground: For a moment, Christ unveiled His majesty. His statement of deity, I am, manifested such glory that it literally threw the soldiers to the ground.
- 18:8 For the third time in this passage, Jesus claimed to be I am (vv. 5, 6), echoing God’s self-revelation in Ex. 3:14. let these go: As He was being arrested, Jesus demonstrated His love for the apostles.
- 18:10 Note the contrast between Peter and Jesus. By fighting the guard, Simon Peter vehemently exercised his own self-will; Jesus in contrast voluntarily submitted to the will of God. One swung the sword of self-will; the other drank from the cup of God’s will. See Matt. 16:22, 23 for another attempt by Peter to control God’s plan for Jesus. cut off his right ear: Jesus mercifully restored the ear (Luke 22:51) that Peter cut off. He often does the same in our lives when we act rashly. His purposes are fulfilled in spite of us.
- 18:12 A captain was the chief officer of a Roman cohort (v. 3).
- 18:13 Annas was high priest from A.D. 7 to 14. He was deposed by the Romans. Then Caiaphas, Annas’s son-in-law, was appointed to the position and served from A.D. 18 to 37. However, according to Jewish law the high priest was a lifetime position, so the Jews still considered Annas to be high priest. So they took Jesus to Annas first. Caiaphas would soon be involved, however, since he had the authority to carry out the plan (see v. 14).
- 18:14 In passing, John reminds the reader of the earlier prediction of Caiaphas (11:50–52): Jesus would die for the entire nation.
- 18:15 another disciple: Although this other disciple is never identified, the consensus is that he was John, the author of this Gospel.
- 18:17 I am not: This was the first of Peter’s three denials prophesied by Jesus (13:38).

The Function of the Synagogue

A distinction must be made between synagogue worship and tabernacle or temple worship. The tabernacle of Moses' day was enclosed by curtains. No one but the priests could enter this area. The later temples of Solomon, Zerubbabel, and Herod (the temple of Jesus' day) had courts or porches where the people could pray or have discussions (Matt. 26:55; Luke 2:46; Acts 2:46), but the temple precincts proper were for the priests only.

In synagogues, on the other hand, the people took part in worship, reading of the Scriptures, and prayer. By NT times, synagogues were very numerous and popular. They became centers of community activity, playing a number of roles. Sometimes they were local courts of justice (Matt. 10:17; 23:34).

18:21 Ask those who have heard Me: According to the law, the witnesses for the defense had to be called first. Jesus should not have been questioned until witnesses had testified.

18:22 the officers . . . struck Jesus: This was illegal according to Jewish law. There was to be no punishment before conviction.

18:23 bear witness: Jesus invited His accusers to present evidence that He had done something wrong.

18:25 I am not: This was the second of Peter's three denials prophesied by Jesus (13:38).

18:27 Peter then denied again: For the third time, Peter denied the Lord, as Jesus had said he would (13:38). In the Upper Room, Peter had boasted that he would remain true to the Lord to the end (see 13:37; Matt. 26:33, 35). In the garden he surrendered to the desires of his body, by sleeping three times when the Lord had commanded the disciples to stay up in prayer (Mark 14:32–42). Now he submitted to the pressure of the world and denied the Lord three times.

- 18:28 The Praetorium was the Roman governor's official residence, probably the Fortress Antonia near the temple. Early morning refers to the fourth watch of the night, from 3 to 6 A.M. A Roman court could have been held immediately after sunrise, and this scene could have taken place around 6 A.M. defiled: During Passover, if a Jew entered a house that contained leaven, he or she would be ceremonially defiled and unable to celebrate the feast. Thus Jews would not enter the residence of any Gentile for fear of being ceremonially defiled. Passover: The main meal of the Passover had taken place. The synoptic Gospels report that Jesus celebrated that meal the night before (see Matt. 26:17–29; Mark 14:12–25; Luke 22:7–22). However, there were other ceremonial meals during the Passover, which lasted the entire week.
- 18:29, 30 What accusation: Pilate was not ignorant of the accusation. He was merely requesting that it be formally stated. If He were not an evildoer: Jesus' accusers had no charge that would stand up in a Roman court. Therefore they sullenly replied, "If He were not a criminal we would not have brought Him to you."
- 18:31 You take Him and judge Him: The accusations did not warrant a trial before Pilate. It is not lawful: The Romans did not allow the Jews to impose capital punishment. These Jewish leaders had no interest in a just trial; they simply wanted permission from Rome to have Jesus executed.
- 18:32 signifying by what death He would die: Jesus had said, "If I am lifted up from the earth," indicating the method of His death, crucifixion (12:32, 33). The Jewish method of execution was stoning. However, Jesus had already indicated that He would be crucified. John is pointing out that the Jewish leaders' inability to impose capital punishment themselves fulfilled Jesus' prediction describing His death.
- 18:33 Are You the King of the Jews: The Jews charged that Jesus claimed to be their king. From their standpoint, this was the most damaging accusation possible because it would be regarded by the Romans as treason and would be punishable by death. In the Greek text, you is emphatic, perhaps indicating that Pilate did not think the forlorn figure before him looked like the defiant rebels he was used to dealing with as claimants to the Jewish throne.
- 18:34 Are you speaking for yourself: In reply to Pilate, Jesus gave no violent protest of innocence, nor was He sullenly defiant. Jesus politely but directly asked whether Pilate was asking on his own initiative or whether the charge was secondhand. If Pilate's question originated with him, he was using king in the Roman sense of a political ruler. If not, then king was being used in the Jewish sense of the messianic King.
- 18:35 Am I a Jew: Pilate was asking, "Is it likely that I, a Roman governor, would have any interest in a Jewish question?"
- 18:36 My kingdom is not of this world: Jesus pointed out that though He was a king, he was no threat to Rome because His kingdom would not come by a worldly revolution.
- 18:37 bear witness to the truth: The truth was the seal of God. hears My voice: If Pilate wanted to know the truth, he would understand what Jesus was saying.
- 18:38 What is truth: This question has been interpreted as (1) a cynical denial of the possibility of knowing truth; (2) a contemptuous jest at anything so impractical as abstract truth; and (3) a desire to know what no one had been able to tell him. No fault is a legal term meaning that there were no grounds for a criminal charge. Teaching the truth was not against the law. Pilate pronounced Jesus not guilty.
- 18:39 you have a custom: It appears that some in the crowd suggested that a prisoner should be released in honor of the Passover (see Mark 15:8, 11). Pilate jumped at the possible compromise. By promising to release Jesus on account of the custom rather than by proclaiming Him innocent, Pilate would avoid insulting the Jewish leaders, who had already pronounced Him guilty.
- 18:40 The people demanded that Pilate release Barabbas, who was not only a robber, but a rebel (Mark 15:7) and a murderer (Luke 23:19).
- 19:1 scourged Him: Scourging was part of a capital sentence. But in this case it was inflicted before formal judgment.

- 19:2 The crown of thorns was in mockery of a kingly crown. Placing a purple robe on Jesus made Him a caricature of a royal conqueror.
- 19:3 Hail, King of the Jews was probably a sarcastic echo of what the soldiers had heard at Jesus' triumphal entry or at His trial.
- 19:4 I am bringing Him out to you: Perhaps Pilate was appealing to the people's compassion so that he could release Jesus.
- 19:6 Crucify Him: The Jewish leaders anticipated an outburst of pity. Therefore they began demanding Jesus' death. You . . . crucify Him: Pilate was enraged. I find no fault in Him: This was the third time Pilate declared that he could find no legal grounds for capital punishment (18:38; 19:4).
- 19:7 We have a law: The Jewish leaders were telling Pilate, "If you are appealing to us, we say that according to our law, He must die." As governor, Pilate was bound by Roman custom to respect Jewish law. He made Himself the Son of God: The Jewish leaders were accusing Jesus of violating the laws against blasphemy (see Lev. 24:16).
- 19:8 he was the more afraid: Though not mentioned earlier, Pilate had no doubt become fearful. The claim of Jesus' deity further excited his fears.
- 19:9 Jesus gave . . . no answer: Three times Pilate had publicly pronounced Jesus innocent (18:38; 19:4, 6). If he had really wanted to know the truth, he would have believed what Jesus had already told him (18:37).
- 19:11 given you from above: Jesus acknowledged that Pilate had the power to take His life, but only because God allowed him that power. The one who delivered Me to you is a reference to Caiaphas (18:24, 28), who had the greater sin because as a religious leader he had that much greater a responsibility to recognize the Messiah.
- 19:12 not Caesar's friend: The Jews shifted their focus from the religious charge (v. 7) to the political charge (18:33), which they backed up with an appeal to Caesar's own political interest. This new plea forced Pilate to choose between yielding to an indefinite sense of right or escaping the danger of an accusation at Rome.
- 19:13 The Pavement no doubt referred to a large paved area in the Fortress Antonia.
- 19:14 The Preparation Day of the Passover refers to the Friday of Passover week (v. 31), the preparation for the Sabbath of the Passover. Some have suggested that this may be the Thursday before the Passover, the same time that the Passover lamb was offered as a sacrifice. However this interpretation appears to conflict with the narrative of the three synoptic Gospels, where it seems that Jesus is described as being crucified on Friday (Matt. 27:62). The sixth hour was 6 A.M. according to the Roman system of time.
- 19:15, 16 The Jewish leaders preferred proclaiming a heathen emperor as their king to acknowledging Jesus as their Messiah. Trapped by his own fear, Pilate handed over the innocent Jesus to endure a punishment Pilate knew He did not deserve.

Jesus' Trials

Before Jewish Religious Authorities

Preliminary hearing before Annas (18:12–24)

Although the Romans had deposed Annas, in the eyes of the Jews he still functioned as the high priest because the office was for life. Annas questioned Jesus, but Jesus demanded a legal hearing.

Hearing before Caiaphas (Matt. 26:57–67; Mark 14:53–65)

Caiaphas was the high priest appointed by the Romans. Two false witnesses testified against Jesus and Caiaphas asked Jesus if He was the Messiah. Jesus answered yes, and Caiaphas concluded that Jesus was guilty of blasphemy.

Trial before the Sanhedrin (Matt. 27:1, 2; Mark 15:1; Luke 22:66–71)

The council of Jewish religious leaders confirmed Caiaphas's conclusion. In this trial, Jesus admitted He was the Son of God and declared that He would sit on the right hand of God the Father.

First hearing before Pilate (18:28–37; Matt. 27:11–14; Mark 15:2–5; Luke 23:1–5)

The Jewish religious leaders brought Jesus to Pilate in order to get permission to execute Him. They accused Him of treason. Pilate saw Jesus' innocence, but briefly questioned Him. In this interview, Jesus revealed to Pilate that His kingdom was not of this earth.

Hearing before Herod (Luke 23:6–12)

Pilate sent Jesus to Herod because Jesus was from Galilee, the region ruled by Herod. Jesus remained silent before Herod.

Final hearing before Pilate (18:38—19:16; Matt. 27:15–26; Mark 15:6–15; Luke 23:13–25)

Pilate did not want to condemn an innocent man, but he was afraid of another Jewish uprising. Therefore, he finally gave in to the cries of the crowd: "Crucify Him."

19:17 The Place of a Skull probably got its name from the shape of the hill.

19:18 they crucified Him: Of all the apostles, John alone witnessed the crucifixion. However, he spares his readers the revolting details. The two others were thieves (see Matt. 27:38; Mark 15:27).

19:19 wrote a title: It was a Roman custom to write the name of the condemned person and his crime on a plaque to be placed above his head at the execution. Mark calls this title "the inscription of His accusation" (see Mark 15:26).

19:20 written in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin: Multilingual inscriptions were common. The title was written in the local, common, and official languages of the day. Everyone could read the message in his or her own language.

19:21 The addition of the phrase of the Jews to the title chief priests (probably referring to Caiaphas and Annas) occurs nowhere else in the NT. The addition probably corresponds to the title given Jesus. The chief priest of the Jews objected to Jesus being called King of the Jews. They did not want a messianic designation connected with Him.

19:22 Pilate refused to change the title. As did Caiaphas, Pilate affirmed more than he ever intended. The title proclaimed to all that Jesus is indeed the promised Messiah.

19:23 the soldiers: According to Roman law, the garments of a condemned criminal belonged to the executioners. Jesus had two items of clothing. The cloak was a large, loose garment. The tunic was a close-fitting garment that went from the neck to the knees.

19:24 The outer garment could be conveniently divided, but the inner garment could not. Thus the soldiers divided the outer one and cast lots for the inner one. Unknowingly, the soldiers fulfilled David's prophecy in Ps. 22:18. This passage had long been considered a messianic prophecy.

19:26 The disciple whom He loved refers to John, the author of this Gospel.

19:27 Behold your mother: Jesus placed Mary in the care of John.

19:28 that the Scripture might be fulfilled: Everything foretold concerning the earthly life of Jesus had been accomplished.

19:29 Sour wine was not the same as the drugged wine that had been offered to Jesus earlier ("wine mingled with myrrh"; see Mark 15:23). Jesus did not take that wine because He wanted to die fully conscious. He did take a sip of this wine; one of the agonies of crucifixion was incredible thirst, added to the terrible pain.

19:30 It is finished . . . He gave up His spirit: Having fulfilled every command of the Father and every prophecy of Scripture, Jesus voluntarily died. This was not a cry of exhaustion, but of completion. Jesus had done what He had agreed to do.

The Death of Jesus

The Jews viewed Jesus' death as a scandal. The church understood His death as fulfillment of Old Testament prophecy.

Aspect of Jesus' Death

In obedience to His Father (18:11)
Announced by Himself (18:32; see 3:14)
In the place of His people (18:14)
With evildoers (19:18)
In innocence (19:6)
Crucified (19:18)
Buried in a rich man's tomb (19:38–42)

19:31 The Preparation Day was Friday, the day before the Sabbath (see v. 14). bodies should not remain on the cross: It is ironic that in the midst of a deliberate judicial murder the Jews were scrupulous about keeping the ceremonial law. According to Jewish law (Deut. 21:23), it was necessary to remove the bodies of executed criminals before sunset. To avoid breaking the Law, the Jews requested that the legs of the condemned be broken so that the men would die quickly and could be removed from their crosses. Breaking the legs was not always part of crucifixion. But with his legs broken, a victim could no longer lift his body in order to breathe and would soon suffocate. High day is literally "great day." The coming Sabbath was especially important because it was the Sabbath of the Passover Week.

19:34 To make certain that Jesus was dead, one of the soldiers pierced His side with a spear. After the soldier did this, blood and water came out, indicating that Jesus was already dead. Only blood would have flowed from a living body.

19:35 he who has seen: John's words can be trusted because he is giving an eyewitness account, so that his readers will believe that Jesus is the Savior.

19:36 One should trust Christ not only because John gives an accurate account of His death (v. 35), but also because He fulfilled Scripture (v. 37), proving that He is the Messiah. Both the lack of broken bones and the piercing of His side fulfilled prophecies recorded in the OT (see Ex. 12:46; Zech. 12:10).

19:38 Joseph, a rich member of the Jewish council (see Matt. 27:57; Mark 15:43), had not agreed with their decision (see Luke 23:50).

19:39 Nicodemus, like Joseph (v. 38), was a member of the council (3:1). At last, Nicodemus identified himself with the One who had come from above (12:42). A hundred pounds was a large amount. Nicodemus intended to cover Jesus' entire body with spices—a common burial custom.

19:41 a new tomb: Matthew specifies that the tomb belonged to Joseph (see Matt. 27:60). This too was a fulfillment of a prophecy: The Messiah would be buried in a rich man's grave (see Is. 53:9).

20:1 while it was still dark: Apparently Mary Magdalene arrived ahead of the other women (see Matt. 28:1; Mark 16:1; Luke 24:10). Mary Magdalene, out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons, was the last one at the Cross and the first one at the grave.

20:2 The other disciple, whom Jesus loved, was John, the author of this Gospel. They have taken away the Lord: Mary Magdalene jumped to the wrong conclusion. we: Other women were with Mary Magdalene (Matt. 28:1; Mark 16:1; Luke 24:10).

20:5 the linen cloths lying there: No one who came to steal the body would have taken the time to unwrap it and leave the cloths behind.

20:6 saw: The Greek term implies an intense stare, in contrast to the more casual look described in v. 5. Peter went into the tomb to get a good look. He carefully examined the place where Jesus' body had been.

20:7 folded together: The handkerchief around Christ's head had not been thrown aside, as might have been done by a thief. It had been folded and laid aside. Perhaps the implication is that Christ did not rush out of the tomb, but left His grave clothes neatly folded.

20:8 The other disciple, commonly believed to be the apostle John, saw the tomb and the grave clothes and believed that Christ had been raised from the dead.

20:9 they did not know the Scripture: The disciples believed because of what they saw in the tomb (v. 8), not because of what they knew from OT passages describing the Savior's resurrection (see Luke 24:25–27). Jesus had prophesied His death and resurrection in the disciples' presence, but the disciples had not understood what He was talking about. Later Jesus would instruct them about how His life and death fulfilled the Scriptures (see Luke 24:13–27, 44–47).

20:16 When Christ uttered her name, Mary recognized His voice. Mary addressed Christ as Rabboni, an Aramaic term which John translates for his Greek readers.

20:17 Cling means “to fasten oneself to” or “to hold.” Mary had grabbed Christ and was holding on to Him as if she would never turn Him loose. Christ explained to her that He could not stay because He had to ascend to His Father. My brethren referred to the disciples (v. 18). Jesus sent Mary to them with the first postresurrection testimony. Though it may be that Mary was formerly a woman of ill-repute, this did not keep Jesus from commissioning her to bring the gospel message to the apostles (see Mark 16:11). My Father and your Father: God is the Father of Christ and of believers (1:14, 18; 3:16, 18).

20:19 Jesus came and stood in the midst: Christ's appearance was miraculous, because the doors were shut. Jesus, as God, could perform a variety of miracles without requiring a change in His humanity. Here Christ's body was a physical body, the same body in which He died and was buried. The difference is that His flesh had been changed to take on immortality and incorruptibility (see 1 Cor. 15:53).

20:21 As indicates that the disciples were commissioned to carry on Christ's work, not to begin a new one.

20:22 Receive the Holy Spirit: The ministry to which Jesus called the disciples (v. 21; see also Matt. 28:16–20; Luke 24:47–49) required spiritual power. The reference here is to a special preparation of the apostles who were to become the foundation of the church at Pentecost. Here Jesus breathed the Spirit into the disciples. At Pentecost the Spirit unified the believers into one body and empowered them to testify of Jesus (see 1 Cor. 12:13). The reception of the Spirit here is reminiscent of the creative breath of God into Adam in Gen. 2:7. Yet the gift here was not a human spirit, but the Spirit of the living God.

20:23 If you forgive: The apostles did not take Jesus' words to mean that they had the power to forgive sins (see Acts 8:22). They knew that only God could forgive sins (see Mark 2:7). Neither the apostles nor the church had the power to forgive specific sins or to prevent forgiveness for any individual. Fundamentally Jesus was speaking of the responsibility of the church to declare the gospel to all the world, so that those who believe in Jesus can find the precious gift of forgiveness (see Matt. 16:19).

20:24, 25 Thomas was not present when Jesus appeared to the disciples in the closed room (vv. 19–23). Unless I see in His hands: When Jesus appeared to the other disciples, He showed them His hands and His side (v. 20). No doubt they told Thomas about it; hence his request.

20:28 My Lord and my God: In awestruck wonder, Thomas not only believed that Christ was risen from the dead, but he also saw that the Resurrection proved His deity.

20:29 Those who have not seen includes all who have believed in Christ since His ascension to the Father (see 1 Pet. 1:8, 9).

20:31 John states the purpose of his book. His purpose was to convince his readers that Jesus is the Christ, the Messiah who fulfilled God's promises to Israel. Jesus is the Son of God, God in the flesh. By believing these things, a person obtains eternal life (1:12).

(Gk. zōē) (1:4; 6:35; 11:25; 14:6; 20:31; Eph. 4:18; 1 John 5:11) Strong's #2222

This word in classical Greek was used for life in general. There are a few examples of this meaning in the NT (see Acts 17:25; James 4:14; Rev. 16:3), but in most instances the word is used to designate divine, eternal life, the life of God (Eph. 4:18). This life resided in Christ, and He has made it available to all who believe in Him. Human beings are born with the natural life, called psuchē in Greek, which can be translated “soul,” “personality,” or “life.” Eternal life can be received only by believing in the One who is Himself life, Jesus Christ.

21:2 John, the author of this Gospel, was one of the sons of Zebedee. The omission of his name here is consistent with his reserve about everything connected with himself in his book.

21:4 the disciples did not know: Perhaps the apostles did not recognize Jesus because they were preoccupied with their work as Mary Magdalene had been with her sorrow (20:14). In addition, there was not much light at this time of day. When the morning had now come refers to daybreak.

21:5 have you any food: The question from the shore was probably regarded as a request to buy fish. The disciples answered that they had nothing to sell.

21:7 That disciple whom Jesus loved is commonly considered to be John, the author of this Gospel.

Peter . . . plunged into the sea: John was the first to recognize the Lord; Peter was the first to act. Though Peter often made bad decisions, he had zeal that would eventually be channeled to good use (see Acts 2:14–41).

21:8 Two hundred cubits is about a hundred yards.

21:14 The phrase the third time applies to the disciples as a group. John himself has related three appearances before this one, the first being to Mary Magdalene (20:19–23, 26–29).

21:15 More than these means more than the other disciples (see Matt. 26:22). On two different occasions Peter had claimed extraordinary love for Christ, even comparing himself to other men (see 13:37; Matt. 26:33).

21:16 Tend means to shepherd. Lambs need to be fed (v. 15); sheep need to be guided. Peter would need to care for diverse people in different ways, as Christ had done with His disciples.

21:17 Peter denied the Lord at least three times. Here he affirmed his love for the Lord for the third time.

21:18 Peter must have been bewildered by Christ's words to him. Jesus had just spoken of the future ministry of Peter; now He spoke of Peter's death. When Peter was younger, he walked where he wished, moving about without restriction. When Peter became older, he would stretch out his hands, looking for help. Another will gird you means that Peter would be bound as a condemned criminal. The day would come when Peter would be totally under the control of Roman executioners, who would carry him where he would not wish to go, to death (v. 19). His death is hinted at in 2 Pet. 1:13, 14. Jesus' words here confirm the early church tradition that Peter was crucified upside down.

21:20, 21 The disciple whom Jesus loved is commonly considered to be John, the author of this Gospel. what about this man: Peter wanted to know if John too would suffer a violent death.

21:22, 23 You follow Me: The Lord told Peter that he should be concerned with following God's will himself and not worrying about God's will for others. this disciple would not die: The rumor was that Jesus would return before John died.

The Restoration of Peter

John is the only Gospel writer who records the account of Jesus restoring Peter to His ministry after Peter's three denials (18:17, 25–27; 21:15–19). Only a short time before this dramatic encounter with the risen Lord, Peter had boldly announced that he would give his life for Jesus. Jesus responded by informing Peter that he would actually deny Him three times that same night (13:37, 38).

Later that evening, Jesus was arrested. While He stood trial before the chief priest, Peter hid outside in the courtyard. Three times Peter was recognized as one of Jesus' followers; three times he denied knowing Jesus, thus fulfilling Jesus' words. Luke 22:62 tells us that when Peter realized what he had done, he "wept bitterly."

Imagine, then, Peter's emotions during his encounter with the resurrected Savior by the Sea of Tiberias. On the one hand, he was no doubt overjoyed to see the risen Lord. On the other hand, he may still have been ashamed and embarrassed about his desertion of Jesus in the hour of His greatest need.

Three times the Lord asked Peter if Peter loved Him. The first two times, Christ used the word agapaō, signifying a love of commitment, a love of the will. Peter responded with the word phileō, indicating his strong emotion for the Lord. The word suggests warmth, fondness, and friendship.

When Peter acknowledged that he loved Christ, the Lord gave him the task of feeding His lambs and taking care of His sheep. Expressing love for Christ implies accepting a duty to do the work of God and to be faithful. Peter had some difficulty with such faithfulness during Christ's earthly ministry. As Christ was getting ready to depart, He wanted to elicit a commitment from Peter.

The third time Jesus asked Peter if he loved Him He used the word phileō, indicating strong friendship. Christ had taught that a friend who loves will lay down his life for a friend. Peter, instead, had denied Christ three times. With Peter's final response, "You know that I love You," Christ had drawn a commitment from Peter and assured the other disciples of the bond between Himself and Peter. In the process, He demonstrated His complete forgiveness of Peter. With this exchange, the Lord restored Peter to a position of leadership in the ongoing ministry of the gospel.

21:24 This is the disciple: The disciple was the one whom Jesus loved (v. 20). This is basically John's signature to his Gospel.

21:25 there are also many other things that Jesus did: The Gospel of John is truthful (v. 24), but it is not exhaustive.

Introduction

The infectious news first appeared in Jerusalem, then spread quickly from person to person and from city to city. It faced opposition everywhere it went. But the world was ill-equipped to fight it. Empowered by the Holy Spirit, the followers of Christ relayed the Good News about Jesus everywhere. In less than 35 years, the gospel had reached cities from Jerusalem to Rome.

Luke wrote the Book of Acts to show the fulfillment of Jesus' words, "I will build My church, and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it" (see Matt. 16:18). Before Jesus ascended to heaven, He commanded His followers to make disciples of all nations (see Luke 24:46–49). Luke begins Acts with a reiteration of that commission and a description of how it would be carried out (1:8). This commission not only ties the Book of Acts to the Gospel of Luke, but it also provides an outline for the book: the witness in Jerusalem and Judea (1:1—6:7); the witness in Judea and Samaria (6:8—9:31); and the witness to the ends of the earth (9:32—28:31).

The Book of Acts begins in Jerusalem with the disciples huddled in a room on the Day of Pentecost. Then the Holy Spirit came upon them and authorized them to be His witnesses. The rest of Acts describes the ripple effect of that great event. Jesus' followers first witnessed to the Jews in Jerusalem, with Peter at the center of the movement. Then persecution broke out (7:60), scattering believers into Samaria and the rest of the known world. Saul of Tarsus, once a leader of the persecution, became a leader of the persecuted. In chapter 11, the focus of the Book of Acts moves from Peter's ministry to the Jews to Saul's ministry to the Gentiles. Under his more familiar name Paul, this converted persecutor established churches in Asia Minor and Europe. The Book of Acts records three of Paul's missionary journeys, as well as his voyage to Rome to face his trial. The book ends abruptly with Paul under house arrest in Rome. The ending is fitting, because the entire Book of Acts is itself just a prologue. Jesus has not finished His work on earth. The narrative begun by Luke in this book will not end until Jesus Christ returns in glory (see 1:11; 1 Cor. 15:28).

Author The Book of Acts begins with a reference to the author's "former account" written to a man named Theophilus (1:1), a clear reference to the Gospel of Luke (see Luke 1:3). Even though the author does not mention himself by name in either the Gospel or Acts, early tradition identifies Luke as the author of both volumes. As early as the second century, ancient authors, such as Irenaeus (c. A.D. 180) indicate this.

Called "the beloved physician" by Paul (see Col. 4:14), Luke was a doctor Paul met in Troas (see 16:8–11). He cared for Paul during the illnesses he suffered on his missionary endeavors. Paul's references to Luke in 2 Timothy 4:11 and Philemon 24 portray Luke as Paul's faithful traveling companion. After the two met in Troas, Luke included himself with the missionary team recorded in Acts (see 16:10, the beginning of the so-called "we" sections in the book). Luke's faithful friendship to Paul continued until Paul's death in Rome, for Luke was one of the few people who did not desert him (see 2 Tim. 4:11).

Date The Book of Acts does not record Paul's death. Instead it ends abruptly during Paul's residence in Rome (see 28:30). Paul's house arrest in Rome occurred around A.D. 61, marking the earliest possible date for the book's completion. Acts makes no reference to the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70 or to Nero's persecution of Christians following the fire of Rome in A.D. 64. Surely Luke would have mentioned these significant events if they had occurred when he wrote. Moreover, the many references to Paul's vindication before Roman officials would not make sense if Nero had already started his vehement persecution of Christians. Therefore, it is reasonable to assume that Acts was written between A.D. 61 and 64.

Purpose The Book of Acts provides a condensed history of the early church, an eyewitness account of the miraculous spread of the gospel from Jerusalem to Rome. The book details how the Holy Spirit authorized our spiritual forebears to carry out Jesus' mandate to be His witnesses throughout the world. The accounts in Acts include stirring examples for us to follow, but the recurring theme of the Book of Acts is that our spiritual ancestors were empowered by the Holy Spirit. That same power is available to us. God has not left us at the mercy of our own weaknesses; He has sent the Holy Spirit to help us follow their example (see Eph. 5:17, 18), and to be Jesus' witnesses in all of the earth.

Theology The Book of Acts is a historical narrative, but at the same time it has profound theological significance. A believer's faith rests upon the facts of history: the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus. These historical events were recorded by Luke in his Gospel in order to evoke belief. If the historical fact of Christ's resurrection is not true, then a believer's faith has no foundation. As Paul states, "If Christ is not risen, your faith is futile; you are still in your sins" (1 Cor. 15:17). The Book of Acts reassures believers that their faith in Christ rests on fact. The extraordinary growth of the early church was based directly on the resurrected Christ. His command and empowerment of the disciples through the Holy Spirit is the only reasonable explanation for the incredible and rapid spread of the gospel in the first century. The early Christians were not testifying about a dead Christ, but a living Christ whom they had seen with their own eyes (1:1–5; Luke 24:36–53; 2 Pet. 1:16). The same is true for us today. Jesus lives and continues to work through the church.

Christ in the Scriptures

Although Jesus ascends into heaven in chapter 1, He figures significantly in the rest of the Book of Acts. The resurrected Christ is the central theme of the sermons, defenses, and the life of the church through the entire book.

Luke intended Acts to be an apologetic that logically attests to Jesus' divinity. And he accomplished his purpose. Notice his references to the eyewitness accounts of Jesus' resurrection, the firsthand testimonies of Jesus' followers (including a converted critic of Christianity by the name of Saul), and the evidence of the Holy Spirit's supernatural power. No wonder Luke quotes Peter as saying, "To Him all the prophets witness that, through His name, whoever believes in Him will receive remission of sins" (10:43). "Nor is there salvation in any other, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved" (4:12).

Prologue

¹The former account I made, O ^aTheophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, ^{2b}until the day in which ¹He was taken up, after He through the Holy Spirit ^chad given commandments to the apostles whom He had chosen, ^{3d}to whom He also presented Himself alive after His suffering by many ²infallible proofs, being seen by them during forty days and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

The Holy Spirit Promised ^{4e}And being assembled together with them, He commanded them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the Promise of the Father, “which,” He said, “you have ^fheard from Me; ^{5g}“for John truly baptized with water, ^hbut you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now.”

⁶Therefore, when they had come together, they asked Him, saying, “Lord, will You at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?”

⁷And He said to them, ⁱ“It is not for you to ^jknow times or seasons which the Father has put in His own authority.

^{8k}“But you shall receive power ^lwhen the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and ^myou shall be ³witnesses to Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and ⁿSamaria, and to the ^oend of the earth.”

Jesus Ascends to Heaven (Mark 16:19, 20; Luke 24:50–53) ^{9p}Now when He had spoken these things, while they watched, ^qHe was taken up, and a cloud received Him out of their sight.

¹⁰And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as He went up, behold, two men stood by them ^rin white apparel, ¹¹who also said, “Men of Galilee, why do you stand gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, ^swill so come in like manner as you saw Him go into heaven.”

The Upper Room Prayer Meeting ^{12t}Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day’s journey.

Bible Times & Culture Notes: Sabbath Day’s Journey

¹³And when they had entered, they went up ^uinto the upper room where they were staying: ^vPeter, James, John, and Andrew; Philip and Thomas; Bartholomew and Matthew; James the son of Alphaeus and ^wSimon the Zealot; and ^xJudas the son of James.

Matthias Chosen

(cf. Ps. 109:8) ¹⁵And in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the ⁶disciples (altogether the number ^bof names was about a hundred and twenty), and said, Word Studies: together

^{18g}(Now this man purchased a field with ^hthe ⁷wages of iniquity; and falling headlong, he burst open in the middle and all his ⁸entrails gushed out.

ⁱ*‘Let his dwelling place be ⁹desolate, And let no one live in it’;*
and,

^j*‘Let another take his ¹⁰office.’*

²¹“Therefore, of these men who have accompanied us all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, ²²“beginning from the baptism of John to that day when ^kHe was taken up from us, one of these must ^lbecome a witness with us of His resurrection.”

²³And they proposed two: Joseph called ^mBarsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

²⁴And they prayed and said, “You, O Lord, ⁿwho know the hearts of all, show which of these two You have chosen ^{25o}“to take part in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place.”

Acts 2

Coming of the Holy Spirit ¹When ^athe Day of Pentecost had fully come, ^bthey were all ¹with one accord in one place. In-Text Map: Countries of People Mentioned at Pentecost

²And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty wind, and ^cit filled the whole house where they were sitting.

³Then there appeared to them ²divided tongues, as of fire, and one sat upon each of them.

⁴And ^dthey were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began ^eto speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

The Crowd's Response ⁵And there were dwelling in Jerusalem Jews, ^fdevout men, from every nation under heaven.

⁶And when this sound occurred, the ^gmultitude came together, and were confused, because everyone heard them speak in his own language.

⁷Then they were all amazed and marveled, saying to one another, “Look, are not all these who speak ^hGalileans?”

⁸“And how is it that we hear, each in our own ³language in which we were born?”

¹²So they were all amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, “Whatever could this mean?”

¹³Others mocking said, “They are full of new wine.”

Peter's Sermon

(Joel 2:28–32) ¹⁴But Peter, standing up with the eleven, raised his voice and said to them, “Men of Judea and all who dwell in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and heed my words.

¹⁵“For these are not drunk, as you suppose, ^jsince it is only ⁵the third hour of the day.

¹⁶“But this is what was spoken by the prophet Joel:

¹⁷‘And^k it shall come to pass in the last days, says God, ¹That I will pour out of My Spirit on all flesh; Your sons and ^myour daughters shall prophesy, Your young men shall see visions, Your old men shall dream dreams.

¹⁸And on My menservants and on My maidservants I will pour out My Spirit in those days; ⁿAnd they shall prophesy.

¹⁹^oI will show wonders in heaven above And signs in the earth beneath: Blood and fire and vapor of smoke.

²⁰^pThe sun shall be turned into darkness, And the moon into blood, Before the coming of the great and awesome day of the LORD.

²¹And it shall come to pass That ^qwhoever calls on the name of the LORD
Shall be saved.’

²²“Men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus of Nazareth, a Man attested by God to you ^rby miracles, wonders, and signs which God did through Him in your midst, as you yourselves also know— ²³“Him, ^sbeing delivered by the determined purpose and foreknowledge of God, ^tyou ⁶have taken by lawless hands, have crucified, and put to death; Word Studies: foreknowledge

²⁴^u“whom God raised up, having ⁷loosed the ⁸pains of death, because it was not possible that He should be held by it.

²⁵“For David says concerning Him:

^v‘I foresaw the LORD always before my face, For He is at my right hand, that I may not be shaken.

²⁶Therefore my heart rejoiced, and my tongue was glad; Moreover my flesh also will rest in hope.

²⁷For You will not leave my soul in Hades, Nor will You allow Your Holy One to see ^wcorruption.

²⁸You have made known to me the ways of life; You will make me full of joy in Your presence.’

²⁹“Men and brethren, let me speak freely to you ^xof the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his tomb is with us to this day.

³⁰“Therefore, being a prophet, ^yand knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him that of the fruit of his body, ⁹according to the flesh, He would raise up the Christ to sit on his throne, ³¹“he, foreseeing this, spoke concerning the resurrection of the Christ, ^zthat His soul was not left in Hades, nor did His flesh see corruption.

^{32a}“This Jesus God has raised up, ^bof which we are all witnesses.

³³“Therefore ^cbeing exalted ¹⁰to ^dthe right hand of God, and ^ehaving received from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, He ^fpoured out this which you now see and hear.

³⁴“For David did not ascend into the heavens, but he says himself:

^g*‘The LORD said to my Lord, “Sit at My right hand, ³⁵Till I make Your enemies Your footstool.” ’*

³⁶“Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Christ.”

³⁷Now when they heard this, ^hthey were cut to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, “Men and brethren, what shall we do?”

³⁸Then Peter said to them, ⁱ“Repent, and let every one of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the ¹¹remission of sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.

³⁹“For the promise is to you and ^jto your children, and ^kto all who are afar off, as many as the Lord our God will call.”

A Vital Church Grows ⁴⁰And with many other words he testified and exhorted them, saying, “Be saved from this ¹²perverse generation.”

⁴¹Then those who ¹³gladly received his word were baptized; and that day about three thousand souls were added to them.

⁴²And they continued steadfastly in the apostles’ ¹⁴doctrine and fellowship, in the breaking of bread, and in prayers. Word Studies: persevere

⁴³Then fear came upon every soul, and ^mmany wonders and signs were done through the apostles.

⁴⁴Now all who believed were together, and ⁿhad all things in common, ⁴⁵and ¹⁵sold their possessions and goods, and ^odivided¹⁶ them among all, as anyone had need.

^{46p}So continuing daily with one accord ^qin the temple, and ^rbreaking bread from house to house, they ate their food with gladness and simplicity of heart, ⁴⁷praising God and having favor with all the people. And ^sthe Lord added ¹⁷to the church daily those who were being saved. Article: Missionary Efforts

A Lame Man Healed ¹Now Peter and John went up together ^ato the temple at the hour of prayer, ^bthe ninth hour.

²And ^ca certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, ^dto ¹ask alms from those who entered the temple; ³who, seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked for alms.

⁴And fixing his eyes on him, with John, Peter said, "Look at us."

⁵So he gave them his attention, expecting to receive something from them.

⁶Then Peter said, "Silver and gold I do not have, but what I do have I give you: ^eIn the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk."

⁷And he took him by the right hand and lifted him up, and immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength.

⁸So he, ^fleaping up, stood and walked and entered the temple with them—walking, leaping, and praising God.

⁹And all the people saw him walking and praising God.

¹⁰Then they knew that it was he who ^hsat begging alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him.

Preaching in Solomon's Portico ¹¹Now as the lame man who was healed held on to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them in the porch ⁱwhich is called Solomon's, greatly amazed.

¹²So when Peter saw it, he responded to the people: "Men of Israel, why do you marvel at this? Or why look so intently at us, as though by our own power or godliness we had made this man walk?"

¹³"The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers, ^kglorified His Servant Jesus, whom you ^ldelivered up and ^mdenied in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let Him go.

¹⁴"But you denied ⁿthe Holy One ^oand the Just, and ^pasked for a murderer to be granted to you, ¹⁵"and killed the ²Prince of life, ^qwhom God raised from the dead, ^rof which we are witnesses.

¹⁶"And His name, through faith in His name, has made this man strong, whom you see and know. Yes, the faith which comes through Him has given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.

¹⁷“Yet now, brethren, I know that ^tyou did it in ignorance, as did also your rulers.

^{19w}“Repent therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, so that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord, ²⁰“and that He may send ³Jesus Christ, who was ⁴preached to you before, ^{21x}“whom heaven must receive until the times of ^yrestoration of all things, ^zwhich God has spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since ⁵the world began.

²²“For Moses truly said to the fathers, ^a*“The LORD your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your brethren. Him you shall hear in all things, whatever He says to you.*

²⁴“Yes, and ^ball the prophets, from Samuel and those who follow, as many as have spoken, have also ⁶foretold these days.

^{25c}“You are sons of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying to Abraham, ^d*“And in your seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed.’*

²⁶“To you ^efirst, God, having raised up His Servant Jesus, sent Him to bless you, ^fin turning away every one of you from your iniquities.”

Acts 4

Peter and John Arrested ¹Now as they spoke to the people, the priests, the captain of the temple, and the ^aSadducees came upon them, ²being greatly disturbed that they taught the people and preached in Jesus the resurrection from the dead.

³And they laid hands on them, and put them in custody until the next day, for it was already evening.

⁴However, many of those who heard the word believed; and the number of the men came to be about five thousand.

Addressing the Sanhedrin ⁵And it came to pass, on the next day, that their rulers, elders, and scribes, ⁶as well as ^bAnnas the high priest, Caiaphas, John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the family of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem.

⁷And when they had set them in the midst, they asked, ^c“By what power or by what name have you done this?”

^{8d}Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, “Rulers of the people and elders of Israel: Word Studies: filled with the Holy Spirit

⁹“If we this day are judged for a good deed done to a helpless man, by what means he has been made well, ¹⁰“let it be known to you all, and to all the people of Israel, ^ethat by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom you crucified, ^fwhom God raised from the dead, by Him this man stands here before you whole.

¹¹“This is the ^g‘stone which was rejected by you builders, which has become the chief cornerstone.’

^{12h}“Nor is there salvation in any other, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved.”

The Name of Jesus Forbidden ¹³Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, ⁱand perceived that they were uneducated and untrained men, they marveled. And they realized that they had been with Jesus.

¹⁴And seeing the man who had been healed ^jstanding with them, they could say nothing against it.

¹⁵But when they had commanded them to go aside out of the council, they conferred among themselves, ¹⁶saying, ^k“What shall we do to these men? For, indeed, that a ¹notable miracle has been done through them is ¹evident² to all who dwell in Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it.

¹⁷“But so that it spreads no further among the people, let us severely threaten them, that from now on they speak to no man in this name.”

^{18m}So they called them and commanded them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus.

¹⁹But Peter and John answered and said to them, ⁿ“Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you more than to God, you judge.

²¹So when they had further threatened them, they let them go, finding no way of punishing them, ^qbecause of the people, since they all ^rglorified God for ^swhat had been done.

²²For the man was over forty years old on whom this miracle of healing had been performed.

Prayer for Boldness (cf. Ps. 2:1, 2) ²³And being let go, ^tthey went to their own companions and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said to them.

²⁴So when they heard that, they raised their voice to God with one accord and said: “Lord, ^uYou are God, who made heaven and earth and the sea, and all that is in them, ²⁵“who ³by the mouth of Your servant David have said:

^v‘Why did the nations rage, And the people plot vain things?

²⁶The kings of the earth took their stand, And the rulers were gathered together Against the LORD and against His Christ.’

²⁷“For ^wtruly against ^xYour holy Servant Jesus, ^ywhom You anointed, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the people of Israel, were gathered together ^{28z}“to do whatever Your hand and Your purpose determined before to be done.

²⁹“Now, Lord, look on their threats, and grant to Your servants ^athat with all boldness they may speak Your word, ³⁰“by stretching out Your hand to heal, ^band that signs and wonders may be done ^cthrough the name of ^dYour holy Servant Jesus.”

³¹And when they had prayed, ^ethe place where they were assembled together was shaken; and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, ^fand they spoke the word of God with boldness.

Sharing in All Things ³²*Now the multitude of those who believed ^gwere of one heart and one soul; ^hneither did anyone say that any of the things he possessed was his own, but they had all things in common.*

³³And with ⁱgreat power the apostles gave ^jwitness to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. And ^kgreat grace was upon them all.

³⁴Nor was there anyone among them who lacked; ^lfor all who were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the proceeds of the things that were sold, ^{35m}and laid them at the apostles' feet; ⁿand they distributed to each as anyone had need.

³⁶And ⁴Joses, who was also named Barnabas by the apostles (which is translated Son of ⁵Encouragement), a Levite of the country of Cyprus, ^{37o}having land, sold it, and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet.

Acts 5

Lying to the Holy Spirit ¹But a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession.

²And he kept back part of the proceeds, his wife also being aware of it, and brought a certain part and laid it at the apostles' feet.

^{3a}But Peter said, "Ananias, why has ^bSatan filled your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit and keep back part of the price of the land for yourself?

⁴"While it remained, was it not your own? And after it was sold, was it not in your own control? Why have you conceived this thing in your heart? You have not lied to men but to God."

⁵Then Ananias, hearing these words, ^cfell down and breathed his last. So great fear came upon all those who heard these things.

⁶And the young men arose and ^dwrapped him up, carried him out, and buried him.

⁷Now it was about three hours later when his wife came in, not knowing what had happened.

⁸And Peter answered her, "Tell me whether you sold the land for so much?" She said, "Yes, for so much."

⁹Then Peter said to her, "How is it that you have agreed together ^eto test the Spirit of the Lord? Look, the feet of those who have buried your husband are at the door, and they will carry you out."

^{10f}Then immediately she fell down at his feet and breathed her last. And the young men came in and found her dead, and carrying her out, buried her by her husband.

^{11g}So great fear came upon all the church and upon all who heard these things.

Continuing Power in the Church ¹²And ^hthrough the hands of the apostles many signs and wonders were done among the people. ⁱAnd they were all with one accord in Solomon's Porch.

¹³Yet ^jnone of the rest dared join them, ^kbut the people esteemed them highly.

¹⁴And believers were increasingly added to the Lord, multitudes of both men and women, ¹⁵so that they brought the sick out into the streets and laid them on beds and couches, ¹that at least the shadow of Peter passing by might fall on some of them.

¹⁶Also a multitude gathered from the surrounding cities to Jerusalem, bringing ^msick people and those who were tormented by unclean spirits, and they were all healed.

Imprisoned Apostles Freed ¹⁷ⁿ*Then the high priest rose up, and all those who were with him (which is the sect of the Sadducees), and they were filled with ¹indignation, ^{18o}and laid their hands on the apostles and put them in the common prison.*

¹⁹But at night ^pan angel of the Lord opened the prison doors and brought them out, and said, ²⁰“Go, stand in the temple and speak to the people ^qall the words of this life.”

²¹And when they heard that, they entered the temple early in the morning and taught. ^rBut the high priest and those with him came and called the ²council together, with all the ³elders of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

Apostles on Trial Again ²²*But when the officers came and did not find them in the prison, they returned and reported, ²³saying, “Indeed we found the prison shut securely, and the guards standing ⁴outside before the doors; but when we opened them, we found no one inside!”*

²⁴Now when ⁵the high priest, ^sthe captain of the temple, and the chief priests heard these things, they wondered what the outcome would be.

²⁵So one came and told them, ⁶saying, “Look, the men whom you put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people!”

²⁶Then the captain went with the officers and brought them without violence, ^tfor they feared the people, lest they should be stoned.

²⁷And when they had brought them, they set them before the council. And the high priest asked them, ²⁸saying, ^u“Did we not strictly command you not to teach in this name? And look, you have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, ^vand intend to bring this Man’s ^wblood on us!”

²⁹But Peter and the other apostles answered and said: ^x“We ought to obey God rather than men.

^{30y}“The God of our fathers raised up Jesus whom you murdered by ^zhanging on a tree.

^{31a}“Him God has exalted to His right hand to be ^bPrince and ^cSavior, ^dto give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins.

³²“And ^ewe are His witnesses to these things, and so also is the Holy Spirit ^fwhom God has given to those who obey Him.”

Gamaliel's Advice

³³When they heard this, they were ^gfurious⁷ and plotted to kill them.

³⁴Then one in the council stood up, a Pharisee named ^hGamaliel, a teacher of the law held in respect by all the people, and commanded them to put the apostles outside for a little while. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Gamaliel

³⁵And he said to them: “Men of Israel, ⁸take heed to yourselves what you intend to do regarding these men.

³⁶“For some time ago Theudas rose up, claiming to be somebody. A number of men, about four hundred, ⁹joined him. He was slain, and all who obeyed him were scattered and came to nothing.

³⁷“After this man, Judas of Galilee rose up in the days of the census, and drew away many people after him. He also perished, and all who obeyed him were dispersed.

³⁸“And now I say to you, keep away from these men and let them alone; for if this plan or this work is of men, it will come to nothing; ³⁹ⁱ“but if it is of God, you cannot overthrow it—lest you even be found ^jto fight against God.”

⁴⁰And they agreed with him, and when they had ^kcalled for the apostles ^land beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go.

⁴¹So they departed from the presence of the council, ^mrejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for ¹⁰His name.

⁴²And daily ⁿin the temple, and in every house, ^othey did not cease teaching and preaching Jesus as the Christ.

Acts 6

Seven Chosen to Serve ¹Now in those days, ^awhen the number of the disciples was multiplying, there arose a complaint against the Hebrews by the ^bHellenists, ¹because their widows were neglected ^cin the daily distribution.

²Then the twelve summoned the multitude of the disciples and said, ^d“It is not desirable that we should leave the word of God and serve tables.

⁵And the saying pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Stephen, ^ha man full of faith and the Holy Spirit, and ⁱPhilip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and ^jNicolas, a proselyte from Antioch, ⁶whom they set before the apostles; and ^kwhen they had prayed, ^lthey laid hands on them.

⁷Then ^mthe word of God spread, and the number of the disciples multiplied greatly in Jerusalem, and a great many ⁿof the priests were obedient to the faith.

Stephen Accused of Blasphemy ⁸And Stephen, full of ²faith and power, did great ^owonders and signs among the people. Article: Stephen the Martyr

⁹Then there arose some from what is called the Synagogue of the Freedmen (Cyrenians, Alexandrians, and those from Cilicia and Asia), disputing with Stephen.

¹⁰And ^pthey were not able to resist the wisdom and the Spirit by which he spoke.

¹¹^qThen they secretly induced men to say, “We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and God.”

¹²And they stirred up the people, the elders, and the scribes; and they came upon him, seized him, and brought him to the council.

¹³They also set up false witnesses who said, “This man does not cease to speak ³blasphemous words against this holy place and the law; ¹⁴^r“for we have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place and change the customs which Moses delivered to us.”

¹⁵And all who sat in the council, looking steadfastly at him, saw his face as the face of an angel.

Acts 7

Stephen's Address: The Call of Abraham ¹*Then the high priest said, "Are these things so?"*

²And he said, ^a"Brethren and fathers, listen: The ^bGod of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in ^cHaran, ³"and said to him, ^d*'Get out of your country and from your relatives, and come to a land that I will show you.'*

⁴"Then ^ehe came out of the land of the Chaldeans and dwelt in Haran. And from there, when his father was ^fdead, He moved him to this land in which you now dwell.

^{7j}'And the nation to whom they will be in bondage I will ^kjudge,' said God, ^l*'and after that they shall come out and serve Me in this place.'*

^{8m}"Then He gave him the covenant of circumcision; ⁿand so Abraham begot Isaac and circumcised him on the eighth day; ^oand Isaac begot Jacob, and ^pJacob begot the twelve patriarchs.

The Patriarchs in Egypt ^{9q}"And the patriarchs, becoming envious, ^rsold Joseph into Egypt. ^sBut God was with him ¹⁰"and delivered him out of all his troubles, ^tand gave him favor and wisdom in the presence of Pharaoh, king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt and all his house.

^{11u}"Now a famine and great ¹trouble came over all the land of Egypt and Canaan, and our fathers found no sustenance.

^{12v}"But when Jacob heard that there was grain in Egypt, he sent out our fathers first.

¹³"And the ^wsecond time Joseph was made known to his brothers, and Joseph's family became known to the Pharaoh.

^{14x}"Then Joseph sent and called his father Jacob and ^yall his relatives to him, ²seventy-five people.

¹⁶“And ^bthey were carried back to Shechem and laid in ^cthe tomb that Abraham bought for a sum of money from the sons of Hamor, the father of Shechem.

God Delivers Israel by Moses ¹⁷“But when ^dthe time of the promise drew near which God had sworn to Abraham, ^ethe people grew and multiplied in Egypt ¹⁸“till another king ^farose who did not know Joseph.

¹⁹“This man dealt treacherously with our people, and oppressed our forefathers, ^gmaking them expose their babies, so that they might not live.

^{20h}“At this time Moses was born, and ⁱwas well pleasing to God; and he was brought up in his father’s house for three months.

²¹“But ^jwhen he was set out, ^kPharaoh’s daughter took him away and brought him up as her own son.

²²“And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was ^lmighty in words and deeds.

^{23m}“Now when he was forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren, the children of Israel.

²⁴“And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended and avenged him who was oppressed, and struck down the Egyptian.

²⁵“For he supposed that his brethren would have understood that God would deliver them by his hand, but they did not understand.

²⁶“And the next day he appeared to two of them as they were fighting, and tried to reconcile them, saying, ‘Men, you are brethren; why do you wrong one another?’

²⁷“But he who did his neighbor wrong pushed him away, saying, ⁿ‘Who made you a ruler and a judge over us?’

²⁸‘Do you want to kill me as you did the Egyptian yesterday?’

^{29o}“Then, at this saying, Moses fled and became a dweller in the land of Midian, where he ^phad two sons.

^{30q}“And when forty years had passed, an Angel ³of the Lord appeared to him in a flame of fire in a bush, in the wilderness of Mount Sinai.

³¹“When Moses saw it, he marveled at the sight; and as he drew near to observe, the voice of the Lord came to him, ³²“saying, ^r‘I am the God of your fathers—the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.’ And Moses trembled and dared not look.

^{33s}“Then the LORD said to him, “Take your sandals off your feet, for the place where you stand is holy ground.

³⁴“I have surely ^tseen the oppression of My people who are in Egypt; I have heard their groaning and have come down to deliver them. And now come, I will ^usend you to Egypt.” ’

³⁵“This Moses whom they rejected, saying, ^v‘Who made you a ruler and a judge?’ is the one God sent to be a ruler and a deliverer ^wby the hand of the Angel who appeared to him in the bush.

Israel Rebels Against God ³⁷“This is that Moses who said to the children of Israel, ^b‘The LORD your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your brethren. ^cHim⁴ you shall hear.’

^{38d}“This is he who was in the ⁵congregation in the wilderness with ^ethe Angel who spoke to him on Mount Sinai, and with our fathers, ^fthe one who received the living ^goracles⁶ to give to us, ³⁹“whom our fathers ^hwould not obey, but rejected. And in their hearts they turned back to Egypt, ⁴⁰ⁱ“saying to Aaron, ‘Make us gods to go before us; as for this Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him.’

^{41j}“And they made a calf in those days, offered sacrifices to the idol, and ^krejoiced in the works of their own hands.

⁴²“Then ^lGod turned and gave them up to worship ^mthe host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the Prophets:

ⁿ‘Did you offer Me slaughtered animals and sacrifices during forty years in the wilderness, O house of Israel?’

⁴³You also took up the tabernacle of Moloch, And the star of your god Remphan, Images which you made to worship; And ^oI will carry you away beyond Babylon.’

God’s True Tabernacle ⁴⁴“Our fathers had the tabernacle of witness in the wilderness, as He appointed, instructing Moses ^pto make it according to the pattern that he had seen, ^{45q}“which our fathers, having received it in turn, also brought with Joshua into the land possessed by the Gentiles, ^rwhom God drove out before the face of our fathers until the ^sdays of David,

^{47v}“But Solomon built Him a house.

⁴⁸“However, ^wthe Most High does not dwell in temples made with hands, as the prophet says:

⁴⁹‘Heaven^x is My throne, And earth is My footstool.

What house will you build for Me? says the LORD, Or what is the place of My rest?

⁵⁰Has My hand not ^ymade all these things?’

Israel Resists the Holy Spirit* ⁵¹“You ^zstiff-necked⁷ and ^auncircumcised in heart and ears! You always resist the Holy Spirit; as your fathers did, so do you.

^{52b}“Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? And they killed those who foretold the coming of ^cthe Just One, of whom you now have become the betrayers and murderers, ^{53d}“who have received the law by the direction of angels and have not kept it.”

Stephen the Martyr* ^{54e}When they heard these things they were ⁸cut to the heart, and they gnashed at him with their teeth.

⁵⁵But he, ^fbeing full of the Holy Spirit, gazed into heaven and saw the ^gglory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God, ⁵⁶and said, “Look! ^hI see the heavens opened and the ⁱSon of Man standing at the right hand of God!”

⁵⁷Then they cried out with a loud voice, stopped their ears, and ran at him with one accord; ⁵⁸and they cast him out of the city and stoned him. And ^jthe witnesses laid down their clothes at the feet of a young man named Saul.

⁵⁹And they stoned Stephen as he was calling on God and saying, “Lord Jesus, ^kreceive my spirit.”

⁶⁰Then he knelt down and cried out with a loud voice, ^l“Lord, do not charge them with this sin.” And when he had said this, he fell asleep.

Acts 8

Saul Persecutes the Church ¹Now Saul was consenting to his death. At that time a great persecution arose against the church which was at Jerusalem; and ^athey were all scattered throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles. Word Studies: persecution

²And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and ^bmade great lamentation over him.

³As for Saul, ^che made havoc of the church, entering every house, and dragging off men and women, committing them to prison.

Christ Is Preached in Samaria ⁴Therefore ^dthose who were scattered went everywhere preaching the word.

⁵Then ^ePhilip went down to ¹the city of Samaria and preached Christ to them.

⁶And the multitudes with one accord heeded the things spoken by Philip, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did.

⁷For ^funclean spirits, crying with a loud voice, came out of many who were possessed; and many who were paralyzed and lame were healed.

⁸And there was great joy in that city.

The Sorcerer's Profession of Faith ⁹But there was a certain man called Simon, who previously ^gpracticed ²sorcery in the city and ^hastonished the ³people of Samaria, claiming that he was someone great, ¹⁰to whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, "This man is the great power of God."

¹¹And they heeded him because he had astonished them with his ⁴sorceries for a long time.

¹²But when they believed Philip as he preached the things ⁱconcerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, both men and women were baptized.

¹³Then Simon himself also believed; and when he was baptized he continued with Philip, and was amazed, seeing the miracles and signs which were done.

The Sorcerer's Sin ¹⁴Now when the ^japostles who were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them, ¹⁵who, when they had come down, prayed for them ^kthat they might receive the Holy Spirit.

¹⁶For ^las yet He had fallen upon none of them. ^mThey had only been baptized in ⁿthe name of the Lord Jesus.

¹⁷Then ^othey laid hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit.

¹⁸And when Simon saw that through the laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Spirit was given, he offered them money, ¹⁹saying, "Give me this power also, that anyone on whom I lay hands may receive the Holy Spirit."

²⁰But Peter said to him, "Your money perish with you, because ^pyou thought that ^qthe gift of God could be purchased with money!

²¹"You have neither part nor portion in this matter, for your ^rheart is not right in the sight of God.

²²"Repent therefore of this your wickedness, and pray God ^sif perhaps the thought of your heart may be forgiven you.

²³"For I see that you are ^tpoisoned by bitterness and bound by iniquity."

²⁴Then Simon answered and said, ^u"Pray to the Lord for me, that none of the things which you have spoken may come upon me."

²⁵So when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, they returned to Jerusalem, preaching the gospel in many villages of the Samaritans.

Christ Is Preached to an Ethiopian (cf. Is. 53:7, 8) ²⁶Now an angel of the Lord spoke to ^vPhilip, saying, "Arise and go toward the south along the road which goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza." This is ⁵desert.

²⁷So he arose and went. And behold, ^wa man of Ethiopia, a eunuch of great authority under Candace the queen of the Ethiopians, who had charge of all her treasury, and ^xhad come to Jerusalem to worship, ²⁸was returning. And sitting in his chariot, he was reading Isaiah the prophet.

²⁹Then the Spirit said to Philip, "Go near and overtake this chariot."

³⁰So Philip ran to him, and heard him reading the prophet Isaiah, and said, "Do you understand what you are reading?"

³¹And he said, "How can I, unless someone guides me?" And he asked Philip to come up and sit with him.

³²The place in the Scripture which he read was this:

^y*“He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; And as a lamb before its shearer is silent, ^zSo He opened not His mouth.* Word Studies: lamb

³³*In His humiliation His ^ajustice was taken away, And who will declare His generation?
For His life is ^btaken from the earth.”*

³⁴So the eunuch answered Philip and said, “I ask you, of whom does the prophet say this, of himself or of some other man?”

³⁵Then Philip opened his mouth, ^cand beginning at this Scripture, preached Jesus to him.

³⁶Now as they went down the road, they came to some water. And the eunuch said, “See, here is water. ^dWhat hinders me from being baptized?”

³⁷⁶Then Philip said, ^e“If you believe with all your heart, you may.” And he answered and said, ^f“I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.”

³⁸So he commanded the chariot to stand still. And both Philip and the eunuch went down into the water, and he baptized him.

³⁹Now when they came up out of the water, ^gthe Spirit of the Lord caught Philip away, so that the eunuch saw him no more; and he went on his way rejoicing.

⁴⁰But Philip was found at ⁷Azotus. And passing through, he preached in all the cities till he came to ^hCaesarea. In-Text Map: Philip's and Peter's Missionary Journeys

Acts 9

The Damascus Road: Saul Converted (Acts 22:6–16; 26:12–18) ¹Then ^aSaul, still breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest ²and asked ^bletters from him to the synagogues of Damascus, so that if he found any who were of the Way, whether men or women, he might bring them bound to Jerusalem.

^{3c}As he journeyed he came near Damascus, and suddenly a light shone around him from heaven.

⁴Then he fell to the ground, and heard a voice saying to him, “Saul, Saul, ^dwhy are you persecuting Me?”

⁵And he said, “Who are You, Lord?” Then the Lord said, “I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. ¹It is hard for you to kick against the goads.”

⁶So he, trembling and astonished, said, “Lord, what do You want me to do?” Then the Lord said to him, “Arise and go into the city, and you will be told what you must do.”

⁷And ^ethe men who journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice but seeing no one.

⁸Then Saul arose from the ground, and when his eyes were opened he saw no one. But they led him by the hand and brought him into Damascus.

⁹And he was three days without sight, and neither ate nor drank. In-Text Map: Roman Damascus

Ananias Baptizes Saul ¹⁰Now there was a certain disciple at Damascus ^fnamed Ananias; and to him the Lord said in a vision, “Ananias.” And he said, “Here I am, Lord.”

¹¹So the Lord said to him, “Arise and go to the street called Straight, and inquire at the house of Judas for one called Saul ^gof Tarsus, for behold, he is praying.

¹²“And in a vision he has seen a man named Ananias coming in and putting his hand on him, so that he might receive his sight.”

¹³Then Ananias answered, “Lord, I have heard from many about this man, ^hhow much ²harm he has done to Your saints in Jerusalem.

¹⁴“And here he has authority from the chief priests to bind all ⁱwho call on Your name.”

¹⁵But the Lord said to him, “Go, for ^jhe is a chosen vessel of Mine to bear My name before ^kGentiles, ^lkings, and the ^mchildren³ of Israel.

¹⁶“For ⁿI will show him how many things he must suffer for My ^oname’s sake.”

^{17p}And Ananias went his way and entered the house; and ^qlaying his hands on him he said, “Brother Saul, the Lord ⁴Jesus, who appeared to you on the road as you came, has sent me that you may receive your sight and ^rbe filled with the Holy Spirit.”

¹⁸Immediately there fell from his eyes something like scales, and he received his sight at once; and he arose and was baptized.

¹⁹So when he had received food, he was strengthened. ^sThen Saul spent some days with the disciples at Damascus.

Saul Preaches Christ ²⁰Immediately he preached ⁵the Christ in the synagogues, that He is the Son of God.

²¹Then all who heard were amazed, and said, ^t“Is this not he who destroyed those who called on this name in Jerusalem, and has come here for that purpose, so that he might bring them bound to the chief priests?”

²²But Saul increased all the more in strength, ^uand confounded the Jews who dwelt in Damascus, proving that this Jesus is the Christ.

Saul Escapes Death ²³Now after many days were past, ^vthe Jews plotted to kill him.

²⁵Then the disciples took him by night and ^xlet him down through the wall in a large basket.

Saul at Jerusalem

²⁶And ^ywhen Saul had come to Jerusalem, he tried to join the disciples; but they were all afraid of him, and did not believe that he was a disciple.

²⁷But Barnabas took him and brought him to the apostles. And he declared to them how he had seen the Lord on the road, and that He had spoken to him, ^aand how he had preached boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus.

²⁸So ^bhe was with them at Jerusalem, coming in and going out.

²⁹And he spoke boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus and disputed against the ^cHellenists, ⁶ ^dbut they attempted to kill him.

³⁰When the brethren found out, they brought him down to Caesarea and sent him out to Tarsus.

The Church Prospers ³¹^eThen the ⁷churches throughout all Judea, Galilee, and Samaria had peace and were ^fedified. ⁸ And walking in the ⁹fear of the Lord and in the ^hcomfort of the Holy Spirit, they were ⁱmultiplied.

Aeneas Healed

³²Now it came to pass, as Peter went ^jthrough all parts of the country, that he also came down to the saints who dwelt in Lydda.

³³There he found a certain man named Aeneas, who had been bedridden eight years and was paralyzed.

³⁴And Peter said to him, “Aeneas, ^kJesus the Christ heals you. Arise and make your bed.” Then he arose immediately.

³⁵So all who dwelt at Lydda and ^lSharon saw him and ^mturned to the Lord.

Dorcas Restored to Life ³⁶At Joppa there was a certain disciple named ⁹Tabitha, which is translated ¹⁰Dorcas. This woman was full ⁿof good works and charitable deeds which she did.

³⁷But it happened in those days that she became sick and died. When they had washed her, they laid her in ^oan upper room.

³⁸And since Lydda was near Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent two men to him, imploring him not to delay in coming to them.

³⁹Then Peter arose and went with them. When he had come, they brought him to the upper room. And all the widows stood by him weeping, showing the tunics and garments which Dorcas had made while she was with them.

⁴⁰But Peter ^pput them all out, and ^qknelt down and prayed. And turning to the body he ^rsaid, “Tabitha, arise.” And she opened her eyes, and when she saw Peter she sat up.

⁴¹Then he gave her his hand and lifted her up; and when he had called the saints and widows, he presented her alive.

⁴²And it became known throughout all Joppa, ^sand many believed on the Lord.

⁴³So it was that he stayed many days in Joppa with ^tSimon, a tanner.

Acts 10

Cornelius Sends a Delegation ¹There was a certain man in ^aCaesarea called Cornelius, a centurion of what was called the Italian ¹Regiment, ^{2b}a devout man and one who ^cfeared God with all his household, who gave ²alms generously to the people, and prayed to God always. Word Studies: one who feared God

³About ³the ninth hour of the day ^dhe saw clearly in a vision an angel of God coming in and saying to him, “Cornelius!”

⁴And when he observed him, he was afraid, and said, “What is it, lord?” So he said to him, “Your prayers and your alms have come up for a memorial before God.

⁵“Now ^esend men to Joppa, and send for Simon whose surname is Peter.

⁶“He is lodging with ^fSimon, a tanner, whose house is by the sea. ^gHe⁴ will tell you what you must do.”

⁷And when the angel who spoke to him had departed, Cornelius called two of his household servants and a devout soldier from among those who waited on him continually.

⁸So when he had explained all these things to them, he sent them to Joppa.

Peter's Vision

⁹The next day, as they went on their journey and drew near the city, ^hPeter went up on the housetop to pray, about ⁵the sixth hour.

¹⁰Then he became very hungry and wanted to eat; but while they made ready, he fell into a trance ¹¹and ⁱsaw heaven opened and an object like a great sheet bound at the four corners, descending to him and let down to the earth.

¹²In it were all kinds of four-footed animals of the earth, wild beasts, creeping things, and birds of the air.

¹³And a voice came to him, “Rise, Peter; kill and eat.”

¹⁴But Peter said, “Not so, Lord! ^jFor I have never eaten anything common or unclean.”

¹⁵And a voice spoke to him again the second time, ^k“What God has ⁶cleansed you must not call common.”

¹⁶This was done three times. And the object was taken up into heaven again.

Summoned to Caesarea ¹⁷Now while Peter ⁷wondered within himself what this vision which he had seen meant, behold, the men who had been sent from Cornelius had made inquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate.

¹⁸And they called and asked whether Simon, whose surname was Peter, was lodging there.

¹⁹While Peter thought about the vision, ¹the Spirit said to him, "Behold, three men are seeking you.

^{20m}"Arise therefore, go down and go with them, doubting nothing; for I have sent them."

²¹Then Peter went down to the men ⁸who had been sent to him from Cornelius, and said, "Yes, I am he whom you seek. For what reason have you come?"

²²And they said, "Cornelius the centurion, a just man, one who fears God and ⁿhas a good reputation among all the nation of the Jews, was divinely instructed by a holy angel to summon you to his house, and to hear words from you."

²³Then he invited them in and lodged them. On the next day Peter went away with them, ^oand some brethren from Joppa accompanied him.

Peter Meets Cornelius ²⁴And the following day they entered Caesarea. Now Cornelius was waiting for them, and had called together his relatives and close friends.

²⁵As Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him and fell down at his feet and worshiped him.

²⁶But Peter lifted him up, saying, ^p"Stand up; I myself am also a man."

²⁷And as he talked with him, he went in and found many who had come together.

²⁸Then he said to them, "You know how ^qunlawful it is for a Jewish man to keep company with or go to one of another nation. But ^rGod has shown me that I should not call any man common or unclean.

²⁹"Therefore I came without objection as soon as I was sent for. I ask, then, for what reason have you sent for me?"

³⁰So Cornelius said, ⁹"Four days ago I was fasting until this hour; and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and behold, ^sa man stood before me ^tin bright clothing, ³¹“and said, ‘Cornelius, ^uyour prayer has been heard, and ^vyour ¹⁰alms are remembered in the sight of God.

³²“Send therefore to Joppa and call Simon here, whose surname is Peter. He is lodging in the house of Simon, a tanner, by the sea. ¹¹When he comes, he will speak to you.’

³³“So I sent to you immediately, and you have done well to come. Now therefore, we are all present before God, to hear all the things commanded you by God.”

Preaching to Cornelius' Household ³⁴Then Peter opened his mouth and said: ^w“In truth I perceive that God shows no partiality.

³⁵“But ^xin every nation whoever fears Him and works righteousness is ^yaccepted by Him.

³⁶“The word which God sent to the ¹²children of Israel, ^zpreaching peace through Jesus Christ—^aHe is Lord of all— ³⁷“that word you know, which was proclaimed throughout all Judea, and ^bbegan from Galilee after the baptism which John preached: ³⁸“how ^cGod anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power, who ^dwent about doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil, ^efor God was with Him.

³⁹“And we are ^fwitnesses of all things which He did both in the land of the Jews and in Jerusalem, whom ¹³they ^gskilled by hanging on a tree.

⁴⁰“Him ^hGod raised up on the third day, and showed Him openly, ⁴¹ⁱ“not to all the people, but to witnesses chosen before by God, even to us ^jwho ate and drank with Him after He arose from the dead.

⁴²“And ^kHe commanded us to preach to the people, and to testify ^lthat it is He who was ordained by God to be Judge ^mof the living and the dead.

⁴³ⁿ“To Him all the prophets witness that, through His name, ^owhoever believes in Him will receive ^ppremission¹⁴ of sins.”

The Holy Spirit Falls on the Gentiles ⁴⁴While Peter was still speaking these words, ^qthe Holy Spirit fell upon all those who heard the word.

^{45r}And ¹⁵those of the circumcision who believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, ^sbecause the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out on the Gentiles also.

⁴⁶For they heard them speak with tongues and magnify God. Then Peter answered, ⁴⁷“Can anyone forbid water, that these should not be baptized who have received the Holy Spirit ^tjust as we have?”

^{48u}And he commanded them to be baptized ^vin the name of the Lord. Then they asked him to stay a few days.

Acts 11

Peter Defends God's Grace ¹*Now the apostles and brethren who were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God.*

²And when Peter came up to Jerusalem, ^athose of the circumcision contended with him, ³saying, ^b“You went in to uncircumcised men ^cand ate with them!”

⁴But Peter explained it to them ^din order from the beginning, saying: ^{5e}“I was in the city of Joppa praying; and in a trance I saw a vision, an object descending like a great sheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and it came to me.

⁶“When I observed it intently and considered, I saw four-footed animals of the earth, wild beasts, creeping things, and birds of the air.

⁷“And I heard a voice saying to me, ‘Rise, Peter; kill and eat.’

⁸“But I said, ‘Not so, Lord! For nothing common or unclean has at any time entered my mouth.’

⁹“But the voice answered me again from heaven, ‘What God has cleansed you must not call common.’

¹⁰“Now this was done three times, and all were drawn up again into heaven.

¹¹“At that very moment, three men stood before the house where I was, having been sent to me from Caesarea.

¹²“Then ^fthe Spirit told me to go with them, doubting nothing. Moreover ^gthese six brethren accompanied me, and we entered the man's house.

^{13h}“And he told us how he had seen an angel standing in his house, who said to him, ‘Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon whose surname is Peter, ¹⁴who will tell you words by which you and all your household will be saved.’

¹⁵“And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them, ⁱas upon us at the beginning.

¹⁶“Then I remembered the word of the Lord, how He said, ^j‘John indeed baptized with water, but ^kyou shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit.’

^{17l}“If therefore God gave them the same gift as He gave us when we believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, ^mwho was I that I could withstand God?”

¹⁸When they heard these things they became silent; and they glorified God, saying, ⁿ“Then God has also granted to the Gentiles repentance to life.”

Barnabas and Saul at Antioch ^{19o}Now those who were scattered after the persecution that arose over Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to no one but the Jews only.

²⁰But some of them were men from Cyprus and Cyrene, who, when they had come to Antioch, spoke to ^pthe Hellenists, preaching the Lord Jesus.

²¹And ^qthe hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed and ^rturned to the Lord.

²²Then news of these things came to the ears of the church in Jerusalem, and they sent out ^sBarnabas to go as far as Antioch.

²³When he came and had seen the grace of God, he was glad, and ^tencouraged them all that with purpose of heart they should continue with the Lord.

²⁴For he was a good man, ^ufull of the Holy Spirit and of faith. ^vAnd a great many people were added to the Lord.

²⁵Then Barnabas departed for ^wTarsus to seek Saul.

²⁶And when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. So it was that for a whole year they assembled with the church and taught a great many people. And the disciples were first called Christians in Antioch.

Relief to Judea

²⁷And in these days ^xprophets came from Jerusalem to Antioch.

²⁸Then one of them, named ^yAgabus, stood up and showed by the Spirit that there was going to be a great famine throughout all the world, which also happened in the days of ^zClaudius Caesar.

²⁹Then the disciples, each according to his ability, determined to send ^arelief to the brethren dwelling in Judea.

³⁰^bThis they also did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

Acts 12

Herod's Violence to the Church ¹*Now about that time Herod the king stretched out his hand to harass some from the church.*

²Then he killed James ^athe brother of John with the sword.

³And because he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to seize Peter also. Now it was during ^bthe Days of Unleavened Bread.

⁴So ^cwhen he had arrested him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four ¹squads of soldiers to keep him, intending to bring him before the people after Passover.

Peter Freed from Prison ⁵*Peter was therefore kept in prison, but* ²*constant prayer was offered to God for him by the church.*

⁶And when Herod was about to bring him out, that night Peter was sleeping, bound with two chains between two soldiers; and the guards before the door were ³keeping the prison.

⁷Now behold, ^dan angel of the Lord stood by him, and a light shone in the prison; and he struck Peter on the side and raised him up, saying, "Arise quickly!" And his chains fell off his hands.

⁸Then the angel said to him, "Gird yourself and tie on your sandals"; and so he did. And he said to him, "Put on your garment and follow me."

⁹So he went out and followed him, and ^edid not know that what was done by the angel was real, but thought ^fhe was seeing a vision.

¹⁰When they were past the first and the second guard posts, they came to the iron gate that leads to the city, ^gwhich opened to them of its own accord; and they went out and went down one street, and immediately the angel departed from him.

¹¹And when Peter had come to himself, he said, "Now I know for certain that ^hthe Lord has sent His angel, and ⁱhas delivered me from the hand of Herod and from all the expectation of the Jewish people."

¹²So, when he had considered this, ^jhe came to the house of Mary, the mother of ^kJohn whose surname was Mark, where many were gathered together ^lpraying.

¹³And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a girl named Rhoda came to answer.

¹⁴When she recognized Peter's voice, because of her gladness she did not open the gate, but ran in and announced that Peter stood before the gate.

¹⁵But they said to her, "You are beside yourself!" Yet she kept insisting that it was so. So they said, ^m"It is his angel."

¹⁶Now Peter continued knocking; and when they opened the door and saw him, they were astonished.

¹⁷But ⁿmotioning to them with his hand to keep silent, he declared to them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, "Go, tell these things to James and to the brethren." And he departed and went to another place.

¹⁸Then, as soon as it was day, there was no small ⁴stir among the soldiers about what had become of Peter.

¹⁹But when Herod had searched for him and not found him, he examined the guards and commanded that they should be put to death. And he went down from Judea to Caesarea, and stayed there.

Herod's Violent Death ²⁰Now Herod had been very angry with the people of ^oTyre and Sidon; but they came to him with one accord, and having made Blastus ⁵the king's personal aide their friend, they asked for peace, because ^ptheir country was ⁶supplied with food by the king's country.

²¹So on a set day Herod, arrayed in royal apparel, sat on his throne and gave an oration to them.

²²And the people kept shouting, "The voice of a god and not of a man!"

²³Then immediately an angel of the Lord ^qstruck him, because ^rhe did not give glory to God. And he was eaten by worms and ⁷died.

²⁴But ^sthe word of God grew and multiplied.

Barnabas and Saul Appointed ²⁵And ^tBarnabas and Saul returned ⁸from Jerusalem when they had ^ufulfilled their ministry, and they also ^vtook with them ^wJohn whose surname was Mark.

Acts 13

¹Now ^ain the church that was at Antioch there were certain prophets and teachers: ^bBarnabas, Simeon who was called Niger, ^cLucius of Cyrene, Manaen who had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. Charts and Diagrams: The Ministries of Peter and Paul Compared and Contrasted

²As they ministered to the Lord and fasted, the Holy Spirit said, ^d“Now separate to Me Barnabas and Saul for the work ^eto which I have called them.”

³Then, ^fhaving fasted and prayed, and laid hands on them, they sent them away.

Preaching in Cyprus ⁴So, being sent out by the Holy Spirit, they went down to Seleucia, and from there they sailed to ⁹Cyprus.

⁵And when they arrived in Salamis, ^hthey preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews. They also had ⁱJohn as their assistant.

⁶Now when they had gone through ¹the island to Paphos, they found ^ja certain sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew whose name was Bar-Jesus, ⁷who was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man. This man called for Barnabas and Saul and sought to hear the word of God.

⁸But ^kElymas the sorcerer (for so his name is translated) ²withstood them, seeking to turn the proconsul away from the faith.

⁹Then Saul, who also is called Paul, ¹filled with the Holy Spirit, looked intently at him ¹⁰and said, “O full of all deceit and all fraud, ^m*you* son of the devil, you enemy of all righteousness, will you not cease perverting the straight ways of the Lord?

¹¹“And now, indeed, ⁿthe hand of the Lord is upon you, and you shall be blind, not seeing the sun for a time.” And immediately a dark mist fell on him, and he went around seeking someone to lead him by the hand.

¹²Then the proconsul believed, when he saw what had been done, being astonished at the teaching of the Lord.

At Antioch in Pisidia ¹³Now when Paul and his party set sail from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia; and ^oJohn, departing from them, returned to Jerusalem.

¹⁴But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in Pisidia, and ^pwent into the synagogue on the Sabbath day and sat down.

¹⁵And ^qafter the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the rulers of the synagogue sent to them, saying, “Men and brethren, if you have ^rany word of ³exhortation for the people, say on.”

¹⁶Then Paul stood up, and motioning with his hand said, “Men of Israel, and ^syou who fear God, listen: ¹⁷“The God of this people ⁴Israel ^tchose our fathers, and exalted the people ^uwhen they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and with ⁵an uplifted arm He ^vbrought them out of it.

¹⁸“Now ^wfor a time of about forty years He put up with their ways in the wilderness. Word Studies: He put up with

¹⁹“And when He had destroyed ^xseven nations in the land of Canaan, ^yHe distributed their land to them by allotment.

²⁰“After that ^zHe gave them judges for about four hundred and fifty years, ^auntil Samuel the prophet.

^{21b}“And afterward they asked for a king; so God gave them ^cSaul the son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, for forty years.

²²“And ^dwhen He had removed him, ^eHe raised up for them David as king, to whom also He gave testimony and said, ^f*“I have found David the son of Jesse, ^ga man after My own heart, who will do all My will.”*

^{23h}“From this man’s seed, according ⁱto the promise, God raised up for Israel ^{ja}⁶ Savior—Jesus— ^{24k}“after John had first preached, before His coming, the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel.

²⁵“And as John was finishing his course, he said, ^l“Who do you think I am? I am not He. But behold, ^mthere comes One after me, the sandals of whose feet I am not worthy to loose.’

²⁶“Men and brethren, sons of the ⁷family of Abraham, and ⁿthose among you who fear God, ^oto you the ⁸word of this salvation has been sent.

^{28q}“And though they found no cause for death in Him, they asked Pilate that He should be put to death.

^{29r}“Now when they had fulfilled all that was written concerning Him, ^sthey took Him down from the tree and laid Him in a tomb.

^{30t}“But God raised Him from the dead.

^{31u}“He was seen for many days by those who came up with Him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are His witnesses to the people.

³²“And we declare to you glad tidings—^ythat promise which was made to the fathers.

³³“God has fulfilled this for us their children, in that He has raised up Jesus. As it is also written in the second Psalm:

^w*‘You are My Son, Today I have begotten You.’*

³⁴“And that He raised Him from the dead, no more to return to ⁹corruption, He has spoken thus:

^x*‘I will give you the sure ¹⁰mercies of David.’*

³⁵“Therefore He also says in another Psalm:

^y*‘You will not allow Your Holy One to see corruption.’*

³⁶“For David, after he had served ¹¹his own generation by the will of God, ^zfell asleep, was buried with his fathers, and ¹²saw corruption; ³⁷“but He whom God raised up ¹³saw no corruption.

³⁸“Therefore let it be known to you, brethren, that ^athrough this Man is preached to you the forgiveness of sins; ³⁹“and ^bby Him everyone who believes is justified from all things from which you could not be justified by the law of Moses.

⁴⁰“Beware therefore, lest what has been spoken in the prophets come upon you:

⁴¹*‘Behold,^c you despisers, Marvel and perish!*

For I work a work in your days, A work which you will by no means believe, Though one were to declare it to you.’ ”

Blessing and Conflict at Antioch ⁴²¹⁴So when the Jews went out of the synagogue, the Gentiles begged that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath.

⁴³Now when the congregation had broken up, many of the Jews and devout proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas, who, speaking to them, ^dpersuaded them to continue in ^ethe grace of God.

⁴⁴On the next Sabbath almost the whole city came together to hear the word of God.

⁴⁵But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy; and contradicting and blaspheming, they ^fopposed the things spoken by Paul.

⁴⁶Then Paul and Barnabas grew bold and said, ^g“It was necessary that the word of God should be spoken to you first; but ^hsince you reject it, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, behold, ⁱwe turn to the Gentiles.

⁴⁷“For so the Lord has commanded us:

^j*‘I have set you as a light to the Gentiles, That you should be for salvation to the ends of the earth.’ ”*

⁴⁸Now when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and glorified the word of the Lord. ^kAnd as many as had been appointed to eternal life believed.

⁴⁹And the word of the Lord was being spread throughout all the region. In-

Text Map: The Spread of the Gospel Charts and Diagrams: The Spread of the Gospel

⁵⁰But the Jews stirred up the devout and prominent women and the chief men of the city, ^lraised up persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them from their region.

⁵¹^mBut they shook off the dust from their feet against them, and came to Iconium.

⁵²And the disciples ⁿwere filled with joy and ^owith the Holy Spirit.

Acts 14

At Iconium

¹Now it happened in Iconium that they went together to the synagogue of the Jews, and so spoke that a great multitude both of the Jews and of the ^aGreeks believed. Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Origin of the Synagogue

²But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles and ¹poisoned their ²minds against the brethren.

³Therefore they stayed there a long time, speaking boldly in the Lord, ^bwho was bearing witness to the word of His grace, granting signs and ^cwonders to be done by their hands.

⁴But the multitude of the city was ^ddivided: part sided with the Jews, and part with the ^eapostles.

⁵And when a violent attempt was made by both the Gentiles and Jews, with their rulers, ^fto abuse and stone them, ⁶they became aware of it and ^gfled to Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and to the surrounding region.

⁷And they were preaching the gospel there.

Idolatry at Lystra ^{8h}And in Lystra a certain man without strength in his feet was sitting, a cripple from his mother's womb, who had never walked.

⁹This man heard Paul speaking. ³Paul, observing him intently and seeing that he had faith to be healed, ¹⁰said with a loud voice, ⁱ“Stand up straight on your feet!” And he leaped and walked.

¹¹Now when the people saw what Paul had done, they raised their voices, saying in the Lycaonian language, ^j“The gods have come down to us in the likeness of men!”

¹²And Barnabas they called ⁴Zeus, and Paul, ⁵Hermes, because he was the chief speaker.

¹³Then the priest of Zeus, whose temple was in front of their city, brought oxen and garlands to the gates, ^kintending to sacrifice with the multitudes.

¹⁴But when the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard this, ^lthey tore their clothes and ran in among the multitude, crying out ¹⁵and saying, “Men, ^mwhy are you doing these things? ⁿWe also are men with the same nature as you, and preach to you that you should turn from ^othese useless things ^pto the living God, ^qwho made the heaven, the earth, the sea, and all things that are in them, ^{16r}“who in bygone generations allowed all nations to walk in their own ways.

¹⁸And with these sayings they could scarcely restrain the multitudes from sacrificing to them.

Stoning, Escape to Derbe ¹⁹^vThen Jews from Antioch and Iconium came there; and having persuaded the multitudes, ^wthey stoned Paul and dragged him out of the city, supposing him to be ^xdead.

²⁰However, when the disciples gathered around him, he rose up and went into the city. And the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

Strengthening the Converts ²¹And when they had preached the gospel to that city ^yand made many disciples, they returned to Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch, ²²strengthening the souls of the disciples, ^zexhorting them to continue in the faith, and saying, ^a“We must through many tribulations enter the kingdom of God.”

²³So when they had ^bappointed elders in every church, and prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord in whom they had believed.

²⁴And after they had passed through Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia.

²⁵Now when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down to Attalia.

²⁶From there they sailed to Antioch, where they had been commended to the grace of God for the work which they had completed.

²⁷Now when they had come and gathered the church together, ^cthey reported all that God had done with them, and that He had ^dopened the door of faith to the Gentiles.

Acts 15

Conflict over Circumcision ¹And ^acertain men came down from Judea and taught the brethren, ^b“Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved.”

²Therefore, when Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and dispute with them, they determined that ^cPaul and Barnabas and certain others of them should go up to Jerusalem, to the apostles and elders, about this question.

³So, ^dbeing sent on their way by the church, they passed through Phoenicia and Samaria, ^edescribing the conversion of the Gentiles; and they caused great joy to all the brethren.

⁴And when they had come to Jerusalem, they were received by the church and the apostles and the elders; and they reported all things that God had done with them.

⁵But some of the sect of the Pharisees who believed rose up, saying, “It is necessary to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.”

The Jerusalem Council ⁶Now the apostles and elders came together to consider this matter.

⁷And when there had been much dispute, Peter rose up and said to them: ^f“Men and brethren, you know that a good while ago God chose among us, that by my mouth the Gentiles should hear the word of the gospel and believe.

⁸“So God, ^gwho knows the heart, ¹acknowledged them by ^hgiving them the Holy Spirit, just as He did to us, ⁹ⁱ“and made no distinction between us and them, ^jpurifying their hearts by faith.

¹⁰“Now therefore, why do you test God ^kby putting a yoke on the neck of the disciples which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?

¹¹“But ^lwe believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus ²Christ we shall be saved in the same manner as they.” Word Studies: grace

¹²Then all the multitude kept silent and listened to Barnabas and Paul declaring how many miracles and wonders God had ^mworked through them among the Gentiles.

¹³And after they had ³become silent, ⁿJames answered, saying, “Men and brethren, listen to me: ^{14o}“Simon has declared how God at the first visited the Gentiles to take out of them a people for His name.

¹⁵“And with this the words of the prophets agree, just as it is written:

¹⁶‘After^p this I will return And will rebuild the tabernacle of David, which has fallen down; I will rebuild its ruins, And I will set it up; ¹⁷So that the rest of mankind may seek the LORD, Even all the Gentiles who are called by My name, Says the ⁴LORD who does all these things.’

¹⁸⁵“Known to God from eternity are all His works.

¹⁹“Therefore ^qI judge that we should not trouble those from among the Gentiles who ^rare turning to God, ²⁰“but that we ^swrite to them to abstain ^tfrom things polluted by idols, ^ufrom ⁶sexual immorality, ^vfrom things strangled, and from blood.

²¹“For Moses has had throughout many generations those who preach him in every city, ^wbeing read in the synagogues every Sabbath.”

The Jerusalem Decree ²²Then it pleased the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas, namely, Judas who was also named ^xBarsabas,⁷ and Silas, leading men among the brethren.

²³They wrote this letter by them:

The apostles, the elders, and the brethren, To the brethren who are of the Gentiles in Antioch, Syria, and Cilicia: Greetings.

²⁴Since we have heard that ^ysome who went out from us have troubled you with words, ^zunsettling your souls, ⁸saying, “You must be circumcised and keep the law”—to whom we gave no such commandment— ²⁵it seemed good to us, being assembled with one ⁹accord, to send chosen men to you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, ^{26a}men who have risked their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

²⁷We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who will also report the same things by word of mouth.

²⁸For it seemed good to the Holy Spirit, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things: ^{29b}that you abstain from things offered to idols, ^cfrom blood, from things strangled, and from ^dsexual¹⁰ immorality. If you keep yourselves from these, you will do well.

Farewell.

Continuing Ministry in Syria ³⁰*So when they were sent off, they came to Antioch; and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the letter.*

³¹When they had read it, they rejoiced over its encouragement.

³²Now Judas and Silas, themselves being ^eprophets also, ^fexhorted and strengthened the brethren with many words.

³³And after they had stayed there for a time, they were ^gsent back with greetings from the brethren to ¹¹the apostles.

³⁴¹²However, it seemed good to Silas to remain there.

³⁵^hPaul and Barnabas also remained in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.

Division over John Mark ³⁶*Then after some days Paul said to Barnabas, “Let us now go back and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they are doing.”*

³⁷Now Barnabas ¹³was determined to take with them ⁱJohn called Mark.

³⁸But Paul insisted that they should not take with them ^jthe one who had departed from them in Pamphylia, and had not gone with them to the work.

³⁹Then the contention became so sharp that they parted from one another. And so Barnabas took Mark and sailed to ^kCyprus; ⁴⁰but Paul chose Silas and departed, ^lbeing ¹⁴commended by the brethren to the grace of God.

⁴¹And he went through Syria and Cilicia, ^mstrengthening the churches.

Acts 16

Timothy Joins Paul and Silas ¹*Then he came to ^aDerbe and Lystra. And behold, a certain disciple was there, ^bnamed Timothy, ^cthe son of a certain Jewish woman who believed, but his father was Greek.*

²He was well spoken of by the brethren who were at Lystra and Iconium.

³Paul wanted to have him go on with him. And he ^dtook him and circumcised him because of the Jews who were in that region, for they all knew that his father was Greek.

⁴And as they went through the cities, they delivered to them the ^edecrees to keep, ^fwhich were determined by the apostles and elders at Jerusalem.

^{5g}So the churches were strengthened in the faith, and increased in number daily.

The Macedonian Call ⁶*Now when they had gone through Phrygia and the region of ^hGalatia, they were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to preach the word in ⁱAsia.*

⁷After they had come to Mysia, they tried to go into Bithynia, but the ²Spirit did not permit them. Word Studies: the Spirit

⁸So passing by Mysia, they ⁱcame down to Troas.

⁹And a vision appeared to Paul in the night. A ^jman of Macedonia stood and pleaded with him, saying, “Come over to Macedonia and help us.”

¹⁰Now after he had seen the vision, immediately we sought to go ^kto Macedonia, concluding that the Lord had called us to preach the gospel to them.

Lydia Baptized at Philippi ¹¹*Therefore, sailing from Troas, we ran a straight course to Samothrace, and the next day came to Neapolis, ¹²and from there to ^lPhilippi, which is the ³foremost city of that part of Macedonia, a colony. And we were staying in that city for some days.*

¹³And on the Sabbath day we went out of the city to the riverside, where prayer was customarily made; and we sat down and spoke to the women who met there.

¹⁴Now a certain woman named Lydia heard us. She was a seller of purple from the city of ^mThyatira, who worshiped God. ⁿThe Lord opened her heart to heed the things spoken by Paul.

¹⁵And when she and her household were baptized, she begged us, saying, “If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come to my house and stay.” So ^oshe persuaded us.

Paul and Silas Imprisoned ¹⁶*Now it happened, as we went to prayer, that a certain slave girl ^ppossessed with a spirit of divination met us, who brought her masters ^qmuch profit by fortune-telling.*

¹⁷This girl followed Paul and us, and cried out, saying, “These men are the servants of the Most High God, who proclaim to us the way of salvation.”

¹⁸And this she did for many days. But Paul, ^rgreatly ⁴annoyed, turned and said to the spirit, “I command you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her.” ^sAnd he came out that very hour.

¹⁹But ^twhen her masters saw that their hope of profit was gone, they seized Paul and Silas and ^udragged them into the marketplace to the authorities.

²⁰And they brought them to the magistrates, and said, “These men, being Jews, ^vexceedingly trouble our city; ²¹“and they teach customs which are not lawful for us, being Romans, to receive or observe.”

²²Then the multitude rose up together against them; and the magistrates tore off their clothes ^wand commanded them to be beaten with rods.

²³And when they had laid many stripes on them, they threw them into prison, commanding the jailer to keep them securely.

²⁴Having received such a charge, he put them into the inner prison and fastened their feet in the stocks.

The Philippian Jailer Saved ²⁵*But at midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the prisoners were listening to them.*

^{26x}Suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken; and immediately ^yall the doors were opened and everyone’s chains were loosed.

²⁷And the keeper of the prison, awaking from sleep and seeing the prison doors open, supposing the prisoners had fled, drew his sword and was about to kill himself.

²⁸But Paul called with a loud voice, saying, “Do yourself no harm, for we are all here.”

²⁹Then he called for a light, ran in, and fell down trembling before Paul and Silas.

³⁰And he brought them out and said, ^z“Sirs, what must I do to be saved?”

³¹So they said, ^a“Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and you will be saved, you and your household.”

³²Then they spoke the word of the Lord to him and to all who were in his house.

³³And he took them the same hour of the night and washed their stripes. And immediately he and all his family were baptized.

³⁴Now when he had brought them into his house, ^bhe set food before them; and he rejoiced, having believed in God with all his household.

Paul Refuses to Depart Secretly ³⁵And when it was day, the magistrates sent the ⁵officers, saying, “Let those men go.”

³⁶So the keeper of the prison reported these words to Paul, saying, “The magistrates have sent to let you go. Now therefore depart, and go in peace.”

³⁷But Paul said to them, “They have beaten us openly, uncondemned ^cRomans, and have thrown us into prison. And now do they put us out secretly? No indeed! Let them come themselves and get us out.”

³⁸And the officers told these words to the magistrates, and they were afraid when they heard that they were Romans.

³⁹Then they came and pleaded with them and brought them out, and ^dasked them to depart from the city.

⁴⁰So they went out of the prison ^eand entered the house of Lydia; and when they had seen the brethren, they encouraged them and departed.

Acts 17

Preaching Christ at Thessalonica ¹*Now when they had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to ^aThessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews.*

²Then Paul, as his custom was, ^bwent in to them, and for three Sabbaths ^creasoned with them from the Scriptures, ³explaining and demonstrating ^dthat the Christ had to suffer and rise again from the dead, and saying, “This Jesus whom I preach to you is the Christ.”

^{4e}And some of them were persuaded; and a great multitude of the devout Greeks, and not a few of the leading women, joined Paul and ^fSilas.

Assault on Jason’s House ⁵*But the Jews ¹who were not persuaded, ²becoming ^genvious, took some of the evil men from the marketplace, and gathering a mob, set all the city in an uproar and attacked the house of ^hJason, and sought to bring them out to the people.*

⁶But when they did not find them, they dragged Jason and some brethren to the rulers of the city, crying out, ⁱ“These who have turned the world upside down have come here too.

⁷“Jason has ³harbored them, and these are all acting contrary to the decrees of Caesar, ^jsaying there is another king—Jesus.”

⁸And they troubled the crowd and the rulers of the city when they heard these things.

⁹So when they had taken security from Jason and the rest, they let them go.

Ministering at Berea ¹⁰*Then ^kthe brethren immediately sent Paul and Silas away by night to Berea. When they arrived, they went into the synagogue of the Jews.*

¹¹These were more ^{4f}fair-minded than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness, and ¹searched the Scriptures daily to find out whether these things were so.

¹²Therefore many of them believed, and also not a few of the Greeks, prominent women as well as men.

¹³But when the Jews from Thessalonica learned that the word of God was preached by Paul at Berea, they came there also and stirred up the crowds.

^{14m}Then immediately the brethren sent Paul away, to go to the sea; but both Silas and Timothy remained there.

¹⁵So those who conducted Paul brought him to Athens; and ⁿreceiving a command for Silas and Timothy to come to him with all speed, they departed.

The Philosophers at Athens ¹⁶Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, ^ohis spirit was provoked within him when he saw that the city was ⁵given over to idols.

¹⁷Therefore he reasoned in the synagogue with the Jews and with the Gentile worshipers, and in the marketplace daily with those who happened to be there.

¹⁸⁶Then certain Epicurean and Stoic philosophers encountered him. And some said, “What does this ⁷babbler want to say?” Others said, “He seems to be a proclaimer of foreign gods,” because he preached to them ^pJesus and the resurrection.

¹⁹And they took him and brought him to the ⁸Areopagus, saying, “May we know what this new doctrine is of which you speak?”

²⁰“For you are bringing some strange things to our ears. Therefore we want to know what these things mean.”

²¹For all the Athenians and the foreigners who were there spent their time in nothing else but either to tell or to hear some new thing.

Addressing the Areopagus ²²Then Paul stood in the midst of the ⁹Areopagus and said, “Men of Athens, I perceive that in all things you are very religious; ²³“for as I was passing through and considering the objects of your worship, I even found an altar with this inscription:

TO THE UNKNOWN GOD.

Therefore, the One whom you worship without knowing, Him I proclaim to you: ^{24q}“God, who made the world and everything in it, since He is ^rLord of heaven and earth, ^sdoes not dwell in temples made with hands.

²⁵“Nor is He worshiped with men’s hands, as though He needed anything, since He ^tgives to all life, breath, and all things.

²⁶“And He has made from one ¹⁰blood every nation of men to dwell on all the face of the earth, and has determined their preappointed times and ^uthe boundaries of their dwellings, ^{27v}“so that they should seek the Lord, in the hope that they might grope for Him and find Him, ^wthough He is not far from each one of us; ²⁸“for ^xin Him we live and move and have our being, ^yas also some of your own poets have said, ‘For we are also His offspring.’

²⁹“Therefore, since we are the offspring of God, ^zwe ought not to think that the Divine Nature is like gold or silver or stone, something shaped by art and man’s devising.

³⁰“Truly, ^athese times of ignorance God overlooked, but ^bnow commands all men everywhere to repent, ³¹“because He has appointed a day on which ^cHe will judge the world in righteousness by the Man whom He has ordained. He has given assurance of this to all by ^draising Him from the dead.”

³²And when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked, while others said, “We will hear you again on this matter.”

³³So Paul departed from among them.

³⁴However, some men joined him and believed, among them Dionysius the Areopagite, a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

Ministering at Corinth ¹*After these things Paul departed from Athens and went to Corinth.*

²And he found a certain Jew named ^aAquila, born in Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla (because Claudius had commanded all the Jews to depart from Rome); and he came to them.

³So, because he was of the same trade, he stayed with them ^band worked; for by occupation they were tentmakers.

^{4c}And he reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, and persuaded both Jews and Greeks.

^{5d}When Silas and Timothy had come from Macedonia, Paul was ^ecompelled ¹by the Spirit, and testified to the Jews that Jesus is the Christ.

⁶But ^fwhen they opposed him and blasphemed, ^ghe shook his garments and said to them, ^h“Your blood be upon your own heads; ⁱI am clean. ^jFrom now on I will go to the Gentiles.”

⁷And he departed from there and entered the house of a certain man named ²Justus, one who worshiped God, whose house was next door to the synagogue.

^{8k}Then Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his household. And many of the Corinthians, hearing, believed and were baptized.

⁹Now ^lthe Lord spoke to Paul in the night by a vision, “Do not be afraid, but speak, and do not keep silent; ^{10m}“for I am with you, and no one will attack you to hurt you; for I have many people in this city.”

¹¹And he continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

¹²When Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews with one accord rose up against Paul and brought him to the ³judgment seat, ¹³saying, “This fellow persuades men to worship God contrary to the law.”

¹⁴And when Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, “If it were a matter of wrongdoing or wicked crimes, O Jews, there would be reason why I should bear with you.

¹⁵“But if it is a ⁿquestion of words and names and your own law, look to it yourselves; for I do not want to be a judge of such matters.”

¹⁶And he drove them from the judgment seat.

¹⁷Then ⁴all the Greeks took ^oSosthenes, the ruler of the synagogue, and beat him before the judgment seat. But Gallio took no notice of these things.

Paul Returns to Antioch ¹⁸*So Paul still remained ⁵a good while. Then he took leave of the brethren and sailed for Syria, and Priscilla and Aquila were with him. ^pHe had his hair cut off at ^qCenchrea, for he had taken a vow.*

¹⁹And he came to Ephesus, and left them there; but he himself entered the synagogue and reasoned with the Jews.

²⁰When they asked him to stay a longer time with them, he did not consent, ²¹but took leave of them, saying, ^r“^{t6} must by all means keep this coming feast in Jerusalem; but I will return again to you, ^sGod willing.” And he sailed from Ephesus.

²²And when he had landed at ^tCaesarea, and ⁷gone up and greeted the church, he went down to Antioch. In-Text Map: Paul's Second Missionary Journey

²³After he had spent some time there, he departed and went over the region of ^uGalatia and Phrygia ⁸in order, ^vstrengthening all the disciples.

Ministry of Apollos ^{24w}Now a certain Jew named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man and mighty in the Scriptures, came to Ephesus.

²⁵This man had been instructed in the way of the Lord; and being ^xfervent in spirit, he spoke and taught accurately the things of the Lord, ^ythough he knew only the baptism of John.

²⁶So he began to speak boldly in the synagogue. When Aquila and Priscilla heard him, they took him aside and explained to him the way of God more accurately.

²⁷And when he desired to cross to Achaia, the brethren wrote, exhorting the disciples to receive him; and when he arrived, ^zhe greatly helped those who had believed through grace; ²⁸for he vigorously refuted the Jews publicly, ^ashowing from the Scriptures that Jesus is the Christ.

Acts 19

Paul at Ephesus ¹*And it happened, while ^aApollos was at Corinth, that Paul, having passed through ^bthe upper regions, came to Ephesus. And finding some disciples ²he said to them, “Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?” So they said to him, ^c“We have not so much as heard whether there is a Holy Spirit.”*

³And he said to them, “Into what then were you baptized?” So they said, ^d“Into John’s baptism.”

⁴Then Paul said, ^e“John indeed baptized with a baptism of repentance, saying to the people that they should believe on Him who would come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.”

⁵When they heard this, they were baptized ^fin the name of the Lord Jesus.

⁶And when Paul had ^glaid hands on them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and ^hthey spoke with tongues and prophesied.

⁷Now the men were about twelve in all.

⁸ⁱAnd he went into the synagogue and spoke boldly for three months, reasoning and persuading ^jconcerning the things of the kingdom of God.

⁹But ^kwhen some were hardened and did not believe, but spoke evil ^lof the Way before the multitude, he departed from them and withdrew the disciples, reasoning daily in the school of Tyrannus.

¹⁰And ^mthis continued for two years, so that all who dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks.

Miracles Glorify Christ ¹¹*Now ⁿGod worked unusual miracles by the hands of Paul, ^{12o}so that even handkerchiefs or aprons were brought from his body to the sick, and the diseases left them and the evil spirits went out of them.*

^{13p}Then some of the itinerant Jewish exorcists ^qtook it upon themselves to call the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits, saying, ¹“We ²exorcise you by the Jesus whom Paul ^rpreaches.”

¹⁴Also there were seven sons of Sceva, a Jewish chief priest, who did so.

¹⁵And the evil spirit answered and said, “Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are you?”

¹⁶Then the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, ³overpowered them, and prevailed against ⁴them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded.

¹⁷This became known both to all Jews and Greeks dwelling in Ephesus; and ⁵fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.

¹⁸And many who had believed came ^tconfessing and telling their deeds.

¹⁹Also, many of those who had practiced magic brought their books together and burned them in the sight of all. And they counted up the value of them, and it totaled fifty thousand pieces of silver.

^{20u}So the word of the Lord grew mightily and prevailed.

The Riot at Ephesus ^{21v}When these things were accomplished, Paul ^wpurposed in the Spirit, when he had passed through ^xMacedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, “After I have been there, ^yI must also see Rome.”

²²So he sent into Macedonia two of those who ministered to him, ^zTimothy and ^aErastus, but he himself stayed in Asia for a time.

²³And ^babout that time there arose a great commotion about ^cthe Way.

²⁴For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, who made silver shrines of ⁵Diana, brought ^dno small profit to the craftsmen.

²⁵He called them together with the workers of similar occupation, and said: “Men, you know that we have our prosperity by this trade.

²⁶“Moreover you see and hear that not only at Ephesus, but throughout almost all Asia, this Paul has persuaded and turned away many people, saying that ^ethey are not gods which are made with hands.

²⁸Now when they heard this, they were full of wrath and cried out, saying, “Great is Diana of the Ephesians!”

²⁹So the whole city was filled with confusion, and rushed into the theater with one accord, having seized ^fGaius and ⁸Aristarchus, Macedonians, Paul’s travel companions.

³⁰And when Paul wanted to go in to the people, the disciples would not allow him.

³¹Then some of the ⁷officials of Asia, who were his friends, sent to him pleading that he would not venture into the theater.

³²Some therefore cried one thing and some another, for the assembly was confused, and most of them did not know why they had come together.

³³And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And ^hAlexander ⁱmotioned with his hand, and wanted to make his defense to the people.

³⁴But when they found out that he was a Jew, all with one voice cried out for about two hours, “Great is Diana of the Ephesians!”

³⁵And when the city clerk had quieted the crowd, he said: “Men of Ephesus, what man is there who does not know that the city of the Ephesians is temple guardian of the great goddess ⁸Diana, and of the image which fell down from ⁹Zeus?

³⁶“Therefore, since these things cannot be denied, you ought to be quiet and do nothing rashly.

³⁷“For you have brought these men here who are neither robbers of temples nor blasphemers of ¹⁰your goddess.

³⁹“But if you have any other inquiry to make, it shall be determined in the lawful assembly.

⁴¹And when he had said these things, he dismissed the assembly.

Acts 20

Journeys in Greece ¹*After the uproar had ceased, Paul called the disciples to himself, embraced them, and ^adeparted to go to Macedonia.*

²Now when he had gone over that region and encouraged them with many words, he came to ^bGreece ³and stayed three months. And ^cwhen the Jews plotted against him as he was about to sail to Syria, he decided to return through Macedonia.

⁴And Sopater of Berea accompanied him to Asia—also ^dAristarchus and Secundus of the Thessalonians, and ^eGaius of Derbe, and ^fTimothy, and ^gTychicus and ^hTrophimus of Asia.

⁵These men, going ahead, waited for us at ⁱTroas.

⁶But we sailed away from Philippi after ^jthe Days of Unleavened Bread, and in five days joined them ^kat Troas, where we stayed seven days.

Ministering at Troas ⁷*Now on ^lthe first day of the week, when the disciples came together ^mto break bread, Paul, ready to depart the next day, spoke to them and continued his message until midnight.*

⁸There were many lamps ⁿin the upper room where ¹they were gathered together.

⁹And in a window sat a certain young man named Eutychus, who was sinking into a deep sleep. He was overcome by sleep; and as Paul continued speaking, he fell down from the third story and was taken up dead.

¹⁰But Paul went down, ^ofell on him, and embracing him said, ^p“Do not trouble yourselves, for his life is in him.”

¹¹Now when he had come up, had broken bread and eaten, and talked a long while, even till daybreak, he departed.

¹²And they brought the young man in alive, and they were not a little comforted.

From Troas to Miletus ¹³*Then we went ahead to the ship and sailed to Assos, there intending to take Paul on board; for so he had ²given orders, intending himself to go on foot.*

¹⁴And when he met us at Assos, we took him on board and came to Mitylene.

¹⁵We sailed from there, and the next day came opposite Chios. The following day we arrived at Samos and stayed at Trogyllium. The next day we came to Miletus.

¹⁶For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, so that he would not have to spend time in Asia; for ^qhe was hurrying ^rto be at Jerusalem, if possible, on ^sthe Day of Pentecost.

The Ephesian Elders Exhorted ¹⁷From Miletus he sent to Ephesus and called for the elders of the church.

¹⁸And when they had come to him, he said to them: “You know, ^tfrom the first day that I came to Asia, in what manner I always lived among you, ¹⁹“serving the Lord with all humility, with many tears and trials which happened to me ^uby the plotting of the Jews; ²⁰“how ^vI kept back nothing that was helpful, but proclaimed it to you, and taught you publicly and from house to house, ^{21w}“testifying to Jews, and also to Greeks, ^xrepentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

²²“And see, now ^yI go bound in the spirit to Jerusalem, not knowing the things that will happen to me there, ²³“except that ^zthe Holy Spirit testifies in every city, saying that chains and tribulations await me.

²⁴³“But ^anone of these things move me; nor do I count my life dear to myself, ^bso that I may finish my ⁴race with joy, ^cand the ministry ^dwhich I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the gospel of the grace of God.

²⁵“And indeed, now I know that you all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, will see my face no more.

²⁶“Therefore I testify to you this day that I am ^einnocent⁵ of the blood of all men.

²⁷“For I have not ⁶shunned to declare to you ^fthe whole counsel of God.

^{28g}“Therefore take heed to yourselves and to all the flock, among which the Holy Spirit ^hhas made you overseers, to shepherd the church ⁷of God ⁱwhich He purchased ^jwith His own blood.

²⁹“For I know this, that after my departure ^ksavage wolves will come in among you, not sparing the flock.

³⁰“Also ^lfrom among yourselves men will rise up, speaking ⁸perverse things, to draw away the disciples after themselves.

³¹“Therefore watch, and remember that ^mfor three years I did not cease to warn everyone night and day with tears.

³²“So now, brethren, I commend you to God and ⁿto the word of His grace, which is able ^oto build you up and give you ^pan inheritance among all those who are sanctified.

³³“I have coveted no one’s silver or gold or apparel.

³⁴⁹“Yes, you yourselves know ^qthat these hands have provided for my necessities, and for those who were with me.

³⁵“I have shown you in every way, ^rby laboring like this, that you must support the weak. And remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that He said, ‘It is more blessed to give than to receive.’ ”

³⁶And when he had said these things, he knelt down and prayed with them all.

³⁷Then they all ^swept ¹⁰freely, and ^tfell on Paul’s neck and kissed him, ³⁸sorrowing most of all for the words which he spoke, that they would see his face no more. And they accompanied him to the ship.

Acts 21

Warnings on the Journey to Jerusalem ¹Now it came to pass, that when we had departed from them and set sail, running a straight course we came to Cos, the following day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara.

²And finding a ship sailing over to Phoenicia, we went aboard and set sail.

³When we had sighted Cyprus, we passed it on the left, sailed to Syria, and landed at Tyre; for there the ship was to unload her cargo.

⁴And finding ¹disciples, we stayed there seven days. ^aThey told Paul through the Spirit not to go up to Jerusalem.

⁵When we had come to the end of those days, we departed and went on our way; and they all accompanied us, with wives and children, till we were out of the city. And ^bwe knelt down on the shore and prayed.

⁶When we had taken our leave of one another, we boarded the ship, and they returned ^chome.

⁷And when we had finished our voyage from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, greeted the brethren, and stayed with them one day.

⁸On the next day we ²who were Paul's companions departed and came to ^dCaesarea, and entered the house of Philip ^ethe evangelist, ^fwho was one of the seven, and stayed with him.

⁹Now this man had four virgin daughters ^gwho prophesied.

¹⁰And as we stayed many days, a certain prophet named ^hAgabus came down from Judea.

¹¹When he had come to us, he took Paul's belt, bound his own hands and feet, and said, "Thus says the Holy Spirit, ⁱ"So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man who owns this belt, and deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.' "

¹²Now when we heard these things, both we and those from that place pleaded with him not to go up to Jerusalem.

¹³Then Paul answered, ^j"What do you mean by weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be bound, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus."

¹⁴So when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, ^k"The will of the Lord be done."

Paul Urged to Make Peace ¹⁵And after those days we ³packed and went up to Jerusalem.

¹⁶Also some of the disciples from Caesarea went with us and brought with them a certain Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple, with whom we were to lodge.

¹⁷¹And when we had come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly. In-Text Map: Paul's Third Missionary Journey

¹⁸On the following day Paul went in with us to ^mJames, and all the elders were present.

¹⁹When he had greeted them, ⁿhe told in detail those things which God had done among the Gentiles ^othrough his ministry.

²⁰And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord. And they said to him, "You see, brother, how many myriads of Jews there are who have believed, and they are all ^pzealous for the law; ²¹"but they have been informed about you that you teach all the Jews who are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, saying that they ought not to circumcise their children nor to walk according to the customs.

²²⁴"What then? The assembly must certainly meet, for they will hear that you have come.

²⁴"Take them and be purified with them, and pay their expenses so that they may ^qshave their heads, and that all may know that those things of which they were informed concerning you are nothing, but that you yourself also walk orderly and keep the law.

Arrested in the Temple ²⁶Then Paul took the men, and the next day, having been purified with them, ^sentered the temple ^tto announce the ⁷expiration of the days of purification, at which time an offering should be made for each one of them.

²⁷Now when the seven days were almost ended, ^uthe Jews from Asia, seeing him in the temple, stirred up the whole crowd and ^vlaid hands on him,

²⁸crying out, “Men of Israel, help! This is the man ^wwho teaches all men everywhere against the people, the law, and this place; and furthermore he also brought Greeks into the temple and has defiled this holy place.”

²⁹(For they had ⁸previously seen ^xTrophimus the Ephesian with him in the city, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.) ³⁰And ^yall the city was disturbed; and the people ran together, seized Paul, and dragged him out of the temple; and immediately the doors were shut.

³¹Now as they were ^zseeking to kill him, news came to the commander of the ⁹garrison that all Jerusalem was in an uproar.

^{32a}He immediately took soldiers and centurions, and ran down to them. And when they saw the commander and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul.

³³Then the ^bcommander came near and took him, and ^ccommanded him to be bound with two chains; and he asked who he was and what he had done.

³⁴And some among the multitude cried one thing and some another. So when he could not ascertain the truth because of the tumult, he commanded him to be taken into the barracks.

³⁵When he reached the stairs, he had to be carried by the soldiers because of the violence of the mob.

³⁶For the multitude of the people followed after, crying out, ^d“Away with him!”

Addressing the Jerusalem Mob (Acts 9:1–19; 26:12–18) ³⁷Then as Paul was about to be led into the barracks, he said to the commander, “May I speak to you?” He replied, “Can you speak Greek?”

^{38e}“Are you not the Egyptian who some time ago stirred up a rebellion and led the four thousand assassins out into the wilderness?”

³⁹But Paul said, ^f“I am a Jew from Tarsus, in Cilicia, a citizen of no ¹⁰mean city; and I implore you, permit me to speak to the people.”

⁴⁰So when he had given him permission, Paul stood on the stairs and ^gmotioned with his hand to the people. And when there was a great silence, he spoke to them in the ^hHebrew language, saying,

²And when they heard that he spoke to them in the ^bHebrew language, they kept all the more silent. Then he said: ^{3c}“I am indeed a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but brought up in this city ^dat the feet of ^eGamaliel, taught ^faccording to the strictness of our fathers’ law, and ^gwas zealous toward God ^has you all are today.

⁴ⁱ“I persecuted this Way to the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women, ⁵“as also the high priest bears me witness, and ^jall the council of the elders, ^kfrom whom I also received letters to the brethren, and went to Damascus ^lto bring in chains even those who were there to Jerusalem to be punished.

⁶“Now ^mit happened, as I journeyed and came near Damascus at about noon, suddenly a great light from heaven shone around me.

⁷“And I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me?’

⁸“So I answered, ‘Who are You, Lord?’ And He said to me, ‘I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom you are persecuting.’

⁹“And ⁿthose who were with me indeed saw the light ¹and were afraid, but they did not hear the voice of Him who spoke to me.

¹⁰“So I said, ‘What shall I do, Lord?’ And the Lord said to me, ‘Arise and go into Damascus, and there you will be told all things which are appointed for you to do.’

¹¹“And since I could not see for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of those who were with me, I came into Damascus.

¹²“Then ^oa certain Ananias, a devout man according to the law, ^phaving a good testimony with all the ^qJews who dwelt there, ¹³“came to me; and he stood and said to me, ‘Brother Saul, receive your sight.’ And at that same hour I looked up at him.

¹⁶‘And now why are you waiting? Arise and be baptized, ^yand wash away your sins, ^zcalling on the name of the Lord.’

¹⁷“Now ^ait happened, when I returned to Jerusalem and was praying in the temple, that I was in a trance ¹⁸“and ^bsaw Him saying to me, ^c“Make haste and get out of Jerusalem quickly, for they will not receive your testimony concerning Me.’

¹⁹“So I said, ‘Lord, ^dthey know that in every synagogue I imprisoned and ^ebeat those who believe on You.

²⁰^f“And when the blood of Your martyr Stephen was shed, I also was standing by ^gconsenting ²to his death, and guarding the clothes of those who were killing him.’

²¹“Then He said to me, ‘Depart, ^hfor I will send you far from here to the Gentiles.’ ”

Paul’s Roman Citizenship ²²And they listened to him until this word, and then they raised their voices and said, ⁱ“Away with such a fellow from the earth, for ^jhe is not fit to live!”

²³Then, as they cried out and ³tore off their clothes and threw dust into the air, ²⁴the commander ordered him to be brought into the barracks, and said that he should be examined under scourging, so that he might know why they shouted so against him.

²⁵And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said to the centurion who stood by, ^k“Is it lawful for you to scourge a man who is a Roman, and uncondemned?”

²⁶When the centurion heard that, he went and told the commander, saying, “Take care what you do, for this man is a Roman.”

²⁷Then the commander came and said to him, “Tell me, are you a Roman?” He said, “Yes.”

²⁸The commander answered, “With a large sum I obtained this citizenship.” And Paul said, “But I was born a citizen.”

²⁹Then immediately those who were about to examine him withdrew from him; and the commander was also afraid after he found out that he was a Roman, and because he had bound him.

The Sanhedrin Divided ³⁰The next day, because he wanted to know for certain why he was accused by the Jews, he released him from his bonds, and commanded the chief priests and all their council to appear, and brought Paul down and set him before them.

Acts 23

¹Then Paul, looking earnestly at the council, said, “Men and brethren, ^aI have lived in all good conscience before God until this day.”

²And the high priest Ananias commanded those who stood by him ^bto strike him on the mouth.

³Then Paul said to him, “God will strike you, you whitewashed wall! For you sit to judge me according to the law, and ^cdo you command me to be struck contrary to the law?”

⁴And those who stood by said, “Do you revile God’s high priest?”

⁵Then Paul said, ^d“I did not know, brethren, that he was the high priest; for it is written, ^e*‘You shall not speak evil of a ruler of your people.’*”

⁶But when Paul perceived that one part were Sadducees and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the council, “Men and brethren, ^fI am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee; ^gconcerning the hope and resurrection of the dead I am being judged!”

⁷And when he had said this, a dissension arose between the Pharisees and the Sadducees; and the assembly was divided.

^{8h}For Sadducees say that there is no resurrection—and no angel or spirit; but the Pharisees confess both.

¹⁰Now when there arose a great dissension, the commander, fearing lest Paul might be pulled to pieces by them, commanded the soldiers to go down and take him by force from among them, and bring him into the barracks.

The Plot Against Paul ¹¹But ^lthe following night the Lord stood by him and said, ²“Be of good cheer, Paul; for as you have testified for Me in ^mJerusalem, so you must also bear witness at ⁿRome.”

¹²And when it was day, ^osome of the Jews banded together and bound themselves under an oath, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they had ^pkilled Paul.

¹³Now there were more than forty who had formed this conspiracy.

¹⁴They came to the chief priests and ^qelders, and said, “We have bound ourselves under a great oath that we will eat nothing until we have killed Paul.

¹⁵“Now you, therefore, together with the council, suggest to the commander that he be brought down to you ³tomorrow, as though you were going to make further inquiries concerning him; but we are ready to kill him before he comes near.”

¹⁶So when Paul’s sister’s son heard of their ambush, he went and entered the barracks and told Paul.

¹⁷Then Paul called one of the centurions to him and said, “Take this young man to the commander, for he has something to tell him.”

¹⁸So he took him and brought him to the commander and said, “Paul the prisoner called me to him and asked me to bring this young man to you. He has something to say to you.”

¹⁹Then the commander took him by the hand, went aside, and asked privately, “What is it that you have to tell me?”

²⁰And he said, ^r“The Jews have agreed to ask that you bring Paul down to the council tomorrow, as though they were going to inquire more fully about him.

²²So the commander let the young man depart, and commanded him, “Tell no one that you have revealed these things to me.”

Sent to Felix ²³And he called for two centurions, saying, “Prepare two hundred soldiers, seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen to go to ^sCaesarea at the third hour of the night; ²⁴“and provide mounts to set Paul on, and bring him safely to Felix the governor.”

²⁵He wrote a letter in the following manner:

²⁶Claudius Lysias, To the most excellent governor Felix: Greetings.

²⁷^tThis man was seized by the Jews and was about to be killed by them. Coming with the troops I rescued him, having learned that he was a Roman.

²⁸^uAnd when I wanted to know the reason they accused him, I brought him before their council.

²⁹I found out that he was accused ^vconcerning questions of their law, ^wbut had nothing charged against him deserving of death or chains.

³⁰And ^xwhen it was told me that ⁴the Jews lay in wait for the man, I sent him immediately to you, and ^yalso commanded his accusers to state before you the charges against him.

Farewell.

³¹Then the soldiers, as they were commanded, took Paul and brought him by night to Antipatris.

³²The next day they left the horsemen to go on with him, and returned to the barracks.

³³When they came to ^zCaesarea and had delivered the ^aletter to the governor, they also presented Paul to him.

³⁴And when the governor had read it, he asked what province he was from. And when he understood that he was from ^bCilicia, ³⁵he said, ^c“I will hear you when your accusers also have come.” And he commanded him to be kept in ^dHerod’s ⁵Praetorium.

Acts 24

Accused of Seditious ¹*Now after ^afive days ^bAnanias the high priest came down with the elders and a certain orator named Tertullus. These gave evidence to the governor against Paul.*

²And when he was called upon, Tertullus began his accusation, saying: “Seeing that through you we enjoy great peace, and ¹prosperity is being brought to this nation by your foresight, ³“we accept it always and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thankfulness.

⁴“Nevertheless, not to be tedious to you any further, I beg you to hear, by your ²courtesy, a few words from us.

^{5c}“For we have found this man a plague, a creator of dissension among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes.

^{6d}“He even tried to profane the temple, and we seized him, ³and wanted ^eto judge him according to our law.

^{7f}“But the commander Lysias came by and with great violence took him out of our hands, ^{8g}“commanding his accusers to come to you. By examining him yourself you may ascertain all these things of which we accuse him.”

⁹And the Jews also ⁴assented, maintaining that these things were so.

The Defense Before Felix ¹⁰*Then Paul, after the governor had nodded to him to speak, answered: “Inasmuch as I know that you have been for many years a judge of this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself, ¹¹“because you may ascertain that it is no more than twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem ^hto worship.*

¹²ⁱ“And they neither found me in the temple disputing with anyone nor inciting the crowd, either in the synagogues or in the city.

¹³“Nor can they prove the things of which they now accuse me.

¹⁴“But this I confess to you, that according to ^jthe Way which they call a sect, so I worship the ^kGod of my fathers, believing all things which are written in ^lthe Law and in the Prophets.

^{15m}“I have hope in God, which they themselves also accept, ⁿthat there will be a resurrection ⁵of the dead, both of the just and the unjust.

^{16o}“This being so, I myself always strive to have a conscience without offense toward God and men.

¹⁷“Now after many years ^pI came to bring alms and offerings to my nation, ^{18q}“in the midst of which some Jews from Asia found me ^rpurified in the temple, neither with a mob nor with tumult.

^{19s}“They ought to have been here before you to object if they had anything against me.

²⁰“Or else let those who are here themselves say ⁶if they found any wrongdoing in me while I stood before the council, ²¹“unless it is for this one statement which I cried out, standing among them, ^t“Concerning the resurrection of the dead I am being judged by you this day.’ ”

Felix Procrastinates ²²But when Felix heard these things, having more accurate knowledge of the ^uWay, he adjourned the proceedings and said, “When ^vLysias the commander comes down, I will make a decision on your case.”

²³So he commanded the centurion to keep Paul and to let him have liberty, and ^wtold him not to forbid any of his friends to provide for or visit him.

²⁴And after some days, when Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was Jewish, he sent for Paul and heard him concerning the ^xfaith in Christ.

²⁵Now as he reasoned about righteousness, self-control, and the judgment to come, Felix was afraid and answered, “Go away for now; when I have a convenient time I will call for you.”

²⁶Meanwhile he also hoped that ^ymoney would be given him by Paul, ⁷that he might release him. Therefore he sent for him more often and conversed with him.

²⁷But after two years Porcius Festus succeeded Felix; and Felix, ^zwanting to do the Jews a favor, left Paul bound.

Acts 25

Paul Appeals to Caesar ¹*Now when Festus had come to the province, after three days he went up from ^aCaesarea to Jerusalem.*

^{2b}Then the ¹high priest and the chief men of the Jews informed him against Paul; and they petitioned him, ³asking a favor against him, that he would summon him to Jerusalem—^cwhile they lay in ambush along the road to kill him.

⁴But Festus answered that Paul should be kept at Caesarea, and that he himself was going there shortly.

⁵“Therefore,” he said, “let those who have authority among you go down with me and accuse this man, to see ^dif there is any fault in him.”

⁶And when he had remained among them more than ten days, he went down to Caesarea. And the next day, sitting on the judgment seat, he commanded Paul to be brought.

⁷When he had come, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem stood about ^eand laid many serious complaints against Paul, which they could not prove, ⁸while he answered for himself, ^f“Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor against Caesar have I offended in anything at all.”

⁹But Festus, ^gwanting to do the Jews a favor, answered Paul and said, ^h“Are you willing to go up to Jerusalem and there be judged before me concerning these things?”

¹⁰So Paul said, “I stand at Caesar’s judgment seat, where I ought to be judged. To the Jews I have done no wrong, as you very well know.

¹¹ⁱ“For if I am an offender, or have committed anything deserving of death, I do not object to dying; but if there is nothing in these things of which these men accuse me, no one can deliver me to them. ^jI appeal to Caesar.” Bible Times & Culture Notes: Roman Citizenship

¹²Then Festus, when he had conferred with the council, answered, “You have appealed to Caesar? To Caesar you shall go!”

Paul Before Agrippa ¹³*And after some days King Agrippa and Bernice came to Caesarea to greet Festus.*

¹⁴When they had been there many days, Festus laid Paul’s case before the king, saying: ^k“There is a certain man left a prisoner by Felix, ^{15l}“about whom the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me, when I was in Jerusalem, asking for a judgment against him.

^{16m}“To them I answered, ‘It is not the custom of the Romans to deliver any man ²to destruction before the accused meets the accusers face to face, and has opportunity to answer for himself concerning the charge against him.’

¹⁷“Therefore when they had come together, ⁿwithout any delay, the next day I sat on the judgment seat and commanded the man to be brought in.

¹⁸“When the accusers stood up, they brought no accusation against him of such things as I ³supposed, ^{19o}“but had some questions against him about their own religion and about a certain Jesus, who had died, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.

²⁰“And because I was uncertain of such questions, I asked whether he was willing to go to Jerusalem and there be judged concerning these matters.

²¹“But when Paul ^pappealed to be reserved for the decision of Augustus, I commanded him to be kept till I could send him to Caesar.”

²²Then ^qAgrippa said to Festus, “I also would like to hear the man myself.” “Tomorrow,” he said, “you shall hear him.”

²³So the next day, when Agrippa and Bernice had come with great ⁴pomp, and had entered the auditorium with the commanders and the prominent men of the city, at Festus’ command ^rPaul was brought in.

²⁴And Festus said: “King Agrippa and all the men who are here present with us, you see this man about whom ^sthe whole assembly of the Jews petitioned me, both at Jerusalem and here, crying out that he was ^tnot fit to live any longer.

²⁵“But when I found that ^uhe had committed nothing deserving of death, ^vand that he himself had appealed to Augustus, I decided to send him.

²⁶“I have nothing certain to write to my lord concerning him. Therefore I have brought him out before you, and especially before you, King Agrippa, so that after the examination has taken place I may have something to write.

²⁷“For it seems to me unreasonable to send a prisoner and not to specify the charges against him.”

Acts 26

Paul's Early Life ¹Then Agrippa said to Paul, "You are permitted to speak for yourself." So Paul stretched out his hand and answered for himself: ²"I think myself ^ahappy, King Agrippa, because today I shall answer ^bfor myself before you concerning all the things of which I am ^caccused by the Jews, ³"especially because you are expert in all customs and questions which have to do with the Jews. Therefore I beg you to hear me patiently.

⁴"My manner of life from my youth, which was spent from the beginning among my own nation at Jerusalem, all the Jews know.

⁵"They knew me from the first, if they were willing to testify, that according to ^dthe strictest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee.

^{6e}"And now I stand and am judged for the hope of ^fthe promise made by God to our fathers.

⁷"To this promise ^gour twelve tribes, earnestly serving God ^hnight and day, ⁱhope to attain. For this hope's sake, King Agrippa, I am accused by the Jews.

^{9j}"Indeed, I myself thought I must do many things ¹contrary to the name of ^kJesus of Nazareth.

^{10l}"This I also did in Jerusalem, and many of the saints I shut up in prison, having received authority ^mfrom the chief priests; and when they were put to death, I cast my vote against them.

¹¹ⁿ"And I punished them often in every synagogue and compelled them to blaspheme; and being exceedingly enraged against them, I persecuted them even to foreign cities.

Paul Recounts His Conversion (Acts 9:1–19; 22:6–16) ^{12o}"While thus occupied, as I journeyed to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests, ¹³"at midday, O king, along the road I saw a light from heaven, brighter than the sun, shining around me and those who journeyed with me.

¹⁴"And when we all had fallen to the ground, I heard a voice speaking to me and saying in the Hebrew language, 'Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me? It is hard for you to kick against the goads.'

¹⁵“So I said, ‘Who are You, Lord?’ And He said, ‘I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting.

¹⁶“But rise and stand on your feet; for I have appeared to you for this purpose, ^pto make you a minister and a witness both of the things which you have seen and of the things which I will yet reveal to you.

¹⁷“I will ²deliver you from the Jewish people, as well as from the Gentiles, ^qto whom I ³now send you, ^{18r}“to open their eyes, in order ^sto turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan to God, ^tthat they may receive forgiveness of sins and ^uan inheritance among those who are ^vsanctified⁴ by faith in Me.’

Paul’s Post-Conversion Life ¹⁹“Therefore, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision, ²⁰“but ^wdeclared first to those in Damascus and in Jerusalem, and throughout all the region of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent, turn to God, and do ^xworks befitting repentance.

²¹“For these reasons the Jews seized me in the temple and tried to kill me.

²²“Therefore, having obtained help from God, to this day I stand, witnessing both to small and great, saying no other things than those ^ywhich the prophets and ^zMoses said would come— ^{23a}“that the Christ would suffer, ^bthat He would be the first to rise from the dead, and ^cwould proclaim light to the Jewish people and to the Gentiles.”

Agrippa Parries Paul’s Challenge ²⁴Now as he thus made his defense, Festus said with a loud voice, “Paul, ^dyou are beside yourself! Much learning is driving you mad!”

²⁵But he said, “I am not ⁵mad, most noble Festus, but speak the words of truth and reason.

²⁷“King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know that you do believe.”

²⁸Then Agrippa said to Paul, “You almost persuade me to become a Christian.”

²⁹And Paul said, ^f“I would to God that not only you, but also all who hear me today, might become both almost and altogether such as I am, except for these chains.”

³⁰When he had said these things, the king stood up, as well as the governor and Bernice and those who sat with them; ³¹and when they had gone aside, they talked among themselves, saying, ^g“This man is doing nothing deserving of death or chains.”

³²Then Agrippa said to Festus, “This man might have been set ^hfree ⁱif he had not appealed to Caesar.”

Acts 27

The Voyage to Rome Begins ¹And when ^ait was decided that we should sail to Italy, they delivered Paul and some other prisoners to one named Julius, a centurion of the Augustan Regiment.

²So, entering a ship of Adramyttium, we put to sea, meaning to sail along the coasts of Asia. ^bAristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica, was with us.

³And the next day we landed at Sidon. And Julius ^ctreated Paul kindly and gave him liberty to go to his friends and receive care.

⁴When we had put to sea from there, we sailed under the shelter of Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.

⁵And when we had sailed over the sea which is off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra, a city of Lycia.

⁶There the centurion found ^dan Alexandrian ship sailing to Italy, and he put us on board.

⁷When we had sailed slowly many days, and arrived with difficulty off Cnidus, the wind not permitting us to proceed, we sailed under the shelter of ^eCrete off Salmone.

⁸Passing it with difficulty, we came to a place called Fair Havens, near the city of Lasea.

Paul's Warning Ignored ⁹Now when much time had been spent, and sailing was now dangerous ^fbecause ¹the Fast was already over, Paul advised them, ¹⁰saying, "Men, I perceive that this voyage will end with disaster and much loss, not only of the cargo and ship, but also our lives."

¹¹Nevertheless the centurion was more persuaded by the helmsman and the owner of the ship than by the things spoken by Paul.

¹²And because the harbor was not suitable to winter in, the majority advised to set sail from there also, if by any means they could reach Phoenix, a harbor of Crete opening toward the southwest and northwest, and winter there.

In the Tempest ¹³When the south wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their desire, putting out to sea, they sailed close by Crete.

¹⁴But not long after, a tempestuous head wind arose, called ²Euroclydon.

¹⁵So when the ship was caught, and could not head into the wind, we let her ³drive.

¹⁶And running under the shelter of an island called ⁴Clauda, we secured the skiff with difficulty.

¹⁷When they had taken it on board, they used cables to undergird the ship; and fearing lest they should run aground on the ⁵Syrtis Sands, they struck sail and so were driven.

¹⁸And because we were exceedingly tempest-tossed, the next day they lightened the ship.

¹⁹On the third day ⁸we threw the ship's tackle overboard with our own hands.

²⁰Now when neither sun nor stars appeared for many days, and no small tempest beat on us, all hope that we would be saved was finally given up.

²¹But after long abstinence from food, then Paul stood in the midst of them and said, "Men, you should have listened to me, and not have sailed from Crete and incurred this disaster and loss.

²²"And now I urge you to take ⁶heart, for there will be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship.

^{23h}"For there stood by me this night an angel of the God to whom I belong and ⁱwhom I serve, ²⁴"saying, 'Do not be afraid, Paul; you must be brought before Caesar; and indeed God has granted you all those who sail with you.'

²⁵"Therefore take heart, men, ^jfor I believe God that it will be just as it was told me.

²⁶"However, ^kwe must run aground on a certain island."

²⁷Now when the fourteenth night had come, as we were driven up and down in the Adriatic Sea, about midnight the sailors sensed that they were drawing near some land.

²⁸And they took soundings and found it to be twenty fathoms; and when they had gone a little farther, they took soundings again and found it to be fifteen fathoms.

²⁹Then, fearing lest we should run aground on the rocks, they dropped four anchors from the stern, and ⁷prayed for day to come.

³⁰And as the sailors were seeking to escape from the ship, when they had let down the skiff into the sea, under pretense of putting out anchors from the prow, ³¹Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, "Unless these men stay in the ship, you cannot be saved.”

³²Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the skiff and let it fall off.

³³And as day was about to dawn, Paul implored them all to take food, saying, “Today is the fourteenth day you have waited and continued without food, and eaten nothing.

³⁴“Therefore I urge you to take nourishment, for this is for your survival, ¹since not a hair will fall from the head of any of you.”

³⁵And when he had said these things, he took bread and ^mgave thanks to God in the presence of them all; and when he had broken it he began to eat.

³⁶Then they were all encouraged, and also took food themselves.

³⁷And in all we were two hundred and seventy-six ⁿpersons on the ship.

³⁸So when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship and threw out the wheat into the sea.

Shipwrecked on Malta ³⁹When it was day, they did not recognize the land; but they observed a bay with a beach, onto which they planned to run the ship if possible.

⁴⁰And they ⁸let go the anchors and left them in the sea, meanwhile loosing the rudder ropes; and they hoisted the mainsail to the wind and made for shore.

⁴¹But striking ⁹a place where two seas met, ^othey ran the ship aground; and the prow stuck fast and remained immovable, but the stern was being broken up by the violence of the waves.

⁴²And the soldiers’ plan was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them should swim away and escape.

⁴³But the centurion, wanting to save Paul, kept them from their purpose, and commanded that those who could swim should jump overboard first and get to land, ⁴⁴and the rest, some on boards and some on parts of the ship. And so it was ^pthat they all escaped safely to land.

Acts 28

Paul's Ministry on Malta ¹Now when they had escaped, they then found out that ^athe island was called Malta.

²And the ^bnatives¹ showed us unusual kindness; for they kindled a fire and made us all welcome, because of the rain that was falling and because of the cold.

³But when Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks and laid them on the fire, a viper came out because of the heat, and fastened on his hand.

⁴So when the natives saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said to one another, "No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he has escaped the sea, yet justice does not allow to live."

⁵But he shook off the creature into the fire and ^csuffered no harm.

⁶However, they were expecting that he would swell up or suddenly fall down dead. But after they had looked for a long time and saw no harm come to him, they changed their minds and ^dsaid that he was a god.

⁷In that region there was an estate of the ²leading citizen of the island, whose name was Publius, who received us and entertained us courteously for three days.

⁸And it happened that the father of Publius lay sick of a fever and dysentery. Paul went in to him and ^eprayed, and ^fhe laid his hands on him and healed him.

⁹So when this was done, the rest of those on the island who had diseases also came and were healed.

¹⁰They also honored us in many ^gways; and when we departed, they provided such things as were ^hnecessary.

Arrival at Rome ¹¹After three months we sailed in ⁱan Alexandrian ship whose figurehead was the ³Twin Brothers, which had wintered at the island.

¹²And landing at Syracuse, we stayed three days.

¹³From there we circled round and reached Rhegium. And after one day the south wind blew; and the next day we came to Puteoli, ¹⁴where we found ^jbrethren, and were invited to stay with them seven days. And so we went toward Rome.

¹⁵And from there, when the brethren heard about us, they came to meet us as far as Appii Forum and Three Inns. When Paul saw them, he thanked God and took courage.

¹⁶Now when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the prisoners to the captain of the guard; but ^kPaul was permitted to dwell by himself with the soldier who guarded him. In-Text Map: Paul's Journey to Rome

Paul's Ministry at Rome ¹⁷*And it came to pass after three days that Paul called the leaders of the Jews together. So when they had come together, he said to them: "Men and brethren, ^lthough I have done nothing against our people or the customs of our fathers, yet ^mI was delivered as a prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans, ¹⁸"who, ⁿwhen they had examined me, wanted to let me go, because there was no cause for putting me to death.*

¹⁹"But when the ⁴Jews spoke against it, ^oI was compelled to appeal to Caesar, not that I had anything of which to accuse my nation.

²⁰"For this reason therefore I have called for you, to see you and speak with you, because ^pfor the hope of Israel I am bound with ^qthis chain."

²¹Then they said to him, "We neither received letters from Judea concerning you, nor have any of the brethren who came reported or spoken any evil of you.

²²"But we desire to hear from you what you think; for concerning this sect, we know that ^rit is spoken against everywhere."

²³So when they had appointed him a day, many came to him at his lodging, ^sto whom he explained and solemnly testified of the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus ^tfrom both the Law of Moses and the Prophets, from morning till evening.

²⁴And ^usome were persuaded by the things which were spoken, and some disbelieved.

²⁵So when they did not agree among themselves, they departed after Paul had said one word: "The Holy Spirit spoke rightly through Isaiah the prophet to ⁵our fathers, ²⁶"saying, ^v*"Go to this people and say: "Hearing you will hear, and shall not understand; And seeing you will see, and not perceive; ²⁷For the hearts of this people have grown dull.*

Their ears are hard of hearing, And their eyes they have closed, Lest they should see with their eyes and hear with their ears, Lest they should understand with their hearts and turn, So that I should heal them.” ’

²⁸“Therefore let it be known to you that the salvation of God has been sent ^wto the Gentiles, and they will hear it!”

²⁹⁶And when he had said these words, the Jews departed and had a great dispute among themselves.

³⁰Then Paul dwelt two whole years in his own rented house, and received all who came to him, Article: Power of the Spirit

Annotations for Acts

- 1:1 Luke addressed his Gospel to the “most excellent Theophilus” (see Luke 1:3), using a title that indicates Theophilus was a person of high rank. The formal title is dropped here.
- 1:2, 3 Taken up refers to Christ’s ascension, the end of His earthly ministry. These verses look back to Luke 24:51 and ahead to vv. 9, 22. the apostles . . . to whom He also presented Himself alive: The resurrected Jesus presented Himself “not to all the people, but to witnesses chosen before by God” (10:41). In the forty days between Jesus’ resurrection and ascension, there are recorded some 10 or 11 appearances of Jesus to believers confirming His resurrection from the dead. On the last of these appearances, Jesus gathered His apostles together and commanded them not to leave Jerusalem (v. 4). Many infallible proofs serve as the basis for the believer’s confidence in the resurrection of our Lord. The Greek word translated infallible proofs speaks of “convincing, decisive proof.” Christian belief is not built on speculation or myth but on the sovereign acts and words of God incarnate in the time-space universe. The kingdom of God was the central topic of discussion between Christ and His apostles during the 40 days between Jesus’ resurrection and ascension. The goal of history is not the Cross, but the crown—the time when King Jesus reveals Himself in all His majesty and reigns in glory (see Is. 11; Dan. 7:13, 14; 1 Cor. 15:24–28; Rev. 20:4–6).
- 1:4 As predicted by John the Baptist (see Matt. 3:11; Mark 1:8; Luke 3:16; John 1:33) and reiterated by Jesus Himself, the Promise of the Father was the promise of baptism in the Holy Spirit. There are seven references in Scripture to baptism in the Spirit. Five are prophetic (see v. 5; Matt. 3:11; Mark 1:8; Luke 3:16; John 1:33); one is historical (11:15, 16), referring to the Day of Pentecost; and one is doctrinal (see 1 Cor. 12:13), explaining the meaning of baptism in the Spirit.
- 1:5 shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit: The passive tense of the verb indicates that baptism does not depend upon our efforts to obtain the promise, but upon the Lord’s will. The simple future tense demonstrates that there is no uncertainty or doubt in the promise. The Greek word for baptized means “to immerse” or “to dip.” It also connotes being identified with someone or something. Spirit baptism means we have been placed in spiritual union with one another in the body of Jesus Christ, the church (see 1 Cor. 12:12, 13).
- 1:6 Therefore: Christ’s statement that the Spirit was about to be given evidently triggered concern among the disciples about the establishment of the kingdom. Connecting the coming of the Spirit and the coming of the kingdom was consistent with OT thought (see 3:21; Is. 32:15–20; 44:3–5; Ezek. 39:28, 29; Joel 2:28–3:1; Zech. 12:8–10). At this time expresses the anxiety of the apostles as they anticipated the kingdom rule that Christ had spoken of in the preceding days and weeks (v. 3). The popular expectation and hope was that Christ would establish His kingdom immediately.
- 1:7 It is not for you to know: Jesus did not correct His disciples’ views concerning the restoration of the kingdom to Israel (v. 6). Instead He corrected their views concerning the timing of the event. This was the same erroneous thinking that He had sought to correct with His parable in Luke 19:11–27, the parable of the minas. times or seasons: These words speak to the issue of timing differently. Times refers to chronology or the duration of time—“how long.” Seasons refers to the epochs or “events” that occur within time. The disciples were not to know how long it would be before Christ set up His kingdom, nor were they to know what events would transpire before the establishment of it. Peter points out that even the OT prophets did not know the timing between the sufferings of Christ and the glories that would follow (1 Pet. 1:11).
- 1:8 Instead of being concerned about the date of Christ’s return, the disciples’ job was to carry His message throughout the world. you shall receive power: This does not refer to personal power for godly living, as demonstrated in the lives of OT saints (see Abraham in Gen. 22; Joseph in Gen. 39; Moses in Ex. 14; Daniel in Dan. 6). This was power for a new task—namely, to take the gospel to the ends of the earth. Be witnesses is Christ’s command to His disciples to tell others about Him regardless of the consequences. Church tradition tells us that all but one of the 11 apostles who heard this promise became martyrs. (John died in exile.) God empowered His disciples to be faithful witnesses even when they faced the most vehement opposition.

1:9–11 Jesus promised that He would not leave nor forsake us, but would be with us always, even to the end of the age (see Matt. 28:20; John 14:18). He fulfilled this promise in the form of the Holy Spirit, who dwells within believers (see John 16:4–7). taken up . . . cloud received Him . . . He went up: These three statements portray the gradual, majestic departure of Jesus from the earth. will so come: The Second Coming of Christ and the establishment of His kingdom (vv. 6, 7) will occur the same way Jesus ascended: physically, visibly, and in the clouds.

1:12 A Sabbath day's journey was the distance permitted by Jewish custom for travel on a Sabbath day (see Ex. 16:29; Num. 35:5; Josh. 3:4), about a half mile. Anyone who traveled farther than this would be regarded as breaking the fourth commandment.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Sabbath Day's Journey

“A Sabbath day's journey” (1:12) referred to the distance a Jew could travel on the Sabbath without breaking the law. This distance was usually reckoned to be about “two thousand cubits” (about a thousand yards) because of the distance between the ark of the covenant and the rest of the Israelite camp in the wilderness (Josh. 3:4). The idea was that every person within the camp or city would be close enough to the center of worship to take part in the services without having to travel such a great distance that the Sabbath became a harried and busy day. This law, although noble in intent, was soon abused by a strict legalism. In the NT, Jesus often clashed with the Pharisees because of their blind legalism over observance of the Sabbath (Matt. 12:1–9).

1:13 The upper room could have been the room where Jesus spent the last Passover with His disciples, or the room in which He appeared to them after His resurrection (recorded in Luke 24). It is possible that the same room was the site of both events. This room may have belonged to Mary, the mother of John Mark. Her house is mentioned in 12:12 as a meeting place of disciples. Jesus' followers were staying in this upper room, waiting in Jerusalem as the Lord had directed, until they received the power Jesus had promised (v. 5).

1:14 with one accord: This phrase, which is found 11 times in the Book of Acts, is made up of two words that mean “same” and “mind.” The phrase speaks of people sharing the same mind or thinking like-mindedly. It does not refer to people who all think and feel the same way about everything, but to people who set aside personal feelings and commit themselves to one task—in this case witnessing to others about the Lord Jesus Christ (see Rom. 15:5, 6). Jesus said the world would know that He was sent from the heavenly Father when people saw the love between believers (see John 17:21): The unity among the believers described in Acts was a demonstration of this love. Mary the mother of Jesus receives special recognition in the group. While on the Cross, Jesus had requested that John care for His mother (see John 19:25–27).

1:15, 16 From the earliest days of the apostles' calling, Peter assumed a position of leadership. Though he often made mistakes, he was never bashful about dealing with problems. It was inevitable that the matter of Judas Iscariot be dealt with. In the upper room a hundred and twenty people gathered. No doubt the majority of them were among those who saw the risen Christ (see 1 Cor. 15:6). Though Christ spent most of His time with the Twelve, there were many other disciples who traveled with Jesus (see John 6:66). Holy Spirit spoke . . . mouth of David: Peter equated the speech of David with the voice of the Holy Spirit. This is an example of the biblical doctrine of inspiration, which asserts that the words of Scripture are equally the words of God and the words of men, with no error (see 2 Tim. 3:16; 1 Pet. 1:11; 2 Pet. 1:20, 21).

(Gk. epi to auto) (1:15; 2:1, 44; 1 Cor. 11:20; 14:23) Strong's #1909; 847

This Greek idiom means “toward the same thing” or “in the same place”; it conveys the idea of united purpose or collective unity. In the early church it acquired a special meaning, indicating the union of the Christian body. All the members of the church not only gathered together regularly, they shared all things in common and were committed to each other and Christ with united fervor.

1:18, 19 purchased a field: The field that was obtained with the money Judas received for betraying Jesus was actually purchased by the priests after Judas hanged himself (see Matt. 27:6–8). Since the money legally belonged to Judas, the priests purchased the field in his name. burst open . . . entrails gushed out: Apparently the noose Judas used to hang himself broke and his body fell, rupturing in the middle. This is why the place was called the Field of Blood.

1:20–22 Peter applied Psalms 69 and 109 to the apostles' situation. Psalm 69:25 speaks of the removal of the psalmist's enemy. Psalm 109:8 mentions the replacement of an enemy by someone else. Peter, enlightened by the teaching of Jesus (see 1:3; Luke 24:44–46), regarded these scriptural references as ultimately speaking of Judas the traitor. It was the defection of Judas, not his death, that caused Peter to ask the disciples to choose another to replace him. When James was later killed (12:2), no replacement was chosen for him. Peter specified two qualifications for the appointed apostle. First, he had to have accompanied the disciples from the beginning of Jesus' ministry, His baptism. The replacement had to be someone who had seen what the apostles had seen and heard what they had heard, an eyewitness to the miracles and teachings of Jesus. Second, he had to be an eyewitness of Jesus' resurrection.

1:24–26 cast their lots: It was customary for the Jews to determine the will of God on certain questions by this method. The names of Matthias and Justus, probably written on stones, were put in a jar that was shaken until one of the names fell out. The name that fell out of the vessel would be the one that God had chosen to take the place of Judas. The fall of the lot was determined not by chance but by God's sovereignty.

2:1 Pentecost was one of the three major Jewish festivals; the other two are the Passover and the Feast of Tabernacles. From the Greek word for “fifty,” Pentecost was so named because it fell on the fiftieth day after the Sabbath of the Passover. Pentecost was also known as “the Feast of Weeks,” “the Firstfruits of the Wheat Harvest,” and “the Day of Firstfruits.” During this harvest celebration, the Jews brought to God the firstfruits of their harvest in thanksgiving, expecting that God would give the rest of the harvest as His blessing. This particular Day of Pentecost was the day of firstfruits of Christ's church, the beginning of the great harvest of souls who would come to know Christ and be joined together through the work of the Holy Spirit. they were all . . . in one place: The place may have been part of the temple. It is difficult to imagine how the large crowd mentioned in v. 5 could have observed the activities in the upper room or congregated in the narrow streets outside the house where the disciples were meeting.

Countries of People Mentioned at Pentecost

2:2 A sound like a rushing mighty wind was needed to attract the multitudes to the small gathering of apostles who were sitting, the normal position for listening to someone speak, rather than standing for prayer.

2:3 there appeared to them divided tongues, as of fire: After the great crowd-gathering sound of v. 2 came the visual manifestation of God. Fire often indicated the presence of God. God initially appeared to Moses in a burning bush that was not consumed (see Ex. 3). God guided the children of Israel with a pillar of fire by night (see Ex. 13:21, Ex. 3). God guided the children of Israel with a pillar of fire by night (see 22), and He descended before them in fire on Mt. Sinai (see Ex. 19:18). God sent fire to consume Elijah's offering on Mt. Carmel (see 1 Kin. 18:38, 39), and He used a vision of fire to warn Ezekiel of His coming judgment (see Ezek. 1:26, 27).

2:4 The word translated tongues here is the normal Greek word for known languages. Speaking in "tongues" or diverse languages underscored the universal outreach of the church. These witnesses were speaking foreign dialects to the people who had gathered for Pentecost from other nations. The Day of Pentecost, as one of the three major Jewish celebrations, was a pilgrimage event. People who lived outside Israel traveled to Jerusalem to celebrate the festival. They came from Arabia, Crete, Asia, and even as far away as Rome. Many of these people stayed in Jerusalem for the entire 50-day celebration. Spirit gave them utterance: Note that the text does not say that the Spirit spoke through the apostles, but that the Spirit gave them the ability to speak in languages that they had not previously known.

2:5–11 men, from every nation under heaven: People from all over the known world were in Jerusalem. Most of them probably knew Greek, but they also spoke the various languages of the Mediterranean world. everyone heard them speak in his own language: The visitors to Jerusalem probably expected the apostles to use Aramaic or Greek, but instead they heard their own dialect. The visitors were astonished because they knew this was most unlikely unless the speakers had come from their land. This was a sign from heaven, a supernatural event. the wonderful works of God: It appears that the “speaking in tongues” did not consist of proclaiming the gospel. Rather, the apostles were praising God’s mighty works (see 10:46; 1 Cor. 14:16).

2:12, 13 A contrast is made between two groups of people, the Hellenists and the Hebraists (6:1). Both groups heard the apostles speaking in tongues. Verse 12 speaks of the reaction of the Hellenists, who were from various parts of the world: they understood the dialects in which the apostles spoke and consequently viewed the event as miraculous. On the other hand, those mentioned in v. 13 were Judeans and did not understand the foreign languages the apostles were speaking. They concluded the apostles were drunk and speaking gibberish.

2:14 Peter, the first disciple to recognize the truth about Jesus (see Matt. 16:13–19), was also the first to bear witness of Him. Peter preached his sermon to men of Judea who had judged the whole episode as being the effect of too much wine (vv. 13, 15).

2:16–21 Peter began his sermon by quoting Joel 2:28–32 from the Greek translation of the OT. In that passage, God had promised that there would be a time when all those who followed Him would receive His Spirit, and not just prophets, kings, and priests. Peter pointed out that that time had come to pass. God would speak to and through all those who would come to Him, whether in visions, dreams, or prophecy. This was the beginning of the last days. God’s final act of salvation began with the pouring out of His Spirit. This final act of deliverance will continue to the end of this age.

2:23 being delivered by the determined purpose: Jesus Christ was God’s provision for the judgment of sin; yet it was our sinfulness that made His death necessary. In other words, it was both the sinfulness of humanity and God’s plan to save humanity that put Jesus to death on the Cross (see Is. 53:10). God exercises sovereign control over all events—even the death of His Son. Yet at the same time, people are still responsible for their own sinful actions.

Word Studies

foreknowledge

(Gk. prognōsis) (2:23; 1 Pet. 1:2) Strong's #4268

The Greek term indicates “knowledge beforehand,” either of things that are seen or things that are intended or arranged. These meanings are illustrated in Acts 26:5; Rom. 11:2; 1 Pet. 1:2, 20; 2 Pet. 3:17. In the present context, the word denotes God’s knowledge of His Son’s death on the Cross long before the event occurred. This is clearly affirmed by Peter (see 1 Pet. 1:20) and is the implication of Rev. 13:8. Jesus’ death for our redemption was not an afterthought; it was part of God’s eternal plan.

Go to the List of Word Studies

2:25–36 Joel prophesied that the Spirit would come; Jesus fulfilled that promise when He sent the Spirit (see John 14:16). If Jesus was dead, He could not have sent the Spirit. Therefore, He must be alive. Furthermore, Jesus could not have sent the Spirit unless He had ascended as Lord to heaven. Therefore, Jesus is both our Master and our Savior. let me speak freely: Peter knew (v. 29) that no one could dispute the point he was about to make from Ps. 16:8–11, in which the Messiah is described as not decaying. Because David had been buried and had not come back to life, the psalm had to be speaking about someone else, David’s heir. Peter pointed out that this heir is Jesus, who was put to death and resurrected. Not only had Jesus been raised from the dead, He is now at the right hand of God. As further proof of this Peter quoted David again. According to Ps. 110:1, the Messiah would sit at the right hand of God. David had not ascended to the heavens. But the apostles declared themselves to be witnesses of the very ascension spoken of in this psalm, the ascension of Jesus. Based on these points, Peter’s conclusion is clear: Jesus, the One who had been crucified, is both Lord and Christ.

2:37 Peter’s argument was irrefutable. Cut to the heart, the Judeans asked what they should do. This was the point of new birth. The Spirit of God brought conviction to their hearts, the springboard of action.

2:38 Repent: Repentance for the Judeans involved rejecting their former attitudes and opinions concerning who Jesus was. be baptized: When a person recognizes who Jesus Christ really is, the result is the desire to do what He commands. The first action that Jesus requires of a new believer is baptism (see Matt. 28:19, 20), the outward expression of inward faith. The idea of an unbaptized Christian is foreign to the NT (v. 41; 8:12, 36; 9:18; 10:48; 16:15, 33; 18:8). for the remission of sins: Is Peter saying that we must be baptized to receive forgiveness of our sins? Scripture clearly teaches that we are justified by faith alone, not by works (see Rom. 4:1–8; Eph. 2:8, 9). The critical word in this phrase is the word for, which may also be translated “with a view to.” A comparison of Peter’s message in 10:34–43 makes it clear that “remission of sins” comes to “whoever believes.” Believers are baptized in view of God’s work of forgiveness, not in order to receive that forgiveness. God’s forgiveness in Christ gives baptism its significance. Baptism is a public declaration that a person’s sins have been forgiven because of the finished work of Christ on the Cross. The gift of the Holy Spirit was the promise of Jesus in John 14:16, 17. The Holy Spirit puts us in communion with the Father and the Son. This indwelling of the Spirit is a beautiful promise of the New Covenant (see Jer. 31:33, 34), an indication not only that our sins are forgiven, but also that the Lord has placed His law within us.

2:39 Peter exhorted his listeners to repent. In other words, each person had to make the decision to turn away from his or her sinful habits and turn to God in faith (16:31, 33, 34). Then God would forgive that person's sins and declare them righteous because of Jesus' work on the Cross. to you and to your children: In first-century Israel, a father held tremendous influence in his home. When a father chose to receive Christ and be baptized, his children would follow his lead.

2:40–43 three thousand souls: The response to Peter's sermon was tremendous. Such impressive growth in the number of believers created additional needs and responsibilities. The apostles had the duty of training this large group and bringing them into fellowship with the other believers. This was a four-step process: (1) The new believers were to be trained in the apostles' doctrine. Uniformity of belief concerning the person of Jesus Christ—based on the eyewitness testimony of His followers—was essential. (2) The new believers were to be trained in the fellowship of the church. The Greek word translated fellowship means sharing in the lives of other believers. (3) The new believers were to be trained in the breaking of bread, probably a reference to the Lord's Supper (see 1 Cor. 11:23, 24). Some believe this is a broader reference to the "love feast," a meal of fellowship in the early church. (4) The new believers were to be trained in the discipline of prayer. Corporate prayers were viewed as an essential part of the spiritual growth of the church. Wonders and signs apparently were given by the Lord to the apostles to validate their divinely ordained position and to verify the truthfulness of their witness in the establishment of the early church (see Heb. 2:3, 4).

(Gk. proskartereō, proskarterēsis) (2:42, 46; Rom. 12:12; 13:6) Strong's #4342; 4343

The NT makes it clear that faith alone can save. But it makes it equally clear that perseverance in doing good works is the greatest indication that an individual's faith is genuine (James 2:14–26). Indeed, perseverance springs from a faithful trust that God has been steadfast toward His people. Through persevering in God's work, Christians prove their deep appreciation for God's saving grace (1 Cor. 15:57, 58). As a result of perseverance, the Christian can expect not only to enhance the strength of the church, but also to build up strength of character (Rom. 5:3, 4). In short, Christians can expect to become closer to God. They learn that they can persevere primarily because God is intimately related to them (Rom. 8:25–27) and especially because they have the assurance of a final reward in heaven (1 John 5:13).

2:44, 45 The disposal and distribution of possessions in the early church was directed among all, as anyone had need. When a physical or spiritual need became known in the church, action was taken to address it (see 1 John 3:17). The NT believers demonstrated their love for one another by giving self-sacrificially.

Missionary Efforts

Christ had established His church at the crossroads of the ancient world. Trade routes brought merchants and ambassadors through Palestine where they came into contact with the gospel. Thus in the Book of Acts we see the conversion of officials from Rome (10:1–48), Ethiopia (8:26–40), and other lands.

Soon after Stephen's death, the church began a systematic effort to carry the gospel to other nations. Peter visited the major cities of Palestine, preaching to both Jews and Gentiles. Others went to Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch of Syria. Hearing that the gospel was well received in these areas, the church in Jerusalem sent Barnabas to encourage the new Christians in Antioch (11:22, 23). Barnabas then went to Tarsus to find the young convert named Saul. Barnabas took Saul back to Antioch, where they taught in the church for over a year (11:26).

A prophet named Agabus predicted that the Roman Empire would suffer a great famine under Emperor Claudius. Herod Agrippa was persecuting the church in Jerusalem; he had already executed James the brother of Jesus, and had thrown Peter into prison (12:1–4). So the Christians in Antioch collected money to send to their friends in Jerusalem, and they dispatched Barnabas and Saul with the relief. Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem with a young man named John Mark (12:25).

By this time, several evangelists had emerged within the church at Antioch so the congregation sent Barnabas and Saul on a missionary trip to Asia Minor (chs. 13–14). This was the first of three great missionary journeys that Saul (later known as Paul) made to carry the gospel to the far reaches of the Roman Empire.

The early Christian missionaries focused their teachings upon the Person and work of Jesus Christ. They declared that He was the sinless Servant and Son of God who had given His life to atone for the sins of all people who put their trust in Him (Rom. 5:8–10). He was the One whom God raised from the dead to defeat the powers of sin (Rom. 4:24, 25; 1 Cor. 15:17).

3:1 went up . . . to the temple: The disciples of Jesus continued to follow Jewish tradition. A prayer service accompanied each of the two daily sacrifices, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon. The ninth hour would have been 3 P.M.

3:2 The lame man was laid near the gate called Beautiful. This gate opened into the Court of the Women from the outer Court of the Gentiles. It served, in a sense, as the front door to the temple proper. The Beautiful Gate would have been an ideal place for the man to position himself for begging. Those who ignored the man's pleas may have found it difficult to worship due to the guilt they felt for refusing to help such a powerless person. Moreover, as people left the temple they would be more apt to give to someone who was waiting there for help.

3:6 The apostles indicated immediately that they did not represent themselves in what they were about to do. They represented Jesus Christ. Because of His name—who He is—the beggar would receive the miracle of God. The phrase “in the name of Jesus” is not a magical formula used to give some affirmation or guarantee to a prayer. A person's name represented that person's authority and influence. The power in the name of Jesus comes from what the Holy Spirit will do because of that name. Note that Peter and John did not lay their hands on the beggar and pray for God to heal him. Rather as apostles with the power of God to perform signs and wonders, they simply told him to rise up and walk.

- 3:7 his feet and ankle bones received strength: Luke, a physician by profession, described what took place. Instantly strength was given to the portions of the body that needed it. Blood supply was increased to the muscle. The brain sent signals to the nerve endings of the ankles and feet. The hardened fluid between the joints was softened, and the atrophied muscles and ligaments regained flexibility. The feet suddenly could bear the man's weight.
- 3:10 The people had seen the beggar day after day, maybe year after year. His healing was not a staged event. When the beggar stood and walked, the only reasonable explanation was that God had healed him.
- 3:11, 12 the people ran together to them: People were following after them, but the apostles immediately gave all the glory to Jesus.
- 3:13–16 glorified His Servant Jesus: Peter's reference to "His Servant" comes from Is. 52:13, a messianic psalm. Jesus can be considered the Servant of God because He gave His life as a guilt offering for the sins of all humanity. The Father raised Jesus from the dead as confirmation that His sacrifice was accepted. Peter pointed to the healing of the beggar as a sign of the glorification of Christ. The people had handed Jesus over to Pilate to be crucified. Yet God had raised the crucified Jesus from the dead. It was in the name of this very same Jesus that the crippled man was healed.
- 3:17, 18 you did . . . God foretold: Throughout Peter's sermon in ch. 2, he balances the human responsibility of the Jews and Romans with the eternal plan of God.
- 3:19 The word translated refreshing refers to restoration of strength and nourishment. Strength is restored when hope is restored. Peter challenged the people to repent and be converted, to change their thinking about Jesus as their Messiah and to serve Him.
- 4:1–4 The Sadducees were greatly disturbed for two reasons. First, the Sadducees were skeptics who rejected all the OT except the books of Moses, and who denied the resurrection from the dead. Peter's teaching about the resurrection challenged their beliefs and teaching. Second, the Sadducees were leaders of the Jews at that time. They came from wealthy families and consorted with the Roman government in order to maintain their position, influence, and wealth. The last thing the Sadducees wanted was for a couple of Jewish men to declare the resurrection of a king. laid hands on them . . . believed: The attempt to silence God's truth by arresting His messengers did not hinder His work. Though God's servants are chained, His word is never chained (see 2 Tim. 2:9). The result of the Sadducees' taking two men into custody was that five thousand people believed the gospel message.
- 4:6 were gathered together: The Sanhedrin, which consisted of 70 men plus the high priest, was the highest Jewish court. The group consisted of the wealthiest, most educated, and most powerful Jewish men in Israel. Annas the high priest: Annas had been removed as high priest in A.D. 14 by the Romans. At the time of Christ, the high priests were appointed by the Roman governors. Apparently Annas had become a political threat to Rome. The Jewish people refused to acknowledge Roman authority over such matters; so even though Annas was officially removed from his office, the Jewish people still considered him high priest. Caiaphas, the son-in-law of Annas, was the actual high priest. John was most likely the son of Annas who succeeded Caiaphas in A.D. 37.
- 4:7 Because the healing of the lame man was indisputable (3:1–10), the question was how the man was healed and by whose authority or name the healing had been performed.
- 4:8–10 Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit: This is the second description in the Book of Acts of someone being filled with the Holy Spirit (see v. 31; 2:4; 9:17; 13:9). The initial filling accompanied the baptism in the Spirit. This filling brought boldness for God's work. Jesus had promised His disciples that they would stand before kings and rulers and that the Spirit of God within them would implant in their minds exactly what to say to these leaders (see Matt. 10:16–20).

filled with the Holy Spirit

(Gk. plēthō pneumatōs hagiou) (2:4; 4:8, 31; 9:17; 13:9; Luke 1:15, 41, 67)
Strong's #4130; 4151; 40

The Greek word plēthō is used for describing the filling of anything from a sponge to a boat (Matt. 27:48; Luke 5:7). Luke uses this common term to describe how the Holy Spirit influences a person. He uses the expression filled with the Holy Spirit eight times in his writings. In every case, the filling of the Holy Spirit enables the person so endowed to speak or preach for God. Thus, the filling of the Spirit is directly related to the prophetic ministry, the revelation or explanation of God's Word.

4:11 the chief cornerstone: The OT refers to the cornerstone as the foundation of the earth (Job 38:6), the foundation (Is. 28:16), the stone for the corner (Jer. 51:26), the head cornerstone (Ps. 118:22), or the headstone (Zech. 4:7). Thus the image of a cornerstone is used as both the chief stone and the stone at the corner of a foundation. In the first century A.D., the expression chief cornerstone was also used to refer to the stone placed on the summit of the Jerusalem temple. Thus Peter used the phrase to point out that when the people rejected Jesus Christ, they rejected the One who completed the plan of God for humankind. The phrase and its significance here would have been well understood in the first century, especially among the Jewish rabbis and people who knew the Scriptures.

4:12 no other name: Only by placing faith in the historical Jesus—the One who came, died, and was raised again—can a person be saved.

4:13 Even though Peter and John were uneducated Galilean fishermen, they spoke with confidence and freedom. Their presentation of the gospel was powerful because they were personal witnesses of everything they spoke about (1:22).

4:14–18 they could say nothing: The Sanhedrin knew that the miracle was real. The apostles offered their explanation: The miracles were the work of the resurrected Christ. But instead of believing, the members of the Sanhedrin concerned themselves with “damage control.” They tried to intimidate the apostles by warning them not to speak or teach in the name of Jesus.

4:19 listen to you more than to God: There is no authority apart from God. When human authority rejects God's authority, it becomes twisted and loses its right to demand compliance (5:29). From the beginning, God's people have resisted any command that was against God's will (for example, the Jewish midwives of Ex. 1; Moses' parents in Heb. 11:23; Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-Nego in Dan. 3).

4:23–31 The response of Peter and John's companions after the apostles' release was a spontaneous outburst of praise, song, and prayer.

4:32–37 Luke notes that for the early Christians, being filled with the Holy Spirit meant not only proclaiming the Word of God, but also sharing their possessions with those in need.

5:1, 2 Ananias and Sapphira wanted to have a reputation like that of Barnabas (4:36, 37), but they did not have the same character he had. At a time when others were seeking to serve their fellow believers, Ananias and Sapphira were seeking to serve themselves.

5:3 why has Satan filled your heart: Ananias and Sapphira believed in the Lord Jesus Christ; however, they had succumbed to the temptations of greed and pride. Note that the same word filled is used here in connection with Satan as is used in 4:8 of the Holy Spirit. The term means to take possession of or control. God's children, who have been freed from the tyranny of Satan, have the ability to choose whom they will allow to control them. When we choose to sin, we open the door to Satan. The Evil One tempted Ananias and Sapphira with wicked desires and thoughts, and they yielded their will to these temptations. lie to the Holy Spirit: The author of all lies is Satan (see John 8:44). When Ananias and Sapphira deliberately lied, they took upon themselves the moral character of the one who is behind all lies, the devil himself.

5:4 You have not lied to men but to God: The Holy Spirit is the third person of the triune Godhead. To lie to Him (v. 3) is to lie to God. in your own control: Ananias and Sapphira could have kept a part of their proceeds or they could have kept it all; their stewardship was between them and the Lord. But the problem was that they wanted others to believe they had sacrificed everything when in fact they had given only a portion to the Lord.

5:5 fell down and breathed his last: The severity of the punishment may seem extreme to some people, much like the story of Achan in Josh. 7:16–26. However, Prov. 6:16–19 tells us how God feels about deception and division. The early church was vulnerable to great spiritual danger. Yet Jesus had promised (Matt. 16:18) that the power of hell would not destroy this fledgling church in its infant stage. God would move with great discipline to ensure its purity and survival.

5:8 Peter gave Ananias's wife an opportunity to tell the truth. Sapphira would not be disciplined for the sin of her husband. Even though Ananias and Sapphira were married, they were also brother and sister in Jesus Christ. Sapphira was responsible for her own personal relationship with God. When Sapphira committed the same sin of rebellion and deception that her husband had committed, she received her own punishment.

5:12 Signs refers to supernatural occurrences that point to a warning, instruction, or encouragement from God. A sign gave credibility to the fact that what was being said was from God. Wonders points to the response to a sign. By its very nature a wonder caused awe in those who saw or heard it. Signs and wonders were given by God to confirm His word (see Matt. 12:38, 39).

5:15 In the ancient world many people believed that a person's shadow could possess magical healing powers. The people referred to in this verse were not necessarily Christians, but those who believed that Peter, as an advocate of a new religion, had magical powers. The people imposed their superstitions upon this new faith.

5:16 they were all healed: God, working miracles through the apostles, never failed to bring complete physical restoration.

5:18 The imprisonment of the apostles apparently was a common event in the early church.

5:19 an angel of the Lord: The word for angel basically means "messenger." The phrase "angel of the Lord" is commonly used in the OT to refer to spiritual messengers of God. Sometimes these messengers were human beings and other times they were angelic beings. In some places the phrase may even refer to the preincarnate Christ. Considering the events of this particular passage, it is clear that a supernatural visitor is in view.

5:20 Note that the angel's orders were not to escape from the city, but to return to the temple courts, where the disciples had been first arrested, and speak to the people. The fact that the disciples would return to the place of their arrest was an open testimony to the Jewish leaders and the general public that these men were willing to die for the truth they were proclaiming.

5:29 We ought to obey God: As to the accusation of disobedience to authority, Peter put the charge in context. Jesus had said, "You shall be witnesses to Me" (1:8). The council said, "You shall not be His witnesses" (see v. 28). All authority comes from God. When any authority commands what God has forbidden, or forbids what God has commanded, a Christian must obey the Author of all authority, God Himself. We submit to governmental authority because the One who instituted the authority is God Himself. When we submit to government, we are submitting to God.

5:30 Tree here refers to the Cross (see Deut. 21:22, 23; 1 Pet. 2:24).

5:31 The declaration that God has exalted Him to His right hand would have been understood by the Sanhedrin as a reference to the Resurrection. The apostles' claim regarded the resurrected Jesus as equal with God (see John 5:18; 10:33).

5:34 Gamaliel was a highly respected Pharisee, the grandson of the famous Rabbi Hillel, a brilliant spiritual leader. Gamaliel was the teacher of Saul, who would later become the apostle Paul (22:3). Gamaliel was given the honored title of “Rabban,” meaning “Our Teacher.” It is said in the Mishna—the commentary on the Torah, the first five books of the OT—that when Gamaliel died, “the glory of the Torah ceased, and purity and sanctity died out also.” This is an impressive eulogy for a Jewish teacher.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Gamaliel

Gamaliel is only mentioned twice in the NT (5:34; 22:3), but he exerted a profound influence on the course of Christianity. In the first instance, the Sanhedrin met to deal with the Christians, who insisted that the Sanhedrin was responsible for the Messiah's death. In this emotionally heated session, Gamaliel rose and gave a surprisingly insightful speech that obviously swayed the Sanhedrin (5:38, 39). Rather than the flogging they anticipated, Peter and the apostles were given a severe warning and were released. The second reference was made by Paul, Gamaliel's former pupil. Paul was appealing to a Jewish mob, and he was not hesitant to link himself to this great teacher. Gamaliel's further influence on Paul can only be surmised. Paul's clear and logical manner of explaining the great doctrines of the Christian faith was no doubt the result, at least in part, of his schooling “at the feet of Gamaliel.”

5:36, 37 A certain Theudas is mentioned by the Jewish historian Josephus, who places Theudas's revolt against Rome around A.D. 44. According to Gamaliel, the revolution by Theudas took place before Judas of Galilee, who began the Zealot movement around A.D. 6. The Romans quickly punished Theudas and his followers, forcing the movement underground. Some scholars believe Luke erred in placing Theudas before Judas of Galilee. However, it is more likely that Gamaliel and Josephus spoke of two different men. Theudas was a very common name. There were a number of insurrections and revolution attempts recorded: Josephus himself refers to ten thousand of them. Most likely, the revolution of Theudas that Gamaliel referred to took place before A.D. 6 and was led by a different Theudas than the person Josephus mentions in his history.

5:40 they agreed with him: God first delivered the disciples from jail by supernatural means, sending an angel from heaven (vv. 19, 20). Then God delivered them through natural means, causing an enemy of Christianity to argue for their release. This passage is proof of the work of God's sovereign hand in history. He can even use the thoughts of those who oppose the gospel to preserve and protect His servants.

5:41 This verse provides the first instance of physical persecution against the followers of Jesus Christ—in this case against the leaders of the Christian movement. The apostles’ response would set a precedent for other Christians who would be persecuted. Instead of complaining or feeling sorry for themselves, they rejoiced that they were counted worthy by God to endure the abuse. The apostles knew that more important things than preserving their health and life were at stake. God was using the suffering of the disciples to bring people into His kingdom (see Matt. 5:10–12; Phil. 1:29; 2 Tim. 2:12).

6:1 The Hellenists were those of Jewish descent who grew up outside the land of Israel. They spoke Greek, were raised in Hellenistic culture, and used the Greek translation of the Hebrew OT, the Septuagint (2:5). The Hebrews were Palestinian Jews who spoke Aramaic and used the Hebrew OT. There may have been an animosity between the groups, even among the new believers, which gave rise to distrust and tension over the care of the widows who were neglected. In Jewish law, a woman did not receive an inheritance. She was dependent on her husband or another relative.

6:2 should leave the word of God: The issue here was not blame, but rather what could be done to remedy the apparent injustice. The apostles knew that the problem of supporting the needy required attention. Though the apostles were sensitive enough to recognize the problem, they were also careful to recognize the priorities that are placed on church leaders by God. They could not leave what God had called them to do—declaring and teaching the word of God and establishing the church in prayer. serve tables: In NT times, business was transacted over tables. The work of administering and distributing care to those in need would have been carried on over tables and thus was a ministry of service rather than a ministry of speaking. The words serve here and ministry in v. 4 translate Greek words that are related to the English word deacon.

6:3 seek out: The leaders of the church included the congregation in the search process. The local council in Jewish communities usually consisted of seven men known as the “seven of the town.” The men who would be chosen would be known among the people for their good reputation because they were full of the Holy Spirit and wisdom. The men’s lives were consistent with their confession of faith. They knew the will of God and understood how to carry it out in their lives (see Eph. 5:15–18). They could be trusted with responsibility and authority.

6:4 prayer and . . . word: Note the order here. Prayer was primary for the apostles (2:42).

6:5 they chose Stephen . . . Nicolas: All these names are Greek. The selection of Hellenists no doubt was a wise and gracious gesture to the people who had initially raised the complaint concerning the widows (v. 1).

6:6 The laying on of hands was not for these men to receive the Holy Spirit, because the seven men were already “full of the Holy Spirit” (vv. 3, 5). Instead the apostles were conferring on these men the responsibility of carrying out the ministry. The laying on of hands was a meaningful tradition that dated back to the days of Moses (see Num. 27:15–23), and it identified people with the ministries to be performed.

6:7 the word of God spread: What Jesus Christ had done in the lives of these people was spreading throughout the region. Men and women became disciples who lived in submission to Christ’s lordship. They were not ashamed of their faith, but with great boldness they went out to bear witness to the truth of the gospel that had changed their lives. This is what Jesus promised would happen. a great many of the priests: It is estimated that in Jerusalem there were some eight thousand priests. Luke is not referring here to those who attacked the faith (4:1, 2; 5:17, 18). Most priests were not from the high priestly families. They had ordinary vocations that permitted them to serve their turn in the temple periodically—much like Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist. These were humble, devoted men of God who became obedient to the faith, recognizing Jesus as the Christ. Their service in the temple was enhanced because they understood the truth behind the rituals they performed.

6:8 Stephen was full of wisdom (v. 3), full of the Holy Spirit (v. 5), and full of faith and power. He had the gifts, the boldness, and the brilliance to be a powerful witness; yet even his witness would be rejected by the religious leaders. Hearts are opened only by God, not by our gifts, boldness, or brilliance.

Stephen the Martyr

In the Book of Acts, the infant church faced opposition from Jew and Gentile alike. But with every successive wave of persecution, the church grew more and more. In hardships and trials, Christians depended increasingly on the Lord for strength and guidance. In so doing, they demonstrated their faith to others.

Stephen, one of the seven men chosen to minister to the needs of the neglected in the early church, became the first martyr of the Christian faith, but he certainly was not the last. Although falsely accused of blaspheming Moses and God, his unfair treatment and violent death would serve as an example to persecuted believers throughout the centuries who would face similar trials for upholding the name of Christ.

The Book of Acts tells us that right after the stoning of Stephen, a zealous young Pharisee named Saul continued the persecution of the new faith by hunting its members down and imprisoning them to face similar charges and similar fates. Although Saul was trying to stop the spread of the Christian faith, other eventual persecutors such as the Roman Emperor Nero (A.D. 37–68) cared little about the blaspheming of a Jewish deity. Nero was merely looking for scapegoats to take the blame for the great fire that destroyed most of Rome in A.D. 64.

Later Christian martyrs would face death at the hands of their so-called fellow believers. William Tyndale (1494–1536) was burned at the stake for heresy because he dared to translate the Bible into the English language, thus making it more accessible to the common person. Others have traveled into remote areas fully aware of the dangers of retribution from pagans. In 1956, five American missionaries were murdered in the jungles of Ecuador by headhunters called the Aucas. This same tribe was eventually converted to Christianity through the persistence of missionaries, who emulated the perseverance of the martyred missionaries who had gone before them.

Since Stephen's death, countless Christians have died for their witness to the truth of the gospel. They set their eyes on Jesus instead of on this world. They did not value the approval of people over the approval of their Savior. Therefore, they refused to disown Jesus. For their courage to stand up for the truth, Jesus promises to acknowledge them before His Father in heaven (see Matt. 10:32, 33).

6:9 the Synagogue of the Freedmen: A synagogue was a local place of worship, a community center for worship and studying the Scriptures. In contrast, the temple was the one worship center for all Judaism, the focus of Jewish rituals such as sacrifice. There were many synagogues both in Judea and throughout the Roman world. The one referred to in this verse was for Hellenistic Jews from outside Jerusalem.

6:12 Resistance to the gospel had gone from discussion to debate, from debate to slander, and from slander to violence. The antagonist stirred up the people by convincing them that the essence of the Jewish faith—the things held as most sacred: the temple, the Law, Moses, and even God—was under attack by Stephen. The issue was not the work of Christ on the Cross but the core of traditional Jewish religion.

7:1 The high priest presumably was Caiaphas, the man who had presided over the Sanhedrin's trial of Jesus.

7:2 The God of glory appeared: God intervened in history again and again to speak to His people. When God first spoke to Abraham, it was not in the temple of Jerusalem; it was not even in Palestine.

7:4 The text does not explain why Abraham settled in Haran when the Promised Land was Canaan. All we know is that Abraham chose to wait for his father to die before he journeyed to the Promised Land (see Gen. 12:1).

7:5 gave him no inheritance in it: God moved Abraham along his spiritual pilgrimage from blessing to blessing. Possession was not the goal, apparently, since God would not let Abraham settle down—to stagnate in God's past blessing.

7:6, 7 Before Abraham's descendants would be allowed to enjoy the land as their home, they would be tested in a furnace of affliction in a foreign land.

7:8 The covenant of circumcision was the symbol given to Abraham that he might never forget that God had promised to bless him. The sign of this promise was transmitted from generation to generation, from Gen. 17 to the time of Stephen's confrontation with the Sanhedrin. Abraham was saved by faith (Gen. 15:6; Rom. 4:3), and the symbol of circumcision was an outward sign demonstrating the genuineness of his faith. Similarly, God would bless Stephen's audience not because of their circumcision, but because of their faith.

7:9 The patriarchs refers to Jacob, the grandson of Abraham, and his 12 sons. Jacob's name, meaning "Usurper," was changed by God to Israel, meaning something like "God's Defender." His 12 sons were the founders of the 12 tribes of Israel.

7:11 The famine proved to be the providential means of bringing Joseph's brethren to Egypt in search of grain—and more importantly, of reconciling them with Joseph.

7:14 Stephen stated that seventy-five people in all went to Egypt. Genesis 46:26 indicates that 66 people accompanied Jacob to Egypt, not including Jacob, Joseph, and the 2 sons of Joseph. Stephen derived the number 75 from the Septuagint translation of the OT. The translators apparently added 9 wives (Gen. 46:26 says the number 66 did not include the wives). It was only 9 and not 12 because the wives of Judah and Simeon had died and Joseph's wife was already in Egypt.

7:16 Why did Stephen make the point that the patriarchs were buried in Shechem? At the time of Stephen's defense, Shechem was the center of Samaritan life. Nearby was Mt. Gerizim, the site of another temple (see John 4:20). Stephen was charged with speaking against the temple in Jerusalem as if this were tantamount to speaking against God Himself. Stephen's point was that God had been speaking and moving in the lives of His people in and out of Jerusalem, with and without a temple. The most important address God made to His people was at Mt. Sinai, which was nowhere near Jerusalem.

7:17–19 Abraham's descendants enjoyed prosperity and great growth that proved threatening to the Egyptians and to Pharaoh, who did not know Joseph.

7:22 No person has been given the attention in Jewish tradition that Moses has. It is said that Pharaoh initially had no son; therefore, Moses was being prepared by Pharaoh's daughter to succeed to the throne. For this reason, Moses was educated in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. Later, Pharaoh had a son of his own to succeed him instead of Moses. Jewish tradition also states that Moses became a great captain among the Egyptians, leading them to victory against the Ethiopians. Thus he was mighty in words and deeds.

7:23–29 In the opinion of some Jewish rabbis, forty was the age at which a man had grown to maturity. Moses' life is divided into three parts: the first 40 years in the palace of Pharaoh, the second 40 years in the desert, and the third 40 years carrying out God's will to deliver His people. Moses began his period of wilderness training after he had tried to free the Israelites in a way that God had not chosen. We must be careful to do God's work in God's way, in God's time, and for God's reasons. It has been said that Moses spent 40 years thinking he was somebody, then spent 40 years finding out he was nobody. Finally, he spent 40 years finding out what God could do with somebody who was nobody.

7:30–34 In relating the burning bush incident, Stephen once again underscored the fact that God is free to reveal Himself wherever He pleases. Wherever God does so, that ground becomes holy ground.

7:35–40 Stephen pointed out that Moses, the very one the Jewish leaders accused him of speaking against (6:11), was rejected by the leaders' forefathers as God's appointed leader and redeemer—just as the leaders were rejecting Jesus. It was this same Moses who spoke of the coming of Jesus in Deut. 18. Stephen challenged the religious leaders of his day either to believe all of what Moses taught or none of it. our fathers would not obey: The Talmud, the Jewish commentary on the OT, calls the rebellion involving the golden calf “that unspeakable deed.” The rabbis did not want to talk about it, forbidding a translation of the account in the vernacular for the synagogue services. The Jewish religious leaders wanted to bury the incident, but Stephen wanted to dig it back up.

Jewish History

Political change can often lead to changed perspectives on history. The destruction of Jerusalem and its temple by the Romans in A.D. 70 forced the Hebrews to radically rethink the significance of Jerusalem and its institutions. Stephen and his fellow Christians had already departed from the earlier Jewish view that the world revolved around Israel, which in turn revolved around the temple and the Law. They still saw Jerusalem as more than just a city, but they made it into a new symbol of a higher ideal. Stephen's view of history brought the conflict between the new movement and the city fathers to a boil. Outraged, the council stoned Stephen to death and allowed Saul to start persecuting believers. Stephen's perspective on Jerusalem challenges us as modern Christians to reflect on our loyalty to beloved institutions. Our highest allegiance must be to Christ.

- 7:44 The ancient tabernacle had been the focus of the Israelites' national worship. Even after the miraculous deliverance from Egypt there was a tendency among the people to forget God's presence with them. The tabernacle was a constant testimony of God's presence no matter where the people went. Paul tells us that we are the tabernacle, the temple of God (see 1 Cor. 3:16). We can never move out of the presence of God, for we carry His presence with us (see Ps. 139).
- 7:46–48 It was David's desire to give God a permanent dwelling. The danger of David's request was that some might identify the presence of God with one place, as if God were confined to that location. God honored David's desire by permitting his son Solomon to build such a house and by filling it with the Shekinah glory, a demonstration of His presence. But God did not live in the temple. The Creator cannot be confined by anything He has made. His presence fills all that He has made. Solomon understood this when he dedicated the temple (see 1 Kin. 8:27–30). In his speech, Stephen emphasized that God could not be confined to temples made with hands.
- 7:52 Which of the prophets: Stephen put the council on the spot. The members of the council wanted to appear open to God's truth, but they and their ancestors rarely wanted to hear God's truth through His messengers. Jesus made essentially the same charges in Matt. 23:34–36. Stephen did not shrink from accusing the Sanhedrin of handing Jesus over to death, thus becoming His murderers. He used even stronger language than Peter had (3:13–15).
- 7:55 Stephen at that moment was full of the Holy Spirit, which was evidenced by the fact that all he wanted to do was please God. He was consumed only with doing God's will by responding to this terrifying moment in the way that would glorify Him. Stephen completely trusted the Holy Spirit to empower him to respond in the proper way.
- 7:56 I see . . . the Son of Man: Gazing at death may be terrifying, but gazing past death to the presence of Jesus waiting for the believer is the hope that dissolves the fear. We have the opportunity to glorify God in the face of death, boldly declaring our confidence in the fact that we will spend eternity in the presence of God. Stephen's use of the title Son of Man is similar to the Lord's appellation of Himself in Matt. 16:13 and the apocalyptic statements about the Messiah in Dan. 7:13.
- 7:59, 60 Because Jewish law did not allow an execution within the walls of the Holy City, the religious leaders took Stephen outside the city walls. Jewish custom was that the first witness would push the condemned person face forward into a pit some 12 feet deep. If the man survived the fall, the body would be turned over and large boulders would be thrown down on his chest to crush his ribs. If he remained alive, stones would be thrown by the whole congregation. The situation may have been a little different with Stephen, perhaps due to the executioners' haste; the text indicates that Stephen knelt (v. 60). Lord Jesus, receive my spirit: Stephen's work was done. He was immediately ushered into the presence of Jesus (see Luke 23:43; 2 Cor. 5:8; Phil. 1:21–23). Lord, do not charge them: As Jesus had done, Stephen requested mercy for his killers.
- 8:1 The church father Augustine wrote that the church owes Paul to the prayer of Stephen. Saul, who later became the apostle Paul, never forgot the way Stephen died—he also did not conceal that he was in full agreement with the killing (22:20). God promises in Rom. 8:28 that all things work together for good. Even though Paul was struggling against the work of the early church and the church was experiencing its worst persecution up to that time, it was this struggle that would eventually lead Paul, the man who wrote at least half of the NT, to eternal life. they were all scattered: This phrase speaks of scattering seeds on the ground so that something will grow. The members of the church in Jerusalem may not have understood what was happening to them, but Jesus would not let His church become limited racially, culturally, or geographically. These early believers became missionaries as much as refugees. At this point the entire church began to pay the price of discipleship. except the apostles: The initial target of the great persecution was the Hellenistic or Greek-speaking Jewish believers, in the person of Stephen.

(Gk. diōgmos) (8:1; 2 Thess. 1:4; 2 Cor. 12:10) Strong's #1375

Persecution is the hatred and affliction that follows the witness and holy life of God's people in a hostile world. Jesus taught that God's prophets always faced persecution (Matt. 5:12); so His disciples should expect the same (Matt. 10:23). The early Christians saw the persecution of Jesus' followers as a participation in His redemptive suffering: filling up "what is lacking in the afflictions of Christ" (Col. 1:24). The idea of the coming Messiah held that the suffering of God's people was part of the coming of the kingdom—evidence that a person is truly one of God's own. Therefore they are "blessed" (Matt. 5:10) and should "rejoice" and "glorify God" since "the time has come for judgment to begin at the house of God" (1 Pet. 4:13–17).

8:3 Stephen's death supplied the spark for the persecution, and Saul supplied the leadership (v. 1). He made havoc describes a wild boar ravaging something in an attempt to destroy it (22:4, 19; 26:9–11). Saul had all the legal papers he needed to direct this persecution, and he had the authority to put people to death. Saul was arresting the Christians, men and women, and taking them to prison. After Saul was converted to Christ, the Lord appeared to Ananias, instructing him to go minister to Saul. However, because Ananias had heard about the tremendous pain and suffering Saul had afflicted upon the Jewish believers, he was afraid to go (ch. 9).

8:5 Philip went to preach the gospel to Samaria as Jesus had commissioned (1:8). In the first century, the Jews and the Samaritans hated each other. The Jews considered the Samaritans half-breeds and religious deviants. Following the fall of the northern kingdom of Israel in 722 B.C., Samaria had been resettled by colonists brought to the land by the Assyrians. These colonists intermarried with the remaining Jews, and the Samaritans were descendants of these mixed marriages. The Samaritans rejected the OT Scriptures beyond the five books of Moses. Furthermore, they built a rival temple on Mt. Gerizim. To express their disdain for the Samaritans, Jews traveling to Galilee would generally avoid Samaria by crossing over the Jordan River into Perea. But the gospel message transcended the first-century barrier between the Jews and Samaritans. The Spirit of God created a loving fellowship of believers out of the hate that existed. The formation of the Samaritan church indicates that there is no room for racism in the church (see 1 Cor. 12; Gal. 3:26–28), for Jesus died for the sins of the whole world.

8:13 Simon himself also believed: Though this man was baptized, he had a long way to go in Christian doctrine and personal growth. Some people believe Peter's words in v. 21 indicate that Simon's confession and baptism were not genuine. Church history later associates Simon with heresy and identifies him as an enemy of the Christian faith. His actions have given to the vocabulary of the church the word "simony," which means buying and selling of church offices.

8:14 the apostles . . . sent Peter and John: Jesus had given "the keys of the kingdom" (see Matt. 16:19) to Peter. He was the one God would use to open the doors to the Jews (ch. 2), the Samaritans (ch. 8), and the Gentiles (ch. 10).

- 8:15 that they might receive the Holy Spirit: Peter and John were the official messengers from Jerusalem to tell the Samaritans what had occurred at Pentecost. The Samaritans had to know that salvation came from the Jews; the Jews, in turn, had to understand that the same salvation had come to the Samaritans. Jesus said in John 17 that the world would know that Jesus came from the Father when the world saw the unity of the body of Christ. With the tremendous hatred that existed between the Jews and Samaritans, God demonstrated to both sides that they would be united together as a church. The dependence of the Samaritans upon the Jews to receive the gift of the Holy Spirit was the healing sign that the two sides were to become one.
- 8:18–25 Simon saw . . . the Holy Spirit was given: The text does not indicate what exactly Simon saw. The gift of tongues was a sign to the nation of Israel (see 1 Cor. 14:20–22), so it is likely that the same sign was present at each step of the opening of the gospel—at Jerusalem, at Samaria, and at the home of Cornelius (ch. 10). Alternatively, the word saw may simply mean that Simon perceived what was happening. Give me this power: Verse 13 indicates that Simon was a believer. However, he confused the work of God with his previous magical practices. Because others had paid him for the secrets of his magic, he may have simply thought that this was the best way to approach Peter. He soon learned the error of his ways.
- 8:26 go toward the south along the road: This road descended from Jerusalem to Gaza, southwest of Jerusalem, near the Mediterranean coast of Palestine. Gaza was the last settlement before the desert wasteland stretching to Egypt. This was the road most travelers took to Africa. God had a divine appointment for Philip to meet the Ethiopian eunuch. The gospel would take a leap from the Samaritans to the “end of the earth” (1:8)—in this case, Africa.
- 8:27 he arose and went: Compare Philip’s response with the unquestioning obedience of Abraham (see Gen. 22:3). Faith in God means being ready to move without explanation. a eunuch of great authority: Technically a eunuch is a man who has been emasculated. However, by the first century the term had become a government title used for important military or political officials. The ancient kingdom of Ethiopia was ruled by a queen mother or Candace, who ruled on behalf of her son the king. Because the king was considered the child of the sun, he was too holy to become involved in secular affairs. Therefore, his mother took over the responsibility. The eunuch in this passage was the minister of finance, a prominent position in the Ethiopian regime. He was responsible for distributing the funds of the treasury based on the desires of the queen mother. had come to Jerusalem to worship: Many Gentiles in the first century had grown weary of the multiple gods and loose morals of their nations. They were searching in Judaism for the truth. If they accepted Judaism as their faith, they would obey all the rules and regulations of the Law of Moses. This would include being circumcised and baptized. This type of convert was called a proselyte. Gentiles who did not become proselytes but did attend the Jewish synagogues to listen to the Scriptures were called God-fearers. We cannot be sure which the Ethiopian eunuch was.
- 8:28, 29 The chariot referred to in this passage was probably an ox-drawn wagon. Most likely the eunuch was part of a caravan journeying in the same direction, moving slowly down the road. As was the practice of the day, the man was reading aloud. Philip, prompted by the Spirit, spoke to the man about the prophecy of Isaiah, explaining the prophetic words about Christ.
- 8:30 Do you understand what you are reading: This question indicates the diligence that is required in the study of Scripture (see 2 Tim. 2:15). The Spirit of God does not eliminate the need for human teachers or diligent study. The Spirit is not given to make study needless but to make study effective.

(Gk. amnos) (8:32; John 1:29, 36; 1 Pet. 1:19) Strong's #286

The NT writers often identified Jesus as being “the lamb,” or “the Lamb of God.” They were drawing upon many images in the OT concerning sacrificial lambs. No doubt, the title “Lamb of God” would be associated in the minds of the Jews with the Passover lamb (see Ex. 12), the lamb led to the slaughter in Isaiah’s prophecies (Is. 53:7), and the lambs used in the daily sacrifices of sin offerings (Lev. 14:12, 21, 24; Num. 6:12). In depicting Jesus as a lamb, the Scriptures were declaring that Jesus was the substitutionary sacrifice provided by God for our sins. The announced Messiah came not to be a philosopher, nor to be a teacher of morality. He came to do what we could not do for ourselves—take away our sin.

8:35 preached Jesus to him: First-century Jews did not speak much about a suffering Messiah. The Jewish people, facing the yoke of Roman rule, believed that the Messiah would come as the Lion of Judah, a delivering King, not a weak lamb. They believed and taught that the suffering One spoken of by Isaiah was the suffering nation of Israel. Most likely this eunuch had heard the “official” teaching of this passage in Jerusalem but still had some questions. Philip showed him that suffering One was Jesus. He had to suffer on the Cross for the sins of all of humanity.

8:36 What hinders me from being baptized: Having heard the message of Christ’s sacrifice for sin, the eunuch responded to the conviction of the Holy Spirit. Irenaeus, an early church father who lived between A.D. 130 and 202, wrote that the eunuch returned to Ethiopia and became a missionary to his own people.

8:39, 40 caught Philip away . . . Philip was found: The Greek word translated caught here is also used in 1 Thess. 4:17 for the catching away of the church into the air. Though this passage may say only that Philip went from the desert to Azotus, most likely the terminology indicates a miraculous transportation.

9:1 Saul was still restless in his zeal to defend his Jewish faith from the new, supposedly dangerous Jewish messianic sect (8:3). the disciples: Christians were originally referred to as “disciples” and “belonging to the Way.” Jesus Himself had used both of these titles (see Matt. 28:19; John 14:6). Disciple means a follower, an imitator, one who has a master.

9:2 The letters were documents authorizing Saul to arrest Christians in Damascus, 140 miles northeast of Jerusalem. Rome permitted the Jewish Sanhedrin to control Jewish affairs. At this time the new church was a Jewish affair. synagogues: The early Jewish believers in Jesus were still attending the synagogues. The synagogues in Damascus had to cooperate with anyone who had the authorization that Saul possessed. Saul planned to take the followers of Jesus who had escaped to Damascus back to Jerusalem to stand trial before the Sanhedrin (26:9–11), and probably to face a death sentence. The Way was a title for the followers of Jesus (see 19:9, 23; 22:4; 24:14, 22; John 14:6).

9:3–9 A light shone that was brighter than the sun and continued to shine around Saul (26:13). The light was so intense and penetrating that Saul fell to the ground, as did everyone who was with him (26:14). persecuting Me: In persecuting the church, Saul was persecuting the body of Christ whose individual members are in Christ (see 1 Cor. 12:27). The arguments of Stephen in his final speech, the spread of the gospel, and the extraordinary response of believers to the gospel were like goads to Saul, but Saul in his fury continued to resist such promptings from the Holy Spirit. hearing a voice but seeing no one: The men with Saul stood speechless, hearing the voice but not seeing the individual speaking. In ch. 22, Paul indicates that those with him saw the light but did not understand the voice, even though they heard the sound of it. when his eyes were opened he saw no one: Ironically while Saul was blind, he would see his own spiritual blindness.

Roman Damascus

The city itself was a veritable oasis, situated in a plain watered by the biblical rivers Abana and Pharpar. Roman architecture overlaid the Hellenistic town plan with a great temple to Jupiter and a mile-long colonnaded street, the “Straight Street” of Acts 9:11. The city gates and a section of the town wall may still be seen today, as well as the lengthy bazaar that runs along the line of the ancient street.

Damascus represented much more to Saul, the strict Pharisee, than any other stop on his campaign of repression. It was the hub of a vast commercial network with far-flung lines of caravan trade reaching into north Syria, Mesopotamia, Anatolia, Persia, and Arabia. If the new “Way” of Christianity flourished in Damascus, it would quickly reach all these places. From the viewpoint of the Sanhedrin and of Saul, the archpersecutor, it had to be stopped in Damascus.

The dominant political figure at the time of Paul's escape from Damascus (2 Cor. 11:32, 33) was Aretas IV, king of the Nabateans (9 B.C.–A.D. 40), though normally the Decapolis cities were attached to the province of Syria and were thus under the influence of Rome.

Go to the List of In-Text Maps

9:10 Not an apostle but a layman, a certain disciple . . . named Ananias was ready and available to be used by God. He did not know that God would send him to Saul, the man who had been vigorously persecuting the Christians.

9:11 In ancient Damascus, the street called Straight went from one end of the city to the other.

9:13 So far in Acts, Christians have been called “disciples,” “believers,” and those belonging to “the Way” (5:14; 6:1; 9:2). Here the word saints is used. It means those set apart by God for use in His service.

9:17 Jesus, who appeared to you: Saul was not dreaming on the road to Damascus but instead had seen the resurrected Lord.

9:21 The people in Damascus were amazed that Saul was preaching, because Saul had come to kill Christians, not defend their faith. Saul's fame as a persecutor of Christians was well known to the Jews in Damascus. The leaders of the synagogues were probably notified of his coming and instructed by the high priest to welcome this zealous defender of Judaism. They seem to have been unnerved at first, not only by the fact that Saul had become a Christian, but by the strength of his faith and of his argument from Scripture that Jesus was indeed the promised Savior of Israel, the Messiah.

9:22, 23 So powerful was Saul's argument from Scripture that Jesus is the Christ that the Jews plotted to kill him. They even enlisted the cooperation of the governor of Damascus under King Aretas IV of Arabia, who reigned from 9 B.C. to A.D. 40.

9:25 let him down through the wall in a large basket: If the Jewish leaders had caught the Damascus disciples helping Saul pursue his service to the Lord, the result probably would have been widespread persecution. In ancient times city walls contained all kinds of openings—windows without glass. Saul's escape here recalls the spies' escape from Jericho in Josh. 2:15 and David's escape from King Saul in 1 Sam. 19:12. Basket here refers to a wide, flexible container used to carry large quantities of things. This was the first of many attempts on Paul's life.

9:26, 27 It is no wonder that the disciples in Jerusalem were cautious about Saul, wondering whether his “conversion” was actually an attempt to infiltrate their ranks and catch them all. Barnabas, who had the gift of encouragement, saw Paul's true heart and defended him to the other apostles.

9:29 Stephen had also debated the Hellenistic Jews (6:9). In a sense, Saul picked up where Stephen left off.

9:30 Tarsus, the birthplace of Saul, was about three hundred miles north of Jerusalem and about ten miles inland from the Mediterranean Sea. Tarsus was a well-known university city, surpassed in educational opportunities only by Athens and Alexandria.

9:31 Then the churches . . . had peace: This peace was not due solely to Saul's conversion. Tiberius, the emperor of Rome, died around this time. He was replaced by Caligula, who wanted to erect a statue of himself in the temple at Jerusalem. Thus Jewish energy was directed away from persecuting Christians and toward Caligula. Here we see God's sovereign hand at work, giving the early church a short season of respite.

9:34, 35 Jesus the Christ heals you: Everyone who witnessed the healing believed. The outcome of the one physical healing was many spiritual healings. Many turned to the Lord because they saw more than a crippled man walking around; they saw proof that Jesus was alive from the dead and had authority over disease.

9:43 To be a tanner was not desirable or socially acceptable in Israel. A tanner had to deal with dead animals, contrary to Jewish ceremonial practices, not to mention the unpleasantness of the work itself and its attendant odor.

10:1, 2 The following two chapters mark an important turning point in the Book of Acts. Those who were scattered by persecution from Jerusalem had been preaching the gospel only to Jews (11:19). At this point, they began to overcome their prejudices and carry the message of Christ to the Gentiles. As a centurion, Cornelius would have been part of a cohort, a regiment of the Roman military. A legion numbered about six thousand men. Each legion had ten cohorts of about six hundred men each. The cohorts were divided into centuries of a hundred men, and each century was commanded by a centurion, something like a modern sergeant. Cornelius was a Gentile of Italian descent. He and his family were “God-fearers,” similar to the Ethiopian eunuch (8:27). Caesarea, which was about 30 miles north of Joppa on the coast, was the capital of Judea under the Roman procurators.

Word Studies

one who feared God

(Gk. phoboumenos ton theon) (10:2, 22; 13:16, 26) Strong's #5399; 2316

Simply stated, this expression means “God-fearer.” Luke identifies such a category of people throughout the Book of Acts (see 10:2, 22, 35; 13:16, 26 for the expression “fearing God,” and 13:43, 50; 16:14; 17:4, 17; 18:7 for the expression “devout” or “worshipping God”). The God-fearers were Gentiles who were interested in Judaism but were not necessarily converts or proselytes. They worshiped the same God and observed the same laws as the Jews did, but they did not become circumcised. Many of these God-fearers were the first Gentiles to become Christians. Cornelius was the prototype of such a God-fearer.

10:6 lodging with Simon, a tanner: God cut away Peter's prejudices by having him stay for many days not only with a Gentile, but with one whose trade Peter likely considered repulsive.

10:7 when the angel . . . departed, Cornelius called: Cornelius's desire was to be pleasing to God. The fact that he readily obeyed the angel is a sign of how much he desired the truth. With this kind of attitude, there is no question that Cornelius was open to receiving the truth of the gospel the moment he heard it.

10:9–16 While his host was preparing the noon meal, Peter fell into a trance during which he was commanded to kill and eat all kinds of animals, reptiles, and birds. The problem was that the animals were mixed: clean and unclean beasts were gathered together (see Lev. 11). Jewish people were taught from childhood never to touch or eat any animal that was unclean. However, here Peter was being commanded by God to do just that. Three times God corrected Peter's resistance with the words, what God has cleansed you must not call common. Food may have been his first consideration, but Peter would soon understand the greater message. The vision was a sign from heaven that Jews were no longer to call Gentiles unclean. From that point on, these two groups would be on equal footing before the Father. God was breaking down Peter's prejudices.

10:23 Peter went away with them: Though Peter chose to travel in public with three Gentiles, he was careful to take six believing Jewish brethren with him (11:12) as witnesses.

10:27 many . . . had come together: The great faith of Cornelius is demonstrated by the fact that he had a house full of people when Peter arrived.

10:34–42 God shows no partiality: The good news of the gospel is not for a certain population. In every nation every kind of person is welcome into the kingdom of God. This is precisely what Christ had told the apostles (see Matt. 28:19).

10:43 In order to receive remission of sins, one has to believe—nothing more, nothing less.

10:44–46 the Holy Spirit fell upon all those who heard: The Jewish believers present were amazed because they saw that the Gentiles had received the same gift of speaking in tongues that they had received (ch. 2). The good news had reached the Jews, the Samaritans, and now the Gentiles. All were united by the same faith in the same Lord with the same gift of the Holy Spirit.

10:47, 48 Willingness to be baptized is the consistent response in the Book of Acts of all who placed their faith in Christ. It is the appropriate response (see Matt. 28:19, 20) of a regenerated heart (2:36–38).

11:1 The Jews were not fond of the Gentiles. In some rabbinical writings, the Gentiles were considered to have been created by God to kindle the fires of hell. They were called dogs (see Matt. 15:26) and unclean (10:14).

11:2 Those of the circumcision refers to Jewish Christians who believed that Gentiles had to become Jews when they became Christians. The Jewish Christians had been circumcised as a seal of the Mosaic covenant and had kept the Jewish laws. They were not pleased that the Gentiles were considered equal to them in the eyes of God, based on nothing more than their faith in Christ. They wanted the Gentiles to be circumcised and to keep the Law of Moses in order to become Christians. contended with him: This was not a polite discussion, but an intense quarrel. The Jewish Christians were upset because Peter had broken Jewish law by going into the home of a Gentile and eating with him. The Jewish Christians justified their prejudice by claiming that it was God who had forbidden eating with Gentiles. However, the Levitical laws were not intended to teach ostracism.

11:4–10 in a trance I saw a vision: Because of the importance of the issue of personal prejudice, Luke repeats the account of the vision of the sheet and the unclean animals that God used to free Peter from his racial bigotry (10:9–16).

11:12 Peter had wisely taken six brethren with him when he visited Cornelius's home (10:23). He anticipated the argument from "those of the circumcision" (v. 2).

11:15 began to speak: Apparently Peter considered the words he spoke in Caesarea (10:34–43) to be just the introduction to the sermon he had intended to preach. as upon us: The manifestation of the Holy Spirit was the same to the Gentiles at Caesarea as it was to the Jews at Jerusalem (10:44). At the beginning is a reference to the Day of Pentecost (2:4).

11:16 baptized with the Holy Spirit: This statement is found seven times in the NT (see also 1:5; Matt. 3:11; Mark 1:8; Luke 3:16; John 1:33; 1 Cor. 12:13). The reference is to a once-for-all act whereby Christ places believers in the care and safekeeping of the Holy Spirit until the day He returns.

11:18 granted to the Gentiles repentance to life: This section begins a bold new step in the mission of the church. The Samaritans were part Jewish; the Ethiopian eunuch and Cornelius were Jewish proselytes. Finally the Jewish Christians that made up the early church understood Jesus' commission to them: they were to bring the gospel message to the Gentile too (1:8).

11:19 This persecution began when Stephen was murdered for his faith (ch. 7). God often uses tough times to accomplish His will. Jesus said, "You shall be witnesses to Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth" (1:8). God allowed persecution to be the impetus for spreading Christ's witness throughout the land. Those who face such persecution will receive "great reward" in heaven (see Matt. 5:10–12). the Jews only: At this time it was primarily the Jewish believers who were being persecuted. Consequently, the Jewish Christians were the ones who were moving out and sharing the gospel of Jesus Christ in various regions. They shared the gospel with the Jews because they still met in the local synagogues and held on to many of the Jewish customs.

11:22, 23 Seleucus I founded the city of Antioch, naming it after his father. The city was cosmopolitan, attracting people of various cultures and ethnic backgrounds—including people from Persia, India, and even China. The gospel proclaimed in Antioch would have had tremendous potential for reaching other areas of the world. Moreover, because the city was culturally diverse, it was not controlled by one religious group, making the people there more open to hearing the truth of the gospel message. Barnabas, nicknamed "Son of Encouragement" by the apostles (4:36), was sent to discern what God was doing in the lives of the new converts. When Barnabas saw the grace of God in these converts, he was true to his name and encouraged them in their new faith. Purpose of heart describes a resolve of the will to make up one's mind about one thing. The resolve here was to remain with the Lord.

11:25 Barnabas departed . . . to seek Saul: Because Barnabas was sensitive to the leading of the Holy Spirit (v. 24), God was able to bring Saul of Tarsus to his mind again. The disciples in Jerusalem were afraid of Saul and refused to believe that he was a disciple (9:26). Barnabas, however, had defended Saul before the apostles (9:27).

11:26 The believers were called Christians because they worshiped Christ, the Messiah. The historian Josephus called them “that tribe of Christians.” Tacitus, the Roman historian, referred to them as “Christians, a name derived from Christ.” Originally, the church called themselves “The Way.” But later they began to refer to themselves as Christians, despite the fact that the name most likely was originally used to ridicule the believers.

12:1–3 Herod the king is Herod Agrippa I, the nephew of Herod Antipas who murdered John the Baptist, and the grandson of Herod the Great who had the children of Bethlehem put to death in his search for Jesus. Herod was not a Jew but an Edomite. The Jews resented this fact, and Herod knew it. James was the first of the Twelve to die for the sake of the gospel, and the only one whose death is recorded in the NT. Being put to death with the sword meant being beheaded. Jesus had told both James and his brother John that they would drink the same cup of suffering He did (see Matt. 20:20–23). For James, this suffering was execution. For John, it was exile. The killing of James by Herod was an attempt to win the favor of the Jewish leaders.

12:5, 6 Peter was arrested and slated to be executed like James (v. 2). However, Peter’s execution was delayed because it was against Jewish law to have a trial or sentencing during the Feast of Unleavened Bread, better known as Passover. This was Peter’s third arrest (4:3; 5:18). During a previous incarceration, Peter had miraculously escaped with the help of an angel of the Lord who opened the gates of the prison (5:19, 20). This time Peter was placed under maximum security in the care of four squads of soldiers of four men each. The soldiers worked three-hour shifts. Both of Peter’s wrists were chained, and he had a soldier on each side. Outside Peter’s cell, two more soldiers stood guard.

12:11 delivered me from the hand of Herod: Why was Peter’s life spared while James’s life was taken? The answer is the sovereign will of God. If we believe that God is good and wise, we can trust that what He allowed to happen was part of His wise plan for the good of all of His people. When we place our complete trust in the goodness of God, we can find true peace. God is in control despite any appearance to the contrary.

12:15 You are beside yourself: It is interesting to note that those who were praying so fervently for Peter’s deliverance (v. 12) should regard as insane the person who informed them that their prayers had been answered. It is his angel: This statement may imply a belief in individual guardian angels being assigned to believers (see Dan. 10:21; Matt. 18:10).

12:20 It is unclear why Herod was so angry with the people of Tyre and Sidon. Both cities were seaports, like Caesarea, the provincial capital of Judea. The dispute may have been an issue of seaport business, since competition was great. The important point was that the cities did not want the angry king to set an economic embargo against them. Through the royal official Blastus, the people of Tyre and Sidon received an appointment to present their case to the king.

12:22 The voice of a god: The Jewish historian Josephus also provides an account of this display, informing us that in an attempted appeasement of the king the people confessed that he was “more than a mortal.” Herod, instead of rebuking the address of deity, enjoyed the adulation—until he discovered the consequence of such blasphemy.

13:1 Prophets functioned in the early church as proclaimers of God’s revelation. Teachers explained the meaning of the revelation and helped the people apply it to their lives. In the early church the prophets were the preachers—the ones who communicated revelation directly from the Spirit of God. Evangelists, pastors, and teachers (see Eph. 4:11) took what was taught or declared and made it applicable for the daily nurture of people’s lives. Antioch was the base of operation for Saul.

13:2 ministered to the Lord: As the people carried out what God had given them to do as prophets or teachers, their ministry to the church became their ministry to the Lord. Whenever we serve each other, God accepts that service as directly unto Him (see Matt. 25:31–46).

13:3 The laying on of hands was the church’s way of identifying with and affirming the mission to which God had called a particular person.

13:5 John was John Mark, the nephew of Barnabas (12:25).

13:6–12 Luke presents Sergius Paulus as the first Gentile ruler to believe the gospel. The island of Cyprus was a senatorial island, which means it was Roman-controlled. As a Roman official, Sergius was a Gentile. Unlike Cornelius (10:2), there is no evidence that Sergius attended the temple or was a God-fearer. This pagan government official was amazed at the power of God and believed the truth.

13:9 Saul, who also is called Paul: It was not unusual for a person to have two names. In Paul’s Jewish surroundings, the name Saul was used. But in his mission to the Gentiles, his Roman name Paul was used. The name Paul means “Small One.”

13:13 John, departing from them: Whatever the trouble was between Paul and John Mark, it was enough for Paul not to want John Mark to accompany him on a later journey (15:36–39). John Mark would prove faithful later in Paul’s ministry (see 2 Tim. 4:11).

13:14 Why did Paul and his party pass through Perga without any reported sharing of the gospel there? Paul might have had some physical affliction that forced him from the lowlands of Perga to the cooler, higher altitudes of Antioch in Pisidia, some 3,600 feet above sea level. Later, when Paul wrote to the Galatian churches, he spoke about an illness (see Gal. 4:13). Paul’s affliction may have affected his eyes in some way. Some think Paul had malaria, which left him with disabling headaches, described by the ancients as like a red-hot bar thrust through the forehead. Possibly this was what Paul meant when he referred to his “thorn in the flesh” (see 2 Cor. 12:7). Antioch in Pisidia was a different city from the Antioch located just north of Palestine in Syria (11:22).

He put up with

(Gk. trophoreō) (13:18) Strong's #5159

This Greek word, which occurs only here in the NT, means “to bear with.” But other manuscripts read “cared for” (literally “carried them as a nurse”). The two Greek words differ in only one letter: etrophophorēsen (meaning “nourished”) and etropophorēsen (meaning “bore with”). Nourished is probably a quote from the Septuagint (Greek OT) translation of Deut. 1:31. With that as the reading, Paul in this sermon to Jews at Antioch was emphasizing God’s great care for the Israelites in the wilderness. Otherwise, Paul was using the expression He put up with as a graphic portrayal of God’s patience.

13:20 Some early manuscripts apply the four hundred and fifty years to the period before the judges referred to in vv. 17–19. In either case the intended extent of the time reference is vague.

13:22 David . . . a man after My own heart: What God saw in David was a deep desire to do His will. Throughout David’s entire life that drive never changed. Unlike King Saul, who was a self-willed man, David confessed his sins and quickly repented of them (see Ps. 51).

13:37 He whom God raised up saw no corruption: Paul argued that David could not have been speaking of himself in Ps. 16:10 (see v. 35). When David died, his body returned to dust just like everyone else’s (see Peter’s comments in 2:29–31). David was speaking of the Messiah, who would be raised from the dead as the final proof of His divine Sonship (see Rom. 1:4).

13:39 everyone who believes is justified: Justification is a legal term meaning “declared innocent” It is a legal declaration that a person is acquitted and absolved. It is by justification that a person is righteous and acceptable to God. The death of Christ was the payment of our sin debt, so that we might be forgiven.

13:45 When Luke refers to the Jews, he is not speaking of all Jews. The Jews mentioned in v. 43, those who were urging Paul and Barnabas “to continue in the grace of God,” honestly wanted to know the truth. The Jews in this verse were the Jewish leaders, those in the positions of religious authority. When the Jewish leaders saw the crowds following Paul, they changed their minds about Paul and became filled with jealousy, especially since many of the people who had gathered were Jews.

13:46 judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life: A person who convinces himself that he does not need forgiveness from the Holy One has already condemned himself.

The Spread of the Gospel

After Stephen's martyrdom, the believers in Jerusalem were scattered over Judea and Samaria because of Jewish persecution of the Christians (8:1–3). Wherever the Christians went, they preached the gospel, obeying Christ's command to be witnesses to Him "in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth." The Book of Acts records the spread of the gospel throughout the Mediterranean world.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

The Origin of the Synagogue

In nearly every city in which we find Jesus or Paul in the NT, we also find a synagogue. Most scholars agree that the NT form of the synagogue probably began taking shape after the temple in Jerusalem had been destroyed and during the Exile. With their people scattered around the world, displaced Jews needed meeting places where they could learn about the faith and worship God.

By the time of Jesus and Paul, synagogues served as local centers of worship, education, and government in the Jewish community. According to tradition, a synagogue was established wherever there were as many as ten Jewish men. The rebuilt temple in Jerusalem remained the center for sacrificial worship and the site at which to celebrate appointed feasts. But the synagogue played an ever-increasing role in the religious instruction of the Jews.

14:8–13 The gods have come down: The Roman poet Ovid told of an ancient legend in which Zeus and Hermes came to the Phrygian hill country disguised as mortals seeking lodging. After being turned away from a thousand homes, they found refuge in the humble cottage of an elderly couple. In appreciation for the couple's hospitality, the gods transformed the cottage into a temple with a golden roof and marble columns. All the houses of the inhospitable people were then destroyed. This ancient legend may be the reason that the people treated Paul and Barnabas as gods. After witnessing the healing of the cripple, they did not want to make the same mistake as their ancestors.

14:14 tore their clothes: The tearing of robes was a Jewish expression of distress and grief.

14:15–17 The sermon by Paul in these three verses is a condensed version of his sermon on the Areopagus in 17:22–31. These Gentiles did not know or believe in the Scriptures, so Paul preached truths that were self-evident to all and led his listeners to biblical truth.

14:19 supposing him to be dead: The physician Luke may be saying that Paul did not die here. However, some believe that the text speaks of Paul's resurrection.

14:23 appointed elders: It is difficult to know whether these elders were appointed by Paul and Barnabas or by a vote of the people. However, the process outlined in 6:1–7 for selecting the seven men may provide a clue to the process used for selecting elders here. Both the assembly and the apostles were involved in the selection process.

15:1–4 Later those who taught the need for circumcision among new believers were known as Judaizers. They wanted the Christian faith to become a sect of Judaism. In other words, they wanted Gentile believers to become Jewish proselytes. As proselytes, the Gentile believers would need to be circumcised as a sign of coming into the covenant of God along with the Jews.

15:5 some of the sect of the Pharisees: These people believed in Jesus Christ but were still identified as Pharisees. Jews who became followers of Christ could still be Pharisees. The same could not be said for the Sadducees, for they denied that there was a resurrection, and thus could not believe that Jesus had been raised from the dead. It is necessary to circumcise them: This statement summarizes the problem. Is salvation granted through faith alone? Or does a person have to have faith plus the works of the law in order to be forgiven by God?

15:7 It was from the mouth of Peter that Cornelius and his Gentile friends heard the gospel of Jesus Christ (10:11–43).

15:10 Yoke here refers to the law (see Gal. 5:1).

15:11 we shall be saved in the same manner as they: These are the last words of Peter in the Book of Acts. He leaves us with the eternal truth that we are saved through faith by grace alone. The emphasis in the Book of Acts now moves from Peter to Paul, from the presentation of the gospel message among the Jews to its presentation to the Gentiles.

Word Studies

grace

(Gk. charis) (15:11; Rom. 3:24; 5:15; Eph. 2:5; Titus 2:11) Strong's #5485

The Greek word for grace is probably equivalent to the Hebrew word chesed meaning “lovingkindness,” a word frequently used by the psalmists to describe God’s character. In the NT, the word charis usually means divine favor or goodwill, but it also means “that which gives joy” and “that which is a free gift.” This is a noteworthy occurrence of the word grace, because while it was one of Paul’s favorite words for God’s free gift of salvation, here we see Peter using it in the same way.

Go to the List of Word Studies

15:12 Barnabas and Paul reported what God was doing in changing the lives of Gentiles with the gospel of Jesus Christ. Their testimony at this council was critical.

15:13 The council listened to James because he was the first of the three pillars of the church (see Gal. 2:9). He was the leader of the church in Jerusalem until he was stoned to death at the insistence of the high priest in A.D. 62. James was the Lord’s half brother, the one who did not believe until the Lord appeared to him privately after the Resurrection (see 1 Cor. 15:7).

15:15–18 While the testimony of Peter, Barnabas, and Paul was important for the council in making their decision, something more than the experience of the Gentiles had to be taken into consideration. The council needed to know what the Word of God said. James pointed out that what was happening among the Gentiles was in full agreement with the OT (Amos 9:11, 12).

15:19, 20 The testimony of Paul and Barnabas—those who worked among the Gentiles—and most importantly the teaching of Scripture, indicated to James that God was truly at work (v. 18). In view of this, he suggested that a letter be drafted that alleviated Jewish requirements for Gentiles who placed their trust in Jesus. Though James did not want to trouble Gentiles with Jewish ceremonial regulations, he believed certain practices should be followed. He mentioned four issues: eating food offered to idols, sexual immorality, eating food from animals that had been strangled, and eating food with blood. If Gentiles continued such practices, there would continually be tension between the Gentile and Jewish Christian communities. There is a debate as to whether these requirements were ceremonial or moral in nature. If they were ceremonial, “things polluted by idols” would refer to food offered in pagan temples (see 1 Cor. 8–10). “Sexual immorality” would refer to the marriage laws of Lev. 18:6–20. The prohibition against eating blood preceded the Law of Moses and extended back to the contract God made with Noah (see Gen. 9:3, 4; see also Lev. 17:10–14). On the other hand, if these prohibitions were moral in nature, the food polluted by idols would relate to the problem of Rev. 2:14, 20. Evidently some Gentile Christians were attending the celebrations and banquets held in pagan temples that frequently involved sexual immorality.

15:21 For Moses has had . . . those who preach him: James may have been saying that since there were Jewish communities in every city, it would be wise to remain sensitive to Jewish convictions. He may also have been saying that since the Gentile believers would learn more and more about the Scriptures, the Spirit of God would cultivate godly convictions in their hearts.

15:22 it pleased the apostles and elders: It is interesting to note the process the council followed in resolving this conflict. First, the problem was clearly stated: Each side was presented in a debate. Second, the facts were presented by those who were acquainted with them. Third, the counsel was given by a person who was trusted for his objectivity and wisdom. Fourth, unanimity was sought in the decision. Fifth, the attitude of preserving the unity of the Spirit remained utmost on the council's mind. This same formula would be helpful in resolving conflicts found within the church today. chosen men of their own company: The apostles and elders sent a representative from both sides of the dispute—a Judean (Judas) and a Hellenist (Silas)—along with Paul and Barnabas to bolster and confirm the ruling of the council.

15:38 Paul was adamant that John Mark not accompany him on his impending journey. Earlier John Mark had deserted Paul and Barnabas in Pamphylia (13:13). It is unclear why he did so. Some have speculated that John Mark returned to Jerusalem because he did not like the idea of Gentiles coming into the church by faith alone. Whatever the reason for the desertion, it is interesting to note that John Mark was reconciled to Paul and again helped him in his ministry. In 2 Tim. 4:11, Paul, who was in prison, writes, “Get Mark and bring him with you, for he is useful to me for ministry.”

15:39 the contention became so sharp that they parted: There was a heated argument between Paul and Barnabas over John Mark's usefulness to them. Note that Luke does not assign blame for the disagreement. There are times when Christians will not agree on certain aspects of ministry. Perhaps the best course of action in some of those situations is to work separately. Barnabas left with John Mark, refusing to make the disagreement an issue before the church at Antioch. Barnabas had led the church in its early days (11:22–25). He was the church's main representative at the Jerusalem council, but he did not use his prominence to seek a reprimand of Paul. Instead he accepted the situation and proceeded to faithfully serve the Lord.

16:1 Timothy was the son of Eunice, a Jewish woman of great faith (see 2 Tim. 1:5). Eunice had taught the Holy Scriptures to Timothy from infancy (see 2 Tim. 3:15). The NT's silence about the faith of Timothy's father suggests he was not a believer.

16:2 Well spoken of may be rephrased as “well witnessed.” In other words, people did not have to be told that Timothy was a Christian.

16:3 took him and circumcised him: In Jewish law, Timothy should have been circumcised and raised a Jew, even with a Gentile father. But in Greek law, the father dominated the home. The fact that Timothy was an uncircumcised Jew would have limited his effectiveness in ministering to the Jewish Christians. Salvation was not the issue here. Instead Timothy became circumcised so that God could use him to reach all people—even the Jews—with the message of the gospel.

16:4, 5 The council's decision (15:24–29) brought great joy and comfort to the Gentiles. Apparently the decrees from the Jerusalem council were considered reasonable and not burdensome.

Word Studies

the Spirit

(Gk. to pneuma) (16:7; Rom. 8:9; Phil. 1:19; 1 Pet. 1:11) Strong's #4151

The Greek word for Spirit is derived from the verb pneō, meaning “to breathe” or “to blow.” It is sometimes used to refer to the wind and sometimes to life itself (see John 3:8; Rev. 13:15). It can refer to the life of angels (Heb. 1:14), demons (Luke 4:33), and human beings (7:59). Yet this word is also used for the Spirit of God (see 1 Cor. 2:11)—that is, the Holy Spirit (Matt. 28:19), the third Person of the Trinity, the One who lives inside believers (see James 4:5; 1 John 4:13). This same Spirit is called “the Spirit of Jesus Christ” (Phil. 1:19), and as the marginal note indicates, many older manuscripts have the title the Spirit of Jesus in 16:7. This title emphasizes the unity of action between Jesus and the Spirit that permeates this book and its companion volume, the Gospel of Luke. During the days of Jesus’ earthly ministry, the disciples were directed by Jesus; now, after His resurrection and ascension, by the Spirit of Jesus.

16:10 sought to go to Macedonia: With both the southwesterly route and the northern path closed by the Holy Spirit (vv. 6, 7), Paul headed in the only direction left open to him—northwest—until he came to the Aegean port of Troas, where he could go no further. Paul was at the right place at the right time to receive the call to go to Macedonia. We: This is the first of four “we” sections in the Book of Acts (16:10–17; 20:5–15; 21:1–18; 27:1–28:16). This indicates that Luke, the author of Acts, accompanied Paul at least these four times.

16:12 Named after the father of Alexander the Great, Philippi was a Roman colony loyal to the empire. The city itself was organized by the state of Rome and functioned as a military outpost. The people who settled the city were probably army veterans, who were given the rights of Roman citizens. Typically such a colony would possess an autonomous government and be immune from tribute and taxation. Because of its proximity to the sea as well as to one of the major roads to Europe, Philippi was a commercial center in Macedonia. Its influence throughout the region made it a good place to begin preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ.

16:13 where prayer was customarily made: According to Jewish custom, a congregation consisted of ten households. If ten male household heads could be found in a city, a synagogue was formed. If not, a place of prayer was established, usually near a river under the open sky. Paul’s habit was to go first to the synagogue of a new city. However in Philippi, he searched for a Jewish prayer meeting.

16:14 Thyatira was well known for purple dyes and cloth dyeing. Purple dye had to be gathered drop by drop from a certain shellfish. Because it was so expensive, purple dye was used on garments worn by royalty. As an artisan in purple dyes, Lydia was a wealthy woman who had come to Philippi to practice her trade. Paul preached the gospel, but the Lord opened Lydia’s heart to it.

16:16 Luke’s description of the slave girl in Greek indicates that she had a “spirit of Python.” The python was a mythical serpent killed by Apollo, who took both the serpent’s gift of predictions and sometimes its form. Apollo became known as Pythian Apollo. When it was said that one had a “spirit of Python,” it meant that the person was controlled by an evil force. Apparently those who knew the girl did not regard her as insane or fraudulent. Rather they viewed her ability to foretell events as genuine. People paid the girl for her divination services, earning her masters a lot of money.

16:17, 18 greatly annoyed: Paul was upset not because what the girl said was untrue, but because the girl was being viewed as the source of truth.

16:20, 21 These claims were as false as those leveled first against Jesus and then Stephen. Those who desire to stop the truth of God are often unscrupulous about the truthfulness of their statements. Nothing Paul and Silas had preached remotely related to Roman customs or laws.

16:22 Before prisoners were beaten with rods, their garments were literally torn off so that their flesh would be exposed for the flogging. Paul experienced this particular Roman ordeal on three separate occasions. Later Paul would refer to this beating with wooden rods (see 2 Cor. 11:23, 25).

16:25 praying and singing . . . prisoners were listening: The word translated listening here means “to listen with pleasure,” as if listening to beautiful music. It is in times of darkness that the light of a Christian witness shines brightest (see Phil. 2:14–16).

16:26 immediately all the doors were opened: In ancient prisons each door was secured by a bar. The earthquake, as it passed along the ground, probably forced the doorposts apart so that the bars fell to the ground.

16:27 Under Roman law, a guard who allowed the escape of a prisoner was generally put to death. Believing that all the prisoners had escaped, the keeper of the prison assumed that death was certain for him.

16:30–34 what must I do to be saved: The events surrounding the arrest of Paul and Silas, the way they responded to suffering, and the mighty acts of God brought the jailer to his knees. He finally knew he needed God’s salvation. But how could he be reconciled to God? Paul and Silas’s answer was simple—just believe on the Lord Jesus Christ. No other work was needed. The jailer and his family placed their trust in God and immediately expressed that faith by being baptized.

16:37–40 Once the magistrates learned that Paul and Silas were Roman citizens, they realized that they were in danger of the wrath of Rome. It was unlawful to whip a Roman citizen or deny that person the right to due process. Paul refused to leave when he had the opportunity because he was protecting the infant church in Philippi. Because Paul and Silas were beaten in public, people probably believed that they had done something wrong. If Paul left quietly, then the perception would be that those associated with him, in particular the members of the Philippian church, had also done something wrong.

17:2 reasoned with them from the Scriptures: There was a great deal of evidence in Scripture that Paul could use in his argument. For example, Ps. 22, written over a thousand years earlier by David, describes the crucifixion of the Messiah. Paul could quote Is. 53 and Zech. 12 to demonstrate that the suffering, death, and resurrection of the coming Messiah was predicted by the prophets. The OT abounds with evidence of the Messiah’s character and life that clearly matches that of Jesus (see Luke 24:25–27).

17:5 The Jews here refers to the Jewish leaders of the synagogue who felt threatened by the gospel because it contradicted their own teachings.

17:7 acting contrary to the decrees of Caesar: In A.D. 49 the Roman emperor Claudius expelled all Jews from Rome due to riots that were ignited by a group of zealous Jews. These insurrectionists were advocating revolution against Rome and were opposing the installation of a new king. Paul’s accusers were trying to paint him as a revolutionary who was bringing sedition to Thessalonica.

17:9, 10 had taken security from Jason: Taking security was similar to posting bond today. It was meant as an assurance that there would be no repetition of the trouble caused by the apostle Paul, and that he would not return to Thessalonica. Instead, Paul and Silas traveled 50 miles southwest to the city of Berea.

17:16 Paul was greatly distressed at the sight of numerous pagan temples and altars in Athens. In his letter to the Corinthians Paul explained why he was indignant (see 1 Cor. 10:20). The people's offerings were being sacrificed to demons. By doing this, the Gentiles were having fellowship with the powers of darkness. For these people to be so deceived by the devil was deeply troubling to Paul.

17:18 this babbler: Some of the philosophers in Athens mocked Paul, calling him a “seed picker” or gutter sparrow, a small bird that snatches up scraps of food. Paul was being accused of grabbing at bits of knowledge without fully digesting or thinking through what he taught. Because Paul did not speak eloquently (1 Cor. 2:1), some philosophers in Athens arrogantly ridiculed him, arguing that he was not sophisticated enough to be taken seriously. Others thought that Paul was advocating foreign gods named Jesus and Resurrection, incorrectly understood to be a male and female deity.

17:19 the Areopagus: Just southwest of the Acropolis in Athens was a hill called the Hill of Ares (Mars in Latin), the god of war. This was where court was held concerning questions of religion and morals. In Athens, the gospel message was examined by the supposed experts of philosophy and religion.

17:22–31 Because the men of Athens had scant knowledge of the Hebrew Scriptures, Paul started with the general revelation visible in creation itself. In the sixth century B.C. it was said that a poet from Crete named Epimenides turned aside a horrible plague from the people of Athens by appealing to a god of whom the people had never heard. An altar was built to honor this god, whom the Athenians now called the UNKNOWN GOD. Paul obviously knew of Epimenides; he quoted the poet in Titus 1:12. Thus Paul began his presentation of the gospel by appealing to natural revelation and to certain true statements of the Athenian poets. He has made from one blood: God sovereignly created one man, Adam. As Adam's descendants multiplied and formed nations, it was God who designed their course (see Dan. 2:20, 21). that they should seek the Lord: God has placed within each one of us the yearning to worship and seek Him. We grope for Him by creating images to worship. But Paul points out that God is not far away; we can have fellowship with Him. In fact, every day we depend upon Him for our life and breath.

17:32 Paul's reference to the resurrection of the dead ignited a reaction among the Athenians. The Greeks repudiated the idea of a bodily resurrection. Though they embraced the concept of the soul living forever, they were repulsed by the idea of a bodily resurrection because they considered the body to be evil, something to be discarded. This idea, known as dualism, was derived from the teachings of the Greek philosophers Socrates and Plato. It held that everything physical is evil and everything spiritual is good, and that it makes no difference what one does with one's body so long as the spirit is good. Tragically, the Athenians' adherence to this philosophy blinded them to the truth of the gospel.

18:1 Corinth was the political capital of Achaia. It was also a center for the worship of Aphrodite, the goddess of fertility, and it housed the major temple of Apollo. Because of the sensuous nature of the religious cult of Aphrodite, Corinth had a reputation for being a city of immorality. Beginning in the fifth century B.C., the Greeks used a word meaning “to act like a Corinthian” as a synonym for sexual immorality.

18:3 All young rabbinical students had to learn a trade. Tentmakers were leather workers. The province of Cilicia, from which Paul came, was noted for its cloth made from goats' hair. It is likely that Paul's skill involved making such cloth.

18:5, 6 Paul's custom was to go to the Jews first whenever he entered a new city. Thus in Corinth, he began his proclamation of Jesus in the synagogues. After several attempts to reach the Jews of Corinth (v. 4), attempts that had few results, Paul turned his attention almost exclusively to the Gentiles.

18:7 Justus: Most Romans had three names. This man's name was Titius Justus. Based on Paul's letter to the Corinthians, it is likely that Justus was the man called Gaius in 1 Cor. 1:14.

18:10 In view of the severe treatment he had received elsewhere, Paul must have been very comforted by Christ's statement that he would not be hurt or beaten in Corinth (16:22–24).

- 18:12 In the spring of A.D. 52, a proconsul named Gallio was appointed by the Roman senate to govern the province of Achaia (Greece). Gallio was a brother of the famous stoic philosopher Seneca, who possessed great influence in Rome. The Jewish leaders thought they would take advantage of the new governor and rid themselves of Paul and the gospel of Jesus Christ. Bringing Paul before the judgment seat of the governor was a momentous event. If the Roman governor ruled Christianity illegal, it would set a precedent and encourage immediate persecution of all Christians.
- 18:14 Paul did not even have to open his mouth to defend the faith. God had already provided for Paul's defense; he had prepared Gallio to make the correct decision. No crime had been committed against Rome. Gallio considered Christianity to be a Jewish sect. Because Judaism was an established religion in the Roman Empire, this "sect" was not in violation of Roman law. Gallio had his bailiffs drive the accusers out of his presence. Once again the sovereign hand of God preserved the life of His faithful servant.
- 18:18 Paul had his hair cut as part of a Nazirite vow he had made (see Num. 6). Such a vow had to be fulfilled in Jerusalem, where the hair would be presented to God. Vows were made either in gratitude for God's blessing (like Paul's safekeeping in Corinth) or as part of a petition for future blessing. The vow involved abstinence from drinking wine and a commitment not to cut one's hair for a period of time. At the end of this set period, the hair was cut and then burned along with other sacrifices as a symbol of offering oneself to God (21:23–26). Paul redirected his entire travel schedule because he wanted to get to Jerusalem in time to make this vow.
- 18:19 Paul had tried to go to Ephesus before but was forbidden by the Holy Spirit (16:6). We are not told how or why, but during his second missionary trip, the Holy Spirit kept Paul from traveling the southwestern route, which would have taken him to Ephesus. Instead, Paul went northwest to the Aegean port of Troas, where he received the Macedonian call to take the gospel to Europe. If we will entrust our way to God's timing as Paul did, we will end up at the right place at the right time.
- 18:22 Paul completed his vow (vv. 18–21) when he went to Jerusalem and greeted the church there. Paul then returned to his sending church in Antioch, completing his second missionary journey, one that covered over three hundred miles. he went down: Antioch was north of Jerusalem but lower in elevation.

Paul's Second Missionary Journey

C. A.D. 49–52 (Acts 15:39—18:22)

Go to the List of In-Text Maps

18:23 he departed and went over the region: On his third missionary journey Paul traveled back through Asia Minor to visit the churches that had been established on his previous trips. The cities included Derbe, Lystra, Iconium, Antioch, and Ephesus.

18:24 Apollos, born at Alexandria: This Jew with a Greek name was from the second largest city in the Roman Empire. Alexandria was a seaport on the northern coast of Egypt. Founded by Alexander the Great, the city was very cosmopolitan. Egyptians, Romans, and Greeks all lived there; over a quarter of the population was Jewish. The Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures had been produced in that city about 150 years before the birth of Jesus. The city was famous for its great library and was considered the cultural and educational center of the world.

18:25 John's baptism was a baptism of repentance in preparation for the coming of the Messiah. John's followers had scattered throughout Asia Minor and into Egypt. Apollos was a disciple of John the Baptist. Apparently he did not know about the finished work of Jesus Christ on the Cross, the Resurrection, the Ascension, and the sending of the Holy Spirit.

18:28 he vigorously refuted the Jews: Many of the believers in Corinth were Gentiles and were easy targets for opponents who knew the Hebrew Scriptures. However, the arguments of these Jews did not stand up against the brilliance of Apollos, the new Jewish Christian apologist (v. 26).

19:2 These 12 men (v. 7) had been baptized into the baptism of John the Baptist, but they had never heard about the Holy Spirit. All they knew was that One mightier than John was to come. They did not know that Jesus the Messiah, the One mightier than John had already come. He had died for their sins, had been raised from the dead, had ascended to the Father, and had already sent the Holy Spirit. They needed to hear the rest of the gospel. As soon as this happened, these men could place their faith in Jesus and receive the Holy Spirit.

19:3 Baptism was a ritual used by the Jews as a picture of cleansing and purification. Gentiles who converted to Judaism would go through the rite of purification as their first act of worship. They would dip themselves in water as a sign of being cleansed from their old way of life. Before entering into the temple to worship, Jews would dip themselves in ritual bathing pools to show their desire for purification. But the dipping performed by John the Baptist was a call for repentance rather than mere ritual cleansing. His baptism was a call to people to turn to God and to identify with the coming Messiah who would forgive their sins (see Matt. 3:1–12).

19:5 in the name of the Lord Jesus: This phrase was a declaration of ownership, an identification with Jesus as Lord and Savior of one's life.

19:6 laid hands on them: The Holy Spirit was received without the laying on of hands in 10:44–48. By laying on his hands here, Paul was demonstrating his apostolic authority. He was also affirming the unity of the new church in Ephesus with the church in Jerusalem, whose members were also were empowered by the Holy Spirit to speak in foreign languages (2:4, 11). This speaking in tongues was a sign to others that they were part of the body of Christ (see 1 Cor. 14:22).

19:8–10 From Ephesus, other churches were born in Asia Minor—in Colosse, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea. Note the sequence of events. Paul tried explaining the things of the kingdom of God to the Jews in the synagogue for three months. After he was finally rejected, he took those who had believed and started a new “school” for the study of the Scriptures in the facilities of a philosopher named Tyrannus. During the two years that Paul conducted these classes, all who dwelt in Asia heard the gospel. This indicates that Paul and the students of the school did more than study; they must have witnessed to others as well.

19:11 God confirmed Paul's apostolic authority by performing miracles through him. The writer of the Book of Hebrews helps us understand why miracles were accomplished through the apostles (see Heb. 2:3, 4). The miracles verified that the apostles represented God and that the gospel they preached was from heaven.

19:12 handkerchiefs or aprons: A handkerchief was a cloth used to wipe away perspiration and was usually worn tied around the head. The apron was tied around the waist. These were sweat rags used by Paul in his tentmaking trade as he worked with leather. Why would God perform healings in this way? Ephesus was a focal point for magicians and wandering priests. The city was filled with wizards attempting to exercise power over the dark forces. God may have used such unusual means in order to show that His miraculous power was greater than the powers of darkness.

19:13–16 to call the name of the Lord Jesus: The use of magical names in incantations was common in the ancient world. Jewish practitioners of magic enjoyed great prestige because they claimed to know the true pronunciation of the sacred name of God, and thus were able to release God's full power. These practitioners had latched onto the name of Jesus to use as an incantation. overpowered them: The seven so-called exorcists found out that it was not enough to know the name of Jesus; they needed to know Jesus personally.

19:19 These books were filled with formulas, spells, and astrological forecasts. The volumes were expensive; fifty thousand pieces of silver would have taken 10 laborers 20 years to earn. Burning the books indicated real repentance on the part of those who had practiced magic.

19:24–27 Silver shrines of Diana refers to small shrines containing a miniature image of the fertility goddess of Ephesus. Sales of these idols were falling off as people were introduced to the truth of Jesus Christ.

19:29 into the theater: This amphitheater seated about 25,000 people.

19:33, 34 The Jews wanted to distance themselves from Paul, so they put Alexander forward to explain that the Jews had nothing to do with Paul. However, Alexander never got the chance to speak once the crowd discovered he was a Jew.

19:35–41 we are in danger: The riot at Ephesus could have brought the discipline of Rome down upon the city. The Pax Romana, the peace that the Roman Empire brought to the Mediterranean world, was important to Rome. Therefore, the empire severely disciplined unruly cities. The Romans would not tolerate any kind of uprising or rebellion. Ephesus risked losing its freedom and being ruled directly by the Roman army.

20:2 The word translated encouraged has a full range of meanings, from rebuking to comforting. Encouragement included instruction, appeal, affirmation, warning, and correction.

20:3 he decided to return through Macedonia: Often Jewish pilgrim ships left for Syria taking Jews to the Passover. Paul had intended to sail on such a ship, but after the plot against his life was discovered he decided he would celebrate the Passover with his friends in Philippi. It would have been easy for his enemies to arrange for Paul to “disappear” over the side of the boat and never be heard from again. Paul was very sensitive to the leading of the Holy Spirit in his life and ministry. Sometimes the Spirit of God led him into difficult circumstances; other times the Spirit protected him from such circumstances.

20:7 The first day of the week was Sunday. The people gathered to worship on this day for the same reason we do today, to celebrate the day of the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The Jewish believers continued to worship on the Sabbath, which is Saturday. The Book of Hebrews tells us that Christ and His finished work is our Sabbath, our rest (see Heb. 4:8–10). to break bread: The primary purpose of the gathering was the Lord’s Supper.

20:8–12 Because the rooms had many lamps, it was probably stuffy and hot. No wonder Eutychus had difficulty staying awake.

20:13–16 to go on foot: Luke and the others left Troas for Assos, some 30 miles south by sea. Paul wanted to walk to Assos alone. Paul may have felt the need to spend some time alone with God, to pray and reflect on what God wanted him to do. When Paul met up with the others in Assos, it is clear that he had received guidance. He was now in a hurry to get to Jerusalem to deliver the offering taken by the Gentile churches for the suffering church there.

20:17 The Greek term for elders is presbuteros, a term borrowed from the Jewish synagogue. It referred to those who were held in respect as the leaders of a particular fellowship. In v. 28 the elders are called “overseers” (Gk. episkopos, translated bishop in Titus 1:7). The terms appear to be interchangeable in the NT (see Titus 1:5–7).

20:22 I go bound in the spirit: Some say that Paul was out of the will of God in going to Jerusalem after the warnings of bonds and afflictions. But there is no evidence that Paul was rebelling against God. On the contrary, Jesus Himself confirmed that the trip was part of His good and perfect will (23:11). While Paul was in a Jerusalem prison, Jesus appeared to him to tell him to take courage. The Lord explained to Paul that just as he had solemnly witnessed for the cause of Christ at Jerusalem, he would do the same in Rome. There was no condemnation, but rather affirmation, of the fact that Paul bore witness to Jesus Christ in Jerusalem.

20:24 nor do I count my life dear to myself: Paul no longer desired to hold on to his life. He sought only the furtherance of God’s kingdom and the honor of Christ, no matter what the earthly cost was.

20:28 with His own blood: It was the blood of the Son of God that was shed for the sins of the church.

20:29, 30 wolves . . . men: There are always two threats to the church, one from the outside and one from the inside. Unbelievers are a dangerous threat from the outside; the arrogant and self-serving are a threat from within.

20:31 Watch is reminiscent of Peter’s warning about the devil in 1 Pet. 5:8. Elders protect the flock by their care and teaching.

20:35 It is more blessed to give: This saying of Jesus is not found in the Gospels, but through Paul’s knowledge of it has been recorded here.

- 21:1 When we had departed from them may be rephrased as “after tearing ourselves away from them.” The apostle Paul’s affection for his fellow believers ran deep (20:37). It must have been a difficult life for Paul, constantly leaving friends and family as he traveled about proclaiming the gospel. In Patara, a seaport, Paul and his companions could find a larger ship that would sail the four hundred miles directly to Phoenicia, with its ports at Tyre and Sidon. In the summer months, the wind of the Aegean Sea blows from the north, beginning very early in the morning. In the late afternoon the wind dies away. Sunset brings a dead calm, and later a gentle south breeze blows. If a ship was heading down the coast, it would typically anchor at evening and wait for the winds of the morning.
- 21:2 finding a ship: Paul wasted no time because he wanted to get to Jerusalem by Pentecost, which occurs just 50 days after Passover. Paul had celebrated Passover with his friends in Philippi more than three weeks earlier, so he had less than 30 days to reach Jerusalem in time for the festival.
- 21:4 In this verse, a warning was being given by the Holy Spirit of the danger that was waiting for Paul in Jerusalem. It is doubtful that the warning meant that Paul was actually not supposed to go. The warning did cause the disciples, who loved Paul and did not want to see him hurt, to discourage Paul from continuing his journey. But Paul had already demonstrated sensitivity to the leading of the Holy Spirit (16:6). He had already said that he was “bound in the spirit” to go to Jerusalem (20:22). Later Jesus Himself encouraged Paul concerning his decision to go (23:11).
- 21:8 Some believe that Philip’s house was the place where the believers of Caesarea assembled to worship God.
- 21:9 four virgin daughters: Here we see a fulfillment of what Peter said in ch. 2 about how young men and women both would be gifted by the Spirit of God to prophesy and proclaim the truth of God.
- 21:10–14 Agabus had predicted in 11:27–30 the famine that would fall upon Judea. In response to his prediction, the Gentile believers had collected money for the suffering believers in Jerusalem. Here Agabus predicted Paul’s imprisonment and suffering. The Holy Spirit did not forbid Paul to go to Jerusalem, but warned him of what it would cost him.
- 21:15, 16 we packed and went up to Jerusalem: Although they had been told repeatedly that Paul would be beaten and arrested in Jerusalem, Paul’s traveling companions continued to travel with him. They would not leave Paul in his moment of crisis. During times of suffering, true friends stick close to provide comfort and assistance (see Prov. 17:17). Mnason of Cyprus possibly was one of the original 120 mentioned in 1:15.

Paul's Third Missionary Journey

c. A.D. 53–57 (Acts 18:23—21:17)

Go to the List of In-Text Maps

21:18 James and the elders were the leaders of house churches meeting in Jerusalem. It is interesting that none of the apostles are mentioned here. Seven years had passed since the Jerusalem council meeting of ch. 15. At that time, the apostles and the leaders of the church had gathered to settle the question of whether Gentiles had to become Jews before becoming Christians. That question was settled in the negative; the Scriptures and the Holy Spirit both taught that the gospel was for all people. Apparently the apostles left Jerusalem after that conference to carry out Jesus' commission to be witnesses to the "end of the earth" (1:8).

21:19 things which God had done: The evidence of how God changed the lives of Gentiles was presented to the Christians in Jerusalem. The strongest evidence was the Gentile believers themselves who had accompanied Paul to Jerusalem. At this time, Paul may have also given the money he had been collecting from the Gentile Christians (11:27–30; 1 Cor. 16:1). The love the Gentiles expressed to their suffering Jewish brethren was a mark of their genuine conversion.

21:21 informed about you: Reports were circulating that Paul had been urging Jews to abandon Mosaic traditions. However, Paul never derided his Jewish heritage nor demanded that Jewish Christians renounce the Law of Moses. He only made it clear to everyone that the law could not function as a means of salvation. There is evidence that Paul was continuing to keep the Law when he stood before Felix in 24:11, 12. The fact that he was coming to Jerusalem to worship was evidence of this. What Paul did resist was any attempt to force Gentiles to become Jews. Salvation was through faith alone. Relying on adherence to the Jewish law was repudiation of the gospel message that salvation proceeds from faith in Christ and that alone.

21:24 Paul paid the expenses of the four men who had taken a vow, because the men were impoverished by the famine in Judea and did not have enough money to complete their vow by offering a sacrifice in the temple. But there might have been another reason as well. The Jewish historian Josephus tells us that when Herod Agrippa I began his reign over Judea in A.D. 41, he paid for a considerable number of Nazirite vows to show his respect for the Mosaic Law. For the sake of showing his Jewish brethren that he had not forsaken the laws of Moses, Paul did what they asked. Reputation was an issue for the apostle, as it is for all believers (see 1 Tim. 3:7).

21:25 they should keep themselves: The Christian leaders were not asking Gentiles to live like Jews; neither did they want to compel Jews to live like Gentiles. The spiritual unity of the body of believers is realized in its diversity, not in its conformity. From our diverse backgrounds and cultures we honor the same Lord.

21:28 defiled this holy place: The temple in NT times was surrounded by three courts. The innermost court was the Court of Israel where Jewish men could offer their sacrifices. Only consecrated priests actually entered the temple building itself, and only the high priest could enter the inner sanctuary of the Most Holy Place—once a year on the Day of Atonement (see Heb. 9:7). The second court was the Court of the Women where Jewish families could gather for prayer and worship. The outer court was the Court of the Gentiles, open to all who would worship God. If any Gentile went beyond the barrier into the second court, he or she would be liable to the death penalty. The Roman authorities, out of respect for the Jewish religion, authorized the death sentence for this trespass even for their own Roman citizens.

21:31 garrison: Between six hundred and a thousand men were stationed in the Fortress Antonia on the northwest side of the temple. From a tower overlooking the temple courts they could watch for any trouble. When the riot broke out against Paul, at least two hundred soldiers were dispatched from the fortress into the Court of the Gentiles.

21:38 When Paul spoke Greek, the commander realized that he was not the Egyptian assassin who had come to Jerusalem in A.D. 54 claiming to be a prophet. This Egyptian had led four thousand fanatical Jews up to the Mount of Olives, promising that at his word the walls of Jerusalem would fall and the Roman Empire would be destroyed. Felix, the governor of Jerusalem at the time, ordered his men up the Mount of Olives, where they killed some four hundred Jews and captured another two hundred. However, the Egyptian and some of his followers slipped away into the desert. These followers were called sicarii, meaning “dagger men.” They would mingle with the crowds in Jerusalem during festivals and murder pro-Roman Jews.

22:1 hear my defense: This was the first of five defenses Paul would make.

22:2 After speaking Greek to the commander (21:37), Paul addressed the people in the Hebrew dialect, most likely Aramaic. When the people heard him speaking to them in their own language they were reminded that Paul was not a Gentile but a Jew like themselves. Therefore, they listened to what he had to say.

22:3–5 as you all are today: Paul explained to the crowd that he understood why they were beating him and wanted him dead. They were zealous for God. Paul was not blaming them for what they had done to him. He pointed out that in his former zeal he would have done the same thing. Paul showed compassion even to his attackers; we should model that same type of compassion for all people who have not yet placed their faith in Jesus.

22:6–8 Now it happened: Paul shared his personal testimony. God has given to each of us a testimony of how He has changed our lives. We must share that testimony to everyone who will listen (1:8). Peter exhorts us in 1 Pet. 3:15 always to be ready to give an answer for the hope that lies within us.

22:9 did not hear the voice: The men who had accompanied Paul heard the sound but could not understand the words that were being spoken to Paul. We are not told why they could not understand the sound they heard.

22:16 Calling on the name of the Lord saves us. Baptism is the declaration of that calling (see Rom. 10:9–13).

22:22 they listened to him: The Jews did not hate all Gentiles. In fact, they permitted God-fearing Gentiles to worship in the Court of the Gentiles. A Gentile could even become a proselyte, recognized as a Jew, by being circumcised and obeying the laws of Moses. Thus the Jews in this passage were not upset about allowing Gentiles to worship God, but at the idea that Gentiles could be on an equal footing with them before God without being proselytes. The fact that the Gentiles could come to God directly by faith in Jesus Christ was offensive to them.

22:24 The scourge was a leather whip, studded with pieces of metal or bone, fastened to a wooden handle. Paul had been beaten before with whips and rods (see 2 Cor. 11:24, 25). But scourging was worse. The punishment was used to cripple for life or to kill. The victim endured this torture either stretched out on the floor, tied to a pillar, or tied to a hook suspended from the ceiling.

22:25 Is it lawful: The Roman law was that no Roman citizen could be chained, scourged, or killed without a proper trial. Failure to obey this law resulted in severe punishment for the one who commanded the illegal punishment. Paul had been chained and was about to be scourged without any formal charges having been made.

22:28 Originally the privileges of Roman citizenship were limited to free people living in the city of Rome. Later, citizenship was granted to others living in the Roman Empire. Sometimes the emperor would offer citizenship to those who had rendered outstanding service. Possibly Paul's father or grandfather had become a citizen this way with the result that Paul was born a Roman. Ultimately God used Paul's Roman citizenship to spread the gospel to Rome.

23:3 whitewashed wall: Whitewash is a thin paint used to make something dirty look clean. Ananias deserved this rebuke. The fact that Ananias had someone else "do his dirty work" did not absolve him from the ordering of the act.

23:5 Note that Paul did not defend his behavior (v. 3), but rather repented of it. I did not know: There are several possible reasons why Paul did not know Ananias was the high priest. It could be that Paul's eyesight was poor, and he could not see Ananias clearly. Or perhaps this was not a normal assembly of the Sanhedrin, and the high priest was not wearing his normal robes or sitting in his usual place.

23:6 The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection of the dead, miracles, life after death, or the existence of angels. On the other hand, the Pharisees believed in the supernatural and affirmed the very things the Sadducees denied.

23:11 bear witness at Rome: Warned by friends not to go to Jerusalem, Paul may have begun to doubt his decision. The Lord encouraged Paul not to be afraid because he was under the sovereign care of God. As Paul had borne witness to Jesus as a prisoner in Jerusalem, so he would do as a prisoner in Rome. Paul's chains would glorify God in ways that would have been impossible without them.

23:12–15 The willingness of the Jewish council to cooperate with the assassination plot against Paul shows how conscious they were of their weak case against him.

23:23 Paul was to be escorted out of the city under cover of darkness surrounded by hundreds of soldiers. Apparently the commander thought the threat of assassination was serious enough to commit almost half of the entire garrison at the Fortress of Antonia to escorting Paul at least part of the way to Rome.

23:25 He wrote a letter: Roman law required a subordinate officer to send a written statement of the case with a prisoner when he referred the case to his superior.

23:31, 32 Slipping out of Jerusalem when the city was quiet, the foot soldiers and cavalry probably attracted little attention. Ahead lay Antipatris, 40 miles away, by way of a winding downhill road where an ambush would have been disastrous. Antipatris was used by the Romans as a relay station for their troops. The rest of the journey was over open plain where there was no need for a large number of soldiers. The foot soldiers returned to Jerusalem, leaving the 70 horsemen to escort Paul the remaining distance to Caesarea, the capital of Judea. The hand of God over Paul's life can be seen in the provision of such extraordinary protection.

23:34 the governor: Antonius Felix governed Judea from A.D. 52 to 60. Felix had been a slave, but had gained the status of freedman under the Emperor Claudius. Because Felix's brother was a friend of the emperor, Felix's political career blossomed, even though he was not popular among his peers. Felix was known for indulging in every kind of lust, and the writer Tacitus described him as "exercising the powers of a king with the character of a slave." he was from Cilicia: After reading the letter from Jerusalem, Felix wanted to know Paul's home province. When he learned it was Cilicia he decided to hear the case, because the political status of Cilicia did not require its natives to be sent back there for trial.

23:35 As the official residence built by Herod the Great, Herod's Praetorium included cells for prisoners (see John 18:28; Phil. 1:13).

24:5 we have found this man: There were three basic charges against Paul: political treason, religious heresy, and temple desecration. His opponents argued that Paul had been causing riots throughout the empire, that he spoke against the Law of Moses, and that he had brought a Gentile into the Jewish temple courts.

24:11, 12 Paul first addressed the charge of sedition, knowing that if he was found guilty it would mean his life. He demonstrated how ridiculous the charge was in that it had only been twelve days since he had come to Jerusalem. This was hardly enough time to incite riots or start revolutions in Judea.

24:14 Paul openly admitted that he was a follower of the Way, but he contended that he still believed the Law and the Prophets. That is, he was a follower of Judaism, a religion protected by Rome.

24:18, 19 The reference to Jews from Asia indicated to Felix that Paul's real accusers were not present, creating some suspicion about the charges against the apostle.

24:22 having more accurate knowledge of the Way: How did Felix know about the Christian faith? His wife Drusilla was Jewish. She was the great-granddaughter of Herod the Great, who had tried to kill the baby Jesus. She was the great-niece of the Herod who killed John the Baptist. Her father was the man who had the apostle James put to death (12:1, 2). Also, Felix was well acquainted with Christianity from having governed Judea and Samaria for six years.

24:25 Felix had taken Drusilla from her former husband, the king of Emesa in Syria. She was Felix's third wife. His first wife was the granddaughter of Mark Antony and Cleopatra. His second wife was a princess whom he also divorced. When Paul talked about righteousness, self-control, and the coming judgment, Felix must have been reminded of his immoral life. He refused to talk any more about the Way because of the guilt he felt.

24:26 Felix may have hoped that Paul had money from the Gentile churches or that perhaps Paul's friends would pay a ransom for him. Felix wanted to talk about a payoff; Paul wanted to talk about righteousness (v. 25).

24:27 after two years: It may be that this was the time Luke wrote most of the Book of Acts, considering that he had access to people in Jerusalem and Caesarea for information about the early church. After two years, another riot broke out in Caesarea. Felix crushed it with such force that he was removed as governor around A.D. 60.

25:1–4 The Jews hated Felix, and they wrote letters to Rome detailing their outrage over his brutality against them. As a result, Felix was replaced as governor by Porcius Festus. Festus learned from the mistakes of Felix. Three days after arriving in Caesarea, Festus headed to Jerusalem to meet with the Jewish leaders to establish some sort of working arrangement with the high priest and the Sanhedrin. they petitioned him: The Jewish leaders pressured Festus not for a concession or a favor. They wanted Festus to send Paul back to Jerusalem for trial. Their plan was to assassinate Paul on the way (23:15).

25:5 see if there is any fault in him: Festus reopened Paul's case in an attempt to appease the Jewish leaders.

25:11 Paul knew that as a citizen of Rome he could insist on a trial before the Roman judgment seat, and not the Jewish Sanhedrin, where he would find little justice. The appeal to Caesar was the right of any Roman citizen. If a citizen thought he was not getting justice in a provincial court, he could appeal to the emperor himself. If the appeal was declared valid, all other proceedings in the lower courts ceased and the prisoner was sent to Rome for disposition of his case.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Roman Citizenship

Paul was born a Roman citizen, but how his family gained that citizenship is unknown. There were several ways to become a Roman citizen: being born to a Roman parent; retiring from the Roman army; having citizenship granted by an emperor or a Roman general to an individual or to an entire group; purchasing it. A Roman citizen was guaranteed a fair trial and was protected against certain forms of harsh punishment. A citizen could even appeal to Caesar in order to be tried in Rome.

Paul was intelligent enough to know all of his rights and savvy enough to know how to use them to his and especially God's advantage. Not only did his rights as a Roman citizen often save his life in dangerous situations (22:25), they also allowed him to carry the gospel message to jailers, shipmates, kings, and to the emperor in Rome (25:11).

25:14–21 Festus laid Paul's case before the king: Festus had a problem. In the case of an appeal, a letter had to be written providing the details of the case. Festus did not understand what was going on with Paul or why the Jewish leaders hated him. When King Agrippa arrived to bring his official greetings, it gave Festus an opportunity to get an opinion from one who might have understood such things.

26:5 I lived a Pharisee: The Jewish historian Josephus described the Pharisees as “a body of Jews with the reputation of excelling the rest of the nation in the observances of religion, and as exact exponents of the laws.” Paul pointed out that he was not some stranger or foreigner trying to start a new religion. He was a Jew, a Pharisee, who lived out his Jewish faith better than most.

- 26:6 for the hope of the promise: Paul was not being judged because he had done something wrong. He had not turned against his own Jewish heritage. Instead he fervently believed in the promises God had made to the nation of Israel: the promise of a coming Messiah and the reestablishment of the kingdom of God. Paul did not reject the hope of salvation for Israel. Instead he saw that hope fulfilled in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus. The fact that Jesus had been raised from the dead confirmed to Paul that all believers would be raised from the dead to enjoy the blessings of the promised kingdom of God.
- 26:10 I cast my vote against them: Some have concluded that Paul must have been a member of the Sanhedrin at some time, since he mentions casting a vote. However, Paul was probably too young to belong to such a body of aged men or elders. Paul may have been the Sanhedrin's chief prosecutor, urging a verdict of guilty against those Christians he had hunted down in the course of his campaign of persecution.
- 26:11 The imperfect tense of the verb compelled does not tell us whether or not Paul had actually been successful in causing believers to blaspheme their faith, only that he had tried to compel them to do so.
- 26:14 kick against the goads: A young ox, when it was first yoked, usually resented the burden and tried kicking its way out. If the ox was yoked to a single-handed plow, the plowman would hold a long staff with a sharpened end close to the heels of the ox. Every time the ox kicked, it struck the spike. If the ox was yoked to a wagon, a studded bar with wooden spikes served the same purpose. The point was that the ox had to learn submission to the yoke the hard way. Before his encounter with Jesus on the Damascus road, Paul was resisting God in a similar manner (see 1 Tim. 1:13).
- 26:20 Repentance indicates a complete change in thinking. In Rom. 12:2, Paul speaks of the "renewing of your mind." We do what we think is best, what makes sense to us. Paul was killing Christians because he thought it was the correct course of action. Christ's revelation changed his thoughts, but his preaching of the Good News was visible proof that he had repented of his former ways. Genuine repentance is evidenced by changed behavior.
- 26:28–30 Agrippa realized that Paul was doing more than just defending his faith; he was actually trying to persuade Agrippa to become a follower of Jesus Christ. If Agrippa had told those gathered that he did not believe the prophets, he would have angered the Jews. If he had acknowledged that he did believe the prophets, he would have had to give weight to Paul's words. Agrippa avoided being maneuvered into an embarrassing corner by sidestepping the issue. The interview was becoming too personal for Agrippa's comfort, so he ended the dialogue.
- 27:1 we: Luke accompanied Paul on this journey (for other "we" passages, see 16:10–17; 20:5–15; 21:1–18). other prisoners: Some of the other prisoners may have also appealed to Caesar, or they may have been under sentence of death and were on their way to Rome to appear as combatants in the arena.
- 27:4–6 the winds were contrary: This was not a good time for sailing. It was just before the winter months when sailing became difficult because of storms. Because of headwinds, the ship had to sail north of the island of Cyprus, using it and the mainland to break the force of the gale. Eventually the travelers reached the port of Myra where a larger ship was found to sail to Italy.
- 27:7–9 Paul and his shipmates neared Cnidus on the southwest tip of Asia Minor, some 130 miles from Myra, which would have been their last port of call before sailing across the Aegean Sea to the coast of Greece. However, the wind was so strong that the ship was forced southward. The ship sailed along the southern coast of the island of Crete, again using the island to break the force of the wind. Finally the ship docked at a small port called Fair Havens. The season for sailing was over, and continuing the journey would have been dangerous.
- 27:9–12 Paul advised them: Paul had been at sea many times before. He had been shipwrecked at least two other times (see 2 Cor. 11:25), so he had some basis for what he was saying. However, his counsel was rejected. Because Fair Havens was a little town, the sailors decided to try to reach Phoenix, the major port on the west side of Crete, some 60 miles away. It could be that the owner of the ship wanted to get his grain to a larger port so that he could sell it. Furthermore Julius, the centurion in charge, probably wanted a better place to winter his men. In other words, greed and the desire for comfort may have gotten in the way of good sense.

27:13–16 In the morning there was a calm over the sea and a breeze blowing from the south, so the travelers quickly set sail, hugging the shoreline for protection. Suddenly a violent northeasterly storm called Euroclydon (a name given to all northeasterly storms) hit the ship, preventing the crew from sailing into the wind. The word translated tempestuous is the root of our word typhoon. The storm drove the ship south of a small island named Clauda, which broke the force of the gale long enough for the crew to take some measures to save the ship.

27:17 cables to undergird the ship: Because the ship's timbers could come apart, the sailors passed strong ropes under the ship, pulling up tight to hold the ship together. run aground on the Syrtis Sands: The sailors were fearful of the sandbars of Syrtis, just off the northern coast of Africa. The crew of Paul's ship let down a sea anchor, attempting to slow themselves down.

27:22 no loss of life: Paul had been given absolute assurance by the all-powerful and all-knowing God that no one would be lost on the ship. Yet in v. 31 Paul warned that if the sailors were successful in escaping from the ship, the Roman soldiers would lose their lives. Because of Paul's comments, the soldiers stopped the sailors from leaving the ship and everyone made it ashore alive (v. 44). God fulfilled His purpose and promise through the warnings of Paul and the choices of the soldiers.

27:42 The soldiers planned to kill the prisoners because they knew Roman military law. If a prisoner escaped, the soldier on guard would be liable for the punishment of the one who escaped.

28:1 Malta was part of the Roman province of Sicily and was located about 60 miles south of that island near the toe of Italy.

28:8 lay sick of a fever: This fever was possibly Malta fever, which was common in Malta, Gibraltar, and other Mediterranean islands. The microorganism has since been traced to the milk of the Maltese goats. The fever usually lasted four months, but sometimes could last as long as two or three years.

28:11 This Alexandrian ship bore a figurehead of the sons of Zeus called the Twin Brothers, Castor and Pollux, the mythological figures revered by sailors as protectors on the sea.

28:15 Some Christians from Rome traveled 33 miles south to a place called Three Inns to meet Paul. Others traveled ten miles farther south to meet Paul at Appii Forum. Three years earlier in his letter to the Roman Christians, Paul had expressed his deep desire to see them someday (see Rom. 15:24). The day had come.

28:16 Because Paul had not been accused of a dangerous crime and was not considered a political threat, he was permitted to dwell by himself under house arrest. This meant he could entertain his friends and minister to groups such as Roman Jews and Gentiles.

28:17 leaders of the Jews: By this time, the decree of the emperor Claudius (18:2) had been allowed to lapse, and Jews had returned to Rome.

28:21 The Jewish leaders had not received any news about Paul from Judea. It may be that after Paul's appeal to Caesar, Paul was on the first ship that made it to Italy. Or the Jewish antagonists may have given up their attacks on Paul, having already failed with Felix, Festus, and Agrippa. A third reason may be that the Jews, only recently back in Rome after the expulsion of Claudius, wanted to avoid trouble.

28:30 two whole years: During this time Paul was permitted to minister to anyone who came to his rented house. Paul also wrote four of the NT letters (Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon) during this period.

Power of the Spirit

At the beginning of the Book of Acts, Jesus' followers appear confused and fearful. But by the end of the book they are well on their way to transforming the Roman world with the gospel. What accounts for this dramatic change? Acts 1:8 provides the answer: "You shall receive power." But notice:

1. The power promised was not force or political authority. Israel had enjoyed superiority under David and Solomon, but those days were a distant memory. Jesus was not indicating a revival of Jewish dominance. Instead, the word "power" means ability or capacity. Jesus promised that once the Holy Spirit came upon them, His followers would have a new ability.

2. The ability had more to do with being than doing. The believers would "be witnesses," not just "do witnessing." Evangelism is a process, not just an event. It involves a total lifestyle, not just occasional efforts.

3. The power came from without, not from within. The believers were not to manufacture their own ways of proclaiming the gospel but to look for supernatural ability from the Spirit to make them effective in gospel presentation. The power came when the Holy Spirit arrived, not before.

4. The believers were to be witnesses to Christ, not to themselves. They were to make disciples not to themselves but to the risen Lord (Matt. 28:18–20).

28:31 Luke does not reveal what happened to Paul's case. Apparently it had not yet been decided when Luke finished Acts. There are good reasons for believing that Paul was released, since he had been found innocent by all Roman officials up to this point. Ancient tradition tells us that Paul actually went to Spain as he desired (see Rom. 15:24). In his captivity letters, Paul expressed his hope of being released (see Philem. 22) and his confidence that he would be released (Phil. 1:25). Paul's pastoral epistles contain items that cannot be fitted into the Book of Acts, suggesting that they were written later. For instance, Titus 1:5 implies that Paul ministered on the island of Crete, something that is not reported in the Book of Acts. Paul most likely resumed his missionary travels for a few more years before being rearrested, retried, condemned, and executed as a martyr sometime between A.D. 64 and 67.

Introduction

Romans serves as the flagship of the fleet of Pauline letters within the New Testament. This letter has also loomed large in the history of Christianity. Countless men and women of faith have singled out Romans as the weapon God graciously used to bring about their surrender to Christ. Augustine, Martin Luther, John Wesley, and others received unexpected spiritual volleys from Romans that pierced their defenses and ended their rebellion against God.

Romans combines breadth, logic, and a mature understanding of the Old Testament Scriptures into a powerful arsenal. By the time it was written, the Holy Spirit had shaped the apostle Paul into a skillful communicator of the faith. The result is his letter to the Romans, a theological treatise that perfectly fits Paul's description of all Scripture as "profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness" (2 Tim. 3:16). The letter represents a full expression of apostolic theology. Paul's arguments challenge the secular, pagan mind, yet they also pierce the shallow spiritual confidence of many nonpagans. Romans is a mighty leveler, for it declares that "all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (3:23). Since all are sinners, it comes as a delightful shock that "God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (5:8). This is the Good News, which Paul so eloquently and systematically defends in this theological treatise addressed to the Romans.

Author and Date The author introduces himself in the first verses of Romans by name (Paul), by identity (bondservant), by vocation (apostle), and by purpose (separated to the gospel of God). Romans has been recognized as an epistle of Paul throughout church history. The character and message of Paul, which we read so much about in Acts, appear in Romans as his signature to the letter.

This letter was written to a vibrant church in the city of Rome. Although the origins of the church are unknown, it could have been established by new believers returning from Jerusalem following the Resurrection and the outpouring of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost. When Paul wrote this letter he had not personally visited Rome, although he had desired to do so for some time.

Few clues are included in the Epistle to the Romans about the Roman believers. Paul admired their faith and prayed regularly for them. It is evident that the church included both Jews and Gentiles. On the surface it does not appear that any problem in the church at Rome was the occasion for the epistle. However, there is some indication that the believers at Rome needed to be exhorted to live in harmony (14:1—15:13). Evidence in the Corinthian letters, in Romans, and in Acts indicates that Paul wrote to the Roman church from Corinth on his third missionary journey. When Paul composed the Corinthian epistles, he referred to a collection for the poor Christian believers in Jerusalem that was being gathered from the various Mediterranean churches (1 Cor. 16:1–3; 2 Cor. 8:1—9:1). By the time Romans was written that task had been completed and Paul was about to depart to Jerusalem to deliver the funds (15:22–29).

The implication is that Paul planned to sail for Judea directly from Corinth. Phoebe also, a fellow believer, was about to leave Corinth for Rome. She was presumably the bearer of the letter from Paul to the Romans. Since practically all navigation on the Mediterranean Sea ceased after November 11 and was not resumed again until March 10, Romans was likely written in the fall of A.D. 57.

A plot by the Jews, however, changed Paul's travel plans. Instead of taking a ship from Corinth, he went through Macedonia by foot (Acts 20:3) and eventually left for Jerusalem from Philippi the next spring (Acts 20:6). Little did Paul know that his eventual arrival in Rome would be in captivity (Acts 28:17–31).

Purpose All of Paul's other letters arise from a particular occasion and have a definite purpose. Romans is different; from the content it seems to have a much more general didactic aim. Having said this, it is possible to see at least three purposes Paul had in writing the book.

His first purpose was to prepare the Romans for his planned journey to Rome and later to Spain. His immediate itinerary involved a trip to Jerusalem, but his vision was toward the west. He clearly suggests that he expects assistance from them in his endeavor to carry the gospel to Spain (15:24). But if that had been his only purpose, a brief note would have been enough. Obviously Paul had more in mind.

A second purpose involved Paul's understanding that the believers needed to "be established" (1:11). Paul wanted to give them a well-instructed faith. His letter is a kind of syllabus of Paul's apostolic teaching. Romans is a masterful presentation of God's plan of salvation for Jews and Gentiles.

The third purpose for the letter was pastoral. Paul wanted to exhort Jewish and Gentile believers to live in harmony. As in most of the early churches, the gospel brought different groups of people together who otherwise would have stayed apart, whether for reasons of nationality, status, or culture. Once they came together under one roof, the challenge was to preserve their oneness in Christ. Thus throughout the letter, Paul deals with problems arising from Jewish and Gentile differences. He emphasizes what everyone shared. Since there is only one God, He is the God of both Jew and Gentile. Both groups are under sin (3:9), and both are saved through faith (3:30). This theme of Jew and Gentile living together surfaces most clearly in chapters 14 and 15, where Paul deals with the practical aspects of being together in one body. Paul hammers home his central theme: The righteous God justifies and ultimately glorifies both Jew and Gentile by grace through faith.

Theology Romans includes the most systematic presentation of theology found anywhere in Scripture. It explains the meaning of the Cross for the believer's life. While expounding why Jesus died for all of humanity, Paul clarifies the core concepts of the Christian faith: sin and righteousness, faith and works, justification and election. The letter contains (1) a detailed description of the sinfulness of man (1:18—3:20); (2) an extensive discussion of justification by faith (3:21—5:11), including a clear interpretation of the death of Christ (3:24—26); (3) an elaborate explanation of sanctification (5:12—8:39); (4) a strong section on the doctrine of election (9:1—29); (5) a developed exposition of what happened to the nation of Israel and the destiny of God's people (9:1—11:36); (6) an extended section addressing spiritual gifts (12:1—8); and (7) instructions on the believers' relationship to government (13:1–14). Certainly Romans is the most doctrinal book in the Bible. Because it provides a systematic outline of the essentials of the Christian faith, it is as useful to the mature believer as it is to someone who wants a short introduction to the Christian faith.

Christ in the Scriptures

Paul explains that Jesus Christ is the Second Adam whose righteousness and substitutionary death have provided justification for all who place their faith in Him. By reading Romans we can see how the apostle breaks down a truckload of theological truth into bite-sized installments by using a question-and-answer format.

In other words, Romans presents a Jesus who offers His righteousness as a gracious gift to sinful people like us because He bore God's condemnation and wrath for our depraved nature. Paul makes it quite clear that the Savior's life, death, and resurrection are the basis for our redemption, justification, reconciliation, salvation, and glorification. What is more, Paul contends that the Spirit of Jesus can motivate us to live responsible, Christlike lives. That's what the second half of Romans is all about.

Rome in the Time of Paul

In terms of political importance, geographic position, and sheer magnificence, the superlative city of the empire was Rome, the capital.

Located on a series of jutting foothills and low-lying eminences east of a bend in the Tiber River some 18 miles from the Mediterranean, Rome was celebrated for its impressive public buildings, aqueducts, baths, theaters, and thoroughfares, many of which led from distant provinces. The city of the first Christian century had spread far beyond its fourth-century B.C. Servian walls and lay unwallled, secure in its greatness.

The most prominent features were the Capitoline hill, with temples to Jupiter and Juno, and the nearby Palatine, adorned with imperial palaces, including Nero's Golden House. Both hills overlooked the Roman Forum, the hub of the entire empire (see map below).

Alternatively described as the glorious crowning achievement of humankind and as the sewer of the universe to which all the scum from every corner of the empire flowed, Rome had reasons for both civic pride in its architecture and shame for staggering urban social problems not unlike those of cities today.

The apostle Paul entered the city from the south on the Appian Way. He first lived under house arrest and then, after a period of freedom, as a condemned prisoner (perhaps in the Mamertine dungeon near the Forum). Remarkably, Paul was able to proclaim the gospel among all classes of people, from the palace to the prison. According to tradition, he was executed at a spot on the Ostian Way outside Rome in A.D. 68.

The Neronian persecution in A.D. 64 was a transparent attempt by the emperor to throw the blame on Christians for the great fire that destroyed large parts of the city. The populace, however, blamed Nero and felt sorry for those unjustly tortured in the arena (cf. Tacitus, Annals, 15.44).

Greeting

¹Paul, a bondservant of Jesus Christ, ^acalled to be an apostle, ^bseparated to the gospel of God

²which He promised before ^dthrough His prophets in the Holy Scriptures,

³concerning His Son Jesus Christ our Lord, who ¹was ^eborn of the seed of David according to the flesh, ⁴and ^fdeclared to be the Son of God with power according ^gto the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead.

⁵Through Him ^hwe have received grace and apostleship for ⁱobedience to the faith among all nations ^jfor His name,

⁶among whom you also are the called of Jesus Christ;

⁷To all who are in Rome, beloved of God, ^kcalled to be saints:

^lGrace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Bible Times & Culture Notes: The City of Rome

Desire to Visit Rome

⁸First, ^mI thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, that ⁿyour faith is spoken of throughout the whole world.

⁹For ^oGod is my witness, ^pwhom I serve ²with my spirit in the gospel of His Son, that ^qwithout ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers, ¹⁰making request if, by some means, now at last I may find a way in the will of God to come to you.

¹¹For I long to see you, that ^rI may impart to you some spiritual gift, so that you may be established—

¹²that is, that I may be encouraged together with you by ^sthe mutual faith both of you and me.

¹³Now I do not want you to be unaware, brethren, that I often planned to come to you (but ^twas hindered until now), that I might have some ^ufruit among you also, just as among the other Gentiles.

¹⁴I am a debtor both to Greeks and to barbarians, both to wise and to unwise.

¹⁵So, as much as is in me, I am ready to preach the gospel to you who are in Rome also.

The Just Live by Faith

¹⁶For ^vI am not ashamed of the gospel ³of Christ, for ^wit is the power of God to salvation for everyone who believes, ^xfor the Jew first and also for the Greek. Article: Salvation

¹⁷For ^yin it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith to faith; as it is written, ^z*“The just shall live by faith.”*

God’s Wrath on Unrighteousness

^{18a}For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and ^bunrighteousness of men, who ⁴suppress the truth in unrighteousness, ¹⁹because ^cwhat may be known of God is ⁵manifest ⁶in them, for ^dGod has shown it to them.

²⁰For since the creation of the world ^eHis invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and ⁷Godhead, so that they are without excuse, ²¹because, although they knew God, they did not glorify Him as God, nor were thankful, but ^fbecame futile in their thoughts, and their foolish hearts were darkened.

^{22g}Professing to be wise, they became fools,

²³and changed the glory of the ^hincorruptible ⁱGod into an image made like ⁸corruptible man—and birds and four-footed animals and creeping things.

^{24j}Therefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, in the lusts of their hearts, ^kto dishonor their bodies ^lamong themselves, ²⁵who exchanged ^mthe truth of God ⁿfor the lie, and worshiped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed forever. Amen.

²⁶For this reason God gave them up to ^ovile passions. For even their ⁹women exchanged the natural use for what is against nature.

²⁷Likewise also the ¹⁰men, leaving the natural use of the ¹¹woman, burned in their lust for one another, men with men committing what is shameful, and receiving in themselves the penalty of their error which was due.

²⁸And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a debased mind, to do those things ^pwhich are not fitting;

²⁹being filled with all unrighteousness, ¹²sexual immorality, wickedness, ¹³covetousness, ¹⁴maliciousness; full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, evil-mindedness; they are whisperers,

³⁰backbiters, haters of God, violent, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents,

³¹¹⁵undiscerning, untrustworthy, unloving, ¹⁶unforgiving, unmerciful;

³²who, ^qknowing the righteous judgment of God, that those who practice such things ^rare deserving of death, not only do the same but also ^sapprove of those who practice them.

Romans 2

God's Righteous Judgment

¹Therefore you are ^ainexcusable, O man, whoever you are who judge, ^bfor in whatever you judge another you condemn yourself; for you who judge practice the same things.

²But we know that the judgment of God is according to truth against those who practice such things.

³And do you think this, O man, you who judge those practicing such things, and doing the same, that you will escape the judgment of God?

⁴Or do you despise ^cthe riches of His goodness, ^dforbearance, and ^elongsuffering, ^fnot knowing that the goodness of God leads you to repentance?

⁵But in accordance with your hardness and your ¹impenitent heart ^gyou are ²treasuring up for yourself wrath in the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God,

⁶who ^h*“will render to each one according to his deeds”*:

⁷eternal life to those who by patient continuance in doing good seek for glory, honor, and immortality;

⁸but to those who are self-seeking and ⁱdo not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness—indignation and wrath,

⁹tribulation and anguish, on every soul of man who does evil, of the Jew ^jfirst and also of the ³Greek;

^{10k}but glory, honor, and peace to everyone who works what is good, to the Jew first and also to the Greek.

¹¹For ¹there is no partiality with God.

¹²For as many as have sinned without law will also perish without law, and as many as have sinned in the law will be judged by the law

¹³(for ^mnot the hearers of the law are just in the sight of God, but the doers of the law will be justified;

¹⁴for when Gentiles, who do not have the law, by nature do the things in the law, these, although not having the law, are a law to themselves,

¹⁵who show the ⁿwork of the law written in their hearts, their ^oconscience also bearing witness, and between themselves their thoughts accusing or else excusing them)

^{16p}in the day when God will judge the secrets of men ^qby Jesus Christ, ^raccording to my gospel.

The Jews Guilty as the Gentiles

¹⁷⁴Indeed ^syou are called a Jew, and ^trest⁵ on the law, ^uand make your boast in God,

¹⁸and ^vknow His will, and ^wapprove the things that are excellent, being instructed out of the law,

¹⁹and ^xare confident that you yourself are a guide to the blind, a light to those who are in darkness,

²⁰an instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes, ^yhaving the form of knowledge and truth in the law.

^{21z}You, therefore, who teach another, do you not teach yourself? You who preach that a man should not steal, do you steal?

²²You who say, “Do not commit adultery,” do you commit adultery? You who abhor idols, ^ado you rob temples?

²³You who ^bmake your boast in the law, do you dishonor God through breaking the law?

²⁴For ^c“the name of God is ^d*blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you,*” as it is written.

Circumcision of No Avail

^{25e}For circumcision is indeed profitable if you keep the law; but if you are a breaker of the law, your circumcision has become uncircumcision.

²⁶Therefore, ^fif an uncircumcised man keeps the righteous requirements of the law, will not his uncircumcision be counted as circumcision?

²⁷And will not the physically uncircumcised, if he fulfills the law, ^gjudge you who, even with your ⁶written code and circumcision, are a transgressor of the law?

²⁸For ^hhe is not a Jew who is one outwardly, nor is circumcision that which is outward in the flesh;

²⁹but he is a Jew ⁱwho is one inwardly; and ^jcircumcision is that of the heart, ^kin the Spirit, not in the letter; ^lwhose ⁷praise is not from men but from God.

Romans 3

God's Judgment Defended

¹What advantage then has the Jew, or what is the profit of circumcision?

²Much in every way! Chiefly because ^ato them were committed the ¹oracles of God.

³For what if ^bsome did not believe? ^cWill their unbelief make the faithfulness of God without effect?

^g*“That You may be justified in Your words,
And may overcome when You are judged.”*

⁵But if our unrighteousness demonstrates the righteousness of God, what shall we say? Is God unjust who inflicts wrath? ^h(I speak as a man.)

⁶Certainly not! For then ⁱhow will God judge the world?

⁷For if the truth of God has increased through my lie to His glory, why am I also still judged as a sinner?

⁸And why not say, ^j“Let us do evil that good may come”?—as we are slanderously reported and as some affirm that we say. Their ³condemnation is just.

All Have Sinned

(Ps. 14:1–3; 53:1–4)

⁹What then? Are we better than they? Not at all. For we have previously charged both Jews and Greeks that ^kthey are all under sin.

¹⁰As it is written:

¹*“There is none righteous, no, not one;*

¹¹*There is none who understands;
There is none who seeks after God.*

¹²*They have all turned aside;
They have together become unprofitable;
There is none who does good, no, not one.”*

¹³*“Their^m throat is an open ⁴tomb;
With their tongues they have practiced deceit”;*

ⁿ*“The poison of asps is under their lips”;*

¹⁴*“Whose^o mouth is full of cursing and bitterness.”*

¹⁵*“Their^p feet are swift to shed blood;*

¹⁶*Destruction and misery are in their ways;*

¹⁷*And the way of peace they have not known.”*

¹⁸*“There^q is no fear of God before their eyes.”*

¹⁹Now we know that whatever ^rthe law says, it says to those who are under the law, that ^severy mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become ⁵guilty before God.

²⁰Therefore ^tby the deeds of the law no flesh will be justified in His sight, for by the law is the knowledge of sin.

God’s Righteousness Through Faith

²¹But now ^uthe righteousness of God apart from the law is revealed, ^vbeing witnessed by the Law ^wand the Prophets,

²²even the righteousness of God, through faith in Jesus Christ, to all ⁶and on all who believe. For ^xthere is no difference;

²³for ^yall have sinned and fall short of the glory of God,

²⁴being justified ⁷freely ^zby His grace ^athrough the redemption that is in Christ Jesus,

²⁵whom God set forth ^bas a ⁸propitiation ^cby His blood, through faith, to demonstrate His righteousness, because in His forbearance God had passed over ^dthe sins that were previously committed, Word Studies: propitiation

²⁶to demonstrate at the present time His righteousness, that He might be just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus.

Boasting Excluded

^{27e}Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? No, but by the law of faith.

²⁸Therefore we conclude ^fthat a man is ⁹justified by faith apart from the deeds of the law.

²⁹Or is He the God of the Jews only? Is He not also the God of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also, ³⁰since ^g*there is* one God who will justify the circumcised by faith and the uncircumcised through faith.

³¹Do we then make void the law through faith? Certainly not! On the contrary, we establish the law.

Romans 4

Abraham Justified by Faith

(Gen. 17:10)

¹What then shall we say that ^aAbraham our ^bfather¹ has found according to the flesh?

²For if Abraham was ^cjustified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God.

³For what does the Scripture say? ^d*“Abraham believed God, and it was* ²*accounted to him for righteousness.”*

⁴Now ^eto him who works, the wages are not counted ³as grace but as debt.

David Celebrates the Same Truth

⁵But to him who ^fdoes not work but believes on Him who justifies ^gthe ungodly, his faith is accounted for righteousness,

⁶just as David also ^hdescribes the blessedness of the man to whom God imputes righteousness apart from works:

⁷*“Blessedⁱ are those whose lawless deeds are forgiven,
And whose sins are covered;*

⁸*Blessed is the man to whom the LORD shall not impute sin.”*

Abraham Justified Before Circumcision

⁹Does this blessedness then come upon the circumcised only, or upon the uncircumcised also? For we say that faith was accounted to Abraham for righteousness.

¹⁰How then was it accounted? While he was circumcised, or uncircumcised? Not while circumcised, but while uncircumcised.

¹¹And ^jhe received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had while still uncircumcised, that ^khe might be the father of all those who believe, though they are uncircumcised, that righteousness might be imputed to them also,

¹²and the father of circumcision to those who not only are of the circumcision, but who also walk in the steps of the faith which our father ^lAbraham had while still uncircumcised.

The Promise Granted Through Faith

¹³For the promise that he would be the ^mheir of the world was not to Abraham or to his seed through the law, but through the righteousness of faith.

¹⁴For ⁿif those who are of the law are heirs, faith is made void and the promise made of no effect, ¹⁵because ^othe law brings about wrath; for where there is no law there is no transgression.

¹⁶Therefore it is of faith that it might be ^paccording to grace, ^qso that the promise might be ⁴sure to all the seed, not only to those who are of the law, but also to those who are of the faith of Abraham, ^rwho is the father of us all

¹⁷(as it is written, ^s*“I have made you a father of many nations”*) in the presence of Him whom he believed—God, ^twho gives life to the dead and calls those ^uthings which do not exist as though they did;

¹⁸who, contrary to hope, in hope believed, so that he became the father of many nations, according to what was spoken, ^v*“So shall your descendants be.”*

¹⁹And not being weak in faith, ^whe did not consider his own body, already dead (since he was about a hundred years old), ^xand the deadness of Sarah’s womb.

²⁰He did not waver at the promise of God through unbelief, but was strengthened in faith, giving glory to God, ²¹and being fully convinced that what He had promised ^yHe was also able to perform.

²²And therefore ^z*“it was accounted to him for righteousness.”*

²³Now ^ait was not written for his sake alone that it was imputed to him,

²⁴but also for us. It shall be imputed to us who believe ^bin Him who raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead,

^{25c}who was delivered up because of our offenses, and ^dwas raised because of our justification. Word Studies: justification

Romans 5

Faith Triumphs in Trouble

¹Therefore, ^ahaving been justified by faith, ¹we have ^bpeace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, ^{2c}through whom also we have access by faith into this grace ^din which we stand, and ^erejoice in hope of the glory of God.

³And not only that, but ^fwe also glory in tribulations, ^gknowing that tribulation produces ²perseverance;

^{4h}and perseverance, ³character; and character, hope.

⁵ⁱNow hope does not disappoint, ^jbecause the love of God has been poured out in our hearts by the Holy Spirit who was given to us.

Christ in Our Place

⁶For when we were still without strength, ⁴in due time ^kChrist died for the ungodly.

⁷For scarcely for a righteous man will one die; yet perhaps for a good man someone would even dare to die.

⁸But ^lGod demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us.

⁹Much more then, having now been justified ^mby His blood, we shall be saved ⁿfrom wrath through Him.

¹⁰For ^oif when we were enemies ^pwe were reconciled to God through the death of His Son, much more, having been reconciled, we shall be saved ^qby His life.

¹¹And not only that, but we also ^rrejoice in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received the reconciliation. Word Studies: reconciliation

Death in Adam, Life in Christ

(Gen. 3:1–19)

¹²Therefore, just as ^sthrough one man sin entered the world, and ^tdeath through sin, and thus death spread to all men, because all sinned—

¹³(For until the law sin was in the world, but ^usin is not imputed when there is no law.

¹⁴Nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over those who had not sinned according to the likeness of the transgression of Adam, ^vwho is a type of Him who was to come.

¹⁵But the free gift is not like the ⁵offense. For if by the one man's offense many died, much more the grace of God and the gift by the grace of the one Man, Jesus Christ, abounded ^wto many.

¹⁶And the gift is not like that which came through the one who sinned. For the judgment which came from one offense resulted in condemnation, but the free gift which came from many ⁶offenses resulted in justification.

¹⁷For if by the one man's ⁷offense death reigned through the one, much more those who receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness will reign in life through the One, Jesus Christ.)

¹⁸Therefore, as through ⁸one man's offense judgment came to all men, resulting in condemnation, even so through ^xone⁹ Man's righteous act the free gift came ^yto all men, resulting in justification of life.

¹⁹For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so also by ^zone Man's obedience many will be made righteous.

²⁰Moreover ^athe law entered that the offense might abound. But where sin abounded, grace ^babounded much more, ²¹so that as sin reigned in death, even so grace might reign through righteousness to eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Romans 6

Dead to Sin, Alive to God

¹What shall we say then? ^aShall we continue in sin that grace may abound?

²Certainly not! How shall we who ^bdied to sin live any longer in it?

³Or do you not know that ^cas many of us as were baptized into Christ Jesus ^dwere baptized into His death?

⁴Therefore we were ^eburied with Him through baptism into death, that ^fjust as Christ was raised from the dead by ^gthe glory of the Father, ^heven so we also should walk in newness of life.

⁵ⁱFor if we have been united together in the likeness of His death, certainly we also shall be in the likeness of His resurrection, Word Studies: united together

⁶knowing this, that ^jour old man was crucified with Him, that ^kthe body of sin might be ^ldone away with, that we should no longer be slaves of sin.

⁷For ^lhe who has died has been ²freed from sin.

⁸Now ^mif we died with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with Him, ⁹knowing that ⁿChrist, having been raised from the dead, dies no more. Death no longer has dominion over Him.

¹⁰For the death that He died, ^oHe died to sin once for all; but the life that He lives, ^pHe lives to God.

¹¹Likewise you also, ³reckon yourselves to be ^qdead indeed to sin, but ^ralive to God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

^{12s}Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body, that you should obey it in its lusts.

¹³And do not present your ^tmembers as ⁴instruments of unrighteousness to sin, but ^upresent yourselves to God as being alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness to God.

¹⁴For ^vsin shall not have dominion over you, for you are not under law but under grace.

From Slaves of Sin to Slaves of God

¹⁵What then? Shall we sin ^wbecause we are not under law but under grace? Certainly not!

¹⁶Do you not know that ^xto whom you present yourselves slaves to obey, you are that one's slaves whom you obey, whether of sin leading to death, or of obedience leading to righteousness?

¹⁷But God be thanked that though you were slaves of sin, yet you obeyed from the heart ^ythat form of doctrine to which you were ⁵delivered.

¹⁸And ^zhaving been set free from sin, you became slaves of righteousness.

¹⁹I speak in human terms because of the weakness of your flesh. For just as you presented your members as slaves of uncleanness, and of lawlessness leading to more lawlessness, so now present your members as slaves of righteousness ⁶for holiness.

²⁰For when you were ^aslaves of sin, you were free in regard to righteousness.

^{21b}What fruit did you have then in the things of which you are now ashamed? For ^cthe end of those things is death.

²²But now ^dhaving been set free from sin, and having become slaves of God, you have your fruit ⁷to holiness, and the end, everlasting life.

²³For ^ethe wages of sin is death, but ^fthe ⁸gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Romans 7

Freed from the Law

¹Or do you not know, brethren (for I speak to those who know the law), that the law ¹has dominion over a man as long as he lives?

²For ^athe woman who has a husband is bound by the law to her husband as long as he lives. But if the husband dies, she is released from the law of her husband.

³So then ^bif, while her husband lives, she marries another man, she will be called an adulteress; but if her husband dies, she is free from that law, so that she is no adulteress, though she has married another man.

⁴Therefore, my brethren, you also have become ^cdead to the law through the body of Christ, that you may be married to another—to Him who was raised from the dead, that we should ^dbear fruit to God.

⁵For when we were in the flesh, the sinful passions which were aroused by the law ^ewere at work in our members ^fto bear fruit to death.

⁶But now we have been delivered from the law, having died to what we were held by, so that we should serve ^gin the newness of the Spirit and not in the oldness of the letter.

Sin's Advantage in the Law

⁷What shall we say then? Is the law sin? Certainly not! On the contrary, ^hI would not have known sin except through the law. For I would not have known covetousness unless the law had said, ⁱ“You shall not covet.”

⁸But ^jsin, taking opportunity by the commandment, produced in me all manner of evil desire. For ^kapart from the law sin was dead.

⁹I was alive once without the law, but when the commandment came, sin revived and I died.

¹⁰And the commandment, ^lwhich was to bring life, I found to bring death.

¹¹For sin, taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it killed me.

¹²Therefore ^mthe law is holy, and the commandment holy and just and good.

Law Cannot Save from Sin

¹³Has then what is good become death to me? Certainly not! But sin, that it might appear sin, was producing death in me through what is good, so that sin through the commandment might become exceedingly sinful.

¹⁴For we know that the law is spiritual, but I am carnal, ⁿsold under sin.

¹⁵For what I am doing, I do not understand. ^oFor what I will to do, that I do not practice; but what I hate, that I do.

¹⁶If, then, I do what I will not to do, I agree with the law that it is good.

¹⁷But now, it is no longer I who do it, but sin that dwells in me.

¹⁸For I know that ^pin me (that is, in my flesh) nothing good dwells; for to will is present with me, but how to perform what is good I do not find.

¹⁹For the good that I will to do, I do not do; but the evil I will not to do, that I practice.

²⁰Now if I do what I will not to do, it is no longer I who do it, but sin that dwells in me.

²¹I find then a law, that evil is present with me, the one who wills to do good. Word Studies: law

²²For I ^qdelight in the law of God according to ^rthe inward man.

²³But ^sI see another law in ^tmy members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members.

²⁴O wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me ^ufrom this body of death?

^{25v}I thank God—through Jesus Christ our Lord! So then, with the mind I myself serve the law of God, but with the flesh the law of sin.

Romans 8

Free from Indwelling Sin

¹There is therefore now no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus, ^awho¹ do not walk according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit.

²For ^bthe law of ^cthe Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has made me free from ^dthe law of sin and death.

³For ^ewhat the law could not do in that it was weak through the flesh, ^fGod did by sending His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, on account of sin: He condemned sin in the flesh, ⁴that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us who ^gdo not walk according to the flesh but according to the Spirit.

⁵For ^hthose who live according to the flesh set their minds on the things of the flesh, but those who live according to the Spirit, ⁱthe things of the Spirit.

⁶For ^jto be ²carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace.

⁷Because ^kthe ³carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, ^lnor indeed can be.

⁸So then, those who are in the flesh cannot please God.

⁹But you are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if indeed the Spirit of God dwells in you. Now if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he is not His.

¹⁰And if Christ is in you, the body is dead because of sin, but the Spirit is life because of righteousness.

¹¹But if the Spirit of ^mHim who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, ⁿHe who raised Christ from the dead will also give life to your mortal bodies ⁴through His Spirit who dwells in you.

Sonship Through the Spirit

¹²^oTherefore, brethren, we are debtors—not to the flesh, to live according to the flesh.

¹³For ^pif you live according to the flesh you will die; but if by the Spirit you ^qput to death the deeds of the body, you will live.

¹⁴For ^ras many as are led by the Spirit of God, these are sons of God.

¹⁵For ^syou did not receive the spirit of bondage again ^tto fear, but you received the ^uSpirit of adoption by whom we cry out, ^v“Abba,⁵ Father.” Word Studies: adoption

¹⁶^wThe Spirit Himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, ¹⁷and if children, then ^xheirs—heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, ^yif indeed we suffer with Him, that we may also be glorified together.

From Suffering to Glory

¹⁸For I consider that ^zthe sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us.

¹⁹For ^athe earnest expectation of the creation eagerly waits for the revealing of the sons of God.

²⁰For ^bthe creation was subjected to futility, not willingly, but because of Him who subjected it in hope;

²¹because the creation itself also will be delivered from the bondage of ⁶corruption into the glorious ^cliberty of the children of God.

²²For we know that the whole creation ^dgroans and labors with birth pangs together until now.

²³Not only that, but we also who have ^ethe firstfruits of the Spirit, ^feven we ourselves groan ^gwithin ourselves, eagerly waiting for the adoption, the ^hredemption of our body.

²⁴For we were saved in this hope, but ⁱhope that is seen is not hope; for why does one still hope for what he sees?

²⁵But if we hope for what we do not see, we eagerly wait for it with perseverance.

²⁶Likewise the Spirit also helps in our weaknesses. For ^jwe do not know what we should pray for as we ought, but ^kthe Spirit Himself makes intercession ⁷for us with groanings which cannot be uttered.

²⁷Now ^lHe who searches the hearts knows what the mind of the Spirit is, because He makes intercession for the saints ^maccording to the will of God.

²⁸And we know that all things work together for good to those who love God, to those ⁿwho are the called according to His purpose.

²⁹For whom ^oHe foreknew, ^pHe also predestined ^q*to be* conformed to the image of His Son, ^rthat He might be the firstborn among many brethren. Word Studies: predestined

³⁰Moreover whom He predestined, these He also ^scalled; whom He called, these He also ^tjustified; and whom He justified, these He also ^uglorified.

God's Everlasting Love

³¹What then shall we say to these things? ^vIf God is for us, who can be against us?

^{32w}He who did not spare His own Son, but ^xdelivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things?

³³Who shall bring a charge against God's elect? ^y*It is* God who justifies.
Article: Election

^{34z}Who is he who condemns? It is Christ who died, and furthermore is also risen, ^awho is even at the right hand of God, ^bwho also makes intercession for us.

³⁵Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?

³⁶As it is written:

^c*“For Your sake we are killed all day long;
We are accounted as sheep for the slaughter.”*

^{37d}Yet in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him who loved us.

³⁸For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels nor ^eprincipalities nor powers, nor things present nor things to come, ³⁹nor height nor depth, nor any other created thing, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Romans 9

Israel's Rejection of Christ

¹I ^atell the truth in Christ, I am not lying, my conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Spirit, ^{2b}that I have great sorrow and continual grief in my heart.

³For ^cI could wish that I myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my ¹countrymen according to the flesh,

⁴who are Israelites, ^dto whom pertain the adoption, ^ethe glory, ^fthe covenants, ^gthe giving of the law, ^hthe service of God, and ⁱthe promises;

^{5j}of whom are the fathers and from ^kwhom, according to the flesh, Christ came, ^lwho is over all, the eternally blessed God. Amen.

Israel's Rejection and God's Purpose

(Gen. 25:19–23)

^{6m}But it is not that the word of God has taken no effect. For ⁿthey are not all Israel who are of Israel,

^{7o}nor are they all children because they are the seed of Abraham; but, ^p“In Isaac your seed shall be called.”

⁸That is, those who are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God; but ^qthe children of the promise are counted as the seed.

⁹For this is the word of promise: ^r“At this time I will come and Sarah shall have a son.”

¹⁰And not only this, but when ^sRebecca also had conceived by one man, even by our father Isaac

¹¹(for the children not yet being born, nor having done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works but of ^tHim who calls),

¹²it was said to her, ^u“The older shall serve the younger.”

¹³As it is written, ^v“Jacob I have loved, but Esau I have hated.”

Israel's Rejection and God's Justice

¹⁴What shall we say then? ^w*Is there* unrighteousness with God? Certainly not!

¹⁵For He says to Moses, ^x*“I will have mercy on whomever I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whomever I will have compassion.”*

¹⁶So then it is not of him who wills, nor of him who runs, but of God who shows mercy.

¹⁷For ^ythe Scripture says to the Pharaoh, ^z*“For this very purpose I have raised you up, that I may show My power in you, and that My name may be declared in all the earth.”*

¹⁸Therefore He has mercy on whom He wills, and whom He wills He ^ahardens.

¹⁹You will say to me then, “Why does He still find fault? For ^bwho has resisted His will?”

²⁰But indeed, O man, who are you to reply against God? ^cWill the thing formed say to him who formed it, “Why have you made me like this?”

²¹Does not the ^dpotter have power over the clay, from the same lump to make ^eone vessel for honor and another for dishonor?

²²What if God, wanting to show His wrath and to make His power known, endured with much longsuffering ^fthe vessels of wrath ^gprepared for destruction,

²³and that He might make known ^hthe riches of His glory on the vessels of mercy, which He had ⁱprepared beforehand for glory, ²⁴even us whom He ^jcalled, ^knot of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles?

²⁵As He says also in Hosea:

^l*“I will call them My people, who were not My people,
And her beloved, who was not beloved.”*

²⁶*“And^m it shall come to pass in the place where it was said to them,*

*‘You are not My people,’
There they shall be called sons of the living God.”*

²⁷Isaiah also cries out concerning Israel:

ⁿ*“Though the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea,*

^o*The remnant will be saved.*

²⁸For ²He will finish the work and cut it short in righteousness,

^p*Because the LORD will make a short work upon the earth.”*

²⁹And as Isaiah said before:

^q*“Unless the LORD of ³Sabaoth had left us a seed,*
^r*We would have become like Sodom,*
And we would have been made like Gomorrah.”

Present Condition of Israel

³⁰What shall we say then? ^sThat Gentiles, who did not pursue righteousness, have attained to righteousness, ^teven the righteousness of faith;

³¹but Israel, ^upursuing the law of righteousness, ^vhas not attained to the law ⁴of righteousness.

³²Why? Because they did not seek it by faith, but as it were, ⁵by the works of the law. For ^wthey stumbled at that stumbling stone.

³³As it is written:

^x*“Behold, I lay in Zion a stumbling stone and rock of offense,
And ^ywhoever believes on Him will not be put to shame.”*

Romans 10

Israel Needs the Gospel

¹Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for ¹Israel is that they may be saved.

²For I bear them witness ^athat they have a zeal for God, but not according to knowledge.

³For they being ignorant of ^bGod's righteousness, and seeking to establish their own ^crighteousness, have not submitted to the righteousness of God.

⁴For ^dChrist is the end of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes.

⁵For Moses writes about the righteousness which is of the law, ^e*"The man who does those things shall live by them."* Article: Righteousness

⁶But the righteousness of faith speaks in this way, ^f*"Do not say in your heart, 'Who will ascend into heaven?' "* (that is, to bring Christ down from above)

⁷or, ^g*" 'Who will descend into the abyss?' "* (that is, to bring Christ up from the dead).

⁸But what does it say? ^h*"The word is near you, in your mouth and in your heart"* (that is, the word of faith which we preach):

⁹that ⁱif you confess with your mouth the Lord Jesus and believe in your heart that God has raised Him from the dead, you will be saved.

¹⁰For with the heart one believes unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.

¹¹For the Scripture says, ^j*"Whoever believes on Him will not be put to shame."*

¹²For ^kthere is no distinction between Jew and Greek, for ^lthe same Lord over all ^mis rich to all who call upon Him.

¹³For ⁿ*"whoever calls ^oon the name of the LORD shall be saved."*

Israel Rejects the Gospel

¹⁴How then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear ^pwithout a preacher?

¹⁵And how shall they preach unless they are sent? As it is written:

^q*“How beautiful are the feet of those who ²preach the gospel of peace,
Who bring glad tidings of good things!”*

¹⁶But they have not all obeyed the gospel. For Isaiah says, ^r*“LORD, who has believed our report?”*

¹⁷So then faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.

¹⁸But I say, have they not heard? Yes indeed:

^s*“Their sound has gone out to all the earth,
And their words to the ends of the world.”*

¹⁹But I say, did Israel not know? First Moses says:

^t*“I will provoke you to jealousy by those who are not a nation,
I will move you to anger by a ^ufoolish nation.”*

²⁰But Isaiah is very bold and says:

^v*“I was found by those who did not seek Me;
I was made manifest to those who did not ask for Me.”*

²¹But to Israel he says:

^w*“All day long I have stretched out My hands
To a disobedient and contrary people.”*

Romans 11

Israel's Rejection Not Total

¹I say then, ^ahas God cast away His people? ^bCertainly not! For ^cI also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

²God has not cast away His people whom ^dHe foreknew. Or do you not know what the Scripture says of Elijah, how he pleads with God against Israel, saying, ^{3e}“LORD, they have killed Your prophets and torn down Your altars, and I alone am left, and they seek my life”?

⁴But what does the divine response say to him? ^f*“I have reserved for Myself seven thousand men who have not bowed the knee to Baal.”*

^{5g}Even so then, at this present time there is a remnant according to the election of grace.

⁶And ^hif by grace, then it is no longer of works; otherwise grace is no longer grace. ¹But if it is of works, it is no longer grace; otherwise work is no longer work.

⁷What then? ⁱIsrael has not obtained what it seeks; but the elect have obtained it, and the rest were ^jblinded.

⁸Just as it is written:

^k*“God has given them a spirit of stupor,
^lEyes that they should not see
And ears that they should not hear,
To this very day.”*

⁹And David says:

^m*“Let their table become a snare and a trap,
A stumbling block and a recompense to them.
¹⁰Let their eyes be darkened, so that they do not see,
And bow down their back always.”*

Israel's Rejection Not Final

¹¹I say then, have they stumbled that they should fall? Certainly not! But ⁿthrough their ²fall, to provoke them to ^ojealousy, salvation has come to the Gentiles.

¹²Now if their ³fall is riches for the world, and their failure riches for the Gentiles, how much more their fullness!

¹³For I speak to you Gentiles; inasmuch as ^pI am an apostle to the Gentiles, I magnify my ministry, ¹⁴if by any means I may provoke to jealousy those who are my flesh and ^qsave some of them.

¹⁵For if their being cast away is the reconciling of the world, what will their acceptance be ^rbut life from the dead?

¹⁶For if ^sthe firstfruit is holy, the lump is also holy; and if the root is holy, so are the branches.

¹⁷And if ^tsome of the branches were broken off, ^uand you, being a wild olive tree, were grafted in among them, and with them became a partaker of the root and ⁴fatness of the olive tree, ^{18v}do not boast against the branches. But if you do boast, remember that you do not support the root, but the root supports you.

¹⁹You will say then, “Branches were broken off that I might be grafted in.”

²⁰Well said. Because of ^wunbelief they were broken off, and you stand by faith. Do not be haughty, but fear.

²¹For if God did not spare the natural branches, He may not spare you either.

²²Therefore consider the goodness and severity of God: on those who fell, severity; but toward you, ⁵goodness, ^xif you continue in His goodness. Otherwise ^yyou also will be cut off.

²³And they also, ^zif they do not continue in unbelief, will be grafted in, for God is able to graft them in again.

²⁴For if you were cut out of the olive tree which is wild by nature, and were grafted contrary to nature into a cultivated olive tree, how much more will these, who are natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree?

²⁵For I do not desire, brethren, that you should be ignorant of this mystery, lest you should be ^awise in your own ⁶opinion, that ^bblindness in part has happened to Israel ^cuntil the fullness of the Gentiles has come in. Word Studies: mystery

²⁶And so all Israel will be ⁷saved, as it is written:

^d“The Deliverer will come out of Zion,

And He will turn away ungodliness from Jacob;

*²⁷For ^ethis is My covenant with them,
When I take away their sins.”*

²⁸Concerning the gospel they are enemies for your sake, but concerning the election they are ^fbeloved for the sake of the fathers.

²⁹For the gifts and the calling of God are ^girrevocable.

³⁰For as you ^hwere once disobedient to God, yet have now obtained mercy through their disobedience, ³¹even so these also have now been disobedient, that through the mercy shown you they also may obtain mercy.

³²For God has ⁸committed them ⁱall to disobedience, that He might have mercy on all.

³³Oh, the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are His judgments and His ways past finding out!

³⁴*“For who has known the ^jmind of the LORD?
Or ^kwho has become His counselor?”*

³⁵*“Or ^lwho has first given to Him
And it shall be repaid to him?”*

³⁶For ^mof Him and through Him and to Him are all things, ⁿto whom be glory forever. Amen.

Romans 12

Living Sacrifices to God

¹I ^abeseech¹ you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that you present your bodies ^ba living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your ²reasonable service.

²And ^cdo not be conformed to this world, but ^dbe transformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may ^eprove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God. Word Studies: transform

Serve God with Spiritual Gifts

³For I say, ^fthrough the grace given to me, to everyone who is among you, ^gnot to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but to think soberly, as God has dealt ^hto each one a measure of faith.

⁴For ⁱas we have many members in one body, but all the members do not have the same function, ⁵so ^jwe, being many, are one body in Christ, and individually members of one another.

⁶Having then gifts differing according to the grace that is ^kgiven to us, let us use them: if prophecy, let us ^l*prophecy* in proportion to our faith;

⁷or ministry, let us use it in our ministering; ^mhe who teaches, in teaching;

⁸ⁿhe who exhorts, in exhortation; ^ohe who gives, with liberality; ^phe who leads, with diligence; he who shows mercy, ^qwith cheerfulness.

Behave Like a Christian

- ^{9r}Let love be without hypocrisy. ^sAbhor what is evil. Cling to what is good.
- ^{10t}Be kindly affectionate to one another with brotherly love, ^uin honor giving preference to one another;
- ¹¹not lagging in diligence, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord;
- ^{12v}rejoicing in hope, ^wpatient³ in tribulation, ^xcontinuing steadfastly in prayer;
- ^{13y}distributing to the needs of the saints, ^zgiven⁴ to hospitality.
- ^{14a}Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse.
- ^{15b}Rejoice with those who rejoice, and weep with those who weep.
- ^{16c}Be of the same mind toward one another. ^dDo not set your mind on high things, but associate with the humble. Do not be wise in your own opinion.
- ^{17e}Repay no one evil for evil. ^fHave⁵ regard for good things in the sight of all men.
- ¹⁸If it is possible, as much as depends on you, ^glive peaceably with all men.
- ¹⁹Beloved, ^hdo not avenge yourselves, but rather give place to wrath; for it is written, ⁱ“Vengeance is Mine, I will repay,” says the Lord.
- ²⁰Therefore
- ^j“*If your enemy is hungry, feed him;
If he is thirsty, give him a drink;
For in so doing you will heap coals of fire on his head.*”
- ²¹Do not be overcome by evil, but ^kovercome evil with good.

Romans 13

Submit to Government

¹Let every soul be ^asubject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and the authorities that exist are appointed by God. Charts and Diagrams: The Christian Life

²Therefore whoever resists ^bthe authority resists the ordinance of God, and those who resist will ¹bring judgment on themselves.

³For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. Do you want to be unafraid of the authority? ^cDo what is good, and you will have praise from the same.

⁴For he is God's minister to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid; for he does not bear the sword in vain; for he is God's minister, an avenger to execute wrath on him who practices evil.

⁵Therefore ^d*you* must be subject, not only because of wrath ^ebut also for conscience' sake.

⁶For because of this you also pay taxes, for they are God's ministers attending continually to this very thing.

^{7f}Render therefore to all their due: taxes to whom taxes are due, customs to whom customs, fear to whom fear, honor to whom honor.

Love Your Neighbor

(cf. Mark 12:31; James 2:8)

⁸Owe no one anything except to love one another, for ^ghe who loves another has fulfilled the law.

⁹For the commandments, ^h“You shall not commit adultery,” “You shall not murder,” “You shall not steal,” ²“You shall not bear false witness,” “You shall not covet,” and if there is any other commandment, are all summed up in this saying, namely, ⁱ“You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

¹⁰Love does no harm to a neighbor; therefore ^jlove is the fulfillment of the law.

Put on Christ

¹¹And do this, knowing the time, that now it is high time ^kto awake out of sleep; for now our salvation is nearer than when we first believed. Charts and Diagrams: The Key Terms of Salvation

¹²The night is far spent, the day is at hand. ^lTherefore let us cast off the works of darkness, and ^mlet us put on the armor of light.

¹³ⁿLet us walk ³properly, as in the day, ^onot in revelry and drunkenness, ^pnot in lewdness and lust, ^qnot in strife and envy.

¹⁴But ^rput on the Lord Jesus Christ, and ^smake no provision for the flesh, to fulfill its lusts.

Romans 14

The Law of Liberty

¹Receive^a one who is weak in the faith, but not to disputes over doubtful things.

²For one believes he ^bmay eat all things, but he who is weak eats only vegetables.

³Let not him who eats despise him who does not eat, and ^clet not him who does not eat judge him who eats; for God has received him.

^{4d}Who are you to judge another's servant? To his own master he stands or falls. Indeed, he will be made to stand, for God is able to make him stand.

^{5e}One person esteems one day above another; another esteems every day alike. Let each be fully convinced in his own mind.

⁶He who ^fobserves the day, observes it to the Lord; ¹and he who does not observe the day, to the Lord he does not observe it. He who eats, eats to the Lord, for ^ghe gives God thanks; and he who does not eat, to the Lord he does not eat, and gives God thanks.

⁷For ^hnone of us lives to himself, and no one dies to himself.

⁸For if we ⁱlive, we live to the Lord; and if we die, we die to the Lord. Therefore, whether we live or die, we are the Lord's.

⁹For ^jto this end Christ died ²and rose and lived again, that He might be ^kLord of both the dead and the living.

¹⁰But why do you judge your brother? Or why do you show contempt for your brother? For ^lwe shall all stand before the judgment seat of ³Christ.

¹¹For it is written:

^m*"As I live, says the LORD,
Every knee shall bow to Me,
And every tongue shall confess to God."*

¹²So then ⁿeach of us shall give account of himself to God.

¹³Therefore let us not judge one another ⁴anymore, but rather resolve this, ^onot to put a stumbling block or a cause to fall in our brother's way.

The Law of Love

¹⁴I know and am convinced by the Lord Jesus ^pthat there is nothing unclean of itself; but to him who considers anything to be unclean, to him it is unclean.

¹⁵Yet if your brother is grieved because of your food, you are no longer walking in love. ^qDo not destroy with your food the one for whom Christ died.

¹⁶^rTherefore do not let your good be spoken of as evil;

¹⁷^sfor the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and ^tpeace and joy in the Holy Spirit.

¹⁸For he who serves Christ in ⁵these things ^uis acceptable to God and approved by men.

¹⁹^vTherefore let us pursue the things which make for peace and the things by which ^wone may ⁶edify another.

²⁰^xDo not destroy the work of God for the sake of food. ^yAll things indeed are pure, ^zbut it is evil for the man who eats with ⁷offense.

²¹*It is* good neither to eat ^ameat nor drink wine nor do anything by which your brother stumbles ⁸or is offended or is made weak.

²²⁹Do you have faith? Have it to yourself before God. ^bHappy is he who does not condemn himself in what he approves.

²³But he who doubts is condemned if he eats, because he does not eat from faith; for ^cwhatever is not from faith is ¹⁰sin.

Romans 15

Bearing Others' Burdens

¹We ^athen who are strong ought to bear with the ¹scruples of the weak, and not to please ourselves.

^{2b}Let each of us please his neighbor for his good, leading to ²edification.

^{3c}For even Christ did not please Himself; but as it is written, ^d“The reproaches of those who reproached You fell on Me.”

⁴For ^ewhatever things were written before were written for our learning, that we through the ³patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope.

^{5f}Now may the God of patience and comfort grant you to be like-minded toward one another, according to Christ Jesus, ⁶that you may ^gwith one mind and one mouth glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Glorify God Together

⁷Therefore ^hreceive one another, just ⁱas Christ also received ⁴us, to the glory of God.

⁸Now I say that ^jJesus Christ has become a ⁵servant to the circumcision for the truth of God, ^kto confirm the promises made to the fathers,

⁹and ^lthat the Gentiles might glorify God for His mercy, as it is written:

^m*“For this reason I will confess to You among the Gentiles,
And sing to Your name.”*

¹⁰And again he says:

ⁿ*“Rejoice, O Gentiles, with His people!”*

¹¹And again:

^o*“Praise the LORD, all you Gentiles!
Laud Him, all you peoples!”*

¹²And again, Isaiah says:

^p*“There shall be a root of Jesse;
And He who shall rise to reign over the Gentiles,
In Him the Gentiles shall hope.”*

¹³Now may the God of hope fill you with all ^qjoy and peace in believing, that you may abound in hope by the power of the Holy Spirit. Word Studies: hope

From Jerusalem to Illyricum

¹⁴Now ^rI myself am confident concerning you, my brethren, that you also are full of goodness, ^sfilled with all knowledge, able also to admonish ⁶one another.

¹⁵Nevertheless, brethren, I have written more boldly to you on some points, as reminding you, ^tbecause of the grace given to me by God, ¹⁶that ^uI might be a minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, that the ^voffering ⁷of the Gentiles might be acceptable, sanctified by the Holy Spirit.

¹⁷Therefore I have reason to glory in Christ Jesus ^win the things which pertain to God.

¹⁸For I will not dare to speak of any of those things ^xwhich Christ has not accomplished through me, in word and deed, ^yto make the Gentiles obedient ^{19z}in mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God, so that from Jerusalem and round about to Illyricum I have fully preached the gospel of Christ.

²⁰And so I have made it my aim to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, ^alest I should build on another man's foundation,

²¹but as it is written:

^b*“To whom He was not announced, they shall see;
And those who have not heard shall understand.”*

Plan to Visit Rome

²²For this reason ^cI also have been much hindered from coming to you.

²³But now no longer having a place in these parts, and ^dhaving a great desire these many years to come to you, ²⁴whenever I journey to Spain, ⁸I shall come to you. For I hope to see you on my journey, ^eand to be helped on my way there by you, if first I may ^fenjoy your company for a while.

²⁵But now ⁸I am going to Jerusalem to ⁹minister to the saints.

²⁶For ^hit pleased those from Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain contribution for the poor among the saints who are in Jerusalem.

²⁷It pleased them indeed, and they are their debtors. For ⁱif the Gentiles have been partakers of their spiritual things, ^jtheir duty is also to minister to them in material things.

²⁸Therefore, when I have performed this and have sealed to them ^kthis fruit, I shall go by way of you to Spain.

²⁹But I know that when I come to you, I shall come in the fullness of the blessing ¹⁰of the gospel of Christ.

³⁰Now I beg you, brethren, through the Lord Jesus Christ, and ^mthrough the love of the Spirit, ⁿthat you strive together with me in prayers to God for me,

³¹^othat I may be delivered from those in Judea who ¹¹do not believe, and that ^pmy service for Jerusalem may be acceptable to the saints,

³²^qthat I may come to you with joy ^rby the will of God, and may ^sbe refreshed together with you.

³³Now ^tthe God of peace be with you all. Amen.

Sister Phoebe Commended

¹I commend to you Phoebe our sister, who is a servant of the church in ^aCenchrea, ^{2b}that you may receive her in the Lord ^cin a manner worthy of the saints, and assist her in whatever business she has need of you; for indeed she has been a helper of many and of myself also.

Greeting Roman Saints

³Greet ^dPriscilla and Aquila, my fellow workers in Christ Jesus, ⁴who risked their own necks for my life, to whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles.

⁵Likewise greet ^ethe church that is in their house. Greet my beloved Epaenetus, who is ^fthe firstfruits of ¹Achaia to Christ.

⁶Greet Mary, who labored much for us.

⁷Greet Andronicus and Junia, my countrymen and my fellow prisoners, who are of note among the ^gapostles, who also ^hwere in Christ before me.

⁸Greet Amplias, my beloved in the Lord.

⁹Greet Urbanus, our fellow worker in Christ, and Stachys, my beloved.

¹⁰Greet Apelles, approved in Christ. Greet those who are of the household of Aristobulus.

¹¹Greet Herodion, my ²countryman. Greet those who are of the household of Narcissus who are in the Lord.

¹²Greet Tryphena and Tryphosa, who have labored in the Lord. Greet the beloved Persis, who labored much in the Lord.

¹³Greet Rufus, ⁱchosen in the Lord, and his mother and mine.

¹⁴Greet Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren who are with them.

¹⁵Greet Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints who are with them.

^{16j}Greet one another with a holy kiss. ³The churches of Christ greet you.

Avoid Divisive Persons

¹⁷Now I urge you, brethren, note those ^kwho cause divisions and offenses, contrary to the doctrine which you learned, and ^lavoid them.

¹⁸For those who are such do not serve our Lord ⁴Jesus Christ, but ^mtheir own belly, and ⁿby smooth words and flattering speech deceive the hearts of the simple.

¹⁹For ^oyour obedience has become known to all. Therefore I am glad on your behalf; but I want you to be ^pwise in what is good, and ⁵simple concerning evil.

²⁰And ^qthe God of peace ^rwill crush Satan under your feet shortly. ^sThe grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

Annotations for Romans

- 1:1 Bondservant means “slave.” Paul is talking about a slavery undertaken voluntarily out of love (see Ex. 21:1–6), unlike the forced slavery well known to many in the Roman Empire. Paul emphasizes his personal subjection to Jesus Christ. By calling himself an apostle, Paul places himself on the level of the twelve apostles and claims authority from God for His work.
- 1:3 Humanly speaking, Jesus was a descendant of David (Matt. 1:1). He was truly and completely human; but at the same time, He was God’s Son. The fact that Jesus was a descendant of David also links Him to the Davidic covenant. When Christ returns to reign over all, He will fulfill God’s promise to David to give him a dynasty that will last forever (see 2 Sam. 7:8–17).
- 1:4 The word translated declared means “designated.” Jesus did not become Son of God resurrection. Instead, His resurrection proved that He was the Son of God.
- 1:5 for obedience to the faith: The purpose of the apostles’ work was to persuade people to obey God’s command to trust Christ.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

The City of Rome

Rome was founded in 753 B.C., and by the time of Paul it was the greatest city in the world with over one million inhabitants. The forum was the ancient meeting place, marketplace, and political center of Rome. The city’s legendary founder, Romulus, is said to be buried in the forum. Here Cicero spoke to the Senate and Julius Caesar was murdered. The forum’s monumental architecture remained intact until the sixth century A.D., but has since been destroyed by war, vandals, and the ravages of nature. Although the center of power and full of magnificent buildings, the majority of people in Rome were slaves; opulence and squalor coexisted in this imperial city.

The church in Rome was well known (1:8), and it had been established for several years by the time of this letter. The believers there were numerous, and evidently they met in several places (16:1–16).

- 1:9 always in my prayers: Paul prayed for them every time he prayed. In other words, they were on his prayer list. The greatest of saints, and even our Lord Jesus, knew they could not do their work for God or live their lives without praying.
- 1:11 To impart . . . some spiritual gift does not mean that Paul would bestow spiritual gifts like teaching, healing, or prophecy. It means that he would exercise his spiritual gift and in so doing would bless them.
- 1:16 The NT speaks of salvation in the past tense (Eph. 2:8), the present tense (2 Cor. 2:15), and the future tense (13:11). In the past, the believer has been saved from the penalty of sin. In the present, the believer is being saved from the power of sin. In the future, the believer will be saved from the very presence of sin (see Matt. 5:10–12; 8:17; 2 Cor. 5:10; 2 Tim. 2:11–13; Rev. 22:12).

Salvation

Generally in the OT, the term salvation concerns physical deliverance or preservation. The major Hebrew verb for salvation, yasha, carries the sense of help, deliver, or save, and is used about 205 times in the Bible. It occurs in contexts of removing a burden or danger (Ex. 2:17) and can be used of removing someone from the danger of defeat (Josh. 10:6). At other times the term refers to being liberated or set free (Judg. 12:2). Used in civil law, yasha pertains to the obligation of one who hears the cry of someone who needs to be saved from mistreatment (Deut. 22:27; 28:29; 2 Sam. 14:4). The Hebrew word appears in many prayer petitions in reference to war and judicial issues (Ps. 3:7; 20:9; 72:4; 86:2). The noun speaks of preservation from threatened, impending, and perhaps deserved danger and suffering (Gen. 49:18; 1 Sam. 14:45; Is. 12:3).

The NT concept of salvation includes most of the elements of the OT concept and adds spiritual dimensions. The Greek term sōtēria has both national and personal aspects. National deliverance is discussed in Luke 1:69. There is personal deliverance from the sea (Acts 27:34) and prison (Phil. 1:19), and spiritual and eternal deliverance through repentance and faith in Jesus Christ (Acts 4:12; Rom. 10:10). The NT uses sōtēria and the related verb sōzō with regard to God's power to deliver from the bondage of sin (Phil. 2:12); the future deliverance of believers at the coming of Christ (Rom. 13:11; 1 Thess. 5:8, 9); and the deliverance of the nation of Israel at the second advent of Christ (Luke 1:71; 2 Thess. 2:10; Rev. 12:10).

In the letter to the Romans we find the apostle Paul's clearest and most detailed explanation of the gospel message. Paul explains that the Good News of Christ "is the power of God to salvation for everyone who believes" (1:16). The Greek word for salvation used by Paul literally means "deliverance" or "preservation." In a spiritual context, the idea is rescue from the power and dominion of sin.

Paul and the other NT writers portray Jesus Christ, on the basis of His sacrificial death on the Cross in the place of sinners, as the Author and Provider of salvation (see 3:24, 25; 5:21; Acts 4:12; Heb. 12:2). Those who repent and trust in Jesus will experience its blessings (see John 3:16; Eph. 2:8, 9; Heb. 2:3).

What exactly are those blessings? Theologians use the terms justification, sanctification, and glorification. Justification is the divine act of declaring sinners to be righteous on account of their faith in Jesus. He paid for their sins completely and finally on the Cross, and through faith in Him their sins can be forgiven (see 3:21; 4:5; 5:1). Closely related to justification is regeneration, in which the Spirit of God indwells a repentant sinner and imparts eternal life to his or her spiritually dead soul (see Eph. 2:1–5). Sanctification is the process in which God develops the new life of the believer and gradually brings it to perfection (see 6:11; Phil. 1:6). Glorification is the ultimate salvation of the whole person. This occurs when we are face to face with our Savior in His coming kingdom. At that time, God will completely mold us into the image of Christ (see 8:29, 30; Phil. 3:21). Then we will be able to enjoy complete fellowship with God, singing His praises forever.

Other benefits of salvation include reconciliation and adoption. When our sins are forgiven, we move from a position of being God's enemies to being His beloved children (see John 1:12; Gal. 4:4, 5; Eph. 1:5).

Go to the List of Articles

1:17 From faith to faith means faith is at the beginning of the salvation process, and it is the goal as well. When a person first exercises faith in Christ, that person is saved from the penalty of sin and declared righteous. As the believer lives by faith, God continues to save him or her from the power of sin to live righteously (see v. 16).

1:18 As the next verse indicates, the truth is truth about God. Having departed from godliness and righteousness, people suppress the truth about God: that God is their loving Creator and deserves their worship and praise. Sinful people can mentally perceive the revealed truth of God (see vv. 19, 20), but they have chosen to suppress it. They are without excuse. God's anger is being revealed (the present tense) against sin and the suppression of the truth.

1:19, 20 what may be known of God: Not only are divine attributes clearly seen in humanity, but they can be seen in the material universe as well (see v. 20; 10:18; Ps. 19:1–4). Nature itself speaks eloquently of its Creator. From the intricate design of the human cell to the majestic strength of the Rocky Mountains, all of God's works testify to His wisdom and power. God's invisible attributes, such as His eternal power and Godhead, meaning His divine nature, can be clearly seen by contemplating His awesome works in all of creation.

1:21 They knew, that is "perceived," truth about God through creation (see v. 18). Nature reveals God as great and good. Its gentle rain and rich soils provide humans with all varieties of delicious food. God is good. Even with all this evidence in creation, people refuse to recognize their Creator, worship Him, or glorify Him as God.

1:24 In God's present wrath (see v. 18; there is also a wrath to come when Christ returns, see 1 Thess. 1:10), He gave them up, that is "over," to their sin (see vv. 26, 28). God did not give up on humanity, but He did allow them to go deeper and deeper into sin. He gives us an opportunity to see how evil sin really is and how desperately wicked people can become.

1:25 The lie refers to idols. They are satanic counterfeits of God, void of truth and power.

1:26 The next verse makes clear that this verse refers to unnatural sexual relations between women. Lesbianism is against nature; it is contrary to the intention of the Creator.

1:27 Homosexuality is sin (Lev. 18:22). In this passage, the point is not that homosexuality is a sin that should be punished. Rather homosexuality itself is the punishment. Having rejected God and become idolaters, some men have been given over to their shameful passions (v. 26). Thus they receive in themselves the penalty of their error.

1:29–32 These verses contain one of the most extensive lists of sins in all Scripture. The list shows the exhaustive sweep of human moral depravity (compare all in v. 29). Note that while society tends to rationalize certain sins, God judges all sin. These sins particularly reveal our rebellious hearts. All, without exception, deserve God's punishment.

- 2:1 In 1:18–32, Paul declares that all unrighteous people are without excuse. Now he demonstrates that the self-righteous (those who judge others) are inexcusable, by revealing the standards by which everyone will be judged. Judgment will be (1) according to truth (vv. 1–5), (2) according to works (vv. 6–11), and (3) according to the light one has of the law (vv. 12–16).
- 2:2 Truth as used in this verse is different from the truth in 1:18, 25. There it referred to the evidence of God in creation; here it refers to the true condition of humanity.
- 2:4 Repentance literally means “to change one’s mind.” In this context, it means to reject one’s sinful habits and turn to God. This is the only occurrence of this word in Romans.
- 2:5 Wrath as used here is different from the “wrath of God” in 1:18. There God’s wrath was His present anger; here the word refers to God’s future wrath. Most take this future wrath to refer to the Day of Judgment. Thus people who continue in their rebellion against God are accumulating wrath for themselves.
- 2:7 According to this verse, it seems that eternal life can be gained by doing good. But Romans clearly teaches justification by faith (3:22). But Paul does not contradict himself. The subject of this verse is judgment, not justification. Believers who continue in good works will receive rewards in the life to come. Whenever the NT speaks of eternal life as a present possession, it is a gift received by faith (John 3:16); but whenever it refers to eternal life as something to be received in the future by those who are already believers, it refers to eternal rewards (see 5:21; Gal. 6:8; 1 Tim. 6:17–19; Titus 1:2; 1 Pet. 1:7). Rewards will be based on works accomplished here on earth.
- 2:8 Truth refers to the gospel message (see Gal. 2:5).
- 2:10 All believers doing good works will be rewarded.
- 2:12 Those without law are the Gentiles (see v. 14). Those in the law are the Jews.
- 2:14 by nature do the things in the law: Gentiles who do not have the Law still do such things as honor their parents, which indicates that they believe in a basic moral law (see v. 15). They know within their hearts that there is a difference between right and wrong. This “law of conscience” serves as a judge to them in place of Moses’ law.
- 2:15 The Law is not inscribed in our hearts, but the work of the law is written on our hearts. The Law of Moses was engraved in stone, and there is a similar moral law within every person.
- 2:16 According to the gospel Paul preached, God will judge not only people’s actions, but their motives, or secrets, as well (see 1 Cor. 4:5).
- 2:17 In this verse Paul clearly addresses Jews.
- 2:19, 20 The Jewish people Paul addressed were not only confident before God (vv. 17, 18), but they felt superior to others and considered themselves to be guides, lights, instructors, and teachers.
- 2:22 Apparently it was not unusual for their enemies to accuse the Jews of robbing temples. Paul may be using the phrase in a figurative way as an equivalent of “to be sacrilegious or impious.”
- 2:23, 24 Paul argues that these particular Jews who thought they were guides to the blind (v. 19) were actually breaking their own laws and dishonoring God (see Matt. 15:3–9). Paul applies Is. 52:5 as proof of his point. As a result of their hypocrisy, the Gentiles themselves blasphemed God.
- 2:25, 26 Circumcision becomes a useless ritual unless the person develops an obedient heart that is completely submitted to God (see 1 Sam. 15:22; Is. 1:11–20). On the other hand, if a Gentile was keeping the law, circumcision would not matter. God judges a person according to the state of his or her heart, not according to external appearances.
- 2:27 judge you: These self-righteous Jews believed they would escape judgment. According to them, God’s judgment was reserved for the Gentiles. However, Paul confronted their hypocrisy. A Gentile who kept the law would be able to judge a Jew who broke it.
- 2:28, 29 Paul pronounces circumcision as being of no value (vv. 25–27). Circumcision that is only outward is of no avail before God because God wants the outward demonstration to be the sign of an inward reality. Paul’s teaching is consistent with the Law and the OT prophets, for both proclaimed the need for internal circumcision (Deut. 10:16; Jer. 4:4). in the Spirit, not in the letter: The change of heart that Paul describes with the image of internal circumcision is the work of the Holy Spirit, not the result of external obedience to the Law. In fact, God condemns external observance if it is not the product of a righteous heart (see Is. 1:10–18).

3:2 Much in every way: This verse indicates that the Jewish people have numerous advantages (see 9:4). The oracles of God refers to the entire OT, the laws and the covenants that had been given by God Himself to the nation of Israel. This phrase reaffirms the belief of the apostles of the inspiration of the OT. The Bible is God's Word for us.

3:3, 4 Even if some Jews do not believe the Word of God, God will be faithful to what He has promised (Ps. 89:30–37).

3:5 Speaking from a foolish human point of view, Paul asks: If humanity's unrighteousness reveals God's righteousness, why then should God punish unrighteousness? Paul explains that this is an absurd question that is nonetheless asked by many, when he adds parenthetically, I speak as a man. The suggestion that God is unjust is simply ridiculous.

3:6 Paul answers his own question (v. 5) with another question. If God does not punish unrighteousness, then He is not just and there will be no Day of Judgment. The flaw in logic is evident: God's justice demands that He judge unrighteousness. To claim that God is unjust because He judges is a ludicrous argument.

3:7 The question in this verse is the same basic objection as in v. 5, except this time the sinner objects to being called a sinner if his or her sin enhances God's truth.

3:8 Paul takes the erroneous argument a step further. If God can bring good out of evil, then we should not be judged for doing evil, because good may come of it. God will be proved righteous and in that way glorified by our sin. Obviously such a position is preposterous. Paul does not even try to argue against such a senseless view; he simply assigns those who hold it to God's judgment.

3:9 better than they: This question means "Do we Jews have an advantage over the Gentiles?" (see v. 1). In other words, "Is there anything we can cling to for protection?" The answer is no, since all are under sin.

3:10–18 To prove that all are under sin Paul quotes without formal introduction a number of different verses from the OT. The collection of citations can be divided into two parts. The first half is made up of negative statements emphasizing humanity's deficiencies (vv. 10–12); the second half mainly exposes human depravity (vv. 13–18).

3:10 This is a quotation from Ps. 14:3 that says, "There is none who does good." Paul uses the word for righteous because he is discussing the unrighteous condition of all people (see 1:18). No one can be justified on the grounds of his or her own righteousness before God.

3:11 People do not understand spiritual truth (see 1 Cor. 2:14) nor do they diligently seek after God. At best, people are satisfied with externals, with being "religious."

3:12 turned aside: This means turning away from God's way. unprofitable: That is, useless to God or His good purposes. Good: Apart from God, people lack true goodness and kindness. While some unbelievers are gracious and kind, these acts ultimately have no value because they do not come from believing hearts that seek to glorify God (see 1:21). Even a "good person" can be rebelling against God and seeking his or her own welfare through goodness.

3:13 In showing humanity's total depravity, Paul quotes passages in the Psalms that describe the evil that can come from the throat, tongue, lips, mouth, feet, and eyes. The heart is compared to a tomb, for buried in it is the seed of death. The throat reveals the corruption inside, the spiritual decay. The lips are like the fangs of an asp; they contain deadly poison.

3:14 Humans apart from God are not blessing others; they are often cursing them. They are not loving; they are bitter.

3:15–17 swift to shed blood: People apart from God are prone to violence. They murder and kill because they have no respect for the life of another.

3:18 Fear of God is an OT expression for respect and reverence for God, and is said to be the very beginning of knowledge (see Job 28:28; Prov. 1:7). Because people without God are spiritually dead, they produce only deceit, damage, and destruction.

3:19 Whatever the law says refers to vv. 10–18. All the world, whether Jewish or Gentile, stands in guilty silence before God.

3:20 A legal term used of the defendant in a trial, justified means “declared righteous.” No one will be declared righteous by doing what God requires in the Law. This is confirmed by the fact that the Law was not given to justify sinners but to expose sin (see v. 19).

3:21 In this context the righteousness of God is not an attribute of God, but an act of God whereby He declares a sinner righteous. This is righteousness from God.

3:22, 23 God revealed to people how they should live, but no one can live up to God’s perfect way. all have sinned: No one can live up to what God created us to be; we all fall short of His glory. We cannot save ourselves because as sinners we can never meet God’s requirements. Our only hope is faith in Jesus Christ.

3:24 Those who believe (v. 22) are justified, that is, “declared righteous,” freely, without cost, by God’s grace, or “favor.” Christ Jesus died to provide redemption, which means He died to pay the price required to ransom sinners. By paying the penalty of their sin through His death, Jesus can free people from their sin and transfer His righteousness to those who believe in Him. On the basis of Christ’s righteousness alone, believers can approach God’s throne with praise. Through God’s initiative, they have been restored to a proper relationship with Him.

3:25, 26 By His death, Christ satisfied the justice of God. He paid the penalty of sin in full. Paul cites two reasons why the righteousness of God comes through Christ’s death. The first is to demonstrate that God Himself is righteous, and did not judge the sins committed prior to the Cross. The second reason for the Cross is that God wanted to show that He is both righteous and at the same time the One who can declare sinners righteous. Because of Christ’s death, God does not compromise His holiness when He forgives a sinner.

Word Studies

propitiation

(Gk. hilastērion) (3:25; Heb. 9:5) Strong's #2435

This term is derived from the Greek verb hilaskomai, a word which has three meanings: (1) “to placate” or “to appease”; (2) “to be propitious and merciful”; or (3) “to make propitiation for someone.” The NT never describes people appeasing God. Instead, as Luke 18:13 and 1 John 2:2 make clear, the NT describes God as being merciful to, or making propitiation, for us. God provides a merciful expiation, or atonement, of the sins of believers through the death of Christ. But since Paul also speaks of God’s wrath, it must also speak of the conciliation of God’s anger by means of a sacrifice—namely, the sacrifice of His Son. John states that God demonstrated His love to us by sending His Son to become “the propitiation for our sins” (1 John 4:10). Just as in the OT God met His people when the blood of the sin offering was sprinkled on the altar, so Christ’s death brings us into fellowship with God.

3:27 law of faith: Paul uses a wordplay here. The “law,” or the standard of God, is commonly associated with “works.” But here Paul says that a person can only boast in the standard of God that excludes human “works.” This “law” is faith (John 6:28, 29). Thus the Jews who were boasting in their knowledge of the law and their adherence to it were silenced by Paul (2:17, 23). The law could only condemn them, but God was the One who saved them. Therefore their boast should only be in Him.

3:28 Man is justified, that is, “declared righteous” (see v. 20), apart from doing what the law requires. Thus salvation is through faith alone (4:23–25). No matter what we do, we cannot earn our salvation. God alone saves, and His salvation is a free gift. No one can stand before God and boast of their good deeds. God is the only One who is righteous, and for this reason He should be praised.

3:31 Law can have three different meanings in this passage, and the gospel fulfills all of those meanings. If law here refers to the Law of Moses, the Pentateuch, then the passage is referring to the way Jesus completely fulfilled the requirements of the law. If law is the entire OT, then the gospel fulfills the promises of the coming of Christ and of the forgiveness of sins. If law is the moral law, then the gospel fulfills it because it is through Christ that people are empowered by the Holy Spirit to live in a way that pleases God.

4:1–25 This chapter is pivotal in establishing that justification is by God’s grace through faith alone. Verses 1–8 demonstrate that justification is a gift and cannot be earned by works. Verses 9–12 argue that since Abraham was justified before he was circumcised, circumcision is not a basis of justification. Verses 13–17 prove that since Abraham was justified hundreds of years before the Mosaic Law, then justification cannot be based on the Law. Verses 18–25 summarize Paul’s argument by concluding that Abraham was justified by his faith and not by his works.

4:1 According to the flesh means “according to his own labor.” As the next verse indicates, Paul is asking, “Was Abraham justified before God by his works?”

4:3 Paul quotes Gen. 15:6 to prove that Abraham was not justified by works. God made a promise to Abraham, and Abraham trusted God to fulfill it. Because of Abraham's faith, God credited Abraham with righteousness. In gaining this righteousness from God, Abraham did not obey some law or perform some ritual like circumcision, he simply believed God.

4:5 God gives righteousness to those who believe (v. 3). The person who does not work, who comes to God by faith alone without having performed rituals or followed Jewish laws—that person will be counted righteous. Paul continues to build his case that righteousness is apart from works of the law.

4:6–8 According to Jewish law, a question was settled by two or three witnesses. Paul calls two witnesses from the OT to testify to justification through faith: one from the Law (4:1–5) and one from the Prophets (4:6–8; see also 3:21; Acts 2:29, 30 where David is called a prophet).

4:9, 10 Given the understanding that people can become righteous by faith alone, apart from obeying the Jewish law, the obvious question from Paul's readers is: "Is this righteousness actually available to the uncircumcised?" Many of the Jews of Paul's day assumed that blessing from God and forgiveness applied only to those who had been circumcised, the Jews. Abraham, however, received righteousness from God before he was circumcised. This fact opens the door to a new understanding of God's grace. It is available to all people, both Jews and Gentiles.

4:11, 12 Abraham is a father both of the uncircumcised who believe as well as of the circumcised who believe. Circumcision was a sign and seal. As a sign, it pointed to the fact that Abraham possessed righteousness, and as a seal it verified that Abraham was righteous. Technically, circumcision was a sign and a seal of the covenant God gave Abraham for the land. But God would not make a covenant with one who was not righteous. Note that the conditional promise of Gen. 12:1–3 becomes an unconditional covenant in Gen. 15:18. God declared His unconditional covenant with Abraham after declaring him righteous because of his belief (15:6).

4:13 The promise to Abraham was not through circumcision (vv. 9–12) nor through the law (vv. 13–16), but through the righteousness of faith. Heir of the world means that Abraham and his seed, in particular Christ, will inherit the earth, a promise that will be fulfilled in the kingdom to be established when Christ returns.

4:14 Those who are of the law is not a reference to the Jewish people but to any who depend on the law for their righteousness.

4:15 Transgression means "stepping over." The law draws the line that should not be crossed.

4:16 Therefore it is of faith: Paul concludes that God's promises to Abraham were founded on his faith so that it would be acknowledged that salvation was only through grace, that is, God's favor. Since the promise was not based on adherence to any law or the performance of any ritual, such as circumcision, Abraham is the forefather of all who believe.

4:17 Gives life to the dead is a reference to the birth of Isaac from Abraham's "dead" body and Sarah's "dead" womb; both were far beyond the age of childbearing (see v. 19).

4:18 When Abraham was physically beyond any hope of having a child, he based his hope on God's promises instead. He believed that his offspring would be as numerous as the stars of the heavens, because the all-powerful God had promised it.

4:19 deadness of . . . womb: Sarah had no children previously in her life, and by the time God gave this promise she was well past childbearing age.

4:20 glory: Glorifying God means declaring who God is. Abraham, by his faith, acknowledged that God was faithful and powerful enough to keep His promise.

4:23, 24 God had Abraham's faith recorded in Scripture not to immortalize Abraham but to be a model for others. who raised up: Abraham's faith was a model because he believed in a God who can raise the dead. We follow Abraham's example when we have faith, when we believe that God raised Jesus from the dead and will grant us eternal life also. Belief in Jesus' resurrection and ours is central to the gospel (see 1 Cor. 15:4).

4:25 Jesus was delivered up to death, taking the penalty of our sin on Himself. Just as God brought life from Abraham and Sarah, who thought they were unable to have children, so God raised Jesus back to life. Jesus' resurrection brought us justification before God because His resurrection proves that God accepted Jesus' sacrifice for us.

Word Studies

justification

(Gk. dikaiōsis) (4:25; 5:18) Strong's #1347

The Greek noun for justification is derived from the Greek verb dikaioō, meaning “to acquit” or “to declare righteous” (used by Paul in 4:2, 5; 5:1). It is a legal term used of a favorable verdict in a trial. The word depicts a courtroom setting, with God presiding as the Judge, determining the faithfulness of each person to the Law. In the first section of Romans, Paul makes it clear that no one can withstand God’s judgment (3:9–20). The Law was not given to justify sinners but to expose their sin. To remedy this deplorable situation, God sent His Son to die for our sins, in our place. When we believe in Jesus, God imputes His righteousness to us, and we are declared righteous before God. In this way, God demonstrates that He is both a righteous Judge and the One who declares us righteous, our Justifier (3:26).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 5:1 Peace here is not a subjective feeling of peace. Rather, this peace is the state of being at peace instead of at war. The hostility between God and the believer has ceased. The believer has been reconciled to God.
- 5:2 To have access means “to approach,” as if by introduction into a king’s throne room. Believers have been granted admission to stand before God. Even though they were once rebels, they do not have to face His judgment. Instead they approach His throne in the realm of grace, or in the King’s favor. Rejoice means “to boast” and hope means “expectation.” Believers boast in the sure expectation of the glory of God. They are confident, for God Himself has placed the Holy Spirit in their hearts (v. 5).
- 5:3 Glory is the same Greek word that is translated “rejoice” in v. 2. Believers can rejoice, glory, and boast not only in their future hope (v. 2) but also in their present troubles. Tribulations refers to physical hardship, suffering, and distress. Perseverance means “endurance.” Trials and tribulation produce endurance when we exercise faith during those difficult times (see James 1:2, 3). Such faith produces its own reward (see Matt. 5:10–12; 2 Tim. 2:12).
- 5:4 Perseverance produces character, the quality of being approved. As believers endure tribulation, God works in them to develop certain qualities and virtues that will strengthen them and draw them closer to Him. The result is fortified hope in God and His promises.
- 5:5 The hope that believers have of their future glory with God will not disappoint them by being unfulfilled. They will not be put to shame or humiliated because of their hope. The reason the believer can be so confident is that the love of God has been poured out. The moment a person trusts in Christ, that person receives the Holy Spirit (see 8:9), who constantly encourages them in their hope in God.
- 5:6 Paul now explains the nature of God’s love. God loved us when we were still without strength and ungodly. God loved us so much He sent His Son to die for us (see v. 8). God loves us just the way we are, but He loves us too much to leave us the way we are (see John 15:16; Phil. 1:6).
- 5:9, 10 If God loved us when we were helpless, ungodly enemies, how much more will He love us now that we are His children? By His blood . . . through the death of His Son we have been justified, that is “declared righteous,” and reconciled, meaning our state of alienation from God has been changed. Believers are no longer enemies of God; they are at peace with God (v. 1). we shall be saved: Many take these verses to refer to final salvation from the presence of sin. But in this context, Paul goes on to discuss being saved from the power of sin (see ch. 6). Thus wrath here is God’s present wrath (see 1:18), and His life is the life of Christ in believers (see v. 18). The point is that since God’s love and the death of Christ have brought us justification, then as a result of that love, we can also expect salvation from God’s wrath. To experience this truth, the believer must fully cooperate with the process that is explained in 6:1–14 (see John 8:32). The believer must die to sin and present himself or herself to God as an “instrument of righteousness” (see 6:14).

Word Studies

(Gk. katallagē) (5:11; 11:15; 2 Cor. 5:18, 19) Strong's #2643

The Greek word basically means “change” or “exchange.” In the context of relationships between people, the term implies a change in attitude on the part of both individuals, a change from enmity to friendship. When used to describe the relationship existing between God and a person, the term implies the change of attitude on the part of both a person and God. The need to change the sinful ways of a human being is obvious; but some argue that no change is needed on the part of God. But inherent in the doctrine of justification is the changed attitude of God toward the sinner. God declares a person who was formerly His enemy to be righteous before Him.

Go to the List of Word Studies

5:12 The one man is Adam. Through him sin entered the world. Sin brought death. The result is that death is now a universal experience. The phrase because all sinned does not mean just that “all have sinned” sometime in their lives, thus referring to individual sins. Paul takes his readers back to the beginning of human history, to the one sin that brought death upon us all. The unity of the human race is demonstrated here. In Adam, we all sinned (see 1 Cor. 15:22). The result is physical and spiritual death for everyone. From Adam we inherited a sin nature. Furthermore, as a result of our sin in Adam, we face a common judgment—death.

5:13, 14 Until the law, that is, until the Law of Moses was given, sin was not imputed. Imputed means “to charge to one’s account,” as by an entry made in a ledger. In other words, sin was present in the world from Adam to Moses, but God did not keep an account of sins before the giving of the Law because there was no Law to obey or disobey. not sinned: Those after Adam and before Moses did not sin like Adam because there were no prohibitions similar to the Law of Moses. But they did sin, and the way we know this is that death reigned. They all died.

5:15 Through one man, Adam, death came. Yet through one Man, Jesus Christ, grace and the gift of God, eternal life, was given. much more: The works of the two men, Adam and Jesus, are not merely antithetical. Christ’s work is greater, for it brings God’s grace to those stuck in the sinfulness which originated in Adam.

5:16 Through Adam came condemnation, a word used only three times in the NT, and all three times in Romans (see v. 18; 8:1). The word refers to “the punishment following a judicial sentence.” In the face of this, through Christ came the free gift that resulted in justification. That is to say, the aim or goal of the gift is justification, or “righteousness.” In v. 18, the same word is translated “righteous act.” In other words, the goal of the gift of eternal life is righteous living. This does not refer to justification by faith but to the practical outworking of faith through righteous acts (see 6:16). Thus this verse contrasts the penal servitude of a sinner with the righteous life of a believer.

5:18 Here Paul completes the comparison begun in v. 12 between the sinful work of Adam and the righteous work of Jesus. Through Adam came condemnation. Through Christ came justification of life, a justification that produces life.

5:19 Made means “to make,” “constitute.” As the result of Adam’s sin, people became sinners. By Christ's death many will be made righteous (in contrast to declared righteousness; see 4:3). That is, believers are actually being constituted or made righteous. Through the sanctifying work of the Holy Spirit, the believer who has been declared righteous by God is continually becoming more righteous.

5:20 the offense might abound: Law magnified sin. What was inherently wrong became formally and explicitly wrong once the Law was revealed. grace abounded much more: The Greek term Paul uses means "superabounded." Not only can sin never exceed the grace provided by God, sin loses its threat when compared to the superabounding grace of God.

6:1 Since sin in a way makes grace more abundant (see 5:20, 21) why not continue in sin? This is certainly a possible conclusion, though a wrong one, from the teaching about grace in ch. 5. Apparently Paul had been accused of teaching this false doctrine, called antinomianism. To silence his accusers, Paul shows in this chapter that a believer who continues in sin would be denying his or her own identity in Christ.

6:2 Certainly not: The Greek expresses a response of shock, that has even been translated "God forbid." The thought of a believer living in sin in order to take advantage of grace was abhorrent to Paul. The reason believers should not live in sin is that they have died to sin, as is explained in vv. 3, 4.

6:3 baptized: Paul uses the common experience of believers being baptized as a picture of being identified with Jesus Christ. Baptism expresses faith the way a word expresses an idea. There can be an idea without words, but normally they are expressed in words. Water baptism is a symbol of the spiritual union of Christ and the believer. When a person trusts Christ, he or she is incorporated into, united to, Jesus Christ, which includes being united to His death. Jesus' death becomes our death. Christian baptism makes these spiritual realities vivid.

6:4, 5 newness of life: If the believer's identification with Christ means being identified with His death, then it logically follows that the believer also identifies with Jesus' resurrection. Having died and having been raised with Christ, the believer should live a new kind of life.

Word Studies

united together

(Gk. sumphutos) (6:5) Strong's #4854

The expression, which occurs only here in the NT, means “to grow in union” or “to plant in union.” The word describes two plants that have been planted together and are growing together, closely entwined or even united. The context speaks of union, our union with Christ in His death (6:4) and resurrection (6:5). Our union with Christ in death is like being planted with Him. Like a seed, our sinful natures must die with Christ so that we might grow in Christ and bear spiritual fruit (John 12:24). Our union with Christ is now a loving union, in which we are growing with Him “in the likeness of His resurrection.”

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 6:6 Some say old man refers to part of us, namely our old nature, our sinful disposition. However, the word man does not refer to part of a person; instead, the word describes the entire inner person before conversion, the person connected to the sin nature of Adam. The old man was crucified with Christ (see Gal. 2:20). Simply put, a believer is not the same person he or she was before conversion; a believer is a new creation in Christ (see 2 Cor. 5:17). There are two reasons (see the two clauses that begin with that) for crucifying the old man. First is that the body of sin might be done away with. The body of sin is either a reference to the physical body, that is, the body that is enslaved to sin, or the phrase is a figurative expression for the sin in a believer's life. Colossians 2:11, a parallel passage, indicates that sin in a believer's life is meant. The sinful nature of a believer is abolished when the old self is crucified with Christ. The second purpose is that we should no longer be slaves of sin. Believers are new people who are no longer enslaved to the old sinful nature.
- 6:7 Freed here translates the Greek word for “justification,” which is a legal term. The idea is that the believer no longer has any obligation to sin.
- 6:8 Dying and living with Christ summarizes vv. 3–7. Believe introduces a new idea. Christians must not only know that they have died to sin (vv. 6–8) and have been made alive with Christ, they must also believe it.
- 6:9, 10 Christ died for sin once for all. He is now alive at the right hand of God. Since believers have been joined to Christ and to His death and resurrection, they can now believe that they too are alive to God.
- 6:11 Reckon is an accounting term that means “to take into account,” “calculate,” or “decide.” Verses 3–10 reveal the truth that believers have already died to sin because they have participated in Jesus' death. Since believers have died with Christ and have also been raised with Him, Paul now urges Christians to consider themselves dead . . . to sin. Although before conversion they were still enslaved to the power of sin, now they are free to resist it.
- 6:12 Though believers in Christ have died to sin, sin is still a problem. The sin principle is still present and can express itself through the mortal body, the body that is subject to death. The difference is that sin has no right to reign. Thus Paul admonishes the believer not to obey it.

- 6:13 Verse 12 has the whole body in view; v. 13 focuses on the individual parts of the body such as the hands or mouth. Believers are not to present the parts of their bodies as a means of sinning. Simply put: Do not use your hands to steal or your tongue to lie. Rather believers should present themselves to God and the parts of their bodies as instruments of righteousness.
- 6:14 Not under law means not under the Law of Moses. Yet the believer with God's help, the believer under grace, fulfills the law (see 3:31; 13:8–10). The Mosaic system consisted of external laws which revealed the sin prevalent in human hearts. In contrast, God's grace places the believer in Christ, and the Holy Spirit in the believer. Therefore a Christian does not have to sin, he or she can resist temptation and do what is right (see 2 Cor. 3:15–18).
- 6:16 slaves to obey: Paul highlights the principle that everyone is a slave to someone or something—whether it is a person, possession, or activity. But a Christian should be a slave to God's righteousness.
- 6:17 you: Paul moves from the principle (v. 16) to the experience of the Roman believers. Form of doctrine is a unique expression. Form means “pattern,” “type,” or “example.” The gospel message is the pattern. It is the message that Christ died for our sins and rose from the dead (1 Cor. 15:3, 4). This message demands a response from the hearer and with it must be the command to believe (Acts 16:31). Obeded from the heart: The Roman believers voluntarily obeyed the message. There was no external law imposed on them.
- 6:18 slaves of righteousness: Being a slave in the ancient world meant being owned by a master. Whether slaves obeyed did not change their status as slaves, although it would affect the relationship between slave and master (Luke 19:20–26). The question is one of obligation. A person who has been freed from sin can act as though still a slave to sin (v. 16), or that person can live as a “slave” to righteousness, as a servant to a kind master who gives great rewards.
- 6:19 In human terms refers to Paul's illustration of slavery. The analogy of slavery to the Christian life is imperfect, because Christians are God's children (8:15, 16). Having been set free from sin and having become a slave of righteousness (v. 18), the believer should serve righteousness just as he or she served sin before trusting Christ. The result will be holiness.
- 6:21 The result of sin is death. The child of God who lives in sin lives in the sphere of death (see 1 John 3:14, 15). The ultimate result is physical death (see James 1:13–15).
- 6:22 free from sin: (see v. 7). The new relationship with God results in a new person, which makes a new kind of fruit possible: righteousness. This verse and the next present the beginning and end of the salvation process. Christians have been freed from sin so that they can be given eternal life. Eternal life is a gift (John 3:16) from God to each believer.
- 6:23 Paul explains that sin results in death, but God gives the gift of eternal life. Most often this verse has been used as a promise of regeneration. The phrase eternal life is used 42 times in the NT, and it usually refers to something we receive as a gift at the moment of belief in the gospel (John 3:16; 5:24; 6:40). But 11 of these 42 times, eternal life is presented as something to be attained (v. 22; 2:7; Matt. 19:16, 29; Mark 10:17, 30; Luke 10:25; 18:18–30; John 12:25, 26; Gal. 6:8). Thus we learn from the Bible that eternal life is not simply a static entity. It is a dynamic and growing relationship with Jesus Christ Himself (see John 10:10; 17:3). Through living in faith and obedience, Christians can fully enjoy God's free gift of eternal life.
- 7:1–3 Paul returns to the question of 6:15: Shall we continue to sin while under grace? Paul's answer is no, and now he illustrates his negative answer by a comparison with marriage. Marriage is lifelong. But if one partner dies, the other is no longer bound by the law and is free to marry someone else.
- 7:4 An exact application of the illustration would be that the law died, and now the believer is free to “marry” grace. Paul's words are that believers died to the law. Having died to the law, the believer is now free to marry God and bear fruit for Him. Out of the marriage relationship comes children. So out of intimacy with Christ comes the fruit of practical righteousness (see 6:22).
- 7:5 In the flesh refers to the period before the believer's conversion. In this context, those in the flesh are unregenerate, or not born again, and those in the Spirit are regenerate. On the other hand, both believers and unbelievers may walk according to the flesh, but only believers can walk according to the Spirit. The law aroused sinful desires that were expressed through the members of the body and resulted in death.

7:6 At conversion, believers died to the law (v. 4), with the result that they are now able to serve in newness of life (6:4). They have a new life in the Holy Spirit, not in the old way of the letter, the old way of trying to gain life by means of the law.

7:7 The next logical question (see 6:1, 15) is: Is the law sin? Certainly not! (see 6:2, 15). Paul emphatically denies that the law is sinful. Beginning here and in the rest of the chapter, Paul uses his personal experience as an illustration. The law reveals sin.

7:8 The law also stirs up sin (see v. 7). sin was dead: Sin can exist without the law (see 5:13), although without law it may be dormant. Without standards of right and wrong, there can be no judgment of what is sin and what is not. The law, however, with its commands against certain behaviors, can arouse the desire to perform those evil behaviors (see v. 5).

7:9 I was alive: There was a time when Paul was alive to God (6:8, 11, 13) and without the law (v. 4, 6; 6:14). Then sometime after his conversion, when he was enjoying fellowship with God, he was confronted by the law, and he died. This is a figurative way of saying that his sin nature broke his fellowship with God.

7:10, 11 bring life: Since the law points out the path of righteousness, it points to life. But since sin reigns in our natures, the law means judgment and death for us. When we focus on the law we are deceived into sinning, which thus “kills” our spiritual lives.

7:12 The conclusion is that the law as a whole and the individual commandments are holy. Our problem with sin is not the fault of the holy law of God, only of how our sinful nature (see vv. 8, 11, 13) responds to the law.

7:13 Paul asks another rhetorical question (see v. 7; 6:1, 15). Has then what is good (that is, the law, v. 12) become death to me? Certainly not is again Paul’s emphatic denial (see v. 7; 6:2, 15). The problem is not the law; the problem is sin. Sin used the good law to produce evil, that is, death. But through the law, sin is shown for what it is, and its evil and tragic consequences are clearly revealed.

7:14 spiritual: The law comes from God. In contrast, Paul said his problem (and that of all believers; see 1 Cor. 3:1–3) is that he was carnal, meaning he was like a slave sold over to sin. Even though Paul was a Christian dedicated to serving God (v. 25), he continued to fall short of God’s moral standards.

7:15–17 Being fleshly, sold over to sin, involves a conflict that mystifies Paul and other believers. Paul feels he does not understand himself. He finds himself defeated, not doing what he wants to do, and doing what he hates to do. The conflict indicates that there is battle between two identities in the believer. First there is something that acknowledges that the law . . . is good. Second there is something within, called sin, which produces evil.

7:18 The problem is the flesh, the part of the believer in which there is nothing good. The will is the desire to do good (see v. 12). Yet the ability to perform is lacking.

(Gk. nomos) (6:14; 7:21–23, 25; 8:2–4; Gal. 2:16; 5:3; Heb. 8:4) Strong's #3551

The Greek term for law here means an inward principle of action—either good or evil—operating with the regularity of a law. The term also designates a standard for a person's life. The apostle Paul described three such laws. The first is called “the law of sin” which was operating through his flesh, causing him to sin. Paul, like all other believers, needed another law to overcome “the law of sin.” This is “the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus,” which makes us “free from the law of sin and death” (8:2). By following this law, believers can actually fulfill the righteous requirements of God's law (8:4)—which is the third law in this section; it is the standard for human action that corresponds to the righteous nature of God.

- 7:22 The inward man is virtually synonymous with the mind (see v. 23; 2 Cor. 4:16; Eph. 3:16), and it finds delight in the law of God. This delight causes believers in Christ to want to align themselves with the new nature God has imparted to them.
- 7:23 The law of sin is a reference to the sinful nature's rejection of the law of the mind that seeks after God. The sinful nature seeks to draw us away from following God's work in us.
- 7:24 The wretched, or “distressed, miserable,” man is the believer whenever he or she is defeated by sin (see vv. 14, 23). This defeat occurs whenever the believer fails to live in the power supplied by the Spirit. body of death: This is a figurative expression for sin nature. Paul wants to be freed from sin, which leads to death.
- 7:25 thank God: Paul breaks forth in jubilant praise to God that there is victory through Jesus Christ, who delivers believers from the body of death, the flesh. So then: Paul concludes that the problem is not the law; the problem is the flesh. From this argument, Paul moves into the solution, salvation found in Jesus Christ.
- 8:1 therefore: This Greek word does not draw a formal conclusion, but an informal inference, from 7:25. In contrast with the preceding vivid description of sinfulness, Paul depicts the freedom of living in the Spirit. no condemnation: In Christ, we are no longer under the sentence of the law, but empowered by the Spirit to live for Christ.
- 8:2 the law of the Spirit: The Spirit refers to the Holy Spirit who energizes our renewed spirit. It is also possible that the word refers to the Spirit in us that has now been brought to life.
- 8:3 The law could pronounce judgment on sin, but the law could not do anything about sin itself. It had no power to put sin to death in a person's life. God accomplished what the law could not do by sending His own Son. Jesus came in the likeness of sinful flesh: Jesus, as God, took on our human nature, a nature that was susceptible to temptation. Although He was tempted, He never gave in. He never sinned.
- 8:4 The purpose of the coming of Christ was that the law might be fulfilled. The believer gains the righteous standard of the law—love (see 13:8–10)—not by means of the law but by being in Christ and walking according to the Spirit.

- 8:5 The Greek word rendered set their minds includes a person's will, thoughts, and emotions. It also includes assumptions, values, desires, and purposes. Setting the mind on the things of the flesh or on the things of the Spirit means being oriented to or governed by those things on which we focus.
- 8:6 Peace is the resolution of the intense warfare described in ch. 7, as well as the inward harmony and tranquility that results from yielding to God.
- 8:7–11 A believer can live according to the flesh with the result of death (James 1:13–15), or else by the renewed spirit, so as to experience life. In vv. 7–11, Paul elaborates on these two possibilities, showing the possibility and the benefit of living according to the Spirit.
- 8:7 The reason that being carnally minded results in death (v. 6) is that the carnal mind is an enemy of God. The mind of the flesh is hostile to God and can never submit itself to the law of God.
- 8:8 Being in the flesh is different from “walking according to the flesh.” Being in the flesh means being unregenerate or sinful. People in that state cannot please God.
- 8:9 Christians no longer live according to the flesh, under control of their sinful human nature. Instead, with the Spirit living in them and empowering them, they can live in a way pleasing to God.
- 8:10 Dead because of sin refers not to physical death but to the “body of death” of 7:24 (see also v. 6). The problem that Paul is dealing with in this passage is how the “dead” body, in which sin dwells, can be made the vehicle for expressing the life of God.
- 8:11 The solution to the problem of the flesh is the Holy Spirit. He gives life to your mortal bodies. Being spiritually minded means overcoming the deadness of the body and experiencing life and peace. This is the resurrection life (see Phil. 3:10).
- 8:13 you will die: Death here does not refer to physical death, because those who live according to the Spirit also die physically. It refers to the experience of those who live their lives apart from God. by the Spirit: By walking according to the Spirit (v. 4), by being spiritually minded (v. 6), the believer can put to death sinful deeds and live for God.
- 8:14 Being led by the Spirit is virtually synonymous with walking according to the Spirit. “Walking” highlights the active participation and effort of the believer. “Being led” underscores the passive side, the submissive dependence of the believer on the Spirit. these are sons of God: Those led by the Spirit are God's children, and the sovereign Lord, in turn, is their Father (see 2 Cor. 6:18).
- 8:15 Believers are sons of God because they received the Spirit of adoption. In ancient Rome, an adopted son would possess all the rights of a son born into the family. Christians have been adopted into God's family, receiving an eternal inheritance. Abba: Jesus Himself prayed to God using this Aramaic word for Father (Mark 14:36).

(Gk. huiiothesia) (8:15; Gal. 4:5; Eph. 1:5) Strong's #5206

The Greek word for adoption is derived from the word huios, meaning “son,” and the word thesis, meaning “placement.” It is a legal term that in this context indicates that believers have been given the full privileges of sonship in God’s family. Concurrent with this placement into sonship, God places the Spirit of His Son into our hearts so that we become, in effect, His natural-born children. As such, we are not just “adopted” (in the sense the word now conveys) but genuinely “begotten” by God. God makes children of men into children of God, just the reverse of what happened to Christ when the Son of God became the Son of Man.

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 8:16 A further indication of believers’ sonship is that the Holy Spirit bears witness with their spirits. When believers cry out to the Father in prayer (v. 15), the Holy Spirit intercedes for them (see v. 26).
- 8:17 heirs: All of God’s children have an inheritance based on their relationship to God, which is incorruptible, undefiled, and reserved in heaven (see 1 Pet. 1:4). Their inheritance includes an expectation of eternal life (see Titus 3:4–7). As joint heirs with Christ, they share His suffering now (Phil. 3:10) and will share His glory later (Phil. 3:11–14).
- 8:18 The sufferings of the present are slight when compared with the glory later. Paul calls the sufferings “light affliction” compared to the “eternal weight of glory” (2 Cor. 4:17). The divine compensation package is “a hundredfold” (Matt. 19:29).
- 8:19 Earnest expectation literally means “to watch with outstretched neck.” Creation is impatient to see the revelation of the sons of God.
- 8:20 Futility, which means “vanity, emptiness,” refers to the curse on creation (see Gen. 3:17–19).
- 8:21 Creation awaits the coming glory because it also will be delivered. The bondage of corruption further describes the futility of v. 20. Nature is a slave to decay and death because of sin.
- 8:23 The firstfruits of the Spirit may refer to the first workings of the Holy Spirit (8:9–11), which is a pledge of more work to come, like the redemption of our body. Otherwise, the expression firstfruits may be in apposition to the word Spirit; thus firstfruits is the Spirit. The firstfruits of a harvest was a foretaste of the harvest to come. So the Spirit, or His work, is God’s assurance of the greater blessings to come. Elsewhere the Spirit is called a “guarantee of our inheritance” (Eph. 1:14).
- 8:24 Hope is a constant expectation of an unseen reality. We are saved by faith, but our hope is in the return of Christ in all His glory and our complete deliverance from our sinful natures.
- 8:25 If we are expecting something unseen, we wait with perseverance; that is, we are willing to endure the present.
- 8:26 Though more may be involved in the concept of weaknesses, the primary reference here is to mental ignorance. The contrast offered by Paul in this verse is between our inability to know how to pray and the effective prayers of the Spirit Himself. The emphasis indicates that the Spirit Himself prays for us. He intercedes on our behalf before the throne of God (see 1 John 2:1). But His intercession cannot be uttered, which means it is “unexpressed, unspoken.” No language is in view here, only the inner groanings of the Spirit.

8:27, 28 As children of God, we do not always know what to pray for or how best to pray (v. 26), but we can know the purpose of God which the Holy Spirit desires to accomplish. work together for good: The primary reference of all things is the “sufferings of this present time” (v. 18). All circumstances will work together in cooperation for the believer’s good—that is, the believer will be conformed to Jesus Christ now and reign with Him later. Those who love God are in fact those who are the called by God. Our love is our response to the work of the Holy Spirit in us. We are called according to His purpose. God does everything, including redemption, in order to accomplish His overarching plan.

8:29 God foreknew, which means simply “to know beforehand.” This has been interpreted by some as God’s free and merciful choice of certain people who would receive His gift of salvation. Those who hold this view contend that His knowledge of future events and people did not determine His choice (see 1 Pet. 1:2). Instead He chose those who would be saved out of His own free will. Others believe that in His wisdom, God knew beforehand those who would respond to Him in faith. According to both views, only God saves; people never earn salvation through any work.

predestined

(Gk. proorizō) (8:29, 30; Acts 4:28; 1 Cor. 2:7; Eph. 1:5, 11) Strong's #4309

To predestine means “to mark out beforehand,” “to establish one’s boundary, or one’s limits, beforehand.” Our English word horizon is a derivative of this Greek word. The Christian’s ultimate destiny or horizon has been fixed by God from all eternity: to be made like His Son. Note how the words predestined, called, justified, and especially glorified in Rom. 8:29, 30 are in the past tense. That is because God, from His eternal perspective, sees this process as having been completed already. From God’s perspective, we have been glorified already because He sees us righteous because of the work of Jesus on the Cross. But still, in the march of time, we must undergo the process of being conformed to the image of God’s Son.

- 8:30 God not only foreknew and predestined (v. 29), He also called believers through the preaching of the gospel message (2 Thess. 2:14). This, however, is not the general call of the gospel to all people. If it were we would be forced to universalism, the view that everyone will be saved. Instead, those who are called by God have been foreknown, predestined, and justified. This call refers to the internal work of the Spirit in the hearts of God’s elect to bring them to belief in Christ (see Acts 16:14). Being justified means being “declared righteous.” Finally, God glorified. Though glorification is in the future, it is stated here in the past tense. Everyone then, who was foreknown by God in eternity past has such a certain future that the apostle speaks of their glorification as already accomplished.
- 8:31 The words these things refer to God’s purpose (see vv. 28–30). If God has done everything from foreknowledge to glorification for us, all adversaries are powerless.
- 8:32 Paul answers the rhetorical question of v. 31 with a question. Since God has done the greatest thing, giving His own Son, will He not also freely give us all things?
- 8:33 This is a rhetorical question equivalent to an emphatic denial. Elect recalls God’s eternal program (see vv. 28–30). If God, the Supreme Judge, justifies, then who is going to successfully bring a charge against us?

Election

The doctrine of election is one of the most hotly debated mysteries of the Christian life. Theologians through the ages have pondered the meaning of 8:29, “For whom He foreknew, He also predestined to be conformed to the image of His Son.” What did the apostle Paul mean when he wrote that God “foreknew” certain people? How are we to understand the notion of God having “predestined” certain individuals to be saved and sanctified?

In attempting to resolve these profound questions, Bible students have typically aligned themselves in two camps. Arminians, those who embrace the position of the seventeenth-century Dutch pastor Jacobus Arminius, understand foreknowledge to mean God's knowledge in advance of those who would repent of their sin and believe the gospel. In other words, in eternity past, God looked down the corridors of time to see all who would one day accept the offer of salvation through Christ. In the Arminian view, those who accept salvation are the elect. The fact that they would eventually believe in Christ was the condition that prompted God to choose them "before the foundation of the world" (see Eph. 1:3) or predestine them to eternal life. To bolster their position, Arminians point to verses that clearly state God's desire for all people to be saved (see 1 Tim. 2:3, 4; 2 Pet. 3:9). Furthermore, they argue the universal call for sinners to repent and believe the gospel is meaningless if salvation is determined solely by God apart from the free will of a person.

Calvinism is the second dominant viewpoint. Calvinists, named for the Reformer John Calvin, understand foreknowledge as a "relational" term. In other words, foreknowledge refers to God's intimate knowledge of and love for His elect before they came into existence. From the Calvinistic perspective, it is God's sovereign choice, and not a person's exercised faith, that determines who the elect are. Put simply, Calvinists define election as the unconditional choice of God that is the cause of our faith. Arminians, on the other hand, would define it as the conditional choice of God that is the result of our faith. Calvinists defend their position with passages like 9:6–24 which describe why God hardened Pharaoh's heart. Moreover, they argue that depraved, spiritually dead people could not choose to believe and would not choose to believe.

Regardless of one's stance on the matter of election, this much is clear: God is infinitely wise, powerful, and good. We cannot accuse Him of being unfair in His dealings with humans. It was our own sinfulness that has entrapped us and condemned us. Yet God, out of His infinite mercy, chooses to save.

Go to the List of Articles

8:34 Christ . . . died . . . makes intercession: Since Christ had fully justified us and is presently interceding for us, then no one can possibly condemn us.

8:35 If no one can successfully oppose us (v. 31), charge us (v. 33), or condemn us (v. 34) with regard to our personal relationship with God, then it follows that no one can separate us from Christ's love for us. The list in this verse covers the full range of experiences that could seem to pose a challenge to the reality of Christ's love.

8:36 sheep for the slaughter: Those who love God (Ps. 44:17–22) have always had to face death daily (2 Cor. 4:11).

8:37 The trials and difficulties listed in v. 35 not only do not separate us from Christ's love, they make us more than conquerors by forcing us to depend even more on God.

8:38, 39 Absolutely nothing can separate believers from God's love. The apostle struggles for words to describe the absolute certainty of God's love for believers. Nothing hard or dangerous, neither death nor life, can separate us. If God, the uncreated One, is for us, and no created thing can separate us, then our security in Him is absolute.

9:1–3 At the end of ch. 8 Paul established that: (1) God has a purpose for believers, (2) nothing can prevent that purpose from being fulfilled, and (3) no one can separate God's people from His love. But what about the Jewish people? God had a purpose for Israel and God had said He loved Israel. Yet Israel appears to be excluded from God's program. Paul addresses this problem in chs. 9–11.

accursed from Christ: Paul's pain was so great that he was willing, if possible, to be separated from Christ if it meant Israel could be united to Him (see Ex. 32:32).

9:4, 5 Paul lists some of the great privileges of Israel. For example, they were called Israelites. Israel was the name given to their ancestor Jacob as an expression of God's favor (see Gen. 32:28).

Christ: Their supreme privilege was that the Messiah came through them. eternally blessed God: Jesus Christ is God in the flesh.

9:6 The word of God in this context is a reference to God's promises to Israel. Paul is declaring that God's purposes and promises have not failed. not all Israel: Not all the physical descendants of Jacob (Israel) inherited the promises of God.

9:7 Abraham is another illustration of Paul's point that physical descent is no guarantee of a place in God's family. Abraham had two sons, Ishmael and Isaac; but Isaac inherited the promises, not Ishmael.

9:8 of the flesh: Just being a physical descendant of Abraham does not mean inheriting God's promise to Abraham and his offspring.

9:10 The children of Isaac are still another illustration of Paul's point. God's promise to Isaac was never intended to be fulfilled through Esau.

9:11 not yet . . . born: God chose Jacob over Esau before they were born. Neither had done any good or evil at the time the choice was made. It was not based in any way on their works. It was solely based on Him who calls. God did not elect Jacob because of anything Jacob did; his election was based on grace.

9:13 hated: Actually God made provision for Esau (see Gen. 27:39; 36; Deut. 23:7). Hated is an idiom where the opposite is used to express a lesser degree. For example, Gen. 29:30 says Jacob loved Rachel more than Leah, but the next verse (literally translated) says that Leah was hated. What Paul is saying is that Esau was not the object of God's electing purpose.

9:14 If God chose some of Abraham's descendants (v. 6), like Isaac over Ishmael (vv. 7–9), or Jacob over Esau (vv. 10–13), then is there unrighteousness with God? The complaint is that if God chose Isaac or Jacob without regard to their works, then this would have been unrighteous or unjust. If God's election and rejection was based on the evil deeds of one or the good deeds of the other, the question of God's "fairness" would never have arisen. This question is the theme of chs. 9–11.

9:15 Paul's response to the question posed in v. 14 is not to justify God's actions or choices but to state the unequivocal sovereignty of God in doing as He wills. I will have mercy: In this passage from Exodus, God states His absolute right not to be questioned by His creatures about His decisions (Ex. 33:19). With these words about mercy and compassion God revealed His character to Moses when he asked to behold the glory of God. Those who question God in these matters have not seen the glory of God that Moses was allowed to see.

9:16 but of God: The basis of God's sovereign choice is not a person's conduct, but God's compassion. God is free to show mercy to whom He chooses.

9:17, 18 Pharaoh refused to obey the Lord (Ex. 5:2) and hardened his heart (see Ex. 7:13, 14, 22; 8:15, 32; 9:7). God used Pharaoh's sin to demonstrate His power and magnify His name. hardens: God only gave Pharaoh over to what Pharaoh had already chosen to do. Nevertheless the fact remains that God sovereignly chooses to have mercy on some and to withhold it from others.

9:19, 20 Find fault means "to blame." Paul again poses human questions that he will answer in vv. 20, 21. If God hardens whom He wills (v. 18), why blame the one who was hardened? His will: If God hardens, how can it be said that person is resisting God? Isn't the hardened one only doing what God has willed him to do? Reply means "to make a rejoinder," implying an argumentative attitude. Paul rebukes anyone who would raise such objections, which in the end are only a protest against God's ways, and not a sincere request for an explanation.

9:21 The word translated power can mean "right" or "authority." Paul insists on God's right to do as He pleases.

9:22, 23 What if: Some insist that Paul is raising only the possibility of a vessel designed for destruction. Others take the passage literally, that God prepares some for eternal doom. prepared for destruction . . . prepared beforehand for glory: The grammatical structure of the first prepared, referring to the vessels of wrath, is different from the second prepared, referring to the vessels of mercy. The first literally means “prepared themselves,” while the second is “which He prepared.” If we are doomed, it is because of our rejection of God; if we are redeemed, it is because of the grace of God. The question is not: Why are some saved and some condemned? Everyone deserves condemnation. It is only by God’s grace that anyone is saved.

9:24–29 God calls both Jews and Gentiles. Paul quotes several OT passages to support this point.

9:30–32 The question is: Since Israel had the law and pursued righteousness, why have they not attained it? Was it because they were not elected? The answer is that they did not obtain righteousness because they did not believe. They tried obtaining righteousness by the works of the law. Being committed to a righteousness by works, they stumbled over the righteousness of faith offered in Christ.

10:1 saved: This word is used in the NT in several different ways (see 1:16). In Romans, Paul seems to make a distinction between justification and salvation (see 5:9, 10); the reader must pay attention to the context. Justification is what takes place at the moment of faith in Christ. Salvation, at least in Romans, refers to the work of God in the believer that continues after justification. It is deliverance from God’s wrath (see 1:18; 5:9, 10). The logical conclusion from ch. 9 is that Israel is under divine wrath (see 9:22). Paul’s deep desire and prayer is that Israel may be justified and saved from His wrath.

10:2 Israel had a zeal for God; outwardly, they were very religious. But their effort was not according to knowledge. They lacked a correct understanding of the kind of worship God wanted from them. Paul explains Israel’s ignorance in vv. 3–13.

10:3 God’s righteousness is the righteousness that belongs to God, and more specifically in this context, the righteousness God gives when a person trusts Christ. not submitted: This means “to obey.” Israel did not obey God’s command to believe (see 1:5; 6:17; Acts 16:31).

10:4 End can mean “fulfillment”; that is, Christ fulfilled all the requirements of the law. It can also mean “goal,” to say that Christ was the object to which the law led. The point is that Israel was ignorant of God’s righteousness because they failed to comprehend what the law was intended to do. The law revealed sin and showed that people could not hope to keep the law. Christ came and fulfilled it, then offered us His righteousness through faith in Him.

10:5–8 There are two kinds of righteousness, by works or by faith. One is inaccessible, the other is very accessible. Paul uses the words of Deut. 30:11–14 to demonstrate that righteousness by faith is not far off and inaccessible, but is as near as a person’s mouth and heart. All one has to do is repent, believe in Jesus, and confess that belief.

Righteousness

What is righteousness? Most of us immediately think of a person trying to keep a list of rules, like a little boy or girl who never steps over the line. When Paul speaks of righteousness in Romans, he means far more than this commonsense understanding of the word. He draws on the Old Testament concept of righteousness, which speaks of a proper relationship between God and a person, or between God and His people.

In the Old Testament, righteousness is fundamentally an attribute of God (Ps. 71:15; 119:42). He alone is truly righteous. He is the One who remains faithful, to His promises, His covenant with Israel, and the Law. In turn, the Israelites as God's people had the responsibility to exemplify God's righteousness on this earth. Ultimately, this meant they had to love and worship the living God alone. The Law of Moses could be summed up in that command and its corollary, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself" (Lev. 19:18; Mark 12:31). Tragically, the Israelites did not comply. They proved unfaithful to the covenant, although God proved Himself as faithful. By sending prophets to His people, the Lord warned them again and again of their sinfulness. Finally He had to discipline them, with famine, military defeat, and even exile in Babylon. But God remained faithful, and He restored His people to the land and to Himself when they repented and turned to Him.

After their return from Babylon, the Israelites confused righteousness with a strict adherence to the Law as recorded in the Pentateuch. Indeed, the Jewish religious leaders added numerous amendments to the Law to ensure that no one would inadvertently break it. Zealous obedience to the Law was equated with righteousness. Yet mere external compliance to a set of rules did not please the Lord. What God wanted was repentant, humbled hearts that truly worshiped Him. He wanted to be the God of their hearts and minds, and the center of their devotion.

In his letter to the Romans, Paul clearly states that no one has achieved this standard; no one has completely loved and worshiped the Lord as they should (3:23). All have sinned. No good work or outward appearance of piety can restore a proper relationship with the Holy One (see Is. 64:6). On the one hand, the Gentiles did not pursue a right relationship with their Creator, so they had been given over to all kinds of evil (1:18–31). On the other hand, the Jews through external obedience to the Law and their traditions were attempting to justify themselves before God (9:31, 32). Both failed. Jesus is the only One who can stand before the glorious God; He is the only One who is truly righteous. Remarkably, He has offered us a way out of our slavery to sin. By placing our faith and trust in Him, we can be declared righteous. We can have a righteousness that has nothing to do with our own works but instead relies on Jesus' sinless life and His sacrificial death for our sins. The Lord forgives us and declares us righteous because of our identification by faith with the righteousness of His Son (4:5). Through Jesus, we can finally be released from the guilt of our sins. Not only can we approach the Holy One in praise and thankfulness, but we can do God's will.

10:9 Confess comes before believe in this verse because "mouth" precedes "heart" in Deuteronomy (see v. 8). The order is reversed in the next verse. One has to confess with the mouth to be saved.

10:10 For indicates that this verse explains v. 9. The condition for righteousness, that is for being justified, is internal faith. The condition of salvation, meaning deliverance from wrath and from the power of sin, is external confession (see v. 1; 5:9, 10), which is calling on the Lord for help (see vv. 12, 13).

10:11–13 Paul emphasizes the universal offer of salvation. Whoever in vv. 11, 13 means "all." Verse 12 explains that this includes Jew and Greek (Gentile).

10:16 they: Israel. Not all Jews have obeyed the command to believe in Christ.

10:18–21 Israel heard but was disobedient; only a remnant believed the gospel.

11:1 One of the proofs that God has not cast away the Jewish people is Paul himself. He was an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, a member of the tribe of Benjamin. He was a Jew, and he was chosen by God to be a believer and an apostle.

11:2 In this verse, His people refers to the nation of Israel and not just the elect within the nation. In vv. 4–7 Paul differentiates between the nation and the remnant, but his point there is that God's saving of the remnant proves that He has not abandoned His plan for the nation (see v. 26). whom

He foreknew: See 8:29.

11:3–5 Paul cites Elijah as an illustration. Elijah thought that the whole nation of Israel had fallen away, but he was wrong. The remnant in Elijah's day was proof that God had not cast off His people, and the remnant in Paul's day was continuing proof of His faithfulness.

11:6 if by grace, then it is no longer of works: Grace and works are mutually exclusive. God's election was established solely on the basis of grace (see v. 5).

11:7 What Israel seeks is righteousness (see 9:31-10:3). The elect have obtained righteousness by faith. The others were blinded because they did not believe.

11:8–10 Paul quotes Isaiah and David to show that Israel's spiritual indifference was a continual pattern. Their rejection of Christ would bring untold misery on the nation.

11:11 fall: Does Israel's rejection mean the end of God's program for the nation? Certainly not! Israel's unbelief brought salvation . . . to the Gentiles, and it will ultimately lead to Israel's salvation (see v. 26).

11:12 fullness: The nation of Israel, chosen by God to receive salvation, will be saved along with believing Gentiles, resulting in great blessing for everyone (see v. 26).

11:14 save some: Paul is revealing his great desire to see the salvation of all of Israel (see vv. 12, 26).

11:15 life from the dead: The failure of Israel in rejecting Christ will make their eventual acceptance as vivid and wonderful as the resurrection that all believers will experience; it will be as if they had come back from the dead.

11:17 The wild olive tree is the Gentile Christians. The olive tree refers to Israel, those who inherited the promises of the Abrahamic covenant (see Gen. 12:1, 2; 17:7, 8; see also Hos. 14:6). grafted in: Paul intentionally stretches the analogy of grafting in order to communicate his point that Gentiles have been supernaturally connected to the family of God.

11:18 Gentiles, who have been grafted into the Abrahamic covenant and therefore become recipients of God's blessing, should not boast. Gentile believers should not despise the Jews, the branches of God's vine.

11:19 The reason Israel was broken off (v. 17), "cast away" (v. 15), and has fallen (v. 12) is so that Gentiles could be grafted into the tree.

11:20 Well said: Paul agrees with the objector (see v. 19) that Israel was broken off because of unbelief and that Gentiles stand by faith. But he goes on to warn that Gentiles should not be haughty, but fear. Standing before God is based on faith. Feelings of superiority are out of place.

11:21 Paul was warning the Gentiles not to be arrogant (v. 20), but to remember that they depended on God and were accountable to Him no less than the Jews were.

11:22, 23 If Gentiles continue in God's goodness, they will not be cut off, and if Jews turn to God in faith, they can be grafted in again. This is not a reference to individual salvation but to God's program for Jews and Gentiles.

11:24 It is far more natural to expect Israel, the natural branches, to be grafted in, than to expect Gentiles, the wild branches, to be included.

11:25 If believers do not understand this mystery, chances are they will be wise in their own opinion, meaning they will be haughty (v. 20) and boast (v. 18). The mystery is that Israel has been temporarily and partially hardened, but God has not rejected them.

mystery

(Gk. mustērion) (11:25; 16:25; 1 Cor. 2:7; Eph. 1:9; 3:3, 4, 9) Strong's #3466

The word mystery, so often used by Paul, does not mean something incomprehensible, but something that had been kept secret and now has been disclosed. In Paul's cultural and religious milieu, the term was often used with reference to the mystery religions. Adherents to the mystery religions used the term to speak of the secret knowledge of the religion revealed only to the initiated ones. In contrast, Paul uses the word to speak of a secret that has been openly revealed to all.

Go to the List of Word Studies

11:26 All Israel does not mean that every individual in the nation will turn to the Lord. It means that the nation as a whole will be saved, just as the nation as a whole (but not every individual in it) was now rejecting the Lord.

11:28, 29 The Jews are enemies in that they reject the gospel. For the sake of the fathers refers to the promises God made to the patriarchs. Irrevocable means “not to repent.” God does not change His mind. He made promises to the patriarchs (v. 28) and He will fulfill them.

11:36 God is the source, means, and end of all things. He is the Creator, Sustainer, and the goal of everything. Therefore He should be praised and glorified forever.

12:1 Based on God's mercy (see 9:11, 15, 16, 18, 23; 11:30–32), Paul entreats believers to present their bodies as a living sacrifice, meaning they should use their bodies to serve and obey God (see 6:13). Such giving of the body to God is more than a contrast with a dead animal sacrifice, it is “newness of life” (see 6:4). Holy means set apart for the Lord's use; acceptable means pleasing to Him; and reasonable indicates that such a gift is the only rational reaction to all the good gifts God has showered on us.

12:2 Conformed means “to form” or “mold.” World is the normal word for “age” or “era.” Instead of being molded by the values of this world, the believer should be transformed, that is, changed by the renewing of the mind. Spiritual transformation starts in the mind and heart. A mind dedicated to the world and its concerns will produce a life tossed back and forth by the currents of culture. But a mind dedicated to God's truth will produce a life that can stand the test of time. We can resist the temptations of our culture by meditating on God's truth and letting the Holy Spirit guide and shape our thoughts and behaviors.

(Gk. metamorphoō) (12:2; Matt. 17:2; 2 Cor. 3:18) Strong's #3339

The Greek word means “to change form,” as does the English derivative metamorphosis. In the NT, this word is used to describe an inward renewal of our mind through which our inner spirit is changed into the likeness of Christ. Paul told the Roman believers: “Be transformed by the renewing of your minds” (12:2). As our Christian life progresses, we should gradually notice that our thought life is being changed from Christlessness to Christlikeness. Transformation does not happen overnight. Our regeneration is instantaneous, but our transformation is continuous. We are conformed to Christ’s image gradually as we spend time in intimate fellowship with Him (see 2 Cor. 3:18).

Go to the List of Word Studies

12:3 think of himself: A renewed mind (v. 2) begins with thinking soberly about oneself. The first step in changing behavior is self-observation (see 1 Cor. 11:28–32). to each one: God has given everyone one or more gifts that can be used in His service. dealt . . . a measure of faith: The measure refers to God’s sovereignly given gifts mentioned in vv. 6–8. These gifts are not the result of intense prayer or spirituality. Instead, God simply gives everyone certain gifts so each person can strengthen the church (see 1 Cor. 12:11, 18, 28).

12:4, 5 As the human body is a unity with many members, each having its own function, so is the body of Christ. The church is a unified body under the headship of Christ, but the members have different functions (see 1 Cor. 12:12–31).

12:6 gifts: The Greek word (charismata) refers to God-given abilities that should be used to build up other members in the church. Although they are “irrevocable” and, thus do not change (see 11:29), they are to be pursued and developed (see 1 Pet. 4:10). prophecy: This word is used here in a general sense for all types of gifts that involve speaking God’s word. For example, in 1 Cor. 14:3 “exhortation” appears as a prophesying gift. In its narrower sense, prophecy means the revealing of God’s will in a particular situation (see Acts 13:1–3).

12:7, 8 Ministry means “service” and is in contrast to the speaking gifts (see 1 Pet. 4:11). The Scriptures list five speaking gifts: prophecy, teaching, encouragement, the word of wisdom, and the word of knowledge. In addition, seven serving gifts are named: helps, mercy, faith, discernment of spirits, leadership, managing, and giving.

12:10 There are at least four Greek words for love, not all of which are used in the NT. (1) The highest form of love is agape. This is a self-sacrificial love. It involves an act of the will whereby one seeks the best for another. Agape is used in v. 9. (2) The Greek word philos means “affectionate regard,” and the derived form philadelphia is translated brotherly love in this verse. (3) Philostorgos means “family affection” and is translated kindly affectionate in this verse. (4) Eros means physical love and does not occur in the NT. preference to one another: The greatest proof of the truth of the gospel message and of the reality of Jesus’ love is the love believers show to each other. Christ is the model for such self-sacrificial love (see Phil. 2:3–8).

12:11 in diligence: Christians should not offer their service half-heartedly or in a lazy manner.

Instead, Paul encourages the Romans to serve eagerly and in earnest.

12:13 Hospitality means “love of strangers.” The primary reference is to housing travelers, though all forms of hospitality are included. The progression in this verse is significant. As we dedicate ourselves to meeting the needs of our fellow believers, we will have opportunities to serve strangers and thus witness to them about the love of Christ.

12:14 Bless means “to speak well of” or “praise.”

12:15 rejoice . . . weep: Because believers are a body, when one part hurts, everyone feels the pain; when one is joyful, everyone can rejoice. Christians cannot be indifferent to the suffering or joy of their fellow believers (see 1 Cor. 12:25, 26).

12:17 The word good in this verse means “morally good,” “noble,” or “praiseworthy.” This is the positive side of the negative command not to return evil for evil (see 1 Pet. 3:9). A Christian should not concentrate on the evil in others, but instead should focus on what is good. By doing so, we encourage others around us to aspire to the good.

12:18 The believer’s aim should be to live peaceably. But sometimes peace is not within our control; this is why Paul limits the command.

12:19 Believers are not to seek personal revenge, but rather to let God punish.

12:20 Freed from vengeance, believers can give themselves to mercy, even toward their enemies. By acts of kindness, the believers will heap coals of fire on the head of their enemies, perhaps bringing shame and repentance to them. It is possible for an enemy to become a friend. This is the phenomenal power of God’s love that believers are connected to through Christ.

13:1 God, the supreme Sovereign, has ordained (see v. 2) that there should be governing authorities. Every believer is to be subject to these various authorities, even if these authorities are as evil as Nero (A.D. 54–68), the emperor of Rome who cruelly persecuted Christians. When Paul wrote this letter, Nero was in power. Yet Paul exhorted the Roman believers to submit to Nero’s authority, because that authority was ordained by God Himself.

13:2 Judgment does not necessarily include eternal punishment. God may judge people through the human authorities He appoints.

13:4 The sword is an instrument of death. Government has the right in the proper circumstances to impose capital punishment as well as to wage war. In Paul's day, the common method of capital punishment was decapitation with a sword.

13:5 for conscience' sake: Believers must obey government not only because it is their civic duty, but because it is their spiritual duty before God.

13:8 In the present context, owe no one anything primarily means respect and honor (see v. 7). No doubt money is also included, but this passage does not prohibit borrowing (see Ps. 37:21; Matt. 5:42). except to love: Love is a debt that is never paid in full.

13:9 as yourself: This verse is not a command to love ourselves. It is a recognition that we do love ourselves, and commands us to love others just as genuinely and sincerely as we love ourselves.

13:10 Love excludes murder, adultery, stealing, and lying (see v. 9). Therefore when we love, we automatically fulfill the prohibitions of the law. If we attempt to live by the law, we quickly discover that we are breaking the law (7:5). But when we act in accordance with God's love, without being under the law, we fulfill it.

13:11 sleep: Believers are pictured as being asleep or inactive. Salvation here refers to the future, when believers will be saved from the presence of sin. Thus salvation here speaks of the imminent return of Christ.

The Key Terms of Salvation

Paul, in the Epistle to the Romans, attempts to portray God's plan of salvation in a concise and clear manner. In doing so, he uses Greek words whose meanings are not widely known today. Here is a brief glossary of the key terms of salvation in this book:

English Term: Faith

Greek Term: pistis

References: (1:17; 4:9; 12:6)

Meaning: “Belief, trust”; faith is the means by which sinful people can experience and enjoy all the blessings of salvation. It is a complete trust in Jesus for salvation from sin and the coming judgment.

English Term: Gospel

Greek Term: euangelion

References: (1:16, 11:28)

Meaning: “Good News”; Paul uses this word to refer to the wonderful message of forgiveness and eternal life in Christ.

English Term: Grace

Greek Term: charis

References: (1:5; 5:2; 12:3)

Meaning: “The unmerited favor of God”; this term refers to God’s inexplicable giving of good things (especially salvation) to undeserving people who could never earn it. Salvation is a free gift made possible by Christ’s death on our behalf.

English Term: Justification

Greek Term: dikaiōsis

References: (4:25; 5:18)

Meaning: “The act of being declared righteous”; a legal term used by Paul to describe the spiritual transaction whereby God (the Judge) declares those who trust in Christ and what He has done for them on the Cross, to be acceptable before Him. Such a verdict is possible only because Christ has settled all the claims of the Law against sinners.

English Term: Law

Greek Term: nomos

References: (2:12; 4:13; 7:12; 10:4; 13:8)

Meaning: “The commandments given by God”; Paul emphasizes both the holy character of the Law and the inability of sinful people to live according to it. The Law becomes a burden and a curse, until we allow it to point us to Christ, who perfectly fulfills all its requirements.

English Term: Propitiation

Greek Term: hilastērion

References: (3:25)

Meaning: “The satisfaction of God’s holy wrath against sin”; rebellion against God results in the wrath of God and must be met with judgment. By dying in our place and taking our sins upon Himself, Jesus satisfies God’s righteous anger against all who believe.

English Term: Redemption

Greek Term: apolutrōsis

References: (3:24; 8:23)

Meaning: “The act of freeing someone by paying a purchase price”; this economic term is used by Paul in a theological sense to describe how Christ paid the penalty required by God for our sins (that is, death) by giving His own life on the Cross. When we believe, Jesus frees us from sin.

English Term: Righteousness

Greek Term: dikaíosunē

References: (3:5; 5:17; 9:30)

Meaning: “God’s standard of purity” or “God’s own truthfulness and faithfulness”; God is holy, therefore He cannot tolerate sin. It is through Jesus Christ that we can find righteousness that is acceptable to God. Christ not only takes away our sin, but He grants us His perfect purity.

English Term: Salvation

Greek Term: sōtēria

References: (1:16; 10:10)

Meaning: “Deliverance”; this word is often used in the Bible to describe someone being rescued from physical harm. The word is used by Paul chiefly to denote deliverance from sin and its deadly consequences.

English Term: Sin

Greek Term: hamartia; hamartēma

References: (3:9; 5:12; 7:11; 8:2; 14:23)

Meaning: “Missing the mark” or “disobedience to God’s law”; several different Greek words are used by Paul to describe the tendency of humans to rebel against God. Sin can be broadly defined as any attitude or action that opposes the character and will of God. Sin is what brings death—that is, separation from God.

13:12, 13 Night is the present age during which we live in Satan’s domain. Day is the beginning of a new life with Christ in His glorious reign. At hand means “is imminent”; the Lord could return at any moment (see Phil. 4:5; James 5:8; 1 Pet. 4:7). Note that Paul puts strife and envy on the same level as drunkenness and lust.

13:14 put on the Lord Jesus Christ: Believers should clothe themselves with Christlike characteristics such as truth (see John 14:6), righteousness (see 1 Cor. 1:30), and peace (see Gal. 5:22, 23; Eph. 2:14; 6:10–17).

14:1, 2 Those who were weak in the faith did have faith; they had trusted in Christ. Some of the Roman believers might not have accepted the apostle’s teaching concerning certain practices, such as accepting that all food was clean if received with thanksgiving (see 1 Tim. 4:4, 5). Instead, they ate only vegetables. The strong in the faith are told to receive the weak and not to dispute over doubtful things, which literally means “reasonings” or “opinions.” The mature believers were not to pass judgment or to enter into dispute with those who were less mature.

14:3 The strong are not to despise the weak, that is, to treat them with contempt. The weak are not to judge the strong by attempting to place excessive prohibitions on them.

14:5 one day above another: This verse probably relates to the many holy days of the OT ceremonial law. fully convinced: The exhortation does not mean it is wrong to have strong convictions, but that all people have a right to their own convictions. This principle is basic in dealing with disputes.

14:6 Days and diets are not the issue, but whether what is being done is committed to the Lord.

14:7–9 None of us refers to believers, not people in general. Believers belong to the Lord. They live and die in relation to Him. Therefore Christians should aim to please Him.

14:10 Again (see v. 3) Paul addresses the weak and the strong. The weak are not to judge, and the strong are not to show contempt, the same word that is rendered “despise” in v. 3. All believers are accountable to their Master, Jesus Christ, for they will appear before Him. At the judgment seat of Christ, every believer’s life will be evaluated to determine his or her reward (see 1 Cor. 3:11–15; 2 Cor. 5:9, 10).

14:11 every knee: One day everyone will submit to God’s authority. He will judge all people before His great throne (see Rev. 20:11–15).

14:14 Unclean means “common” and refers to things prohibited by the Jewish ceremonial law. to him: If anyone considers some activity to be unlawful, then it is wrong for that person to engage in that activity (see 14:23).

14:15 Do not destroy: Paul here builds on the principle of conviction with the principle of consideration for the brother who is weak. This is a step in maturity. If eating meat (see v. 2; 1 Cor. 8:7–11; 10:25–28) destroys a weak believer, then the strong believer should not eat it.

14:16 Your good is what you, the believer, consider to be good. Be spoken of as evil means “reviled” or “slandered.” Do not cause your freedom, a good thing, to be reviled because of the way in which you use it.

14:17 The kingdom of God does not consist of external things like food, but in spiritual realities like righteousness in action and thought, peace that seeks harmony, and joy that comes from the Holy Spirit. Those who understand the spiritual realities of the kingdom will not choose the brief joy of satisfying selfish desires over the spiritual joy of putting aside those desires for the sake of others.

14:19, 20 The believer should edify, that is, “build up.” Do not destroy: That is, do not “throw down” or “demolish.” Paul has already exhorted mature believers to have consideration for the weak believers (in v. 15). Here Paul exhorts the mature believer to identify ways to build up those weaker in the faith.

14:21 There is little distinction between stumbles, offended, and made weak. Paul uses all three words to reiterate that a mature believer should not cause the downfall of another believer (see vv. 12, 13, 20).

14:22 Paul does not require the strong to abandon their convictions about things not condemned by the law. Instead he encourages them to have faith about such issues. Although mature believers may refrain from eating meat in front of weaker believers, they can still believe that Christ gives them the freedom to eat all types of food (see v. 2) privately before Him (see v. 5).

15:3 Christ is the ultimate model for the strong believer. He renounced self-gratification so that He could clearly represent God and His cause (see Phil. 2:5–8).

15:4 Through patience (endurance) and the comfort (or encouragement) of Scripture, believers learn that they have hope. In this case, if strong believers are patient with the scruples of the weak, they have hope of being rewarded (see 14:10; 1 Cor. 9:17, 24–27).

15:5 the God of patience: Attributing to God the same virtues just ascribed to the Scriptures (see v. 4), Paul prays for the unity of all believers.

15:7 Therefore introduces the conclusion of the discussion begun in 14:1, where Paul began with the command to receive the weak believer. Thus the command to receive one another is addressed not just to the strong believers, but to all believers.

15:8–13 Jesus Christ became a servant to the Jews for two purposes: (1) to confirm God’s promises to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and (2) to demonstrate God’s mercy to the Gentiles so that they might glorify Him. Paul cites four passages from the OT to prove that God intended the Gentiles as well as the Jews to glorify Him. as it is written: Paul quotes from all three divisions of the OT (the Law, the Prophets, and the Psalms or Writings), and from three great Jewish leaders (Moses, David, and Isaiah), to demonstrate that God’s purpose was always to bless the Gentiles through Israel. Although the nation of Israel has been set aside for the present (see 11:1–31), both Jews and Gentiles are being brought together in the church (see 3:1–12; Eph. 2:14–22). root of Jesse: This is a title for the Messiah. Jesse was the father of David, and the Son of David was the promised Messiah.

(Gk. elpis) (15:13; 1 Cor. 9:10) Strong's #1680

The Greek term denotes “confident expectation” or “anticipation,” not “wishful thinking” as in common parlance. The use of the word hope in this context is unusual and ironic, for it suggests that the Gentiles, who knew nothing or little about the Messiah, were anticipating His coming. However, we need only think of Cornelius (Acts 10) to realize that some Gentiles had anticipated the coming of the Jewish Messiah. For Jesus was sent, not only for the salvation of the Jews, but also for the Gentiles. Since God is the Author of our salvation, we can call Him the God of hope for He has given us hope (15:13).

15:16 Ministering means rendering priestly service. Paul pictures himself as a priest offering a sacrifice to God. The sacrifice is Gentile believers who have been made acceptable to God because they have been sanctified, that is, set apart by the Holy Spirit for God's service.

15:19 By performing mighty signs and wonders, Paul demonstrated that God had granted him apostolic power (see 2 Cor. 12:12). Illyricum is roughly modern-day Albania and north, between Greece and Italy.

15:22 For this reason: Paul's ambition to preach Christ where He was not yet known (vv. 20, 21) had hindered him from going to Rome.

15:25, 26 Paul planned to minister to the believers in Jerusalem by taking the contribution from Macedonia and Achaia (see 1 Cor. 16:1–4; 2 Cor. 8; 9). This money was not only aid from Gentile believers to Jewish believers, but an expression of love that would unify the church even more.

15:28 this fruit: The collection referred to in v. 26. Spain: No one knows for sure whether Paul ever got to Spain, but he had it on his travel itinerary.

15:29 when I come: Paul did get to Rome but not in the time frame or way he had thought. God had a special plan for Paul. The Lord would give him the opportunity to testify of his faith in the emperor's court, but he would do so as a prisoner (see Acts 27; 28).

15:31 Delivered means rescued from serious danger. He had been warned about the danger of a trip to Jerusalem (see Acts 20:22, 23).

15:32 Be refreshed pictures rest and relaxation. Paul anticipated conflict in Jerusalem. He looked forward to a time of refreshment from the believers in Rome.

16:1, 2 Servant is the word used for the office of deacon (Phil. 1:1; 1 Tim. 3:8, 10, 12). The fact that it is used here with the phrase of the church seems to suggest an official position. Helper means “patron” or “benefactor.” It implies that Phoebe was a person of wealth and position. Many have suggested that it was she who carried this letter to Rome.

16:3–16 This list of greetings is the longest in any of Paul's letters. Twenty-six people are mentioned, about one-third of them women.

16:3, 4 Priscilla and Aquila worked in the same trade as Paul, tentmaking (see Acts 18:1–3), and labored with him in Corinth and Ephesus (see Acts 18:1–3, 18, 26). This married couple is never mentioned separately, perhaps because they ministered so effectively together. The NT does not record how or where Priscilla and Aquila risked their own necks for Paul, though it probably happened at Ephesus.

16:7 Of note among the apostles as a phrase can mean either that they were well known to the apostles, or that they were distinguished as apostles. It is probable that they were known to the apostles because there is no mention of them in the Gospels or Acts.

16:8–10 Amplias . . . Urbanus . . . Stachys . . . Apelles were common slave names. The same names have been found in lists of slaves who served in the imperial household. Aristobulus was a familiar Greek name. In fact, the family of Herod the Great used the name often. Some have suggested that this Aristobulus was the grandson of Herod the Great and the brother of Agrippa I.

16:11 my countryman: Herodion must have been a Jew, like Paul. Some have suggested that this Narcissus was a famous freedman of that name who was put to death by Agrippa shortly after Nero came to power.

16:12 Tryphena and Tryphosa are generally considered sisters.

16:13 Though a common name, this Rufus is often identified with the one in Mark 15:21. Since chosen in the Lord is true of all believers, many interpret this phrase to mean “outstanding” or “eminent.” But it is possible that just as some believers demonstrate God’s love and others reflect God’s justice, so Rufus was an exceptional example of God’s election.

16:16 holy kiss: This kiss on the cheek was practiced by the early church as a symbol of the love and unity among the early Christians (see 1 Cor. 16:20; 2 Cor. 13:12; 1 Thess. 5:26; 1 Pet. 5:14).

16:17 Cause divisions means “to stand apart” or “to cause dissension.” In the NT it occurs only here and in Gal. 5:20. Strife and rivalry cause dissension, which eventually leads to divisions in a church (see 13:13; Gal. 5:20). Such dissension causes offenses—that is, it becomes a snare or stumbling block to others (see 14:13 where this word occurs). Contentious, divisive people can cause others to stumble, so they should be avoided. Paul teaches this type of church discipline in his other letters (see 1 Cor. 5:9–13; 2 Thess. 3:6; 2 Tim. 3:5; Titus 3:10).

16:20 Divisive people destroy the peace and unity of the church, but God, who is the source of peace, will crush this work of Satan through the wisdom and obedience of believers. Ultimately, God will totally defeat Satan and bring peace to the whole church. Paul closes with his customary prayer that the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ would be with them.

16:21 Timothy worked with Paul and later received two letters from him. Some think Lucius here is Luke, the author of the third Gospel and Acts. But Paul includes this Luke among his countrymen, meaning he was a Jew. Luke the author was a Gentile. Jason is mentioned in Acts as Paul’s host on his first journey to Thessalonica (see Acts 17:5, 7, 9). Sosipater is likely the same person referred to in Acts 20:4.

16:22 Paul, the author of Romans, dictated the letter to a secretary named Tertius, who actually wrote the words. Tertius here sends his greetings to the Romans.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

New Testament Letters

Paul wrote letters to encourage, warn, and instruct the churches he had founded (the letters to the Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Thessalonians). He also wrote letters to churches he had not visited (Romans, Colossians), as well as to individuals (Timothy, Titus, Philemon).

The letters written by the apostles and their companions are different from the letters most people would write today. Writing tools and materials were not plentiful, so the authors sought to conserve space when writing. Moreover, the greetings and benedictions in the NT letters are unlike the sort of correspondence we would see now, but they are similar to the introductions and conclusions found in other first-century letters. The NT authors composed their letters in order to solve problems in the church or to communicate the gospel of Jesus Christ to those who needed to hear about it.

16:23 Gaius of Corinth (see 1 Cor. 1:14) not only gave Paul lodging, but also offered his house as a meeting place for the church. In Acts 19:22 a man named Erastus was sent by Paul to Macedonia. This may have been the same man.

16:25 The word establish is only used twice in Romans. At the beginning of the book, Paul expresses a desire to visit the Romans that he might impart some spiritual gift to them so that they would be “established” (see 1:11). Now he praises God who is able to do it. God used the gospel, which is the preaching of Jesus Christ, to establish the Roman believers. Paul speaks of his message as a mystery (see 11:25) because God’s complete plan of salvation was at first hidden but now was being revealed. The revealed mystery is that the church will consist of both Jews and Gentiles united in the one body of Christ (see Eph. 3:1–13).

Word Studies

revelation

(Gk. apokalupsis) (16:25; Eph. 1:17; 3:3; Rev. 1:1) Strong's #602

Revelation is God's communication to people concerning Himself, His moral standards, and His plan of salvation. God has made Himself known to all people everywhere in the marvels of nature and in the human conscience, which is able to distinguish right from wrong (1:18–20; 2:14, 15). The message of salvation was seen dimly through OT sacrifices and ceremonies. But the full and final revelation of God has occurred in Jesus Christ (Heb. 1:1, 2). At the Cross, Jesus revealed supremely God's self-giving love (Rom. 5:8). The good news is not complete until we hear that He rose again triumphantly over sin, Satan, and the grave, and is alive forevermore. The content of God's special revelation concerning salvation is found in "the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of . . . the apostles of the Lord and Savior" (2 Pet. 3:2).

Introduction

The church at Corinth was a seriously troubled church. Infected with sexual immorality, split by factions that dragged each other into court, and crippled by abuse of the spiritual gifts, this church was in need of radical spiritual surgery. Though true believers, the Corinthians had a lot of growing up to do. They had to stop following the immoral, selfish, and contentious ways of their pagan neighbors in Corinth, the notoriously immoral city of that day. One can sense the disappointment of a hurt father in Paul's stern words for the Corinthians. Yet Paul, like a surgeon, diagnosed the problem and aimed his efforts straight at the source: pride and a lack of true love in the church.

Author and Date First Corinthians twice names the apostle Paul as its writer (1:1; 16:21). Paul's authorship of 1 Corinthians is almost unanimously accepted throughout biblical scholarship. One of the earliest witnesses to Paul's authorship of the book was Clement of Rome (c. A.D. 95).

Most likely Paul wrote the letter while he was ministering at Ephesus during his third missionary journey. In 16:8, Paul said that he would remain in Ephesus until Pentecost. This, coupled with Acts 20:31, indicates that he wrote it in the last year of his three-year stay in Ephesus, sometime in the spring of A.D. 56. The Corinthian church would have been about four years old at that time.

Historical Setting Corinth was an important city in ancient Greece. Geographically, it was an ideal hub for commerce between Italy and Asia. Along with the flow of merchandise, Corinth received travelers from both east and west, creating ethnic diversity among the city's inhabitants. Although Corinth was ransacked by the Romans in 146 B.C., it was rebuilt by Julius Caesar in 46 B.C. Roman control of Corinth allowed them to dominate east-west commerce as well as the Isthmian Games (9:24–27), which were surpassed in importance only by the celebrated Olympic Games.

Corinth's commercial success was rivaled only by its decadence. The immorality of Corinth was so well known that Aristophanes coined the Greek verb korinthiazomai (meaning "to act like a Corinthian") as a synonym for sexual immorality. Greek plays of the day often depicted Corinthians as drunkards and reprobates. The Corinthians drew attention to their lewdness through their worship of Aphrodite, the goddess of love and beauty. Yet Corinth was also a strategic location for the propagation of the gospel. The city's corrupt nature made for a unique opportunity to display to the Roman world the transforming power of Jesus Christ.

Acts 18:1–18 records the founding of the Corinthian church. Paul visited Corinth on his second missionary journey, after leaving Athens. This initial visit probably occurred in the fall of A.D. 52. Paul, Silas, Timothy, and Luke had left Troas for Macedonia about eight months earlier and had started churches in Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea. Luke remained at Philippi and Silas and Timothy at Thessalonica, while Paul journeyed on to Athens. Paul's ministry at Athens proved disappointing, perhaps leaving him discouraged as he entered Corinth, where he made tents during the week and preached in the synagogue on the Sabbath. After the Jews of Corinth rejected Paul's message, he began to reach out to the Gentiles. He ministered in Corinth for 18 months, eventually establishing a church. This church, like the city, had a mixture of nationalities. Though some Jews had been converted, most of the believers were Gentiles (12:2).

While the Corinthian church reflected the city's multinational character, it also mirrored some of Corinth's immorality. The sharp tone of 1 Corinthians results from Paul's urgent desire to get the church back on course.

Purpose First Corinthians is a reply to two letters. Paul had left the Corinthian church under the leadership of Aquila and Priscilla in the spring of A.D. 53 to continue his second missionary journey. On his third journey, during his stay at Ephesus, he received two letters from the Corinthian believers. One was a disturbing report from the household of Chloe (1:11). The report detailed the divisions and immorality in the church. These problems arose because the young Corinthian church had failed to protect itself from the decadent culture of the city. The immaturity of the Corinthians had given way to sectarian divisions. The believers were identifying themselves as followers of specific Christian leaders rather than as followers of Christ (3:1–9). They were also dragging each other into court (6:1). Their desire to sue each other rather than settle their disputes within the church betrayed their immaturity and misplaced trust in human wisdom. Sexual immorality had become a problem in the church in spite of a previous letter (that has not been preserved) in which Paul warned against it (5:9–11).

The second letter Paul received was a set of questions that Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus had brought from Corinth (16:15–18). The detailed questions were about marriage and singleness (7:1–40) and Christian liberty (8:1–11:1).

Paul wrote 1 Corinthians to answer both letters and to give some additional instructions. He taught about decorum in worship services (11:2–16), the solemnity of the Lord's Supper (11:17–34), and the place of spiritual gifts. Though the Corinthians were very gifted, in their immaturity and pride they had abused their gifts. Paul reminded the Corinthians that gifts come from God (12:11) and are to unify and edify the church (12:24, 25; 14:1–4). In conclusion, Paul corrected a doctrinal matter by writing the New Testament's most detailed explanation of the resurrection of Christ and Christians (15:1–58). Even though the church was riddled with problems, Paul ended his confrontational letter with a note of hope. The Corinthians could have victory over sin and death because Jesus in His death and resurrection had already decisively obtained it (15:57).

Christ in the Scriptures

In this letter Paul proclaims the relevance of Christ Jesus to every area of the believer's life. In the writer's words, Jesus "became for us wisdom from God—and righteousness and sanctification and redemption" (1:30). Paul goes on to assert (much as Luke did in the Book of Acts) that Jesus is living out His life in the world through the church. According to Paul, we are the body of Christ with individual gifts. As we discover our gifts and invest them in mutual ministry, Jesus continues to touch the world for which He died (12:1–31).

The city of Corinth, perched astride the narrow isthmus connecting the Greek mainland with the Peloponnese, was one of the dominant commercial centers of the Mediterranean world as early as the eighth century B.C.

No city in Greece was more favorably situated for land and sea trade. With a high, strong citadel at its back, it lay between the Saronic Gulf and the Ionian Sea, with ports at Lechaion and Cenchrea. A diolkos, or stone road for the overland transport of ships and/or offloaded cargo, linked the two seas. Crowning the Acrocorinth was the temple of Aphrodite, served at an earlier time, according to Strabo, by more than 1,000 pagan priestess-prostitutes.

By the time the gospel reached Corinth in the spring of A.D. 52, the city had a proud history of leadership in the Achaian League, and a spirit of revived Hellenism under Roman domination after 44 B.C., following the destruction of the city by Mummius in 146 B.C.

Paul's lengthy stay in Corinth brought him directly in contact with the major monuments of the agora, many of which still survive. The fountain-house of the spring Peirene, the temple of Apollo, the macellum (or meat market; 1 Cor. 10:25), the theater, and the bema (Acts 18:12) all played a part in the experience of the apostle. An inscription from the theater names the city official Erastus, probably the friend of Paul mentioned in Rom. 16:23.

1 Corinthians 1

Greeting

¹Paul, ^acalled to be an apostle of Jesus Christ ^bthrough the will of God, and ^cSosthenes our brother,

²To the church of God which is at Corinth, to those who ^dare ¹sanctified in Christ Jesus, ^ecalled to be saints, with all who in every place call on the name of Jesus Christ ^four Lord, ^gboth theirs and ours: Bible Times & Culture Notes: Corinth

^{3h}Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Spiritual Gifts at Corinth

⁴_iI thank my God always concerning you for the grace of God which was given to you by Christ Jesus,

⁵that you were enriched in everything by Him ^jin all ²utterance and all knowledge,

⁶even as ^kthe testimony of Christ was confirmed ³in you,

⁷so that you come short in no gift, eagerly ¹waiting for the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ,

⁸_mwho will also confirm you to the end, ⁿ*that you may be* blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

⁹_oGod is faithful, by whom you were called into ^pthe fellowship of His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. Word Studies: fellowship

Sectarianism Is Sin

¹⁰Now I plead with you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, ^qthat you all ⁴speak the same thing, and that there be no ⁵divisions among you, but that you be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment.

¹¹For it has been declared to me concerning you, my brethren, by those of Chloe's household, that there are ⁶contentions among you.

¹²Now I say this, that ^reach of you says, "I am of Paul," or "I am of ^sApollos," or "I am of ^tCephas," or "I am of Christ."

^{13u}Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul? Article: The Message, Not the Messenger

¹⁴I thank God that I baptized ^vnone of you except ^wCrispus and ^xGaius, ¹⁵lest anyone should say that I had baptized in my own name.

¹⁶Yes, I also baptized the household of ^yStephanas. Besides, I do not know whether I baptized any other.

¹⁷For Christ did not send me to baptize, but to preach the gospel, ^znot with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of no effect.

Christ the Power and Wisdom of God

(cf. Is. 29:14)

¹⁸For the ⁷message of the cross is ^afoolishness to ^bthose who are perishing, but to us ^cwho are being saved it is the ^dpower of God.

¹⁹For it is written:

^e*"I will destroy the wisdom of the wise,
And bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent."*

^{20f}Where is the wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the ⁸disputer of this age? ^gHas not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?

²¹For since, in the ^hwisdom of God, the world through wisdom did not know God, it pleased God through the foolishness of the message preached to save those who believe.

²²For ⁱJews request a sign, and Greeks seek after wisdom;

²³but we preach Christ crucified, ^jto the Jews a ⁹stumbling block and to the ¹⁰Greeks ^kfoolishness, ²⁴but to those who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ ^lthe power of God and ^mthe wisdom of God.

²⁵Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

Glory Only in the Lord

²⁶For ¹¹you see your calling, brethren, ⁿthat not many wise according to the flesh, not many mighty, not many ¹²noble, are called.

²⁷But ^oGod has chosen the foolish things of the world to put to shame the wise, and God has chosen the weak things of the world to put to shame the things which are mighty;

²⁸and the ¹³base things of the world and the things which are despised God has chosen, and the things which are not, to bring to nothing the things that are,

²⁹that no flesh should glory in His presence.

³⁰But of Him you are in Christ Jesus, who became for us wisdom from God—and ^prighteousness and sanctification and redemption—

³¹that, as it is written, ^q“He who glories, let him glory in the LORD.”

1 Corinthians 2

Christ Crucified

¹And I, brethren, when I came to you, did not come with excellence of speech or of wisdom declaring to you the ¹testimony of God.

²For I determined not to know anything among you ^aexcept Jesus Christ and Him crucified.

^{3b}I was with you ^cin weakness, in fear, and in much trembling.

⁴And my speech and my preaching ^dwere not with persuasive words of ²human wisdom, ^ebut in demonstration of the Spirit and of power, ⁵that your faith should not be in the wisdom of men but in the ^fpower of God.

Spiritual Wisdom

⁶However, we speak wisdom among those who are mature, yet not the wisdom of this age, nor of the rulers of this age, who are coming to nothing.

⁷But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, the hidden wisdom which God ³ordained before the ages for our glory, ⁸which none of the rulers of this age knew; for ^ghad they known, they would not have ^hcrucified the Lord of glory.

⁹But as it is written:

ⁱ*“Eye has not seen, nor ear heard,
Nor have entered into the heart of man
The things which God has prepared for those who love Him.”*

¹⁰But ^jGod has revealed them to us through His Spirit. For the Spirit searches all things, yes, the deep things of God.

¹¹For what man knows the things of a man except the ^kspirit of the man which is in him? ^lEven so no one knows the things of God except the Spirit of God.

¹²Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but ^mthe Spirit who is from God, that we might know the things that have been freely given to us by God.

¹³These things we also speak, not in words which man’s wisdom teaches but which the ⁴Holy Spirit teaches, comparing spiritual things with spiritual.

¹⁴ⁿBut the natural man does not receive the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness to him; nor can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

¹⁵But he who is spiritual judges all things, yet he himself is rightly judged by no one.

¹⁶For ^o*“who has known the mind of the LORD that he may instruct Him?”*
^pBut we have the mind of Christ.

1 Corinthians 3

Sectarianism Is Carnal

¹And I, brethren, could not speak to you as to spiritual people but as to carnal, as to ^ababes in Christ.

²I fed you with ^bmilk and not with solid food; ^cfor until now you were not able to receive it, and even now you are still not able;

³for you are still carnal. For where there are envy, strife, and divisions among you, are you not carnal and ¹behaving like mere men?

⁴For when one says, “I am of Paul,” and another, “I am of Apollos,” are you not carnal?

Watering, Working, Warning

⁵Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ^dministers through whom you believed, as the Lord gave to each one?

^{6e}I planted, ^fApollos watered, ^gbut God gave the increase.

⁷So then ^hneither he who plants is anything, nor he who waters, but God who gives the increase.

⁸Now he who plants and he who waters are one, ⁱand each one will receive his own reward according to his own labor.

⁹For ^jwe are God’s fellow workers; you are God’s field, you are ^kGod’s building.

¹⁰ⁱAccording to the grace of God which was given to me, as a wise master builder I have laid ^mthe foundation, and another builds on it. But let each one take heed how he builds on it.

¹¹For no other foundation can anyone lay than ⁿthat which is laid, ^owhich is Jesus Christ.

¹²Now if anyone builds on this foundation with gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw, ¹³each one’s work will become clear; for the Day ^pwill declare it, because ^qit will be revealed by fire; and the fire will test each one’s work, of what sort it is.

¹⁴If anyone’s work which he has built on it endures, he will receive a reward.

¹⁵If anyone’s work is burned, he will suffer loss; but he himself will be saved, yet so as through fire.

^{16r}Do you not know that you are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?

¹⁷If anyone ²defiles the temple of God, God will destroy him. For the temple of God is holy, which temple you are.

Avoid Worldly Wisdom

¹⁸_sLet no one deceive himself. If anyone among you seems to be wise in this age, let him become a fool that he may become wise.

¹⁹For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, ^t*“He catches the wise in their own craftiness”*;

²⁰and again, ^u*“The LORD knows the thoughts of the wise, that they are futile.”* Word Studies: futile

²¹Therefore let no one boast in men. For ^vall things are yours:

²²whether Paul or Apollos or Cephas, or the world or life or death, or things present or things to come—all are yours.

²³And ^w*you are* Christ’s, and Christ is God’s.

1 Corinthians 4

Stewards of the Mysteries of God

¹Let a man so consider us, as ^aservants of Christ ^band stewards of the mysteries of God.

²Moreover it is required in stewards that one be found faithful.

³But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged by you or by a human ¹court. In fact, I do not even judge myself.

⁴For I know of nothing against myself, yet I am not justified by this; but He who judges me is the Lord.

^{5c}Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to ^dlight the hidden things of darkness and ^ereveal the ²counsels of the hearts. ^fThen each one's praise will come from God.

Fools for Christ's Sake

⁶Now these things, brethren, I have figuratively transferred to myself and Apollos for your sakes, that you may learn in us not to think beyond what is written, that none of you may be ³puffed up on behalf of one against the other.

⁷For who ⁴makes you differ from another? And ⁸what do you have that you did not receive? Now if you did indeed receive it, why do you boast as if you had not received it?

⁸You are already full! ^bYou are already rich! You have reigned as kings without us—and indeed I could wish you did reign, that we also might reign with you!

⁹For I think that God has displayed us, the apostles, last, as men condemned to death; for we have been made a ⁱspectacle ⁵to the world, both to angels and to men.

¹⁰We are ^jfools for Christ's sake, but you are wise in Christ! ^kWe are weak, but you are strong! You are distinguished, but we are dishonored!

¹¹To the present hour we both hunger and thirst, and we are poorly clothed, and beaten, and homeless.

^{12l}And we labor, working with our own hands. ^mBeing reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we endure;

¹³being defamed, we ⁶entreat. ⁿWe have been made as the filth of the world, the offscouring of all things until now.

Paul's Paternal Care

¹⁴I do not write these things to shame you, but ^oas my beloved children I warn you.

¹⁵For though you might have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet you do not have many fathers; for ^pin Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel.

¹⁶Therefore I urge you, ^qimitate me.

¹⁷For this reason I have sent ^rTimothy to you, ^swho is my beloved and faithful son in the Lord, who will ^tremind you of my ways in Christ, as I ^uteach everywhere ^vin every church.

^{19x}But I will come to you shortly, ^yif the Lord wills, and I will know, not the word of those who are puffed up, but the power.

²⁰For ^zthe kingdom of God is not in word but in ^apower.

²¹What do you want? ^bShall I come to you with a rod, or in love and a spirit of gentleness?

1 Corinthians 5

Immorality Defiles the Church

¹It is actually reported that there is sexual immorality among you, and such sexual immorality as is not even ¹named among the Gentiles—that a man has his father's ^awife!

^{2b}And you are ²puffed up, and have not rather ^cmourned, that he who has done this deed might be taken away from among you.

^{3d}For I indeed, as absent in body but present in spirit, have already judged (as though I were present) him who has so done this deed.

⁴In the ^ename of our Lord Jesus Christ, when you are gathered together, along with my spirit, ^fwith the power of our Lord Jesus Christ, ^{5g}deliver such a one to ^hSatan for the destruction of the flesh, that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord ³Jesus.

⁶ⁱYour glorying is not good. Do you not know that ^ja little leaven leavens the whole lump?

⁷Therefore ⁴purge out the old leaven, that you may be a new lump, since you truly are unleavened. For indeed ^kChrist, our ^lPassover, was sacrificed ⁵for us.

⁸Therefore ^mlet us keep the feast, ⁿnot with old leaven, nor ^owith the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Immorality Must Be Judged

⁹I wrote to you in my epistle ^pnot to ⁶keep company with sexually immoral people.

¹⁰Yet I certainly did not mean with the sexually immoral people of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or idolaters, since then you would need to go ^qout of the world.

¹¹But now I have written to you not to keep company ^rwith anyone named a brother, who is sexually immoral, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner—^snot even to eat with such a person.

¹²For what have I to do with judging those also who are outside? Do you not judge those who are inside?

¹³But those who are outside God judges. Therefore ^t“put away from yourselves the evil person.”

1 Corinthians 6

Do Not Sue the Brethren

¹Dare any of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unrighteous, and not before the ^asaints? Bible Times & Culture Notes: Pax Romana

²Do you not know that ^bthe saints will judge the world? And if the world will be judged by you, are you unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

³Do you not know that we shall ^cjudge angels? How much more, things that pertain to this life?

⁴If then you have ¹judgments concerning things pertaining to this life, do you appoint those who are least esteemed by the church to judge?

⁵I say this to your shame. Is it so, that there is not a wise man among you, not even one, who will be able to judge between his brethren?

⁶But brother goes to law against brother, and that before unbelievers!

⁷Now therefore, it is already an utter failure for you that you go to law against one another. ^dWhy do you not rather accept wrong? Why do you not rather let yourselves be cheated?

⁸No, you yourselves do wrong and cheat, and you do these things to your brethren!

⁹Do you not know that the unrighteous will not inherit the kingdom of God? Do not be deceived. ^eNeither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor ²homosexuals, nor ³sodomites, ¹⁰nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners will inherit the kingdom of God.

¹¹And such were ^fsome of you. ⁸But you were washed, but you were ⁴sanctified, but you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of our God.

Glorify God in Body and Spirit

^{12h}All things are lawful for me, but all things are not ⁵helpful. All things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of ⁶any.

¹³ⁱFoods for the stomach and the stomach for foods, but God will destroy both it and them. Now the body is not for ^jsexual immorality but ^kfor the Lord, ¹and the Lord for the body.

¹⁴And ^mGod both raised up the Lord and will also raise us up ⁿby His power.

¹⁵Do you not know that ^oyour bodies are members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ and make them members of a harlot? Certainly not!

¹⁶Or do you not know that he who is joined to a harlot is one body with her? For ^p“the two,” He says, “shall become one flesh.”

^{17q}But he who is joined to the Lord is one spirit with Him.

^{18r}Flee sexual immorality. Every sin that a man does is outside the body, but he who commits sexual immorality sins ^sagainst his own body.

¹⁹Or ^tdo you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit who is in you, whom you have from God, ^uand you are not your own? Word Studies: temple

²⁰For ^vyou were bought at a price; therefore glorify God in your body ⁷and in your spirit, which are God's.

1 Corinthians 7

Principles of Marriage

¹Now concerning the things of which you wrote to me: ^a*It is good for a man not to touch a woman.*

²Nevertheless, because of sexual immorality, let each man have his own wife, and let each woman have her own husband.

^{3b}Let the husband render to his wife the affection due her, and likewise also the wife to her husband.

⁴The wife does not have authority over her own body, but the husband does. And likewise the husband does not have authority over his own body, but the wife does.

^{5c}Do not deprive one another except with consent for a time, that you may give yourselves to fasting and prayer; and come together again so that ^dSatan does not tempt you because of your lack of self-control.

⁶But I say this as a concession, ^enot as a commandment.

⁷For ^fI wish that all men were even as I myself. But each one has his own gift from God, one in this manner and another in that.

⁸But I say to the unmarried and to the widows: ^gIt is good for them if they remain even as I am;

⁹but ^hif they cannot exercise self-control, let them marry. For it is better to marry than to burn with passion.

Keep Your Marriage Vows

¹⁰Now to the married I command, yet not I but the ⁱLord: ^jA wife is not to depart from her husband.

¹¹But even if she does depart, let her remain unmarried or be reconciled to her husband. And a husband is not to divorce his wife.

¹²But to the rest I, not the Lord, say: If any brother has a wife who does not believe, and she is willing to live with him, let him not divorce her.

¹³And a woman who has a husband who does not believe, if he is willing to live with her, let her not divorce him.

¹⁴For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband; otherwise ^kyour children would be unclean, but now they are holy.

¹⁵But if the unbeliever departs, let him depart; a brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases. But God has called us ^lto peace.

¹⁶For how do you know, O wife, whether you will ^msave your husband? Or how do you know, O husband, whether you will save your wife?

Live as You Are Called

¹⁷But as God has distributed to each one, as the Lord has called each one, so let him walk. And ⁿso I ¹ordain in all the churches.

¹⁸Was anyone called while circumcised? Let him not become uncircumcised. Was anyone called while uncircumcised? ^oLet him not be circumcised.

^{19p}Circumcision is nothing and uncircumcision is nothing, but ^qkeeping the commandments of God is what matters.

²⁰Let each one remain in the same calling in which he was called.

²¹Were you called while a slave? Do not be concerned about it; but if you can be made free, rather use it.

²²For he who is called in the Lord while a slave is ^rthe Lord's freedman. Likewise he who is called while free is ^sChrist's slave.

^{23t}You were bought at a price; do not become slaves of men.

²⁴Brethren, let each one remain with ^uGod in that state in which he was called.

To the Unmarried and Widows

²⁵Now concerning virgins: ^vI have no commandment from the Lord; yet I give judgment as one ^wwhom the Lord in His mercy has made ^xtrustworthy.

²⁶I suppose therefore that this is good because of the present distress—^ythat it is good for a man to remain as he is:

²⁷Are you bound to a wife? Do not seek to be loosed. Are you loosed from a wife? Do not seek a wife.

²⁸But even if you do marry, you have not sinned; and if a virgin marries, she has not sinned. Nevertheless such will have trouble in the flesh, but I would spare you.

²⁹But ^zthis I say, brethren, the time is short, so that from now on even those who have wives should be as though they had none,

³⁰those who weep as though they did not weep, those who rejoice as though they did not rejoice, those who buy as though they did not possess,

³¹and those who use this world as not ^amisusing it. For ^bthe form of this world is passing away.

³²But I want you to be without ²care. ^cHe who is unmarried ³cares for the things of the Lord—how he may please the Lord.

³³But he who is married cares about the things of the world—how he may please his wife.

³⁴There is a difference between a wife and a virgin. The unmarried woman ^dcares about the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and in spirit. But she who is married cares about the things of the world—how she may please her husband.

³⁵And this I say for your own profit, not that I may put a leash on you, but for what is proper, and that you may serve the Lord without distraction.

³⁶But if any man thinks he is behaving improperly toward his ⁴virgin, if she is past the flower of youth, and thus it must be, let him do what he wishes. He does not sin; let them marry.

³⁷Nevertheless he who stands steadfast in his heart, having no necessity, but has power over his own will, and has so determined in his heart that he will keep his ⁵virgin, does well.

^{38e}So then he who gives ⁶*her* in marriage does well, but he who does not give her in marriage does better.

^{39f}A wife is bound by law as long as her husband lives; but if her husband dies, she is at liberty to be married to whom she wishes, ^gonly in the Lord.

⁴⁰But she is happier if she remains as she is, ^haccording to my judgment—and ⁱI think I also have the Spirit of God.

1 Corinthians 8

Be Sensitive to Conscience

¹Now ^aconcerning things offered to idols: We know that we all have ^bknowledge. ^cKnowledge ¹puffs up, but love ²edifies.

²And ^dif anyone thinks that he knows anything, he knows nothing yet as he ought to know.

³But if anyone loves God, this one is known by Him.

⁴Therefore concerning the eating of things offered to idols, we know that ^ean idol is nothing in the world, ^fand that there is no other God but one.

⁵For even if there are ^gso-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth (as there are many gods and many lords),

⁶yet ^hfor us there is one God, the Father, ⁱof whom are all things, and we for Him; and ^jone Lord Jesus Christ, ^kthrough whom are all things, and ^lthrough whom we live.

⁷However, there is not in everyone that knowledge; for some, ^mwith consciousness of the idol, until now eat it as a thing offered to an idol; and their conscience, being weak, is ⁿdefiled.

⁸But ^ofood does not commend us to God; for neither if we eat are we the better, nor if we do not eat are we the worse.

⁹But ^pbeware lest somehow this liberty of yours become ^qa ³stumbling block to those who are weak.

¹⁰For if anyone sees you who have knowledge eating in an idol's temple, will not ^rthe conscience of him who is weak be emboldened to eat those things offered to idols?

¹¹And ^sbecause of your knowledge shall the weak brother perish, for whom Christ died?

¹²But ^twhen you thus sin against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, you sin against Christ.

¹³Therefore, ^uif food makes my brother stumble, I will never again eat meat, lest I make my brother stumble.

1 Corinthians 9

A Pattern of Self-Denial

¹Am ^aI not an apostle? Am I not free? ^bHave I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord?
^cAre you not my work in the Lord?

²If I am not an apostle to others, yet doubtless I am to you. For you are ^dthe ¹seal of my apostleship in the Lord.

³My defense to those who examine me is this:

^{4e}Do we have no ²right to eat and drink?

⁵Do we have no right to take along ³a believing wife, as do also the other apostles, ^fthe brothers of the Lord, and ^gCephas?

⁶Or is it only Barnabas and I ^h*who* have no right to refrain from working?

⁷Who ever ⁱgoes to war at his own expense? Who ^jplants a vineyard and does not eat of its fruit? Or who ^ktends a flock and does not drink of the milk of the flock?

⁸Do I say these things as a mere man? Or does not the law say the same also?

⁹For it is written in the law of Moses, ¹*“You shall not muzzle an ox while it treads out the grain.”* Is it oxen God is concerned about?

¹¹ⁿIf we have sown spiritual things for you, is it a great thing if we reap your material things?

¹²If others are partakers of this right over you, are we not even more?
^oNevertheless we have not used this right, but endure all things ^plest we hinder the gospel of Christ.

^{13q}Do you not know that those who minister the holy things eat of the things of the ^rtemple, and those who serve at the altar partake of the offerings of the altar?

¹⁴Even so ^sthe Lord has commanded ^tthat those who preach the gospel should live from the gospel.

¹⁵But ^uI have used none of these things, nor have I written these things that it should be done so to me; for ^v*it would be* better for me to die than that anyone should make my boasting void.

¹⁶For if I preach the gospel, I have nothing to boast of, for ^wnecessity is laid upon me; yes, woe is me if I do not preach the gospel!

¹⁷For if I do this willingly, ^xI have a reward; but if against my will, ^yI have been entrusted with a stewardship.

¹⁸What is my reward then? That ^zwhen I preach the gospel, I may present the gospel ⁴of Christ without charge, that I ^amay not abuse my authority in the gospel. Word Studies: liberty

Serving All Men

¹⁹For though I am ^bfree from all men, ^cI have made myself a servant to all, ^dthat I might win the more;

²⁰and ^eto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might win Jews; to those who are under the law, as under the ⁵law, that I might win those who are under the law;

²¹^fto ^gthose who are without law, as without law ^h(not being without ⁶law toward God, but under ⁷law toward Christ), that I might win those who are without law;

²²ⁱto the weak I became ⁸as weak, that I might win the weak. ^jI have become all things to all men, ^kthat I might by all means save some.

²³Now this I do for the gospel's sake, that I may be partaker of it with you.

Striving for a Crown

²⁴Do you not know that those who run in a race all run, but one receives the prize? ¹Run in such a way that you may ⁹obtain it.

²⁵And everyone who competes for the prize ¹⁰is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a perishable crown, but we for ^man imperishable crown. Article: The Race for the Crown

²⁶Therefore I run thus: ⁿnot with uncertainty. Thus I fight: not as one who beats the air.

^{27o}But I discipline my body and ^pbring it into subjection, lest, when I have preached to others, I myself should become ^qdisqualified.

1 Corinthians 10

Old Testament Examples

¹Moreover, brethren, I do not want you to be unaware that all our fathers were under ^athe cloud, all passed through ^bthe sea,

²all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea,

³all ate the same ^cspiritual food,

⁴and all drank the same ^dspiritual drink. For they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ.

⁵But with most of them God was not well pleased, for their bodies ^ewere scattered in the wilderness.

⁶Now these things became our examples, to the intent that we should not lust after evil things as ^fthey also lusted.

^{7g}And do not become idolaters as were some of them. As it is written, ^h*“The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.”*

⁸ⁱNor let us commit sexual immorality, as ^jsome of them did, and ^kin one day twenty-three thousand fell;

⁹nor let us ^ltempt Christ, as ^lsome of them also tempted, and ^mwere destroyed by serpents;

¹⁰nor complain, as ⁿsome of them also complained, and ^owere destroyed by ^pthe destroyer.

¹¹Now ²all these things happened to them as examples, and ^qthey were written for our ³admonition, ^rupon whom the ends of the ages have come.

¹²Therefore ^slet him who thinks he stands take heed lest he fall.

¹³No temptation has overtaken you except such as is common to man; but ^tGod is faithful, ^uwho will not allow you to be tempted beyond what you are able, but with the temptation will also make the way of escape, that you may be able to ⁴bear it.

Flee from Idolatry

¹⁴Therefore, my beloved, ^vflee from idolatry.

¹⁵I speak as to ^wwise men; judge for yourselves what I say.

^{16x}The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the ⁵communion of the blood of Christ? ^yThe bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?

¹⁷For ^zwe, though many, are one bread and one body; for we all partake of that one bread.

¹⁸Observe ^aIsrael ^bafter the flesh: ^cAre not those who eat of the sacrifices ⁶partakers of the altar?

¹⁹What am I saying then? ^dThat an idol is anything, or what is offered to idols is anything?

²⁰Rather, that the things which the Gentiles ^esacrifice ^fthey sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to have fellowship with demons. Word Studies: demon

^{21g}You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and ^hthe cup of demons; you cannot partake of the ⁱLord's table and of the table of demons.

²²Or do we ^jprovoke the Lord to jealousy? ^kAre we stronger than He?

All to the Glory of God

(cf. Ps. 24:1)

²³All things are lawful ⁷for me, but not all things are ^lhelpful; all things are lawful for me, but not all things ⁸edify.

²⁴Let no one seek his own, but each one ^mthe other's well-being.

²⁵ⁿEat whatever is sold in the meat market, asking no questions for conscience' sake;

²⁶for ^o*"the earth is the LORD's, and all its fullness."*

²⁷If any of those who do not believe invites you to dinner, and you desire to go, ^peat whatever is set before you, asking no question for conscience' sake.

²⁸But if anyone says to you, "This was offered to idols," do not eat it ^qfor the sake of the one who told you, and for conscience' sake; ⁹for ^r*"the earth is the LORD's, and all its fullness."*

²⁹"Conscience," I say, not your own, but that of the other. For ^swhy is my liberty judged by another man's conscience?

³⁰But if I partake with thanks, why am I evil spoken of for the food ^tover which I give thanks?

^{31u}Therefore, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God.

^{32v}Give no offense, either to the Jews or to the Greeks or to the church of God, ³³just ^was I also please all men in all things, not seeking my own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved.

1 Corinthians 11

¹Imitate^a me, just as I also imitate Christ.

Head Coverings

²Now I praise you, brethren, that you remember me in all things and keep the traditions just as I delivered them to you.

³But I want you to know that ^bthe head of every man is Christ, ^cthe head of woman is man, and ^dthe head of Christ is God.

⁴Every man praying or ^eprophesying, having his head covered, dishonors his head.

⁵But every woman who prays or prophesies with her head uncovered dishonors her head, for that is one and the same as if her head were ^fshaved.

⁶For if a woman is not covered, let her also be shorn. But if it is ^gshameful for a woman to be shorn or shaved, let her be covered.

⁷For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, since ^hhe is the image and glory of God; but woman is the glory of man.

⁸For man is not from woman, but woman ⁱfrom man.

⁹Nor was man created for the woman, but woman ^jfor the man.

¹⁰For this reason the woman ought to have a symbol of authority on her head, because of the angels.

¹¹Nevertheless, ^kneither is man independent of woman, nor woman independent of man, in the Lord.

¹²For as woman came from man, even so man also comes through woman; but all things are from God.

¹³Judge among yourselves. Is it proper for a woman to pray to God with her head uncovered?

¹⁴Does not even nature itself teach you that if a man has long hair, it is a dishonor to him?

¹⁵But if a woman has long hair, it is a glory to her; for her hair is given ^lto her for a covering.

¹⁶But ^mif anyone seems to be contentious, we have no such custom, ⁿnor do the churches of God.

Conduct at the Lord's Supper

¹⁷Now in giving these instructions I do not praise you, since you come together not for the better but for the worse.

¹⁸For first of all, when you come together as a church, ⁿI hear that there are divisions among you, and in part I believe it.

¹⁹For ^othere must also be factions among you, ^pthat those who are approved may be ²recognized among you.

²⁰Therefore when you come together in one place, it is not to eat the Lord's Supper.

²¹For in eating, each one takes his own supper ahead of others; and one is hungry and ^qanother is drunk.

²²What! Do you not have houses to eat and drink in? Or do you despise ^rthe church of God and ^sshame ³those who have nothing? What shall I say to you? Shall I praise you in this? I do not praise you.

Institution of the Lord's Supper
(Matt. 26:26–29; Mark 14:22–25; Luke 22:14–23)

²³For ^tI received from the Lord that which I also delivered to you: ^uthat the Lord Jesus on the same night in which He was betrayed took bread;

²⁴and when He had given thanks, He broke it and said, ⁴“Take, eat; this is My body which is ⁵broken for you; do this in remembrance of Me.”

²⁵In the same manner He also took the cup after supper, saying, “This cup is the new covenant in My blood. This do, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of Me.”

²⁶For as often as you eat this bread and drink this cup, you proclaim the Lord's death ^vtill He comes.

Examine Yourself

²⁷Therefore whoever eats ^wthis bread or drinks this cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner will be guilty of the body and ⁶blood of the Lord.

²⁸But ^xlet a man examine himself, and so let him eat of the bread and drink of the cup.

²⁹For he who eats and drinks ⁷in an unworthy manner eats and drinks judgment to himself, not discerning the ⁸Lord's body.

³⁰For this reason many are weak and sick among you, and many ⁹sleep.

³¹For ^yif we would judge ourselves, we would not be judged.

³²But when we are judged, ^zwe are chastened by the Lord, that we may not be condemned with the world.

³³Therefore, my brethren, when you ^acome together to eat, wait for one another.

³⁴But if anyone is hungry, let him eat at home, lest you come together for judgment. And the rest I will set in order when I come.

1 Corinthians 12

Spiritual Gifts: Unity in Diversity

¹Now ^aconcerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I do not want you to be ignorant:

Word Studies: spiritual gifts

²You know ^bthat¹ you were Gentiles, carried away to these ^cdumb² idols, however you were led.

³Therefore I make known to you that no one speaking by the Spirit of God calls Jesus ³accursed, and ^dno one can say that Jesus is Lord except by the Holy Spirit.

^{4e}There are ⁴diversities of gifts, but ^fthe same Spirit.

^{5g}There are differences of ministries, but the same Lord.

⁶And there are diversities of activities, but it is the same God ^hwho works ⁵all in all.

⁷But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to each one for the profit of all:

⁸for to one is given ⁱthe word of wisdom through the Spirit, to another ^jthe word of knowledge through the same Spirit, Charts and Diagrams: Spiritual Gifts vs. Spiritual Responsibilities

^{9k}to another faith by the same Spirit, to another ^lgifts of healings by ⁶the same Spirit, ^{10m}to another the working of miracles, to another ⁿprophecy, to another ^odiscerning of spirits, to another ^p*different* kinds of tongues, to another the interpretation of tongues.

¹¹But one and the same Spirit works all these things, ^qdistributing to each one individually ^ras He wills.

Unity and Diversity in One Body

(cf. Eph. 4:1–16)

¹²For ^sas the body is one and has many members, but all the members of that one body, being many, are one body, ^tso also is Christ.

¹³For ^uby one Spirit we were all baptized into one body—^vwhether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free—and ^whave all been made to drink ⁷into one Spirit.

¹⁴For in fact the body is not one member but many.

¹⁵If the foot should say, "Because I am not a hand, I am not of the body," is it therefore not of the body?

¹⁶And if the ear should say, "Because I am not an eye, I am not of the body," is it therefore not of the body?

¹⁷If the whole body were an eye, where would be the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where would be the smelling?

¹⁸But now ^xGod has set the members, each one of them, in the body ^yjust as He pleased.

¹⁹And if they were all one member, where would the body be?

²⁰But now indeed there are many members, yet one body.

²¹And the eye cannot say to the hand, "I have no need of you"; nor again the head to the feet, "I have no need of you."

²²No, much rather, those members of the body which seem to be weaker are necessary.

²³And those members of the body which we think to be less honorable, on these we bestow greater honor; and our unpresentable parts have greater modesty,

²⁴but our presentable parts have no need. But God composed the body, having given greater honor to that part which lacks it, ²⁵that there should be no ⁸schism in the body, but that the members should have the same care for one another.

²⁶And if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it; or if one member is honored, all the members rejoice with it.

²⁷Now ^zyou are the body of Christ, and ^amembers individually.

²⁸And ^bGod has appointed these in the church: first ^capostles, second ^dprophets, third teachers, after that ^emiracles, then ^fgifts of healings, ^ghelps, ^hadministrations, varieties of tongues.

²⁹*Are* all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Are all workers of miracles?

³⁰Do all have gifts of healings? Do all speak with tongues? Do all interpret?

³¹But ⁱearnestly desire the ⁹best gifts. And yet I show you a more excellent way.

1 Corinthians 13

The Greatest Gift

¹Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I have become sounding brass or a clanging cymbal.

²And though I have the gift of ^aprophecy, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and though I have all faith, ^bso that I could remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing.

³And ^cthough I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body ¹to be burned, but have not love, it profits me nothing.

^{4d}Love suffers long and is ^ekind; love ^fdoes not envy; love does not parade itself, is not ²puffed up;

⁵does not behave rudely, ^gdoes not seek its own, is not provoked, ³thinks no evil;

^{6h}does not rejoice in iniquity, but ⁱrejoices in the truth;

^{7j}bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

⁸Love never fails. But whether there are prophecies, they will fail; whether there are tongues, they will cease; whether there is knowledge, it will vanish away.

^{9k}For we know in part and we prophesy in part.

¹⁰But when that which is ⁴perfect has come, then that which is in part will be done away.

¹¹When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

¹²For ¹now we see in a mirror, dimly, but then ^mface to face. Now I know in part, but then I shall know just as I also am known.

¹³And now abide faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love.

1 Corinthians 14

Prophecy and Tongues

¹Pursue love, and ^adesire spiritual gifts, ^bbut especially that you may prophesy.

²For he who ^cspeaks in a tongue does not speak to men but to God, for no one understands him; however, in the spirit he speaks mysteries. Word Studies: tongues

³But he who prophesies speaks ^dedification and ^eexhortation and comfort to men.

⁴He who speaks in a tongue edifies himself, but he who prophesies edifies the church.

⁵I wish you all spoke with tongues, but even more that you prophesied; ¹for he who prophesies is greater than he who speaks with tongues, unless indeed he interprets, that the church may receive edification.

Tongues Must Be Interpreted

⁶But now, brethren, if I come to you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you unless I speak to you either by ^frevelation, by knowledge, by prophesying, or by teaching?

⁷Even things without life, whether flute or harp, when they make a sound, unless they make a distinction in the sounds, how will it be known what is piped or played?

⁸For if the trumpet makes an uncertain sound, who will prepare for battle?

⁹So likewise you, unless you utter by the tongue words easy to understand, how will it be known what is spoken? For you will be speaking into the air.

¹⁰There are, it may be, so many kinds of languages in the world, and none of them is without ²significance.

¹¹Therefore, if I do not know the meaning of the language, I shall be a ³foreigner to him who speaks, and he who speaks will be a foreigner to me.

¹²Even so you, since you are ⁴zealous for spiritual gifts, let it be for the ⁵edification of the church that you seek to excel.

¹³Therefore let him who speaks in a tongue pray that he may ⁸interpret.

¹⁴For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my understanding is unfruitful.

¹⁵What is the conclusion then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with the understanding. ^hI will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing ⁱwith the understanding.

¹⁶Otherwise, if you bless with the spirit, how will he who occupies the place of the uninformed say “Amen” ^jat your giving of thanks, since he does not understand what you say?

¹⁷For you indeed give thanks well, but the other is not edified.

¹⁸I thank my God I speak with tongues more than you all;

¹⁹yet in the church I would rather speak five words with my understanding, that I may teach others also, than ten thousand words in a tongue.

Tongues a Sign to Unbelievers

²⁰Brethren, ^kdo not be children in understanding; however, in malice ^lbe babes, but in understanding be mature.

^{21m}In the law it is written:

ⁿ*“With men of other tongues and other lips
I will speak to this people;
And yet, for all that, they will not hear Me,”*

says the Lord.

²²Therefore tongues are for a ^osign, not to those who believe but to unbelievers; but prophesying is not for unbelievers but for those who believe.

²³Therefore if the whole church comes together in one place, and all speak with tongues, and there come in those who are uninformed or unbelievers, ^pwill they not say that you are ⁶out of your mind?

²⁴But if all prophesy, and an unbeliever or an uninformed person comes in, he is convinced by all, he is convicted by all.

²⁵⁷And thus the secrets of his heart are revealed; and so, falling down on his face, he will worship God and report ^qthat God is truly among you.

Order in Church Meetings

²⁶How is it then, brethren? Whenever you come together, each of you has a psalm, ^rhas a teaching, has a tongue, has a revelation, has an interpretation.

^sLet all things be done for ⁸edification.

²⁷If anyone speaks in a tongue, let there be two or at the most three, each in turn, and let one interpret.

²⁸But if there is no interpreter, let him keep silent in church, and let him speak to himself and to God.

²⁹Let two or three prophets speak, and ^tlet the others judge.

³⁰But if anything is revealed to another who sits by, ^ulet the first keep silent.

³¹For you can all prophesy one by one, that all may learn and all may be encouraged.

³²And ^vthe spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets.

³³For God is not the author of ⁹confusion but of peace, ^was in all the churches of the saints.

^{34x}Let ¹⁰your women keep silent in the churches, for they are not permitted to speak; but they are to be submissive, as the ^ylaw also says.

³⁵And if they want to learn something, let them ask their own husbands at home; for it is shameful for women to speak in church.

³⁶Or did the word of God come originally from you? Or was it you only that it reached?

^{37z}If anyone thinks himself to be a prophet or spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things which I write to you are the commandments of the Lord.

³⁸But ¹¹if anyone is ignorant, let him be ignorant.

³⁹Therefore, brethren, ^adesire earnestly to prophesy, and do not forbid to speak with tongues.

^{40b}Let all things be done decently and in order.

1 Corinthians 15

The Risen Christ, Faith's Reality

(cf. Mark 16:9–20)

¹Moreover, brethren, I declare to you the gospel ^awhich I preached to you, which also you received and ^bin which you stand, ^{2c}by which also you are saved, if you hold fast that word which I preached to you—unless ^dyou believed in vain.

³For ^eI delivered to you first of all that ^fwhich I also received: that Christ died for our sins ^gaccording to the Scriptures,

⁴and that He was buried, and that He rose again the third day ^haccording to the Scriptures, Charts and Diagrams: Facts About the Resurrection

⁵ⁱand that He was seen by ¹Cephas, then ^jby the twelve.

⁶After that He was seen by over five hundred brethren at once, of whom the greater part remain to the present, but some have ²fallen asleep.

⁷After that He was seen by James, then ^kby all the apostles.

^{8l}Then last of all He was seen by me also, as by one born out of due time.

⁹For I am ^mthe least of the apostles, who am not worthy to be called an apostle, because ⁿI persecuted the church of God.

¹⁰But ^oby the grace of God I am what I am, and His grace toward me was not in vain; but I labored more abundantly than they all, ^pyet not I, but the grace of God which was with me.

¹¹Therefore, whether it was I or they, so we preach and so you believed.

The Risen Christ, Our Hope

(cf. 1 Thess. 4:13–18)

¹²Now if Christ is preached that He has been raised from the dead, how do some among you say that there is no resurrection of the dead? Word Studies: resurrection

¹³But if there is no resurrection of the dead, ^qthen Christ is not risen.

¹⁴And if Christ is not risen, then our preaching is empty and your faith is also empty.

¹⁵Yes, and we are found false witnesses of God, because ^rwe have testified of God that He raised up Christ, whom He did not raise up—if in fact the dead do not rise.

¹⁶For if the dead do not rise, then Christ is not risen.

¹⁷And if Christ is not risen, your faith is futile; ^syou are still in your sins!

¹⁸Then also those who have ³fallen ^tasleep in Christ have perished.

^{19u}If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men the most pitiable.

The Last Enemy Destroyed

²⁰But now ^vChrist is risen from the dead, and has become ^wthe firstfruits of those who have ⁴fallen asleep.

²¹For ^xsince by man came death, ^yby Man also came the resurrection of the dead.

²²For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ all shall ^zbe made alive.

²³But ^aeach one in his own order: Christ the firstfruits, afterward those who are Christ's at His coming.

²⁴Then comes the end, when He delivers ^bthe kingdom to God the Father, when He puts an end to all rule and all authority and power.

²⁵For He must reign ^ctill He has put all enemies under His feet.

^{26d}The last enemy that will be destroyed is death.

²⁷For ^e*“He has put all things under His feet.”* But when He says “all things are put under Him,” it is evident that He who put all things under Him is excepted.

^{28f}Now when all things are made subject to Him, then ^gthe Son Himself will also be subject to Him who put all things under Him, that God may be all in all.

Effects of Denying the Resurrection

²⁹Otherwise, what will they do who are baptized for the dead, if the dead do not rise at all? Why then are they baptized for the dead?

³⁰And ^hwhy do we stand in ⁵jeopardy every hour?

³¹I affirm, by ⁱthe boasting in you which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, ^jI die daily.

³²If, in the manner of men, ^kI have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantage is it to me? If the dead do not rise, ^l*“Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die!”*

³³Do not be deceived: ^m“Evil company corrupts good habits.”

³⁴ⁿAwake to righteousness, and do not sin; ^ofor some do not have the knowledge of God. ^pI speak this to your shame.

A Glorious Body

³⁵But someone will say, ^q“How are the dead raised up? And with what body do they come?”

³⁶Foolish one, ^rwhat you sow is not made alive unless it dies.

³⁷And what you sow, you do not sow that body that shall be, but mere grain—perhaps wheat or some other grain.

³⁸But God gives it a body as He pleases, and to each seed its own body.

³⁹All flesh is not the same flesh, but there is one kind ⁶of flesh of men, another flesh of animals, another of fish, and another of birds.

⁴⁰*There are* also ⁷celestial bodies and ⁸terrestrial bodies; but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

⁴¹*There is* one glory of the sun, another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for one star differs from another star in glory.

^{42s}So also is the resurrection of the dead. The body is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption.

^{43t}It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power.

⁴⁴It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body.

⁴⁵And so it is written, ^u“The first man Adam became a living being.” ^vThe last Adam became ^wa life-giving spirit. Word Studies: life-giving spirit

⁴⁶However, the spiritual is not first, but the natural, and afterward the spiritual.

^{47x}The first man was of the earth, ^y*made*⁹ of dust; the second Man is ¹⁰the Lord ^zfrom heaven.

⁴⁸As was the ¹¹*man* of dust, so also are those who are made of dust; ^aand as is the heavenly Man, so also are those who are heavenly.

⁴⁹And ^bas we have borne the image of the man of dust, ^cwe¹² shall also bear the image of the heavenly Man.

Our Final Victory

⁵⁰Now this I say, brethren, that ^dflesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; nor does corruption inherit incorruption.

⁵¹Behold, I tell you a ¹³mystery: ^eWe shall not all sleep, ^fbut we shall all be changed—

⁵²in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. ^gFor the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

⁵³For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and ^hthis mortal must put on immortality.

⁵⁴So when this corruptible has put on incorruption, and this mortal has put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written: ⁱ*“Death is swallowed up in victory.”*

⁵⁵*“Oⁱ¹⁴ Death, where is your sting?
O Hades, where is your victory?”*

⁵⁶The sting of death is sin, and ^kthe strength of sin is the law.

⁵⁷But thanks be to God, who gives us ^mthe victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

⁵⁸ⁿTherefore, my beloved brethren, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing ^othat your labor is not in vain in the Lord.

1 Corinthians 16

Collection for the Saints

¹Now concerning ^athe collection for the saints, as I have given orders to the churches of Galatia, so you must do also:

^{2b}On the first day of the week let each one of you lay something aside, storing up as he may prosper, that there be no collections when I come.

³And when I come, ^cwhomever you approve by your letters I will send to bear your gift to Jerusalem.

Personal Plans

(cf. Acts 19:21)

⁵Now I will come to you ^ewhen I pass through Macedonia (for I am passing through Macedonia).

⁶And it may be that I will remain, or even spend the winter with you, that you may ^fsend me on my journey, wherever I go.

⁷For I do not wish to see you now on the way; but I hope to stay a while with you, ^gif the Lord permits.

⁸But I will tarry in Ephesus until ^hPentecost.

⁹For ⁱa great and effective door has opened to me, and ^j*there are* many adversaries.

¹⁰And ^kif Timothy comes, see that he may be with you without fear; for ^lhe does the work of the Lord, as I also do.

^{11m}Therefore let no one despise him. But send him on his journey ⁿin peace, that he may come to me; for I am waiting for him with the brethren.

¹²Now concerning our brother ^oApollos, I strongly urged him to come to you with the brethren, but he was quite unwilling to come at this time; however, he will come when he has a convenient time.

Final Exhortations

^{13p}Watch, ^qstand fast in the faith, be brave, ^rbe strong.

^{14s}Let all that you do be done with love.

¹⁵I urge you, brethren—you know ^tthe household of Stephanas, that it is ^uthe firstfruits of Achaia, and that they have devoted themselves to ^vthe ministry of the saints—

^{16w}that you also submit to such, and to everyone who works and ^xlabors with us.

¹⁷I am glad about the coming of Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus, ^yfor what was lacking on your part they supplied.

^{18z}For they refreshed my spirit and yours. Therefore ^aacknowledge such men.

Greetings and a Solemn Farewell

¹⁹The churches of Asia greet you. Aquila and Priscilla greet you heartily in the Lord, ^bwith the church that is in their house.

²⁰All the brethren greet you. ^cGreet one another with a holy kiss.

^{21d}The salutation with my own hand—Paul's.

²²If anyone ^edoes not love the Lord Jesus Christ, ^flet him be ¹accursed. ^gO² Lord, come!

^{23h}The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

²⁴My love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

Annotations for 1 Corinthians

1:1–3 Paul's words of introduction are more than simple words of greeting. The first few verses introduce the themes of his letter. Thus in his greeting, Paul introduces his apostolic authority (see 9:1–27), the sanctification of his readers (see 1:5–8), and the unity of all believers (see 1:10–17), all major themes of the letter and concerns for the Corinthian believers.

1:1 through the will of God: The Corinthian church greatly valued human wisdom. This misplaced emphasis had caused some in the church to challenge Paul's authority (v. 12; 9:1, 2). They forgot that Jesus Christ Himself had called him to his ministry as an apostle of Jesus Christ (see 2 Cor. 1:1, where Paul uses the same title).

1:2 A local church of God is a group of people who identify themselves with God and gather together to worship and serve Him. sanctified in Christ Jesus: The Corinthians' holiness came from their position in Christ, not from their own goodness. The tense of the verb sanctified indicates that God had sanctified the Corinthians at a specific time in the past, producing a condition that they still enjoyed in the present. called to be saints: The work of Jesus Christ makes a believer holy forever in God's eyes. But in everyday living, sanctification involves small, daily changes (see Heb. 10:14). This is why Paul could call the Corinthian believers to become saints, even though the problems in their church testified that they were far from the goal of holiness. In every place is most likely a reference to local churches throughout the Roman Empire (see 1 Tim. 2:8).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Corinth

The Corinth which Paul knew had been founded as a Roman colony during the century before Christ. It was strategically located in the Roman province of Achaia on a narrow strip of land between the Aegean Sea and the Adriatic Sea, with two adjoining ports. Corinth's location made it a center for trade routes passing from east to west, and the resulting prosperity brought both luxury and immorality. "To live like a Corinthian" meant to live in gross immorality, and many pagan temples located in Corinth encouraged this licentious way of life through temple prostitution. The letters Paul wrote to the believers in this city reveal the problems, pressures, and struggles of a church called out of a pagan society. Paul had founded the church in Corinth during an 18-month stay in the city (A.D. 51–52; see Acts 18:1–18).

1:4–9 The thanksgiving Paul offers to God for the Corinthians seems odd, considering the many problems the church was experiencing. However, Paul focuses his praise not on the troubled Corinthians but on the eternally faithful God. Paul does not praise the Corinthians for their good works as he does some other churches (see Eph. 1:15); instead, he praises God who works in them. When we focus on people's faults, hope soon wanes and discouragement follows. But when we concentrate on the Lord, even the darkest hours can be filled with praise.

1:5 Enriched means that the Corinthians had been spiritually destitute but had become abundantly prosperous through God's grace.

1:7 Gift here is probably a reference to the spiritual gifts described in chs. 12-14. Despite the Corinthians' boasting, their many gifts had come from God (12:11, 18, 28). The Corinthians were richly blessed with spiritual gifts because God was giving them everything they needed to do His will (12:14–27).

1:8, 9 Because God is faithful to His word, Paul was confident that even the sin-plagued Corinthians would stand blameless before Him. This blamelessness does not refer to the Corinthians' works, but to their standing in Christ, their justification (3:14, 15).

Word Studies

fellowship

(Gk. koinōnia) (1:9; Acts 2:42; Phil. 2:1; 1 John 1:3, 6, 7) Strong's #2842

The Greek term means “that which is shared in common.” In the NT the word was used to denote the believers’ common participation in the Triune God—the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. The Father and Son have enjoyed communion with each other before the creation of the world. When the Son entered into time, His fellowship with the Father also entered into time. During the days of His ministry, Jesus was introducing the Father to the disciples and initiating them into this fellowship. Then once the disciples were regenerated unto eternal life, they actually entered into fellowship with the Father and the Son. Thus the unique fellowship between the Father and the Son begun in eternity was manifested in time through the incarnation of the Son, was introduced to the apostles, and then through the apostles was extended to each and every believer through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit (2 Cor. 13:14; Phil. 2:1).

1:10 Paul pleaded for an outward expression that comes from an inward spirit. Not only did Paul encourage the Corinthians to speak the same thing and have external unity, he also urged them to be joined together in a unity of hearts and minds (see Eph. 4:14–16).

1:11 Paul avoided dealing in rumors or secrecy; he openly named his sources: Chloe’s household. We know little of this woman and her household except what this verse implies. Chloe lived in Corinth or Ephesus, and the Corinthians respected her word.

The Message, Not the Messenger

One of the main problems facing the first-century Corinthian church was division. When Paul wrote to Corinth, the church was divided into at least four factions, each of them aligned with one of four prominent Christian leaders. One group identified itself with the apostle Paul. The members of this faction may have been attracted by Paul’s emphasis on his ministry to the Gentiles. A second group identified itself with Apollos, one of Paul’s fellow missionaries. He may have attracted a following because of his eloquent speaking abilities (see Acts 18:24–28). A third group identified itself with Cephas, another name for the apostle Peter. This group may have been mostly of Jewish background. A fourth group identified itself specifically with Christ. While on the surface it might seem that this group was the “godly” contingent of the Corinthian church, this may not have been the case. Paul does not commend any of the groups, not even the “I am of Christ” faction, suggesting that all of their professed allegiances were causing division and dissension in that church.

Paul uses three rhetorical questions, each expecting a negative response, to show the absurdity of the Corinthian divisions. “Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul?” Paul pointed out that in the act of baptism, a person identifies himself or herself with Christ, period. Baptism does not align the believer with any human leader or with any faction of Christianity, but with the Lord Himself. The Corinthians, who prided themselves on their wisdom and understanding, had misconstrued this truth. They had begun to identify themselves with the men who had performed the baptisms rather than with Jesus Himself.

We might be tempted to write off this problem, attributing it to “those silly, immature Corinthians,” if it were not for the fact that the tendency to exalt dynamic leaders is still prevalent today. Witty, engaging Christian speakers and vibrant, charismatic spiritual leaders still have the power to mesmerize and motivate believers today. And there is nothing inherently wrong with such power. The danger comes when the speaker or leader, and not the message, becomes the focus of attention.

Christian speakers and leaders are merely vessels through whom God’s Word is communicated. Exalting them instead of the message they proclaim is a misunderstanding of their purpose. Put simply, it’s the message, not the messenger.

As believers today, we must guard ourselves against identifying too closely with human leaders or placing too much emphasis on them. Our loyalty and identification belong only to Jesus Christ and His message.

1:14–16 Paul said I thank God that I baptized none of you, because the Corinthians had taken to identifying with their spiritual mentors rather than Christ. Crispus was the ruler of the synagogue in Corinth when Paul began to preach there (see Acts 18:8). He was instrumental in the conversion of many other Corinthians. Gaius may be the same person who hosted Paul and the entire church (Rom. 16:23). Stephanas was one of Paul’s first converts in Achaia, the region of which Corinth was capital. Paul praised him and his household for their devotion to the ministry and for their assistance (16:15). Stephanas was one of the couriers who took correspondence to and from Corinth.

1:17 Paul’s primary ministry was to preach the gospel. Baptism naturally followed conversion but was secondary in importance. With the phrase not with wisdom of words, Paul addressed the Corinthians’ tendency to place undue emphasis on human wisdom. The immature Corinthians were so impressed by clever oratory and learned debate that many of them ignored the relatively “simple” message of the cross.

1:18 The message of the cross is the gospel, the Good News about Christ’s death and resurrection for our sins. The gospel penetrates to the core of self-centeredness. For those who exalt self, the message sounds absurd. But for those who bow humbly in faith, it becomes the power that is able to snatch them from death and impart eternal life. No wonder Paul put such confidence in this message (see Rom. 1:16).

1:20, 21 The wise is probably a reference to Greek philosophers. The scribe is a technical term for a Jewish scholar trained to handle details of the Law. The disputer refers to a Greek person, especially one trained in rhetoric. These professionals tried to solve every problem with logic and debate. The point of this passage is that all human efforts to find favor with God fall woefully short (see Rom. 3:9–28). Only through faith in Christ can we be saved from our sins.

1:22, 23 The Jews sought miraculous signs from the Messiah to signal the beginning of the deliverance God had promised (see Mark 8:11; John 6:30). The Greeks, especially the philosophers, sought to use wisdom to answer their questions about God and life. To the Jews, who expected a political savior, Jesus was a stumbling block. To the Greeks, whose self-centered wisdom could not make sense of the cross, to believe in Jesus was foolishness.

1:26 Wise refers to the Greek philosophers. Mighty refers to influential, politically powerful people. Noble includes all the aristocratic upper classes. Most of the Corinthians came from the lower classes.

1:27 God's plan of salvation does not conform to the world's priorities. In fact, it seems foolish. Yet in reality, eternal salvation is more valuable than all the fame, wealth, and success pursued by the world.

1:28 base . . . despised: Paul's use of these two terms for the slave class would capture the attention of his readers in Corinth, where many slaves lived. the things which are not: No doubt many of the Corinthian believers were people who did not count in the eyes of the world but had found grace in God's eyes.

1:29–31 God uses what is considered foolish and despised in this world to reveal His truth, so that He alone will receive the glory. Otherwise, the powerful would boast that they had found the truth. Instead, God sent His Son to become a humble carpenter and to die in the most despicable way, on a cross. Jesus' life and death reveals God and His wisdom. Since Christ not only imparts wisdom but also righteousness, the Christian cannot boast, except in the LORD.

2:1, 2 excellence of speech or of wisdom: Paul did not rely on his eloquence or on Greek wisdom to convince his listeners. Instead, he gave the testimony of God which had not been explained before, but which was being revealed by the Holy Spirit (vv. 10–14). The focal point of Paul's preaching was Jesus Christ.

2:3–5 Whereas the Corinthians gloried in their strength, their wealth, and their gifts, Christ was glorified in His humility and death. Paul wanted to model Christ's humility by presenting his "weaknesses." Then the "strength" of the gospel message could be clearly seen. My speech probably refers to the way Paul spoke; my preaching probably refers to the content of his message. not with persuasive words . . . but in demonstration of the Spirit: Even though Paul had many strengths of his own (see Phil. 3:4–9), he wanted to be counted among those who relied on God's strength. Rather than using the rhetoric of the day to win converts, he gave a straightforward message. power of God: Miraculous signs had sometimes accompanied Paul's preaching (see 2 Cor. 12:12; 1 Thess. 1:5; Heb. 2:3, 4). Such signs were intended to magnify God, not the human speaker.

2:6 among those who are mature: After having heard eloquent addresses by men like Apollos, the Corinthians may have viewed Paul's message as elementary or unpolished. Paul assured the Corinthians that he was imparting wisdom—instruction that mature Christians would appreciate. rulers of this age: In some passages Paul used the word rulers to refer to spiritual beings (see Eph. 6:12; Col. 2:15); here he referred to earthly rulers, the Roman and Jewish leaders who presided over Jesus' crucifixion. If these rulers had been among the wise, they would have worshiped the Lord instead of crucifying Him. coming to nothing: People look at beauty, wealth, and power as greatly desirable. But all earthly splendor will be rendered meaningless and worthless by death and the coming of God's judgment (Luke 16:19–29; 2 Pet. 3:10–13).

2:7 The mystery that Paul referred to here is defined in Rom. 16:25, 26 as "revelation . . . kept secret since the world began but now made manifest." The message was hidden, known only to God, until He chose to reveal it (see Eph. 3:1–11). This is in contrast to the teachings of the Gnostics, a group of false religious teachers who would infiltrate the early church (see 1 John 2:18–27). They claimed that there existed a body of secret knowledge that was only available to those initiated into an inner circle of spiritual teachers.

2:8 Lord of glory: Though Jesus emptied Himself of His majesty when He became human, He remained fully equal with the Father.

2:9–12 through His Spirit: Only the Holy Spirit could reveal the truths of God (see 2 Pet. 1:19–21). knows . . . know: The first verb refers to innate knowledge; the second refers to experiential knowledge. We could never have discovered the mysteries of God or the benefits of Christ's death by ourselves. But we can know them by experience because they have been freely given to us by God.

2:13 the Holy Spirit teaches: Paul emphasized that the intellectuals of this world could not teach the knowledge he was giving to the Corinthian believers. Note that the Spirit did not simply dictate words to Paul and the other apostles; He taught them. The apostles related with their own vocabulary and style what they had learned from the Spirit. comparing spiritual things with spiritual: These words are difficult to translate and interpret. The Greek term translated comparing may also mean "to combine" or "to interpret." The two references to spiritual may mean interpreting spiritual truths to spiritual persons, or else combining spiritual truths with spiritual words. The latter seems better. In other words, the phrase teaches that the spiritual truths of God are combined with the spiritual vocabulary of the apostles (see 2 Pet. 1:20, 21; 2 Tim. 3:16).

2:14 natural man: The natural person does not have the Spirit of God, in contrast to the Christian who does have the Spirit (15:44–46). Receive here means "to welcome." This verb does not pertain to discovering the meaning of a passage, but applying the meaning to life.

3:1 The carnal person is not the same as the "natural man" mentioned in 2:14. A carnal person is a spiritually immature Christian, a spiritual infant.

3:2 fed . . . milk: Paul did not expect the Corinthians to be mature in Christ at the time of their conversion. By placing their faith in Christ, they had been justified. They had been united with Him and his death on the Cross (Rom. 6:3–5), and the Spirit of God had come to live in them (2:12; Rom. 8:9). They were considered righteous before God because of Jesus' righteousness. Thus when Paul first established the church at Corinth he taught them as new converts, as those justified. Yet he expected them to grow in their faith—that is, become sanctified. The behavior of the Christians in Corinth should have begun to line up with their righteous position in Christ.

3:3, 4 for you are still carnal: An immature Christian naturally lacks many Christian traits, but no one should expect this condition to last. Paul was surprised that the Corinthians had not yet grown into spiritual maturity or become able to distinguish between good and evil (see Heb. 5:14).

3:5–10 Paul had planted, or started, the church in Corinth; Apollos had watered it—had a significant ministry there after Paul left. But both men were only servants through whom God worked. The ones who plant and water have nothing to boast about because God gives the increase: Only God draws unbelievers to Himself. It is our responsibility to do our job no matter what the results, for God will reward us for our efforts and the quality of our work (see 9:24–27).

3:11–15 Paul had established the church at Corinth on the foundation of Christ. gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw: These building materials refer to the quality of work done by the Corinthians, and possibly also to their motivations or the kinds of doctrines they taught. The Day speaks of the time when Christ will judge the merits of His servants' work (see 2 Cor. 5:10), not whether they receive forgiveness of sin. Likewise, fire does not refer to the "eternal fire" of damnation (see Rev. 20:10) but to the evaluation of believers' works (see Rev. 2:18, 19; 3:18; 22:12). Fire proves the quality of gold, but it consumes wood, hay, and stubble. Some "good work" is actually self-centered aggrandizement. The true value of such "service" will become obvious to all in the day of God's judgment (see Rev. 3:17, 18).

3:16, 17 Do you not know: This phrase, found in nine other places in 1 Corinthians (5:6; 6:2, 3, 9, 15, 16, 19; 9:13, 24), always introduces an indisputable statement. temple: There are two words translated temple in the NT. One refers to the temple building and all its courts; the other refers strictly to the Most Holy Place where no one but the high priest could go. Paul uses the latter term to describe the local church, in whom God dwells. Unlike 6:19, where the word temple refers to the individual believer, and Eph. 2:21, where the word speaks of the church universal, these verses speak of the local church as God's temple. God takes very seriously our actions in the church. destroy: Any person who disrupts and destroys the church by divisions, malice, and other harmful acts invites God's discipline (see 11:30–32).

3:18–23 The wisdom of this world does not coincide with God’s wisdom, the foolishness of Christ crucified (see 1:18–25). Paul quotes from Job 5:13 and Ps. 94:11 to urge the members of the Corinthian church to humble themselves. all things are yours: The Stoic literature of the time, which the Corinthians would have known, often spoke of the wise man as possessing everything. Everything God has done in the church, and in the entire universe, benefits all believers. There is no place for foolish boasting or competition among Christians.

futile

(Gk. mataios) (3:20; 15:17; Titus 3:9; James 1:26) Strong's #3152

This word means “pointless” and “purposeless.” The NT writers, especially Paul, used it to depict the meaninglessness that pervades the thought life of fallen human beings. Paul characterizes the “thoughts of the wise” as being futile (3:20), and he describes the Gentiles as living “in the futility of their minds, having their understanding darkened” because they are “alienated from the life of God” (Eph. 4:17, 18). The ideas of the unregenerate are futile and aimless because they lack divine insight; they produce a life of purposelessness and ineffectiveness. Salvation from such futility comes from the indwelling Spirit of Christ in believers (see Rom. 8:10, 11, 26, 27).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 4:1 Servants had no unique position, but stewards did. A steward was a slave who administered all the affairs of his master's household, though he himself owned nothing (compare the testimony of the early church in Acts 4:32). Joseph held such a position in the house of Potiphar (see Gen. 39:2–19). As stewards, believers manage the message and ministry God has entrusted to them.
- 4:3–5 each one's praise will come from God: A steward was not to worry about the evaluations of those around him or even his own self-assessment; he needed only to please his master. Similarly, while believers can benefit from the constructive evaluations of fellow believers, their ultimate Judge is the Lord Himself. Since God is the Judge, we should be careful not to make any premature evaluations of others.
- 4:6 The Greek term translated learn is related to the word translated disciple in Matt. 28:19. It implies the use of a skill and not just knowledge. The Corinthians knew about humility, so Paul called on them to become humble. Greeks considered humility to be a fault, a characteristic of slaves. To the Christian, however, it exemplifies the attitude of Christ (see Phil. 2:5–8). in us: Paul presented himself and Apollos as models to follow (v. 16; 11:1). what is written: This word is often used to introduce a quotation of the OT (see Rom. 14:11). Paul was exhorting the Corinthians not to go beyond the teachings of Scripture. Then they would avoid the pride and divisions that were fracturing their church. A true minister of God's Word will use Scripture to unify and strengthen the church.
- 4:9 Spectacle alludes to the public executions carried out by the Romans. In these executions condemned men were brought into the coliseum, where they were tormented and killed by wild animals as cheering crowds looked on. Paul pointed out that the whole world and the angels were witnesses to the humiliation of God's servants. With biting sarcasm Paul contrasted the Corinthians' lofty evaluation of themselves with the world's evaluation of him. Paul knew that true strength is found in understanding our weakness and Christ's sufficiency (see 2 Cor. 12:7–10; Phil. 4:11–13).
- 4:11–13 Paul lists the hardships he had suffered in Christ's ministry, both physical challenges and verbal abuse (see also 2 Cor. 11:22–30).
- 4:15 instructors . . . fathers: Paul used these two terms to differentiate between his role and the role of the Corinthian teachers, slaves who took care of their masters' children. Paul was the Corinthians' spiritual father. He had final responsibility for them and the right to command them to follow his example.

4:16 Paul urged his readers to imitate him as he followed Christ (see 11:1). The word refers to the way a student would follow a teacher or the way an actor would play a role (see 11:1).

4:18–20 Some people in Corinth, probably the instructors who had caused divisions (see v. 15), acted as though Paul would never return to hold them accountable for their actions. puffed up: These people were conceited and prone to boasting. The kingdom of God here does not refer to the future reign of Christ, but to Christ's present rule in the hearts of His people. This reality guaranteed that Paul would have the power to expose and discipline those who afflicted the Corinthian church.

4:21 Paul uses the same Greek word for rod here that Luke uses to describe the instrument that was used to beat Paul and Silas (see Acts 16:22–24). The term also is used figuratively of Christ's authority to judge (see Rev. 19:15). God had given Paul authority to punish the agitators in Corinth, though he preferred not to use that power.

5:1 The sexual immorality of incest was forbidden by OT law (see Lev. 18:8; Deut. 22:30) and by Roman law. Paul used the phrase his father's wife instead of "his mother" probably to indicate that the woman was the offender's stepmother. The omission of discipline for the woman implies that she was not a believer. The church is responsible for disciplining only its members, not unbelievers.

5:2 puffed up: The Corinthians had a twisted view of grace that caused them to be proud of their tolerance of the sexual offender. They believed that because God's grace is limitless, the freedom that every Christian enjoys is also limitless.

5:5 Destruction of the flesh may refer to God's turning the sexual offender over to Satan for physical affliction or even physical death. After being separated from the spiritual protection of the church, ideally the offender would recognize his sin, repent, and return to the church. All church discipline has restoration as its ultimate goal.

5:6–8 The backdrop for this passage is the Passover (see Ex. 12), when the Israelites removed yeast from their homes in preparation for the feast. The removal of leaven was a reminder of the Israelites' quick departure from Egypt. They did not have time to wait for leavened bread to rise. The point here is that a little leaven has tremendous impact or influence on whatever it is in. The Corinthian church was tolerating sexual sin. This leaven of sin, though small in size, was dangerous, because it could spread through the church. Like cancer, sin demands drastic surgery.

5:6 Like a tiny pinch of leaven spreading through a loaf of bread, unchallenged sin can soon contaminate the whole church. The sexual offender was guilty of sin, but the whole congregation was also guilty of ignoring the man's disobedience and failing to hold him accountable. Left unchecked, this sin could have caused many new believers to commit sexual immorality.

5:7 Jewish people were required to sweep all leaven out of their houses in preparation for the Passover (see Ex. 12:15). The leaven here symbolizes the powerful influence of sin.

5:8 The feast is a figure of speech for Christ. As Israel was to remove all leaven from the celebration of the Passover, so the Corinthians were not to contaminate their relationship with Christ with any malice or wickedness.

5:9–13 Paul here corrects a misunderstanding arising out of his previous letter (v. 9). He had commanded the Corinthians to withdraw themselves from sexually immoral people. In this letter, Paul explains that he was not speaking of the pagan culture around them. If they withdrew totally they would be unable to function in the world. Instead, he was talking about the immorality in their midst. They should judge the sin among themselves, while still reaching out to the lost in Corinth.

5:9 My epistle refers to an earlier letter from Paul to the Corinthians that no longer survives.

5:10 out of the world: Christians are called to influence the world, not run away from it (see Matt. 5:13–16). They are agents of God to carry the light of Jesus Christ into a dark world (see Phil. 2:14–16; 1 Pet. 2:11, 12).

5:11 not even to eat with such a person: Eating together is a key part of fellowship and closeness with others. The Corinthians were not to have fellowship with those who claimed to be Christians but whose lives were dominated by sin.

5:12, 13 do you not judge . . . God judges: The church's responsibility is to discipline its members while trusting the Lord to judge the world (see Matt. 13:30).

6:1–11 In these verses, Paul instructs the Corinthians to stop taking their personal disputes into the pagan courts. The Corinthians had been carrying their conflicts to the Roman courts and thus were making a mockery of Christianity by feuding in public. Their inability to settle personal disputes illustrated the sharp divisions in the church (see 1:10–17).

Pax Romana

The title Pax Romana ("Roman peace") is given to the Roman Empire in the period from 30 B.C. to A.D. 180. This period began with the rule of Octavian. After a century of civil strife, Rome was at last united under one ruler. Octavian, given the title Augustus by the Roman Senate, concentrated on his empire's internal problems and laid the foundation for strong rule and peace.

The Pax Romana increased Rome's trade and prosperity. Great roads were built; tolls and other barriers to trade were removed. Stable coinage and improved methods of banking and credit encouraged economic expansion. A key to maintaining peace was Augustus's willingness to allow provinces local self-government, coupled with his quick use of military force to stifle rebellion or terrorism. Augustus allowed conquered nations to keep their language, customs, and religion, as long as the people stayed on peaceful terms with Rome.

- 6:3 Believers will participate in judging fallen angels (see Rev. 19:19, 20; 20:10). Paul suggested that if the Corinthians were going to be judging with Christ in His future kingdom (see Matt. 19:28), then surely they had the means to settle their own personal differences.
- 6:4, 5 Those who are least esteemed refers to judges in civil courts. The Corinthians, though they had the ability to judge the issues themselves, took their disputes to pagan court for the judges there to decide.
- 6:7, 8 cheated . . . cheat: In all of their bickering, the Corinthians made frivolous and even dishonest charges against one another. Paul suggested that it was better to be cheated by one of these dishonest people than to dishonor one's Christian witness before pagans.
- 6:9, 10 The kingdom of God here seems to refer to a future time when God will rule the earth in righteousness (see Matt. 6:10; Luke 11:2). do not be deceived: Tragically, Christians sometimes deceive themselves into thinking that God does not require them to live righteously. Paul emphasizes that the kinds of people listed in these verses will not inherit or possess the kingdom of God.
- 6:11 In this verse, Paul uses three terms to describe the conversion of the Corinthians. The tense of all three verbs indicates an action in the past that is complete. Washed means spiritually cleansed by God. Sanctified means set apart as God's people. Justified means declared righteous by God because of Christ's work on the Cross.
- 6:12 All things are lawful for me was a slogan the Corinthians had coined to justify their immoral behavior. Paul reminded the Corinthians that freedom from the ceremonial laws of Moses did not give them license to sin or indulge their own selfishness. This would only enslave them in the sin from which Jesus had freed them. under the power of any: The only power that should control us is the Holy Spirit. Sin should never dominate our lives because the Spirit empowers us to fight temptation.
- 6:13, 14 Foods for the stomach and the stomach for foods was another phrase the Corinthians used to justify their sinful lifestyles (v. 12). Food was gratifying and essential for life. When the Corinthians became hungry, they ate. Following the same logic, whenever the Corinthians craved sex, they indulged themselves. In their opinion any physical activity should not affect one's spiritual life, just as digesting food did not affect one's spirituality. The Corinthians' reasoning had two faults: (1) The stomach and the digestive process are in a sense no more than earthly and without function in eternity. But the body, through the resurrection power of Christ, is eternal. It has been sanctified by God to bring Him glory (v. 20). (2) While the stomach's purpose is to digest food, it is not the purpose of the body to commit immorality. Furthermore by design God put restrictions on both eating and sexual activity.
- 6:15–17 Believers' lives are greatly altered when they are joined to Christ. The union affects both the believer and Christ. When a believer commits immorality, he or she is dragging the union with Christ into the illicit relationship. By quoting Gen. 2:24, that the two . . . shall become one flesh, Paul illustrates the seriousness of sexual sin.
- 6:18 Every sin that a man does is outside the body was another slogan used by the Corinthians to justify their immorality (vv. 12, 13). Paul pointed out that the opposite is true: sexual sin is done against the body, not outside of it. Paul exhorted the Corinthians to flee any temptation to indulge in sexual sin (see Gen. 39:1–12).

temple

(Gk. naos) (3:16; 6:19; 2 Cor. 6:16; Eph. 2:21; Rev. 21:22) Strong's #3485

This Greek word for temple refers more to the building itself than hieron, which was used to indicate the entire temple complex. Paul told the believers that each one of their bodies was a naos, a sanctuary for God (6:19). Paul also said that the church, as Christ's body, is a spiritual temple for God (3:16, 17; 2 Cor. 6:16; Eph. 2:21). What a special privilege it is to be God's spiritual dwelling place, both individually and corporately. The glory of God filled the tabernacle (see Ex. 40:34) and the temple (see 1 Kin. 8:10, 11). Now the glory of God in the person of the Holy Spirit dwells within every believer (see John 14:16, 17) and thus inhabits the entire church. In the New Jerusalem, there will be no need for a physical temple because God and the Lamb will be the eternal temple (Rev. 21:22).

6:20 Bought at a price alludes to someone purchasing a slave at a slave auction. With His death Jesus Christ paid the cost to redeem us from our slavery to sin (see Eph. 1:7; 1 Pet. 1:18, 19).

7:1 things of which you wrote to me: After addressing the problems reported by the people of Chloe's household (1:11), Paul began to answer questions that had been sent to him (7:1-14:40). It is good for a man not to touch a woman: There were two extreme positions in the Corinthian church. Both groups falsely separated the physical and the spiritual, believing that neither affected the other. One group was hedonistic. This group claimed that sin only had to do with the physical body, and that believers could sin in their body without any consequence to their spiritual lives. Paul corrects this misunderstanding in ch. 6. The other group believed that all things spiritual are good, and all things physical are bad, and that in order to be truly spiritual a person has to suppress every physical desire. Proponents of this view claimed that celibacy is the only proper lifestyle. Paul corrects their misunderstanding here and explains that while sexual relationships in marriage are good, he chose celibacy in his own personal situation.

7:2 Because of the rampant immorality in Corinth, Paul encouraged those who might be tempted to commit sexual sin to marry. It is better to develop a permanent relationship with a wife or husband than to lapse into sexual sin.

7:3-5 affection: Husbands and wives have a duty to maintain sexual relations with each other so that neither will be tempted by Satan to have sex outside of marriage.

7:10, 11 not I but the Lord: When Christ was on earth, He told us not to divorce a spouse; instead of divorce, Paul uses the word translated depart, which refers to wives leaving their husbands. The idea is the same: a believing husband and wife should not leave each other. The further statement that if the couple divorced they were to remain unmarried is consistent with Jesus' teaching (see Mark 10:9-12).

7:12 I, not the Lord, say: Paul now presents a problem that was not addressed by Jesus. Sometimes a husband or wife would become a Christian, but the spouse would not. Paul exhorts the believer to remain married if the unbelieving spouse does not want to divorce.

7:14 Sanctified primarily means "set apart." Here the term refers to the special situation an unbelieving husband or wife enjoys when his or her spouse is a believer, being exposed to God's teachings. Unclean here probably means the opposite of sanctified. Children with one believing parent may learn about God and come to Christ.

7:15: If an unbeliever seeks to divorce a believing spouse, the Christian is not under bondage or obligation to continue the marriage.

7:16 how do you know: The Greek grammar suggests that Paul asked the question expecting a negative answer. The promise given in 1 Pet. 3:1–6, however, reminds us that consistent obedience to God can make a skeptical spouse into a believing one.

7:17–24 so let him walk: This section develops the theme of faithfulness to the Christian calling rather than to social status. Whether you are slave or free—upper class or lower, powerful or powerless, married or single—is irrelevant; what matters is your calling from God (see Col. 3:11).

7:25–40 I have no commandment from the Lord: Paul clearly distinguishes his words as an apostle from the words of Christ. virgins: This classification of the unmarried in the church is probably smaller than the one mentioned in v. 8, which included widows and those who had been married before. Though Paul is concerned with both celibate men and women, the attention here is on the women. Although the Greek term used in v. 25 could refer to either men or women, the other instances in this passage refer to women (vv. 28, 34, 36, 37). By the second century, the church had developed important offices for virgins, widows, and deaconesses. Since they were unencumbered with the duties of a wife, they could assist the pastors and deacons in baptizing, ministering to the sick, and other works of mercy.

7:26, 27 present distress: Paul saw turbulent days ahead for married Christians because in times of persecution, consideration for family can make it difficult to live out Christian convictions to the fullest extent. A virgin would have lesser family responsibilities and would not be deterred by the possibility of repercussions affecting her husband or children.

7:28 Paul does not want to be understood as prohibiting marriage altogether.

7:29 as though they had none: To get married is not sin, but even married couples should dedicate themselves to God's work.

7:36–38 One interpretation of this passage is that any man refers to the father of an unmarried virgin. She is past the flower of youth indicates that the virgin is approaching an age at which marriage would be unlikely. Under these circumstances, it would be perfectly acceptable for the father to give her in marriage. A second interpretation suggests that the any man of v. 36 refers to a fiancé who is maintaining a celibate state with a virgin but is having difficulty doing so. In this view, the Greek term otherwise translated “she is past the flower of youth” is translated “he has strong passions.” If the man has difficulty in controlling his sex drive, he should marry (v. 9). On the other hand, if he can control himself (has power over his own will), he should maintain his celibacy (v. 8). having no necessity: If the man can control himself and keep himself from immoral action, he should stay single. On the other hand, if the man's will is weak, he should go ahead and marry.

7:39, 40 bound by law: This passage is similar to Rom. 7:2, where Paul used marriage to illustrate obligation to the law. Here he emphasizes that marriage should be lifelong. In a case where a marriage partner has died, the only restriction concerning remarriage is for the person to marry a fellow Christian. Even though remarriage is permitted, Paul still believes that it is wiser to remain unmarried (v. 8). I also have the Spirit of God: The Holy Spirit enabled Paul not only to speak with apostolic authority, but also with spiritual wisdom.

8:1 We know that we all have knowledge appears to have been a slogan used by certain Corinthian believers as an arrogant statement against weaker Christians. The weaker Christians believed that eating food offered to idols was a sin. Other Corinthian believers thought that such concerns were ridiculous. They argued that if the idols were worthless, then the meat offered to them was fine to eat. Paul agreed that food offered to idols was not contaminated, but he wanted the knowledgeable Christians not to flaunt their enlightened point of view. Knowledge puffs up, but love edifies: This is one of Paul's five attacks on the arrogance of some of the church members at Corinth (4:6, 18, 19; 5:2). These people belittled their weaker brothers and sisters with their knowledge. They had missed the point. They should have been using their knowledge to help other believers in the church.

8:4–6 The Corinthian believers who claimed to have knowledge readily admitted that an idol is nothing (see Is. 37:19; Jer. 16:20; Gal. 4:8) and that there is only one God (see Deut. 6:4). But Paul did not dismiss the idea of idols altogether because though these gods are not real, they exist in the minds of those who worship them (10:20).

8:7–13 The knowledgeable believers were correct in their view of idols, but it did not matter. If the weaker brothers and sisters saw other believers eating food offered to idols, they might also eat, in violation of their own conscience. To go against the conscience was in fact sinning. By their knowledge the stronger believers were causing the weaker believers to stumble. Paul exhorted the strong believers to show love to the weaker ones by refraining from offending them.

9:1, 2 Am I not an apostle: Paul substantiated his apostleship with two arguments: (1) he had seen the resurrected Lord (see Acts 1:21, 22), and (2) the church at Corinth was his work in the Lord, a seal of his apostleship.

9:3–18 Paul had the right to eat and drink whatever he wanted, to have a wife, and to receive wages for his ministry. But he did not exercise these rights. Is it oxen God is concerned about: God requires that ministers should be paid for their work just as He requires beasts of burden to be compensated for theirs. those who preach the gospel should live from the gospel: To support ministers of the gospel is commanded by God. Even as the priests in Israel were supported for their work, NT ministers were to be provided for as well (see 1 Tim. 5:17, 18).

(Gk. exousia) (7:39; 8:9; 9:18; Matt. 7:29; Rom. 9:21) Strong's #1849

The Greek term usually denotes “right,” “authority,” or even “privilege.” In certain contexts, as this one, it connotes the freedom to exercise one’s right. Specifically, Paul was addressing the Corinthians’ right to eat meat that may have come from pagan temples. To be clear, the eating of sacrificial food—the cultic meals in pagan temples—was censured by Paul because it was understood that the participants in those meals were uniting themselves to demons (see 10:19–21). However, Paul had no problem with those who purchased food that had been left over from these events and that was later sold in the marketplace. In his judgment if they ate it at home they were not participating in idolatry. They had the liberty—or right—to eat this food in good conscience. The exception was if they would be destroying a weaker believer by doing so. For the sake of such believers, one should abstain.

Go to the List of Word Studies

9:19–23 I have made myself a servant to all, that I might win the more: Paul put his ministry of the gospel above his personal desires. He was willing to conform to the customs of other people, whether Jew or Gentile, in order to bring them to Christ. For example, in order to relate to the Jews in Jerusalem he made a Nazirite vow in the temple (Acts 21:23, 24). Around those who were under the Law—the Jews—Paul obeyed the Law. Around those who were outside the Law—the Gentiles—Paul did not observe Jewish custom. Paul clarified this, however, lest anyone misunderstand his actions. He obeyed God’s law through obedience toward Christ (v. 21). This was a broader law than the Mosaic legislation; this was the fulfillment of Christ’s will (see 11:1; Rom. 13:8; Gal. 6:2).

The Race for the Crown

What does it take to be a champion in a given sport? For one, it is necessary to have a dedication to succeed no matter what the cost. A passion for the game is certainly essential, as is a single-minded determination to accomplish the task at hand. A willingness to train incessantly is also required. And a burning desire for the trophy or prize awarded to the one who wins is an absolute must.

In his letter to the Corinthians, the apostle Paul drew a direct comparison between the Christian life and an athletic competition. This comparison would have had immediate resonance with Paul’s Corinthian readers. Corinth was the site of the Isthmian games, a great athletic festival that was very similar to the Olympic games. Contestants in the Isthmian games endured ten months of mandatory training. Anyone who failed to complete this training was barred from competing in the games. The highlight of the Isthmian games was a great endurance race. It was this race that Paul used as an illustration to depict the faithful Christian life.

In the Isthmian games, several athletes competed for one prize; there could be only one winner. In contrast, the Christian life offers the opportunity for many people to be winners. The winner of the Isthmian games received a pine wreath crown. Those who faithfully complete the Christian life, on the other hand, will receive an imperishable crown.

Paul illustrates the “champion” mindset required to faithfully complete the Christian life with his statements, “I run thus: not with uncertainty” and “Thus I fight: not as one who beats the air” (9:26). Paul was not an aimless competitor. He had a clearly defined goal. Like an athlete preparing for a race or a boxing match, Paul knew that he had to discipline his body; he had to force himself to maintain the strenuous, consistent practice needed for success.

The race that Paul prepared himself for, the race that all Christians need to prepare themselves for, was the calling of God. Paul taught that Christians are rewarded for the calling that God gives them. Paul had an apostolic ministry for which he sacrificed all things. He knew that if he was faithful to his calling he would receive a reward from the Lord for his service (4:2). Paul also knew that if he ignored or treated lightly his mission he would not receive from God the victor’s crown for service. Having seen some of his close friends forsake their calling (see 2 Tim. 4:10), Paul recognized that the loss of the victor’s crown was a very real possibility for any believer, regardless of his or her standing in the Christian community. The apostle’s overwhelming passion was to fulfill his ministry at all costs, to stay faithful to the “fight” (9:26) to the very end. In Paul’s last letter, written shortly before his death, we discover that he accomplished his goal (see 2 Tim. 4:6–8).

Paul’s spiritual training was the very best available. Yet he did not assume that he would automatically persevere to the end of the race. He continued to discipline himself, to fight, and follow his calling from God. In doing so, Paul provided an ideal model for all Christians striving to become champions.

9:27 I myself should become disqualified: The Greek word for disqualified means “disapproved after testing.” Although some have cited this verse as evidence that Christians can lose their salvation, this clause most likely does not refer to salvation. A careful distinction should be made between the prize and the gift. The free gift of justification cannot be the result of good works (see Rom. 4:1–8). However the prize or crown is the reward for endurance and suffering for the cause of Christ (see Phil. 1:29; 2 Tim. 2:12).

10:1–5 Paul places the story of Israel’s unfaithfulness to God after his exhortation to the Corinthians to persevere in God’s work. He emphasizes the blessings the Israelites enjoyed in the desert. They all had the protection and guidance of God. They all experienced God’s miraculous deliverance. They all identified with their spiritual head, Moses. They all enjoyed the bread from heaven. Finally they all drank the water God provided. Paul’s key point is that although all of the Israelites received these wonderful blessings from God, most failed to please Him.

10:1 For the ancient Israelites under the cloud in the wilderness, the cloud served two functions: (1) It provided protection (see Ex. 14:19, 20), fire by night in the cold desert and shade by day from the blistering sun. (2) It guided the people through the desert (see Ex. 13:21). all passed through the sea: Every Israelite who left Egypt in the Exodus experienced the deliverance of God at the Red Sea.

10:2 all were baptized into Moses: The acts of God in the cloud and in the sea joined the people with their spiritual head, Moses.

10:3, 4 the same spiritual food . . . the same spiritual drink: They all followed the same God and the same laws (see John 4:13, 14; 6:32–35).

10:6–10 our examples: The discipline of God exercised against the disobedient Israelites should serve notice to Christians that God will punish His people’s sin.

10:6 The first failure of the ancient Israelites was that they lusted, or “craved.” They were not satisfied with God’s provision but looked back to the provision that they had in Egypt (see Num. 11:4–34).

10:7, 8 The ancient Israelites were notorious idolaters. Even though the true God had brought them out of Egypt, they insisted on worshiping lifeless idols. Furthermore, the ancient Israelites engaged in sexual immorality, a sin that also plagued the Corinthians (5:1; 6:18). twenty-three thousand: The account in Numbers gives the figure twenty-four thousand (Num. 25:6–9). There are several possible reasons for the difference. Some have suggested that Paul’s number reflects the number that died in one day, while the Numbers account may be a record of all who died in the plague. Another explanation may be that the Numbers account includes the death of the leaders (Num. 25:4) while Paul’s figures do not.

10:10 The ancient Israelites complained against their God-given leaders so much that many were destroyed, or put to death (see Num. 16:41–49).

10:12 lest he fall: The Corinthians may have had the attitude that since they were justified by God, nothing could happen to them. The discipline of God, however, is not to be taken lightly. No one can sin with impunity (see Gal. 6:7, 8).

10:13 Paul provides the Corinthians with a word of comfort. The various temptations they were experiencing were normal; all believers throughout the ages have had to resist temptation. God is so good that He will not let believers experience anything for which He has not prepared them. He will give every believer the grace and power to endure. Furthermore, endurance will bring its own reward (see 9:24–27).

10:14–11:1 In this section the apostle Paul addresses the problem of idolatry in the Corinthian church. Worship of various gods was totally ingrained in Greek culture. In the ancient Greek world there were idols on street corners and in houses. Various civic societies paid homage to their favorite gods. Cities adopted certain gods as their special protectors. The pagan temples were frequented often, especially in Corinth with its temple prostitution. Most of the food in the marketplace had been offered in worship to different gods. Paul first addresses the demonic nature of idol worship and then expounds on the nature of Christian liberty, especially concerning food offered to idols.

10:14–22 flee from idolatry: Pagan worship is a violation of the believer's union with Christ (v. 21).

The idols themselves are not a threat (v. 19); the danger lies in the demons (v. 20) who, unknown to the worshipers, are the real objects of idol worship.

demon

(Gk. daimonion) (10:20; Matt. 12:24, 27) Strong's #1140

The origin of demons is not explicitly discussed in the Bible. But the NT speaks of the fall and later imprisonment of a group of angels led by Satan (1 Pet. 3:19, 20; 2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 6). The fall left Satan and his angels free to contaminate the human race with wickedness (Gen. 3; Matt. 25:41; Rev. 12:9). A prime purpose of Jesus' earthly ministry was to overcome the power of Satan. This included His conquest of the demonic realm (Matt. 12:25–29; Luke 11:17–22; John 12:31; 1 John 3:8). Following the resurrection of Jesus and His return to heaven, these demonic principalities and powers have continued their warfare against those who are His followers (Rom. 8:38–39; Eph. 6:12). Yet after Christ returns, the devil and his angels will be defeated and thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone (Matt. 25:41; Rev. 20:10).

- 10:21 You cannot drink: Paul reminded the Corinthians of the fellowship and unity they had in their participation in the Lord's Supper. Participation in idol worship is a violation of that unity.
- 10:23, 24 All things are lawful for me: Though we have freedom, we also have a responsibility to help others in their Christian growth. Our first duty is to others, not ourselves.
- 10:25, 26 Eat whatever is sold: Paul himself did not ask whether meat was sacrificed in the temple, because pagan worship could not contaminate what God had made clean (see Ps. 24:1; Acts 10:15).
- 10:31–11:1 Doing all to the glory of God involves encouraging fellow Christians and spreading the good news about Christ. Paul accomplished this by refusing to offend Jews, Greeks, or the church of God, even if it meant restricting his freedom. Like Christ, Paul did not seek his own way or do things for his own pleasure; instead, he desired to help others (v. 24). This should be our desire as well.
- 11:2 Now I praise you reflects genuine appreciation on Paul's part. The Corinthians had made many mistakes, but they were not totally corrupt. The Corinthians had followed the apostle's instructions in certain areas.
- 11:3 But introduces an exception to the praise Paul had given the Corinthians in v. 2. Paul wanted to instruct the Corinthians on another point of confusion. Head primarily means "authority" when used in the context of human relationships. But the Greek word for head can also mean "source" or "origin" in some cases. the head of woman is man: The relationship between men and women does not involve inferiority, for, in the parallel clause, Christ is not inferior to God the Father. Submission does not indicate inferiority, but subordination. Just as Christ and God are equally divine, men and women are equal beings. But just as Jesus and God the Father have different roles in God's plan of salvation, so men and women are given different roles.
- 11:4 Praying or prophesying may refer specifically to intercessory prayer similar to that of OT prophets (see Gen. 20:7; 1 Sam. 12:23; Jer. 27:18) or Anna (see Luke 2:36–38), or to the combination of tongues and prayer (see 14:13–16; Acts 2:4; 10:46). Having his head covered can refer to a hat or a veil. dishonors his head: It is impossible to decide whether head here refers to the man's physical head or to Christ, the man's authoritative head (v. 3). Either interpretation is possible; Paul may even have meant the word to have a double meaning.

11:5, 6 every woman who prays or prophesies: Women were obviously allowed to pray and prophesy in the Christian assembly because it would have been meaningless for Paul to give instructions for something they were not permitted to do. Dishonors her head refers either to the woman's own physical head or to her husband as her head, or possibly both (v. 4). For a woman not to cover her head with a veil or with her own hair was as shameful as having a shaved head, a sign of public disgrace.

11:7–9 man is not from woman, but woman from man: The woman was taken from the side of the man (see Gen. 2:21). Woman for the man is Paul's way of stating the concept of the "helper" in Gen. 2:20. This does not mean the woman is inferior to the man; it refers only to the purposes of God for man and woman in the creative order.

11:10 Women were to wear a covering on their head because of the angels. Evidently God's angels are present at the meeting of the church and actually learn of God's work of grace through the lives and worship of God's people (see Eph. 3:10). symbol of authority: This might be a symbol of the woman's authority to prophesy in the new church age, which was inaugurated with the giving of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost (v. 5). It also might refer to a symbol of the man's authority over the woman (v. 3).

11:11, 12 neither . . . independent: Men and women need each other, and as creatures of God, both depend on Him. Neither man nor woman can have any claim to special status other than what God has purposed for them as their Creator.

11:17 I do not praise you: In contrast to Paul's praise in v. 2, that the Corinthians had followed many of his teachings, here he expressed concern for their sinful practices at worship. Come together is a technical term for the meeting of the church and is used three times in this passage (vv. 18, 20).

11:19 those who are approved: One of the positive results of division or factions in the church is that it becomes obvious who the genuine Christians are in the congregation.

11:20–22 The Lord's Supper was the centerpiece of early Christian worship. Gathered around one table, fellow believers met with the Lord and with each other in unity. Christ had expressed this type of humility and unity when He instituted the Supper (see Matt. 26:26–30; Mark 14:22–26; Luke 22:14–23). Corinthian believers were taking their own supper ahead of others, violating the spirit and purpose of the meal. In acting this way, they showed contempt for the church of God and shamed those who had nothing.

11:23–25 I received speaks of Paul's revelation from Christ, which he had delivered to the people. Paul explained it again.

11:26 you proclaim the Lord's death till He comes: The Lord's Supper looks back to Christ's death and forward to His second coming (see Matt. 26:29; Mark 14:25; Luke 22:18).

11:27 In an unworthy manner refers to the way in which a person eats the Lord's Supper. The Corinthians had been making the meal a time of overeating and getting drunk rather than a time of reflecting on the death and resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ.

11:30 Sleep here refers to the death of Christians (see 15:18; 1 Thess. 4:15, 16). In this passage, it refers to untimely death, a punishment suffered by some Christians who failed to examine themselves at the Lord's Supper (v. 28).

11:31 If we would judge ourselves, God would not need to correct us. But when Christians are unwilling to do this self-examination, God Himself will chasten them.

12:1 Now concerning indicates that Paul was responding to another question addressed to him in a letter from the Corinthian church (7:1, 25; 8:1). Spiritual gifts here may refer to spiritual things or spiritual persons. The same Greek word is used throughout chs. 12–14 to refer to "tongue speaking" and "tongues speakers." Since the Corinthians tended to exalt the practice of speaking in tongues, it is likely that they viewed a person who spoke in tongues as especially spiritual, one uniquely possessed by the Spirit.

spiritual gifts

gifts

(Gk. charisma) (1:7; 7:7; 12:4, 9, 28, 30; 1 Tim. 4:14) Strong's #5486

The Greek term charisma is closely akin to the word charis, which means “grace” or “favor”; charisma denotes “that which is graciously given.” Paul used the term charisma synonymously with the Greek term ta pneumatika—literally “the spiritual things”—because the things graciously given are spiritual gifts. These gifts were given by the Lord to various individuals in the church so as to enliven the meetings and to edify the believers in the church body. Each and every member has been gifted with at least one kind of charisma, whether it be the gift of teaching, prophesying, exercising faith, healing, performing miracles, discerning spirits, speaking in tongues, interpreting tongues, or other gifts.

Go to the List of Word Studies

12:2 The term Gentiles here has the generic meaning of foreigners or unlearned people. Paul used this word to emphasize the Corinthians’ state of ignorance. Because of their ignorance, they had been carried away or “swept off their feet.” Dumb idols is an expression that the Corinthians familiar with OT idolatry would immediately recognize (see 1 Kin. 18:26–29; Is. 46:7).

12:3 calls Jesus accursed . . . say that Jesus is Lord: A person truly speaking by means of the Holy Spirit will never curse Jesus; by the same token, no one can genuinely proclaim the lordship of Christ without the enabling of the Spirit. It is possible that some of the Corinthians were giving supposed “Spirit-induced utterances” in which they denigrated the physical, historical Jesus in favor of a “spiritual,” heavenly Christ. This type of teaching would have been something like an early form of Gnosticism, a false teaching in the early church that viewed the body as evil and the soul as good.

12:4–6 Gifts here refers to talents that God gives to individual Christians, through which He may strengthen His people. diversities . . . differences . . . diversities: The first portion of the “gift formula” expresses diversity. same Spirit . . . same Lord . . . same God: The second portion expresses unity. Though people are gifted differently by God, God and His work are unified.

12:7–11 given to each one for the profit of all: God works in believers to benefit the entire body, not just the individual Christian (vv. 25, 26). Various gifts are distributed to bring diversity among the unified body, even as a human body has many parts and functions. The word of knowledge appears to be the ability to teach doctrine. The word of wisdom refers to practical application of knowledge (see Acts 6). Faith here is the capacity to believe in God for extraordinary deeds. Miracles is the ability to perform miraculous wonders similar to Moses and the prophets. Prophecy is the telling of a revelation from God, either new revelation or divine explanation of what was revealed in the past. Discerning of spirits may refer to the ability to distinguish the works of God from demonic activity in the church. Interpretation of tongues is the ability to explain or translate the tongues spoken in the congregation so that the entire group might benefit (14:13, 16, 28).

Spiritual Gifts vs. Spiritual Responsibilities

Spiritual gifts are extraordinary abilities that the Spirit gives to a believer to build up the church. Even though such attributes as faith, teaching, and giving are considered gifts, all Christians are exhorted to develop these traits.

Some Christians are given . . .

Divine wisdom (12:8)

Extraordinary faith (12:9)

Special teaching gifts (12:28; Rom. 12:7)

Supernatural ability to help (12:28)

The gift of exhortation (Rom. 12:8)

The ability to give with liberality (Rom. 12:8)

Divine power to show mercy (Rom. 12:8)

But all believers are called . . .

To live wisely (Rom. 16:19; Eph. 5:15; Col. 4:5)

To walk by faith (2 Cor. 5:7) and abound in faith (2 Cor. 8:7); to take up the shield of faith (Eph. 6:16) and pursue faith (1 Tim. 6:12; 2 Tim. 2:22)

To teach others the truths of God (Matt. 28:20; 2 Tim. 2:2, 24)

To serve one another in love (Gal. 5:13) and to minister to others (Rom. 12:7)

To exhort one another daily (Heb. 3:13)

To give “not grudgingly or of necessity” but cheerfully (2 Cor. 9:7)

To be merciful (Luke 6:36; James 2:13)

Go to the List of Charts and Diagrams

12:12 so also is Christ: Paul used the human body to illustrate the need for unity in the diversity that existed in the church (see Eph. 2:21; 4:16).

12:13 one Spirit . . . one body: Believers are part of the whole body infused by the one God. By here may also be translated “in,” speaking of location. Christ places each new member of the body in the Holy Spirit for His care and safekeeping (see 2 Cor. 1:22). All believers are baptized into the body of Christ (see Rom. 6:3), whether they are Jews or Greeks . . . slaves or free. This expression echoes Paul’s teaching in the Book of Galatians concerning equal access by faith into the promise of Abraham (see Gal. 3:26–29). have all been made to drink into one Spirit: The Spirit not only surrounds us, He also dwells within us.

12:18 God has set . . . each one of them: Every individual believer has a vital role assigned by God Himself. That is why we should neither boast in what we do nor think too little of ourselves. Each one of us is important to God and has a mission to accomplish here on earth.

12:25 The members should have the same care for one another because God gives spiritual gifts, as stated in v. 7, “for the profit of all.” Rather than being envious of other people’s positions or gifts, we should give of ourselves to others. Whenever any part of the body has a need, we should minister and help that part.

- 12:28–30 Sometimes in the NT, the term apostles refers in a general sense to missionaries (see 15:7; Rom. 16:7; 2 Cor. 11:5; 12:11; Gal. 1:17, 19). Other times the term is limited to the small group who witnessed the resurrected Christ and were given a special mission by Him as His representatives (9:1; 15:5, 8). prophets: As was the case with the OT prophets, the primary responsibility of NT prophets was not predicting the future, but presenting God’s message to their contemporaries. New Testament prophets provided guidance for the church in its infancy (see Eph. 3:2–5). The word teachers refers to those who explain the written revelation of God, as indicated in Gal. 6:6; 2 Tim. 2:2.
- 12:31 earnestly desire the best gifts: In this phrase, the verb translated desire could also be translated as “you are desiring.” Although the phrase has generally been interpreted as Paul’s exhortation to the Corinthians to seek after the more spiritually profitable gifts, it is possible that Paul is stating that the Corinthians were improperly desiring the gifts that would bring attention to themselves. In other words, he is telling them that although they desire this sort of gift, he wants to show them a more excellent way, the way of love (ch. 13).
- 13:1 the tongues of men and of angels: Paul uses an intentional exaggeration to illustrate the uselessness of each spiritual gift without love. The Corinthians would readily understand the images of sounding brass or a clanging cymbal. Many of them had used brass instruments and cymbals as standard elements of pagan worship in their lives before Christ.
- 13:3 Bestow all my goods likely pertains to the spiritual gift of giving to others (see Rom. 12:8).
- 13:8 Love never fails: This uncompromising and bold affirmation introduces the contrast with the spiritual gifts which will not last. Paul wants the Corinthians to know that all the gifts, especially tongues, which attracted their attention so much, would one day no longer be needed. But love would continue forever. prophecies . . . will fail: The word translated fail is in the passive voice, indicating that something will cause prophecies to stop. tongues . . . will cease: Unlike prophecies, tongues will simply stop (no external cause is indicated by the Greek). knowledge . . . will vanish away: The term translated will vanish away here is the same word translated “will fail” earlier in v. 8.
- 13:10 when that which is perfect has come: The Greek word for perfect means “end” or “completion.” Most likely, this is a reference to the Second Coming of Christ and the completion of all things (see v. 12). But some have interpreted perfect as referring to the completion of the NT canon.
- 13:12 The mirror is probably the Word of God (see 2 Cor. 3:18; James 1:23–25), which can give us only a partial understanding of God. This will all change when we see Him face to face.
- 13:13 Faith enables us to come to God (see Heb. 11:6), but love enables us to imitate Him.
- 14:1 The word translated pursue carries such meanings as “hasten,” “run,” “run after,” and “aspire to.” There are many things in life that we can simply take or leave, but love is not one of them.

tongues

(Gk. glōssa) (12:10; 14:2, 4–6, 9, 13, 14, 18, 27; Acts 2:4; 10:46; 19:6)

Strong's #1100

The Greek term glōssa means “tongue” or “language.” When the early believers were empowered by the Holy Spirit on the Day of Pentecost, they were given the ability to speak in many different languages, so that those visiting from all around the Roman world could hear the glories of God being uttered in their native tongue (Acts 2:4–11). The household of Cornelius also spoke in different languages when they were baptized in the Holy Spirit (Acts 10:46). And the same happened with the new disciples from Ephesus (Acts 19:6). From then on, some members of the early church regularly spoke in different languages as a way of praying to God, and others spoke in different languages in church meetings. When these languages were spoken in private, interpretation was not needed; when they were spoken in the meetings, Paul required interpretation so that the others could understand and be edified (14:2–27).

Go to the List of Word Studies

14:3, 4 The term prophecies here incorporates all speaking gifts that edify the church (see Rom. 12:6; 1 Pet. 4:11). Edification, exhortation, and comfort result from prophesying in the church. For this reason, Paul wanted the Corinthians to exercise the gift of prophecy instead of speaking in a tongue, by which a person merely edifies himself.

14:5 interprets: Speaking in tongues does benefit the church whenever it is interpreted, though not as much as prophesying.

14:11 Paul underlines the original purpose of all spiritual gifts: they must serve the church (see vv. 13, 14; 12:7). Tongues must convey meaning or else they fail to help those who listen.

14:16, 17 He who occupies the place of the uninformed refers to anyone who does not understand the message spoken in tongues. Saying amen was common in Jewish and early church worship when the congregation wanted to indicate its agreement with what was being said (see Deut. 27:14–26; Rev. 5:14). Such a response would be impossible in the case of an uninterpreted tongue, because no one would have understood the prayer.

14:18, 19 more than you all: Paul spoke many languages. If the Corinthians wanted to brag of their tongue speaking, the apostle had much more to brag about. But this ability was of very limited value to Paul in fulfilling his responsibility to the people of God (vv. 5, 13). In the church, speaking five words that are understandable has more benefit than speaking a countless number (ten thousand) of words in a tongue.

14:20–22 children in understanding: Paul wanted the Corinthians to serve and benefit each other above all. But instead they had developed the skill of attacking and neglecting each other.

14:26 If each person brings to the meeting the special ability that God has given him or her, and if everything is done for edification, the church as a whole will benefit. Psalm probably refers to the singing of an OT psalm (see Eph. 5:19; Col. 3:16). Teaching in the early church most likely consisted of presenting an OT truth or a teaching of the apostles; the one who received a revelation was probably the prophet who spoke the word of God (vv. 29–32).

14:29 Let two or three prophets speak: As beneficial as prophesying is, Paul sought to limit the activity. Prophets were not to monopolize the limited amount of time the church members were together. Let the others judge indicates that no one, not even a person exercising a spiritual gift, is exempt from accountability to the church (6:5; 11:29, 31).

14:30 Revealed indicates that prophesying as described here is different from what we call preaching or reading from Scripture. The prophesying that Paul referred to is similar to OT prophecy in which God gives a revelation to one of His servants who, in turn, gives that revelation to God's people. Let the first keep silent is similar to the admonition in v. 28 concerning tongues speakers. The speakers were not to compete with each other, but all things were to be done in an orderly manner (v. 40) for the benefit of those who heard (12:7).

14:31, 32 subject to the prophets: Paul anticipated that some people might claim that they could not prevent themselves from prophesying when God brought a revelation to them. He explained that the Holy Spirit does not overpower the person through whom He speaks.

14:34 Let your women keep silent: Paul's command here is the subject of much debate, for it seems to contradict the fact that Paul spoke of women prophesying in 11:5. It has been suggested that Paul was addressing a particular problem in the Corinthian church, a group of women who were disruptive. This verse has also been interpreted as a prohibition on women interpreting prophecy, judging the prophets, or speaking in tongues.

14:36 from you: In persuading the Corinthians to accept his teaching, Paul had already appealed to nature—namely, the importance of order in the church to conform to God's peaceful nature (v. 33). Here the apostle emphasizes the importance of conformity, not only with the Christian churches throughout the world, but also with the origin of Christian truth. The Corinthians did not invent the truth that Paul taught. The Christian message had traveled from Jerusalem throughout most of the Roman world.

14:37 To further establish his arguments and the authority of his teaching, Paul appealed to the fact that he taught the commandments of the Lord. Paul's teachings were not opinions or options. To be obedient to the Lord is to be obedient to what Paul taught.

15:1, 2 Paul's gospel to the Corinthians centered on the physical death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, the eternal Son of God who became human yet never sinned (see Gal. 1:6–10). Paul had started the Corinthian church; the gospel that the Corinthians had originally received came from him (2:2).

15:3 Paul did not originate the proclamation of Jesus that he delivered to the Corinthians; he simply gave the Corinthians what he himself had received. He viewed himself as a link in a long chain of witnesses to the truth of the death and resurrection of Christ. Christ died for our sins: Christ's death dealt decisively with our sins. He suffered in our place to endure the just wrath of God against us. according to the Scriptures: Christ lived and died in accordance with the prophecies about Him in the OT (see Ps. 16:10; Is. 53:8–10).

15:4 The Resurrection verifies the fact that Christ's death paid the full price for sin. The Greek term translated rose here is in the perfect tense, emphasizing the ongoing effects of this historical event. Christ is a risen Savior today.

Facts About the Resurrection

The resurrection of Christ was proclaimed eagerly by the early church. This miracle was considered an essential part of the gospel message. Surely Christ had died, but more importantly, He had been raised. More than just a suffering Savior, Jesus is our living Lord.

Christ's resurrection was prophesied in the Old Testament Scriptures (Ps. 16:10).	15:4
The risen Christ appeared to more than five hundred witnesses, including Paul.	15:5–8
If Jesus did not rise from the dead, the gospel message is pointless, empty, and dishonest. Jesus Christ would not be alive, interceding for us, and we would not be able to place our hope in a glorious future with Him. The Resurrection is central to the gospel.	15:14, 15
According to Paul, “if Christ is not risen, your faith is futile; you are still in your sins” (15:17 ; see Rom. 4:25). Christ's resurrection, not merely His death on the Cross, secured our justification. His resurrection was a sign of God's approval of Christ's sacrifice for our sins. In short, no Resurrection equals no forgiveness of sin.	15:17–19
The resurrection of Christ was designed to reveal what lies ahead for those who put their trust in Jesus (15:20–57). Paul called Christ “the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep” (15:20). This Old Testament image (see Ex. 23:16–19) means that Christ serves as both an example and a guarantee of what we can expect. Because He has conquered death (15:26, 27, 54–57), we need not fear death. Because He now enjoys a glorified body, we also can expect to inherit a “spiritual body” (15:44–46) after this mortal one wears out.	15:20–26
Our dead, physical body will one day be resurrected.	15:42
We will once again be both material and immaterial beings, our soul being reunited with our resurrected body.	15:43, 44
The power behind this marvelous, yet mysterious, event is Jesus, the self-declared “resurrection and the life” (John 11:25).	15:45
Our physical body will be altered and changed to prepare us for the life to come. If Jesus is the prototype, we will still be recognizable, but our new body will be capable of supernatural activities (see Luke 24:31, 36, 51).	15:51–54
Our resurrection will take place when Jesus returns (see 1 Thess. 4:13–18).	15:53

15:5–8 At the time of Paul's writing, a person could have verified the truthfulness of the apostle's statements. The majority of the five hundred people who saw the risen Christ, as well as all the apostles and James (the half brother of Jesus), were still living. Born out of due time is probably Paul's comment on the unique way he became an apostle. Unlike the other apostles, who had the benefit of an initial training period with Christ, Paul became an apostle abruptly, with no opportunity for earthly contact with Christ or His teaching.

15:9 Paul considered himself the least of the apostles because at one time he had persecuted the church (see Acts 22:4; Eph. 3:8; 1 Tim. 1:15, 16).

15:10 I labored more abundantly: Even though Paul got a late start and did not have the discipleship training that the other apostles did, he traveled further, established more churches, and wrote more Scripture than all of them (see 2 Cor. 11:23–27). But Paul attributed his success to the grace of God.

15:11 whether . . . I or they: Paul did not care who got credit for the Corinthians' faith. He cared only that the Corinthians believed.

15:12, 13 Some of the Corinthians were teaching that there is no resurrection. These opponents of Paul may have been denying the reality of Christ's resurrection. They may also have been teaching that resurrection is only spiritual rather than physical. Or they may have been teaching that the resurrection had already happened (see 2 Tim. 2:18). Whatever the case, they contradicted the essential teaching that Christ had been physically raised from the dead and that believers in Him will someday also be resurrected.

(Gk. anastasis) (15:12, 13, 21, 42; Acts 17:32; Rom. 1:4; 1 Pet. 1:3) Strong's #386

The Scriptures often speak of Christ's resurrection with the phrase that is literally "resurrection out from among dead ones." This is the wording in the first half of 15:12 and in other verses (see Acts 17:31; 1 Pet. 1:3). When Scripture speaks of the resurrection in general, commonly the phrase is "a resurrection of dead ones." This is the wording in the second half of 15:12 (see also 15:13, 42). In Rom. 1:4, Christ's resurrection is spoken of as "a resurrection of dead ones." The same terminology is used in 15:21, where the Greek text literally reads: "For since through a man death came, so also through a Man came a resurrection of dead persons." This shows that Christ's resurrection included the resurrection of believers to eternal life. When He arose, many arose with Him, for they were united with Him in His resurrection (see Rom. 6:4, 5; Eph. 2:6; Col. 3:1).

Go to the List of Word Studies

15:15 false witnesses: In vv. 5–8, Paul listed several people, including himself, who had witnessed the resurrected Christ. To deny the Resurrection was to deny the truth of their testimony.

15:17 you are still in your sins: Christ's death without His resurrection would not succeed in saving us from our sins.

15:18 Without the resurrection of Christ, those who are asleep in Christ—the dead—have perished or been destroyed. The Greek word translated futile in this passage speaks of something that has no results. Without the resurrection of Christ, the Christian faith brings no forgiveness and no future life in God's presence.

15:19 we are of all men the most pitiable: If Christians have no hope for the future, the pagans could justifiably consider Christians fools since believers would have suffered for nothing.

15:20 Jesus is the firstfruits of all others who believe in Him. This is an OT image of the first installment of a crop which anticipates and guarantees the ultimate offering of the whole crop (see 16:15; Rom. 8:23). Because Christ rose from the dead, those who are asleep in Christ (v. 18; 1 Thess. 4:15, 16) have a guarantee of their own resurrection.

15:21, 22 by man came death: The first man, Adam, transgressed God's law and brought sin and death into the world (see Gen. 2:17; 3:19; Rom. 5:12–21); the second Man, Jesus Christ, was the perfect sacrifice to take away sin and to bring life and resurrection to those who believe in Him (see Rom. 5:15–21). in Christ all shall be made alive: The principle here is similar to that in Rom. 5:18, 19, where Paul explains that by one man's (Adam's) sin many were made unrighteous, whereas by one Man's (Christ's) obedience many will be made righteous.

15:23 Each one in his own order indicates that God has a certain design for the resurrection. The word order is a Greek military term that might also be translated "rank." The Commander is raised first; His troops afterward. In 1 Thess. 4:13–18, His coming is described as Christ's coming with those who have "fallen asleep" (the dead), who are then united with their physical bodies. Following this is the removal of all living Christians from the earth.

- 15:24 The end here refers to all remaining prophetic events that will occur after the rapture of the church and during the climax of history, when Christ puts an end to all rule (vv. 25–28). delivers the kingdom to God the Father: When Christ and the church are joined at His coming, God will establish His kingdom on this earth, culminating in a new heavens and a new earth. puts an end to all rule and all authority: Until the time of the end, the Father subjugates everything to the Son (see Ps. 110:1; Dan. 2:44; 7:14, 27). Christ is Lord over the universe (see Col. 1:15–17).
- 15:25, 26 all enemies: God has allowed His enemy Satan to rule as the “prince of the power of the air” (see Eph. 2:2) and the “god of this age” (see 2 Cor. 4:4), but his final judgment before God is certain. The last enemy . . . death: The conquering of death is final proof of God’s victory and the inauguration of the new day of the Lord (see Rev. 20:14).
- 15:27, 28 it is evident: Paul clarified the verses that he had been quoting from the OT. The texts say that everything is put under the Son, but God the Father is excepted, or excluded from this subjugation, because the Son must be subject to the Father. God may be all in all indicates that there will be no challenge to the sovereign rule of God over all the universe. There will be universal peace and prosperity.
- 15:29 It may be that some of the Corinthians had for some reason been baptized for others who had died without baptism. Paul did not approve or disapprove of the unusual practice, though he used they rather than “we” when speaking of it. if the dead do not rise . . . Why then are they baptized: To deny the resurrection, as the Corinthians did, and yet be involved in such baptism activities made no sense.
- 15:30–32 why do we stand in jeopardy: Paul risked his life daily. To do so would have been of no advantage without the hope of a resurrection. Why else should Paul have endured difficulties like fighting beasts at Ephesus? It would have been better for him to take the position of the Epicureans, who sought pleasure and avoided pain. The reference to beasts might be a figurative reference to Paul’s human enemies at Ephesus. Acts 19 does not record any confrontation with animals.
- 15:33, 34 Paul had already warned the Corinthians to avoid fellow believers who lived immoral lives (5:9–13). Quoting a proverb from the poet Menander, evil company corrupts good habits, Paul warned the Corinthians to stay away from those who teach false doctrine (see 2 Cor. 6:14–7:1).
- 15:35–37 Some people objected to the resurrection on the grounds that it was too hard to understand. Paul called these people foolish. Difficulty understanding the nature of the resurrection should not cause a person to doubt its reality, any more than not understanding how a seed becomes a plant should cause disbelief in the coming harvest.
- 15:38–41 The variety found in nature among living beings such as men, animals, fish, and birds, and among objects such as celestial bodies and terrestrial bodies reflect the Creator’s power and will. The varying brightness of the sun, moon, and stars serves as a good illustration of the differences between the earthly human body and the heavenly human body. All these different celestial and terrestrial objects are evidence that God the Creator can certainly create new resurrected human bodies out of our old bodies.
- 15:44–49 natural . . . spiritual: The contrast is not between a material body and an immaterial body, but between a body subject to death and a body that is immortal. The Greek term translated spiritual here refers to a body directed by the Spirit, as opposed to one dominated by the flesh (2:15; 10:4). First man . . . second Man contrasts the sinful nature that every person inherits with the new righteous nature that comes through Christ.

life-giving spirit

(Gk. pneuma zōopoion) (15:45; 2 Cor. 3:6; 1 Pet. 3:18) Strong's #4151;
2227

The Greek expression denotes “the spirit that gives life” or “the spirit that makes alive.” The Lord Jesus entered into a new kind of existence when He was raised from the dead because He was glorified and simultaneously became life-giving spirit. The verse does not say Jesus became “the Spirit,” since the Second Person of the Trinity did not become the Third Person. Rather, Jesus became spirit in the sense that His mortal existence and form were changed into that which is spiritual. As One now united with the Spirit in a glorified body, Jesus is no longer bound by His mortal body. He is alive in the Spirit (see 1 Pet. 3:18), to give life to all who believe. This is why Paul speaks of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus (Rom. 8:2).

Go to the List of Word Studies

15:50 Mere flesh and blood cannot enter into the glorious existence of an immortal body (vv. 35–49).

Something must happen to this flesh so that it becomes incorruptible (v. 42).

15:51, 52 we shall all be changed: The teaching here is similar to the teaching given to the Thessalonians (see 1 Thess. 4:13–18). Whereas the dead in Christ will be raised first, the living believers will be instantly transformed into their immortal bodies when Jesus returns.

15:53–57 The living will receive a body that is not subject to death (see v. 50). Satan’s apparent victories in the Garden of Eden (see Gen. 3:13) and at the Cross (see Mark 15:22–24) were reversed by Jesus’ death (see Col. 2:15) and resurrection. From the vantage point of Jesus’ victorious return, Death and Hades (the grave) have no power over Christians, because Jesus has already conquered both. We participate in His victory.

15:58 The Corinthians were to continue steadfast in the work of Christ, specifically because of the resurrection. your labor is not in vain: All the work that we do for Christ will be rewarded (see 2 Cor. 5:10; Rev. 22:12).

16:1–4 Now concerning: Paul once again addressed a question asked by the Corinthians (7:1, 25; 8:1; 12:1) about giving (Acts 11:29, 30; 24:17; Rom. 15:25–28; 2 Cor. 8; 9). The first day of the week was the regular weekly meeting day of the early church. Lay something aside expresses the concept of Christian giving in the NT. The OT tithe (altogether coming to about 23 percent) was not adopted by the NT church, though certainly Christ practiced it. New Testament believers were encouraged to give liberally, but never a specified amount or percentage (see Rom. 12:8). Paul wanted to make sure that the Corinthians’ offering would be collected before he arrived so that he would not need to pressure the people when he saw them (see 2 Cor. 9:5). Whoever you approve refers to the person who would accompany Paul (v. 4) to Jerusalem to deliver the gift on behalf of the Corinthian church.

16:5–7 Now I will come to you: Paul had hoped to leave Ephesus soon to visit Corinth, perhaps even spending the winter with the Corinthians. Travel by sea during the winter was hazardous (see Acts 27:9–44). Paul eventually did make it to Corinth, but not according to the schedule he planned here.

This failure to come caused him trouble later with the Corinthians (see 2 Cor. 1:15-2:1).

16:8, 9 The opportunities for Paul's ministry in Ephesus, a major city of Asia Minor, were great, as was the persecution he endured there.

16:10–12 Though Paul could not leave immediately for Corinth, he wanted to be represented among the Corinthians by his fellow workers. He planned to send Timothy, a young man at this time. Paul encouraged the Corinthians to go easy on Timothy, for although he was trustworthy, he was more timid than Paul.

16:13, 14 Watch is often used in the NT to indicate anticipation of some future event (see Mark 13:37; Rev. 3:3). Paul's exhortation to stand fast in the faith is especially important in view of the susceptibility of the Corinthians to false teaching (see 2 Cor. 11:3). Be brave may also be translated "play the man," emphasizing not only bravery but maturity. Paul's command to do everything with love serves as a balance to these strong exhortations.

16:15–18 The household of Stephanas was among the first in Achaia to respond to Paul's preaching. Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus probably were the ones who confirmed the bad news brought by Chloe's household in 1:11. They were also probably the bearers of the letter that the Corinthians sent to Paul (see 7:1).

16:19, 20 The churches of Asia may be those mentioned in Rev. 2; 3. Aquila and Priscilla were tentmakers who had met Paul in Corinth. They followed him to Ephesus and made their house available for the meetings of the church (see Rom. 16:3–5). They would have been known to many in the Corinthian church. a holy kiss: This custom, adopted by the early Christians, symbolized love, forgiveness, and unity.

16:21–23 my own hand: From this point on, Paul stopped dictating (see Rom. 16:22; Gal. 6:11) and completed the letter in his own handwriting. let him be accursed: It may seem harsh that Paul would wish God's damnation on those who do not love Jesus. But the acceptance or rejection of Christ is serious business. Those who reject the Lord Jesus are enemies of God (see Gal. 1:8, 9). In the next breath Paul desires the coming of our Lord with an Aramaic expression, marana tha, meaning "Lord, come."

Introduction

Second Corinthians is the most autobiographical of Paul's letters and probably the most difficult letter that Paul had to write. In previous letters, Paul had exhorted the Corinthian church to correct some abuses that were occurring in the congregation. However, some false teachers in the congregation were antagonized by Paul's rebuke and rejected his warnings. As a result, in this letter Paul was forced to defend his character, and more importantly his apostolic authority, in the face of slanderous accusations. His defense reveals the trials and tribulations, the problems and the pressures of his itinerant ministry more than any other book in the Bible. Yet like the rest of Paul's letters, 2 Corinthians points past Paul's sweat and tears to the power that lay behind his actions and words: the Lord Jesus Christ.

Author and Date Second Corinthians begins by identifying the author as Paul (1:1; 2:1). The style of the letter confirms Paul's authorship, as does the testimony of the early church. Some critics theorize that chapters 10–13 were not part of the original letter because the tone is different from chapters 1–9. The spirit of the first nine chapters is joyful and jubilant, while the spirit of the last four is one of sorrow and severity. Many of these critics claim that chapters 10–13 are part of a lost letter referred to in 2:4. However, the final chapters of 2 Corinthians are firm, not "sorrowful." Moreover, no early manuscript or author can be cited to support such a theory. The difference in tone can be accounted for by the change of subject in those chapters.

Paul wrote 1 Corinthians during the last year of his ministry at Ephesus, on his third missionary journey, probably in the early spring of A.D. 56. Second Corinthians was written shortly after 1 Corinthians. Thus the date of 2 Corinthians is probably the fall of A.D. 56.

Occasion In order to understand the purpose of 2 Corinthians, one must know about the background to the letter, that is, what had occurred between the writing of 1 Corinthians and this letter. Reconstructing that background, however, is complicated.

The issues are: (1) How many visits did Paul make to Corinth before he wrote 2 Corinthians (2:1; 12:14)? (2) How many letters had he written (2:3, 4, 9; 7:18)? (3) Who was "the offender" (2:5; 7:12)? There are two basic ways of reconstructing the life and letters of Paul to explain these references. The traditional view takes the references in 2 Corinthians to a previous letter to refer to 1 Corinthians. In this case, the “offender” is the incestuous person of 1 Corinthians 5. A more recent interpretation contends that the data in 2 Corinthians does not fit 1 Corinthians; therefore there must have been another letter written by Paul to Corinth between 1 and 2 Corinthians. Either that letter was lost, or else it is chapters 10–13 of 2 Corinthians. Those holding this theory usually maintain that Paul must have visited Corinth briefly between the writing of 1 and 2 Corinthians, based on the word “again” in 2:1. This is sometimes called the “painful visit.” According to this view, the “offender” was not the incestuous person of 1 Corinthians 5, but the leader of a party opposed to Paul.

The traditional view contends that the data of 2 Corinthians does fit the facts of 1 Corinthians. Therefore the “previous letter” is 1 Corinthians and “the offender” is the incestuous member. According to this view, there was no “painful visit,” for the word “again” in 2:1 does not necessarily mean that Paul made a visit between writing 1 and 2 Corinthians. It simply means he did not want to return “in sorrow.” The reference in 12:14 and 13:1, 2 to a “third time” does not mean Paul was coming for his third time, it simply means that he was “ready” to come for a third time. He had planned to come (see 1 Cor. 16:5–9), evidently was ready to come (12:14), and then did not actually make the trip (1:15–17, 23).

Thus the background of 2 Corinthians may be pieced together as follows: Paul founded the Corinthian church (Acts 18:1–17; 1 Cor. 3:6, 10). After 18 months he departed from Corinth and wrote a letter which is now lost (see 1 Cor. 5:9). Paul then talked to some members of Chloe’s household about quarrels in the Corinthian church (1 Cor. 1:11). Perhaps at this point, Paul sent Timothy on a trip that included Corinth (1 Cor. 4:17; 16:10). Then a committee arrived from Corinth with questions for Paul (1 Cor. 7:1; 16:7). Then Paul wrote the book now called 1 Corinthians to correct disorders and answer questions from the Corinthian church. Paul probably sent Titus to Corinth with 1 Corinthians. After sending him, Paul became deeply concerned about how the Corinthians would respond to what he had written. He had called them carnal (1 Cor. 3:1) and proud (1 Cor. 4:18). In the meantime, serious difficulties arose at Ephesus, so he left ahead of schedule (see Acts 20:1). He stopped at Troas to preach the gospel (2:12). But because he did not find Titus there and was still eager to hear about the Corinthians, he hastened to Macedonia (2:13). There Paul found Titus. According to an early tradition, Paul wrote 2 Corinthians from Philippi.

Purpose In 1 Corinthians, Paul had instructed the believers in Corinth to discipline an incestuous member (see 1 Cor. 5), and to take a collection for the poor saints in Jerusalem (1 Cor. 16:1–4). Titus gave Paul a report that was on the whole encouraging (2:14; 7:5–7). The Corinthians had responded properly to 1 Corinthians. They had faithfully carried out the discipline necessary (2:5–11). But Titus also informed Paul about the presence of “false apostles” (11:13) who accused Paul of walking according to the flesh (1:12, 17; 10:2), being deceitful (2:17; 4:2; 12:16), intimidating the church with his letters (10:9, 10), unjustly mistreating someone to the point of ruining that person (7:2), and defrauding people (7:2). These false teachers probably pointed out that Paul had not returned as he promised, and used this as evidence for his duplicity (1:15–17, 23, 24). They even attempted to discredit Paul by charging that he was raising money to enrich himself (7:2; 8:16–23). Inevitably these accusations raised doubts in the minds of the Corinthians about the integrity of the apostle Paul.

Paul wrote 2 Corinthians out of his concern for the Corinthian church (7:12). He wanted to offer the church some further instructions concerning the repentant offender (2:5–11) as well as about the collection for the poor saints in Jerusalem (9:1–5). However, Paul’s main purpose for writing 2 Corinthians was to defend his ministry. Paul’s opponents in Corinth had severely attacked him. He wrote this letter to prove that his ministry was sincere and genuine, and to reassert his authority as an apostle of Christ.

Theology Second Corinthians is primarily a personal letter, defending Paul’s ministry among the Corinthians and appealing to the factions in the church to reconcile themselves to each other. Yet Paul still uses doctrine to address this church’s problems. He speaks of the foundational doctrines of the Christian faith: the Trinity (1:21, 22; 13:14), as well as the deity (1:12, 19; 4:5), humanity (8:9), death (5:19, 21) and resurrection of Christ (5:15). Paul reaffirms that all believers have been sealed by the Holy Spirit (1:22) and have been given the Spirit as a deposit (1:22; 5:5). The believing Corinthians are in Christ (5:7) and Christ is in them (13:3, 4). They will be resurrected (4:14; 5:1–8) and evaluated at the judgment seat of Christ (5:10), where they will either be ashamed (5:3) or rewarded (5:9, 10). Paul points out that part of the reason for the Corinthians’ difficulties and divisions was Satan’s opposition to the church. He blinds unbelievers to truth (4:4) and uses every opportunity to divide the believers (2:11). That is why Paul exhorts the Corinthians to lead holy lives, to repent of the sins of the past, and to be reconciled to each other. Thus in this personal letter defending his ministry and authority, Paul still weaves doctrine into the fabric of his discussion. For Paul, the essence of Christian faith touched on every facet of life, not only divisions and controversies like those that disturbed the Corinthian church.

Christ in the Scriptures

Because Paul indicates that he experienced the comfort of the risen Christ in the midst of his hardships, he reveals Jesus as the source of the believer's comfort: "For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also abounds through Christ" (1:5). Given Paul's personal tragedies, Jesus the Comforter is a major emphasis in this letter. But, look further and you will find much more. Jesus is celebrated as our triumph (2:14), our light (4:6), our reconciliation (5:19), our substitute (5:21), our gift (9:15), and our strength (12:9).

2 Corinthians 1

Greeting

¹Paul, ^aan apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and ^bTimothy our brother,

To the church of God which is at Corinth, ^cwith all the saints who are in all Achaia:

^{2d}Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Comfort in Suffering

^{3e}Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and God of all comfort, ⁴who ^fcomforts us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort those who are in any ¹trouble, with the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted by God.

⁵For as ^gthe sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our ²consolation also abounds through Christ.

⁶Now if we are afflicted, ^h*it is* for your consolation and salvation, which is effective for enduring the same sufferings which we also suffer. Or if we are comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation.

⁷And our hope for you is steadfast, because we know that ⁱas you are partakers of the sufferings, so also you will partake of the consolation.

Delivered from Suffering

⁸For we do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, of ^jour ³trouble which came to us in Asia: that we were burdened beyond measure, above strength, so that we despaired even of life.

⁹Yes, we had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should ^knot trust in ourselves but in God who raises the dead,

¹⁰ⁱwho delivered us from so great a death, and ⁴does deliver us; in whom we trust that He will still deliver us, ¹¹you also ^mhelping together in prayer for us, that thanks may be given by many persons on ⁵our behalf ⁿfor the gift granted to us through many.

Paul's Sincerity

¹²For our boasting is this: the testimony of our conscience that we conducted ourselves in the world in ⁶simplicity and ^ogodly sincerity, ^pnot with fleshly wisdom but by the grace of God, and more abundantly toward you.

¹³For we are not writing any other things to you than what you read or understand. Now I trust you will understand, even to the end

¹⁴(as also you have understood us in part), ^qthat we are your boast as ^ryou also are ours, in the day of the Lord Jesus.

Sparing the Church

¹⁵And in this confidence ^sI intended to come to you before, that you might have ^ta second benefit—

¹⁶to pass by way of you to Macedonia, ^uto come again from Macedonia to you, and be helped by you on my way to Judea.

¹⁷Therefore, when I was planning this, did I do it lightly? Or the things I plan, do I plan ^vaccording to the flesh, that with me there should be Yes, Yes, and No, No?

¹⁸But as God is ^wfaithful, our ⁷word to you was not Yes and No.

¹⁹For ^xthe Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us—by me, ^ySilvanus, and ^zTimothy—was not Yes and No, ^abut in Him was Yes.

^{20b}For all the promises of God in Him are Yes, and in Him Amen, to the glory of God through us.

²¹Now He who establishes us with you in Christ and ^chas anointed us is God,

²²who ^dalso has sealed us and ^egiven us the Spirit in our hearts as a guarantee. Word Studies: sealed

²³Moreover ^fI call God as witness against my soul, ^gthat to spare you I came no more to Corinth.

²⁴Not ^hthat we ⁸have dominion over your faith, but are fellow workers for your joy; for ⁱby faith you stand.

2 Corinthians 2

¹But I determined this within myself, ^athat I would not come again to you in sorrow.

²For if I make you ^bsorrowful, then who is he who makes me glad but the one who is made sorrowful by me?

Forgive the Offender

³And I wrote this very thing to you, lest, when I came, ^cI should have sorrow over those from whom I ought to have joy, ^dhaving confidence in you all that my joy is the joy of you all.

⁴For out of much ¹affliction and anguish of heart I wrote to you, with many tears, ^enot that you should be grieved, but that you might know the love which I have so abundantly for you.

⁵But ^fif anyone has caused grief, he has not ^ggrieved me, but all of you to some extent—not to be too severe.

⁶This punishment which was inflicted ^hby the majority is sufficient for such a man, ⁷ⁱso that, on the contrary, you ought rather to forgive and comfort him, lest perhaps such a one be swallowed up with too much sorrow.

⁸Therefore I urge you to reaffirm your love to him.

⁹For to this end I also wrote, that I might put you to the test, whether you are ^jobedient in all things.

¹⁰Now whom you forgive anything, I also forgive. For ²if indeed I have forgiven anything, I have forgiven that one for your sakes in the presence of Christ, ¹¹lest Satan should take advantage of us; for we are not ignorant of his devices.

Triumph in Christ

¹²Furthermore, ^kwhen I came to Troas to preach Christ's gospel, and ^la ³door was opened to me by the Lord, ^{13m}I had no rest in my spirit, because I did not find Titus my brother; but taking my leave of them, I departed for Macedonia.

¹⁴Now thanks be to God who always leads us in triumph in Christ, and through us ⁴diffuses the fragrance of His knowledge in every place.

¹⁵For we are to God the fragrance of Christ ⁿamong those who are being saved and ^oamong those who are perishing.

^{16p}To the one we are the aroma of death leading to death, and to the other the aroma of life leading to life. And ^qwho is sufficient for these things?

¹⁷For we are not, as ⁵so many, ^rpeddling⁶ the word of God; but as ^sof sincerity, but as from God, we speak in the sight of God in Christ.

2 Corinthians 3

Christ's Epistle

(cf. Jer. 31:31–34)

¹Do ^awe begin again to commend ourselves? Or do we need, as some others, ^bepistles of commendation to you or letters of commendation from you? Bible

Times & Culture Notes: The New Testament Canon

^{2c}You are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read by all men;

³clearly you are an epistle of Christ, ^dministered by us, written not with ink but by the Spirit of the living God, not ^eon tablets of stone but ^fon tablets of flesh, that is, of the heart.

The Spirit, Not the Letter

⁴And we have such trust through Christ toward God.

^{5g}Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think of anything as being from ourselves, but ^hour sufficiency is from God,

⁶who also made us sufficient as ⁱministers of ^jthe new covenant, not ^kof the letter but of the ^lSpirit; for ^lthe letter kills, ^mbut the Spirit gives life. Word Studies:

new covenant

Glory of the New Covenant

⁷But if ⁿthe ministry of death, ^owritten and engraved on stones, was glorious, ^pso that the children of Israel could not look steadily at the face of Moses because of the glory of his countenance, which glory was passing away, ⁸how will ^qthe ministry of the Spirit not be more glorious?

⁹For if the ministry of condemnation had glory, the ministry ^rof righteousness exceeds much more in glory.

¹⁰For even what was made glorious had no glory in this respect, because of the glory that excels.

¹¹For if what is passing away was glorious, what remains is much more glorious.

¹²Therefore, since we have such hope, ^swe use great boldness of speech—

¹³unlike Moses, ^t*who* put a veil over his face so that the children of Israel could not look steadily at ^uthe end of what was passing away.

¹⁴But ^vtheir minds were blinded. For until this day the same veil remains unlifted in the reading of the Old Testament, because the veil is taken away in Christ.

¹⁵But even to this day, when Moses is read, a veil lies on their heart.

¹⁶Nevertheless ^wwhen one turns to the Lord, ^xthe veil is taken away.

¹⁷Now ^ythe Lord is the Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is ^zliberty.

¹⁸But we all, with unveiled face, beholding ^aas in a mirror ^bthe glory of the Lord, ^care being transformed into the same image from glory to glory, just as ²by the Spirit of the Lord.

2 Corinthians 4

The Light of Christ's Gospel

¹Therefore, since we have this ministry, ^aas we have received mercy, we ^bdo not lose heart.

²But we have renounced the hidden things of shame, not walking in craftiness nor ¹handling the word of God deceitfully, but by manifestation of the truth ^ccommending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

³But even if our gospel is veiled, ^dit is veiled to those who are perishing, ⁴whose minds ^ethe god of this age ^fhas blinded, who do not believe, lest ^gthe light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, ^hwho is the image of God, should shine on them.

⁵ⁱFor we do not preach ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ^jourselves your bondservants for Jesus' sake.

⁶For it is the God ^kwho commanded light to shine out of darkness, who has ^lshone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

Cast Down but Unconquered

⁷But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, ^mthat the excellence of the power may be of God and not of us. Word Studies: earthen vessels

⁸We are ⁿhard-pressed on every side, yet not crushed; we are perplexed, but not in despair;

⁹persecuted, but not ^oforsaken; ^pstruck down, but not destroyed—

^{10q}always carrying about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus, ^rthat the life of Jesus also may be manifested in our body.

¹¹For we who live ^sare always delivered to death for Jesus' sake, that the life of Jesus also may be manifested in our mortal flesh.

¹²So then death is working in us, but life in you.

¹³And since we have ^tthe same spirit of faith, according to what is written, ^u“I believed and therefore I spoke,” we also believe and therefore speak, ¹⁴knowing that ^vHe who raised up the Lord Jesus will also raise us up with Jesus, and will present us with you.

¹⁵For ^wall things are for your sakes, that ^xgrace, having spread through the many, may cause thanksgiving to abound to the glory of God.

Seeing the Invisible

¹⁶Therefore we ^ydo not lose heart. Even though our outward man is perishing, yet the inward man is ^zbeing renewed day by day.

¹⁷For ^aour light affliction, which is but for a moment, is working for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory, ^{18b}while we do not look at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen. For the things which are seen are temporary, but the things which are not seen are eternal.

2 Corinthians 5

Assurance of the Resurrection

¹For we know that if ^aour earthly ¹house, this tent, is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house ^bnot made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

²For in this ^cwe groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed with our ²habitation which is from heaven,

³if indeed, ^dhaving been clothed, we shall not be found naked.

⁴For we who are in this tent groan, being burdened, not because we want to be unclothed, ^ebut further clothed, that mortality may be swallowed up by life.

⁵Now He who has prepared us for this very thing is God, who also ^fhas given us the Spirit as ³a guarantee.

⁶So we are always confident, knowing that while we are at home in the body we are absent from the Lord.

⁷For ^gwe walk by faith, not by sight.

⁸We are confident, yes, ^hwell pleased rather to be absent from the body and to be present with the Lord.

The Judgment Seat of Christ

⁹Therefore we make it our aim, whether present or absent, to be well pleasing to Him.

¹⁰ⁱFor we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, ^jthat each one may receive the things done in the body, according to what he has done, whether good or bad. Charts and Diagrams: The Judgment Seat of Christ

¹¹Knowing, therefore, ^kthe terror of the Lord, we persuade men; but we are well known to God, and I also trust are well known in your consciences.

Be Reconciled to God

¹²For ^lwe do not commend ourselves again to you, but give you opportunity ^mto boast on our behalf, that you may have an answer for those who boast in appearance and not in heart.

¹³For ⁿif we are beside ourselves, it is for God; or if we are of sound mind, it is for you.

¹⁴For the love of Christ compels us, because we judge thus: that ^oif One died for all, then all died;

¹⁵and He died for all, ^pthat those who live should live no longer for themselves, but for Him who died for them and rose again.

^{16q}Therefore, from now on, we regard no one according to the flesh. Even though we have known Christ according to the flesh, ^ryet now we know Him thus no longer.

¹⁷Therefore, if anyone ^sis in Christ, he is ^ta new creation; ^uold things have passed away; behold, all things have become ^vnew.

¹⁸Now all things are of God, ^wwho has reconciled us to Himself through Jesus Christ, and has given us the ministry of reconciliation, ¹⁹that is, that ^xGod was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, not ⁴imputing their trespasses to them, and has committed to us the word of reconciliation.

²⁰Now then, we are ^yambassadors for Christ, as though God were pleading through us: we implore you on Christ's behalf, be reconciled to God.

²¹For ^zHe made Him who knew no sin to be sin for us, that we might become ^athe righteousness of God in Him. Word Studies: righteousness of God

2 Corinthians 6

Marks of the Ministry

¹We then, as ^aworkers together with Him also ^bplead with you not to receive the grace of God in vain.

²For He says:

^c*“In an acceptable time I have heard you,
And in the day of salvation I have helped you.”*

Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.

^{3d}We give no offense in anything, that our ministry may not be blamed.

⁴But in all things we commend ourselves ^eas ministers of God: in much ¹patience, in tribulations, in needs, in distresses,

^{5f}in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labors, in sleeplessness, in fastings;

⁶by purity, by knowledge, by longsuffering, by kindness, by the Holy Spirit, by ²sincere love,

^{7g}by the word of truth, by ^hthe power of God, by ⁱthe armor of righteousness on the right hand and on the left,

⁸by honor and dishonor, by evil report and good report; as deceivers, and yet true;

⁹as unknown, and ^jyet well known; ^kas dying, and behold we live; ^las chastened, and yet not killed;

¹⁰as sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many ^mrich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

Be Holy

¹¹O Corinthians! ³We have spoken openly to you, ⁿour heart is wide open.

¹²You are not restricted by us, but ^oyou are restricted by your own affections.

¹³Now in return for the same ^p(I speak as to children), you also be open.

^{14q}Do not be unequally yoked together with unbelievers. For ^rwhat ⁴fellowship has righteousness with lawlessness? And what ⁵communion has light with darkness?

¹⁵And what accord has Christ with Belial? Or what part has a believer with an unbeliever?

¹⁶And what agreement has the temple of God with idols? For ^syou⁶ are the temple of the living God. As God has said:

^t*“I will dwell in them
And walk among them.
I will be their God,
And they shall be My people.”*

¹⁷Therefore

^u*“Come out from among them
And be separate, says the Lord.
Do not touch what is unclean,
And I will receive you.”*

¹⁸*“I ^vwill be a Father to you,
And you shall be My ^wsons and daughters,
Says the LORD Almighty.”*

2 Corinthians 7

¹Therefore, ^ahaving these promises, beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

The Corinthians' Repentance

²Open your hearts to us. We have wronged no one, we have corrupted no one, ^bwe have cheated no one. Charts and Diagrams: A Faithful Minister

³I do not say this to condemn; for ^cI have said before that you are in our hearts, to die together and to live together.

^{4d}Great is my boldness of speech toward you, ^egreat is my boasting on your behalf. ^fI am filled with comfort. I am exceedingly joyful in all our tribulation.

⁵For indeed, ^gwhen we came to Macedonia, our bodies had no rest, but ^hwe were troubled on every side. ⁱOutside were conflicts, inside were fears.

⁶Nevertheless ^jGod, who comforts the downcast, comforted us by ^kthe coming of Titus, ⁷and not only by his coming, but also by the ^lconsolation with which he was comforted in you, when he told us of your earnest desire, your mourning, your zeal for me, so that I rejoiced even more.

⁸For even if I made you ^msorry with my letter, I do not regret it; ⁿthough I did regret it. For I perceive that the same epistle made you sorry, though only for a while.

⁹Now I rejoice, not that you were made sorry, but that your sorrow led to repentance. For you were made sorry in a godly manner, that you might suffer loss from us in nothing.

¹⁰For ^ogodly sorrow produces repentance leading to salvation, not to be regretted; ^pbut the sorrow of the world produces death.

¹¹For observe this very thing, that you sorrowed in a godly manner: What diligence it produced in you, what ^qclearing of yourselves, what indignation, what fear, what vehement desire, what zeal, what vindication! In all things you proved yourselves to be ^rclear in this matter.

¹²Therefore, although I wrote to you, I did not do it for the sake of him who had done the wrong, nor for the sake of him who suffered wrong, ^sbut that our care for you in the sight of God might appear to you.

The Joy of Titus

¹³Therefore we have been comforted in your comfort. And we rejoiced exceedingly more for the joy of Titus, because his spirit ^shas been refreshed by you all.

¹⁴For if in anything I have boasted to him about you, I am not ashamed. But as we spoke all things to you in truth, even so our boasting to Titus was found true.

¹⁵And his affections are greater for you as he remembers ^tthe obedience of you all, how with fear and trembling you received him.

¹⁶Therefore I rejoice that ^uI have confidence in you in everything.

2 Corinthians 8

Excel in Giving

¹Moreover, brethren, we make known to you the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia:

²that in a great trial of affliction the abundance of their joy and ^atheir deep poverty abounded in the riches of their liberality. Article: New Testament Giving

³For I bear witness that according to their ability, yes, and beyond their ability, they were freely willing,

⁴imploring us with much urgency ¹that we would receive the gift and ^bthe fellowship of the ministering to the saints.

⁵And not only as we had hoped, but they first ^cgave themselves to the Lord, and then to us by the ^dwill of God.

⁶So ^ewe urged Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also complete this grace in you as well.

⁷But as ^fyou abound in everything—in faith, in speech, in knowledge, in all diligence, and in your love for us—see ^gthat you abound in this grace also.

Christ Our Pattern

^{8h}I speak not by commandment, but I am testing the sincerity of your love by the diligence of others.

⁹For you know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, ⁱthat though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that you through His poverty might become ^jrich.

¹⁰And in this ^kI give advice: ^lIt is to your advantage not only to be doing what you began and ^mwere desiring to do a year ago;

¹¹but now you also must complete the doing of it; that as there was a readiness to desire it, so there also may be a completion out of what you have.

¹²For ⁿif there is first a willing mind, it is accepted according to what one has, and not according to what he does not have.

¹³For I do not mean that others should be eased and you burdened;

¹⁴but by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may supply their lack, that their abundance also may supply your lack—that there may be equality.

¹⁵As it is written, ^o“He who gathered much had nothing left over, and he who gathered little had no lack.”

Collection for the Judean Saints

¹⁶But thanks be to God who ²puts the same earnest care for you into the heart of Titus.

¹⁷For he not only accepted the exhortation, but being more diligent, he went to you of his own accord.

¹⁸And we have sent with him ^pthe brother whose praise is in the gospel throughout all the churches,

¹⁹and not only that, but who was also ^qchosen by the churches to travel with us with this gift, which is administered by us ^rto the glory of the Lord Himself and to show your ready mind,

²⁰avoiding this: that anyone should blame us in this lavish gift which is administered by us—

^{21s}providing honorable things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men.

²²And we have sent with them our brother whom we have often proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, because of the great confidence which we have in you.

²³If anyone inquires about ^tTitus, he is my partner and fellow worker concerning you. Or if our brethren are inquired about, they are ^umessengers³ of the churches, the glory of Christ.

²⁴Therefore show to them, ⁴and before the churches, the proof of your love and of our ^vboasting on your behalf.

2 Corinthians 9

Administering the Gift

¹Now concerning ^athe ministering to the saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you;

²for I know your willingness, about which I boast of you to the Macedonians, that Achaia was ready a ^byear ago; and your zeal has stirred up the majority.

^{3c}Yet I have sent the brethren, lest our boasting of you should be in vain in this respect, that, as I said, you may be ready;

⁴lest if some Macedonians come with me and find you unprepared, we (not to mention you!) should be ashamed of this ¹confident boasting.

⁵Therefore I thought it necessary to ²exhort the brethren to go to you ahead of time, and prepare your generous gift beforehand, which you had previously promised, that it may be ready as a matter of generosity and not as a ³grudging obligation.

The Cheerful Giver

^{6d}But this I say: He who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and he who sows ⁴bountifully will also reap bountifully.

⁷So let each one give as he purposes in his heart, ^enot grudgingly or of ⁵necessity; for ^fGod loves a cheerful giver.

^{8g}And God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that you, always having all sufficiency in all things, may have an abundance for every good work.

⁹As it is written:

^h*“He has dispersed abroad,
He has given to the poor;
His righteousness endures forever.”*

¹⁰Now ⁶may He who ⁱsupplies seed to the sower, and bread for food, ⁷supply and multiply the seed you have sown and increase the fruits of your ^jrighteousness, ¹¹while you are enriched in everything for all liberality, ^kwhich causes thanksgiving through us to God.

¹²For the administration of this service not only ^lsupplies the needs of the saints, but also is abounding through many thanksgivings to God,

¹³while, through the proof of this ministry, they ^mglorify God for the obedience of your confession to the gospel of Christ, and for your liberal ⁿsharing with them and all men, ¹⁴and by their prayer for you, who long for you because of the exceeding ^ograce of God in you.

¹⁵Thanks be to God ^pfor His indescribable gift!

2 Corinthians 10

The Spiritual War

¹Now ^aI, Paul, myself am pleading with you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ—^bwho in presence am lowly among you, but being absent am bold toward you.

²But I beg you ^cthat when I am present I may not be bold with that confidence by which I intend to be bold against some, who think of us as if we walked according to the flesh.

³For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war according to the flesh.

^{4d}For the weapons ^eof our warfare are not ¹carnal but ^fmighty in God ^gfor pulling down strongholds,

^{5h}casting down arguments and every high thing that exalts itself against the knowledge of God, bringing every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ, ⁶ⁱand being ready to punish all disobedience when ^jyour obedience is fulfilled.

Reality of Paul's Authority

^{7k}Do you look at things according to the outward appearance? ¹If anyone is convinced in himself that he is Christ's, let him again consider this in himself, that just as he is Christ's, even ²so ^mwe are Christ's.

⁸For even if I should boast somewhat more ⁿabout our authority, which the Lord gave ³us for ⁴edification and not for your destruction, ^oI shall not be ashamed—

⁹lest I seem to terrify you by letters.

¹⁰“For his letters,” they say, “are weighty and powerful, but ^p*this* bodily presence is weak, and his ^qspeech contemptible.”

¹¹Let such a person consider this, that what we are in word by letters when we are absent, such we will also be in deed when we are present.

Limits of Paul's Authority

^{12r}For we dare not class ourselves or compare ourselves with those who commend themselves. But they, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise.

^{13s}We, however, will not boast beyond measure, but within the limits of the sphere which God appointed us—a sphere which especially includes you.

¹⁴For we are not overextending ourselves (as though our authority did not extend to you), ^tfor it was to you that we came with the gospel of Christ;

¹⁵not boasting of things beyond measure, that is, ^uin other men's labors, but having hope, that as your faith is increased, we shall be greatly enlarged by you in our sphere, ¹⁶to preach the gospel in the regions beyond you, and not to boast in another man's sphere of accomplishment.

¹⁷But ^v"he who glories, let him glory in the LORD."

¹⁸For ^wnot he who commends himself is approved, but ^xwhom the Lord commends.

2 Corinthians 11

Concern for Their Faithfulness

¹Oh, that you would bear with me in a little ^afolly—and indeed you do bear with me.

²For I am ^bjealous for you with godly jealousy. For ^cI have betrothed you to one husband, ^dthat I may present you ^eas a chaste virgin to Christ.

³But I fear, lest somehow, as ^fthe serpent deceived Eve by his craftiness, so your minds ^gmay be corrupted from the ¹simplicity that is in Christ.

⁴For if he who comes preaches another Jesus whom we have not preached, or if you receive a different spirit which you have not received, or a ^hdifferent gospel which you have not accepted—you may well put up with it!

Paul and False Apostles

⁵For I consider that ⁱI am not at all inferior to the most eminent apostles.

⁶Even though ^j*I am* untrained in speech, yet I am not ^kin knowledge. But ^lwe have ²been thoroughly manifested among you in all things.

⁷Did I commit sin in ³humbling myself that you might be exalted, because I preached the gospel of God to you ^mfree of charge?

⁸I robbed other churches, taking wages from them to minister to you.

⁹And when I was present with you, and in need, ⁿI was a burden to no one, for what I lacked ^othe brethren who came from Macedonia supplied. And in everything I kept myself from being burdensome to you, and so I will keep myself.

^{10p}As the truth of Christ is in me, ^qno one shall stop me from this boasting in the regions of Achaia.

¹¹Why? ^rBecause I do not love you? God knows!

¹²But what I do, I will also continue to do, ^sthat I may cut off the opportunity from those who desire an opportunity to be regarded just as we are in the things of which they boast.

¹³For such ^t*are* false apostles, ^udeceitful workers, transforming themselves into apostles of Christ.

¹⁴And no wonder! For Satan himself transforms himself into ^van angel of light.

¹⁵Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also transform themselves into ministers of righteousness, ^wwhose end will be according to their works.

Reluctant Boasting

¹⁶I say again, let no one think me a fool. If otherwise, at least receive me as a fool, that I also may boast a little.

¹⁷What I speak, ^xI speak not according to the Lord, but as it were, foolishly, in this confidence of boasting.

¹⁸Seeing that many boast according to the flesh, I also will boast.

¹⁹For you put up with fools gladly, ^ysince you yourselves are wise!

²⁰For you put up with it ^zif one brings you into bondage, if one devours you, if one takes from you, if one exalts himself, if one strikes you on the face.

²¹To our shame ^aI say that we were too weak for that! But ^bin whatever anyone is bold—I speak foolishly—I am bold also.

Suffering for Christ

²²Are they ^cHebrews? So am I. Are they Israelites? So am I. Are they the seed of Abraham? So am I.

²³Are they ministers of Christ?—I speak as a fool—I am more: ^din labors more abundant, ^ein stripes above measure, in prisons more frequently, ^fin deaths often. Article: Paul's Defense

²⁴From the Jews five times I received ^gforty ^h*stripes* minus one.

²⁵Three times I was ⁱbeaten with rods; ^jonce I was stoned; three times I ^kwas shipwrecked; a night and a day I have been in the deep;

²⁶*in* journeys often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, ^l*in* perils of my own countrymen, ^m*in* perils of the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren;

²⁷*in* weariness and toil, ⁿ*in* sleeplessness often, ^o*in* hunger and thirst, in ^pfastings often, in cold and nakedness—

²⁸besides the other things, what comes upon me daily: ^q*my* deep concern for all the churches.

²⁹*Who* is weak, and I am not weak? Who is made to stumble, and I do not burn with indignation?

³⁰If I must boast, ^sI will boast in the things which concern my ⁴infirmity.

³¹*The* God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, ^u*who* is blessed forever, knows that I am not lying.

³²*In* Damascus the governor, under Aretas the king, was guarding the city of the Damascenes with a garrison, desiring to arrest me;

³³but I was let down in a basket through a window in the wall, and escaped from his hands.

2 Corinthians 12

The Vision of Paradise

¹It is ¹doubtless not profitable for me to boast. I will come to ^avisions and ^brevelations of the Lord:

²I know a man ^cin Christ who fourteen years ago—whether in the body I do not know, or whether out of the body I do not know, God knows—such a one ^dwas caught up to the third heaven.

³And I know such a man—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know, God knows—

⁴how he was caught up into ^eParadise and heard inexpressible words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter.

⁵Of such a one I will boast; yet of myself I will not ^fboast, except in my infirmities.

⁶For though I might desire to boast, I will not be a fool; for I will speak the truth. But I refrain, lest anyone should think of me above what he sees me to be or hears from me.

The Thorn in the Flesh

⁷And lest I should be exalted above measure by the abundance of the revelations, a ^gthorn in the flesh was given to me, ^ha messenger of Satan to ²buffet me, lest I be exalted above measure.

⁸ⁱConcerning this thing I pleaded with the Lord three times that it might depart from me.

⁹And He said to me, “My grace is sufficient for you, for My strength is made perfect in weakness.” Therefore most gladly ^jI will rather boast in my infirmities, ^kthat the power of Christ may rest upon me.

¹⁰Therefore ^lI take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in needs, in persecutions, in distresses, for Christ’s sake. ^mFor when I am weak, then I am strong.

Signs of an Apostle

¹¹I have become ⁿa fool ³in boasting; you have compelled me. For I ought to have been commended by you; for ^oin nothing was I behind the most eminent apostles, though ^pI am nothing.

^{12q}Truly the signs of an apostle were accomplished among you with all perseverance, in signs and ^rwonders and mighty ^sdeeds. Word Studies: apostle

¹³For what is it in which you were inferior to other churches, except that I myself was not burdensome to you? Forgive me this wrong!

Love for the Church

¹⁴Now for the third time I am ready to come to you. And I will not be burdensome to you; for ^uI do not seek yours, but you. ^vFor the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children.

¹⁵And I will very gladly spend and be spent ^wfor your souls; though ^xthe more abundantly I love you, the less I am loved.

¹⁶But be that as it may, ^yI did not burden you. Nevertheless, being crafty, I caught you by cunning!

¹⁷Did I take advantage of you by any of those whom I sent to you?

¹⁸I urged Titus, and sent our ^zbrother with him. Did Titus take advantage of you? Did we not walk in the same spirit? Did we not walk in the same steps?

^{19a}Again, ⁴do you think that we excuse ourselves to you? ^bWe speak before God in Christ. ^cBut we do all things, beloved, for your edification.

²⁰For I fear lest, when I come, I shall not find you such as I wish, and that ^dI shall be found by you such as you do not wish; lest there be contentions, jealousies, outbursts of wrath, selfish ambitions, backbitings, whisperings, conceits, tumults;

²¹lest, when I come again, my God ^ewill humble me among you, and I shall mourn for many ^fwho have sinned before and have not repented of the uncleanness, ^gfornication, and lewdness which they have practiced.

2 Corinthians 13

Coming with Authority

¹This will be ^athe third time I am coming to you. ^b“By the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established.”

^{2c}I have told you before, and foretell as if I were present the second time, and now being absent ¹I write to those ^dwho have sinned before, and to all the rest, that if I come again ^eI will not spare—

³since you seek a proof of Christ ^fspeaking in me, who is not weak toward you, but mighty ^gin you.

^{4h}For though He was crucified in weakness, yet ⁱHe lives by the power of God. For ^jwe also are weak in Him, but we shall live with Him by the power of God toward you.

⁵Examine yourselves as to whether you are in the faith. Test yourselves. Do you not know yourselves, ^kthat Jesus Christ is in you?—unless indeed you ²are ¹disqualified.

⁶But I trust that you will know that we are not disqualified.

Paul Prefers Gentleness

⁷Now ³I pray to God that you do no evil, not that we should appear approved, but that you should do what is honorable, though ^mwe may seem disqualified.

⁸For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth.

⁹For we are glad ⁿwhen we are weak and you are strong. And this also we pray, ^othat you may be made complete.

^{10p}Therefore I write these things being absent, lest being present I should use sharpness, according to the ^qauthority which the Lord has given me for edification and not for destruction. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Correspondence in Bible Times

Greetings and Benediction

¹¹Finally, brethren, farewell. Become complete. ^rBe of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love ^sand peace will be with you.

^{12t}Greet one another with a holy kiss.

¹³All the saints greet you.

^{14u}The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and ^vthe ⁴communion of the Holy Spirit be with you all. Amen.

Annotations for 2 Corinthians

- 1:1, 2 Second Corinthians opens the way most ancient letters did: salutation, author, recipients, and greeting. The author was Paul, an apostle. His identification with Jesus Christ is especially important in this letter because false apostles (11:12–15; 1 Cor. 4:14–16) had opposed him in Corinth and caused confusion in the church. Timothy is listed as coauthor. Paul and Timothy wrote this letter to the church at Corinth and all believers in Achaia, what is today southern Greece. Grace to you and peace was Paul's standard greeting. With it, Paul was expressing his prayer that the Corinthians would experience God's favor and the joy that results from being in a proper relationship with the Lord.
- 1:3 A word of thanks often followed a letter's salutation (vv. 1, 2). Blessed expresses adoration and praise. Paul called God the God and Father of Christ. Even though Jesus is God, as the incarnate Son He was dependent on God the Father. Thus God the Father was His God. Comfort here means "exhortation," "encouragement," "cheer." Paul used this word, sometimes translated "consolation," ten times in the following five verses (vv. 3–7). This is the purpose of our gathering in the church (see Heb. 10:24, 25), and it is Paul's subject in ch. 7 (see 7:12, 13). When they meet, believers should encourage each other in the faith.
- 1:4 Tribulation means distress or affliction. God comforts us not only to make us comfortable but also to make us comforters. The comfort that God gives to us becomes a gift we can give to others (see 7:6; Acts 9:10–19). Our willingness to share it reflects the sincerity of our faith (see John 13:35).
- 1:5 Tribulation (v. 4) is called the sufferings of Christ. Christ suffered as a bearer of our sins (1 Pet. 3:18) and as a servant to His disciples (John 13:1–17). Those who follow Christ also will experience the same suffering while they serve (John 15:20), for which they will receive a reward, "a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory" (4:17).
- 1:8 Paul's commitment to Christ and His service did not by any means exempt him from trouble. By Asia Paul meant the Roman province in western Asia Minor, present-day Turkey. It is not known exactly where Paul was experiencing this trouble, but it was probably at Ephesus. Most likely it was the uproar stirred up against Paul by Demetrius the silversmith (see Acts 19:23–41; 1 Cor. 15:31, 32).
- 1:9, 10 the sentence of death: Paul returns to the theme of death and resurrection several times in this letter (see 2:16; 4:7–14; 5:1–10; 13:4). Here Paul is probably referring to the life-threatening persecution he faced when he preached the gospel (see Acts 14:19, 20).
- 1:11 As Paul trusted the Lord and as the Corinthians prayed, God delivered him (v. 10). We should pray for one another so that thanks may be given. If many people intercede, many will thank God when He answers. Whenever we face difficulties, we should let others know so they can pray and God can be praised. Answers to prayer should always receive public praise, for our Deliverer deserves our adoration.
- 1:12 Paul's critics accused him of living for his own selfish interest (10:2). They used his failure to return to Corinth as evidence of his lack of sincerity. Paul began the body of this letter by defending his integrity (1:12–2:4). Fleshly wisdom refers to selfish interest (contrast with Paul's admonition and Christ's example of humility in Phil. 2:3–8). Paul's godly sincerity was more abundantly clear to the Corinthians than to others; he spent 18 months with them (Acts 18:11).
- 1:13 Paul's critics had accused him of being insincere in his letters, of writing one thing and doing the opposite (10:10). Paul denied these charges. He meant what he wrote; there were no hidden agendas in his letters.
- 1:15 Paul had intended to visit the Corinthians (see 1 Cor. 16:5–7), but he had failed to come. This prompted some of the members of the Corinthian church to accuse him of living according to "fleshly wisdom" (vv. 12, 17). The second benefit was the benefit of two visits, one on his way to Macedonia and the other after leaving (see v. 16).

1:17 when I was planning this: Paul rhetorically asked: When he made plans to visit the Corinthians, was he joking, guided by self-interest, or inconsistent? The Greek text indicates that these questions expected a negative answer. Paul explained later why he changed his plans (see 1:22-2:4).

1:18 Before finishing the defense of his personal integrity (1:23-2:4), Paul defended his preaching: it was both true and trustworthy (vv. 18-22). Our word is a reference to teaching of Paul (see v. 19).

1:19 Paul's preaching was not Yes and No at the same time—not inconsistent or contradictory. Instead, his preaching reflected the truthfulness and faithfulness of God, because his teaching was based on the Scriptures and the teachings of Christ.

1:20 All of God's promises concerning Christ are true and trustworthy: a Yes.

1:21, 22 In the Greek text, anointed is connected to establishes. God confirmed Paul and his fellow workers by anointing them. This anointing probably refers to special empowerment by the Holy Spirit, similar to the anointing John described in 1 John 2:20, 27. sealed: Sealing indicates ownership and security. The sealing and the giving of the Holy Spirit are also linked. The Holy Spirit is a guarantee, the down payment that there is more spiritual blessing to come and that the believer will receive eternal life.

sealed

(Gk. sphragizō) (1:22; Eph. 1:13; 4:30) Strong's #4972

guarantee (Gk. arrabōn) (1:22; 5:5; Eph. 1:14) Strong's #728

The Greek word translated sealed here was a technical term denoting a seller's guarantee of the validity of a purchase. As such, God's gift of the Holy Spirit is our guarantee. In the ancient world people commonly branded or marked personal possessions as they sealed letters, with a seal identifying the owner or sender. In this passage, Paul was describing believers as being marked as God's possession with the seal of the Holy Spirit. This seal will remain until we, as God's possession, are completely redeemed (see Eph. 1:13, 14; 4:30). Paul often used another term with sealed, namely arrabōn, translated guarantee. This Greek term was commonly used for the promissory first installment that guaranteed a full, final payment. The word was also used by the ancients to refer to an engagement ring. As Christians, we have received the Spirit as a first installment, guarantee, and foretaste of the full inheritance yet to be given (Eph. 1:13, 14).

- 1:23 Paul had promised to come and use his authority, if necessary, to straighten out the problems at Corinth (1 Cor. 4:21). To spare them the pain of correction and give them an opportunity to correct themselves, he did not come. God is patient with us too. But Paul had warned them previously that their weakness, sickness, and even death was due to their failure to correct themselves (1 Cor. 11:30).
- 1:24 As an apostle, Paul had authority to discipline (10:2), but it was not his place to order the Corinthians around.
- 2:1 Paul changed his travel plans partly because he did not want to come to Corinth again . . . in sorrow. Some have interpreted this verse to mean that Paul had made a painful visit to Corinth and wanted to avoid another one. Although the narrative in Acts does not indicate such a visit, some have proposed that Paul visited Corinth between the writing of the two letters, 1 and 2 Corinthians. However, the text does not necessarily say that he had made a previous painful visit, only that he did not want his next visit to Corinth to be in sorrow.
- 2:3, 4 I wrote: Traditionally commentators have identified the previous letter to which Paul refers in these verses as 1 Corinthians. Many recent commentators believe that Paul is speaking about a letter written between 1 and 2 Corinthians that has been lost. Some have identified chs. 10–13 as this “lost letter” because the tone of those chapters seems to match the description of these verses, a letter of much affliction and anguish of heart.
- 2:5–11 Paul wrote of someone who had caused grief. The traditional interpretation has been that this offender was the incestuous man of 1 Cor. 5. Lately some commentators have suggested that the offender may be another person who had wronged Paul during the “painful visit” that he made between the writing of 1 and 2 Corinthians (see vv. 3, 4).
- 2:6 Punishment means “warning,” “censure,” or “rebuke.” This is a reference to the church discipline Paul had instructed the Corinthians to use on the person mentioned in v. 5. It was tough love, but it worked. The man repented.
- 2:7, 8 forgive and comfort him: The purpose of church discipline is repentance and restoration. Forgiveness should always follow the correction, just as Christ instructed (see Matt. 18:15–35).

- 2:11 One of Satan's devices, or designs, is to cheat the believer out of true forgiveness. The devil will try to divide the church any way he can.
- 2:12, 13 Troas was a city on the Aegean coast, where Paul had received his call to preach the gospel in Macedonia (see Acts 16:8). Paul had no rest because he was deeply concerned about the Corinthians and was looking for Titus, who was on his way back from Corinth. Paul then crossed the Aegean Sea and arrived in Macedonia, probably at the city of Philippi.
- 2:14 When Titus gave Paul good news about the Corinthians (see 7:5–7), Paul burst forth with a hymn of praise. This interruption became an extended digression. Paul did not resume the story of his trip to Macedonia and his meeting with Titus until 7:5. Verses 2:14–7:4 give a long account of his ministry. God . . . leads us in triumph: Paul used the metaphor of the Roman triumphal procession to praise God. When a Roman general was victorious in a war, he led his army and the captives in a parade down the main street. God is the general who has conquered. Paul is one of His officers following in His train. In the Roman procession, priests carrying censers filled with incense followed the conqueror. Paul the priest set forth the fragrance of Christ by preaching the gospel.
- 2:15 In v. 14 the fragrance was the knowledge of Christ; here it was Paul, who was a sweet smell to God for his faithfulness in preaching the gospel.
- 2:16 The leader in a Roman procession was followed by priests (dispensing incense), officers, soldiers, and captives. The aroma of the event represented victorious life to the soldiers and slavery or death to the captives. In the same way, the gospel message gives life to those who accept it, but it represents death and judgment to those who reject it. The answer to Paul's question who is sufficient for these things is given in 3:5. It is God who makes us sufficient.
- 2:17 Peddling means "to make merchandise of," "to sell." Some people use religion for personal gain. To them the gospel is merchandise to be peddled for profit. Thus they corrupt or compromise it. This is the first reference in this epistle to false teachers. It may be a subtle reference to Paul's opponents. Paul, unlike some others, was sufficient for the gospel ministry because he was sincere; his motives were pure.
- 3:1 Having again declared his sincerity (2:17), Paul asked if he needed a letter of commendation to back him up, as some others did. The language implies that the false apostles mentioned later in this letter (11:13) had tried to gain acceptance by using such references.

The New Testament Canon

The word canon identifies the writings of the prophets, apostles, and their companions which are inspired by God and authoritative for truth pertaining to doctrine and life. The first question for the church to answer about a book's inclusion in the canon accepted by Christians was whether it came through the apostles of the Lord or through persons under the guidance of an apostle, such as Luke. Second, the book had to come with the power of God and be effective for changing lives. Third, it must have been generally accepted by the people of God. This latter test refers first to the ones who received the book, and second to the transmission in the church. Determination of the NT canon took place over a period of years, reaching its final form at the Synod of Carthage in 397.

3:2 You are . . . written in our hearts: The Corinthians were Paul's letter of recommendation. These verses do not mean that letters of recommendation should not be used. Paul himself used such letters before his conversion (see Acts 9:1, 2) and after (see 8:22; Rom. 16:1; 1 Cor. 16:10; Col. 4:10). In this case Paul did not need one because he already had one: the believing Corinthians and his ministry among them. Paul's love for the Corinthians was known to all who were acquainted with his ministry. One of the qualifications for ministry is love for people, both God's people and the lost.

3:3 an epistle of Christ: Paul appealed to the Corinthians themselves for proof of his ministry's authenticity. God had changed them—an obvious matter of public record.

3:4 trust: The Greek word means "confidence" (see 2:14-3:3; Phil. 4:19). Paul was convinced that Christ would make his ministry effective.

3:5, 6 Sufficient means "adequate," or "competent." Paul placed his confidence not in himself or his own abilities but in the Lord. This is the answer to the question asked in 2:16, Who is sufficient?

The letter is a reference to the old covenant—that is, the Ten Commandments written on stone. The letter kills because all break the law, and the penalty is death.

new covenant

(Gk. kainē diathēkē) (3:6; Heb. 8:8; 9:15; 1 Cor. 11:25) Strong's #2537; 1242

The concept of a new covenant originated with the promise of the prophet Jeremiah that God would accomplish for His people what the old covenant had failed to do (Jer. 31:31–34). The NT, which itself means “new covenant,” interprets the work of Jesus Christ as bringing this promised new covenant into being. In Luke 22:20, when Jesus ate the Passover meal at the Last Supper with His disciples, He spoke of the cup as “the new covenant in My blood.” The new covenant, a “better covenant . . . established on better promises” (Heb. 8:6), rests directly on the sacrificial work of Christ. The new covenant accomplished what the old could not: removal of sin and cleansing of the conscience (Jer. 31:34; Heb. 10:2, 22).

3:7, 8 Paul lists the first of three contrasts between the OT ministry and the NT ministry (see vv. 7, 9, 11). First, the OT ministry engraved on stones (a reference to the Ten Commandments) was glorious, but the ministry of the Spirit is more glorious, because the glory of the ministry of the Law given through Moses was passing away. Besides, though the Law itself is holy (Rom. 7:12), the ministry of the Law is the ministry of death, whereas the ministry of the Spirit is the ministry of life (v. 6). The Holy Spirit produces eternal life.

3:9, 10 The second contrast (see vv. 7, 11) is that the OT ministry was a ministry of condemnation, but the NT ministry is more glorious because it is a ministry of righteousness. God declares righteous those who believe in His Son, and then the Holy Spirit empowers the believer to live righteously. This first work of God is called justification, and the second is called sanctification.

3:11 The third contrast (see vv. 7, 9) is that one ministry is passing while the other ministry remains. The New Covenant would supersede the old covenant established at Mt. Sinai between God and the nation of Israel.

3:12 Paul used boldness of speech, a phrase that means “freedom of speech” or “frankness.” Instead of being fearful or reluctant, Paul was frank and courageous.

3:14, 15 The veil on the face of Moses reminded Paul of another veil. As Moses’ veil concealed the fading glory of his ministry, so there is a veil on the hearts of people concealing the fading away of the old covenant.

3:16 taken away: Whenever Moses turned to the Lord, he took off the veil (Ex. 34:34). Likewise, we find freedom in Christ by looking to Him.

3:17 the Lord is the Spirit: The Holy Spirit is God Himself, like the Father and like the Son. liberty: The Spirit gives us freedom from sin, death, and the condemnation of the law (vv. 7–12).

3:18 All believers behold the glory of the Lord in the Scripture and are transformed into the image of God. Christ is the image of God (4:4). glory to glory: An ever-growing glory. As believers behold the glory of God in the Word of God, the Spirit of God transforms them into the likeness of Jesus Christ. This is a description of the gradual process of sanctification.

4:1–3 Paul now draws a conclusion from what he said about his ministry in 3:4–18. This ministry is the NT ministry (3:6), a ministry of the Spirit (3:6), of life (3:7), and of righteousness (3:9). It is a glorious ministry (3:7–12) of liberty (3:17). Paul did not achieve this ministry by his own human ability but by God’s mercy (3:5, 6). Lose heart means “to become weary,” “to become tired,” or “to despair.” No matter how difficult the task or how great the opposition, Paul did not retreat in silence but spoke boldly because he was motivated by the grace of God (3:12; 1 Thess. 2:1–12). Hidden means “secret.” Paul rejected craftiness—that is, being unscrupulous or handling the word of God deceitfully (see 2:17). Apparently, Paul had been accused of being crafty (12:16) and of being deceitful in the way he preached. Paul defended his ministry because it was based on the truthfulness of the Word of God.

4:4, 5 Unbelievers have a barrier to overcome: the god of this age has blinded their minds. Because of Satan’s deception, sometimes what the world thinks is obviously true is painfully wrong (see Prov. 14:12). image of God: Jesus Christ is God’s Son, and He perfectly reveals God the Father to us. Although human beings have been created in the image of God, through sin they have fallen from a perfect relationship with God. Jesus Christ is restoring believers to what they were originally created to be (3:18; Gen. 1:26). Christ Jesus the Lord: Paul’s message is that Jesus is divine. bondservants: Paul describes himself and those who minister with him as slaves to people. They served the Corinthians for Jesus’ sake.

4:6 As God commanded the light to shine in the darkness at creation (Gen. 1:3), so he “turns on” the light in peoples’ hearts so they can see who Jesus Christ is. People who do not believe are blinded by Satan (v. 4). But believers see the light.

earthen vessels

(Gk. ostrakinos skeuos) (4:7; 2 Tim. 2:20) Strong's #3749; 4632

This Greek phrase means “clay pots.” In ancient times it was a common practice to bury treasures inside clay jars. Two recent discoveries of biblical manuscripts—the Chester Beatty Papyrus and some of the Dead Sea Scrolls—reveal that these manuscripts were hidden away in jars for nearly two thousand years. As these treasures were enclosed in earthen vessels, so the indwelling Christ lives within our earthly bodies.

4:8 Hard-pressed is translated afflicted in 1:6. In the Greek text, an identical expression occurs in 7:5, where it is rendered “troubled on every side.” But in 7:5 Paul adds, “Outside were afflictions, inside were fears.” Thus every side means “inside and outside.” Yet Paul was not crushed, a compound Greek word from the words for narrow and space. Perplexed is derived from two Greek words: the word for no plus the word for way. Thus perplexed means “to be at a loss.” One is perplexed when one sees no way out. Yet Paul was not in despair, which means “utterly at a loss.” As believers, we will face trials. But we must remember that God controls trials and uses them to strengthen His people. God’s glory is manifested through broken vessels, through people who endure troubles by relying on His power.

4:9 The picture behind the word persecuted is pursuit by someone determined to harm someone else. Paul was not forsaken by the Lord, but he was struck down. This literally happened (Acts 14:19). In Lystra a crowd stoned Paul, leaving him for dead. But he was not destroyed, that is, killed (see 11:23–33). The Lord spared his life so that he could continue to preach the Good News and testify to God’s deliverance.

4:10, 11 The expression carrying about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus is explained as being delivered to death for Jesus’ sake. In his service for Christ, Paul constantly faced death so that the life of Jesus may also be manifested. God’s deliverance of Paul was evidence that Jesus is alive (see 1:8–10). For Paul, the death and resurrection of Jesus was a model for his ministry. In his suffering, he participated in Jesus’ suffering and death. But Paul’s endurance of all types of hardships produced eternal life in those to whom he preached the gospel. In the same way, Jesus’ death was merely a precursor to His resurrection to eternal life.

4:12 life in you: Had Paul not been willing to risk death to bring the gospel to Corinth, the Corinthians would not have received eternal life.

4:13 therefore I spoke: Quoting Ps. 116:10, Paul explained why he was willing to risk his life for the gospel. His belief in the gospel compelled him to tell others.

4:14 He who raised up: Paul’s belief was focused upon the God of resurrection power, which motivated him to face difficulties, danger, and death for Christ’s sake. knowing: Paul rested in what he knew about God, not how he felt.

4:15 your sakes: All the suffering that Paul endured (vv. 8–11) brought good to others and glory to God.

- 4:16 Paul concluded that the Corinthians should not lose heart, because God would raise them up with Jesus (v. 14). Here is a great principle. A proper focus on our glorious future with Christ will empower us to endure any kind of trouble. The outward man is the physical body, called in this section “the earthen vessel” (v. 7), “the body” (v. 10), “mortal flesh” (v. 11), “earthly house” (5:1), and “tent” (5:1).
- 4:17 Working means “producing,” or “accomplishing.” Afflictions produce glory. But the glory is out of proportion to the affliction: trials are light and temporary compared to the eternal glory we will receive (see Mark 10:30). Paul’s focus on the future enabled him to properly assess problems and see how small they were compared to their eternal results.
- 4:18 Look means “to keep one’s eye on,” “to consider,” or “to contemplate.” The noun form of this verb means “goal” (for example, in Phil. 3:14). In order not to lose heart, the believer needs to shift his or her focus from that which is seen to that which is not seen, from temporary problems to the glorious eternal rewards he or she will receive (v. 17).
- 5:2 Suffering makes believers groan with longing for their glorious future in heaven (see Rom. 8:22, 23).
- 5:3 not be found naked: Paul looks forward not only to his resurrected body but also to the reward he would receive in the future.
- 5:4 The believer’s future experience is called life, meaning the full experience of eternal life in Christ. The life experience of the future is being determined by how we invest this life today (see 4:17).
- 5:5 guarantee: The Holy Spirit’s work in believers’ lives can be compared to a deposit or down payment (see 1:22). The presence of the Holy Spirit assures believers that God has purchased them. They are no longer slaves to sin, but His children. They will receive all the rights and privileges of children of God when their Savior returns.
- 5:6 Because the believer has God’s guarantee (v. 5), he or she can be confident, a word that means “to be of good cheer” or “to be of courage.”
- 5:7 Sight means “appearance.” Christ is not physically present, so believers live by faith (see John 20:29).
- 5:8 After the parenthetical thought of v. 7, Paul resumes where he left off in v. 6. He was not only confident (v. 6) that he was going to be with the Lord, he was pleased that he would be with the Lord after his death. This is one of the passages in the NT that indicates where believers will go immediately after their death; they will be with Jesus in heaven (see also Phil. 1:23). Jesus’ promise to the repentant criminal on the cross next to Him indicates this: “Today you will be with Me in Paradise” (Luke 23:43).
- 5:9, 10 Wanting to be with Christ (v. 8) produces the ambition to please Him (see Luke 19:17). We strive to please the Lord not only because we know we will be with Him (v. 8) but also because He will evaluate our work—whether good or bad—and reward us accordingly. The person unconcerned about doing good deeds shows a grave lack of vision. Appear means “to make visible” or “to make known.” Here it may refer to nothing more than an appearance, such as appearing in court before a judge. Or it may mean believers will stand before the Lord with their true character revealed. Receive means “to receive back,” “to get an equivalent,” or “to get one’s due.” The believer will be either approved or ashamed (see 5:3; Luke 19:11–26; 1 Cor. 3:14, 15; 9:27; 1 John 2:28; 2 John 7, 8).

The Judgment Seat of Christ

What does it involve?	Only believers will appear before the judgment seat of Christ. The “great white throne” judgment described in Rev. 20:11–15 is for unbelievers.
What is it?	At his judgment seat, Jesus will determine a believer’s faithfulness to Him and reward each person appropriately (see 1 Cor. 3:11–15). This will not be a determination of one’s eternal destiny; that issue is decided the moment a person believes in Christ.
Who will preside?	The risen Christ.
Where will it occur?	Heaven (5:8).
When will it occur?	The Scriptures do not specify when this will occur. It is obviously at a time when all Christians are gathered in heaven.
What is the nature of these eternal rewards?	Some commentators consider the various “crowns” mentioned in the New Testament as the rewards (1 Cor. 9:25 ; 2 Tim. 4:8 ; James 1:12 ; 1 Pet. 5:4 ; Rev. 2:10). These will eventually be placed before the throne of God (Rev. 4:10). Others point to the parable of the minas in Luke 19:11–27 and see the prospects of serving and ruling in eternity as being directly tied to our faithfulness on earth. We do not know the exact nature of the “new heavens and new earth” or “the kingdom of God.” But the Scriptures do seem to imply that eternity will involve serving and reigning (Matt. 25:21, 23 ; Rev. 22:3, 5).
Why is this doctrine significant?	Knowing that in the future we will stand before Jesus Christ and face a review of our lives should motivate us to live righteously and faithfully in the present.
How can we prepare for our eternal “audit”?	Walk by faith, not by sight (5:7). Develop a longing for heaven (5:8). Make it our chief aim in life to please the Lord (5:9). Keep the judgment seat of Christ in view (5:10).

- 5:11 Therefore indicates that this verse is a conclusion drawn from the previous one. The terror of the Lord is the fear of standing before the Lord and having one’s life exposed and evaluated. The reality of giving an account to the Lord motivated Paul to persuade people, in this context meaning to convince the Corinthians of his sincerity and integrity.
- 5:12 Paul was defending the integrity of his ministry, not to win the approval of the Corinthians again (see 3:1), but so the Corinthians could answer those who bragged about their outward appearance, such as the false apostles present among them (11:18). Opportunity literally means “a base of operation.” This letter would be a foundation or base for those who wanted to defend Paul’s authority and ministry in the Corinthian church.
- 5:13 If Paul was beside himself in exposing himself to danger, it was for God. If he was of a sound mind, it was for the sake of the Corinthians. The point is that Paul’s motive for ministry was for the glory of God and the good of others, not his own glory. Thus the Corinthians could justly defend him.
- 5:14 The phrase the love of Christ can mean either (1) Christ’s love for us or (2) our love for Christ. The last part of the verse indicates that Paul had in mind Christ’s love for us. Died for all refers to Christ’s death for all believers. all died: In Christ believers die to sin (see Rom. 6:1–14).

- 5:16 Believers should not evaluate Christ or anyone else according to the flesh, that is, the way people typically evaluate each other (v. 12).
- 5:17 in Christ: Paul is presenting the results of Christ's death for the believer and the believer's death with Him (see v. 14). Because believers are united with Jesus both in His death and resurrection, they participate in the new creation. That is, they receive the benefits of being restored by Christ to what God had originally created them to be (Gen. 1:26; 1 Cor. 15:45–49). All things have become new: A believer's life should change, because he or she is being transformed into the likeness of Christ (3:18). Instead of living for oneself, a believer lives for Christ (v. 15). Instead of evaluating others with the values of the world, a believer looks at this world through the eyes of faith (v. 16).
- 5:18 reconciled us to Himself: Because of Christ's propitiation, His satisfaction of God's righteous demands, God is now able to turn toward us. God has made us new creatures in Christ and has given us the ministry of reconciliation, a word meaning "a change of relation from enmity to peace." We who have been reconciled to God have the privilege of telling others that they can be reconciled to Him as well.
- 5:19 God could change His relationship toward us because our sins have been imputed (reckoned) to Christ, instead of to us. In other words, God placed our sins on Christ, who knew no sin. His death was in our place and for our sins. If we believe in Jesus, God counts Jesus' righteousness as our righteousness (see v. 21). The word of reconciliation that has been entrusted to us is to tell all people that God wants to restore them to a relationship with Himself (see Rom 5:8). This is the Good News that everyone needs to hear.
- 5:20 Ambassadors are more than messengers. They are representatives of the sovereign who sent them. In the Roman Empire, there were two kinds of provinces, the senatorial and the imperial. The senatorial provinces were generally peaceful and friendly to Rome. They had submitted to Roman rule and were under the control of the Senate. The imperial provinces, however, had been acquired later, and were not as peaceful. These provinces were under the authority of the emperor himself. Syria, including Judea, was such an imperial province. To these provinces, the emperor sent ambassadors to govern and maintain peace. Christians have been called by their King to serve as ambassadors in a world that is in rebellion against Him. However, God has given His representatives a message of peace and of reconciliation.
- 5:21 no sin: Jesus never did anything wrong. Yet He died for our sins, so that we could be declared righteous, that is to say, justified (v. 19).

righteousness of God

(Gk. dikaiosunē theou) (5:21; Rom. 1:17; 3:21, 22; 10:3) Strong's #1343; 2316

The righteousness of God is a righteousness that comes from God; it is God's way of making a sinner right, or just, before Him. Luther defined the righteousness of God as a "righteousness valid before God, which a man may possess through faith." Luther said that this righteousness is the first and last need of any sinful individual. The word righteousness in Paul's letter to the Romans carries a double sense, and may be labeled both legal and moral. In other words, the word refers to the legal action God takes in declaring believers righteous, but it also refers to perfect righteousness, a characteristic that can only be attributed to God Himself in Scripture and is the lofty standard for human behavior. This lofty standard cannot be achieved by anyone's effort, so God has to act to bring His people into a right relationship with Himself.

- 6:1 plead: In 5:20, Paul describes God as pleading for people to be reconciled to Him. Here Paul pleads (the same Greek word occurs in 5:20) with the Corinthians also. in vain: If believers live for themselves (5:15), they will have received the grace of God, but they will miss out on a heavenly reward for their service to Him (see 5:10; 1 Cor. 3:15). In Phil. 2:12 Paul encourages those who have been saved to work out or develop their salvation. The Corinthians were failing at this very point. They were saved and stuck, so to speak. They were not continually working out their salvation. Paul was encouraging them to consider their lives and realign them more closely to Christ.
- 6:2 Paul quoted Is. 49:8 to remind the Corinthians that God was ready to listen to them and to help them. He would deliver them, if only they turned to Him in faith.
- 6:3 Offense means "an occasion of stumbling." Paul did not do anything that would cause others to stumble in their faith. be blamed: The word means "to find fault with" and implies ridicule. In other words, no one could find fault with Paul's work among the Corinthians.
- 6:4–10 In many different types of situations (see 11:23–28), Paul and his coworkers conducted themselves as righteous ministers of God. These verses list the different types of experiences in which Paul and his fellow workers found themselves: (1) vv. 4, 5 describe the suffering they endured; (2) vv. 6, 7 describe how they conducted themselves; and (3) vv. 8–10 describe their paradoxical experiences.
- 6:4, 5 In much patience is followed by three triplets that indicate specific situations in which their endurance was demonstrated. Sleeplessness is not insomnia but going without sleep voluntarily in order to spend more time in ministry (see 11:27).
- 6:11–7:4 This section is the high point of emotion for the whole epistle. It begins and ends with Paul asking the Corinthians to open their hearts to God. The accusations against Paul and their own sinful entanglements resulted in the Corinthians withdrawing from him, at least emotionally. He had been totally open to them, but they had not responded to him in the same spirit.

- 6:11 O Corinthians: Paul addressed his readers by name on only two other occasions (Gal. 3:1, Phil. 4:15). When he did this he was expressing strong emotion.
- 6:12, 13 The suspicions planted by Paul's enemies had restricted their affections for Paul (see 2 Tim. 4:10). Paul had been open with the Corinthians (v. 11) and asked that they be open with him.
- 6:14 unequally yoked: The Corinthians were shutting Paul out of their hearts (vv. 11–13) and developing a dangerous affection for the false apostles (11:4, 13; see Prov. 4:23).
- 6:15 The term Belial for Satan only occurs here in the NT. It refers to one who is vile and wicked and causes destruction.
- 6:16 you are the temple: A reference to Lev. 26:11, 12 as well as perhaps other passages such as Jer. 32:38 and Ezek. 37:27, to remind the Corinthians of their relationship with God. Since the Holy Spirit was living in them, they were God's new dwelling place (1 Cor. 6:19).
- 6:17, 18 Verse 17 is derived from Is. 52:11 with words from Ezek. 20:34 added. Verse 18 is taken from 2 Sam. 7:14 with words added from Is. 43:6. come out . . . be separate: Paul was not encouraging isolation from unbelievers (see 1 Cor. 9:5–13) but discouraging compromise with their sinful values and practices. He was urging them (and us) to maintain integrity in the world just as Christ did (see John 15:14–16; Phil. 2:14–16).
- 7:1 Based on the promises that God would receive them with favor (6:17) and provide for and protect them as a father does his children (6:18), Paul exhorted the Corinthians to cleanse themselves from all filthiness. In other words, they were to wash away all dirt from both flesh and spirit, meaning those actions and attitudes that came from having the false teachers in their midst (6:14). The point of cleansing is perfecting holiness. This means dedicating ourselves to Christ and living righteously (see Heb. 6:1).
- 7:2 With the admonition open your hearts Paul resumed the discussion of 6:11–13. cheated: Perhaps the false teachers were charging that Paul had collected money for the poor saints at Jerusalem (1 Cor. 16:1–4) but had spent it on himself.

A Faithful Minister

In his most autobiographical epistle, Paul defends his ministry, giving us clear insights into the numerous difficulties he faced as a servant of Christ.

- 7:3 I do not say this to condemn: Paul was not blaming anyone; he was defending himself.
- 7:4 Paul was filled with comfort and joy because of the report he received from Titus about the Corinthians (see v. 7).
- 7:5 Paul cared very much for the Corinthians. our bodies had no rest: Earlier he wrote, “I had no rest in my spirit” in Troas (2:12, 13). troubled on every side: The same expression, though translated differently, is used in 4:8 to express Paul’s suffering in his ministry.
- 7:6 The Lord comforted, that is, encouraged Paul by allowing him to see Titus again.
- 7:7 but also by: Paul was encouraged to learn how Titus had been received by the Corinthians and had seen that they were accepting Paul’s exhortations.
- 7:8, 9 Paul regretted that he had to write a “severe letter” to the Corinthians. But since it did cause the Corinthians to repent and turn to God, his sorrow was transformed into joy. Traditionally this letter has been identified as 1 Corinthians, but some recent commentators have suggested that it was another letter that Paul wrote after 1 Corinthians, but that has not been preserved (see 2:3, 4).
- 7:10 godly sorrow produces repentance: True sorrow for sins leads to a change of mind and a turning to God. Since repentance means turning to God, who is the Savior, repentance results in spiritual deliverance, or salvation (see 6:2). But the kind of sorrow the world experiences produces death.
- 7:11 sorrowed in a godly manner: Although Paul had been harsh in his previous letter (see v. 8), he generously praised the Corinthians for how they responded to his admonition.
- 7:12 care: Paul wrote the “severe letter” (see v. 8) not only to correct the one who had sinned but also to tell the Corinthians that he cared for them (see 1 Cor. 4:14).
- 8:1–9:15 Before, Paul had instructed the Corinthians to collect money for the believers in Jerusalem (1 Cor. 16:1–4). The Corinthians had begun the collection (v. 10; 9:1, 2) and now Paul urges them to finish it (9:5).
- 8:1 Macedonia corresponds to the northern part of present-day Greece. Paul had established churches in the Macedonian cities of Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea.
- 8:2–5 The Macedonians were a great example of giving because they gave (1) during affliction, (2) in spite of great poverty, (3) with great joy, (4) beyond their means, and (5) freely. In fact, (6) they pleaded for the privilege of sharing their wealth with other believers, and (7) they gave themselves to the Lord and to others.

New Testament Giving

The most detailed passage on giving in the New Testament is found in 2 Corinthians (chs. 8; 9). The primary reason that Paul addressed this topic here was that false teachers in Corinth were questioning Paul’s motives for ministry. Evidently they were suggesting that Paul was pocketing contributions earmarked for the poor believers in Jerusalem. Consequently the Corinthians, despite their announced willingness to help, had not donated to the cause.

Taking pen in hand, Paul defended his integrity (1:12). Using the churches in Macedonia as his example, Paul gave the Corinthians a wonderful summary of why and how believers ought to give. Here are the highlights of Paul’s sermon:

First, who should give? All believers can and should contribute to the cause of Christ. The church at Macedonia was notoriously poor, yet they asked for the privilege of being allowed to give (8:4) out of “their deep poverty” (8:2).

In what spirit should we give? We ought to give willingly (8:12; 9:2) and cheerfully, “not grudgingly or of necessity” (9:7). It is a privilege to share in the work of God. Moreover, it is the appropriate response to God’s “indescribable gift,” His own Son (9:15).

How much should we give? Nowhere does the New Testament give us a specified percentage or amount. In this passage, Paul simply exhorts each of the members of the Corinthian church to give “as he purposes in his heart” (9:7). Ideally, our gifts would be “generous” (9:5) and given with “liberality” (9:11). The overall tenor of this passage suggests sacrificial giving. Again, by way of example, the Macedonians, like the poor widow praised by Christ in Luke 21:1–4, gave not merely their “leftovers,” but more than they could afford (8:3).

How should monetary gifts be handled? Paul took special care to explain that the Corinthians’ contributions would be handled with integrity by Titus (8:16–20, 23) and another unnamed brother (8:22). These were men of the highest character. They were trustworthy and above reproach in the handling of money. We should entrust our church finances to men of this caliber.

Why is giving so important? In Paul’s words, it tests the sincerity of our love for God and others (8:7, 8). To paraphrase the words of Christ (Matt. 6:19–21), how we handle material wealth is a barometer of our spiritual health.

What will be the results of our giving? We should not give primarily to get, but Paul makes it clear that giving does lead to abundance. Cheerful givers experience God’s love in a special way (9:7). They enjoy the spiritual blessing of participating in a rich harvest of righteousness (9:10).

8:6 Titus had begun the collection when he was in Corinth (2:13; 7:6, 7, 13–15). Paul wanted him to complete it.

8:7 The Corinthians had an abundance of spiritual gifts and graces (1 Cor. 1:4–7). They had the gift of faith (1 Cor. 12:9; 13:2), gifts of speech, such as prophecy (1 Cor. 1:5; 12:10), and the gift of knowledge (1 Cor. 1:5; 12:8). They were also blessed with diligence (7:11) and love for Paul (7:7).

8:8 testing: Generosity is the natural result of sincere love.

8:9 The Corinthians did not need a command (v. 8), because the example of Christ taught them about sacrificial giving. He was rich: See John 17:5; Col. 1:16. He became poor: See Phil. 2:7, 8 for an eloquent description of all that Jesus gave up to come to this earth. You . . . might become rich refers to the spiritual riches that Jesus gives to all who place their trust in Him: He offers forgiveness, justification, regeneration, eternal life, and glorification. Jesus purchases us from slavery to sin and makes us children of God. He gives us the right and privilege to approach God with requests and praise.

8:10 Advantage means “profit.” Giving now would profit the Corinthians at the judgment seat of Christ (see Phil. 4:17). Such giving is an investment (see Matt. 6:19–21; Rev. 22:12).

8:16, 17 thanks be to God: Paul asked Titus to go, but Titus went of his own accord, probably at his own cost. Paul attributed this desire in the heart of Titus to God (see Phil. 2:12, 13).

8:18 The brother has been variously identified as Luke, Barnabas, Silas, Timothy, John Mark, and others. The churches of the first century knew who he was, but no one today knows.

8:20, 21 These honest men were sent to handle the collection in order to do what was honorable before the Lord and men, and to prevent anyone from blaming Paul for mishandling the funds. Verse 21 is a quotation from Prov. 3:4.

9:1 In this verse, the collection for the Jerusalem believers is called the ministering to the saints.

9:4 Paul was in Macedonia when he wrote this letter (2:13; 7:5). When he left Macedonia to come to Corinth, some of the Macedonians would no doubt come with him. He did not want them to find that the Corinthians had not completed the collection (8:11) and thus be ashamed.

9:5 The brethren mentioned here are the delegation of 8:16–20.

9:6 reap sparingly: The law of the harvest is referred to repeatedly in Scripture (see Prov. 11:24, 25; 19:17; Luke 6:38; Gal. 6:7). Paul applied it to giving. Giving is like sowing seed. The amount of the harvest is determined by the amount of the seed sown.

9:7 Knowing the law of the harvest (v. 6), each believer should give as he purposes in his heart. The believer is to give freely and cheerfully, not out of compulsion, and without regret.

9:8 If we give, God is able to give us more so that we can perform other good works. In other words, God sees to it that the generous giver will not suffer want. Instead, God generously provides for those who give so that they can continue to do so.

9:10 This verse is Paul's prayer for God's blessing to be poured out on the Corinthians. The words supplies seed to the sower, and bread for food are adapted from Is. 55:10. The latter part of the verse is a reflection of Hos. 10:12.

9:13 They refers to the Jerusalem Christians.

9:14 their prayer for you: Paul anticipated that God's grace would lead the Jerusalem Christians to pray for the Corinthian believers and to be deeply concerned about them.

9:15 God's indescribable gift is His Son, Jesus Christ. Our gifts can never compare to God's sacrifice for us.

10:1 I, Paul, myself: Timothy and Paul together wrote the first nine chapters of this letter (1:1). In this section, Paul alone addresses the Corinthians. in presence . . . lowly . . . absent . . . bold: This is a quotation from Paul's critics in the Corinthian church. They accused him of being weak when present, and bold only in his letters (see vv. 9, 10).

10:2 By saying I beg, Paul was gently asking the Corinthians to deal with his critics before he came so that he would not have to be stern with them. Paul's critics said that he walked according to the flesh and that he was thinking only of himself when he did not come as promised (see 1:17).

10:4, 5 strongholds . . . high thing: Overlooking ancient Corinth was a hill 1,857 feet high. On top of it was a fortress. Paul used that imagery as an illustration of the spiritual warfare he waged. He destroyed strongholds, cast down towers, and took captives. The fortress, towers, and captives represent the arguments, thoughts, and plans that Paul was opposing. Paul cast down all rationalizations. He took captive to the obedience of Christ every perception and intention of the heart that was against God. Our actions reveal our thoughts. We should not cling to thoughts that do not conform to the life and teachings of Christ. Paul did not walk according to the flesh or his worldly desires; instead he conquered the flesh. He explains his strategy in 1 Cor. 9:24–27: "I discipline my body and bring it into subjection."

10:7 In this context, being Christ's means more than merely belonging to Him. It means being His servant or His disciple (see v. 8).

10:8 Paul had authority as an apostle for edification, a word that means "building up." His exhortation in his letter was aimed at correcting abuses, not the destruction of the church. The word destruction means "tearing down." Paul repeated his authorization at the end of his letter (13:10).

10:10 they say: Paul spoke simply so that the power of God would remain evident. He did not use complicated rhetorical techniques to sway his audience. His critics at the Corinthian church had turned his simple, unpretentious style against him (see 11:6; 1 Cor. 1:17; 2:1–5).

10:12 They, Paul's critics, commended themselves (see 3:1), measured themselves by their own personal opinions, and compared themselves with others. Contrast Paul's advice to esteem others above oneself (Phil. 2:3, 4).

10:13–15 Paul boasted only within the sphere of ministry God had given him, but that sphere included the Corinthians. By implication, Paul's critics were boasting of what they had not worked at or cultivated, perhaps the results of Paul's ministry in Corinth.

10:16 regions beyond you: In the Book of Romans, which Paul wrote around this time, he said his ambition was to preach the gospel in Spain (Rom. 15:24).

10:18 Paul began this section by saying he was not going to place himself among the group that commended themselves (v. 12). The reason he would not was that the Lord would commend him as a faithful worker (see 1 Cor. 4:5). Throughout this passage, Paul has been very careful to only boast in the Lord and His work in order establish his credentials as an apostle to the Corinthians.

11:2 Paul loved the Corinthians and was legitimately jealous because as their spiritual father (1 Cor. 4:15), he had betrothed them to Christ and wanted to present them to Him as a chaste virgin. He did not want them corrupted by false teachers (vv. 3, 4).

11:3 The Greek word translated simplicity is used in 2 Corinthians of sincerity (1:12) and generosity (8:2, 9). The Corinthians had a sincere singleness of heart toward Christ, which expressed itself in generosity.

11:4 Another Jesus would be one who was a man but not God, or crucified but not risen. A different spirit would be one of fear, not faith (4:13)—of bondage, not freedom (3:17; see Gal. 5:1). A different gospel would be one of law and not grace, one of works and not faith.

11:5 Some take the eminent apostles as a sarcastic reference to the false apostles in Corinth (v. 13). Others believe that Paul was comparing himself here to the genuine apostles of Christ, as he did later in the book (12:11, 12).

11:6 By untrained in speech, Paul meant he was not schooled in professional rhetoric. This does not mean that he was a poor speaker, only that he was not trained in Greek oratory. He did not lack knowledge. He had received direct revelation from the Lord (Gal. 1:11, 12).

11:7, 8 free of charge: In Paul's day, professional philosophers and teachers in Greek society charged for teaching. Paul did not. He labored (1 Thess. 2:9) and received support from other churches. Those who preach the gospel should make a living from the gospel (1 Cor. 9:14). Although Paul had the right to take money from the Corinthians, he chose not to do so in order to demonstrate his integrity (1 Cor. 9:12).

11:9 The brethren who came from Macedonia were probably from Philippi (Phil. 4:14–18).

11:10 Paul's boasting was that he preached without charge (see vv. 7, 8).

11:12 Paul did not accept money from the Corinthians because he did not want to give his critics the opportunity to put themselves on the same level as himself.

11:13 Paul's critics apparently called themselves apostles of Christ, but Paul said they were transforming themselves. The word means "to change in appearance," "to disguise," or "to masquerade." They were false teachers.

11:14, 15 And no wonder: If Satan, the prince of darkness, can disguise himself as an angel of light, then his servants, the ministers of evil, can disguise themselves as ministers of righteousness. Satan's main tool is deception.

11:16 Also indicates that his opponents were boasting.

11:17 Not according to the Lord means "not according to the Lord's standard." This kind of boasting was not characteristic of the Lord. Jesus Christ was an example of humility, not boasting (Phil. 2:5–11).

11:18 The false apostles were boasting according to the flesh, that is, they measured themselves by their own standards rather than by God's. Unfortunately, the Corinthians were listening to them (vv. 19, 20).

11:21 Paul's critics had accused him of being weak (10:10). He sarcastically said that he was too weak to rule the Corinthians harshly as the false apostles had done.

11:22 So am I: Paul's adversaries were Jewish and apparently felt that this made them superior not only to Gentiles but also to Greek-speaking Jews. Paul boasted that he was just as Jewish as they were.

11:23 Paul's opponents were not ministers of Christ. They were "false apostles" (v. 13), "ministers of Satan" (v. 15). But for the sake of argument, he responded to their claim as if it were true. I speak as a fool: Paul was hesitant to brag about his spiritual "accomplishments," because he knew that only God had made his preaching and service effective. He was merely God's instrument, and God was the One who deserved the glory. Paul's boast was in the Lord (10:17).

11:23–33 Paul's long list of problems includes physical suffering, long and difficult travel, toil, and weaknesses. He suffered profoundly for following Christ. Anyone who ever imagined that Christian faith always leads to health, wealth, and comfortable circumstances has forgotten Paul. This apostle was under no such delusions. He knew very well that faithfulness to God brings difficulty, not ease (see 12:9, 10). Yet temporal difficulties for the cause of the gospel bring their own eternal reward.

Paul's Defense

"I speak as a fool" (11:23). These words jump out of the pages of 2 Corinthians; they seem out of place in the Bible. Why would an apostle speak foolishly? A closer look reveals the reason behind Paul's words. The church at Corinth had been infiltrated by insidious false teachers. Although no one knows what philosophical or theological group these false teachers belonged to, we can ascertain some of their beliefs from Paul's two letters to the Corinthians. Evidently they were a group who prided themselves on their Jewish heritage (11:22). This group may also have held to what some have called an "incipient Gnosticism." They placed value on spiritual knowledge and experiences (1 Cor. 8:1) that were only accessible to gifted teachers, perhaps those who were especially skilled in Greek rhetoric (11:6). These "false teachers" were not only slandering Paul, they were denying his authority (12:11) and the truthfulness of what he preached. Some have postulated that there were several different groups that opposed Paul. That may have been the case, for Paul speaks of several different factions in the church (1 Cor. 1:12, 13).

To counter the accusations of his opponents, Paul took great pains to present his apostolic credentials. He opened his life and ministry for all to review. But he was doing more than defending himself; the great apostle wrote with an additional goal in mind. This was to warn the Corinthians of the dangers the false teachings posed. Thus Paul reluctantly painted a stark contrast between his own ministry and that of his rivals. According to Paul, these false teachers preached "another Jesus" and a "different gospel" (11:4). He regarded them as "deceitful workers" (11:13). Unlike Paul, these impostors collected fees for their services (11:7–9). And unlike Paul, they enjoyed comfortable, easygoing ministries. To defend himself, Paul was forced to "boast" in his ministry. But his boast was unusual, for it was in his weaknesses and suffering. He did not boast of his own accomplishments, but in the troubles and difficulties that clearly showed the power of Christ in his life (12:9).

Many centuries later, the cast of characters has changed, but the story remains the same. The church continues to be infiltrated by those who advocate unbiblical ideas. Many of these present-day "false teachers" appear to be very sincere. They speak with great passion and eloquence. Their ideas seem to make perfect sense. But we must exercise extreme caution. The lucrative potential of modern mass communications has attracted hucksters who tickle the "itching ears" (2 Tim. 4:3) of their audiences in an attempt to profit personally. Every message must be weighed against the Word of God.

And what is a church body to do if it detects false teachers in its midst? On this issue, the New Testament is clear: Those who foster division within the church by persistently advocating unbiblical beliefs are to be removed from fellowship (6:14; Rom. 16:17, 18; 1 Tim. 6:3–5; Titus 3:9–11; 2 John 9–11). There is to be no toleration. When unaddressed, false doctrine is like a cancer that permeates a body, weakening it, and ultimately bringing about its demise.

According to Acts 18:12–17 Paul was brought before Gallio and accused by the Jews of inciting others to “worship God contrary to the law.” It is possible that Gallio judged the case from this “bema.” Paul was often defending his ministry from Jews and false teachers alike.

- 11:27 Hunger and thirst means involuntarily going without food and drink; fastings means voluntarily going without food for the sake of the ministry (see 6:5).

Nabatea included the city of Damascus before the city was incorporated into the Roman province of Syria. Aretas was able to appoint a governor over Damascus because the Emperor Caligula (A.D. 37–41) gave Aretas control over the city.
- 11:33 Escaping from Damascus in a basket was Paul’s example of boasting in his weakness (v. 30).

- 12:2 It becomes apparent later in the passage (see vv. 5–7) that Paul was writing here about himself, but he modestly presented this experience about a man in Christ as if it had happened to someone else. Paul wrote 2 Corinthians in A.D. 56; fourteen years before would have been A.D. 42, probably when he was in Antioch (Acts 11:26). the third heaven: It was common to speak of three “heavens”: The first is the atmosphere where the birds fly; the second is the place of the sun, moon, and stars; the third is where God dwells.
- 12:3, 4 Heaven (v. 2) is here called Paradise. This experience should be compared to others in the Bible. God came down and met Moses on Sinai. Moses and Elijah came down from heaven to meet Christ. Peter, James, and John saw Christ glorified on the Mount of Transfiguration. John saw visions of the heavenly throne. And Paul is said to have been transported to heaven and returned. The experience probably helped Paul to endure suffering for the cause of Christ. Yet Paul never placed the focus of his message on this experience; instead he always preached Christ crucified (4:1–5).
- 12:7 Thorn means “splinter,” “stake,” or “something pointed.” Flesh can refer to the body or to the sinful nature. Three basic suggested interpretations of the thorn are as follows: (1) If flesh is a reference to the body, then it is a physical ailment like an earache, headache, eye trouble, epilepsy, or recurrent fever. (2) If flesh is a reference to the fallen nature, then the thorn could be a temptation. (3) If the expression is figurative, it could refer to persecution or opposition. Most commentators interpret it as a physical ailment. Many suggest that it was eye trouble, on the basis of Gal. 4:15. messenger of Satan: God permitted Satan to afflict Paul as He did Job (see Job 1; 2). Buffet means “to strike with the fist” (see Matt. 26:67). Paul’s thorn was a painful, humiliating experience given to prevent pride.

12:9 infirmities . . . power: When believers are without strength and look to the Lord (v. 8), He provides power by His grace.

12:10 Paul not only boasted about his weaknesses (v. 9), he said I take pleasure, a word meaning “to think good,” “to be well-pleased” in them. In Paul’s weaknesses, Christ’s power was made more apparent to others. It would bring praise to the only One who deserved it.

12:11 The Corinthians compelled Paul to boast because they listened to the false apostles (11:4) and were taken in by them (11:12).

12:12 When Paul established the church in Corinth, he performed the signs of an apostle, miracles or supernatural evidences that proved his authority as an apostle (see Acts 14:3).

apostle

(Gk. apostolos) (1:1; 12:12; Matt. 10:2; Acts 2:37; Rom. 1:1; Heb. 3:1)

Strong's #652

The Greek word simply means “sent ones.” Out of Jesus’ many disciples, He selected 12 to be His apostles. These were the men who were sent by Jesus to take His message to the world and then raise up churches. Paul also became an apostle by the appointment of the risen Christ, who encountered Paul on the road to Damascus (see Acts 9). Paul’s apostleship was accompanied by a great deal of suffering; and then to add to it, some false teachers in the Corinthian church doubted his authority. Thus in 2 Corinthians, Paul repeatedly defended the genuineness of his apostleship.

- 12:14 for the third time I am ready to come: Paul’s first visit to Corinth was on his second missionary journey (Acts 18:1–18). Because of Paul’s mention of a “painful visit” in 2:1, some consider Paul’s second visit as occurring sometime when he was staying in Ephesus and before he wrote this letter (Acts 19:1–14). Others discount a second visit before this time. They insist that ready in this verse indicates that Paul had prepared to come to Corinth, but did not make the trip (see 1:15, 16, 23; 2:1–4 for evidence of this). He promised not to be burdensome, that is, to take financial support from them.
- 12:16 Earlier Paul said he was “not walking in craftiness” (4:2). He also pointed out that Satan was deceitful (11:3) and that the false apostles were like Satan (11:13, 14). Now he sarcastically echoes his critics’ charge that he was being crafty. But how did he trick them? He tricked them into not supporting him. Through sarcasm, Paul was vindicating himself against the charge of both trickery and fraud.
- 12:18 Apparently Titus was being implicated through the false apostles’ accusations because Paul had recommended Titus for the collection task (8:16, 17). However they did not have any evidence against Titus. He was above reproach.
- 13:1 The third time has been interpreted two different ways. Those who hold that Paul had visited Corinth twice before writing this letter take this statement at face value, that Paul had been there twice and was now ready to come a third time. Those who say that Paul had been to Corinth only once point to 12:14 and say that he was prepared to come again but did not actually do so.
- 13:2 told you before: In 1 Corinthians, Paul warned against sexual immorality (see 1 Cor. 6:12–20). By writing this letter, he was warning them a second time (see 12:21). Not spare means he would confront them if necessary.
- 13:3 Paul would confront those who were sinning (v. 2) since the Corinthians were seeking a proof of Christ speaking in him. Apparently Paul’s critics claimed that an apostle should be a strong individual. Paul was saying that when he came again he would be strong.
- 13:4 For indicates that Paul was going to explain how Christ, who is strong, could be speaking through Paul, who was weak. As Christ appeared to be weak when he was crucified, but was raised by the power of God, so Paul was weak, but by the power of God he would live with Christ in strength toward them. Paul was not speaking of the future resurrection but of his next visit.

13:5 The Corinthians had been seeking proof of Christ's speaking in Paul; he told them to examine themselves to see if they were in the faith (for the phrase, see 1 Cor. 16:13; Titus 1:13). Paul did not doubt that they were true believers (see 1:1, 24; 7:1; 8:1; 12:14). He wanted them to ask themselves whether they were walking according to the gospel that they professed. He wanted them to apply the same standard to themselves that they were applying to him.

13:7–9 Paul prayed they would do no evil, which is probably a reference to the sins listed in 12:20, 21, and that they would be made complete. The Greek word for complete was used to describe the setting of bones and the reconciling of alienated friends. Paul was praying that there would be reconciliation of the divisions (12:20), and restoration. If his prayer was answered, he would seem disqualified, for he would not have to exercise his apostolic authority to discipline them.

13:10 I write: Paul confronted the Corinthians on paper so that he would not have to do it in person (see v. 2; 10:11; 12:20).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Correspondence in Bible Times

Greek letters may be roughly divided into six classes: (1) private letters, averaging slightly less than a hundred words in length, and written on papyrus (an early form of paper); (2) correspondence between government officials; (3) letters intended for publication, such as the correspondence of the church fathers in the fourth century A.D.; (4) letters written to communicate ideas; (5) letters attributed to famous personalities; and (6) imaginary letters, somewhat like our modern historical novels, which were designed to entertain.

The Roman government provided postal service only for official documents. Private letters had to be sent by special messengers or friendly travelers. Letters normally were sent to designated parties, although some were “open” or circular letters. Paul's letters, with the possible exception of Ephesians, were addressed to specific congregations; but the non-Pauline letters, usually called “general” epistles, included some letters that were circulated to several churches.

13:11 Here, as in other passages, farewell no doubt means “rejoice” (Phil. 3:1; 1 Thess. 5:16).

13:14 Paul’s concluding benediction invokes the blessing of the triune God: grace from the Lord Jesus Christ (see 8:9), the love of God (v. 11), and the communion of the Holy Spirit. At the end of his letter, Paul identifies the solution to many of the Corinthians’ problems. The Holy Spirit, who dwelled in each of them, could empower them to live righteously. Furthermore the Spirit could reconcile them to each other. They could love and encourage each other instead of fighting each other (12:20). They needed God’s grace, not selfishness; God’s love, not anger; and communion, not conflict.

Introduction

In the whole Bible, there is no more passionate, comprehensive, yet concise statement of the truth of the gospel than Galatians. Salvation is through faith in Jesus Christ alone (2:16; 3:11, 12). No work can earn salvation. Paul's succinct refutation of the Judaizers in this letter has transformed the lives of many—from Martin Luther to John Wesley. In general, people want to earn their salvation by works that can easily be identified. In this letter, Paul reveals the arrogance of such thinking. It amounts to a desertion of the truth of the gospel and a turning away from God (1:6). We can stand justified before God only through faith in Jesus Christ; nothing else will save us.

Author The writer of Galatians identifies himself as Paul (1:1). He claims to be an apostle, and then goes on to argue at length for the apostolic authority behind his gospel message. Much of the personal information he gives in the course of his defense corresponds to the narratives about Paul in the Book of Acts, as well as to the autobiographical material in Philippians 3:4–6. The use of the Old Testament in chapters 3 and 4 fits Paul’s rigorous training in Judaism. Finally, the theology presented in this letter corresponds perfectly with the theology Paul expresses in his other writings, notably the Epistle to the Romans.

Date Paul addresses his letter “to the churches of Galatia” (1:2) and to readers he expressly calls “Galatians” (3:1), but it is not easy to determine what this means precisely. At the time Paul was writing, the word “Galatians” could be used with an ethnic or with a political meaning.

To a great extent assigning a date for Galatians depends on making a decision about the destination of the letter. If the churches of Galatia were founded on Paul’s second missionary journey in the northern part of Galatia (see Acts 16:6), the earliest the epistle could have been written was around A.D. 52. The similarity in content between Galatians and Romans, among other things, has led some to date the letter in the mid-50s. On the other hand, if Galatia is understood to be southern Galatia, including Lystra, Iconium, and Pisidian Antioch (see Acts 14:21), congregations planted on Paul’s first missionary journey, the letter could have been written as early as A.D. 48.

To determine the date, the possible role of the Jerusalem council (see Acts 15) in the controversies addressed in Galatians must also be considered. If Galatians was written after the Jerusalem council had made its authoritative decisions, Paul most likely would have centered his argument on those decisions, or at least made an unmistakable reference to them. Since he did not, Galatians probably dates from A.D. 48. This means it is one of the earliest New Testament books.

Purpose Apparently Paul became aware of a perversion of the gospel of grace that was actively infecting the Galatian churches. The false teachers who had come to Galatia since Paul’s ministry there were advocating salvation by “the works of the law”—that is, by keeping the law. Specific emphasis was placed on the Jewish rite of circumcision.

Paul’s letter to the Galatians was a swift and decisive attempt to counter this message, which was a different gospel. Paul had to convince his “little children” in the faith, whom he had evangelized personally, that the new teaching was in fact a distortion of the gospel of Christ. In his argument Paul reasserted his authority as an apostle, which apparently had been minimized by the Judaizing teachers. Paul wrote not out of anger, but out of love. He saw the Galatians leaving the correct path by their additions to the gospel message, and he loved his fellow believers too much to allow them to go astray.

Literary Form Galatians contains the three standard elements of a typical first-century letter: introduction (1:1–5), body (1:6–6:10), and conclusion (6:11–18). However, Galatians differs from many of Paul’s other letters. For example, most of Paul’s other letters contain an introductory thanksgiving section that serves as a prologue (Phil. 1:3–11). The startling absence of such a thanksgiving at the beginning of Galatians probably indicates the severity of the situation in Paul’s eyes. There is virtually nothing for which Paul can be thankful, since some of the Galatians were abandoning the gospel they had once embraced. Likewise, the letter contains no concluding greetings, whether long, like Rom. 16:3–23, or short, like 2 Cor. 13:12, 13. There is only a terse benediction and concluding salutation (6:16, 18).

Theology If there is one repeated phrase that summarizes the subject of Galatians, it is “the truth of the gospel.” Unlike Romans, which presents the gospel as the answer to universal human sinfulness (see Rom. 3:23; 6:23), Galatians clarifies the gospel message against the subtle, but ever deadly, danger of works salvation. No sinful person has ever been granted eternal life based on works. What is more, everyone who lives by such a confidence in works is “cursed,” because no one can perfectly obey the law (3:10). Thus, to add works, rituals, or the law to the message of what it takes to become a Christian is to overturn the Good News. The proper place of the law is to convict us of our sin, demonstrating the urgent need for the redemption provided by Jesus Christ.

What then is the basic gospel that Paul goes to such lengths to clarify and safeguard? The only way a person can be justified before God is by faith in Jesus Christ (2:16). Paul emphasizes this point over and over. Faith in Christ, nothing more and nothing less, is the proper response to the gospel. This emphasis on faith is not about the historical dimension of the gospel that is open to reasonable inquiry: Jesus perfectly kept the Law of Moses (4:4), died on the Cross (2:20), and rose from the dead (1:1). Rather Paul underscores faith in Christ because the controversies in Galatia raged around the reception of the gospel in the lives of new believers.

Paul also addresses themes dealing with the Christian life, or living out the new freedom the believer possesses in Christ. Between the extremes of legalistic sanctification and hedonistic license, Paul charts a middle course of “faith working through love” and the power of the Holy Spirit (5:5, 6). Thus, not only is justification by faith alone, but so is sanctification.

Paul variously describes this life of faith as walking in the Spirit (5:16, 25), being “led by the Spirit” (5:18), producing “the fruit of the Spirit” (5:22, 23), and sowing “to the Spirit” (6:8). Concretely, “faith working through love” (5:6) expresses itself in love for neighbors, especially other believers, and in bearing one another’s burdens (5:14; 6:2, 6). The ever-present danger is that rather than relying upon the power of the Spirit, the believer will start displaying the corrupt “works of the flesh.” Works can be truly good only when they are accomplished in the power of the Holy Spirit given to those who place their faith in Christ (6:7–10).

Christ in the Scriptures

Paul introduces Jesus to this errant flock as the One in whom the message of grace is grounded. “For I neither received it from man, nor was I taught it, but it came through the revelation of Jesus Christ” (1:12). It’s a message declaring that Jesus has freed the Christian from the bondage to the law. Legalism is no longer a master to whom we are accountable. It is this same Jesus who has set the believer free from sin. He has created an environment where we breathe the oxygen of liberty and have the power to do what we ought.

The Jesus whom Paul encountered en route to Damascus has reversed the curse of sin, law, and self. (See 1:4; 2:20; 3:13; 4:5; 5:24; and 6:14.) What makes this reversal possible is nothing other than the transforming power of the Cross.

Galatians 1

Greeting

¹Paul, an apostle (not from men nor through man, but ^athrough Jesus Christ and God the Father ^bwho raised Him from the dead),

²and all the brethren who are with me,

To the churches of Galatia:

³Grace to you and peace from God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ,

^{4c}who gave Himself for our sins, that He might deliver us ^dfrom this present evil age, according to the will of our God and Father, ⁵to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

Only One Gospel

⁶I marvel that you are turning away so soon ^efrom Him who called you in the grace of Christ, to a different gospel, ^{7f}which is not another; but there are some ^gwho trouble you and want to ^hpervert¹ the gospel of Christ.

⁸But even if ⁱwe, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel to you than what we have preached to you, let him be ²accursed.

⁹As we have said before, so now I say again, if anyone preaches any other gospel to you ^jthan what you have received, let him be accursed.

¹⁰For ^kdo I now ^lpersuade men, or God? Or ^mdo I seek to please men? For if I still pleased men, I would not be a bondservant of Christ.

Call to Apostleship

(cf. Acts 9:1–25)

¹¹ⁿBut I make known to you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached by me is not according to man.

¹²For ^oI neither received it from man, nor was I taught it, but it came ^pthrough the revelation of Jesus Christ. Word Studies: revelation of Jesus Christ

¹³For you have heard of my former conduct in Judaism, how ^qI persecuted the church of God beyond measure and ^r*tried to* destroy it.

¹⁴And I advanced in Judaism beyond many of my contemporaries in my own nation, ^sbeing more exceedingly zealous ^tfor the traditions of my fathers.

¹⁵But when it pleased God, ^uwho separated me from my mother's womb and called me through His grace,

^{16v}to reveal His Son in me, that ^wI might preach Him among the Gentiles, I did not immediately confer with ^xflesh and blood, ¹⁷nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me; but I went to Arabia, and returned again to Damascus.

Contacts at Jerusalem

(cf. Acts 9:26–31)

¹⁸Then after three years ^yI went up to Jerusalem to see ³Peter, and remained with him fifteen days.

¹⁹But ^zI saw none of the other apostles except ^aJames, the Lord's brother.

²⁰(Now concerning the things which I write to you, indeed, before God, I do not lie.)

^{21b}Afterward I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia.

²²And I was unknown by face to the churches of Judea which ^cwere in Christ.

²³But they were ^dhearing only, "He who formerly ^epersecuted us now preaches the faith which he once tried to destroy."

²⁴And they ^fglorified God in me.

Galatians 2

Defending the Gospel

(cf. Acts 15:1–21)

¹Then after fourteen years ^aI went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and also took Titus with me.

²And I went up ¹by revelation, and communicated to them that gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but ^bprivately to those who were of reputation, lest by any means ^cI might run, or had run, in vain.

³Yet not even Titus who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised.

⁴And this occurred because of ^dfalse brethren secretly brought in (who came in by stealth to spy out our ^eliberty which we have in Christ Jesus, ^fthat they might bring us into bondage), ⁵to whom we did not yield submission even for an hour, that ^gthe truth of the gospel might continue with you.

⁶But from those ^hwho seemed to be something—whatever they were, it makes no difference to me; ⁱGod ²shows personal favoritism to no man—for those who seemed to be something ^jadded nothing to me.

⁷But on the contrary, ^kwhen they saw that the gospel for the uncircumcised ¹had been committed to me, as the gospel for the circumcised was to Peter

⁸(for He who worked effectively in Peter for the apostleship to the ^mcircumcised ⁿalso ^oworked effectively in me toward the Gentiles),

⁹and when James, ³Cephas, and John, who seemed to be ^ppillars, perceived ^qthe grace that had been given to me, they gave me and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship, ^rthat we should go to the Gentiles and they to the circumcised.

¹⁰*They desired* only that we should remember the poor, ^sthe very thing which I also was eager to do.

No Return to the Law

¹¹Now when ⁴Peter had come to Antioch, I ⁵withstood him to his face, because he was to be blamed;

¹²for before certain men came from James, ^uhe would eat with the Gentiles; but when they came, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing ⁶those who were of the circumcision.

¹³And the rest of the Jews also played the hypocrite with him, so that even Barnabas was carried away with their hypocrisy.

¹⁴But when I saw that they were not straightforward about ^vthe truth of the gospel, I said to Peter ^wbefore them all, ^x“If you, being a Jew, live in the manner of Gentiles and not as the Jews, ⁷why do you compel Gentiles to live as ⁸Jews?

^{15y}“We who are Jews by nature, and not ^zsinners of the Gentiles, ^{16a}“knowing that a man is not ⁹justified by the works of the law but ^bby faith in Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Christ Jesus, that we might be justified by faith in Christ and not ^cby the works of the law; for by the works of the law no flesh shall be justified.

¹⁷“But if, while we seek to be justified by Christ, we ourselves also are found ^dsinners, is Christ therefore a minister of sin? Certainly not!

¹⁸“For if I build again those things which I destroyed, I make myself a transgressor.

¹⁹“For I ^ethrough the law ^fdied to the law that I might ^glive to God.

²⁰“I have been ^hcrucified with Christ; it is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh ⁱI live by faith in the Son of God, ^jwho loved me and gave Himself for me.

²¹“I do not set aside the grace of God; for ^kif righteousness comes through the law, then Christ died ¹⁰in vain.”

Galatians 3

Justification by Faith

(cf. Rom. 4:1–25)

¹O foolish Galatians! Who has bewitched you ¹that you should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ was clearly portrayed ²among you as crucified? Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Galatians

²This only I want to learn from you: Did you receive the Spirit by the works of the law, ^aor by the hearing of faith?

³Are you so foolish? ^bHaving begun in the Spirit, are you now being made perfect by ^cthe flesh?

^{4d}Have you suffered so ³many things in vain—if indeed it was in vain?

⁵Therefore He who supplies the Spirit to you and works miracles among you, does He do it by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith?—

⁶just as Abraham ^e*“believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteousness.”*

⁷Therefore know that only ^fthose who are of faith are sons of Abraham.

⁸And ^gthe Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, preached the gospel to Abraham beforehand, saying, ^h*“In you all the nations shall be blessed.”*

⁹So then those who are of faith are blessed with believing Abraham.

The Law Brings a Curse

¹⁰For as many as are of the works of the law are under the curse; for it is written, ⁱ*“Cursed is everyone who does not continue in all things which are written in the book of the law, to do them.”*

¹¹But that no one is ⁴justified by the law in the sight of God is evident, for ^j*“the just shall live by faith.”*

¹²Yet ^kthe law is not of faith, but ^l*“the man who does them shall live by them.”*

^{13m}Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law, having become a curse for us (for it is written, ⁿ*“Cursed is everyone who hangs on a tree”*), ^{14o}that the blessing of Abraham might come upon the ^pGentiles in Christ Jesus, that we might receive ^qthe promise of the Spirit through faith.

The Changeless Promise

(cf. Gen. 12:1–3)

¹⁵Brethren, I speak in the manner of men: ^rThough it is only a man's covenant, yet if it is confirmed, no one annuls or adds to it.

¹⁶Now to Abraham and his Seed were the promises made. He does not say, "And to seeds," as of many, but as of ^sone, ^t"And to your Seed," who is ^uChrist.

¹⁷And this I say, that the law, ^vwhich was four hundred and thirty years later, cannot annul the covenant that was confirmed before by God ⁵in Christ, ^wthat it should make the promise of no effect.

¹⁸For if ^xthe inheritance is of the law, ^y*it is* no longer of promise; but God gave it to Abraham by promise.

Purpose of the Law

¹⁹What purpose then does the law serve? ²It was added because of transgressions, till the ^aSeed should come to whom the promise was made; and it was ^bappointed through angels by the hand ^cof a mediator.

²⁰Now a mediator does not mediate for one only, ^dbut God is one. Word Studies: idolatry

²¹Is the law then against the promises of God? Certainly not! For if there had been a law given which could have given life, truly righteousness would have been by the law.

²²But the Scripture has confined ^eall under sin, ^fthat the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to those who believe.

²³But before faith came, we were kept under guard by the law, ⁶kept for the faith which would afterward be revealed.

²⁴Therefore ^gthe law was our ⁷tutor to bring us to Christ, ^hthat we might be justified by faith.

²⁵But after faith has come, we are no longer under a tutor.

Sons and Heirs

²⁶For you ⁱare all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus.

²⁷For ^jas many of you as were baptized into Christ ^khave put on Christ.

²⁸There is neither Jew nor Greek, ^mthere is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female; for you are all ⁿone in Christ Jesus. Article: We Are Family

²⁹And ^oif you are Christ's, then you are Abraham's ^pseed, and ^qheirs according to the promise.

Galatians 4

¹Now I say that the heir, as long as he is a child, does not differ at all from a slave, though he is master of all,

²but is under guardians and stewards until the time appointed by the father.

³Even so we, when we were children, ^awere in bondage under the elements of the world.

⁴But ^bwhen the fullness of the time had come, God sent forth His Son, ^cborn ¹^dof a woman, ^eborn under the law,

^{5f}to redeem those who were under the law, ^gthat we might receive the adoption as sons. Charts and Diagrams: Grace vs. the Law

⁶And because you are sons, God has sent forth ^hthe Spirit of His Son into your hearts, crying out, ²“Abba, Father!”

⁷Therefore you are no longer a slave but a son, ⁱand if a son, then an heir ³of God ⁴through Christ.

Fears for the Church

⁸But then, indeed, ^jwhen you did not know God, ^kyou served those which by nature are not gods.

⁹But now ^lafter you have known God, or rather are known by God, ^mhow is it that you turn again to ⁿthe weak and beggarly elements, to which you desire again to be in bondage? Word Studies: elements

^{10o}You observe days and months and seasons and years.

¹¹I am afraid for you, ^plest I have labored for you in vain.

¹²Brethren, I urge you to become like me, for I became like you. ^qYou have not injured me at all.

¹³You know that ^rbecause of physical infirmity I preached the gospel to you at the first.

¹⁴And my trial which was in my flesh you did not despise or reject, but you received me ^sas an ⁵angel of God, ^teven as Christ Jesus.

¹⁵⁶What then was the blessing you enjoyed? For I bear you witness that, if possible, you would have plucked out your own eyes and given them to me.

¹⁶Have I therefore become your enemy because I tell you the truth?

¹⁷They ^uzealously court you, but for no good; yes, they want to exclude you, that you may be zealous for them.

¹⁸But it is good to be zealous in a good thing always, and not only when I am present with you.

^{19v}My little children, for whom I labor in birth again until Christ is formed in you, ²⁰I would like to be present with you now and to change my tone; for I have doubts about you.

Two Covenants

(Gen. 21:8–21; Is. 54:1)

²¹Tell me, you who desire to be under the law, do you not hear the law?

²²For it is written that Abraham had two sons: ^wthe one by a bondwoman, ^xthe other by a freewoman.

²³But he who was of the bondwoman ^ywas born according to the flesh, ^zand he of the freewoman through promise,

²⁴which things are symbolic. For these are ⁷the two covenants: the one from Mount ^aSinai which gives birth to bondage, which is Hagar—

²⁵for this Hagar is Mount Sinai in Arabia, and corresponds to Jerusalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children—

²⁶but the ^bJerusalem above is free, which is the mother of us all.

²⁷For it is written:

^c*“Rejoice, O barren,
You who do not bear!
Break forth and shout,
You who are not in labor!
For the desolate has many more children
Than she who has a husband.”*

²⁸Now ^dwe, brethren, as Isaac was, are ^echildren of promise.

²⁹But, as ^fhe who was born according to the flesh then persecuted him who was born according to the Spirit, ^geven so it is now.

³⁰Nevertheless what does ^hthe Scripture say? ⁱ*“Cast out the bondwoman and her son, for ^jthe son of the bondwoman shall not be heir with the son of the freewoman.”*

³¹So then, brethren, we are not children of the bondwoman but of the free.

Galatians 5

Christian Liberty

^{1a}Stand¹ fast therefore in the liberty by which Christ has made us free, and do not be entangled again with a ^byoke of bondage.

²Indeed I, Paul, say to you that ^cif you become circumcised, Christ will profit you nothing.

³And I testify again to every man who becomes circumcised ^dthat he is ²a debtor to keep the whole law.

^{4e}You have become estranged from Christ, you who attempt to be justified by law; ^fyou have fallen from grace.

⁵For we through the Spirit eagerly ^gwait for the hope of righteousness by faith.

⁶For ^hin Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor uncircumcision avails anything, but ⁱfaith working through love.

Love Fulfills the Law

⁷You ^jran well. Who hindered you from obeying the truth?

⁸This persuasion does not come from Him who calls you.

^{9k}A little leaven leavens the whole lump.

¹⁰I have confidence in you, in the Lord, that you will have no other mind; but he who troubles you shall bear his judgment, whoever he is.

¹¹And I, brethren, if I still preach circumcision, ^lwhy do I still suffer persecution? Then ^mthe offense of the cross has ceased.

¹²ⁿI could wish that those ^owho trouble you would even ³cut themselves off!

¹³For you, brethren, have been called to liberty; only ^pdo not use liberty as an ^qopportunity for the flesh, but ^rthrough love serve one another.

¹⁴For ^sall the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: ^t“You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

¹⁵But if you bite and devour one another, beware lest you be consumed by one another!

Walking in the Spirit

¹⁶I say then: ^uWalk in the Spirit, and you shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh.

¹⁷For ^vthe flesh lusts against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; and these are contrary to one another, ^wso that you do not do the things that you wish.

¹⁸But ^xif you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law.

¹⁹Now ^ythe works of the flesh are evident, which are: ⁴adultery, ⁵fornication, uncleanness, lewdness, Word Studies: flesh

²⁰idolatry, sorcery, hatred, contentions, jealousies, outbursts of wrath, selfish ambitions, dissensions, heresies,

²¹envy, ⁶murders, drunkenness, revelries, and the like; of which I tell you beforehand, just as I also told you in time past, that ^zthose who practice such things will not inherit the kingdom of God.

²²But ^athe fruit of the Spirit is ^blove, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, ^cgoodness, ^dfaithfulness, ²³⁷gentleness, self-control. ^eAgainst such there is no law.

²⁴And those who are Christ's ^fhave crucified the flesh with its passions and desires.

²⁵^gIf we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

²⁶^hLet us not become conceited, provoking one another, envying one another.

Galatians 6

Bear and Share Burdens

¹Brethren, if a man is ¹overtaken in any trespass, you who are spiritual restore such a one in a spirit of ^agentleness, considering yourself lest you also be tempted.

^{2b}Bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill ^cthe law of Christ.

³For ^dif anyone thinks himself to be something, when ^ehe is nothing, he deceives himself.

⁴But ^flet each one examine his own work, and then he will have rejoicing in himself alone, and ^gnot in another.

⁵For ^heach one shall bear his own load.

Be Generous and Do Good

⁶Let him who is taught the word share in all good things with him who teaches.

⁷Do not be deceived, God is not mocked; for ^jwhatever a man sows, that he will also reap. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Bible Times & Culture Notes

⁸For he who sows to his flesh will of the flesh reap corruption, but he who sows to the Spirit will of the Spirit reap ^keverlasting life.

⁹And ^llet us not grow weary while doing good, for in due season we shall reap ^mif we do not lose heart.

¹⁰ⁿTherefore, as we have opportunity, ^olet us do good to all, ^pespecially to those who are of the household of faith.

Glory Only in the Cross

¹¹See with what large letters I have written to you with my own hand!

¹²As many as desire to make a good showing in the flesh, these would compel you to be circumcised, ^qonly that they may not suffer persecution for the cross of Christ.

¹³For not even those who are circumcised keep the law, but they desire to have you circumcised that they may boast in your flesh.

¹⁴But God forbid that I should boast except in the ^rcross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by ²whom the world has been crucified to me, and ^sI to the world.

¹⁵For ^tin Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor uncircumcision avails anything, but a new creation.

Blessing and a Plea

¹⁶And as many as walk according to this rule, peace and mercy be upon them, and upon the Israel of God.

¹⁷From now on let no one trouble me, for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus.

¹⁸Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

Annotations for Galatians

- 1:1 Paul calls himself an apostle to assert his divinely given authority to speak to the problem confronting the Galatian churches. Through Jesus Christ and God the Father refers to Paul's unique call to be an apostle (vv. 15, 16), which came to him at the same time as his salvation on the road to Damascus (see Acts 26:12–18). Raised Him from the dead is a reference to the resurrection of Jesus Christ, a central belief of the Christian faith (see 1 Cor. 15).
- 1:2 churches of Galatia: Galatians is a circular letter, intended for several churches.
- 1:3 Grace is a variation from the standard greeting of ancient letters in Paul's time. Peace is the Greek translation of the traditional Hebrew greeting. Paul commonly combines the two ideas of grace and peace in the introductions of his letters (see 1 Cor. 1:3; 2 Cor. 1:2). The true message of salvation is based solely on God's grace (1:6; 2:21) received by faith (see Eph. 2:8), and it provides peace with God (see Rom. 5:1).
- 1:4 gave Himself for our sins: This phrase looks ahead to Paul's discussion of redemption in 3:13, 14. It is a quick summary of the Good News: Christ's death is for you (see 1 Cor. 15:3). Deliver us from this present evil age is similar to Col. 1:13, which states that Christ "has delivered us from the power of darkness" into His kingdom. Both passages develop this truth based on Christ's redemptive work (see Col. 1:14), implying that the word deliver refers to sanctification in the face of the temptations of this present age.
- 1:6, 7 The use of the word marvel reveals Paul's ongoing shock at the Galatians' defection from the gospel of God's undeserved grace. The Galatians had unwittingly fallen for a different message, one which was not another true message of salvation at all. Those causing the trouble were guilty of seeking to pervert the gospel of Christ, not to present a better alternative.
- 1:8, 9 Paul moves from the hypothetical (vv. 6, 7) to the actual in denouncing the Galatians' perversion of the gospel. If even the apostles or an angel from heaven were to preach a false gospel, they would be accursed. That being the case, anyone who proclaimed a perversion of the message that the Galatians had received from Paul fully deserved eternal destruction. Paul's concern for the purity of the gospel message is revealed by his assertion that he would condemn to destruction anyone who taught a false gospel.
- 1:10 To please men was neither Paul's motivation nor the source of his authority (v. 1). Paul continually sought the approval of God. He did not base his decisions on the opinions of other people. Instead he single-mindedly aimed at pleasing God (Phil. 3:14). As an apostle Paul was a leader, but he was always a bondservant of Christ.
- 1:11, 12 There was no human creativity flavoring the gospel Paul preached. Paul knew it only because he received it by special revelation from Jesus Christ at his conversion (see Acts 26:12–18).

revelation of Jesus Christ

(Gk. apokalupsis Iēsou Christou) (1:12; 1 Pet. 1:13; Rev. 1:1) Strong's #602; 2424; 5547

In the Greek this could be an objective genitive—a revelation concerning Jesus Christ, or a subjective genitive—a revelation from Jesus Christ. Both thoughts are consistent with the context. Paul's "revelation of Jesus Christ" enabled him to see that Christ was God's Son (1:16), the sole object of our faith (2:16), and the unique source of oneness of all believers—whether Jew or Gentile, bond or free, male or female (see 3:27, 28; Eph. 3:1–11). Paul received his knowledge by special revelation (1 Cor. 11:23; 15:3; Eph. 3:3; 1 Thess. 4:15). Paul was thus an independent witness to the gospel; and although he had received no instructions directly from the apostles but only from the Holy Spirit, his teachings agreed with theirs.

1:13, 14 Judaism means the Jewish way of life, which was based partly on the OT and partly on additional traditions of the fathers, or leaders of the people (see Matt. 15:2). Paul's conduct before his conversion had greatly distinguished him in Judaism in two ways: (1) He painstakingly kept the law and traditions, certainly more so than the Judaizers in Galatia (6:13). (2) He persecuted the church of God in order to destroy it (see Phil. 3:6), doing so under the authority of Jewish religious leaders (see Acts 8:3; 9:1, 2).

1:15–17 In words echoing the calling of the messianic Servant (see Is. 49:1) and Jeremiah the prophet (see Jer. 1:5), Paul relates that God had chosen him to be an apostle (v. 1) before his birth. Paul, like the Judaizers in Galatia, had previously tried to earn his salvation by works (v. 14). However, his apostolic call and conversion both came through God's grace, His undeserved favor. If Paul's gospel message was made by men, he would have had to confer with other people to receive or validate it. To do this, Paul would have had to travel to Jerusalem, where the other apostles were, for such a conference. Instead, when he left Damascus, where he had stayed immediately after his conversion to Christianity (see Acts 9:1–22), he went to Arabia (see 2 Cor. 11:32, 33). This was the kingdom of the Nabatean Arabs, extending from Damascus to the Red Sea, including parts of modern Syria, Jordan, Israel, and Saudi Arabia.

1:18 after three years: This could be 36 months, or else a shorter period measured from the end of one year, through a complete year, and ending early in the third year. The three years could begin at the time of Paul's conversion (vv. 15, 16) or of his departure to Arabia (v. 17). Undoubtedly Paul and Peter talked at length about Christ and the gospel during the fifteen days Paul was in Jerusalem.

1:19 The apparent reference to James, the Lord's brother, as being one of the other apostles indicates that the word apostles was not always restricted to "the Twelve" (see Matt. 10:1–4; 1 Cor. 15:5).

1:21 Following his brief trip to Jerusalem (vv. 18, 19), Paul went to Syria and Cilicia, likely the same journey mentioned in Acts 9:30, in which Paul traveled from Jerusalem to his childhood home, Tarsus in Cilicia (see Acts 22:3).

- 2:1 After fourteen years may refer to 12 full years plus fractions of the first and last years (1:18). This time span could date from Paul's previous visit to Jerusalem (1:18, 19), but more likely from his conversion (1:15, 16). This was the point at which Paul received the gospel message, the focus of discussion throughout this extended section (1:11–2:14). I went up again to Jerusalem: If Galatians was written before the Jerusalem council, this journey is the one recorded in Acts 11:30. Otherwise, it is a reference to the Jerusalem Council (Acts 15). Barnabas is a Hebrew nickname meaning "Son of Encouragement" (see Acts 4:36). Barnabas met Paul briefly in Jerusalem during Paul's first postconversion visit (see Acts 9:26, 27). Later they served together in the events narrated in Acts 11:25–30; 12:25–15:39. Titus is not mentioned in Acts, but he was a convert of Paul's (see Titus 1:4) and an effective ministry associate over a number of years (see 2 Cor. 2:13).
- 2:2 Revelation here may refer to the prophecy of Agabus in Acts 11:27–30. Or it may refer to a private revelation of the Lord to Paul, perhaps similar to the one he received in Jerusalem earlier (see Acts 22:17–21). Later Jesus appeared to Paul in another vision (see Acts 23:11). Them may refer to the Jerusalem church at large, or it may be only those who were of reputation, presumably the inner core made up of James, Cephas (Peter), and John (v. 9). For Paul to have communicated with these leaders privately does not mean he considered altering his gospel, as the following section clearly shows (vv. 3–10). In vain does not reflect on the effectiveness of Paul's gospel, but rather on his efforts to maintain a unity in the church without sacrificing "the truth of the gospel" (v. 5).
- 2:3 Titus (v. 1) was a "test-case" Gentile. The term circumcised introduces a central topic of the Jewish false teachers, one which Paul addresses repeatedly in Galatians (5:2, 3, 6). Unlike Timothy, whom Paul had circumcised because Timothy's mother was Jewish, Titus was not circumcised. Circumcising him would have been a sign to all other Gentiles that following Jewish law was required for a person to become a Christian. As Paul explains in this letter, that would be a rejection of the Good News that salvation is God's gift to those who believe in His Son.
- 2:4 false brethren: This phrase apparently indicates that although these people passed themselves off convincingly as Christians, there was reason to view their profession as a sham. These pseudo-Christians did not announce their purpose, which was to curtail Christian liberty (5:1, 13) and to bring Paul and his converts into the bondage of Jewish legalism (6:12–15). These false brethren maintained that one had to keep the Jewish law in order to be saved. They refused to confess that salvation was God's gift through faith alone. For this reason, Paul would not recognize them as genuine Christians.
- 2:5 Paul's message about the truth of the gospel had never given way to the message of the false teachers, whether in Jerusalem (vv. 1–10), Syrian Antioch (vv. 11–14), or Galatia. you: The Galatian Christians could trust Paul's consistent advocacy of his gospel, which was revealed by God (1:11, 12).
- 2:6 While Paul recognized the leadership roles of James, Cephas (Peter), and John (v. 9) as "pillars" of the Jerusalem church, he pointed out that they were in no way superior to him in their understanding of the gospel. added nothing to me: The other apostles were satisfied with Paul's understanding of the gospel.
- 2:7–10 There were not two different gospels, one for the uncircumcised Gentiles and another for the circumcised Jews. Rather, the primary scope of Paul's apostolic ministry was to the Gentiles (see Rom. 11:13), while Peter's apostleship was, first and foremost, targeted toward the Jews. The fact that God worked effectively through Peter in reaching Jews and just as effectively through Paul in reaching the Gentiles was strong evidence to the leaders in Jerusalem of Paul's apostolic commission (see Rom. 1:5). The right hand of fellowship was a common sign of acceptance and friendship. It indicated full recognition of Paul by the representatives of the Jerusalem church. The request to remember the poor, almost certainly the poor among the church in Judea (see Acts 11:29, 30), reflects an ongoing concern of Paul's (see Rom. 15:26).

- 2:11, 12 Antioch was the largest city of the Roman province of Syria. It became a center for missionary outreach to other Gentile cities in Asia Minor and Macedonia (see Acts 13:1–3). After the earlier meeting in Jerusalem (vv. 1–10), the behavior of Peter in Antioch was contradictory and hypocritical (vv. 12, 13). Given Peter’s immense influence, Paul had little choice but to point out the hypocrisy directly (vv. 11, 14). Paul confronted Peter because refusing to eat with the Gentiles contradicted what Peter had long since recognized, that the gospel was for the Gentiles too (see Peter’s interaction with Cornelius’ family, Acts 11:7–10). Certain men came from James indicates that they came with the authority of James, one of the leaders of the Jerusalem church (v. 9). However, it is unlikely that they accurately represented the views of James (vv. 7–10).
- 2:13 Peter’s example was so decisive that the rest of the Jews in the church at Syrian Antioch, including Barnabas, followed suit. However, Peter’s actions did not represent conviction, but hypocrisy.
- 2:14 Peter’s hypocritical example implied that Gentiles had to behave like Jews in order to receive God’s grace. Thus, Peter was not being straightforward about the truth of the gospel of God’s grace. It had already been decided (vv. 1–5) that it was not proper to compel Gentiles to live as Jews because salvation was through faith alone.
- 2:15–21 This section may represent the continuation of Paul’s confrontation with Peter, or it may represent a statement of the central point of his letter: that Christians are justified by faith in Jesus Christ alone.
- 2:15–17 Paul is not denying that those who are Jews by birth are sinners, as are all Gentiles (see Rom. 3:23). Rather, he is implying that Jews enjoy spiritual privileges (see Rom. 9:4, 5) that should make them more knowledgeable about how to be justified before God (see 3:6; Gen. 15:6). The Jews should have been aware that no person can be declared righteous or justified by obedience to the Law of Moses (3:10–21).
- 2:16 By the grace of God (v. 21), the only way to be justified (declared righteous or pardoned) is through faith in Jesus Christ. Any other way allows works, whether keeping the law of Moses or performing good deeds in general, to play a role in justification. This is the main point of Paul’s letter to the Galatians: Salvation or righteousness cannot be obtained by obeying the law. Salvation is only through faith in Jesus Christ (Rom. 3:20).
- 2:17–19 Paul strongly rejects the erroneous conclusion that being justified by faith in Christ actually made Jews sinners, thus painting Christ as a promoter of sin. Those who attempt to be justified through “the works of the law” are “cursed” (3:10). If anyone attempts to reassert the “works of the law” as having any part in justification before God, the law itself convicts that person of being a transgressor (see 3:19–25). The law itself is not sinful; its purpose is to convince individuals of their personal spiritual deadness in sin outside of faith in Christ (see Rom. 7:7–13).
- 2:20 Paul and every believer were crucified with Christ in order to die to sin, the law, and “this present evil age” (1:4). While believers live on physically, Christ also lives within them spiritually. Christ’s resurrection power through the Spirit is worked out through the Christian (see Rom. 6:4–11) who chooses to live by faith in the Son of God.
- 2:21 If righteousness is attainable through keeping the law of Moses, then God’s gracious act of sending Christ to die on the Cross to pay for sin was unnecessary and useless (see Rom. 3:4–26).
- 3:1 Foolish does not indicate lack of intelligence but lack of wisdom. Paul wonders whether something like an evil spell had prevented the Galatians from recalling the gospel of the crucified Christ, which had been clearly portrayed or preached to them.

BIBLE TIMES & Culture NOTES

The Galatians

The ethnic Galatians were Celts who migrated from central Europe to Asia Minor in the third century B.C. By NT times there was a Roman province called Galatia that was larger than the original ethnic area. Territory to the south that was not ethnically Galatian was included in the province. Whether Galatia refers to the people or to the province would indicate who the original readers of the letter to Galatians were. The usual view until the last two centuries was that Paul addressed “North Galatia,” or congregations of ethnic Galatians located in the northern part of the province. However, a “South Galatian” theory is more widely held today. According to this view Paul wrote to churches in the southern part of the province, that is, to the churches he founded on his first missionary journey (see Acts 13:14—14:24) and later revisited (see Acts 16:1–5).

Lystra tell, in southern Galatia

- 3:2 In this verse, Paul contrasts obedience to the law with faith. The hearing of faith is probably what Paul had in mind in Rom. 10:17 when he said, “So then faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.” It may also be closely related to Paul’s concept of obedience to the faith, since the Greek word for “hear” can also be translated “listen” or “obey” (see Rom. 1:5; 16:26).
- 3:3 Paul reminds the Galatians that their Christian life was begun in the Spirit by faith alone (see v. 2; 2:16). Being made perfect by the flesh indicates that the Galatians were mistakenly trying to achieve perfection through their own efforts, especially through circumcision.
- 3:4 This statement implies that the Galatian Christians had previously suffered for their faith, before they were tricked by the false gospel.
- 3:6 There are several reasons for Paul’s reference to Abraham’s faith as an example. (1) Abraham was the father of the Jewish nation (see Gen. 12:1–3). (2) Abraham is the clearest example of justification in the OT. (3) The Judaizers almost certainly were pointing back to Abraham, probably in connection with circumcision (2:3; 5:2, 3). The example of Abraham’s faith is also developed in Rom. 4; Heb. 11; James 2. Paul quotes Gen. 15:6 from the Greek translation of the OT to show that Abraham was justified by faith alone. This verse communicates precisely what Paul called “the truth of the gospel” (2:5, 14).
- 3:7 Those who are of faith are spiritual sons of Abraham, even if they are not Jews. They are part of God’s people.
- 3:8, 9 Scripture is personified as a preacher who foretells that Abraham and his example of faith (see Gen. 15:6) would become a life-changing blessing to all nations (see Gen. 12:3; Matt. 28:19) as the gospel spread. All who have faith, as Abraham did, join in his blessed status.
- 3:10 Being under the curse through trying to be justified by the works of the law is contrasted with being blessed as a believer (v. 9). The quotation from Deut. 27:26 says that those who do not keep the whole law are cursed, proving that all are cursed who follow the law, because all fall short of the law’s standards (see Rom. 1:17; 3:10–18, 23).
- 3:11, 12 Paul quotes Hab. 2:4 to demonstrate that a person can only be justified through faith. He cites Lev. 18:5 to prove that keeping the law to gain salvation is utterly incompatible with faith.
- 3:13 Paul knew that many of his readers would perceive that they were actually under the curse of the law (see v. 10; Deut. 27:26). For them as for us it is incredibly comforting to know that Christ became that curse for us on the Cross (see Deut. 21:23).
- 3:15 Covenant here probably means a “last will and testament,” which is unchangeable after it is confirmed. Most of the uses of the word in the NT refer to a solemn agreement or contract God made with His people.
- 3:16 Jesus Christ is the fulfillment of the covenant (v. 15) God made with Abraham. Although in one sense all Jews are the physical seed of Abraham, Christ is the final focus of God’s promises, the ultimate Seed. Christians are the spiritual seed of Abraham (see v. 29).
- 3:17 Four hundred and thirty years was the period of time Israel was in Egypt before the Exodus (see Ex. 12:40, 41). The law, which was put into force at the end of those centuries, could not override or annul the standing covenant with Abraham (see Gen. 15:18).
- 3:18 The law of Moses and the promise God made to Abraham were at odds with each other. Paul demonstrated that the false teachers' view that the law was the fulfillment of the Abrahamic covenant had no scriptural basis.

3:19, 20 The purpose of the law of Moses was not to justify humankind in God's eyes (2:16). Rather, the law was added after God's promise to Abraham (vv. 16, 17) to clarify the issue of sin until Christ the Seed (v. 16) came. According to Stephen's sermon in Acts 7, the law was given through angels to Moses as the human mediator (see Acts 7:38). This view was in line with Jewish teaching of the NT era. No mediator, or go-between, was needed with the Abrahamic covenant since it was a one-party, or unilateral, promise. God put Abraham into a "deep sleep" and consummated the ceremonial enactment of the covenant alone (see Gen. 15:12-17).

idolatry

(Gk. eidōlolatrea) (3:20; 1 Cor. 10:14; Col. 3:5) Strong's #1495

This word refers to the practice of worshiping idols. Related Greek words are translated “idolater” in 1 Cor. 5:10, 11; 6:9; 10:7; “idol” in 1 Cor. 8:4, 7; 10:19; 12:2; and “things offered to idols” in 1 Cor. 8:1, 4, 7; 10:19, 28. Paul had told the Corinthians not to associate with those who called themselves believers but were still idolaters (1 Cor. 5:9–11). The Corinthians must have asked Paul for clarification on this matter, for in 1 Cor. Paul warns the believers to refrain from all forms of idol worship.

3:21, 22 The relationship of the law and the promises of God is not competition, but need and fulfillment. The law was not designed by God to give eternal life and righteousness. Rather, the law showed humanity’s need for the promise of life through faith in Jesus Christ (v. 9; 2:16), having confined all people under their sin (see Rom. 3:23; 6:23).

3:23–25 Paul gives two different illustrations concerning the function of the law until Christ came (4:4, 5). The law acted as a jail guard to hold humankind in custody until faith in Christ was revealed. But the law also served as a tutor. A tutor in ancient Greek culture would accompany the children in his care, instructing and disciplining them when necessary. The law was like a tutor because it both corrected and instructed the Israelites in God’s ways until Christ was revealed, and such a tutor was no longer needed (4:1, 2).

3:26 Through faith in Christ Jesus believers are not only blessed as sons of Abraham (vv. 7, 9) but also as sons of God (see John 1:12) and God’s heirs (4:7). Believers have been adopted by God Himself. Although we were His enemies, we have been made His sons. Although we deserve judgment, we will receive an eternal inheritance from our Father.

3:28 The context of this verse is justification by faith in Christ Jesus, the fact that Jesus has redeemed all those who believe on Him, whether Jew or Gentile (3:26–4:27). Racial, social, and gender distinctions that so easily divide in no way hinder a person from coming to Christ in order to receive His mercy. All people equally can become God’s heirs and recipients of His eternal promises (4:5–7).

We Are Family

In Galatians 3:28, Paul emphasizes that three major social distinctions no longer matter in Christ:

- Ethnicity: “neither Jew nor Greek.”
- Socioeconomic status: “neither slave nor free.”

- Gender: “neither male nor female.”

First-century culture was deeply divided along these lines. So was the church. But Paul stressed, “You are all one in Christ Jesus” (emphasis added).

Christians have become children of God through faith, which means we are all in the same family. We are no longer divided by ethnicity, social status, or gender, but have become brothers and sisters in God’s family.

One powerful symbol of that new unity is baptism (3:27). As part of the baptismal ceremony, a believer affirms the lordship of Christ and his or her commitment to a new way of life. Paul was possibly quoting from a first-century baptismal creed (3:28) to remind us of our promise to “put on Christ,” not just in word but also in deed.

In the early Christian communities this meant that both Gentiles and Jews could exercise their spiritual gifts. Both slaves and masters could pray or prophesy. Both women and men could enjoy full membership in the body. “Christ is all and in all” (Col. 3:11). The breaking down of traditional barriers wasn’t just a future hope. The early church worked to make it a reality.

Which brings us to the question: What walls of ethnicity, status, or gender divide believers today? Are we willing to model reconciliation between different and even antagonistic groups? If not, then is our church truly a sign of God’s kingdom, or merely a human institution?

4:1, 2 Drawing upon the illustration of the “tutor” and “heirs” in 3:24–29, Paul develops the idea of what it means to be an adopted son of God. In ancient society a child had to wait until the proper time before he could inherit what was his. Paul uses this to explain why God delayed Jesus Christ’s coming, leaving people with His law as a guide (3:23–25).

4:3 We were children . . . in bondage parallels “child” and “slave” in v. 1. Some believe that the elements Paul refers to in this verse are “elemental spiritual forces.” As in astrology today, the ancients associated spiritual forces with “the elements,” such as earth, air, fire, and water. But the context, and Paul’s use of the word elsewhere (Col. 2:8, 20), favors an understanding of elements as “elementary principles or regulations,” perhaps the Jewish law or aspects of it (compare Heb 5:12–6:3). This is confirmed in the context, for elements of the world parallels “guardians and stewards” in v. 2, as well as the role of the law in 3:23–25. These elements are described as “weak and beggarly” in v. 9 and are linked to what appears to be Jewish calendar observances in v. 10.

4:4, 5 The fullness of the time is “the perfect time” in history, the “time appointed” by God the Father (v. 2) for His Son to be born, and later to die for the sins of the world. Born of a woman speaks of Christ’s humanity and perhaps alludes to His role as the ultimate “Seed” of the woman (see 3:16; Gen. 3:15). Born under the law means Christ was subject to the Jewish law (see Matt. 5:17–19), further establishing His identification with all people who are subject to the law. Redeem, meaning “to buy from the slave market,” is a term used only by Paul in the NT (see 3:13; Eph. 5:16; Col. 4:5). The verb describes Christ’s supreme and final payment for the sins of humanity (see Rom. 3:23–25). This payment, His death on the Cross, frees those who believe on Him to become God’s sons. Although there is only one natural Son in God’s family, Jesus Christ (vv. 4, 6), God has graciously adopted all believers as His children.

Grace vs. the Law

The Galatian believers, under pressure from Jewish legalists, were considering rejecting the gospel of grace and reverting back to dependence on the Mosaic Law for salvation. Paul wrote this letter to outline the dramatic differences between the two approaches to God.

Grace . . .

- is based on faith (2:16).
- justifies sinful men (2:16, 17).
- begins and ends with Christ (2:20).
- is the way of the Spirit (3:2, 3, 14).
- is a “blessing” (3:14).
- is God’s desired end for His people (3:23–25).
- results in intimacy with Christ (3:27).
- makes one a son of God and an heir of Christ (4:6, 7).
- brings liberty (5:1).
- depends on the power of the Holy Spirit (5:16–18, 22, 23).
- is motivated by love (5:13, 14).
- centers on the cross of Christ (6:12–14).

Law . . .

- is based on works (2:16).
- is incapable of resulting in justification (2:16; 3:11).
- makes Christ nothing (5:2).
- is the way of the flesh (3:3).
- is a “curse” (3:13).
- was intended to be only a means to an end (3:23–25).
- results in estrangement from Christ (5:4).
- keeps one a slave (4:7).
- results in bondage (5:1).
- depends on human effort (5:19–21).
- is motivated by pride (6:3, 13, 14).
- centers on circumcision (5:11; 6:12–15).

4:6 Just as “God sent forth His Son” in “the fullness of the time” in world history (v. 4), so God has sent forth the Spirit of Christ at just the right time for every person who believes in Christ. into your hearts: Christians can know intimacy with the Father because of the indwelling Spirit (see Rom. 8:1–17).

4:7 Paul summarizes the illustrations and teaching of the preceding section (vv. 1–6) by speaking of the transformation of the believer from being a spiritual slave to being a son with full rights.

4:8, 9 The words in bondage and elements refer back to v. 3. Paul was in effect asking the Galatians, “Is it spiritual progress again to be enslaved to weak and beggarly rituals and observances (v. 10)? How could you have known God and turned away to ‘childish’ (v. 3) things?” The Galatians had come to know God through faith in Jesus Christ (see John 17:2, 3). He had adopted them as His own sons, but they were turning back to the law that had once enslaved them.

elements

(Gk. stoicheion) (4:3, 9; Col. 2:8, 20; Heb. 5:12; 2 Pet. 3:10) Strong's #4747

This Greek word can mean (1) “elementary or rudimentary principles” or (2) “elemental spirits.” The word itself means things placed in line or in a row, like an alphabet. It was used to speak of rudimentary principles (Heb. 5:12) or basic elements of the universe, whether physical (2 Pet. 3:10) or spiritual. If Paul was thinking of elementary principles, he meant that people are in bondage to the basic elements of religion (see Col. 2:20); if he meant spirits, he was saying that people are in bondage to the “elemental spirits,” meaning certain gods or demons. Principles suits the overall context of Galatians, whereas spirits accords with 4:8–10. In either case, Paul was saying that people were in bondage until Christ came.

Go to the List of Word Studies

4:10 The word days likely refers to Sabbaths or special feasts. Months and seasons pertain to longer observances, such as the celebrations between the Passover and the Day of Pentecost. Years probably indicates the Year of Jubilee, the fiftieth year in which slaves were to be freed, family lands returned to their original owners, and the land left fallow (see Lev. 23-25). The Jews commemorated all these feasts in order to please God.

4:12 I urge you: To get beyond the present dilemma, Paul appeals to the Galatians to follow his example (see 1 Cor. 11:1). He had abandoned the ceremonial rules and regulations connected with Judaism so that he could freely preach the gospel of Christ to Jew and Gentile alike in the cities of Galatia. They too should not hinder the gospel of Christ with laws and regulations.

4:13–15 Paul describes the closeness and understanding that had existed between him and the Galatians when he had preached the gospel to them initially. He recalls how the Galatians had cared for him in his illness, treating him as they would an angel, or even Christ Himself. Paul's physical infirmity could have been an illness contracted en route to Galatia, a consequence of having been blinded on the road to Damascus (Acts 9:3, 8) or a consequence of being stoned (Acts 14:19). Some have suggested that Paul was practically blind. This would explain the reference to your own eyes, as well as the size of Paul's handwriting, referred to in 6:11. This might have been the infirmity about which Paul wrote in his letter to the Corinthians. Paul had repeatedly asked God for healing, but God refused to heal him because his weakness demonstrated God's strength (see 2 Cor. 12:7–10).

4:16 A person with pure motives and real friendship does not always say things that are pleasant to hear. Paul was telling the Galatians the truth, and as result was being labeled as their enemy. Sometimes the truth hurts; but a faithful friend would courageously confront another.

4:17, 18 Paul's own career of persecuting Christians proved that zealous behavior can be tragically misguided (1:13, 14). Paul was strongly implying that the false teachers in Galatia were making the same mistake he had made prior to his conversion. Their zeal for the law was blinding them to the freedom and truth to be found in Jesus Christ.

4:19 In a most tender way, Paul calls the Galatian Christians his little children because of their lack of spiritual growth and depth. The apostle also portrays himself as the Galatians' "spiritual mother." He was feeling the labor pains of their birth all over again because they had fallen into serious error.

4:21, 22 Once again Paul speaks of the law and the experience of Abraham, addressing the false teachers' foundational respect for Abraham (3:6–9) and the Galatians' infatuation with living under the law. To clinch his lengthy argument about the bondage of the law and the freedom found in Christ, Paul uses as examples the two sons of Abraham. These are Ishmael, who was born of the bondwoman Hagar (v. 24); and Isaac, who was born of Sarah, the rightful wife of Abraham and a freewoman. Appropriately, Paul counters the Jewish false teachers' zeal for the law with an argument based on the Law, the Pentateuch (Gen. 16:15; 21:2). He uses allegory to prove his point because it was a rhetorical technique the false teachers used. In other words, Paul was demonstrating that he could argue from the Law just as well as they could, but to prove that the Law of Moses pointed to the Messiah, Jesus Christ.

4:23 In Gen. 16, Abraham and Sarah attempted to fulfill God's promise through their own strength, using Hagar, a bondwoman. In spite of the complications caused by that "fleshly" alternative, Sarah, a freewoman, eventually saw the miraculous outworking of God's promise in the birth of Isaac (see Gen. 12:2; 15:4).

4:24 symbolic: Paul was using the common Jewish allegorical method of the day to make his point. He used this approach to draw a stark contrast between two biblical covenants at odds with each other in the churches in Galatia: the Abrahamic promise (see Gen. 12:1–3) and the Law of Moses that God gave Israel at Mount Sinai.

4:25 Paul compared Jerusalem, the center of Jewish life, to Mount Sinai, the birthplace of the Law of Moses.

4:26 The Jerusalem above represents the Jewish hope of heaven finally coming to earth (see Rev. 21; 22). Since us all obviously refers to those who are free through faith in Christ (v. 7), Paul was strongly implying that the question at hand was not allegiance to Jerusalem, but allegiance to which Jerusalem—the new or the old? Would the Galatians follow the shortsighted present Jerusalem and its legalism or the liberty of the heavenly Jerusalem?

4:27 Paul quotes Is. 54:1, using the prophesied restoration of Israel from judgment and exile to illustrate how the later-born children of promise would eventually far outnumber the earlier offspring.

4:28–30 This portion of Paul's allegory is based on Gen. 21:9, 10. Isaac was continually persecuted by his older half brother Ishmael. Eventually, Ishmael and his mother Hagar were expelled because Ishmael had no standing in God's eyes as heir of Abraham. In creating a parallel between the story from Genesis and the Galatians' situation, Paul points out that (1) the persecution by the Jewish legalists of his day was not unexpected, and (2) it would not go on indefinitely because the legalists would soon be cast out.

4:31–5:1 So then represents the conclusion of the previous section, while therefore signals that Paul is going to apply this spiritual truth to the lives of the Galatian believers. To be children of the bondwoman is to be enslaved to the covenant from Mount Sinai (4:24, 25), the Law of Moses. To be of the free is to follow Abraham's example of faith (3:6–9), to be "born according to the Spirit" (3:2; 4:29), and to be destined for the "Jerusalem above" (4:26). Understanding such realities, the believer in Christ must continually stand fast in the liberty of not having to keep the Law of Moses in order to be saved. The Galatians were on the verge of becoming enslaved to the law again.

5:2, 3 The legalistic Jewish teachers in Galatia were urging believers to be circumcised (6:12, 13). Paul points out that being circumcised changes the entire orientation of salvation away from God's grace to one's own actions. One who is circumcised in an attempt to gain God's acceptance is obligated to keep the whole law, which history has abundantly demonstrated no one can do (see Rom. 3:10–18).

5:4 Fallen from grace is understood by some to refer to the loss of salvation. However, fallen from may refer to their attitude and to the message that it communicates, rather than to their eternal salvation.

5:5 Faith in Christ brings about not only justification before God, but also growth in the Christian life until we are completely glorified by God and freed from the presence of sin. This is the hope of righteousness. We can be assured that we will be declared righteous before the Lord on that last day, because we have a foretaste of that righteousness from the Spirit who lives within us (2 Cor. 5:5).

5:6 By faith it is possible to fulfill Christ's command to love one's neighbor (see vv. 13, 14; John 13:34, 35).

5:7, 8 You ran well: The Galatians' splendid start in the race of the Christian life had not continued. Their detour into legalism was certainly not God's will.

5:9, 10 Leaven symbolizes the intruders, with their false doctrine and sinister influence. They were taking the gospel of free forgiveness away from the Galatians. The one who causes such harm will experience God's judgment (see 2 Cor. 5:10).

5:11 The cross gives offense because it proclaims God's unmerited grace (2:21), leaving no place for people's good works.

5:12 cut themselves off: The spiritual damage caused by legalistic teaching regarding circumcision and the law was so serious that Paul used strong, sarcastic words to emphasize his point. The false teachers should go beyond mere circumcision and castrate themselves. This exaggerated statement reveals Paul's frustration with those who muddled the clear gospel message of God's grace.

5:13 Liberty presents an opposite temptation from legalism. A person can be tempted to view freedom in Christ as a selfish opportunity for the flesh, in other words, an opportunity to do whatever one wants to do. But Paul points out that true Christian liberty is the freedom to serve one another in love (vv. 5, 6).

5:14 The Christian does not live under the law of Moses, but instead under "the law of Christ" (6:2). Living in Christ empowers us to love others, which is the fulfillment of the law (see Jesus' summary of the Law and the Prophets in Matt. 22:36–40).

5:15 When Christians follow their sinful desires (v. 13), they begin to criticize and contend with one another. Such self-centered behavior is self-defeating. Those who criticize and attack usually end up being consumed in worthless struggles.

5:16 The only consistent way to overcome the sinful desires of our human nature (the flesh) is to live step-by-step in the power of the Holy Spirit as He works through our spirit (v. 25). Shall not is a striking promise. Walking each moment by faith in God's word under the Spirit's control assures absolute victory over the desires of our sinful nature.

5:17 The potential of the flesh energized by Satan in the life of the Christian should not be underestimated. Given free rein, the flesh will direct our choices, making us do what we know we should not do. This inner conflict between the flesh and the Spirit is very real, but there is considerable disagreement as to its precise meaning. Some believe that flesh here refers to a "sinful nature" continuing after salvation, while others view it as simply the physical flesh and its natural tendencies. Still others focus on the "fleshly" or "worldly" habits and patterns that continue after justification. The desires of our flesh are at odds with what the Holy Spirit desires for us: to be free from sin.

5:19–21 The works of the flesh include, but go well beyond, the destructive contentions and jealousies portrayed in v. 15. Where there is such behavior, it is positive proof that the person is not living in the power of the Holy Spirit (vv. 16, 18, 22, 23) but is being energized by Satan and his hosts (see Matt. 16:23; Acts 5:3).

(Gk. sarx) (5:19, 24; 6:8, 12, 13; Rom. 7:18; 8:3, 13) Strong's #4561

In Greek literature, the word sarx usually meant nothing more than the human body. It was also used this way in the NT (see John 1:14; Rev. 17:16; 19:18, 21). However, Paul often used the word to denote the entire fallen human being—not just the sinful body but the entire being, including the soul and mind, as affected by sin. Thus Paul often pitted the “flesh” against the “Spirit” as being two diametrically opposed forces. The unbeliever can live only in the flesh, but the believers can live in the flesh or in the Spirit. Paul repeatedly encourages the believers to overcome the deeds of the flesh by living in the Spirit.

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 5:22, 23 Spirit: There is a question here whether Paul means specifically the works done by a person's regenerated human spirit, or works done by the Holy Spirit Himself in the believer's life. The fruit analogy is reminiscent of Jesus' teaching on the vine, branches, and fruitful harvest (see John 15:1–5).
- 5:24 Christians are spiritually “crucified with Christ” (2:20). They no longer have to follow the values or desires of the world (6:14). However, it remains difficult for Christians to apply this spiritual reality to the passions (affections) and desires (lusts) of the flesh (v. 16). Those who have mastered these sinful desires are those who have kept their focus on God (see Jer. 9:23, 24; Dan. 11:32; John 17:3; Heb. 12:1–3).
- 5:25, 26 In these verses, Paul exhorts the Galatians to walk in the Spirit because they are already living in the Spirit. Such an action should be natural, but unfortunately we are at war with the flesh. Walk in the Spirit means to obey the prompting of the Holy Spirit. A believer following the Spirit's lead (v. 16) will not become conceited, provoke others, or envy others.
- 6:1 Any trespass probably recalls the sinful “works of the flesh” in 5:19–21. Overtaken means to be caught off guard, perhaps at a vulnerable point. A believer devastated by sin needs to be approached with gentleness (5:23) by fellow believers. Those not controlled by the Holy Spirit would tend to boast by comparing themselves to the fallen believer (vv. 3, 4). Even as a doctor can catch a disease from treating a patient, so one restoring a fallen sinner can be tempted to fall into sin. That danger is well worth considering.
- 6:2 The law of Christ referred to here is probably the summation of the law: “Love your neighbor” (see 5:14; Matt. 22:39; John 13:34, 35). The term fulfill suggests that choosing to bear another Christian's burdens (or restore another Christian from burdensome sin, v. 1) is precisely what Christ expects of all believers. The Greek word for burdens refers to something beyond the normal capacity to carry, as opposed to a “load” (v. 5), which is what a person could be expected to carry.
- 6:3, 4 Anyone who concludes that he is something special, through shortsighted self-comparison with those who seem to have fallen, truly deceives himself. Instead of examining and judging others, a Christian should always examine his own work to see if he is closely following Christ's example (see 1 Cor. 11:31; 2 Cor. 13:5).

6:6 One important way to bear other believers' burdens (v. 2) is to share in all good things, including financial support, with one who teaches God's word. After all, teachers and preachers work hard in their ministry (see 1 Tim. 5:17).

6:7, 8 The principle of sowing and reaping was known to everyone in a largely agricultural society. It is a vain attempt to "mock" God for a Christian to think that if he sows to his flesh he can escape the harvest of destruction and judgment that comes upon those who participate in sin (5:19–21; Hos. 8:7). Corruption is a term used for a field in which the produce is too rotten to harvest (see Heb. 6:8). Some interpret corruption to imply eternal destruction, either through losing salvation or through never having been truly saved at all. Others understand a tragic loss of rewards for the carnal believer (see 1 Cor. 3:12–15; 2 Cor. 5:10; Rev. 22:12). He who sows to the Spirit will . . . reap everlasting life does not mean that eternal life is earned by works. Rather, Paul is saying that everlasting life is the glorious end of those who follow the guidance of the Spirit (see Rom. 6:22).

6:9 In this verse, Paul speaks of doing good. The apostle has argued at length that such works cannot justify (2:16) or sanctify (3:3) anyone. However, good works are, in fact, an important fruit of the life of faith (5:5) that God has planned for each believer (see Eph. 2:8–10). In 5:19–23, the apostle describes the attitudes and actions of those controlled by the "flesh" versus those controlled by the Spirit. In vv. 7–9, Paul shows the impact of those two contradictory ways over the length of a Christian's life (see 2 Cor. 5:10; Rev. 22:12).

6:10 Therefore indicates that this verse speaks of an important application of the spiritual sowing and reaping process (vv. 7–9). Christians are not only to serve one another in love (see v. 2; 5:13), they also should do good to non-Christians.

- 6:11 Probably here Paul began to write with his own hand, after having up to now dictated the letter to a secretary. His reference to large letters in light of the wording of 4:13–15 implies that Paul had problems with his eyesight or was even partly blind. Paul commonly ended his letters with personal greetings (see 2 Thess. 3:17).
- 6:12 a good showing: The Judaizers were trying to appear spiritual by becoming circumcised and demanding that others become circumcised (5:2–12). persecution: By teaching that all Christians should become circumcised, the Judaizers were trying to make Christianity into a sect of Judaism. This would have two advantages. First, they could counter the persecution that they suffered from zealous Jews. Second, they could include themselves with an officially sanctioned religion of the Roman Empire, Judaism.
- 6:13 Even the Judaizers who advocated the Galatians' circumcision did not really keep the entire law. They knew they were required to do so (3:10–12), but were ultimately unable to fulfill all of the requirements (see Rom. 3:23). Still, they attempted to persuade the Galatians to be circumcised so that they could boast about having them as their followers.
- 6:14 As a representative believer, Paul spoke of himself as crucified with Christ (2:20). In that decisive act, “the flesh with its passions and desires” (5:24) was also crucified, as was the world with all of its continuing attractions (see 1 John 2:15–17).
- 6:15 To a Christian under the New Covenant, following the Abrahamic sign of circumcision (see Gen. 17:9–14) does not mean anything in terms of spirituality. What really matters is being a new creation in Christ (see 2 Cor. 5:17).
- 6:16 As many as recalls the wording of v. 12. Those who live according to the example of Christ and the new creation (vv. 14, 15) are in stark contrast with those desiring to make a good impression through circumcision and keeping the law (vv. 12, 13). The Israel of God probably refers to the remnant of believing Jews (see Rom. 11:1, 2, 7). They are Abraham's spiritual descendants (3:6–9) because they believe in God and rely on His grace.
- 6:17 Paul's physical body carried the hard evidence of his allegiance to the Lord Jesus, the marks of harsh persecution (see 2 Cor. 11:23–26) suffered for preaching the gospel. Paul's scars branded him as a slave for Christ (Rom. 1:1). Such marks far outweighed the “mark” of circumcision so valued by the false teachers in Galatia (vv. 12–15).
- 6:18 Paul ends his letter to the Galatians as he began it (see 1:3), highlighting the theme of his entire letter: that it is only by God's grace that we are saved.

Introduction

In Rome, Paul was in official custody. Although his movements were restricted, he continued to guide the early church and preach the gospel. The Romans could imprison Paul, but they could not imprison the spread of the Good News. Numerous local assemblies had sprouted up along the routes of Paul's three missionary journeys. The members of these churches were still proclaiming the gospel, not only by what they said, but also with their lives. Paul wrote the letter to the Ephesians to strengthen these congregations. He wanted them to understand the spiritual reality behind the numerous groups that gathered in houses all over the Mediterranean world, and he wanted them to encourage each other in the faith. They were the body of Christ.

Author and Date Paul identifies himself as the author of Ephesians at the beginning and in the middle of the letter (1:1; 3:1). Internal evidence supports Pauline authorship. The fact that the author describes himself as being imprisoned points to Paul, for Luke describes Paul as being under house arrest in Rome in Acts 28. The letter is similar in content to Colossians, suggesting that both letters were written during the same imprisonment in Rome, around A.D. 60. The vocabulary and thought of the letter are typical of Paul, with his characteristic emphasis on justification by faith (2:8). New uses of old words are merely examples of the apostle's genius and versatility. Finally, the early church fathers were unanimous in ascribing the letter of Ephesians to Paul.

Modern scholars have recognized the clear Pauline themes in the letter, but some have used this characteristic of the letter to prove an alternative theory about the authorship of Ephesians. These scholars contend that when the body of Pauline epistles was collected, someone else constructed Ephesians as an introduction to Paul's writings. However, this elaborate theory still has to surmount the convincing evidence for Paul's authorship of the letter.

Setting Ephesus was the capital of the Roman province of Asia (today part of Turkey). Located at the intersection of several major trade routes, Ephesus was a vital commercial center of the Roman Empire. It was the site of a famous temple for the fertility goddess Diana that was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. Most importantly, however, Ephesus figured prominently and dramatically in early church history, for Paul used the city as a center for his missionary work in that region.

Paul visited Ephesus briefly at the end of his second missionary journey. When he departed, he left behind Priscilla and Aquila to continue the ministry in that city (see Acts 18:18–21). On Paul's third missionary journey, he spent about three years in Ephesus. When the apostle's gospel message was rebuffed by the Jews in the Ephesian synagogue, Paul taught Scripture to both Jews and Greeks in the school of Tyrannus. Paul's ministry at Ephesus was marked by several Spirit-empowered miracles. As a result, the city became a center for evangelistic outreach to the rest of the province of Asia (see Acts 19:18–20). In fact, so many people in Ephesus turned to Christ and renounced their pagan ways that some craftsmen in the city started a riot because the gospel threatened their trade of making and selling idols.

In Acts 20:17–38 Paul warned the elders of the Ephesian church about “savage wolves” who would not spare the congregation. About four decades later, the Lord Jesus Himself dictated to the apostle John a letter to the same congregation (see Rev. 2:1–7). He commended the Ephesians for hearing Paul and not tolerating false teachers, but He exhorted them to recapture their first love for God.

Recipients There is much evidence that the Epistle to the Ephesians was originally a circular letter sent to several congregations in the province of Asia, where Ephesus was the capital. Some manuscripts lack “in Ephesus” in 1:1. Another clue that Ephesians is a circular letter is its lack of personal references. The phrases in 1:15 and 3:2 imply that Paul had only heard of the recipients of the letter but had never met them. This is especially noteworthy since Paul had spent three years ministering at Ephesus. It seems likely that the apostle would have mentioned at least some of the Ephesians by name in his letter. In addition to the lack of personal references, the content and teaching of the letter is itself very general. Paul refers to the church as the body of Christ as a whole, and not to a specific local church. If the letters to the Corinthians bristle with local congregational problems, Ephesians lacks such allusions entirely.

The idea that Ephesians is a circular letter is not unparalleled. In a way, all the New Testament epistles are circular in the sense that they eventually were circulated among many churches. While the question of destination is interesting, it does not strongly affect the meaning or the relevance of the letter. To a greater or lesser extent all the letters in the New Testament are for the general edification of the church.

Themes Ephesians, like so much of Paul’s writing, underscores the truth that salvation is by faith alone and not through works or human striving. The first half of the epistle (chs. 1–3) addresses the central doctrines of the Christian faith, while the second half of the letter (chs. 4–6) describes how those spiritual truths should be reflected in a Christian’s behavior. Some would divide the second half of the letter into two sections—first the Christian’s conduct and then spiritual conflict with the forces of evil. Such a division highlights the familiar passage describing the spiritual armor of a Christian.

The whole letter emphasizes the truth that all believers are united in Christ because the church is the one body of Christ. In the early chapters, Paul describes how God formed this new body from Jews and Gentiles with His Son as the Head. Through Jesus’ death, God reconciled sinful people to Himself. This reconciliation with God has its effects on earth. People who were normally divided, like the Jews and the Gentiles in the first century, were reconciled to each other through Christ. In Ephesians, Paul exhorted his readers to live out the spiritual truth of being joined together with Christ. Whether Jew or Gentile, they had to work together to make the unity of the church a reality. In the rest of his letter, Paul gives a number of practical ways for church members to unite against the forces of evil. Each individual has to do his or her part in order for the whole body to function properly. Each person has to display Christ's love, patience, humility, and gentleness as they use their gifts to build up the church. From parent to child, employer to employee, each person has a unique task in the body of Christ (5:22–33).

Christ in the Scriptures

The phrase “in Christ” (or its equivalent) appears about 35 times in the New Testament. Jesus is not a distant stone deity like the pagan goddess Diana; Jesus is alive and empowered as the Lord of all creation. He is seated at the right hand of God’s throne where He interacts with His followers on earth in a dynamic way. Jesus, says Paul, is “head over all things to the church, which is His body, the fullness of Him who fills all in all” (1:22, 23).

Paul’s point is that in Jesus we’ve been given hope (1:12) and made alive (2:5) in order to grow (2:21) and make a difference in this world by the way we live. “For by grace you have been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God. . . . For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand that we should walk in them” (2:8, 10).

The Roman province of Asia with its many splendid cities was one of the jewels on a belt of Roman lands encircling the Mediterranean.

Located on the most direct sea and land route to the eastern provinces of the empire, Ephesus was an emporium that had few equals anywhere in the world. Certainly no city in Asia was more famous or more populous. It ranked with Rome, Corinth, Antioch, and Alexandria among the foremost urban centers of the empire.

Situated on an inland harbor (now silted up), the city was connected by a narrow channel via the Cayster River with the Aegean Sea some three miles away. Ephesus boasted impressive civic monuments, including, most prominently, the temple of Artemis (Diana), one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. Coins of the city proudly displayed the slogan Neokoros, “temple-warden.”

Here in Ephesus Paul preached to large crowds of people. The silversmiths complained that he had influenced large numbers of people here in Ephesus and in practically the whole province of Asia (Acts 19:26). In one of the most dramatic events recorded in the NT, the apostle escaped a huge mob in the theater. This structure, located on the slope of Mount Pion at the end of the Arcadian Way, could seat 25,000 people.

Other places doubtless familiar to the apostle were the Commercial Agora, the Magnesian Gate, the Town Hall and Curetes Street.

^{3a}Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places in Christ,

⁴just as ^bHe chose us in Him ^cbefore the foundation of the world, that we should ^dbe holy and without blame before Him in love,

^{5e}having predestined us to ^fadoption as sons by Jesus Christ to Himself, ^gaccording to the good pleasure of His will,

⁶to the praise of the glory of His grace, ^hby which He ¹made us accepted in ⁱthe Beloved.

^{7j}In Him we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to ^kthe riches of His grace

⁸which He made to abound toward us in all wisdom and ²prudence,

^{9l}having made known to us the mystery of His will, according to His good pleasure ^mwhich He purposed in Himself, ¹⁰that in the dispensation of ⁿthe fullness of the times ^oHe might gather together in one ^pall things in Christ, ³both which are in heaven and which are on earth—in Him.

^{11q}In Him also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestined according to ^rthe purpose of Him who works all things according to the counsel of His will, Word Studies: purpose

^{12s}that we ^twho first trusted in Christ should be to the praise of His glory.

¹³In Him you also trusted, after you heard ^uthe word of truth, the gospel of your salvation; in whom also, having believed, ^vyou were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, ^{14w}who ⁴is the ⁵guarantee of our inheritance ^xuntil the redemption of ^ythe purchased possession, ^zto the praise of His glory.

Prayer for Spiritual Wisdom

¹⁵Therefore I also, ^aafter I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for all the saints,

^{16b}do not cease to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers:

¹⁷that ^cthe God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, ^dmay give to you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him,

^{18e}the eyes of your ⁶understanding being enlightened; that you may know what is ^fthe hope of His calling, what are the riches of the glory of His inheritance in the saints,

¹⁹and what is the exceeding greatness of His power toward us who believe, ^gaccording to the working of His mighty power

²⁰which He worked in Christ when ^hHe raised Him from the dead and ⁱseated Him at His right hand in the heavenly places, ^{21j}far above all ^kprincipality⁷ and ⁸power and ⁹might and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this age but also in that which is to come.

²²And ^lHe put all things under His feet, and gave Him ^m*to be* head over all things to the church, ²³ⁿwhich is His body, ^othe fullness of Him ^pwho fills all in all.

Ephesians 2

By Grace Through Faith

¹And ^ayou He made alive, ^bwho were dead in trespasses and sins,

^{2c}in which you once walked according to the ¹course of this world, according to ^dthe prince of the power of the air, the spirit who now works in ^ethe sons of disobedience, ^{3f}among whom also we all once conducted ourselves in ^gthe lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind, and ^hwere by nature children of wrath, just as the others.

⁴But God, ⁱwho is rich in mercy, because of His ^jgreat love with which He loved us,

^{5k}even when we were dead in trespasses, ^lmade us alive together with Christ (by grace you have been saved),

⁶and raised us up together, and made us sit together ^min the heavenly places in Christ Jesus, ⁷that in the ages to come He might show the exceeding riches of His grace in ⁿ*His* kindness toward us in Christ Jesus.

^{8o}For by grace you have been saved ^pthrough faith, and that not of yourselves; ^q*it is* the gift of God, ⁹not of ^rworks, lest anyone should ^sboast.

¹⁰For we are ^tHis workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand that we should walk in them. Word Studies:

Brought Near by His Blood

¹¹Therefore remember that you, once Gentiles in the flesh—who are called Uncircumcision by what is called ^uthe Circumcision made in the flesh by hands—

¹²that at that time you were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world.

¹³But now in Christ Jesus you who once were far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ.

Christ Our Peace

¹⁴For He Himself is our peace, who has made both one, and has broken down the middle wall of separation,

¹⁵having abolished in His flesh the enmity, that is, the law of commandments contained in ordinances, so as to create in Himself one ^vnew man from the two, thus making peace, ¹⁶and that He might ^wreconcile them both to God in one body through the cross, thereby ^xputting to death the enmity.

¹⁷And He came and preached peace to you who were afar off and to those who were near.

¹⁸For ^ythrough Him we both have access ^zby one Spirit to the Father.

Christ Our Cornerstone

¹⁹Now, therefore, you are no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and members of the household of God,

²⁰having been ^abuilt ^bon the foundation of the ^capostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being ^dthe chief cornerstone,

²¹in whom the whole building, being fitted together, grows into ^ea holy temple in the Lord, ²²in whom you also are being built together for a ^gdwelling place of God in the Spirit.

Ephesians 3

The Mystery Revealed

¹For this reason I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for you Gentiles—

²if indeed you have heard of the ¹dispensation of the grace of God ^awhich was given to me for you, Word Studies: stewardship

^{3b}how that by revelation ^cHe made known to me the mystery (as I have briefly written already, ⁴by which, when you read, you may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ),

⁵which in other ages was not made known to the sons of men, as it has now been revealed by the Spirit to His holy apostles and prophets:

⁶that the Gentiles ^dshould be fellow heirs, of the same body, and partakers of His promise in Christ through the gospel, ^{7e}of which I became a minister ^faccording to the gift of the grace of God given to me by ^gthe effective working of His power.

Purpose of the Mystery

⁸To me, ^hwho am less than the least of all the saints, this grace was given, that I should preach among the Gentiles ⁱthe unsearchable riches of Christ,

⁹and to make all see what is the ²fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the ages has been hidden in God who ^jcreated all things ³through Jesus Christ;

^{10k}to the intent that now ^lthe ⁴manifold wisdom of God might be made known by the church ^mto the ⁵principalities and powers in the heavenly places,

¹¹ⁿaccording to the eternal purpose which He accomplished in Christ Jesus our Lord, ¹²in whom we have boldness and access ^owith confidence through faith in Him.

^{13p}Therefore I ask that you do not lose heart at my tribulations for you, ^qwhich is your glory.

Appreciation of the Mystery

¹⁴For this reason I bow my knees to the ^rFather ⁶of our Lord Jesus Christ, ¹⁵from whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named,
¹⁶that He would grant you, ^saccording to the riches of His glory, ^tto be strengthened with might through His Spirit in ^uthe inner man,
^{17v}that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith; that you, ^wbeing rooted and grounded in love,
^{18x}may be able to comprehend with all the saints ^ywhat is the width and length and depth and height—
¹⁹to know the love of Christ which passes knowledge; that you may be filled ^zwith all the fullness of God.
²⁰Now ^ato Him who is able to do exceedingly abundantly ^babove all that we ask or think, ^caccording to the power that works in us, ^{21d}to Him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus to all generations, forever and ever. Amen.

Ephesians 4

Walk in Unity

¹I, therefore, the prisoner ¹of the Lord, ²beseech you to ^awalk worthy of the calling with which you were called,

²with all lowliness and gentleness, with longsuffering, bearing with one another in love, ³endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit ^bin the bond of peace.

^{4c}There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called in one hope of your calling;

^{5d}one Lord, ^eone faith, ^fone baptism; Article: Baptism

^{6g}one God and Father of all, who is above all, and ^hthrough all, and in ³you all. Article: The Trinity in the Bible

Spiritual Gifts

⁷But ⁱto each one of us grace was given according to the measure of Christ's gift.

⁸Therefore He says:

^j*“When He ascended on high,
He led captivity captive,
And gave gifts to men.”*

^{9k}(Now this, “He ascended”—what does it mean but that He also ⁴first descended into the lower parts of the earth?

¹⁰He who descended is also the One ^lwho ascended far above all the heavens, ^mthat He might fill all things.)

¹¹And He Himself gave some to be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers,

¹²for the equipping of the saints for the work of ministry, ⁿfor the ⁵edifying of ^othe body of Christ,

¹³till we all come to the unity of the faith ^pand of the knowledge of the Son of God, to ^qa perfect man, to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ;

¹⁴that we should no longer be ^rchildren, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the trickery of men, in the cunning craftiness of ^sdeceitful plotting,

¹⁵but, speaking the truth in love, may grow up in all things into Him who is the ^thead—Christ—

^{16u}from whom the whole body, joined and knit together by what every joint supplies, according to the effective working by which every part does its share, causes growth of the body for the edifying of itself in love.

The New Man

¹⁷This I say, therefore, and testify in the Lord, that you should ^vno longer walk as ⁶the rest of the Gentiles walk, in the futility of their mind,

¹⁸having their understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, because of the ignorance that is in them, because of the ^wblindness of their heart;

^{19x}who, being past feeling, ^yhave given themselves over to lewdness, to work all uncleanness with greediness.

²⁰But you have not so learned Christ,

²¹if indeed you have heard Him and have been taught by Him, as the truth is in Jesus:

²²that you ^zput off, concerning your former conduct, the old man which grows corrupt according to the deceitful lusts,

²³and ^abe renewed in the spirit of your mind,

²⁴and that you ^bput on the new man which was created according to God, in true righteousness and holiness. Word Studies: new man

Do Not Grieve the Spirit

²⁵Therefore, putting away lying, ^c“Let each one of you speak truth with his neighbor,” for ^dwe are members of one another.

^{26e}“Be angry, and do not sin”: do not let the sun go down on your wrath, ^{27f}nor give ⁷place to the devil.

²⁸Let him who stole steal no longer, but rather ^glet him labor, working with his hands what is good, that he may have something ^hto give him who has need.

²⁹ⁱLet no corrupt word proceed out of your mouth, but ^jwhat is good for necessary ⁸edification, ^kthat it may impart grace to the hearers.

³⁰And ^ldo not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption.

^{31m}Let all bitterness, wrath, anger, ⁹clamor, and ⁿevil speaking be put away from you, ^owith all malice.

³²And ^pbe kind to one another, tenderhearted, ^qforgiving one another, even as God in Christ forgave you.

Ephesians 5

Walk in Love

¹Therefore^a be imitators of God as dear ^bchildren.

²And ^cwalk in love, ^das Christ also has loved us and given Himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God ^efor a sweet-smelling aroma.

³But fornication and all ^funcleanness or ^gcovetousness, let it not even be named among you, as is fitting for saints;

^{4h}neither filthiness, nor ⁱfoolish talking, nor coarse jesting, ^jwhich are not fitting, but rather ^kgiving of thanks.

⁵For ¹this you know, that no fornicator, unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, has any ^linheritance in the kingdom of Christ and God.

⁶Let no one deceive you with empty words, for because of these things the wrath of God comes upon the sons of disobedience.

⁷Therefore do not be ^mpartakers with them.

Walk in Light

⁸For you were once darkness, but now you are ⁿlight in the Lord. Walk as children of light Charts and Diagrams: The Blessings and the Responsibilities of Believers

⁹(for ^othe fruit of the ²Spirit is in all goodness, righteousness, and truth),

^{10p}finding out what is acceptable to the Lord.

¹¹And have ^qno fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather ³expose them. Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Temple of Diana

^{12r}For it is shameful even to speak of those things which are done by them in secret.

¹³But ^sall things that are ⁴exposed are made manifest by the light, for whatever makes manifest is light.

¹⁴Therefore He says:

“Awake, you who sleep,
Arise from the dead,
And Christ will give you light.”

Walk in Wisdom

- ^{15u}See then that you walk ⁵circumspectly, not as fools but as wise, ^{16v}redeeming the time, ^wbecause the days are evil.
^{17x}Therefore do not be unwise, but ^yunderstand ^zwhat the will of the Lord is.
¹⁸And ^ado not be drunk with wine, in which is dissipation; but be filled with the Spirit,
¹⁹speaking to one another ^bin psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making ^cmelody in your heart to the Lord,
^{20d}giving thanks always for all things to God the Father ^ein the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, ^{21f}submitting to one another in the fear of ⁶God.

Marriage—Christ and the Church

(cf. Col. 3:18, 19)

- ²²Wives, ^gsubmit to your own husbands, as to the Lord.
²³For ^hthe husband is head of the wife, as also ⁱChrist is head of the church; and He is the Savior of the body.
²⁴Therefore, just as the church is subject to Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands ^jin everything.
^{25k}Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ also loved the church and ^lgave Himself for her,
²⁶that He might ⁷sanctify and cleanse her ^mwith the washing of water ⁿby the word,
^{27o}that He might present her to Himself a glorious church, ^pnot having spot or wrinkle or any such thing, but that she should be holy and without blemish.
²⁸So husbands ought to love their own wives as their own bodies; he who loves his wife loves himself.
²⁹For no one ever hated his own flesh, but nourishes and cherishes it, just as the Lord does the church.
³⁰For ^qwe are members of His body, ⁸of His flesh and of His bones.
^{31r}“For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the ^stwo shall become one flesh.”
³²This is a great mystery, but I speak concerning Christ and the church.

³³Nevertheless ¶let each one of you in particular so love his own wife as himself, and let the wife see that she ¶respects her husband.

Ephesians 6

Children and Parents

(Ex. 20:12; Deut. 5:16)

¹Children, ^aobey your parents in the Lord, for this is right.

^{2b}“Honor your father and mother,” which is the first commandment with promise:

³*“that it may be well with you and you may live long on the earth.”*

⁴And ^cyou, fathers, do not provoke your children to wrath, but ^dbring them up in the training and admonition of the Lord.

Bondservants and Masters

^{5e}Bondservants, be obedient to those who are your masters according to the flesh, ^fwith fear and trembling, ^gin sincerity of heart, as to Christ;

^{6h}not with eyeservice, as men-pleasers, but as bondservants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart,

⁷with goodwill doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men, ⁸ⁱknowing that whatever good anyone does, he will receive the same from the Lord, whether he is a slave or free.

⁹And you, masters, do the same things to them, giving up threatening, knowing that ¹your own ^jMaster also is in heaven, and ^kthere is no partiality with Him.

The Whole Armor of God

¹⁰Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.

¹¹Put on the whole armor of God, that you may be able to stand against the ²wiles of the devil.

¹²For we do not wrestle against flesh and blood, but against ^mprincipalities, against powers, against ⁿthe rulers of ³the darkness of this age, against spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places.

¹³Therefore take up the whole armor of God, that you may be able to withstand ^pin the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

¹⁴Stand therefore, ^qhaving girded your waist with truth, ^rhaving put on the breastplate of righteousness,

¹⁵^sand having shod your feet with the preparation of the gospel of peace;

¹⁶above all, taking ^tthe shield of faith with which you will be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one.

¹⁷And ^utake the helmet of salvation, and ^vthe sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God;

¹⁸^wpraying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, ^xbeing watchful to this end with all perseverance and ^ysupplication for all the saints

¹⁹and for me, that utterance may be given to me, ^zthat I may open my mouth boldly to make known the mystery of the gospel,

²⁰for which ^aI am an ambassador in chains; that in it I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.

A Gracious Greeting

²¹But that you also may know my affairs and how I am doing, ^bTychicus, a beloved brother and ^cfaithful minister in the Lord, will make all things known to you;

²²^dwhom I have sent to you for this very purpose, that you may know our affairs, and that he may ^ecomfort your hearts.

²³Peace to the brethren, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

²⁴Grace be with all those who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. Amen.

Annotations for Ephesians

1:1, 2 The salutations in NT epistles follow the form of the typical first-century letter: the writer is mentioned first and the recipient next, followed by a blessing or best wishes for good health. The difference lies in the content of the blessing: pagan letters mentioned non-existent gods and goddesses such as Diana or Apollo; the apostles call upon the one true God and His Son Jesus Christ to bless their readers. In Ephesians, Paul refers to himself as an apostle because he was personally commissioned by Jesus Christ with special authority to preach the gospel. Saints in the NT refers to all believers set apart by God in Christ. Ephesus: This letter may have been a circular letter for the churches around Ephesus. (See Introduction.)

Bible Times & Culture Notes

The City of Ephesus

Ephesus was a major city of Asia between the Croessus mountain range and the Aegean Sea, seated at the mouth of the Cayster River in Paul's day. (Today the site of the ancient city is six miles inland, due to river silting.) First-century population is estimated to have been around 300,000, making it one of the larger cities of the Roman Empire. The city was extraordinarily prosperous as a commercial center, provincial capital, and port city in the eastern Roman Empire. It boasted numerous monuments, theaters, and temples. In fact, the city was an international tourist destination, so profitable that its leaders opened the first world bank. The city was a frequent stop for Paul, who stayed almost three years and helped establish a church. He may have been jailed there, and probably wrote some of his letters from there.

- 1:3–12 Right at the beginning of the letter, Paul bursts out in praise for the God who chose Him before the foundation of the world.
- 1:3 The blessings of Christianity are largely spiritual. God does not guarantee health, wealth, and prosperity to the NT believer. The phrase in the heavenly places suggests that a Christian living anywhere in the world is even now in a spiritual sense seated with Christ on high.
- 1:4, 5 Love here is agape in Greek, the love that is by choice or one's will, not just a sentimental feeling. having predestined us: Predestination is not a cold-hearted determinism or set fate, but rather a loving choice on God's part.
- 1:6 The Beloved may also be translated "the One He Loves," namely, Jesus Christ. In Col. 1:13 Paul uses the similar title "the Son of His love." The Beloved is a messianic title, referring to God's Son. Jesus is not simply one among others who are loved by God. He is the Beloved Son.
- 1:7 redemption: The word means "buy back" or "ransom." In ancient times, one could buy back a person who was sold into slavery. In the same way, Christ through His death bought us from our slavery to sin. His blood: The blood of Christ is the means by which our redemption comes. The OT and the New both clearly teach that there is no forgiveness without the shedding of blood. Blood here is a vivid symbolic equivalent of death. It recalls the sacrificial system of the old covenant, which looked forward to the self-sacrifice of Jesus Christ that took away the sin of the world.
- 1:9 The mystery is not a puzzle to solve, or knowledge only for the few and the initiated, as in the mystery religions of Paul's day. In Paul's usage, the word mystery refers to an aspect of God's will that was once hidden or obscure, but now was being revealed by God (Rom. 11:25).
- 1:10 The word translated dispensation means "house rule." The English word economy is derived from this Greek word. The word refers to God's administration or arrangement of all history to fulfill His plan of salvation. While God never changes, His plan for the salvation of humanity has distinct phases. In this context, dispensation probably refers to the time when God will establish His eternal kingdom.

will

(Gk. thelēma) (1:1, 9, 11; 2:3; 5:17; Rom. 1:10; 1 Cor. 1:1) Strong's #2307

Three key words, all related conceptually, appear in this verse. One of these words (thelēma) has been used by Paul twice before in this chapter (1:1, 9). The word conveys the idea of desire, even a heart's desire, for the word primarily expresses emotion instead of volition. Thus God's will is not so much God's intention, as it is His heart's desire. The word prothesis denotes an intention or a plan; it literally means "a laying out beforehand" like a blueprint. This plan was created in God's counsel, a translation of the Greek word boulē, which means the result of deliberate determination. But behind the plan and the counsel was not just a mastermind but a heart of love.

Go to the List of Word Studies

1:13 The seal or mark of ownership in believers' lives is the Holy Spirit.

1:14 The guarantee of our inheritance is the Holy Spirit Himself. Interestingly, the Greek word for guarantee can also be used to indicate an engagement ring. As Christ is the Bridegroom and the church is the bride, so the Holy Spirit is the down payment, the earnest money, in the long-awaited marriage of the two (see Rev. 19:7, 8). purchased possession: The OT described the nation of Israel as God's special treasure, one He had purchased by His mighty acts of deliverance during the Exodus (Ex. 19:5; Deut. 7:6). Here Paul describes Christians as the Lord's own possession, one bought with the blood of His own Son.

1:18, 19 The eyes of your understanding refers to spiritual understanding. To describe this, Paul uses words that picture the heart looking out with eyes that have been brightened with divine illumination. what is the hope: A Christian may hope many things, but there is one hope that all Christians have in common (4:4), the Lord Jesus Christ (see. Col. 1:5, 27). In Him we find true hope and true riches.

1:20 worked in Christ: The resurrection of Christ from the dead was the expression of God's power. The Resurrection is also proof of what God can do in us and for us. seated Him: Christ Jesus was not only raised from the dead, He was given a position at the right hand of God. Jesus received this position as the Son of David in fulfillment of the messianic prophecies of Ps. 2; 110. Jesus Christ will remain at the Father's right hand until the enemies of God have been subjugated and it is time for Christ to return.

1:21 The Jews of Christ's time understood the end times to be divided into two time periods, the age in which they were living and the coming age. The Messiah, called "the Coming One," would rule in the age which is to come.

1:22, 23 In Ephesians Paul emphasizes Christ as head, just as his letter to the Colossians, written during the same imprisonment, emphasizes the body of Christ. The church here does not refer to any one local assembly but to all believers.

2:1 Dead in trespasses and sins means spiritually dead and lost.

2:2 you once walked: Walking is a biblical expression that pictures a believer's steady, normal progress with God (see Ps. 1:1). Paul here refers to a believer's old walk. Whether it was a path of moral carelessness or the dark alley of evil, believers should no longer walk according to their past evil ways (4:17). Believers are saved so that they can have a lifestyle characterized by good works

(v. 10). They are to walk worthy of their calling (4:1), which means to walk in love (5:2), in light (5:8), and in wisdom (5:15). Paul points out to the Ephesians that they formerly walked according to the world's ways and after the prince of the power of the air—namely, the adversarial spirit Satan. Sons of is a Hebrew way of saying “those characterized by.” Thus the sons of disobedience are people who disobey, whether Christians or non-Christians (see Matt. 16:23; Luke 22:31, 32; Acts 5:3).

2:3 Lusts means “strong desires.” Even with the modifier of our flesh, this word pertains to more than merely sensual cravings. The natural human desires for fame, power, and riches are meant as well (see Gal. 5:19–21).

2:4–7 we were dead: Because of Adam's sin, the entire human race is spiritually dead. Only God can grant new life and save us from this predicament. Out of His mercy, God gave His Son for us while we were yet His enemies. He loved us long before we loved Him (see 1 John 4:9, 10). In addition to making us spiritually alive, He determined that we would sit in heavenly places with our Savior, Jesus Christ. in the ages to come: God desires to demonstrate His kindness throughout eternity through Christ Jesus His Son. This has nothing to do with our own merit. It is only because He is merciful and kind that He reaches out to save us.

2:8–10 Christians have been saved by grace. The grace of God is the source of salvation; faith is the channel, not the cause. God alone saves. Salvation never originates in the efforts of people; it always arises out of the lovingkindness of God. Truly, “salvation is of the LORD” (Jon. 2:9). The past tense of the verb saved in this passage indicates that the believer's salvation has already occurred in the past, at the Cross. the gift of God: We cannot do anything to earn our salvation. Some suggest that the gift of God modifies the word faith in this verse. Thus Paul is saying that even our belief in God does not originate in ourselves. This too is a gift.

Word Studies

workmanship

(Gk. poiēma) (2:10; Rom. 1:20) Strong's #4161

The word literally means “a thing made”; it comes into English as poem. The word indicates a handiwork, a masterpiece. God’s church is His “poem,” His masterpiece, His workmanship, just as all creation is (Ps. 19:1; Rom. 1:20). As He is the Author of His handiwork, He should get all the credit (see Ps. 19:1–6).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 2:11 Because the sign of the Abrahamic covenant was circumcision, the Jews proudly referred to themselves as the Circumcision. Somewhat less kindly, they called Gentiles the Uncircumcision.
- 2:12, 13 Paul painted vividly the bleak condition of pagans. They had no hope, for God had not reached out to them to establish a covenant relationship. However, the shed blood of Christ could bring the Gentiles back to their Creator.
- 2:14 The middle wall of separation between Jews and Gentiles was vividly portrayed by an actual partition in the temple area, with a sign warning that any Gentile going beyond the Court of the Gentiles would receive swift and sudden death.
- 2:15 having abolished . . . the law: Paul was not saying that God had rejected the righteous standards of the law. Rather, in Christ the righteous standards that people could never reach have been accomplished. He is our righteousness; in Him, believers fulfill the law (see Matt. 5:17, 20; Rom. 3:21, 22, 31). The Christian church, composed of both Jews and Gentiles, is described as one new man. In the earliest days of Christianity, the church was largely made up of Jews. But under the direction of God’s Spirit, the believers witnessed to Gentiles (Acts 10), who then outnumbered the Jewish members.
- 2:20 The apostles and prophets were the foundation of the church because they pointed to and witnessed to Jesus. The early church was established on their teaching and preaching (see Acts 2). Yet Christ Himself is the rock foundation on which the whole church rests (see 1 Cor. 3:11). The cornerstone was the first large stone placed at the corner of a building. The builders would line up the rest of the structure to the chief cornerstone (see also 1 Pet. 2:1–9).
- 2:21 Being fitted together pictures the process in Roman construction whereby laborers (usually slaves) would turn huge rocks around until they fit each other perfectly. For example, columns appeared to be one piece, but were actually separate cylinders of stone resting on each other. In similar fashion, God fits believers together into the holy temple He is building for Himself.
- 3:1 For this reason: Paul deviates from the main purpose of his letter to remind his readers of his own past and of his special ministry to them. The digression in vv. 1–13 serves as a reminder that Paul was writing a letter, not a book of systematic theology.
- 3:2–4 The dispensation (stewardship) that God gave Paul for the benefit of the Ephesians had previously been a mystery. Now God was revealing this mystery more fully in Paul’s ministry to the Gentiles. The mystery was that Jews and Gentiles were to have an equal status in the church, the body of Christ.

stewardship

(Gk. oikonomia) (1:10; 3:2; 1 Cor. 9:17; 1 Tim. 1:4) Strong's #3622

The word means “household management.” In ancient times, the word was often used to describe the work of a person who took care of all the financial affairs of a large household or business (see Luke 16:1, 2). Paul was entrusted with the stewardship of God's economy, to dispense the riches of Christ to God's household and to preach the Good News (3:2–11). Paul uses this same word to describe God's own administration or government of time (see 1:10).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 3:5, 6 People who lived in the other ages, before Pentecost, had a great deal of knowledge about God and His grace, as the OT demonstrates. However, that knowledge was not as all-embracing as the revelation that we receive in Christ Jesus. The OT predicted that God's grace would come to the Gentiles (Gen. 12:3), but equality with the Jews in one body was a secret never before revealed.
- 3:7 The word translated minister here means “servant.”
- 3:8 Paul was not expressing false humility when he called himself less than the least of all the saints. He was truly humble because he previously had persecuted Christ's church. In another place Paul refers to himself as the chief of sinners (see 1 Tim. 1:15).
- 3:9 Paul's mission as an apostle was to enlighten all people about the mystery of God's grace in Christ, which was not understood in previous times but which had become clear with the coming of Jesus Christ.
- 3:10 God's manifold wisdom is to be displayed to the angelic beings by the members of the church. God's ways are not only “mysterious,” but also varied. Angels are also learning about God's wisdom as they watch His grace working in us (see 1 Cor. 11:10).
- 3:14, 15 Father and family are related words in the original text. All families of men and angels derive from God the Father, their Creator.
- 3:17 Dwell suggests settling in at home. Christ resides in a believer's heart.
- 3:19 The love of Christ is so great that it is beyond our understanding. The fullness of God is the abundance of gifts that flows from God.
- 3:20, 21 These two verses form a doxology, or praise, to God in which Paul points out that God can do exceedingly abundantly above anything we may ask. Neither God's love nor His power is limited by human imagination.
- 4:1 The second half of Ephesians, like that of a number of Paul's epistles, emphasizes the behavior that should result from the doctrines or beliefs taught in the first half. Note that the Christian life is not compared here to running or standing still, but to a walk. walk worthy: A believer's life should match the excellency of Christ's calling.
- 4:2 lowliness and gentleness, with longsuffering: These are the attitudes that Jesus demonstrated when He was on earth (Phil. 2:5–8). These attitudes do not come naturally, but must be cultivated by the determination to place others above ourselves. Only the Spirit can empower us to treat people this way consistently. Bearing is close to our expression “putting up with”; however, Paul's use of the term has positive connotations. It describes being patient with the shortcomings of others. Often we ask God to be patient with our own failings, and yet do not exercise the same type of patience ourselves.

4:3 unity of the Spirit: All Christians are one in the Spirit. It is our duty to keep or observe that unity, recognize it as real, and act upon it without a sectarian spirit (see John 17:20–26). Endeavoring means to make every effort, to work hard at maintaining the unity of the Spirit.

4:5 One baptism may refer to the baptism in the Spirit that places all believers into the body of Christ, the church (see 1 Cor. 12:13). It may also refer to water baptism, the sign or seal that a person is a member of the body of Christ. At the time of the early church, public baptism clearly identified a person as a Christian.

Baptism

It is well known that ablution or bathing was common in most ancient nations as a preparation for prayers and sacrifice or as expiatory of sin. In warm countries this connection is probably even closer than in colder climates; and hence the frequency of ablution in the religious rites throughout the East. Jews baptized their Gentile converts, some Jewish sects practiced baptism as a symbol of purification, and John the Baptist made baptism an important part of his ministry. The New Testament does not say whether Jesus regularly baptized His converts, but on at least one occasion before John's imprisonment He was found baptizing. (It may, however, have been John's baptism that He was administering.) At any rate, the early Christians were baptized in Jesus' name following Jesus' example (compare Mark 1:10; Gal. 3:27).

It appears that the early Christians interpreted the meaning of baptism in various ways—as a symbol of a person's death to sin (Rom. 6:4; Gal. 2:12), of the cleansing from sin (Acts 22:16; Eph. 5:26), and of the new life in Christ (Acts 2:41; Rom. 6:3). Occasionally the entire family of a new convert would be baptized (compare Acts 11:16; 1 Cor. 1:16), which may have signified the person's desire to consecrate all that he had to Christ.

The command to baptize was linked with the command to preach the gospel. All nations were to be evangelized, and they were to be made disciples by baptism (Matt. 28:19). It appears to have been a kind of transition from the Jewish baptism to the Christian. The distinction between John's baptism and Christian baptism appears in the case of Apollos (Acts 18:26, 27) and of the disciples at Ephesus mentioned in Acts 19:1–6. We cannot but draw from this history the inference that in Christian baptism there was a deeper spiritual significance.

The Trinity in the Bible

The term trinity is not found in the Bible but is a theological word which expresses the clear teaching of Holy Scripture, especially the New Testament. The first theologian of the church to use the term was Theophilus who spoke of God as trias. The great Latin church father Tertullian first developed the concept of trinitas, one God in three persons. Though the fathers of the church in the second and third centuries spoke of the three persons of the Godhead while recognizing that there is but one God, the councils of Nicea (A.D. 325) and Constantinople (A.D. 381) gave the fullest expression to the biblical doctrine. Belief in one God in the ancient Mediterranean world was unique to the nation of Israel. The faith of Israel is given in the famous Shema: “Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one” (Deut. 6:4). Repeatedly the teaching of the Law and the pronouncements of God’s prophets confirm this absolute truth.

The church continued the teaching of the Hebrew Scriptures, as well as the teaching of the Lord Jesus Christ, that there is only one God (see 1 Cor. 8:6; Eph. 4:6; 1 Tim. 2:5). This it did in contrast to the rampant polytheism that permeated the Greco-Roman world with its multitude of gods, including worship of the emperor as a god during the latter half of the first century. As the apostles and later the church began to articulate this monotheism against pagan religion, it was necessary to explain how this belief in one God was consistent with the concurrent belief that the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are each God and yet still only one God.

Jesus is the Son of the Father. Jesus calls Himself the Son of God, and He also calls God His Father in a way that implies a profoundly unique association. Moreover, Jesus claims a relationship with God the Father as a partner from all eternity. At other times Jesus makes statements and does deeds that cause others to recognize His claim to equality with God. The specific charge of blasphemy made against Christ was His admission to being the Son of God (Luke 22:70). These texts identify the person Jesus, preexistent to the world, as being God and yet distinct from God the Father.

Like Jesus the Son, the Holy Spirit is also a divine Person. Before Christ left the earth to be with the Father, He promised a Comforter similar to but distinct from Himself. He and the Father come to the believer through this Person, the Holy Spirit.

God is called the Father of the Lord Jesus Christ as well as of Christians (Eph. 1:2; Phil. 1:2; 2 John 3). The apostle John specifically calls Jesus God (John 1:1, 18; 8:58). In several places Paul identifies Jesus as God (Rom. 9:5; Phil. 2:6; Titus 2:13), as does Peter (2 Pet. 1:1). The Holy Spirit is declared to be God by Peter (Acts 5:4) and is listed alongside the Father and the Son (Matt. 28:19; 2 Cor. 13:14).

Go to the List of Articles

- 4:7 Like Peter (see 1 Pet. 4:10), Paul taught that all Christians have a spiritual gift or gifts. The gifts are given sovereignly by the ascended Christ in order to build up the church (see 1 Cor. 12:11). Thus the body of Christ is to function like a machine in which every part is essential for getting a job done. But unlike a machine, the body of Christ should maintain itself and build every one of its members up so that they can do good works (see 1 Cor. 12:7).
- 4:8 Paul quotes Ps. 68:18 to picture the ascended Messiah, triumphant over Satan and his hosts, distributing spiritual gifts to His people. The faithful stewardship of our gifts on earth will determine our position of service in Christ's messianic reign.
- 4:9 Many people take this descent to refer to Christ's entering Hades (specifically the saved portion of that unseen world) after His crucifixion to take saints to heaven when He rose from the dead. On the other hand, lower parts of the earth may also be translated "lower parts, the earth," so as to refer to Christ's coming to our humble planet as a man. This is the more likely meaning here (see Phil. 2:5-8).
- 4:10 The One who humbled Himself as a lowly Servant is the same One who ascended far above all the heavens in universal supremacy (see Phil. 2:9-11; Col. 1:18).
- 4:11 Apostles, meaning "envoys," or "ambassadors," in its strict sense refers to those who saw Christ in resurrected form, performed miracles, and were specially chosen by Christ to tell others about Him from their eyewitness accounts. As such, there are no apostles today. Prophets delivered direct revelations from God before the NT was written (see 1 Cor. 14). They foretold God's actions in the future, and they proclaimed what God had already said in the Scriptures. Evangelists are gospel preachers who help bring people into the body of Christ. They do so by presenting Christ's offer of free salvation by grace through faith (2:8, 9). Since each of these categories is responsible for equipping believers, evangelists may also train other believers to share their faith effectively. Pastors do all for the church that a literal shepherd does for sheep: feeds, nurtures, cares for, and protects them from enemies. A shepherd's task is not to acquire sheep. teachers: While the Greek ties the two titles teachers and pastors closely together here, elsewhere they are listed separately (see Rom. 12:7; 1 Pet. 5:2).
- 4:12, 13 Three stages of growth are presented here: Gifted leaders are responsible for the equipping of the saints; the well-equipped saints do the work of ministry; and the result is that the body of Christ is built up. The final goal is maturity, truth, and love.
- 4:14 Children are gullible, vulnerable, and easily victimized. The church needs to work diligently at moving babes in Christ on to maturity (see 1 Pet. 2:2).
- 4:15 Speaking the truth in love suggests that all that believers say or do should be honest and true, and said or done in a loving manner.
- 4:16 Note the use of the body metaphor here to present the same truth as the building metaphor in 2:21. Every joint . . . every part is essential to full growth. There are no insignificant parts in the body (see 1 Cor. 12:14-27). Anything that builds up believers and the church can be said to be edifying.
- 4:18, 19 Those who are so insensitive to moral darkness as to be past feeling have been hardened by years of sin and debauchery.

4:22–24 Paul compared the Christian life to stripping off the dirty clothes of a sinful past and putting on the snowy white robes of Christ's righteousness.

new man

(Gk. kainos anthrōpos) (4:24; Col. 3:10) Strong's #2537; 444

This Greek word for new does not mean something more recent in time, but something having a different quality or nature. Thus the new man is the new humanity created in Christ, of which all believers partake, both individually and corporately. Since Paul has already spoken of the new man created in Christ in terms of a new unified corporate humanity (2:14, 15), the new man in this verse must also be thought of corporately (see Col. 3:9–11). In the immediate context, Paul is exhorting each believer to put on his or her new human nature.

- 4:25 Quoting Zech. 8:16, Paul calls for believers to speak the truth to each other, because all believers are united in Christ. The Proverbs identify a lying tongue as one of the six things God abhors (Prov. 6:17).
- 4:26 Paul uses Ps. 4:4 to illustrate that not all wrath is sinful. However, anger should not be allowed to fester or continue for long (Mark 11:25). Christians may respond in controlled anger to injustice and sin, but they should never be consumed by this anger. Instead they should seek opportunities to express Christ's love to everyone.
- 4:28 something to give him who has need: Instead of taking what belongs to someone else, a Christian should earn enough to share some of his or her own earnings with the needy. This is not merely a call to stop stealing or being greedy. Rather, this is a call to be generous, to have a true change of attitude.
- 4:29 Standards of speech for Christians are extremely high: no corrupt word is permitted.
- 4:30 The Holy Spirit of God should never be pushed away, ignored, or rejected. If we would remember that the One who lives in us is God's own Spirit, we would be much more selective about what we think, read, watch, say, and do. Note that Paul acknowledges that evil thoughts and actions are temptations even for those who are sealed by the Holy Spirit.
- 5:1 Believers are to follow the example of God's actions. He loved us when we were still His enemies. As imitators, believers should demonstrate that type of self-sacrificial love.
- 5:3 Ephesus, with its pagan temple dedicated to the Roman goddess Diana (see Acts 19:23–31), was similar to our society in that sexual immorality and greed ran rampant. Paul warned the believers in Ephesus to avoid these pitfalls.
- 5:8–10 The believer's position has changed from darkness (sin) to light (righteousness). Believers are to change their walk to correspond to their position in Christ (see Rom 12:2).

The Temple of Diana

Conspicuous at the head of the harbor of Ephesus was the great temple of Diana (Artemis), one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. The temple dated back to the seventh century B.C. The original temple burned on July 21, 356 B.C., the night Alexander the Great was born. When Alexander later conquered Asia Minor, he offered to rebuild the temple—which was done after his death, in 323 B.C. The temple was again destroyed by the Goths in A.D. 262, and was finally torn down by St. John Chrysostom in A.D. 401.

Diana was the goddess of fertility. Paul encountered her devotees on his visit to Ephesus (Acts 19:21–40) where he ran afoul of silversmiths who made big business of portable shrines which strangers purchased and devotees carried with them on journeys or set up in their houses.

- 5:12 in secret: This verse effectively bans Christians from indulging in the modern preoccupation with examining the lurid details of evils such as the occult and other perverted practices.
- 5:14 Awake, you who sleep: This may be a fragment of a first-century Christian hymn, or an original thought by Paul alluding to Is. 26:19, a promise of God’s coming salvation.
- 5:15 To walk circumspectly is to step gingerly. We should watch our path to avoid contact with undesirable influences.
- 5:16 Redeeming the time means taking advantage of opportunities for service. We each have a limited amount of time on this earth. Paul exhorts us to use as much of that time as possible for advancing Christ’s purposes in this world.
- 5:17 do not be unwise, but understand: Discerning the will of the Lord is not a matter of feeling or emotion, but of mental understanding, applying our minds to Scripture.
- 5:18 Just as a person who is drunk with wine is under the control of alcohol, so a Spirit-filled believer is controlled by the Spirit. filled: Filling is a step beyond the sealing of the Holy Spirit (1:13). Sealing is an action God took at the point of our new birth. The tense of the Greek word translated filled indicates that filling is a moment-by-moment, repeatable action. It is something Paul commands the believers at Ephesus to do. In other words, not all Christians are Spirit-filled, but all have been sealed (4:30).
- 5:19 One of the natural outcomes of being filled with the Spirit is singing and making melody to God. Some take the three types of music that Paul mentions in this verse to refer to different parts of the Book of Psalms. Most believe that these words refer to three larger categories: (1) the 150 psalms in the Psalter, plus other psalmlike poems throughout the Scripture; (2) hymns, compositions addressed directly to God, like the modern song “How Great Thou Art”; (3) spiritual songs, hymns about the Christian experience, like “Amazing Grace.”
- 5:21, 22 Verse 21 completes the thought of the previous verses (vv. 18–20), which address how being filled with the Spirit manifests itself in the believer’s life. It also introduces the next section (5:22–6:4), about how members of a Christian family should relate to each other. submitting: The Greek word for submitting does not refer to being under the absolute control of another but to voluntarily placing oneself under the authority of another.

- 5:22–24 Just as Christ is not inferior to the Father, but is the second Person in the Trinity, so wives are equal to their own husbands. Yet in a marriage relationship, a husband and wife have different roles. to the Lord: A wife's voluntary submission arises out of her own submission to Christ.
- 5:25 Husbands, love: Paul does not emphasize the husband's authority; instead, he calls on husbands to love self-sacrificially. Husbands are to emulate Christ's love, the kind of love that is willing to lay down one's life for another person and serve that person even if it means suffering.
- 5:26, 27 In these verses, Paul briefly outlines what Jesus has done for the church. First of all, He loved the church so much that He was willing to suffer and die for it. His actions not only saved the church, they also sanctified it. In other words, Jesus wanted to develop the church into what it should be, the holy temple of God.
- 5:29 A husband who realizes that his wife is truly his own flesh will treat her with love and care.
- 5:31 the two shall become one flesh: Paul quotes Gen. 2:24, which teaches that the special union between husband and wife supersedes the original family ties.
- 5:32 The mystery, a sacred secret revealed, is that Christian marriage parallels the union that exists spiritually between Christ and His bride, the church.
- 6:1–4 This paragraph has the beautiful balance we expect to find in God's Word: Children are to be obey their parents, and parents are to treat their children in such a way that the children will want to obey. Children must obey their parents for Christ's sake, even if their parents are not believers. This is supported by the only one of the Ten Commandments followed by a promise (see Deut. 5:16). Of course, Christian children should not do anything sinful even if their parents should command them to. In such a case, children must obey God rather than men (see Acts 5:29). do not provoke: Parents should not be unreasonably severe with children or ridicule them.
- 6:5 A very large percentage of the population of the Roman Empire was made up of bondservants or slaves. These people were considered mere property and could be abused and even killed by their masters with no resulting investigation by the state. In the church, wealthy slave owners and their slaves broke bread together at the Lord's Table as equals. No doubt some slaves were gifted spiritual leaders and ministered the word to people far above them on the social ladder.
- 6:6 not with eyeservice: Servants and employees should serve faithfully even when no one is looking. After all, God sees all that we do.
- 6:8 Receive the same refers to future rewards (see Col. 3:23–25).
- 6:9 Christian masters should not use threatening language to their servants but should remember that they too are servants of a much higher Master . . . in heaven, who is completely fair.
- 6:10–20 This practical passage is one of the most famous and richly rewarding in all of the NT. Paul probably had plenty of time to contemplate the parts of a Roman soldier's armor. After all, he was constantly guarded during his house arrest in Rome.
- 6:10 Be strong may also be translated "be made strong." The passive voice would suggest that we cannot do it ourselves.
- 6:11 The whole armor of God is the believer's protection against evil and the Evil One. Paul presented the extended metaphor of the battle dress roughly according to the order in which the various pieces were put on. Wiles of the devil are Satan's subtle tricks to defeat Christians in spiritual warfare (see 2 Cor. 11:3).
- 6:12 Our real battle is not with human cultists, false religionists, atheists, agnostics, and pseudo-Christians, but with the demonic beings working through them, of which even the flesh and blood opponents themselves are sometimes unaware.
- 6:13 The evil day is taken by some to refer to the end times when the Evil One will launch a ferocious campaign against Christ and His army. A more common view is that any great spiritual contest in a believer's life could be in view here.
- 6:14 Verses 14–17 present the six pieces of spiritual armor. Four are mentioned specifically and the belt and shoes are implied. Soldiers girded themselves with a belt, from which hung strips of leather to protect the lower body. Truth is considered crucial by Paul (4:15, 25), because a dishonest Christian cannot hope to withstand the father of lies himself. The truth referred to here is integrity, a life of practical truthfulness and honesty. The breastplate of Roman times went completely around the body, so that the back of a warrior was also protected. The breastplate was made of hard leather or metal. The righteousness that the breastplate represents is not the righteousness of Christ, which all believers possess, but the practical, righteous character and deeds of believers.

6:15 A Roman soldier's feet were shod with hard, studded shoes. Paul used this image to represent the preparation of the gospel of peace. This may mean either that the gospel is the firm foundation on which Christians are to stand or that the Christian soldier should be ready to go out to defend and spread the gospel.

6:16 Above all may mean that the shield is to be used against everything. It may also mean that the shield is to cover the whole armor. A Roman soldier's shield typically measured two and a half feet by four feet. The Christian's shield offers protection against all the fiery darts of the wicked one. Flaming arrows could not penetrate the fireproof shield of the ancient Roman soldier, nor can the assaults of Satan penetrate to the believer who places his or her faith in God.

6:17 the helmet of salvation: The intricately designed Roman helmet protected the soldier's head and also made him look taller and more impressive. The sword of the Spirit is the only offensive weapon in the believer's armor. This weapon is not necessarily the Bible as a whole, but the specific word that needs to be spoken in a specific situation. To have the precise word ready, a person must know the Bible intimately.

6:18 Without prayer, all the armor in the world would be of no use. praying always: General prayers and specific petitions in the Spirit are to be made for all believers and at all occasions. Perseverance and patience in prayer are essential.

6:19 The apostle Paul was not ashamed to ask other believers to pray that he would have the courage to proclaim the gospel. Even as a prisoner, Paul still wanted to be a faithful witness for the Lord.

6:20 Paul was an ambassador in chains in Rome for the gospel of Christ. His prayer was that he might speak boldly, as an ambassador for the King of kings ought to speak.

6:21–24 The last verses of Ephesians reveal Paul's appreciation of the ministry of others, especially the ministry of Tychicus (see Col. 4:7). The fact that this letter does not conclude with personal greetings as Paul's other letters do (see Rom. 16) may indicate that this was a circular letter, one intended for a number of churches around Ephesus. Sincerity may also be translated "without corruption."

Introduction

From beatings to imprisonment, Paul had endured much suffering for the cause of Christ. These trials had taught Paul to be content in all circumstances, an ability that Paul encouraged the Philippians to cultivate (4:11). In fact, his letter to the Philippians is a testimony to this attitude. Even though he was in prison, facing an uncertain future, Paul wrote this thank-you letter to the Philippians, a letter that expresses Paul's abundant joy in what God was accomplishing through them.

Author and Date Church tradition unanimously agrees with the statement in Philippians (1:1) that Paul wrote this letter. The events described in this letter parallel the life of Paul.

To determine when Paul wrote his letter to the Philippians requires identifying the location from which he wrote. He says that he was in prison (1:13). But to which imprisonment was Paul referring? The answer must be guided by three factors: evidence of Paul's imprisonment in a given city, whether the Praetorian Guard was in that city, and the distance of that city from Philippi, which has to allow for several trips between the two cities.

Some speculate that Paul was writing from Corinth, and therefore date the letter around A.D. 50. Proponents of this view typically refer to Acts 18:10, a passage in which the Lord indicates to Paul that He would protect him from harm in Corinth. However that passage does not explicitly speak about imprisonment.

Others point to the city of Ephesus (and hence a date of A.D. 53–55) on the basis of its proximity to Philippi and the definite possibility that the Praetorian Guard was stationed there. Once again, although several passages reveal that Paul experienced difficulties in Ephesus (Rom. 16:4, 7; 1 Cor. 15:32; 2 Cor. 1:8–23), there is no clear record that he was ever imprisoned there.

Still others advocate Caesarea as the location from which Paul wrote the letter (about A.D. 58–59). The Praetorian Guard may have been garrisoned at Caesarea, and the guard was at times considered to be part of Caesar's household (see Paul's statement in 4:22). However, Paul's expectation that he would soon be set free (1:19, 26; 2:24) does not fit the circumstances of this imprisonment. In Caesarea, release from prison was only a remote possibility. In fact, Paul had to appeal to Caesar in order to escape Jewish influence over the judicial process (Acts 25:6–11). Furthermore, Caesarea was far from Philippi. It is an improbable origin for Paul's short letter to the Philippians.

Most students have favored Rome (about A.D. 60–62) as the city from which Paul wrote this epistle. Although the distance between Rome and Philippi is great, Paul was in Rome long enough for messages to travel back and forth to that city. Furthermore, Paul's imprisonment in Rome is well established in Scripture (Acts 28:16–31). Because his situation allowed him freedom to preach the gospel (1:12, 13; Acts 28:23–31), he undoubtedly felt confident that his release from prison was imminent.

Setting While on his second missionary journey, and in response to a vision from God, Paul left Troas in the province of Asia (part of present-day Turkey) and traveled to Macedonia (in present-day Greece) to establish the first church in Europe, the church in the city of Philippi (Acts 16:6–12).

Named for Philip II of Macedon, the father of Alexander the Great, Philippi was strategically located on a major road, the Egnatian Way, that connected the eastern provinces of the Roman Empire to Rome. Thus Philippi became the leading city of Macedonia. In 42 B.C., the Romans granted Philippi the highest status possible for a provincial city, the status of a Roman colony. This meant that the citizens of Philippi could purchase, own, or transfer property. They also had the privilege of filing civil lawsuits in Roman courts and were exempted from paying both poll and land taxes. Their elevated status and wealth gave them not only confidence but a pride that bordered on arrogance.

The church that Paul established in Philippi was a mixture of races, cultures, and social classes (although mostly poor; see 4:15, 16) from its inception. The first converts were an upper-class woman (Lydia, a seller of royal dyes; see Acts 16:14, 15), a middle-class Roman jailer (Acts 16:22–34), and perhaps a lower-class young girl who had been demon-possessed (Acts 16:16–18). As the church grew, it maintained primarily a Gentile flavor, yet the less populous group of Jewish-Christians exerted much influence over the church.

Literary Structure Philippians closely follows the normal form of Paul's letters: (1) an identification of author and readers; (2) a pronouncement of God's grace and peace; (3) thanks offered to God because of the readers; (4) the body of the letter; (5) a personal desire to see the readers or to send someone to them; (6) greetings to the readers from those with Paul; and (7) a statement of blessing which serves as the conclusion of the letter. The only variation from this basic pattern is that Paul places the desire-to-send section (2:19–30) in the body of the letter. Paul does this in order to illustrate his point concerning humble service with the lives of Timothy and Epaphroditus.

Although the letter follows Paul's normal pattern, some have suggested that the letter is actually three letters combined into one. They do so on the basis of Paul's use of the Greek words for finally in 3:1 and 4:8. They argue that those words signal actual conclusions at those two points, thus indicating that Philippians is actually three different letters.

Yet the Greek words for finally can function as a transitional phrase (see 1 Thess. 4:1), in essence meaning "besides" or "furthermore." The strongest evidence for the unity of Philippians is a Greek manuscript from around A.D. 200 that includes all three sections of the letter (1:1—2:30; 3:1—4:7; 4:8—23). But whether Philippians is a unity or a compilation of several letters, it contains timeless truths from the pen of the apostle Paul.

Themes The most prominent theme of the Epistle to the Philippians is joy, specifically the joy of serving Jesus. The general tone of the letter reflects Paul's gratitude toward the Philippians and his joy in God. This may seem strange because Paul wrote this letter while he was in prison. Paul, however, had the ability to recognize opportunities for sharing the gospel even in apparent setbacks. This was the origin of Paul's joy: He saw God working through the difficult situations he faced.

Another theme of Paul's letter is "partnership in the gospel." Paul uses the Greek word koinonia in this letter in various ways: "fellowship" (1:5; 2:1; 3:10), "partakers" (1:7), and "shared" (4:15). All of these passages highlight the Philippians' active involvement in Paul's own ministry. By supporting Paul, the Philippians had become partners with him to further the Good News of Jesus Christ. Paul illustrates this concept of "partnering" or "fellowship" with the lives of Jesus Christ (2:5–11), Timothy (2:19–23), Epaphroditus (2:25–30), and Euodia and Syntyche (4:2, 3).

Since the Philippian Christians already possessed great joy and had demonstrated their partnership in sharing the gospel, Paul took the opportunity to identify a few weak areas that could be improved (4:2). For example, fellowship has two components: love and discernment. The Philippians had expressed the former but were lacking the latter (1:9; 4:10–16). Thus Paul exhorted the Philippians to grow in knowledge and discernment, words that in the Greek refer to a relational understanding (1:9). In other words, the Greek word for knowledge focuses on a person-to-God relationship, whereas the Greek word for discernment points to a person-to-person relationship. Paul wanted the Philippians not only to abound in love but also to experience more of God so that they could grow into a mature understanding of His ways.

All this shows that Paul had more than one purpose for his letter to the Philippians. Today's readers will continue to find wonderful passages of encouragement in this short, joyful letter. Situations such as bickering among church members, living in this evil world, giving to missionaries, and finding contentment are still current issues for today's Christians. In this letter, Paul provides God's wisdom and encouragement. But most importantly, he holds up Jesus' life as the model for believers.

Christ in the Scriptures

Paul picks up his pen and (as if brushing a canvas) paints several portraits of the Savior. In chapter 1 the apostle reveals that Christ's life cannot be distinguished from the lives of His followers. "For to me, to live is Christ" (1:21). In chapter 2 he frames a humble profile of Jesus by picturing Him as the model of true humility: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus" (2:5). Paul continues to paint. In chapter 3 he presents Jesus as the One who alone is capable of transforming our lowly bodies that they might be conformed to His glorious body (3:21).

But it is the ever-popular chapter 4 where Paul hangs his own self-portrait, extolling Jesus' power that has carried him through difficult circumstances over and over again. Along with Paul, we too can claim, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me" (4:13).

The Roman colony of Philippi (Colonia Augusta Julia Philippensis) was an important city in Macedonia, located on the main highway leading from the eastern provinces to Rome. This road, the Egnatian Way, ran along the north side of the city's forum and was the chief cause of its prosperity and political importance. Ten miles east on the coast was Neapolis, the place where Paul landed after sailing from Troas in response to the Macedonian vision.

As a prominent city of the gold-producing region of Macedonia, Philippi had a proud history. Named originally after Philip II, the father of Alexander the Great, the city was later honored with the names of Julius Caesar and Augustus. Many Italian settlers from the legions swelled the ranks of citizens and made Philippi vigorous and polyglot. It grew from a small settlement to a city of dignity and privilege. Among its highest honors was the ius Italicum, by which it enjoyed rights legally equivalent to those of Italian cities.

Ruins of the theater, the acropolis, the forum, the baths, and the commemorative arch (about a mile west of the city) have been found. A little farther beyond the arch at the Gangites River is the place where Paul addressed some God-fearing women and where Lydia was converted (Acts 16:13–15).

^{5d}for your fellowship in the gospel from the first day until now,
⁶being confident of this very thing, that He who has begun ^ea good work in you will complete it until the day of Jesus Christ;
⁷just as it is right for me to think this of you all, because I have you in my heart, inasmuch as both in my chains and in the defense and confirmation of the gospel, you all are partakers with me of grace.
⁸For God is my witness, how greatly I long for you all with the affection of Jesus Christ.
⁹And this I pray, that your love may abound still more and more in knowledge and all discernment,
¹⁰that you may approve the things that are excellent, that you may be sincere and without offense till the day of Christ,
¹¹being filled with the fruits of righteousness ^fwhich are by Jesus Christ, ^gto the glory and praise of God.

Christ Is Preached

¹²But I want you to know, brethren, that the things which happened to me have actually turned out for the furtherance of the gospel,

¹³so that it has become evident ^hto the whole ²palace guard, and to all the rest, that my chains are in Christ;

¹⁴and most of the brethren in the Lord, having become confident by my chains, are much more bold to speak the word without fear.

¹⁵Some indeed preach Christ even from envy and strife, and some also from goodwill:

¹⁶³The former preach Christ from selfish ambition, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my chains;

¹⁷but the latter out of love, knowing that I am appointed for the defense of the gospel.

¹⁸What then? Only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is preached; and in this I rejoice, yes, and will rejoice.

To Live Is Christ

¹⁹For I know that ⁱthis will turn out for my deliverance through your prayer and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, Word Studies: supply

²⁰according to my earnest expectation and hope that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but ^jwith all boldness, as always, so now also Christ will be magnified in my body, whether by life ^kor by death.

²¹For to me, to live is Christ, and to die is gain.

²²But if I live on in the flesh, this will mean fruit from my labor; yet what I shall choose I ⁴cannot tell.

²³⁵For I am hard-pressed between the two, having a ¹desire to depart and be with Christ, which is ^mfar better.

²⁴Nevertheless to remain in the flesh is more needful for you.

²⁵And being confident of this, I know that I shall remain and continue with you all for your progress and joy of faith, ²⁶that ⁿyour rejoicing for me may be more abundant in Jesus Christ by my coming to you again.

Striving and Suffering for Christ

²⁷Only ^olet your conduct be worthy of the gospel of Christ, so that whether I come and see you or am absent, I may hear of your affairs, that you stand fast in one spirit, ^pwith one mind ^qstriving together for the faith of the gospel,

Word Studies: striving together

²⁸and not in any way terrified by your adversaries, which is to them a proof of perdition, but ⁶to you of salvation, and that from God.

²⁹For to you ^rit has been granted on behalf of Christ, ^snot only to believe in Him, but also to ^tsuffer for His sake, ^{30u}having the same conflict ^vwhich you saw in me and now hear is in me.

Philippians 2

Unity Through Humility

¹Therefore if there is any ¹consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any ^aaffection and mercy,

^{2b}fulfill my joy ^cby being like-minded, having the same love, being of ^done accord, of one mind.

^{3e}Let nothing be done through selfish ambition or conceit, but ^fin lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than himself.

^{4g}Let each of you look out not only for his own interests, but also for the interests of ^hothers.

The Humbled and Exalted Christ

⁵_iLet this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus,
⁶_who, ^j_being in the form of God, did not consider it ²_robbery to be equal with God, Word Studies: form of God
⁷_kbut ³_made Himself of no reputation, taking the form ¹_of a bondservant, and ^m_coming in the likeness of men.
⁸_nAnd being found in appearance as a man, He humbled Himself and ^o_became ^o_obedient to the point of death, even the death of the cross.
⁹_pTherefore God also ^q_has highly exalted Him and ^r_given Him the name which is above every name,
¹⁰_sthat at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of those in heaven, and of those on earth, and of those under the earth, ¹¹_tand ^t_that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

Light Bearers

¹²Therefore, my beloved, ^uas you have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, ^vwork out your own salvation with ^wfear and trembling;

¹³for ^xit is God who works in you both to will and to do ^yfor His good pleasure.

¹⁴Do all things ^zwithout ⁴complaining and ^adisputing,⁵

¹⁵that you may become blameless and ⁶harmless, children of God without fault in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, among whom you shine as ^blights in the world, Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Believers at Philippi

¹⁶holding fast the word of life, so that ^cI may rejoice in the day of Christ that ^dI have not run in vain or labored in ^evain.

¹⁷Yes, and if ^fI am being poured out as a drink offering on the sacrifice ^gand service of your faith, ^hI am glad and rejoice with you all.

¹⁸For the same reason you also be glad and rejoice with me.

Timothy Commended

¹⁹But I trust in the Lord Jesus to send ⁱTimothy to you shortly, that I also may be encouraged when I know your ⁷state.

²⁰For I have no one ^jlike-minded, who will sincerely care for your state.

²¹For all seek their own, not the things which are of Christ Jesus.

²²But you know his proven character, ^kthat as a son with his father he served with me in the gospel.

²³Therefore I hope to send him at once, as soon as I see how it goes with me.

²⁴But I trust in the Lord that I myself shall also come shortly.

Epaphroditus Praised

²⁵Yet I considered it necessary to send to you ¹Epaphroditus, my brother, fellow worker, and ^mfellow soldier, ⁿbut your messenger and ^othe one who ministered to my need;

^{26p}since he was longing for you all, and was distressed because you had heard that he was sick.

²⁷For indeed he was sick almost unto death; but God had mercy on him, and not only on him but on me also, lest I should have sorrow upon sorrow.

²⁸Therefore I sent him the more eagerly, that when you see him again you may rejoice, and I may be less sorrowful.

²⁹Receive him therefore in the Lord with all gladness, and hold such men in esteem;

³⁰because for the work of Christ he came close to death, ⁸not regarding his life, ^qto supply what was lacking in your service toward me.

Philippians 3

All for Christ

¹Finally, my brethren, ^arejoice in the Lord. For me to write the same things to you is not tedious, but for you it is safe.

^{2b}Beware of dogs, beware of ^cevil workers, ^dbeware of the mutilation!

³For we are ^ethe circumcision, ^fwho worship ¹God in the Spirit, rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh, ⁴though ^gI also might have confidence in the flesh. If anyone else thinks he may have confidence in the flesh, I ^hmore so:

⁵circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, ⁱof the tribe of Benjamin, ^ja Hebrew of the Hebrews; concerning the law, ^ka Pharisee; ⁶concerning zeal, ^lpersecuting the church; concerning the righteousness which is in the law, blameless.

⁷But ^mwhat things were gain to me, these I have counted loss for Christ.

⁸Yet indeed I also count all things loss ⁿfor the excellence of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and count them as rubbish, that I may gain Christ

⁹and be found in Him, not having ^omy own righteousness, which is from the law, but ^pthat which is through faith in Christ, the righteousness which is from God by faith;

¹⁰that I may know Him and the ^qpower of His resurrection, and ^rthe fellowship of His sufferings, being conformed to His death, ¹¹if, by any means, I may ^sattain² to the resurrection from the dead.

Pressing Toward the Goal

¹²Not that I have already ^tattained,³ or am already ^uperfected; but I press on, that I may lay hold of that for which Christ Jesus has also laid hold of me.

¹³Brethren, I do not count myself to have ⁴apprehended; but one thing I do, ^vforgetting those things which are behind and ^wreaching forward to those things which are ahead, ^{14x}I press toward the goal for the prize of ^ythe upward call of God in Christ Jesus.

¹⁵Therefore let us, as many as are ^zmature, ^ahave this mind; and if in anything you think otherwise, ^bGod will reveal even this to you.

¹⁶Nevertheless, to the degree that we have already ⁵attained, ^clet us walk ^dby the same ⁶rule, let us be of the same mind.

Our Citizenship in Heaven

¹⁷Brethren, ^ejoin in following my example, and note those who so walk, as ^fyou have us for a pattern.

¹⁸For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are ^gthe enemies of the cross of Christ:

^{19h}whose end is destruction, ⁱwhose god is their belly, and ^jwhose glory is in their shame—^kwho set their mind on earthly things.

²⁰For ^lour citizenship is in heaven, ^mfrom which we also ⁿeagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ,

Philippians 4

¹Therefore, my beloved and ^alonged-for brethren, ^bmy joy and crown, so ^cstand fast in the Lord, beloved.

Be United, Joyful, and in Prayer

²I implore Euodia and I implore Syntyche ^dto be of the same mind in the Lord.

³¹And I urge you also, true companion, help these women who ^elabored with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and the rest of my fellow workers, whose names are in ^fthe Book of Life.

⁴^gRejoice in the Lord always. Again I will say, rejoice!

⁵Let your ²gentleness be known to all men. ^hThe Lord is at hand.

⁶ⁱBe anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication, with ^jthanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God;

⁷and ^kthe peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

Meditate on These Things

⁸Finally, brethren, whatever things are ^ltrue, whatever things are ^mnoble, whatever things are ⁿjust, ^owhatever things are pure, whatever things are ^plovely, whatever things are of good report, if there is any virtue and if there is anything praiseworthy—meditate on these things. ⁹The things which you learned and received and heard and saw in me, these do, and ^qthe God of peace will be with you. Charts and Diagrams: The Christian Quest

Philippian Generosity

¹⁰But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly that now at last ^ryour³ care for me has flourished again; though you surely did care, but you lacked opportunity.

¹¹Not that I speak in regard to need, for I have learned in whatever state I am, ^sto be content:

¹²I know how to ⁴be abased, and I know how to ⁵abound. Everywhere and in all things I have learned both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need.

¹³I can do all things ^uthrough ⁶Christ who strengthens me.

¹⁴Nevertheless you have done well that ^vyou shared in my distress.

¹⁵Now you Philippians know also that in the beginning of the gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, ^wno church shared with me concerning giving and receiving but you only.

¹⁶For even in Thessalonica you sent aid once and again for my necessities.

¹⁷Not that I seek the gift, but I seek ^xthe fruit that abounds to your account.

¹⁸Indeed I ⁷have all and abound. I am full, having received from ^yEpaphroditus the things sent from you, ^za sweet-smelling aroma, ^aan acceptable sacrifice, well pleasing to God.

¹⁹And my God ^bshall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus.

^{20c}Now to our God and Father be glory forever and ever. Amen.

Greeting and Blessing

²¹Greet every saint in Christ Jesus. The brethren ^dwho are with me greet you.

²²All the saints greet you, but especially those who are of Caesar's household.

²³The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with ⁸you all. Amen.

Annotations for Philippians

- 1:1–11 In the first few verses, Paul reveals his great love for the Philippians. He thinks of them often (vv. 3–6), he is concerned about them (vv. 7, 8), and he regularly prays for them (vv. 9–11). These verses not only reveal Paul's relation to the Philippians but also his view of God. The Lord does not merely start a wonderful work in us; He finishes what He starts. This is a comfort for those Christians who are in times of distress or suffering. God will continue His work in us.
- 1:1 bondservants: In his other prison epistles (Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon), Paul calls himself an apostle. In this letter he begins by giving the title of servant to Timothy and himself. It establishes Timothy (2:19–23), Epaphroditus (2:25–30), and Paul (3:7–9) as individuals who demonstrate the same servantlike attitude that Christ had (2:5–8). Saints means “holy ones” (those who are separated to God) and refers to all the believers in Philippi. Bishops refers to those who watched over the spiritual welfare of the local church (synonymous with “elders” in other passages; see Acts 20:17; Titus 1:5, 7). They were the main administrators of the church. Deacons refers to those who served the congregation in special service capacities. They were charged with handling the physical and material concerns of the church (see Acts 6:1–7). The mention of these two groups suggests that the church at Philippi had grown considerably since Paul's first visit there (see Acts 16:12–34).
- 1:2 Paul combines the word grace with a Greek translation of the Hebrew greeting shalom, or peace (see 2 Cor. 1:2; Gal. 1:3).
- 1:3 I thank: The tense of the Greek verb indicates that Paul was continually thankful to God for the Philippian Christians. upon every remembrance of you: Every time God brought them to his mind, Paul gave thanks.
- 1:4 Joy, a prominent theme in Philippians, filled Paul's prayers for the Philippians even when he interceded for their needs. This is the first of five uses of the Greek word for joy in the letter (v. 25; 2:2, 29; 4:1). Paul also uses the Greek word for rejoice nine times in this letter (v. 18; 2:17 [twice], 18 [twice], 28; 3:1; 4:4 [twice]).
- 1:5 Fellowship is a commercial term for a joint-partnership in a business venture in which all parties actively participate to ensure the success of the business. In the Christian community, the word expresses intimacy with Christ (see 1 Cor. 1:9) and other believers (see 2 Cor. 8:4, 1 John 1:7). In this case, Paul may be using the word fellowship to refer to the financial contributions the Philippians had given Paul from the first day until now (see 4:14, 15). Immediately upon becoming Christians and continually thereafter, the Philippians had dedicated themselves to living and proclaiming the truth about Jesus Christ, and specifically to helping Paul in his ministry.
- 1:6 being confident: Paul had become convinced some time in the past that God would complete His good work among the Philippians, and his confidence remained unshaken. in you: Since you is a plural pronoun, the good work that God was doing was taking place “among” the believers rather than “in” any isolated believer. Until can also be translated “as far as.” It expresses progress toward a goal and indicates that a time is coming when God will completely finish His work among the Philippian Christians. the day of Jesus Christ: The ministry in which the Philippians participated continues (like a relay race) up to the present, and it will continue until Christ returns. Paul calls Christ's return “the day of Christ” (see 2:16). On that day, Christ will judge nonbelievers and evaluate the lives of believers (see 2 Tim. 2:11–13).
- 1:7 The word right conveys a sense of moral uprightness (in keeping with God's law) and is often translated throughout the NT as “righteous.” In this context, the word indicates that Paul's thoughts regarding the Philippians were in perfect accord with God's will. because I have you in my heart: Heart refers to the innermost part of a person, the place where one thinks and reflects. Since defense implies speech, we can be certain that Paul was not silent while in prison, but boldly spoke about Jesus Christ. Paul may have also been indicating that he would testify about Christ at his judicial proceedings. confirmation: Used only here and in Heb. 6:16 in the NT, this word is a legal and commercial term meaning “a validating guarantee.” Defense and confirmation are the negative and positive aspects of Paul’s ministry. He defended the gospel against its opponents’ attacks, and he confirmed the gospel through powerful signs.

1:8 affection of Jesus Christ: The word translated affection literally means the internal organs, regarded by the first-century reader as the center of the deepest feelings. Whereas the heart is the seat of reflection, Paul now speaks of his affection, his deep feelings for the believers. In modern terminology, Paul revealed that he had the “heart” of Jesus Christ. His feelings for the Philippians were like those of Jesus Christ, who loved them and died for them.

1:9 The love that Paul sought for the believers is the highest form of Christian love, based on a lasting, unconditional commitment, not on an unstable emotion. knowledge: The first of two terms on which a directed love is built, knowledge suggests an intimate understanding based on a relationship with the person. Here the focus of this knowledge is God. discernment: Found only here in the NT, the Greek word means moral or ethical understanding based on both the intellect and the senses. The word implies perception or insight into social situations.

1:10 that you may approve: This verb is used in ancient literature for the testing of gold to determine its purity, and for trying oxen to assess their usefulness for the task at hand. The purpose of increasing in love, controlled by knowledge, is to be able to evaluate people and situations correctly. sincere: This term, literally meaning “judged by sunlight,” does not mean “honestly trying hard,” but rather pure, unmixed, and free from falsehood. Any spot in a garment or imperfection in merchandise could be seen by holding the object up to the sunlight. Christ died to free the church from every blemish (Eph. 5:27). without offense: Using still another graphic term to describe the Christian, Paul conveys the sense of not striking out at someone. Here the phrase means not leading others into sin by one’s own behavior. day of Christ: The goal ahead for the believer is the day of Christ in which the believer will stand for evaluation before the Savior, who is the faithful and true witness (see v. 6; 1 Cor. 1:8; 5:5).

1:11 fruits of righteousness: This phrase is best understood either as “fruit that results from being justified” or “fruit characterized by morally correct conduct.” Righteousness describes the source or the nature of the fruit, the behavior.

1:12 actually turned out: Paul wanted the Philippians to know that his imprisonment was advancing, not hindering, the gospel. Such words would comfort the Philippians who were concerned about Paul’s welfare and who needed assurance that their prayers for Paul and their gifts to him had not been in vain. furtherance: This word could suggest a pioneer beating or cutting a path through a densely forested area. Paul’s imprisonment was a strategic advance in the kingdom of God because it was clearing the way for the gospel to penetrate the ranks of the Roman military (see v. 13) and even the royal house (see 4:22). These were two areas that under normal circumstances would have been closed to the gospel.

1:13 Paul’s imprisonment furthered the gospel in two ways. First, the palace guard heard it as Paul preached in prison. Second, all the rest—Paul’s visitors—heard the gospel. Some of his visitors were leaders of the Jews in Rome (see Acts 28:17). The palace guard (Praetorian Guard) consisted of several thousand highly trained, elite soldiers of the Roman Empire who were headquartered at Rome. For the one to two years that Paul had been under house arrest in Rome, different soldiers had taken turns guarding him. Because they were chained to Paul, they had no other choice but to listen to him proclaim the gospel; they could not beat him into silence because he was a Roman citizen (see Acts 16:37, 38). Although Paul could not go to the world to preach, in this way God brought the world to Paul. In an ironic twist, they were the captives and Paul was free to preach. in Christ: Paul considered his imprisonment to be the result of God’s sovereign will.

1:14 without fear: Although they too could be imprisoned as Paul was, the Roman Christians were emboldened by Paul’s courage and were able to proclaim the message about Jesus Christ fearlessly.

1:15 Those preaching from envy and strife were not heretics, since they were preaching Christ. But apparently they were jealous of the attention Paul received, and they determined to sow seeds of dissension in order to cause him trouble. some . . . from goodwill: Other Christians preached Christ with good motives. They thought well of Paul and of the gospel message and were dedicated to serving God faithfully.

1:16, 17 Some manuscripts reverse the order of vv. 16 and 17. selfish ambition: The motives of these believers were anything but good. The term for selfish ambition implies that they did not preach to honor God or to help Paul but rather to gain applause and followers for themselves (see 2:3). not sincerely: Paul reemphasized the fact that these Christians were not acting with pure motives. to add: The word Paul uses here literally means “to raise up” or “to cause.” In other words, Paul believes that these preachers actually desired to cause him additional problems while he was in prison.

1:18 What then: In essence Paul is saying, “Their motives are between them and God.” in pretense or in truth: Whether the preaching was done for false motives or pure, whether for appearance’s sake or for the sake of what was right, Paul was pleased that the gospel was being spread.

1:19 will turn out: Paul expresses his positive attitude and confidence about how the sovereign God would work out this difficult situation. deliverance: The Greek word translated deliverance is usually translated “salvation.” In the NT this word is used for physical healing, rescue from danger or death, justification, sanctification, and glorification. Here Paul refers to his daily empowering to endure the troubling situation before him. He may also be indicating his confidence that he would be delivered from prison (see v. 25). your prayer: Here is the channel for his deliverance. The prayer of believers on behalf of other believers is vitally important because by it, and together with the work of the Holy Spirit, God produces positive results. supply: Originally this word was used to refer to a wealthy benefactor defraying the expenses of a chorus or dance troupe. Later and more generally, it meant to supply the abundant resources that would meet someone’s need.

Word Studies

supply

(Gk. epichorēgia) (1:19; Eph. 4:16) Strong's #2024

The Philippians' prayer would generate the Spirit's supply. The Greek word was used to describe what a choir manager would provide all the members of a Greek choir who performed in Greek drama. In short, he took care of all their living expenses. The word came to mean a full supply of any kind. Paul was looking forward to getting a full supply of Jesus Christ's Spirit as a result of the Philippians' prayers.

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 1:20 earnest expectation: This phrase translates a Greek word which pictures the outstretched hand of someone straining to focus attention on an object. hope: This is not just wishful thinking but confident expectation. in nothing . . . ashamed: Paul was determined not to be dishonored in anything or by anyone. He vividly demonstrated that right actions are not determined by environment but by right thinking. will be magnified: Paul was committed to ensuring that Christ would be made even more conspicuous in his own life than ever. He was not relying on himself to exalt Christ but looked to the Holy Spirit (see v. 19) to magnify Christ in him (see John 16:14; 2 Cor. 3:18). by life or by death: There was no difference between life and death as far as Paul was concerned, as long as that life or death magnified, glorified, and exalted Christ before others.
- 1:21 For to me is similar to the common expression: "As far as I'm concerned." Christ . . . gain: Paul would experience gain in his own death because he would be with Christ (v. 23). In fact, Paul may have been expressing his confidence that since his imprisonment had furthered the gospel, God would also use his death to further His kingdom.
- 1:22 fruit from my labor: If Paul continued to live, he would have the opportunity to preach the gospel to others and see spiritual victory in the lives of the Philippians. what I shall choose: Paul was in a dilemma because he clearly saw the advantages of both life and death for the Christian. Life meant an opportunity to minister to people like the Philippians (see v. 24), while death meant being with Christ his Savior.
- 1:23 Paul felt pressed in on every side, much like a besieged city with no hope of relief from its affliction. He was torn between the prospect of seeing the Lord and his passion for ministering to the Philippians. A desire here means more than a wish; it indicates an intense longing. to depart: In relation to Paul's profession as a tentmaker, the term depart means to strike, or take down, the tent to be ready to travel elsewhere. Paul saw death not as the end of life but as a time of moving from one home to another.
- 1:25 your progress: Paul was not satisfied that the Philippian Christians should simply be saved, but that they should advance to maturity in Christ. He felt a responsibility to continue to teach them.
- 1:27 let your conduct: The word used could refer to discharging the obligations of a citizen. Because Philippi held the privileged status of a Roman colony, its citizens understood the responsibilities associated with citizenship. Paul here commanded them (the first command in the letter) to shift their perspective from the earthly realm to the heavenly one. They should live in this world as citizens of another world, the heavenly kingdom. Their conduct should reveal their heavenly citizenship. stand fast: They were not to stand alone in isolation but together in oneness of spirit and mind, united for a common goal. striving together: Teamwork is the key concept expressed by this Greek word, which literally means “to engage together in an athletic contest.” for the faith: God never intended believers to be alone. His plan is that we should gather together in a church in order to strengthen and encourage each other (see 2:2). Paul was urging them to strive together, not just for the sake of their individual faith, but also on behalf of the truth of Christianity, their common faith.

Word Studies

striving together

(Gk. sunathleō) (1:27; 4:3) Strong's #4866

The image in Greek is drawn from athletic contests. Usually, athletes competed one against another; in 1:27 Paul asks the church at Philippi to compete together as a team of athletes to help advance the faith that comes through the preaching of the gospel. In the same epistle, he also mentions Euodia and Syntyche as those who were contending for the gospel side by side with him (4:2, 3).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 1:28 The word translated terrified is a strong term that is used of the terror of a panicked horse. The Philippians are not to be terror-stricken in the face of their enemies. Their courage would be proof of their salvation and of the ultimate failure of their foes. proof of perdition: By striving together in love and confidence, the Philippians would be living proof (a legal term denoting proof obtained by an analysis of the facts) to their opponents that the message of Jesus Christ is true. This would confirm the lost state of their adversaries. Because Paul contrasted salvation to perdition, his focus here undoubtedly was on eternal matters. Contrast this with Paul's focus on his own present salvation, or "deliverance," in v. 19.
- 1:29 to suffer: Suffering is actually a gift from God, for in the midst of suffering He comforts us (see 2 Cor. 1:5) and enables us to rejoice (see 1 Pet. 4:12, 13). Suffering is a blessing because it brings eternal reward (see Matt. 5:1–12; 2 Cor. 4:17; 2 Tim. 2:12; Rev. 22:12). God sees suffering as a tool to accomplish His purposes both in His Son (see Heb. 2:10) and in His children (see 1 Pet. 1:6, 7). Suffering, moreover, matures us as Christians in the present (see James 1:2–4) and enables us to be glorified with Christ in the future (see Rom. 8:17).
- 2:1 The Philippians' biggest battle was not with their external circumstances but with those internal attitudes that destroy unity. Paul had demonstrated his own refusal to let external circumstances control his attitudes (1:12–18). The therefore ties together his conflict and their conflict. if . . . if . . . if . . . if: The conditional clauses in this verse indicate certainties, not "maybes." Each if here expresses the idea of "since," and each following clause may be considered to be true. fellowship: Scripture teaches that our fellowship is not only with God the Holy Spirit as seen here, but also with God the Father (see 1 John 1:3) and God the Son (see 1 Cor. 1:9; 1 John 1:3), as well as with other Christians (see 1 John 1:7). affection: See 1:8. mercy: The Greek term means compassionate desires that develop in response to a situation and that stimulate a person to meet recognized needs in that situation.
- 2:2 In this verse the apostle sets forth a fourfold appeal, an appeal that expresses one major idea—namely the unity of the church. like-minded: This expresses Paul's concern for humility (see 4:2). Paul illustrates this attitude in 2:3, 4 and then describes the greatest example of humility, Jesus Christ Himself, in 2:5–8. same love: See 1:9. one accord: Paul here is stressing a unity of spirit between Christians (see Ps. 133), literally "a togetherness of soul." one mind: The words Paul uses to indicate one mind are virtually identical to the words translated like-minded earlier in this verse. Paul was strongly emphasizing the unity that should exist between believers and how they must single-mindedly strive together to advance the gospel of Jesus Christ.

2:3 Here Paul attempts to correct any misunderstanding that may arise from what he said earlier in the letter about some preaching out of selfish motives (see 1:15, 16). He was concerned that someone might think he was condoning selfish ambition, so long as the gospel was being preached. conceit: Paul uses a Greek term meaning “empty pride,” or “groundless self-esteem.” Pride should not be a Christian’s motivation; instead everything should be done in the power of the Holy Spirit. lowliness of mind: The Greek word suggests a deep sense of humility. Although the pagan writers used the word negatively, in effect to mean abjectness or groveling, Paul did not. What Paul was calling for was an honest evaluation of one’s own nature. Such an evaluation should always lead to a glorification of Christ. let each esteem: This verb indicates a thorough analysis of the facts in order to reach a correct conclusion about the matter. In other words, each Philippian Christian was to properly assess himself or herself. Such an assessment would lead to valuing others. others better than himself: The honest self-examination that Paul was calling for leads to true humility.

2:5 These verses (vv. 5–8) present one of the most significant statements in all of Scripture on the nature of the Incarnation, the fact that God became man. Also, through this wonderful description of Christ, Paul vividly illustrates the principle of humility (vv. 3, 4). Let this mind be: All godly action begins with the “renewing of the mind.” Right thinking produces right actions. Our actions are the fruit of our deepest thoughts. in you: Thinking and being like Christ are requirements not only for an individual but also for the corporate body of believers. Together we need to think and act like one being, like the Person of Jesus Christ.

2:6 robbery: Because Christ was God, He did not look on sharing God’s nature as robbery, that is, as “a thing to be seized,” as though He did not already possess it, or as “a thing to be retained,” as though He might lose it. equal: As used in this verse, this word speaks of equality of existence. Christ was fully God, but He limited Himself in such a way that He could also be completely human. In Christ, God became man.

form of God

(Gk. morphē theou) (2:6) Strong's #3444; 2316

The Greek word for form was generally used to express the way in which a thing exists and appears according to what it is in itself. Thus the expression form of God may be correctly understood as the essential nature and character of God. To say, therefore, that Christ existed in the form of God is to say that apart from His human nature Christ possesses all the characteristics and qualities belonging to God because He is, in fact, God.

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 2:7 made Himself of no reputation: This phrase can be translated “He emptied Himself.” Christ did this by taking on the form of a servant, a mere man. In doing this, He did not empty Himself of any part of His essence as God. Instead He merely gave up His privileges as God and took upon Himself existence as a man. While remaining completely God, He became completely human. form: Jesus added to His divine essence (see v. 6) a servant’s essence, that is, the essential characteristics of a human being seeking to fulfill the will of another. bondservant: In this context, the term refers to the lowest status on the social ladder (see Heb. 10:5), the exact opposite of the term Lord, a title by which all will one day recognize the risen and exalted Christ (see v. 11). It is truly amazing, therefore, that the God who created the universe (see John 1:3; Col. 1:16) and who rules over all creation (see Col. 1:17) would choose to add to His person the nature of a servant. likeness: This word does not mean that Christ only appeared to be a man. Rather, the term emphasizes identity. In reality He was a man, possessing all the essential aspects of a human being, although unlike all others He was sinless.
- 2:8 appearance: This is the third word Paul uses to show the Philippians that Jesus Christ who is fully God from all eternity is also fully man. In the previous verses, Paul describes Jesus as possessing the nature of God and taking on the nature of a servant. Jesus came to the earth with the identity of a man. Here the word appearance points to the external characteristics of Jesus: He had the bearing, actions, and manners of a man. He humbled Himself: Jesus willingly took the role of a servant; no one forced Him to do it. obedient: Although He never sinned and did not deserve to die, He chose to die so that the sins of the world could be charged to His account. Subsequently He could credit His righteousness to the account of all who believe in Him (see 2 Cor. 5:21; Gal. 1:4). even the death of the cross: Paul describes the depths of Christ’s humiliation by reminding his readers that Christ died by the cruelest form of capital punishment, crucifixion. The Romans reserved the agonizing death of crucifixion for slaves and foreigners, and the Jews viewed death on a cross as a curse from God (see Deut. 21:23; Gal. 3:13).
- 2:9 Note the contrast between Jesus’ placing Himself in a debased status (see v. 8) with God the Father’s elevation of Jesus to a highly exalted status.
- 2:10 every knee: Although all will one day worship Christ, only those who put their faith in Him in this life will have an everlasting relationship with Him after death (see Rev. 20:13–15). those under the earth: Paul refers here to those who will already have died at the time of Christ’s return, in contrast to the angels in heaven and those who will still be living on earth.

2:11 confess: The term Paul uses is a strong, intensive verb, which means “agree with” or “say the same thing.” Essentially Paul is saying that everyone will unanimously affirm what God the Father has already stated (Is. 45:23): that Jesus Christ is Lord.

2:12 Therefore: Paul desires the Philippians to respond positively to his admonition to have the mind of Christ (vv. 5–8). The command is to the entire group since the word you is plural. The subject is their mutual, corporate salvation (see 1:19, 28; Luke 22:24–30). work out: The Greek term speaks of the present deliverance of the Philippians. The word translated work out is used by the first-century author Strabo to speak of digging silver out of silver mines. Thus salvation can be compared to a huge gift that needs to be unwrapped for one’s thorough enjoyment. Note that Paul is encouraging the Philippians to develop and work out their salvation, but not to work for their salvation.

2:14 The Philippians have been secretly discontented and have been complaining (2:1–4). But the word used suggests that loud dissension had not yet broken out.

2:15 This verse focuses on the testimony of the church. The purpose of the command in v. 14 is that the Philippians might be blameless light bearers in their world. They should deserve no censure because they are free from fault or defect in relation to the outside world (see 3:6). If the Philippian believers were going to have a testimony in their community, they had to be blameless in their actions and attitudes, both inside and outside the church (see 1 Tim. 3:2). without fault: This term is a technical word used to denote anything that is fit to be offered as a sacrifice to God, without blot or blemish, untainted by sin. crooked and perverse generation: Paul describes the world as being the opposite of Christian. On the one hand the world is turned away from the truth, while on the other hand it exerts a corrupting influence that is opposed to the truth. shine as lights: Paul depicts believers as stars whose light penetrates the spiritual darkness of a perverted world. Jesus said, “I am the light of the world.” He also said, “You are the light of the world” (Matt. 5:14). We are the light of the world as long as we reflect Christ.

The Believers at Philippi

There must have been very few Jews in Philippi because the city did not have a synagogue, and in first-century Judaism it took only ten Jewish men to justify building a synagogue for worship. The Jews who did live in Philippi went outside the city gate to the banks of the Gangites River for worship and prayer. Philippi was a culturally diverse Roman city on the main highway (the Egnatian Way) from the eastern provinces to Rome, and the church at Philippi had a diverse group of believers. The NT specifically mentions an Asian, a Greek, and a Roman. One was a businesswoman who sold purple cloth to the rich; one was a slave girl who had been possessed with a spirit of divination; the third was a jailer. These people represented three different races, three different social ranks, and probably three different religious loyalties before encountering Christ.

- 2:16 The Greek verb translated holding fast contains two thoughts: holding fast and holding forth. The former concept suggests a steadfastness in which our lights (see v. 15) blaze continually for God. The latter concept implies projecting our lights into the darkness of this world. Run suggests energetic activity, while labored indicates the toil of Paul's ministry.
- 2:17 being poured out: Both Jews and Greeks sometimes poured wine out on an altar in connection with religious sacrifices (see Num. 15:1–10). Some have interpreted this figure of speech as depicting Paul's own martyrdom for the cause of Christ. However the content of the letter reveals by contrast that Paul assumes he will live (see 1:25) and expects to be released from prison shortly (see v. 24). Thus Paul probably was saying that he was presently being poured out as a living offering on behalf of the faith of the Philippians. sacrifice: This means primarily the act of offering something to God. service: Paul chooses a Greek term that depicts a person who fulfills the duties of a public office at his or her own expense. In the Christian context, this word speaks of worship humbly offered to God.
- 2:19 Paul balanced the previous somber passage (vv. 12–18) with the optimistic hope of sending his coworker Timothy, whose name means “One Who Honors God” and was from a believing family. Both his mother Eunice and his grandmother Lois had become Christians (see 2 Tim. 1:5). He had accompanied Paul on the second missionary journey, during which time they had established the church at Philippi. Timothy apparently was well-loved by the Philippians, and he in turn exhibited a great concern for them (see vv. 20–22).
- 2:20 like-minded: Timothy and Paul had the same quality of concern for the Philippians (see Paul's command in v. 2 for the Philippians to be like-minded).
- 2:22 Timothy had shown his faithful character to the Philippians, who knew of his ten years of ministry with the apostle Paul. as a son: In NT times, a son who served his father did so to learn the family trade. Serving in this way meant learning all about the business and being willing to obey the teacher in order to become as skillful as possible in the work.

2:25 Epaphroditus was a Philippian Christian sent by the church in Philippi to take a gift to Paul (see 4:18) and to assist Paul in his ministry. He is described with a series of complimentary terms: a “brother,” a “fellow worker,” a “fellow soldier,” a “messenger” to the Philippians, and a “minister” to Paul. He is mentioned in the Bible only in this letter. fellow worker: Paul considers Epaphroditus to be an equal in the work of the gospel. The title of fellow soldier was given only to those who had fought honorably alongside another. Paul thus offered high praise to Epaphroditus for his faithful service in the cause of Christ. your messenger: Here Paul uses the Greek term usually translated apostle in its nontechnical sense. Both Paul and Epaphroditus are messengers, but Paul’s authority is greater than Epaphroditus’s. Paul had a direct commission from Jesus Christ, while Epaphroditus was sent by the Philippians.

2:26 longing: Paul declares that Epaphroditus demonstrates the same concern for the Philippians as he himself does (see 1:8). Thus they are one in their work for the Lord (see v. 25), and they are one in their love for the Lord’s people.

2:27 sick almost unto death: Paul was making certain that the Philippians understood the effort that Epaphroditus had made for the cause of Jesus Christ. Epaphroditus’s condition had been far worse than perhaps they had imagined. Paul viewed Epaphroditus’s healing as God’s direct intervention. Though Paul exercised apostolic powers (see 2 Cor. 12:12), those powers were useless outside of the will and timing of God.

2:30 not regarding his life: Paul informs the Philippians of the commitment that Epaphroditus had for the work that they had given him to do. to supply what was lacking: Paul acknowledges the work that the Philippians had already done for him. Epaphroditus was able to do what the Philippians could not do: be physically present to minister to him.

3:1 safe: Paul is concerned that the Philippians do not fall into the trap set forth by those within the church who support heresy.

3:2 In NT times, dogs were hated scavengers. The term came to be used for all who had morally impure minds. evil workers: Since the term workers was occasionally used to identify those who propagated a religion, the words evil workers probably refers to teachers who are spreading destructive doctrines. mutilation: Paul here points sarcastically and specifically to those who desire to reinstate Jewish religious practices as necessary for salvation. He chooses a term that literally means “to cut.” By doing so, he suggests that these people do not even understand the truth about the OT practice of circumcision but understand it merely as a cutting of the flesh.

3:3 Paul defines true circumcision as a matter of the heart and not of the flesh. He reveals three aspects of true circumcision: (1) worshipping God in the Spirit; (2) rejoicing in Christ; and (3) placing no confidence in any human honor or accomplishment as a means to reach God. The OT also taught that circumcision was more than a ritual of the flesh (see Lev. 26:41; Deut. 10:16, 30:6; Jer. 4:4; Ezek. 44:7).

3:4–9 Paul speaks as though he had confidence in the flesh to show that the reason he did not rely on Jewish credentials was not that he did not possess them, but that they could not achieve the righteousness only God could provide.

3:5 eighth day: Paul’s parents obeyed God’s law and had Paul circumcised on the appropriate day after his birth (see Lev. 12:2, 3). The people of Israel are called the people of God. That Paul states he is of the stock of Israel implies that he is able to trace his origins to the true line of Israel, to Jacob and not Esau. tribe of Benjamin: The tribe of Benjamin was highly regarded by Israelites because that line had produced the first king of Israel and had remained loyal to David. Furthermore, that tribe had joined Judah after the Exile to form the foundation for the restored nation (see 1 Sam. 9:15–21; 1 Kin. 12:21–24). Hebrew of the Hebrews: This description of Paul may indicate that (1) both his parents were Jews, (2) he was a model Jew, or (3) he was educated completely as a Jew. Pharisee: Pharisees were highly educated Jewish leaders who spearheaded the opposition against Jesus while He was on earth, and later against the Christian church. They rigorously followed and defended the letter of the Jewish law. Paul himself came from a line of Pharisees (see Acts 23:6) and had studied under Gamaliel, a highly respected Pharisee of that day (see Acts 22:3).

3:6 persecuting the church: Prior to becoming a Christian, Paul vigorously attacked those who believed in Christ, even to the point of having them put to death (see Acts 7:58-8:3; 9:1, 2).

3:7 gain: See 1:21. loss: This word indicates that which is damaged or of no further use (see v. 8; Acts 27:10, 21). Those things that Paul thought to be important became unimportant after confronting the resurrected Messiah.

3:8 excellence: The value of knowing Christ surpasses all else (see 2:3; 4:7). rubbish: This word means anything that is detestable or worthless. All the things of this world are rubbish compared to Christ. Even “our righteousnesses are like filthy rags” (see Is. 64:6). I may gain: The former gain (see v. 7) is here substituted for the latter gain: Christ Jesus (see 1:21).

3:9 from the law: In vv. 6 and 7, Paul reveals the uselessness of righteousness that is in the law. Here he divulges that his own righteousness that had been in that law was also in vain. through faith in Christ: Paul recognizes that true righteousness is a matter of faith, not of works. It is God’s righteousness that comes through Christ, not our own righteousness.

3:10 Paul indicates that he rejected his own righteousness in order to secure not merely an intellectual knowledge of Christ but also a relational knowledge, in fact, an intimate knowledge of Him. power of His resurrection: Paul does not say the power “in” His resurrection, which would specify the power of the one-time event of His resurrection. Rather Paul seeks the ongoing power that is the day-to-day experience of being in Christ. Paul may also be alluding to his desire to be clothed with his own resurrection body. fellowship of His sufferings: Paul sees the value of participating in the persecutions or struggles that naturally accompany one who is in partnership (that is, fellowship, see 1:5) with Christ and His sufferings (see James 1:2–4; 1 Pet. 2:21–24). being conformed to His death: Paul desires to imitate Christ—even in His death. In other words, Paul wants to be completely obedient to God the Father, just as Jesus was obedient to His Father’s will (Luke 22:42).

3:11 Attain to means “to arrive at” as well as to “become a partaker of.” Paul was not doubting his participation in the resurrection but was instead viewing it in expectation (1 Cor. 15:1–34). Paul desired to be with those Christians who, through their victory in Christ, would receive special reward in the resurrection (see Heb. 11:35).

3:12 not . . . attained: Paul chooses a different Greek word from that translated in v. 11 as attain. Here he indicates he has not yet “gained possession of” or “laid hold of” all that he seeks to be. perfected: The Greek term means mature or complete, finished. It does not specifically mean a moral or sinless perfection. Paul is not speaking of moral perfection or righteousness but of reaching the state of completion as a Christian. press on: Paul “pursues with all deliberate speed” the goal that is before him. The verb form indicates that he is doing this continually. lay hold of: This phrase adds the idea of overtaking by surprise to the sense of seizing some object. Paul urgently wants to “grab hold of” God as God had laid hold of him (Acts 9:1–22). Christ had dramatically and suddenly seized Paul on the road to Damascus, and his life was never the same since.

3:13 Paul could not obliterate the past from his memory, but he refused to let his past obstruct his progress toward his goal. He wanted to forget his self-righteous past (see vv. 4–7). By using the present tense for forgetting Paul was indicating that it is an ongoing process. He might even be implying that he wanted to forget everything so that he would not rest on his past successes in Christ, but continue to labor for the Lord.

3:14 goal: This word specifically refers to the marker at the end of a race on which runners intently fix their eyes. The prize is the reward for victory. Paul evidently takes to heart what he teaches in 1 Cor. 9:24. upward call: In the NT this speaks of the divine call to complete salvation. It may refer to the judgment seat of Christ, the place of reward. Paul does not say that he is pressing on for the call of God but rather for the prize of that call. He is not working for his salvation but rather for a reward.

- 3:16 let us walk: Paul commands the Philippians to conduct themselves as soldiers who “march in line” together, organized, each in his proper position.
- 3:17 The word pattern indicates an exact representation of the original. The example of Paul’s life is so evident that one can readily see it and use it as a pattern for living.
- 3:18 The term weeping reveals Paul’s compassion and concern for those who most tragically are the enemies of the cross. In v. 2, he offers a stern warning against them, but here he weeps for them.
- 3:19 In this verse destruction indicates the opposite of eternal salvation (see 1:19, 28). belly: The physical appetites of the “many” (v. 18) control and consume them. glory is in their shame: The things in which they take pride actually are the things that will bring “disgrace” or “humiliation” to them, things of which they should have been ashamed.
- 3:20 Christians need to remember that though we are in this world we are not of this world; our ultimate citizenship is in heaven. eagerly wait: Here Paul presents a direct contrast to the earthly focus of the enemies of the Cross in v. 19. The eager desire of Christians is not earthly things, but a heavenly Person, the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ (see Rom. 8:19–25).
- 3:21 Paul guarantees that Christ will transform, or “change in appearance,” the believer. lowly body: What God will transform is the physical body. conformed to His glorious body: In v. 10, Christians are conformed to Christ’s death; here they are conformed to His life. Our body now is weak and susceptible to sin, disease, and death. But God will change our bodies to resemble Christ’s glorious resurrection body.
- 4:2 Euodia . . . Syntyche: These were Christian women at Philippi who had fallen into some disagreement that was affecting the whole church. What is written in vv. 2, 3 is all that is known about the two women or about their dispute. Paul does not take sides in the argument, but instead encourages them to be reconciled.
- 4:3 I urge: This word implies a certain level of familiarity; it introduces a request, not a demand. true companion: The identity of this person is unknown. It may be a specific person named Syzygos (the Greek word for companion), someone else particularly close to Paul, or any of the faithful Christians in the church who could help resolve the dispute. help: This verb means literally “to assist by holding together” and suggests that the women’s dispute is not minor but potentially divisive. The Book of Life refers to a book in heaven where the names of believers are recorded (Dan. 12:1; Rev. 21:27).
- 4:4 In the midst of difficulties, in the midst of all situations, Christians are to rejoice. The joy of Christians is not based on agreeable circumstances, instead it is based on their relationship to God. Christians will face trouble in this world, but they should rejoice in the trials they face because they know God is using those situations to improve their character (see James 1:2–4).
- 4:5 gentleness: This noun identifies a person who manifests a calmness and fairness of spirit. A person who is gentle is willing to sacrifice his or her own personal rights to show consideration to others. at hand: The Lord’s return could occur at any moment. Paul uses that fact to motivate the Philippians to honor God with their lives.
- 4:6 Paul exhorts the Philippians to pray about their circumstances instead of worrying over them. be anxious for nothing: Although the same word in 2:20 describes Timothy’s concern for the Philippians, here Paul uses the word to refer to worry. He prohibits the Philippians from worrying about their own problems. Instead they are to commit their problems to God in prayer, trusting that He will provide deliverance.
- 4:7 will guard: Paul’s choice of a military term implies that the mind is in a battle zone and needs to be “protected by a military guard.” Since the purpose of such a guard in a wartime situation is either to prevent a hostile invasion or to keep the inhabitants of a besieged city from escaping, the peace of God operates in the same way: to protect the mind from external corrupting influences and to keep the mind focused on God’s truth.

4:8 noble: This term describes that which is of honorable character. pure: This word is closely associated with the Greek word for holy and thus means “sacred” or “immaculate.” meditate on: Paul commands the Philippians “to deliberate,” “to evaluate,” “to compute over and over” what is good and pure. In this way, Christians can renew their minds so that they will not conform to the evil habits of this world (Rom. 12:2).

Word Studies

(Gk. aretē) (4:8; 1 Pet. 2:9; 2 Pet. 1:3) Strong's #703

A rare word in the NT but generously used in Greek writings, this word denotes moral excellence. Peter in his first letter uses the word to describe the excellent nature or “excellencies” of God (see 1 Pet. 2:9 where the word is translated praises). Such excellence is said to have been possessed by various people, but it is a quality that comes from God. Only those who are given divine power can be morally excellent on this earth (2 Pet. 1:3).

4:9 learned: This verb conveys not only the concept of “increasing in intellectual knowledge” but also the idea of “learning by habitual practice.” In some areas of their Christian development the Philippians had been excellent disciples of Paul, practicing what he had taught.

The Christian Quest

Seek:

- Christ above all (1:21; 3:7, 8) and FIND righteousness in Christ and the power of His resurrection (3:9–11).
- Christlike humility (2:5–7) and FIND God’s will in the believer (2:12, 13).
- A divinely appointed goal (3:14) and FIND the prize of eternal salvation (3:14).
- All things that are true, noble, just, pure, lovely, virtuous, and praiseworthy (4:8) and FIND the presence of the God of peace (4:9).

Go to the List of Charts and Diagrams

4:10–20 What Paul discusses in this section may be the reason why he wrote this letter. The Philippians had given him a gift and he desired to thank them for it. In this section, Paul indicates that the Philippians would be rewarded for their gift and that God would meet all their needs.

4:10 flourished again: Paul uses an agricultural word found only here in the NT to picture a plant that “shoots up” or “sprouts again,” describing a condition of prosperity or abundance. lacked opportunity: Paul politely lets the Philippians know that he is aware of their continual concern for him.

- 4:11 content: The word literally means “self-sufficient.” In Stoic philosophy this Greek word described a person who dispassionately accepted whatever circumstances brought. For the Greeks, this contentment came from personal sufficiency. But for Paul true sufficiency is found in the strength of Christ (v. 13).
- 4:15 giving and receiving: Paul considers the relationship between himself and the Philippians to be a two-way street, with both parties actively involved in the sharing of both material and spiritual gifts.
- 4:17 Paul has in mind in this verse the material gift that the Philippians sent to him. account: Paul uses business terminology. The Philippians’ gift was producing spiritual profit just as money deposited in a bank account accrues interest. But Paul was not as concerned with their gift as with the development in the Philippians of the spiritual ability to give.
- 4:18 an acceptable sacrifice: By giving to Paul, the Philippians had offered themselves as a gift to God (see Rom. 12:1, 2).
- 4:19 In v. 18 Paul says that he is full because they gave. In this verse he writes that God will supply all their needs. The Philippians, in turn, will be full because of the gifts God will give them. according to His riches: Out of His abundant wealth, God will more than amply take care of the Philippians.
- 4:20 The Jewish practice of closing prayers with the word amen carried over to the Christian church as well. When found at the end of a sentence as it is here, the word can be translated “so be it,” or “may it be fulfilled.” At the beginning of a sentence, it means “surely,” “truly,” or “most assuredly.”
- 4:22 those . . . of Caesar’s household: These believers may have been officials in the Roman government (such as members of the Praetorian Guard; see 1:13) or servants who lived and served in the emperor’s palace.

Introduction

Just as a child needs proper instruction early in life, so the early believers needed to be set on the proper path with correct teaching. Paul wrote this letter to deal with a doctrinal heresy that was creeping into the Colossian church. Although we are not told specifically what this heresy was, we can pick up clues from Paul's response. The error was probably a mixture of Judaism and an early form of Gnosticism. The Colossian church was experiencing the same problems other early churches had encountered. Certain members were teaching that the observance of Jewish rules about food, the Sabbath, and special festivals would help believers to earn their salvation (see Gal. 3:23–25; 4:10, 11). At Colosse, however, some of the Gentile members were apparently also promoting a form of mysticism that claimed that Jesus was a higher being, but not God. Paul refutes these false doctrines by pointing to Christ. Jesus had been the focus of Paul's preaching from the beginning. In Colossians, Paul reiterates the supremacy of Christ. It was because Jesus is divine that His death reconciles believers to their Creator.

As in all of his epistles, Paul seems to write as though he had our own society in mind. Even today, new cults claim to be Christian yet deny the deity of Christ and the basic beliefs of Christianity. Many today view Jesus as no more than “a great teacher.” Paul's patient correction of the Colossian believers should remind us that we need to keep the worship of Jesus Christ central in our churches.

Author and Date Pauline authorship of this letter has been universally recognized throughout church history. Paul identifies himself as the author of the letter three different times, describing himself as “an apostle of Jesus Christ” and as a servant of the gospel. Furthermore Paul closes the epistle with a handwritten greeting, a characteristic of several of his letters (see 1 Cor. 16:21; 2 Thess. 3:17). The Muratorian fragment (a document written around A.D. 180 that lists books considered by the early church to be divinely inspired) includes Colossians as a Pauline epistle. Many church fathers also upheld Paul as the author of Colossians. These include Justin Martyr, Irenaeus, Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, and Origen.

Paul probably wrote Colossians while imprisoned in Rome around A.D. 60. Some have argued for other places of origin, such as Ephesus and Caesarea, but there is not enough evidence to displace the traditional theory that Paul wrote from his prison in Rome. Colossians is one of the four prison epistles of Paul, along with Ephesians, Philippians, and Philemon. Because Colossians, Ephesians, and Philemon have several similarities, many believe that the three were written at about the same time.

Setting The city of Colosse was about a hundred miles east of Ephesus, in the valley of the Lycus River. During the Persian Wars of the fifth century B.C., Colosse was a large and strategic city. By the time of the apostle Paul, however, it had declined into the shadows of its two sister cities, Laodicea and Hierapolis, and had become a small merchant town on the trade route from Rome to the east.

Evangelization of Colosse probably took place during Paul’s three-year stay in Ephesus. Luke records in Acts 19:10 that people throughout the Asian region heard the gospel. Apparently Epaphras was converted in Ephesus, and after being instructed by Paul returned home to Colosse to proclaim the gospel. Evidently the church that emerged was largely composed of Gentiles, for Paul refers to their “uncircumcision,” a word employed by Paul to designate Gentiles (see 2:13; Rom. 2:24–27; Eph. 2:11).

Relationship of Colossians to Philemon The circumstances of Colossians and Philemon are the same. Paul is imprisoned, along with others, for preaching the gospel (4:10; Philem. 1, 23). The companions Paul lists are identical in the two letters, with the exception of Justus, who is found only in the letter to Colossians (see 1:1; 4:9–14, 17; Philem. 1, 2, 10, 23, 24).

Furthermore, Onesimus (the slave of Philemon) went to Colosse with Tychicus, the bearer of the Colossian letter (4:7–9). Thus the two letters are companion epistles: one for the Colossian church as a whole and one addressed to a member of that church, Philemon.

Relationship of Colossians and Ephesians The many parallels between Colossians and Ephesians indicate that the two letters were written about the same time. Both letters reveal the centrality of Christ and His relationship to the church. Ephesians shows Christ as Head of the church, while Colossians extends that imagery of His authority over all creation (see 1:16–18; 2:10). In Ephesians, Paul highlights how Christians are the members of the body of Christ, who is the Head. In Colossians, he places emphasis on Christ the Head, of whose body Christians are members.

The differences in the epistles are significant as well. Colossians stresses the completeness of the believer in Christ; Ephesians points to Christian unity which is found in Christ. The mystery in Colossians is that Christ is in believers (1:26, 27), while the mystery in Ephesians is the unity of Jew and Gentile in Christ. Colossians speaks of Jesus as Lord over all creation, while Ephesians concerns itself with Christ's authority over the church. Finally, Colossians has a stronger tone because it confronts a specific false teaching in Colosse. Ephesians has a softer tone; it does not address a specific heresy.

But with all their similarities and differences, Ephesians and Colossians together present a mature understanding of who Christ is and what His life and death mean for the believer. From prison, Paul was teaching the churches in Asia Minor how central the person of Jesus Christ is to the Christian faith. He is the image of God, the source of all wisdom, and the Head of the church. He is the One who reconciles us to God and to our fellow believers. As our Savior and Deliverer, He deserves our sincere adoration and praise.

Christ in the Scriptures

Colossians is the one book in the New Testament that uniquely centers on the cosmic Christ—“the head of all principality and power” (2:10). Paul wants us to know that in Jesus we see the face of God: “He is the image of the invisible God” (1:15). As such, Jesus’ divine nature and incarnation are celebrated as watershed realities. This image of the invisible God is the Author of reconciliation (1:20–22; 2:13–15) and our Redeemer and Reconciler (2:11–15, 20–22). Because of those facts, it only stands to reason that He is the basis for all believers’ hope (1:5, 23, 27).

Greeting

¹Paul, ^aan apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, Word Studies: Jesus Christ

²To the saints ^band faithful brethren in Christ who are in Colosse:

^cGrace to you and peace from God our Father ¹and the Lord Jesus Christ. In-

Text Map: Letter to Colosse Bible Times & Culture Notes: The City of Colosse

Their Faith in Christ

^{3d}We give thanks to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always for you,

^{4e}since we heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of ^fyour love for all the saints;

⁵because of the hope ^gwhich is laid up for you in heaven, of which you heard before in the word of the truth of the gospel,

⁶which has come to you, ^has it has also in all the world, and ⁱis bringing forth ²fruit, as it is also among you since the day you heard and knew ^jthe grace of God in truth;

⁷as you also learned from ^kEpaphras, our dear fellow servant, who is ^la faithful minister of Christ on your behalf, ⁸who also declared to us your ^mlove in the Spirit.

Preeminence of Christ

⁹ⁿFor this reason we also, since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray for you, and to ask ^othat you may be filled with ^pthe knowledge of His will ^qin all wisdom and spiritual understanding;

^{10r}that you may walk worthy of the Lord, ^sfully pleasing Him, ^tbeing fruitful in every good work and increasing in the ^uknowledge of God;

^{11v}strengthened with all might, according to His glorious power, ^wfor all patience and longsuffering ^xwith joy;

^{12y}giving thanks to the Father who has qualified us to be partakers of ^zthe inheritance of the saints in the light.

¹³He has delivered us from ^athe power of darkness ^band ³conveyed us into the kingdom of the Son of His love, ^{14c}in whom we have redemption ⁴through His blood, the forgiveness of sins.

¹⁵He is ^dthe image of the invisible God, ^ethe firstborn over all creation.

Article: Firstborn over Creation

¹⁶For ^fby Him all things were created that are in heaven and that are on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or ^gdominions or ⁵principalities or ⁶powers. All things were created ^hthrough Him and for Him.

¹⁷ⁱAnd He is before all things, and in Him ^jall things consist.

¹⁸And ^kHe is the head of the body, the church, who is the beginning, ^lthe firstborn from the dead, that in all things He may have the preeminence.

Reconciled in Christ

¹⁹For it pleased the Father that ^min Him all the fullness should dwell, ²⁰and ⁿby Him to reconcile ^oall things to Himself, by Him, whether things on earth or things in heaven, ^phaving made peace through the blood of His cross.

²¹And you, ^qwho once were alienated and enemies in your mind ^rby wicked works, yet now He has ^sreconciled

²²in the body of His flesh through death, ^uto present you holy, and blameless, and above reproach in His sight—

²³if indeed you continue ^vin the faith, grounded and steadfast, and are ^wnot moved away from the hope of the gospel which you heard, ^xwhich was preached to every creature under heaven, ^yof which I, Paul, became a minister.

Sacrificial Service for Christ

^{24z}I now rejoice in my sufferings ^afor you, and fill up in my flesh ^bwhat is lacking in the afflictions of Christ, for ^cthe sake of His body, which is the church,

²⁵of which I became a minister according to ^dthe ⁷stewardship from God which was given to me for you, to fulfill the word of God, ^{26e}the ⁸mystery which has been hidden from ages and from generations, ^fbut now has been revealed to His saints.

^{27g}To them God willed to make known what are ^hthe riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles: ⁹which is ⁱChrist in you, ^jthe hope of glory.

²⁸Him we preach, ^kwarning every man and teaching every man in all wisdom, ^lthat we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus.

²⁹To this end I also labor, striving according to His working which works in me ^mmightily.

Colossians 2

Not Philosophy but Christ

¹For I want you to know what a great ^aconflict¹ I have for you and those in Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my face in the flesh,

²that their hearts may be encouraged, being knit together in love, and attaining to all riches of the full assurance of understanding, to the knowledge of the mystery of God, ²both of the Father and of Christ,

^{3b}in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. Charts and Diagrams: The Preeminence of Christ

⁴Now this I say ^clest anyone should deceive you with persuasive words.

⁵For ^dthough I am absent in the flesh, yet I am with you in spirit, rejoicing ³to see ^eyour good order and the ^fsteadfastness of your faith in Christ.

^{6g}As you therefore have received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in Him, ^{7h}rooted and built up in Him and established in the faith, as you have been taught, abounding ⁴in it with thanksgiving.

⁸Beware lest anyone ⁵cheat you through philosophy and empty deceit, according to ⁱthe tradition of men, according to the ^jbasic principles of the world, and not according to Christ.

⁹For ^kin Him dwells all the fullness of the Godhead ⁶bodily; Word Studies: fullness of the Godhead

¹⁰and you are complete in Him, who is the ^lhead of all ⁷principality and power.

Not Legalism but Christ

¹¹In Him you were also ^mcircumcised with the circumcision made without hands, by ⁿputting off the body ⁸of the sins of the flesh, by the circumcision of Christ,

^{12o}buried with Him in baptism, in which you also were raised with Him through ^pfaith in the working of God, ^qwho raised Him from the dead.

¹³And you, being dead in your trespasses and the uncircumcision of your flesh, He has made alive together with Him, having forgiven you all trespasses, ^{14r}having wiped out the ⁹handwriting of requirements that was against us, which was contrary to us. And He has taken it out of the way, having nailed it to the cross.

^{15s}Having disarmed ^tprincipalities and powers, He made a public spectacle of them, triumphing over them in it.

¹⁶So let no one ^ujudge you in food or in drink, or regarding a ¹⁰festival or a new moon or sabbaths, ^{17v}which are a shadow of things to come, but the ¹¹substance is of Christ.

¹⁸Let no one cheat you of your reward, taking delight in false humility and worship of angels, intruding into those things which he has ¹²not seen, vainly puffed up by his fleshly mind,

¹⁹and not holding fast to ^wthe Head, from whom all the body, nourished and knit together by joints and ligaments, ^xgrows with the increase that is from God.

²⁰ⁱ³Therefore, if you ^ydied with Christ from the basic principles of the world, ^zwhy, as though living in the world, do you subject yourselves to regulations—

^{21a}“Do not touch, do not taste, do not handle,”

²²which all concern things which perish with the using—^baccording to the commandments and doctrines of men?

^{23c}These things indeed have an appearance of wisdom in self-imposed religion, false humility, and ¹⁴neglect of the body, but are of no value against the indulgence of the flesh.

Bible Times & Culture Notes: False Teaching at Colosse

Colossians 3

Not Carnality but Christ

¹If then you were ^araised with Christ, seek those things which are above, ^bwhere Christ is, sitting at the right hand of God.

²Set your mind on things above, not on things on the ^cearth.

^{3d}For you died, ^eand your life is hidden with Christ in God.

^{4f}When Christ who is ^gour life appears, then you also will appear with Him in ^hglory.

⁵ⁱTherefore put to death ^jyour members which are on the earth: ^kfornication, uncleanness, passion, evil desire, and covetousness, ^lwhich is idolatry.

^{6m}Because of these things the wrath of God is coming upon ⁿthe sons of disobedience, ^{7o}in which you yourselves once walked when you lived in them.

^{8p}But now you yourselves are to put off all these: anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy language out of your mouth.

⁹Do not lie to one another, since you have put off the old man with his deeds,

¹⁰and have put on the new man who ^qis renewed in knowledge ^raccording to the image of Him who ^screated him,

¹¹where there is neither ^tGreek nor Jew, circumcised nor uncircumcised, barbarian, Scythian, slave nor free, ^ubut Christ is all and in all.

Character of the New Man

¹²Therefore, ^vas the elect of God, holy and beloved, ^wput on tender mercies, kindness, humility, meekness, longsuffering;

¹³^xbearing with one another, and forgiving one another, if anyone has a complaint against another; even as Christ forgave you, so you also must do.

¹⁴^yBut above all these things ^zput on love, which is the ^abond of perfection.

¹⁵And let ^bthe peace of God rule in your hearts, ^cto which also you were called ^din one body; and ^ebe thankful. Word Studies: peace

¹⁶Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another ^fin psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.

¹⁷And ^g*whatever* you do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him.

The Christian Home

(cf. Eph. 5:21—6:9)

¹⁸ⁿWives, submit to your own husbands, ⁱas is fitting in the Lord.

¹⁹^jHusbands, love your wives and do not be ^kbitter toward them.

²⁰ⁱChildren, obey your parents ^min all things, for this is well pleasing to the Lord.

²¹ⁿFathers, do not provoke your children, lest they become discouraged.

²²^oBondservants, obey in all things your masters according to the flesh, not with eyeservice, as men-pleasers, but in sincerity of heart, fearing God.

²³^pAnd whatever you do, do it heartily, as to the Lord and not to men, ²⁴^qknowing that from the Lord you will receive the reward of the inheritance; ^rfor¹ you serve the Lord Christ.

²⁵But he who does wrong will be repaid for what he has done, and ^sthere is no partiality.

Colossians 4

¹Masters, ^a give your bondservants what is just and fair, knowing that you also have a Master in heaven.

Christian Graces

^{2b}Continue earnestly in prayer, being vigilant in it ^cwith thanksgiving; ^{3d}meanwhile praying also for us, that God would ^eopen to us a door for the word, to speak ^fthe ¹mystery of Christ, ^gfor which I am also in chains, ⁴that I may make it manifest, as I ought to speak.
^{5h}Walk in ⁱwisdom toward those who are outside, ^jredeeming the time.
⁶*Let* your speech always be ^kwith grace, ^lseasoned with salt, ^mthat you may know how you ought to answer each one.

Final Greetings

(cf. Eph. 6:21, 22)

⁷ⁿTychicus, a beloved brother, faithful minister, and fellow servant in the Lord, will tell you all the news about me.

^{8o}I am sending him to you for this very purpose, that ²he may know your circumstances and comfort your hearts, ⁹with ^pOnesimus, a faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They will make known to you all things which are happening here.

^{10q}Aristarchus my fellow prisoner greets you, with ^rMark the cousin of Barnabas (about whom you received instructions: if he comes to you, welcome him), ¹¹and Jesus who is called Justus. These are my only fellow workers for the kingdom of God who are of the circumcision; they have proved to be a comfort to me.

^{12s}Epaphras, who is one of you, a bondservant of Christ, greets you, always ^tlaboring fervently for you in prayers, that you may stand ^uperfect and ³complete in all the will of God. Word Studies: perfect

¹³For I bear him witness that he has a great ⁴zeal for you, and those who are in Laodicea, and those in Hierapolis.

^{14v}Luke the beloved physician and ^wDemas greet you.

¹⁵Greet the brethren who are in Laodicea, and ⁵Nymphas and ^xthe church that is in ⁶his house.

Closing Exhortations and Blessing

¹⁶Now when ^ythis epistle is read among you, see that it is read also in the church of the Laodiceans, and that you likewise read the epistle from Laodicea.

Annotations for Colossians

1:1 Paul calls himself an apostle, a word whose root means “to send.” This Greek word was first used of a cargo ship or fleet, but later denoted a commander of a fleet. The NT employs the word to signify an approved spokesman sent as a personal representative. Although not every Christian is called by God to minister like Paul or the twelve apostles, every Christian is sent by God to represent Him before the people with whom he or she comes in contact.

Jesus Christ

(Gk. Iēsous Christos) (1:1; Matt. 1:1, 18; Mark 1:1; John 1:17; 17:3; 1 Cor. 1:2–10) Strong’s #2424; 5547

“Jesus Christ” is not the first and last names of Jesus, as people are commonly named today. Jesus is His human name, whose meaning relates to His mission to save us (see Matt. 1:18). Christ is a description of His office: He is “the Anointed One,” anointed by God to be our King, Prophet, and High Priest. The combination of name and title is rare in the Gospels (occurring only five times) because Jesus was still in the process of revealing Himself as the Christ. Once this was recognized by His followers, the combination was used prolifically throughout the Book of Acts and the Epistles to express the belief that Jesus is the Christ, the promised Messiah. Paul uses the combined form at the start of Colossians to indicate the theme of his letter, the supremacy of Jesus Christ.

1:2 The Greek term translated saints means “holy people.” The essence of “holiness” is being set apart to God. All believers are saints, not because they are perfect, but because they belong to God. in Christ: This is a favorite expression of the apostle Paul, used some 80 times in his letters. Paul saw all of Christian experience growing out of the believer’s position in Christ. Grace . . . peace: Paul combines the Greek word for grace with the standard Hebrew greeting, peace. He broadens and deepens his meaning by reminding his readers that the ultimate source of “favor” and “wholeness” is in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ (see Rom. 1:7).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

The City of Colosse

Colosse was a Roman city of Asia Minor located at the base of 8,000-foot-high Mt. Cadmus in the Lycus River valley east of Ephesus. The city was watered by a cascade descending through a gorge from Mt. Cadmus. It survived a devastating earthquake in A.D. 61, but later its population moved three miles south to Chonai (modern Honaz). It was a prosperous industrial center, especially famous for its textiles. Judaism, Platonism, and mystery cults from the surrounding mountain people blended into strange, often contradictory religious practices. Cultic worship of angels persisted, with Michael as the favorite. He was credited with sparing the city in a time of disaster. This “syncretism” (combining various ideas, beliefs and practices) mired the Colossian church in debates, division, and depravity. Paul’s message was clear: Christ is preeminent.

- 1:3 The apostle indicates the tender concern that he has for these Christians; he is praying always for them. This common phrase of Paul's (Eph. 1:16; Phil. 1:4; 1 Thess. 1:2), which combines intercessory prayer and thanksgiving, means that each time Paul prayed, he interceded for the Colossians and offered praise for God's work among them.
- 1:4–8 faith . . . love . . . hope: Paul often uses these three terms together (Rom. 5:2–5; 1 Cor. 13:13; 1 Thess. 1:3; 5:8). Faith is in Christ. This is the thrust of the passage. The Colossians' faith was grounded in the nature and work of Jesus Christ. Love flows from faith and proves the genuineness of one's faith (James 2:14–26). The Colossians' sacrificial love for all the saints proved their true belief in Christ. Hope refers to the result of faith, the treasure laid up . . . in heaven where our faith will find its fulfillment in the presence of Christ. Epaphras is also mentioned in 4:12, 13 and Philem. 23. Epaphras probably was Paul's convert and fellow prisoner. He most likely started the church in his hometown of Colosse.
- 1:9–12 Paul's prayer for the Colossian Christians is a model for us. As soon as he heard of the new faith of the Colossians, he began interceding with God for them, asking Him to give them knowledge, wisdom, strength, and joy. He prayed that the new believers at Colosse would grow into Christian maturity so that they might walk before God, pleasing Him and producing good works.
- 1:9 Paul's chief concern is that the Colossians might have full knowledge of God's will. The desire to serve God will be in vain without a proper understanding of the One we want to serve. Thus Paul prays that the Colossians might be filled with full knowledge that encompasses all wisdom and spiritual understanding. Wisdom is the practical outworking of knowledge (see James 3:17), and that knowledge cannot be separated from the spiritual understanding that comes through the discernment given by the Holy Spirit.
- 1:10 In addition to the full knowledge of the Lord's will mentioned in v. 9, Paul desires that the Colossians may walk worthy of the Lord. Paul wanted the Colossians to live in a manner that adequately reflected what God had done for them and was doing in them. Being "worthy of God" is a phrase that occurs in ancient pagan inscriptions throughout Asia. It pictures someone's life being weighed on scales to determine its worth. If these devotees to false gods knew they had to walk in a worthy manner, certainly Christians should dedicate their lives to the living God in order to please Him.
- 1:11 according to His glorious power: This phrase means that believers are empowered not in proportion to their need but according to God's strength. So then, Paul desires to see nothing less than the very power of God Himself at work in the Colossian believers. Like Samson's (Judg. 14:19), a believer's strength comes from God alone.
- 1:12 qualified: The word means to be able or authorized for a task. Believers can never be qualified on their own; instead God must make them sufficient through Jesus Christ. The tense of the verb points to "qualifying" as an act in the past rather than a process. Ordinarily to qualify for an event or a position, we have to prove ourselves. However the inheritance (see v. 5) that believers receive is not one that they have earned but is based on being qualified by God. The Father "qualifies" us for eternal life with Him, whereas the Son will reward us at the end of the race (Rev. 22:12). The term saints probably does not refer to the angels of God as in 1 Thess. 3:13. Instead Paul uses the word for the believers at Colosse.

1:13 Delivered . . . conveyed: God has liberated believers from the dominion of darkness. The apostle uses the common symbolism of light and darkness for good and evil, for God's kingdom and Satan's kingdom, that is found throughout the NT. The kingdom from which believers have been rescued is the kingdom of darkness (see this imagery in John 1:4–9; Eph. 5:8; 1 Thess. 5:5; 1 Pet. 2:9; 1 John 1:5).

1:14 The Greek word redemption points naturally to the payment of a price or ransom for the release of a slave. The slavery from which believers are released is not physical but spiritual. They are freed from bondage to sin by forgiveness of sins through the blood of Jesus Christ (Eph. 1:7).

1:15–20 Paul interrupts his description of his prayers for the Colossians with a song of praise. These verses are generally recognized as an early Christian hymn celebrating the supremacy of Jesus Christ.

1:15 firstborn over all creation: Firstborn could denote a priority in time or in rank. The word does not describe Christ as the first being created in time because the hymn proclaims that all things were “created by Him” and that “He is before all things.” Jesus is the eternal One who was before all creation. The idea of firstborn in the Hebrew culture did not require that one be the first son born. This was not the case with either Isaac or Jacob. But they were the firstborn in the sense that they were rightful heirs to the line of their fathers. Being firstborn referred more to rank and privilege than to order of birth. Since Christ is God, He is supreme in rank over all creation. Yet He is not only the transcendent deity who created us; He is the One who died on our behalf (see Phil. 2:6–18) and was subsequently raised from dead. Thus He is also the firstborn from the dead (v. 18). The first One who experienced the true resurrection (see 1 Cor. 15:20).

Firstborn over Creation

The translation of 1:15–17 has posed a problem for many who study this important passage about Jesus' relation to creation. The passage reads, literally, “He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation, because by means of Him all things were created in the heavens and on the earth. . . . All things have been created through Him and from Him. He is before all things and by means of Him all things were made to exist.” This text of Scripture avers the same teaching about Jesus as found in John 1:1, namely, that He preceded creation and is the cause of all creation. Some advocate an unorthodox view from this passage in saying that Jesus was in reality the first creature that God the Father created and that Jesus then was used by God to create all other creation. They do so by arguing that “firstborn of all creation” means He was first thing created, and that the subsequent verses should be translated “all other things have been created through Him” and “He is before all other things.”

The difficulty of this attempt to deny Jesus Christ His stature as Creator is that “of all creation” in the Greek is a genitive case, the meaning of “begotten,” and the fact that the Greek word for “other” does not occur in the text at all. “First” in the statement speaks of Christ's priority to creation and sovereignty over all creation. The words “of all creation” are the object of “firstborn” rather than “firstborn” being the object of “of all creation.” Second, “begotten” is not the same as “creation”; the words are clearly distinguished in the passage. God begets the Son, but the Son creates the world. When a man begets, he begets a man; when God begets, He begets God and this is from eternity. Creation, on the other hand, is not the same as God. Third, to put “other” in the passage is foreign to the discussion of the text and is merely an attempt to explain away the meaning of the text that Jesus the Creator created all things.

- 1:16 This early Christian hymn emphasizes the superiority of Christ over all creation. Christ is the One who created all things, whether they be material or immaterial, seen or unseen. This idea is in direct contradiction to the false teaching, later known as Gnosticism, that was developing in the Colossian church. In general, Gnostics believed that various angelic beings were the creators of the earth and that Christ was one among many of these angels. All things were created through Him and for Him: Not only did Jesus create all things; everything was created for His purposes (see Heb. 1:2, where Christ is said to be the “heir of all things”). But the glory of the earth, the heavens, or the sun, moon, and stars cannot be compared with the glory of His new creation (2 Cor. 5:17).
- 1:18 Following the celebration of Christ’s authority over all creation, this early Christian hymn proceeds to proclaim His authority over the church. He is the head of His own body, which is the church. No one should underestimate the significance of the church, for it is in fact Christ’s body. The sovereign Creator of the universe, as Head of the church, provides leadership and oversight over it. No wonder He is so jealous for it (see 1 Cor. 3:16, 17). firstborn from the dead: Christ was the first to be raised from the dead. His own resurrection guarantees that the church will one day be resurrected (see 1 Cor. 15:12–28).
- 1:19 fullness: The opponents of Paul, and later the Greek Gnostics, seem to have used this word as a technical term for the sphere between heaven and earth where a hierarchy of angels lived. The Gnostics viewed Christ as one of many spirits existing in this hierarchy between God and all people. However, Paul used the term fullness to refer to the complete embodiment of God. Christ is the only Intercessor for human beings and fully embodies all of God’s nature (1 Tim. 2:5). No other intermediary, whether person or group, is able to stand in our place before the Father. Only Jesus can do this.
- 1:20, 21 reconcile all things . . . now He has reconciled: This phrase shows the significance of Christ’s work on the Cross. It does not mean that all people will be saved, since many passages clearly say that unbelievers will suffer eternal separation from God (see Matt. 25:46). The work of Christ will overthrow the damage effected by the Fall and change all of creation from a position of enmity to a relationship of peace and friendship (see Rom. 8:20–23; 2 Cor. 5:18–20).
- 1:22 body of His flesh: The false teachers at Colosse were telling the believers that redemption could only be accomplished through a spiritual being. They rejected Christ’s incarnation. According to them, Jesus could not have had a physical body. Thus Paul uses two terms, body and flesh, to clearly state that Christ became man and experienced a physical death. holy . . . blameless . . . above reproach in His sight: We who were once enemies of God and alienated by our own wicked works will one day be presented as above reproach on account of Christ’s death for us.
- 1:23 if indeed you continue in the faith: The perseverance of the Colossians was proof of the reconciling work of Christ on their behalf (vv. 21, 22). every creature under heaven: Paul uses this exaggeration to illustrate the rapid spread of the gospel. Compare Acts 17:6, where the apostles are said to have turned the world upside down, even though their ministry up to that point had been limited to a small portion of the eastern Mediterranean region.
- 1:24 In this verse, Paul is not saying that Christ’s death was insufficient (see 2:11–15) or that somehow he was a redeemer with Christ. Paul is making the point that a Christian will endure the sufferings that Christ would be enduring if He were still in the world (see 2 Cor. 1:5; 4:11). Christ had told His disciples that if the world hated Him it would hate His followers. If people persecuted Him they would persecute His followers (John 15:19, 20). Paul believed he was suffering the afflictions God wanted him to endure. Instead of facing his difficulties with dread, Paul saw his troubles as a time of joy (Rom. 8:17; Phil. 1:29; 1 Thess. 1:6; 2:2; 3:3–5; 2 Tim. 3:12), because they were producing an eternal reward (2 Cor. 4:17).

1:26, 27 The mystery referred to in these verses is similar to the mystery spoken of in Eph. 3:8–10. In Greek pagan religions, a mystery was a secret teaching reserved for a few spiritual teachers who had been initiated into an inner circle. Paul uses the word to refer to knowledge that had been hidden from ages and from generations (see 2:2, 4:3; 1 Cor. 2:7; 4:1; Eph. 3:4, 9; 5:32; 6:19; 1 Tim. 3:9, 16), but was now being revealed by God. The Lord had revealed this mystery to Paul and called him to be a steward of it (see Eph. 3:5). The mystery is that Christ now lives within Gentile believers: Christ in you, the hope of glory. This is in harmony with Ephesians. In that letter, Paul states that the mystery is the union of Jews and Gentiles in one body, Christ's church (Eph. 3:6).

1:28 perfect: The concept of perfection in the NT means completeness or maturity. Here the reference is probably to the coming of Christ, when every believer will experience the completion of Christ's work in him or her (see 1 Cor. 13:10).

1:29 Paul toiled and agonized for the perfection of his fellow believers (see v. 28), not in his own strength but by the power of God working in him.

2:1 Laodicea was a sister city of Colosse about 11 miles away. The two churches were to share their letters from Paul (see 4:16).

2:2, 3 Though the false teachers at Colosse spoke of initiating people into a superior knowledge, Paul tells his readers that they can understand the mystery (see 1:26, 27) of God without this false philosophy. The Gnostics sought knowledge as an end in itself, but Paul reminds the Colossians that true knowledge will demonstrate itself by bringing people together in Christian love in the church. Note how Paul joins the Father and Christ together, emphasizing their common deity and unity. The Gnostics would view Jesus only as an emanation from the Father, sharing a portion of the attributes of deity. Paul not only emphasizes Jesus' deity, but also explains that He possesses all wisdom and knowledge. The Gnostics thought only certain "knowledgeable" people could join their elite group; Paul teaches that every believer has access to complete wisdom found in Christ.

2:6, 7 Just as the Colossian believers had begun with Christ, so Paul encourages them to continue in their walk with Him. Paul uses four words to describe the Colossians' walk with Christ. The tense of the word translated rooted denotes a complete action; the believers have been rooted in Christ. The next three words, built up, established, and abounding, are in the present tense, showing the continual growth that should characterize every Christian's walk with Christ.

2:8 This verse has been used at times to teach that Christians should not study or read philosophy. This is not Paul's meaning. Paul himself was adept at philosophy, evidenced by his interaction with the Stoic and Epicurean philosophers in Athens (Acts 17:1–34). Paul was warning the believers not to be taken in by any philosophy that does not conform to a proper knowledge of Christ. The false teachers at Colosse had combined worldly philosophies with the gospel. These philosophies are spoken of by Paul as the basic principles of the world, which some have interpreted as "spirits" or "angels" who supposedly control a person's life (see Gal. 4:3, 9). It seems more likely that the term principles refers to the elementary rules and regulations that certain teachers were seeking to impose on believers according to the dictates of human philosophies. Paul's strongest indictment against the heretics was that their teaching was not according to Christ, and thus they were not walking with Christ (see Paul's exhortation in vv. 6, 7).

2:9 In this verse Paul clearly proclaims the Incarnation, the fact the God became a man bodily. This contradicts the Gnostic idea of the inherent evil of physical bodies and the claim that Jesus is merely a spirit. The Gnostics thought the fullness of God had been divided among a number of angelic beings, the last creating the material world. In contrast, Paul says that the fullness of God exists in Christ.

Word Studies

fullness of the Godhead

(Gk. plērōma tēs theotētos) (2:9) Strong's #4138; 2320

The Greek word plērōma indicates “plenitude” and “totality.” The Gnostics used the word to describe the totality of all deities. Both Paul and John used the word to describe Christ, who is the fullness, the plenitude of God, for all the fullness of the Godhead dwells in Him bodily (1:19; 2:9). Since all of God’s fullness resides in Christ, every spiritual reality is found in Christ. In Him, we lack nothing. The Greek word theotētos for Godhead is used only here in the NT and designates the totality of God’s nature and person. All the fullness of the Godhead “dwells” or “permanently resides” in the body of Jesus, the God-man.

Go to the List of Word Studies

2:10 Paul illustrates the adequacy of Christ by demonstrating how the Colossian believers are complete. In Christ, the Colossians have put off the power of sin and the flesh (v. 11), have received new life (vv. 12, 13), have been forgiven, have been delivered from requirements laid down by human traditions (v. 14), and have been freed from the powers of spirit beings (v. 15). There is nothing that the Christian needs to add to what was received in Christ at the time of conversion. Paul emphasizes the sufficiency of Christ in order to refute the Gnostics and the Judaizers who respectively believed that special knowledge or works were necessary to make a Christian complete.

2:11 Whereas all Jewish males were required to receive physical circumcision, the circumcision that is from Christ is without hands (see Deut. 10:16 for this idea in the OT). Rather than the mere removal of flesh, Christian circumcision is the spiritual removal of sin from the heart, taking part in the New Covenant of Jesus Christ.

2:12, 13 buried . . . in baptism: Baptism is the symbol of the believer’s association with Christ’s death on the Cross. Water baptism itself does not bring forgiveness of sins, but Paul uses the rite to help explain the work of the Spirit. The early church would never have understood the idea of an unbaptized Christian. Baptism and faith were considered to be the outward and inward realities of being a Christian (see Acts 2:38; 10:47, 48; 16:33; Rom. 6:3–5). Some have highlighted Paul’s close association of baptism and circumcision in this passage as an indication that water baptism is a sign of the New Covenant, just as circumcision was a sign of the Abrahamic covenant.

2:14 nailed . . . to the cross: Not only were our personal sins forgiven at the Cross, but those rules that condemned us have also been removed by the death of Christ.

2:15 Principalities and powers allude to Satan and the fallen angels. Paul is describing Christ’s victory on the Cross over the powers that opposed Him and that were against God’s faithful people. To describe this victory, Paul uses the spectacle of the military triumph, when prisoners of war were stripped and paraded before the populace behind the conquering general. Satan and his forces thought the Cross would be their victory and Christ's defeat. In reality, at the Cross the Lord vanquished His foes, took away their weapons, and made a public spectacle of them.

2:16–19 In view of Christ's victory over His enemies, we should not be controlled by those powers and practices over which Christ has already triumphed. The false teachers in Colosse were tempting the Colossians to bind themselves with the outward observances of Judaism, such as the Jewish dietary restrictions. These were merely a shadow of Christ. Judaism and its rites pointed to Christ. Paul warns the believers in Colosse not to let others bind them to regulations from which Christ has already freed them. false humility: People who do not champion salvation in Christ alone often appear to be humble. But their search for a new spiritual experience or advocacy of some work as necessary for salvation is actually human pride. They do not want to submit to God's plan of salvation revealed in the Bible.

2:20–23 regulations: Since believers have been released from ritualistic observances why should they let others bind them down again (see Rom. 6:3–14)? No human work can be added to the merit of Christ's death. His work on the Cross is the only acceptable work in God's eyes. The legalistic commands of others are a self-imposed religion and are of no value for salvation.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

False Teaching at Colosse

The doctrine that was infecting Colosse would eventually be called Gnosticism. This was a prominent Christian heresy in the second and third centuries. Gnosticism taught that special knowledge was needed for a soul to break from the physical realm into the spiritual realm. As this false doctrine developed, it claimed that salvation could only be obtained through such special knowledge. In this way the Gnostics replaced faith with intellect. Gnosticism followed the Greek philosophy that matter was inherently evil. Only nonphysical, "spiritual" realities were good. Gnosticism affected a person's morality in one of two ways: One tendency was indulgence; the other was asceticism. Paul's opponents at Colosse were ascetics. They found legalism alluring, and the strict Jewish laws (see 2:16) meshed easily with their harsh, self-denying rituals. Paul warned his readers that such rituals were useless and had no spiritual value (2:20–23).

Go to the List of Bible Times and Culture Notes

3:1–4 Paul's exhortations in ch. 3 are practical applications of the doctrine he has presented in ch. 2. if . . . you were raised with Christ: Paul ties his ethical teaching (v. 5) to the doctrine of the Resurrection (see 2:12, 13). Set your mind on things above: The false teachers were instructing the Colossians to concentrate on temporal observances; in contrast, Paul instructs them to concentrate on the eternal realities of heaven. The Greek verb for set emphasizes an ongoing decision. Christians must continually discipline themselves to focus on eternal realities, instead of the temporal realities of this earth. A Christian's life is no longer dictated by this world but is hidden with Christ. The Greek word for hidden indicates that God has accomplished this in the past so that it is a present reality.

3:5–8 While obedience to rules cannot bring salvation, those who are saved ought to live worthy of that salvation. Thus Paul gives the Colossians instructions concerning proper conduct. He states in negative and positive terms the kind of life that God wants Christians to live. Although the believers at Colosse were once captivated by the evil practices listed in vv. 5, 8, 9, they were to abandon such practices.

3:9, 10 The analogies between the old man and our old sinful ways and the new man and our new lives in Jesus Christ parallels Paul's discussion in Rom. 6 about dying to sin and living for Christ. The two words old man and new man do not refer to the Christian's fleshly and spiritual natures. Instead, Paul describes our former unredeemed life as the old man, and our life as God's child as the new man. The new man has the image of the new creation in Christ, just as the old man bears the image of our fallen nature. The old man is under an old master, Satan, while the new man has a new master, the Spirit of God living within.

3:11 barbarian: In the Roman Empire a person who did not speak Greek was despised. Scythian: An uncultured person who came from the area around the Black Sea. Greek . . . Jew . . . slave . . . free: This list is similar to the list in Gal. 3:28. In both places the point is not the functions of the persons in the body of Christ, but equal acceptance of all the groups into God's family.

(Gk. brabeuō) (3:15) Strong's #1018

The Greek term eirēnē has a variety of meanings, including “unity,” “tranquility,” and “concord,” and corresponds to the Hebrew word shalom, which primarily means “wholeness.” In the NT, the Greek word is used for a harmonious relationship between people (Rom. 14:19), the order produced by a ruling government (Acts 24:2), and the reconciliation between God and a person through the saving work of Christ (Eph. 2:17). In 3:15, Paul encourages the believers to let “the peace of God rule” in their hearts. The Greek word for rule means “to act as umpire” or “to arbitrate.” The peace of God should act as our umpire when anger, envy, and other such passions arise in our hearts.

3:16 Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly is apparently a parallel thought to Paul's statement in Eph. 5:18 where he says to be “filled with the Spirit.” Both here and in Ephesians, the result of being “filled” with the Spirit or the word of Christ is singing (Eph. 5:19–21). The psalms are the psalms found in the OT, the “songbook” of the early church as well as of Israel. The hymns would be the songs of the church that reflected the new truth in Christ. Examples of such hymns are found in 1:15–20; Phil. 2:5–11; 1 Tim. 3:16. Spiritual songs may have been other kinds of songs praising God.

3:17 In this verse, Paul sums up how Christians should live. We should commit everything we do or say to Jesus and continually thank God for all His good gifts (see Eccl. 12:13, 14).

3:18, 19 Based on the kind of Christian life to which believers are called, Paul gives some practical guidance. General applications like “be good” or “love everybody” are very difficult to follow, so Paul seeks to apply moral truths to the daily lives of the Colossians (see Eph. 5:21–6:9). The Colossian home would usually consist of father, mother, children, and servants. Paul gives instructions to each group. The first is for wives to submit. The word submit is a military term meaning to “arrange oneself under another” and indicates a voluntary submission, not an unthinking obedience. The parallel passage of Eph. 5:21 may speak of mutual submission, as some have suggested. Either way it is clear that submission does not denigrate the one who submits. The husband is commanded to love his wife (Eph. 5:25 says as Christ loved the church). In his headship, he is to seek her highest good, not his own welfare. He is to honor her and be considerate of her, and not to be bitter or harsh.

3:20, 21 Children and fathers also have admonitions from the apostle. Children are to obey. Yet the all things should not be taken as an absolute. When God’s truth and anyone’s demands come into conflict, a child should obey God. Furthermore, a father should be careful not to frustrate his children or discourage them. Regulations should be reasonable, not arbitrary. The father should train his children the same way God disciplines and teaches him.

3:22–25 Bondservants, obey . . . your masters: The question of slaves and masters may appear to be out-of-date and inapplicable to modern society, but on second glance there are important principles in this passage. Even though slavery might not be officially condoned or practiced today, the admonition to work hard as though one was working for God, and not people, applies to employees. the reward of the inheritance: The strong motivation to serve someone well is found in the future reward that Christ gives to those who are faithful in this service. We normally think we receive eternal rewards for spiritual practices like reading the Bible, prayer, or evangelism. Here Paul asserts that all work done to the honor of Christ will bring an eternal reward (see 1:22, 23; 2:18).

4:1 Masters: Paul does not concern himself only with servants or employees. Employers also have a duty not to take advantage of employees. Instead they should offer a just wage, proper benefits, and adequate rest. In contemporary societies, many of these benefits are required by government regulations. But how much better when Christian employers treat their employees well for the Lord’s sake, knowing that they too have a Master in heaven.

4:2 Paul encourages the Colossians to be diligent in thanksgiving and prayer, especially praying for himself and his coworkers as they worked at spreading the gospel. Even the apostle Paul requested and needed the prayers of others to support him.

4:5 Walk in wisdom toward those who are outside: Early Christians were often viewed with suspicion, distrust, and disdain. They were considered atheists because they would not worship the gods of Rome and Greece. Many labeled them as unpatriotic because they would not burn incense before the image of the emperor. Some accused the early Christians of participating in orgies because of their talk of “love feasts” (Jude 12). Others harbored suspicions that Christians were really cannibals, who ate and drank the blood and the body of the Lord. With such misrepresentations of Christian belief and practice running rampant, it was very important for misunderstandings to be dispelled by the virtuous and impeccable lives of Christian believers.

4:7, 8 Tychicus was an intimate friend of Paul’s who came from the province of Asia. He had accompanied Paul on part of the third missionary journey. He probably delivered this letter and answered questions about Paul’s condition in prison.

4:9 The slave Onesimus probably accompanied Tychicus to Colosse. Paul’s letter to Philemon would have been carried along with the letter to the Colossians. It dealt with a personal situation between Philemon and his slave Onesimus, so Paul wrote a separate letter to him.

4:10–15 Paul greets a number of friends and introduces and commends several who work with him. The apostle's great warmth and true appreciation for his beloved coworkers comes through in these few verses. This should remind us that no one is an island. We all need the support of each other in the work of God. Aristarchus, a Jew from Thessalonica, had been traveling with Paul since the riot that occurred in Ephesus on his third missionary journey (Acts 19:29; 20:4). Evidently he remained with Paul even when he was imprisoned in Rome (27:2). Mark is the author of the Gospel of Mark. At the beginning of his second missionary journey, Paul had refused to take Mark with him (Acts 15:37–40). Evidently the two had been reconciled, for Paul commends him here and in 2 Tim. 4:11. Luke is the author of the Gospel of Luke and the Book of Acts. He accompanied Paul on many of his missionary journeys. Demas would later abandon Paul (see 2 Tim. 4:10).

(Gk. teleios) (1:28; 4:12; Rom. 12:2; Phil. 3:15; James 1:4) Strong's #5046

This Greek word is an adjective derived from the word telos, meaning “end,” “limit,” or “fulfillment.” Paul uses telos to speak of Jesus Christ as the complete fulfillment of God's law (see Rom. 10:4). In his letter to the Colossians, Paul uses teleios to speak of the completion or perfection of Christians (1:28; 4:12). The “perfect” Christian is a mature Christian, who has endured trials (James 1:4) and has learned to express God's love to others (3:14). By loving others, we not only are made complete in and through Christ but we also see God's love “perfected” in us (see 1 John 4:12). Just as Paul pressed on towards the goal of perfection (Phil. 3:12–14) to which Christ had called him, so we too should make perfection in Christ our goal, a goal that will be completely achieved when “that which is perfect” comes (1 Cor. 13:10).

4:16 There are numerous theories as to the identity of the Laodicean letter mentioned in this verse. Whether it is one of the other NT letters, like 1 or 2 Thessalonians or Ephesians, or whether it is a lost epistle probably cannot be determined.

4:18 This salutation by my own hand: The apostle dictated his letters to a secretary, but it was his custom to give a greeting in his own handwriting at the end (see 2 Thess. 2:1, 2; 3:17). This served to personalize and authenticate the letter.

Introduction

Nearly all new believers have questions about their faith. As a seasoned missionary, Paul knew this. For this reason, he sent Timothy back to Thessalonica shortly after establishing the church there. Timothy's job was to find out how the young church was doing. When he returned, he was loaded down with their questions. First Thessalonians is Paul's patient reply. He reinforces the basic gospel message, instructs them further in the faith, and provides practical applications for spiritual truths.

Author and Date Paul's authorship of 1 Thessalonians has not been seriously questioned except by a few modern liberal scholars. Paul refers to himself as the author in the letter (1:1; 2:18), and the early church recognized him as such. The canon of Marcion lists 1 Thessalonians as being a work of Paul. Early church fathers such as Irenaeus, Tertullian, and Clement of Alexandria also acknowledged it as being by Paul.

The letter was probably written from Corinth around A.D. 51 and is considered to be one of Paul's earliest epistles. In fact, Galatians may be the only one written before it.

Historical Background Thessalonica was one of the first cities to be evangelized by Paul and Silas when they landed on the continent of Europe. A divine vision of a man from Macedonia inviting Paul to preach the gospel had drawn the two missionaries to that region (see Acts 16:9, 10). After preaching in Philippi, Paul traveled another one hundred miles to Thessalonica. This was a port city and commercial center located in the northwest corner of the Aegean Sea. The Egnatian Way linking Rome to Byzantium passed through it. This important highway and the thriving port made Thessalonica one of the wealthiest trade centers of the Roman Empire. It was the capital and the largest city of the province of Macedonia, with a population of about 200,000.

Because of its strategic location, Thessalonica became a base for the spread of the gospel in Macedonia and Greece. This was Paul's plan. A church planted in a geographic center would become the evangelistic hub for the surrounding region. Evidently this was especially true of Thessalonica, for Paul commends them for their evangelistic work (see 1:8). Paul started the Thessalonian church by preaching for three Sabbath days in the Jewish synagogue. He had great success, not only among the Jews but also among God-fearing Greeks. But some Jews who rejected Paul's message and were envious of his success hired thugs to attack him. When Paul could not be found, the Jews brought the owner of the house where Paul was staying, Jason, before the magistrates. They charged him with treason because he was harboring someone who was teaching that there was another king, Jesus. The magistrates took a bond from Jason and let him go. Consequently, Paul and Silas considered it best to leave immediately, and went to the next important town, Berea. Here they also had a good reception. But when the Jews in Thessalonica heard of it, they went there to stir up more opposition to Paul and Silas. Paul moved on to Athens. After a brief stay there, he went to Corinth, where he was joined by Silas and Timothy (Acts 18:5). Concerned about the welfare of the Thessalonian converts, Paul sent Timothy back to Thessalonica to see how the believers were doing.

After a brief, encouraging ministry in Thessalonica, Timothy rejoined Paul in Corinth and brought a good report of the faithfulness of the Thessalonians even under persecution. They did have some questions about the faith, and Paul undertook to answer these.

Themes First Thessalonians gives us an intimate introduction to how Paul mentored young believers. As this epistle demonstrates, his teaching for young converts was rich in doctrine and application, accurately describing salvation in its full dimensions.

In 1 Thessalonians, Paul reviewed some of the basics of the faith and applied these truths to the believers' lives. He challenged them to persevere in godly living despite persecution. He extended the comfort of the Resurrection to those who were in mourning, and he spoke about details of the Second Coming. In addition, Paul responded to the angry attacks of his Jewish opponents, who were jealous because Christians were drawing God-fearing Gentiles away from the local synagogue. Paul's opponents may have charged that his failure to return to Thessalonica proved that he was insincere. Paul devoted the first three chapters of his letter to correcting this false impression.

In a brief space, Paul covered a wide spectrum of the essential doctrines of Christianity. These include such beliefs as the Trinity (1:5, 6), the deity of Christ (3:11, 12), the power of the Holy Spirit (1:5, 6), the nature of Scripture (2:13), the timing and the events of the Second Coming (1:10; 2:19; 3:13; 4:13–17; 5:23), the day of the Lord (5:1–3), assurance of salvation (1:5), conversion (1:9), sanctification (4:3; 5:23), the Resurrection (4:14–18), the relation of faith to works (1:3), the relation of love to service (1:3), and the relation of patience to hope (1:3).

Because 1 Thessalonians is one of Paul's earliest letters, it reveals much of what Paul preached during his second missionary journey. Evidently the return of Christ was central to his message, for Paul answers many questions about the Second Coming. In fact, perhaps the most significant doctrinal contribution of this small letter is its detailed explanation of Christ's return.

Christ in the Scriptures

Not only does Paul encourage the Thessalonians, but he also motivates their faithfulness by alluding to the Second Coming. Jesus is pictured in this letter as the believers' hope of salvation both now and when He returns to earth. At that time He will deliver us from the wrath that will envelop the world (1:10; 5:4–11). This same Jesus will reward our faithfulness with His physical presence (2:19) after He has resurrected our mortal bodies. "For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven. . . . We who are alive and remain shall be caught up together. . . . And thus we shall always be with the Lord" (4:16, 17).

In the meantime Paul reminds them (and us) that Jesus is committed to our spiritual growth. "May the Lord make you increase and abound in love" (3:12). Even maturing Christians like these in Thessalonica need help in that regard.

1 Thessalonians 1

Greeting

¹Paul, ^aSilvanus, and Timothy,

To the church of the ^bThessalonians in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:

Grace to you and peace ¹from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Bible Times & Culture Notes: Thessalonica In-Text Map: Letter to Thessalonica

Their Good Example

²^cWe give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers,

³remembering without ceasing ^dyour work of faith, ^elabor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ in the sight of our God and Father, ⁴knowing, beloved brethren, ^fyour election by God.

⁵For ^gour gospel did not come to you in word only, but also in power, ^hand in the Holy Spirit ⁱand in much assurance, as you know what kind of men we were among you for your sake.

⁶And ^jyou became followers of us and of the Lord, having received the word in much affliction, ^kwith joy of the Holy Spirit, ⁷so that you became examples to all in Macedonia and Achaia who believe.

⁸For from you the word of the Lord ^lhas sounded forth, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but also ^min every place. Your faith toward God has gone out, so that we do not need to say anything.

⁹For they themselves declare concerning us ⁿwhat manner of entry we had to you, ^oand how you turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God, ¹⁰and ^pto wait for His Son from heaven, whom He raised from the dead, even Jesus who delivers us ^qfrom the wrath to come.

1 Thessalonians 2

Paul's Conduct

(cf. Acts 17:1–9)

¹For you yourselves know, brethren, that our coming to you was not in vain.

²But ¹even after we had suffered before and were spitefully treated at ^aPhilippi, as you know, we were ^bbold in our God to speak to you the gospel of God in much conflict.

^{3c}For our exhortation did not come from error or uncleanness, nor was it in deceit.

⁴But as ^dwe have been approved by God ^eto be entrusted with the gospel, even so we speak, ^fnot as pleasing men, but God ^gwho tests our hearts.

⁵For ^hneither at any time did we use flattering words, as you know, nor a ²cloak for covetousness—ⁱGod is witness.

^{6j}Nor did we seek glory from men, either from you or from others, when ^kwe might have ^lmade demands ^mas apostles of Christ.

⁷But ⁿwe were gentle among you, just as a nursing mother cherishes her own children.

⁸So, affectionately longing for you, we were well pleased ^oto impart to you not only the gospel of God, but also ^pour own lives, because you had become dear to us.

⁹For you remember, brethren, our ^qlabor and toil; for laboring night and day, ^rthat we might not be a burden to any of you, we preached to you the gospel of God.

^{10s}You are witnesses, and God also, ^thow devoutly and justly and blamelessly we behaved ourselves among you who believe;

¹¹as you know how we exhorted, and comforted, and ³charged every one of you, as a father does his own children, ^{12u}that you would walk worthy of God ^vwho calls you into His own kingdom and glory.

Their Conversion

¹³For this reason we also thank God ^wwithout ceasing, because when you ^xreceived the word of God which you heard from us, you welcomed it ^ynot as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God, which also effectively ^zworks in you who believe.

¹⁴For you, brethren, became imitators ^aof the churches of God which are in Judea in Christ Jesus. For ^byou also suffered the same things from your own countrymen, just as they did from the Judeans, Article: Painful Expectations

^{15c}who killed both the Lord Jesus and ^dtheir own prophets, and have persecuted us; and they do not please God ^eand are ⁴contrary to all men, ^{16f}forbidding us to speak to the Gentiles that they may be saved, so as always ^gto fill up the measure of their sins; ^hbut wrath has come upon them to the uttermost.

Longing to See Them

¹⁷But we, brethren, having been taken away from you for a short time ⁱin presence, not in heart, endeavored more eagerly to see your face with great desire.

¹⁸Therefore we wanted to come to you—even I, Paul, time and again—but ^jSatan hindered us.

¹⁹For ^kwhat is our hope, or joy, or ^lcrown of rejoicing? Is it not even you in the ^mpresence of our Lord Jesus Christ ⁿat His coming?

²⁰For you are our glory and joy.

1 Thessalonians 3

Concern for Their Faith

¹Therefore, when we could no longer endure it, we thought it good to be left in Athens alone,

²and sent ^aTimothy, our brother and minister of God, and our fellow laborer in the gospel of Christ, to establish you and encourage you concerning your faith,

^{3b}that no one should be shaken by these afflictions; for you yourselves know that ^cwe are appointed to this.

^{4d}For, in fact, we told you before when we were with you that we would suffer tribulation, just as it happened, and you know.

⁵For this reason, when I could no longer endure it, I sent to know your faith, ^elest by some means the tempter had tempted you, and ^four labor might be in vain.

Encouraged by Timothy

⁶^gBut now that Timothy has come to us from you, and brought us good news of your faith and love, and that you always have good remembrance of us, greatly desiring to see us, ^has we also to see you— ⁷therefore, brethren, in all our affliction and distress ⁱwe were comforted concerning you by your faith.

⁸For now we live, if you ^jstand fast in the Lord.

⁹For what thanks can we render to God for you, for all the joy with which we rejoice for your sake before our God, ¹⁰night and day praying exceedingly that we may see your face ^kand perfect what is lacking in your faith?

Prayer for the Church

¹¹Now may our God and Father Himself, and our Lord Jesus Christ, ¹direct our way to you.

¹²And may the Lord make you increase and ^mabound in love to one another and to all, just as we do to you,

¹³so that He may establish ⁿyour hearts blameless in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all His saints.

1 Thessalonians 4

Plea for Purity

¹Finally then, brethren, we urge and exhort in the Lord Jesus ^athat you should abound more and more, ^bjust as you received from us how you ought to walk and to please God;

²for you know what commandments we gave you through the Lord Jesus.

³For this is ^cthe will of God, ^dyour sanctification: ^ethat you should abstain from sexual immorality; Word Studies: sanctification Charts and Diagrams: Sexual Immorality

^{4f}that each of you should know how to possess his own vessel in sanctification and honor,

^{5g}not in passion of lust, ^hlike the Gentiles ⁱwho do not know God;

⁶that no one should take advantage of and defraud his brother in this matter, because the Lord ^jis the avenger of all such, as we also forewarned you and testified.

⁷For God did not call us to uncleanness, ^kbut in holiness.

^{8l}Therefore he who rejects this does not reject man, but God, ^mwho¹ has also given us His Holy Spirit.

A Brotherly and Orderly Life

⁹But concerning brotherly love you have no need that I should write to you, for ⁿyou yourselves are taught by God ^oto love one another;

¹⁰and indeed you do so toward all the brethren who are in all Macedonia. But we urge you, brethren, ^pthat you increase more and more;

¹¹that you also aspire to lead a quiet life, ^qto mind your own business, and ^rto work with your own hands, as we commanded you,

^{12s}that you may walk properly toward those who are outside, and that you may lack nothing.

The Comfort of Christ's Coming

¹³But I do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning those who have fallen ²asleep, lest you sorrow ^tas others ^uwho have no hope.

¹⁴For ^vif we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him ^wthose who ³sleep in Jesus.

¹⁵For this we say to you ^xby the word of the Lord, that ^ywe who are alive and remain until the coming of the Lord will by no means precede those who are ⁴asleep.

¹⁶For ^zthe Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of an archangel, and with ^athe trumpet of God. ^bAnd the dead in Christ will rise first.

^{17c}Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them ^din the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And thus ^ewe shall always be with the Lord.

^{18f}Therefore comfort one another with these words.

1 Thessalonians 5

The Day of the Lord

¹But concerning ^athe times and the seasons, brethren, you have no need that I should write to you. Bible Times & Culture Notes: End Times Terms

²For you yourselves know perfectly that ^bthe day of the Lord so comes as a thief in the night.

³For when they say, “Peace and safety!” then ^csudden destruction comes upon them, ^das labor pains upon a pregnant woman. And they shall not escape.

^{4e}But you, brethren, are not in darkness, so that this Day should overtake you as a thief.

⁵You are all ^fsons of light and sons of the day. We are not of the night nor of darkness.

^{6g}Therefore let us not sleep, as others do, but ^hlet us watch and be ¹sober.

⁷For ⁱthose who sleep, sleep at night, and those who get drunk ^jare drunk at night.

⁸But let us who are of the day be sober, ^kputting on the breastplate of faith and love, and as a helmet the hope of salvation.

⁹For ¹God did not appoint us to wrath, ^mbut to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, ¹⁰ⁿwho died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with Him.

¹¹Therefore ²comfort each other and ³edify one another, just as you also are doing.

Various Exhortations

¹²And we urge you, brethren, ^oto recognize those who labor among you, and are over you in the Lord and ⁴admonish you,

¹³and to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake. ^pBe at peace among yourselves.

¹⁴Now we ⁵exhort you, brethren, ^qwarn those who are ⁶unruly, ^rcomfort the fainthearted, ^suphold the weak, ^tbe patient with all.

^{15u}See that no one renders evil for evil to anyone, but always ^vpursue what is good both for yourselves and for all.

^{16w}Rejoice always,

^{17x}pray without ceasing,

¹⁸in everything give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you.

^{19y}Do not quench the Spirit.

^{20z}Do not despise prophecies.

^{21a}Test all things; ^bhold fast what is good.

²²Abstain from every form of evil.

Blessing and Admonition

²³Now may ^cthe God of peace Himself ^dsanctify⁷ you completely; and may your whole spirit, soul, and body ^ebe preserved blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Word Studies: spirit

²⁴He who calls you is ^ffaithful, who also will ^gdo it.

²⁵Brethren, pray for us.

²⁶Greet all the brethren with a holy kiss.

²⁷I charge you by the Lord that this ⁸epistle be read to all the ⁹holy brethren. Word Studies: epistle

²⁸The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

Annotations for 1 Thessalonians

1:1 Paul follows the customary form of ancient letters, giving the writer first, the destination second, and a brief greeting third. Paul mentions Silvanus, Silas's Roman name, and Timothy, but he is the writer of the epistle (4:9). When Paul uses the pronoun we (v. 2), he may be referring to Silas and Timothy as editors with him of the letter. After Paul separated from Barnabas (Acts 15:36–40), Silas became Paul's traveling companion on the second missionary journey, and he may have served as Paul's secretary. He was a leader of the Jerusalem church (Acts 15:22, 23), and he accompanied Paul and Barnabas to Antioch to deliver the decree of the Jerusalem Council (Acts 15:22, 23). He and Paul suffered a beating at Philippi (Acts 16:22–24), and he had helped found the church at Thessalonica (Acts 17:1–4). Timothy was also with Paul on the second missionary journey. Paul considered him like a son and loved him dearly (Acts 16:3; see 1 Tim. 1:2). This letter is a response to Timothy's report from the church in Thessalonica. To the church: The Greek word ekklesia was a familiar term meaning any gathering or assembly. In its NT usage this common Greek word calls to mind the relationship of believers to one another and to Christ. Note that Paul addresses the believers at Thessalonica as a body, and not as individual believers. The expression grace to you and peace, though similar to common salutations, eloquently expresses the main concepts of the Christian faith. The word grace means "unmerited favor and blessing," and the word peace describes the relationship Christians have with God and should cultivate with other people. The order of the two terms in the greeting is always maintained in the NT, since God's grace is the only basis for His people's peace.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Thessalonica

In Paul's time, Thessalonica was the prominent seaport and the capital of the Roman province of Macedonia. This prosperous city was located on the Via Egnatia, the main road from Rome to the East, and was within sight of Mt. Olympus, legendary home of the Greek pantheon. A city of perhaps 200,000 in the first century A.D., Thessalonica had a sizable Jewish population, and the ethical monotheism of the Jewish religion attracted many Gentiles who had become disenchanted with Greek paganism. According to 1:9 and 2:14–16, most of the Thessalonian converts were Gentiles who came out of idolatry.

Modern Thessaloniki

Letter to Thessalonica

- 1:2 prayers: Continuing the pattern of the Jerusalem church, these early church planters gave themselves to prayer as well as to preaching the gospel (see Acts 6:4). As in other cities, they had suffered labor pains in giving birth to the church at Thessalonica, and the infant church at Thessalonica was deeply ingrained in their hearts (see 2:13, 17; 3:5, 6).
- 1:3 The faith of the believers at Thessalonica had produced true repentance. When they turned to God, they turned away from idols (v. 9). Note that Paul views the Thessalonians' repentance as a result of their faith, not vice versa. labor of love: The Thessalonians' love for Christ resulted in serving (v. 9) in the midst of persecution (v. 6). Note the contrast between work and labor. Whereas work may be pleasant and stimulating, labor often involves strenuous effort to the point of fatigue and even exhaustion. patience of hope: The believers at Thessalonica fixed their hope solidly on the return of Jesus Christ (v. 10). Notice that each of the virtues has Christ as its object. Jesus is constantly the focus. This is a good standard for evaluating any Christian service: Does it glorify Christ?
- 1:4 knowing . . . your election: The missionaries gave thanks not only for the good works arising from the Thessalonians' faith (v. 3), but more importantly for what God had done for them. God had chosen them to be His holy people. In vv. 5–10, Paul lists the indisputable proof of their election by God: their joyful response to the gospel, their strong faith, and their progress in holiness. God had graciously chosen them, a clear reason to rejoice (v. 2; Eph. 1:3–14).
- 1:5 Paul does not define his gospel at this point, but he had preached it clearly when he was with them: for three weeks he had “reasoned with them from the Scriptures, explaining and demonstrating that the Christ had to suffer and rise again from the dead” (see Acts 17:2, 3). This message of a crucified Christ was far different from the messianic expectations that Paul knew from his own training as a Pharisee. The Jews of that day were not looking for a suffering savior but a conquering champion. Thus Paul had to demonstrate from the OT Scripture that the prophets had foretold the suffering, death, and resurrection of the Messiah. not . . . in word only, but also in power: Paul did not neglect a careful, precise, and persuasive use of the Scriptures in his preaching. But he realized that apart from the convicting work of the Holy Spirit, no one could or would turn to Christ (see John 16:8). But with God's blessing, Paul's preaching persuaded some of the Jews in the synagogue, together with “a great multitude of the devout Greeks, and not a few of the leading women” (Acts 17:4).
- 1:6 followers of us and of the Lord: Everyone needs teachers, especially new converts. At times, Paul encouraged new believers to imitate him (1 Cor. 11:1) as he was imitating Christ. All the writers of the NT lead their readers back to the footprints of Christ as shown in the Gospels (see Phil. 2:5; Heb. 12:2; 1 Pet. 2:21; 1 John 2:6). This should be our goal also, to lead others to Christ by our own virtuous example. As we focus on Jesus, we will reflect His image to others (2 Cor. 3:18). Having received is not the usual word for reception, but a word expressing a warm welcome. The Thessalonians seized the gospel with joy, even if it meant facing persecution.
- 1:8 Your faith . . . has gone out: Testimony of the Thessalonians' remarkable faith rang out throughout Greece and Macedonia. Since Thessalonica was a port city and was on the much-traveled Egnatian Way, those who saw the virtuous life and persistent faith of the Thessalonian Christians would spread the word throughout the entire region. The same had occurred at the Jerusalem church (see Acts 6:7); that is, vital Christian living was making an impact on the people who lived in and traveled through the city.
- 1:9 they themselves declare concerning us: These reports were not from missionaries but from ordinary travelers who were giving their impressions of the Thessalonian believers. turned to God from idols: The truth of the gospel exposed the falsehood of idolatry. Since Jews avoided idolatry, Paul was primarily speaking to a Greek audience (see Acts 17:4).

- 1:10 to wait for His Son: Paul hoped for the Lord's return to occur at any moment. The phrase to wait for pictures an eager and expectant looking forward to the return of our Lord Jesus who delivers us from the wrath to come. This is a future deliverance, but this verse does not make clear whether Paul is referring to a specific time or to the outpouring of God's wrath on unbelievers in a more general sense. Because Christ endured God's wrath at Calvary, all who are in Christ will escape all aspects of God's wrath (see 5:9). Thus, they have nothing to fear.
- 2:1, 2 Paul's motives for coming to Thessalonica had apparently been attacked after he left by pagan Gentiles and by Jews clinging to their traditional faith. Paul pointed out what the Thessalonians knew, that he had not preached to them in vain (see 1:9) but had declared his message in the face of opposition, including the painful experience of being beaten and put in the stocks in Philippi (Acts 16:22–24).
- 2:3, 4 Answering criticism of his motives for preaching, Paul asserted that he used the truth, not error; his motives were pure, not from uncleanness; his presentation was in sincerity, not in deceit (a word used also of a fishing lure to catch fish, suggesting trickery). In contrast to these criticisms, Paul asserted that he and his coworkers were approved messengers, missionaries shown by testing to be genuine. Their ministry was not their personal choice, but God's appointment.
- 2:5–8 Paul denied that in his visit to the Thessalonians he had used flattery. Instead, he preached boldly that everyone was a sinner who needed to be saved by the grace of God. His preaching did not serve as a cloak for covetousness, that is, as a mask to hide greed. Here he appeals to God as his witness because no person could examine his motives. Moreover, he and his companions were not seeking praise or desiring positions of authority. Paul did not even exercise his right for financial support (1 Cor. 9:3–14; 2 Cor. 11:7–11). Instead, here as in Corinth he paid his own way. In contrast to the enemies' accusations, Paul and his companions had demonstrated their loving care for the Thessalonians. While a professional nurse would know how to provide for the physical needs of an infant, a mother cherishes her own children with maternal love. Paul emphasizes the extent of his love: he would have sacrificed his own life for them if necessary.
- 2:9 Paul's affection for the Thessalonians was demonstrated by his labor. As in 1:3, this word indicates strenuous work that produces weariness and fatigue. Paul made tents to provide for his financial needs, working early and late, in order that he might not be a burden to his converts. Paul's actions showed that his ministry was motivated by an unselfish desire to promote the well-being of others rather than to advance his own needs.
- 2:10–12 In addition to their avoiding any need for financial support (v. 9), the morality and devotion to God demonstrated by Paul and his companions backed up their message. They both comforted and challenged the Thessalonians like a loving father (see also v. 7). Paul's ultimate goal for them was that they would walk worthy of God, or live in a way measuring up to the God they served. It seems an impossible standard. But Paul reminds the Thessalonians that God had called them for this purpose, and He would surely empower them, for "He who has begun a good work in you will complete it" (Phil. 1:6). Christians should have the same goals Paul had, of divine approval and the reward at the judgment seat of Christ (2 Cor. 5:9, 10).
- 2:13 Paul and his companions were thankful for the way the Thessalonians had welcomed the Word of God. effectively works: Gentile Christians in Thessalonica could contrast the pure Word of God, with its transforming effect, to the immoral pagan religions, which only perverted people even more. Likewise, Jewish believers could contrast the love and grace of God in the gospel to the legalism and pride often produced by the Jewish religion.
- 2:14 As the church in Judea had been persecuted by unbelieving Jews, so the Thessalonians were being persecuted by both Jews and Gentiles, and they became imitators of those in Judea (see 1:6). Sometimes suffering comes because of our own failures (1 Pet. 4:15), but these believers were suffering because they stood for God's truth (1 Pet. 4:16).

Painful Expectations

Paul's second missionary journey included a brief, turbulent stop in Thessalonica. His four-week visit on the way from Philippi to Berea resulted in a church. But Thessalonica proved to be a hostile environment for the gospel. Not only did Paul and Silas have to leave the city prematurely, but their opponents followed them to Berea and created problems for them there (see Acts 16:35—17:15).

Paul reminded his Thessalonian friends that they had become believers “under fire” (2:14). He had tried to strengthen their young faith with warnings about the suffering they would experience (3:4). But he was concerned about the survival of the church because he had had so little time to lay a solid foundation there.

Paul decided to take action. He traveled alone to Athens while Timothy traveled to Thessalonica to “establish” and “encourage” (3:2) the Christians there, and then undoubtedly to bring fresh news to Paul from that church. Paul based his first letter to the Thessalonians on the encouraging report he received from Timothy.

The Thessalonian experience illustrates a key aspect of the spread of the gospel. The truth takes root in resistant soil. When the “tempter” (3:5) cannot prevent the Good News from bringing life to someone, his tactic changes in order to make the young Christian ineffective. Pressure and persecution are inevitable. They may come camouflaged as vague cultural disapproval, or they may be open hostility, but in one way or another spiritual growth will always meet resistance.

Persecution is demoralizing, but it can also be a cause for taking heart. Without resistance, how can growth be recognized? Trials and tribulations test character (James 1:2–4). Absence of pressure may indicate a lack of growth. Paul's encouraging words still ring true today. The fellowship that comes from suffering together promotes Christian maturity (2:14–16; 3:3, 7).

Go to the List of Articles

2:15 and have persecuted us: Paul tells the Thessalonians that they should not be surprised at suffering for Christ's sake, since fellow believers in Judea, including himself, had already suffered for the cause of the gospel. Such hostility toward the church actually represents hostility toward Christ (see Christ's words to Paul in Acts 9:4, 5).

2:16 to fill up . . . their sins: The implication is that God will allow a nation, group, or individual to accumulate only a certain amount of sin before His judgment falls on them (see Gen. 15:16). In this case, Paul says that the judgment is near. Just as walking in Christ will lead to complete salvation and a reward, the sins of the wicked will lead to ultimate punishment.

2:17, 18 Contrary to what Paul's accusers were asserting, Paul eagerly desired to return. But he may have been hindered (see Dan. 10:13), among other things, by the bond that Jason had deposited for him (Acts 17:9). If Paul returned and a riot ensued, Jason's bond would have been forfeited (Acts 17:1–9). Having been taken away literally means “orphaned,” as a parent is separated from a child (2:7, 2:11). Paul was heartbroken about being taken from them, especially in their infancy in Christ. The many expressions of endearment in this letter indicate the genuine concern Paul had for these new converts.

2:19 In spite of persecution and satanic opposition, Paul looked beyond the present trials (see 2 Cor. 4:16–18) to the joy of being in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ and being with the Thessalonian Christians who had found the Lord through him. The Thessalonians would be Paul's crown (the wreath presented to the winner of Greek athletic contests) because they would prove the genuineness of his work for Christ.

3:1 When forced to leave Thessalonica, Paul and Silas went to Berea, the next city west of Thessalonica. The Jews in Thessalonica who opposed Paul, upon learning that he was at Berea, went there also and stirred up opposition. Paul's friends then escorted him south to Athens (Acts 17:13–15). There Paul left word for Silas and Timothy to join him. But before they arrived, Paul left for Corinth, a short distance west of Athens.

3:2 Because Paul himself could not go to Thessalonica, he sent Timothy in his place. Apparently Silas went back to Philippi, their first stop in Macedonia. Paul sent Timothy to strengthen the church at Thessalonica and to encourage them concerning their faith. The Thessalonians, now that they were saved, needed to be built up in the faith and fortified against the ever-present opposition. Because Timothy was young and lacked the maturity of Paul, a special word of commendation was expressed for him as a brother in Christ, and more importantly as a minister of God, and a fellow laborer in the gospel. Paul showed his strong confidence in Timothy by sending him, not only to the Thessalonians, but later to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 16:10, 11) and to the Philippians (Phil. 2:19–23).

3:3, 4 Difficulties are to be expected in the Christian life, and Paul had warned the congregation of their coming afflictions. The Scripture teaches that those who live godly lives should expect persecution (2 Tim. 3:12). In fact, Christ warned His disciples that they would experience the same type of rejection He had experienced (John 15:18–21). Suffering from persecution should not cause Christians to be downcast. Instead they should rejoice that they have been considered worthy of sharing in Christ's sufferings (see Matt. 5:10–12).

3:5–8 our labor might be in vain: Paul was concerned that the Thessalonians might succumb to the temptations of Satan and forsake their Christian faith. if you stand fast: Paul's joy was based on the Thessalonians' faithfulness to Christ.

3:9 Paul made prayer a priority. In his prayers, he did not forget to thank God for what He was doing. Christians should follow Paul's example by offering praise and thanksgiving along with their petitions.

3:10 Paul's desire to see the Thessalonians was not primarily to satisfy his own love and emotion but to perfect, or complete, their own faith. There is always room for improvement. The Thessalonians' endurance under persecution demonstrated the growth of their faith, but Paul wanted them to mature in it.

3:11–13 Christ had told His disciples that His followers would be identified by their love for one another (John 13:35). Here Paul prays that the Thessalonians would love each other more and more. Finally, Paul expresses his desire that their hearts would be blameless in holiness, not simply before people but before God. The word saints can refer both to saved people and to holy angels. Angels will participate in the Second Coming (4:16; Jude 14; Rev. 19:14).

Word Studies

coming

(Gk. parousia) (3:13; 4:15; 5:23; 2 Thess. 2:1, 8; 2 Pet. 1:16) Strong's #3952

The Greek word parousia literally means “presence.” The word was commonly used in NT times to describe the visitation of royalty or of some other important person. Thus the word signals no ordinary “coming.” The NT writers used the word to describe Christ’s second coming, when He will return to earth in His ultimate, glorious visitation as the King over all.

Go to the List of Word Studies

4:1, 2 Finally does not mean that Paul was coming to a conclusion but serves as a transition to the main section of letter, addressing doctrine and its application to life. In the first three chapters Paul dealt with the readers as a “nursing mother” gently cares for her children (2:7). Now in these last two chapters he urges and charges them with the authority of a father (4:1, 2). Paul commonly uses the word walk as a description of a Christian life (Rom. 6:4; 2 Cor. 5:7; Gal. 5:16; Col. 1:10; 2:6; 4:5). The Christian life not only begins with faith, but it continues as a daily walk of faith. Just as people are dependent on their limbs to support them in every step, so Christians walk in dependence on God. As walking has a direction, so does the Christian life. Christians are not to walk like unsaved Gentiles (Eph. 4:17), instead they are to walk worthy of their calling from God (Eph. 4:1). John exhorts Christians to walk in the light, that is, in the revealed will of God (see 1 John 1:7).

4:3–5 A major problem for the early church was maintaining sexual purity (1 Cor. 5:1, 9–11). Pagan religions often condoned sexual immorality as part of their rites, and ancient Roman culture had few sexual boundaries. In contrast, Paul strongly urged the Thessalonians not to participate in any sexual activity outside of marriage. He reminded them that the human body is God’s temple and should be kept holy (see 1 Cor. 6:18–20). The body should be honored as created by God and should be sanctified in keeping with its holy purpose. Sexual involvement outside of marriage dishonors God, one’s marriage partner or future spouse, and even one’s own body.

Word Studies

sanctification

(Gk. hagiasmos) (4:3, 4, 7; Rom. 6:19, 22; 1 Cor. 1:30; 2 Thess. 2:13; Heb. 12:14) Strong's #38

The Greek term for sanctify means to “set apart” for God’s special use, to make distinct from what is common—hence, to be made like God who is distinct from all else and therefore holy. The Greek word for sanctify refers to a process which is perfect in principle though not yet attained. Though we are not yet completely holy, we stand in relation to God as though we were. This is indicated in Heb. 10:10, where the verb sanctified is in a tense that indicates the present result of a past action. Thus Christ sanctified by His one sacrifice, and that sanctification has the lasting result that it continues to work in us, making us holy. Sanctification has been done once for all, but its effect still continues as stated in Heb. 10:14, in “those who are being sanctified.”

Sexual Immorality

Even though the Thessalonians were living in a sexually charged culture, the apostle Paul urged them to “abstain from sexual immorality” (4:3). According to the Bible, what exactly is sexual immorality? The following is a quick summary.

What is sexual immorality?

The Greek word used by Paul is the term from which we get the English word pornography (4:3). It is a broad term, encompassing any illicit sexual activity.

What specific sexual activities does Scripture prohibit?

- Lust may be a strong desire for anything. But in sexual contexts, lust is defined as “the sinful desire for illicit sex.” Lust is forbidden by Scripture because it gives birth to sin, which leads to death (4:5; Matt. 5:28; Rom. 13:13; James 1:14, 15; 1 Pet. 4:3).
- Adultery is extramarital sex. It is strictly condemned in the Scriptures. The seriousness of this sin is demonstrated by its inclusion in the Ten Commandments (Ex. 20:14) and by its warranting the death penalty under Old Testament law (Lev. 20:10). Proverbs states that it “destroys” the guilty party’s soul (Prov. 6:32).
- Incest, sex with a close relative other than one’s spouse, is prohibited and said to be worthy of the sentence of death (Lev. 18:6–18; 20:11, 12, 17; Deut. 27:20, 22, 23).
- Homosexuality, sex with a person of one’s own gender, is condemned in no uncertain terms in several Old and New Testament passages (Lev. 18:22; 20:13; Rom. 1:26, 27; 1 Cor. 6:9; 1 Tim. 1:10).
- Bestiality is sex with an animal. This sexually deviant behavior is outlawed in the Bible. It was punished with death in ancient Israel (Ex. 22:19; Lev. 18:23; 20:15, 16; Deut. 27:21).

Does the Bible take a prudish view of sex?

No. Sex within marriage is viewed as a good gift from God to be enjoyed and celebrated by both husband and wife (Prov. 5:15–20; Heb. 13:4).

How can believers stay pure in an impure world?

- By living carefully according to God's Word (Ps. 119:9), and hiding it in our hearts (Ps 119:11).
- By making the conscious choice not to lust (Job 31:1).
- By walking under the control of the Holy Spirit (Gal. 5:16–25).
- By fleeing sexual temptations and pursuing righteousness (2 Tim. 2:22).

4:7, 8 Rejecting holiness is rejecting God and the ministry of the Holy Spirit within us.

4:9, 10 The Thessalonian believers already had a good record of loving one another, but Paul desired that love to increase more and more. This was the commandment of Jesus (John 13:34, 35; 15:12, 17) and is an important basis of evangelism. In a world that is filled with self-serving individuals, the genuine love of Christians should attract others to the faith.

4:11, 12 Summarizing his preceding instructions, Paul exhorted the Thessalonians believers to lead a quiet life, not referring to a lack of activity but rather to an inner quietness and peace befitting the Christian faith (see 2 Thess. 3:12; 1 Tim. 2:11). They should not be busybodies but should mind their own business. Usually people who are busy running other people's affairs do not run their own affairs well. A Christian's house should be in order as a testimony to others. Paul also exhorted the Thessalonians to work with their own hands as he had done among them (2:9). Possibly because of their enthusiasm for the coming of the Lord, some Thessalonians had become idle. They might also have been influenced by the general Greek abhorrence for physical labor. But Paul admonished the Christians to be dedicated and productive workers so that they might bring honor to Christ's name.

4:13 fallen asleep: This is a metaphor for dying. Though Paul had taught the Thessalonians about Christ's return when he was there, apparently Timothy had encountered further questions on the subject, possibly arising from the death of some of the new converts. In answer to these questions, Paul stated that he wanted them to be informed, and also to be comforted by the hope of seeing their loved ones again. This was a hope their pagan neighbors did not have.

4:14 This hope (v. 13) for the dead Christians was as certain as the fact of the death and resurrection of Christ. Paul says that God will bring with Him those who sleep in Jesus. Some have inferred from this statement that departed Christians are unconscious until the Second Coming. But the Bible indicates that to be absent from our present body is to be present with the Lord Jesus (5:10; 2 Cor. 5:8; Phil. 1:23). Accordingly when a Christian dies, it is the body that sleeps; the soul goes to heaven.

4:15 Paul believed that Christ could come in his lifetime, and so did the Thessalonians (see 1:10). precede those who are asleep: Evidently the Thessalonians were concerned that believers who had died would miss the glory associated with the Second Coming. Paul answers their question by affirming that actually those who were dead would go before (v. 16) those living on earth.

4:16 Accompanying the descent of Christ from heaven will be the voice of an archangel, perhaps

Michael, who is portrayed as the leader of the army of God (Dan. 10:13, 21; Jude 9; Rev. 12:7–9). The archangel's voice will be one of triumph because of the great victory at the coming of Christ, culminating thousands of years of spiritual conflict with Satan. The final signal will be the trumpet of God. The three elements consisting of the shout of the Lord Himself, the voice of an archangel, and the trumpet of God will perhaps be separate events occurring in rapid succession. The answer to the question as to how the dead can be raised when the remains of their bodies are in some cases totally scattered is not a problem for a supernatural God who created the world. Clearly the resurrection will be a physical resurrection in which bodily existence will be restored, as confirmed in 1 Cor. 15:51–53. The resurrected bodies of Christians will be like that of Christ (1 John 3:2), incorruptible and immortal, and yet they will be bodies of flesh and bone (Luke 24:39, 40; John 20:20, 25, 27). They all will be recognizable, as was the resurrected body of Christ.

4:17 Living Christians will be caught up together with the other believers in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. (The English word rapture comes from the Latin verb meaning caught up.) In the clouds probably refers to atmospheric clouds that also will attend the Second Coming (Rev. 1:7), or it may be the resurrected multitudes who are referred to as a cloud (Heb. 12:1). In the Bible, the Lord is often accompanied by clouds, signifying His glory (see Ps. 68:4; 97:2). The important result is that we shall always be with the Lord.

4:18 The wonderful truth described (vv. 13–17) is to be a comfort to the Thessalonians and to all Christians. They had mistakenly thought that only those who were alive at the time of the coming of Christ would witness and share in the glory of it. The fact is that Christians who have died will be raised first and so go before the living to the gathering in the sky. Observe that Paul expects a practical, immediate response to this great doctrinal teaching of the Second Coming. The Thessalonians should remind one another of this truth as a source of comfort in the face of death. The sentence is in the present tense, indicating that it should be a constant comfort to us to think each day that the Lord may come.

5:1 But concerning: This expression characteristically introduces a different topic. From the discussion of the Second Coming the apostle turns to the day of the Lord. the times and the seasons: This reminds us of the same expression used by our Lord in Acts 1:7. Times probably emphasizes quantity, duration, or measurement, whereas seasons draws attention to the quality, character, or critical nature of the times. no need that I should write: In the previous verses (4:13–18) Paul addressed a matter of ignorance; now he addresses a matter of knowledge. He is not informing as much as he is exhorting them to live in the light of what they already know.

5:2–11 In these verses Paul develops the topic of the day of the Lord. This expression was familiar to those who knew the Hebrew Scriptures. The day of the Lord in the OT was characterized by two phases: God’s judgment against sinful people and God’s eternal reign over His people. God’s judgment will be a time of darkness and an expression of God’s wrath (Joel 2:1, 2; Amos 5:18–20; Zeph. 1:14, 15). His reign will be a time of God’s blessing (Is. 2:1–3; 11:1–9; 30:23–26; Zech. 14:1, 7–11, 20, 21; Matt. 19:28; Acts 3:19–21).

5:2 In contrast to the certainty in the previous paragraph of Christ’s coming, Paul now deals with the uncertainty of the timing of the coming day of the Lord. This period is the subject of considerable prophecy in the OT (Is. 13:9–11; Joel 2:28–32; Zeph. 1:14–18; 3:14, 15). The Book of Joel as a whole is an exposition of the day of the Lord, describing it as a terrible time of judgment. In the OT, the phrase the day of the Lord is used for any period where God intervenes in judgment on the earth. There were “days of the Lord” predicted in the OT that have already been fulfilled (see Amos 5:18). Here Paul uses the expression to refer to Christ’s return and the coming judgment. thief in the night: The day of the Lord will come when no one expects it.

5:3 when they say: Paul does not include himself and his readers among the they. Evidently he is speaking about unbelievers. The world will be absorbed in the cares of this life and will be lulled into a false sense of safety and security. Peace gives the idea of no feeling of alarm, and safety conveys an idea of security from external threats from God or people. The world will have turned a deaf ear to the repeated warnings of coming judgment. Paul uses the image of labor pains to stress the suddenness of the day of the Lord. A woman’s first contraction comes suddenly and unexpectedly.

5:4, 5 But you, brethren: Though the day of the Lord will overtake the unsaved world unexpectedly, it will not overtake Christians, because they will be looking forward to and expecting it. In his characteristic style, Paul first addresses the readers’ beliefs (vv. 1–5) and then their behavior (vv. 6–11). The fact that Christ could come at any moment should motivate unbelievers to accept His forgiveness, and believers to live daily for Him.

5:6 Because Christians are informed concerning future events, they should not be spiritually asleep but should watch and be sober. While every Christian is prepared to go to heaven in the sense of having been saved, not every Christian is prepared at every moment to present the quality of his or her spiritual life to God. Accordingly, this is a call to face the fact that our lives will be judged by Christ (see Rom. 14:10, 11; 1 Cor. 3:11–15; 9:24–27; 2 Cor. 5:10).

5:8 In contrast to what unbelievers do, the Christian should be sober, living a disciplined life, not only free from drunkenness but alert to spiritual realities. The believer should put on the breastplate of faith. Here again is the familiar triad of faith, hope, and love, the basic essentials of a Christian life. In contrast to the unbelief of the world, with its love of self and of material wealth (see 1:3), Christians should place their faith in God and give their love to God and to other people. In addition to demonstrating faith and love, Christians should adopt the hope of salvation and live in the light of the Lord's return.

5:9, 10 Paul states that God did not appoint us (believers) to wrath (see 1:10). There will be wrath at the day of the Lord, but it will be God's wrath on the unbelieving world that has spurned and mocked Christ (Rev. 6:12–17). When we think about divine judgment, we should offer thanks to Christ for saving us from that horrible fate by dying for us. Whether we are still living at the Second Coming, or whether we have died and our bodies are in the tomb, it is assured that we will live together with Him forever.

5:12, 13 Significantly Paul combines prophecy with practical teachings for the Christian life. God never intended prophecy as a field for academic debate but as a truth that would provide believers hope and direction in their lives. In vv. 12–22, Paul describes the characteristics of a person who is living in the light of Christ's imminent return. recognize those: Because everyone in the Thessalonian church was a recent convert, it may have been difficult for some to recognize the leadership of others. Paul teaches the Thessalonians submission rather than individualism and rejection of authority (see Eph. 5:21). He emphasizes that the leaders' authority was from the Lord. Paul admonishes the believers to appreciate and submit to those congregational leaders. They should be held in high esteem because of the important work they were doing. At the same time, the believers were to work together in maintaining the peace among themselves. Notice the plural pronouns; the Thessalonians followed the pattern of the Jerusalem church and all NT churches by having more than one person in leadership (see Acts 6:1–7).

5:14 The Thessalonians had to face the fact that some of them were not living as Christians should, but were unruly. They needed to be warned about their behavior. Some were fainthearted and needed comfort. The congregation should also uphold the weak and be patient toward all, recognizing that all Christians have faults. To be most effective in promoting positive change in people's lives, believers should respond to individuals according to each one's particular needs.

5:15 renders evil for evil: For a Christian to try to get revenge is a denial of basic Christian love (see Rom. 12:17; 1 Pet. 3:9), and it goes against Jesus' teaching (Matt. 5:38–42; 18:21–35).

5:16 Regardless of difficult circumstances (see 3:2, 3), a Christian always has grounds for rejoicing. The Lord is a sovereign Ruler and will accomplish His purpose. Christian joy is not based on circumstances but on a growing awareness of God and the certain future of eternal life with Christ (Rev. 21:1–7).

5:17 Paul exhorts the Thessalonians to maintain a faithful prayer life like his own (1:2, 3; 2:13; Rom. 1:9, 10; Eph. 6:18; Col. 1:3; 2 Tim. 1:3). Praying without ceasing does not mean praying constantly, but being persistent and consistent in prayer.

5:18 Thankfulness should characterize the Christian life in every circumstance, not thanks for everything but thanks in everything. Paul emphatically states this is the will of God. An OT example of this was when Job lost his money, his children, and his health. He blessed the name of God in spite of his personal tragedies, not because of them. Nothing speaks more powerfully of a walk with God than continuous thankfulness.

5:19 To quench the Spirit means to resist His influence, like trying to smother a fire. One of the fundamental rules of walking with God is that we should not say no to the Spirit of God.

5:23 Paul's prayer for the Thessalonians is that they may be sanctified in all aspects of their life, spirit, soul, and body. Every part of a Christian's life should bear evidence that he or she is set apart as holy to God. This will result in being blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Christians are already saints in the sense that they have been set apart to God. Paul exhorts the Thessalonians to express holiness in this life so that the Lord would approve of their conduct upon His return. Blameless does not mean sinless, but free from causes for reproach and regret.

body
(Gk. sōma) (5:23; Matt. 6:22; Heb. 4:12) Strong's #4983

This is the only place in the NT where the tripartite being of a person is implied. Yet in this passage, all three constitute a person in his or her entirety. The spirit enables a person to contact the divine Spirit and is that part of a person that the Spirit quickens at the time of regeneration (John 3:6; Rom. 8:16). The Greek word psuchē, translated soul, means “life.” The NT writers use this word to speak of a person’s personality or inward, animating essence. Finally the NT writers identify the body, a person’s physical being, as separate from one’s soul or spirit. As this verse indicates, God works from the inside out, sanctifying our entire being so that we can live with Him forever.

5:25 pray for us: Paul was faithful in prayer for the Thessalonians, but he also recognized the need and importance of their prayers for him.

epistle

(Gk. epistolē) (5:27; 2 Cor. 3:1–3; 2 Thess. 2:2, 15; 2 Pet. 3:1, 16) Strong's #1992

This Greek word has come into English as epistle. It signifies a written letter, whether personal correspondence (such as 2 and 3 John; see 2 John 12; 3 John 13), or official correspondence (such as Acts 15:23–29; 23:26–30), or a formal treatise (such as Romans; see Rom. 16:22). Sometimes letters of recommendation were sent along with emissaries in order to establish their credentials among those they were visiting. In 2 Corinthians, Paul called the believers in Corinth his epistles, or his living letters of recommendation from God (2 Cor. 3:1–3). Here Paul exhorts the Thessalonians to read his letter to the entire church so that everyone could profit from its teaching.

5:28 The greatest benediction Paul could express is that the grace of Jesus Christ would be with them. Christians are saved by grace and live by grace, enjoying undeserved blessing from their loving God.

Introduction

A simple phone call could have cleared up some of the problems encountered by believers in the early church. But of course there were no telephones in the ancient world. Paul had to be personally tracked down wherever he was and given a letter with questions. The apostle then had to dictate his response and have someone hand-deliver a letter in return. Because of the distances and slow modes of transportation, this process took weeks or even months. The intervening time span often allowed false beliefs to spread or become ingrained in new churches. Second Thessalonians is an example of just such a situation. Paul had to write this letter to correct false ideas about the Second Coming that had arisen in that church.

Author and Date Paul identifies himself as the author of 2 Thessalonians, and even calls attention to his own handwriting at the end of the letter (1:1; 3:17). Although many of the early church fathers, including Irenaeus, Tertullian, and Clement of Alexandria, confirm that this letter came from Paul, some modern scholars have questioned the letter's authenticity. Some have asserted that 1 and 2 Thessalonians teach contradictory doctrines about the Second Coming. The first letter is said to teach an imminent return of Christ, but the second to include an intervening period of "lawlessness" before Christ's return. A closer examination of the question reveals that the instructions of the two letters concerning the end times are complementary, not contradictory. First Thessalonians emphasizes the suddenness of the Lord's coming to those who are unprepared, while 2 Thessalonians highlights some of the events that will occur before Jesus returns. Since Paul wrote 2 Thessalonians to correct a misunderstanding that had arisen from his first letter, the difference between the two letters is understandable.

Second Thessalonians was written from Corinth shortly after 1 Thessalonians, or around A.D. 51 or 52.

Background Paul had encountered stiff opposition when he first preached the gospel in Thessalonica (Acts 17:1–9), forcing him to flee at night to Berea. His travels soon brought him to Corinth. From that city, he sent Timothy back to Thessalonica to ascertain the condition of the church there. Timothy returned with an encouraging report: The Thessalonian Christians were enduring despite persecution. Not only that, but the testimony of the Thessalonians' steadfast faith was spreading throughout Macedonia (1 Thess. 1:8). Paul wrote a letter to encourage the young church and to answer a few questions that they had sent with Timothy. He wrote 2 Thessalonians soon after to correct some misunderstandings about the end times and to counter false teachings that had crept into the church.

Themes Since the writing of 1 Thessalonians, reports had come to Paul of continued progress in the Thessalonian church, indicating their faithfulness to the gospel. However, doctrinal problems had also arisen. False teachers had begun to tell the believers in Thessalonica that the day of the Lord was already at hand. These teachers were misapplying and possibly even twisting Paul's teaching that the day of the Lord would come suddenly (1 Thess. 5:2). Most likely because of this, some of the believers had stopped working and were simply waiting for the Lord. Mounting persecution may have also fueled these extreme beliefs about the Second Coming.

In 2 Thessalonians, Paul stated emphatically that he had never taught that the day of the Lord had already come. To counter false doctrine, Paul gave the Thessalonians a good dose of the truth, explaining to them the emergence of the man of lawlessness and the prevalence of sin during the end times. Furthermore, he reminded them they had been called by God and saved through Christ's work. In view of this fact, he exhorted them to stand firm in Christ (2:15) and to work hard (3:12), always patiently waiting for Jesus' return.

Christ in the Scriptures

Paul writes a second letter in an attempt to weed out the erroneous teaching in the church in Thessalonica. He explains that the day of the Lord has not come and gone; Jesus' return is still pending. As in his first letter, Paul presents Jesus as the joyful hope of all Christians. His eventual return will more than make up for the persecution, suffering, and injustices we are currently anticipating or enduring. Although the Lord's presence will be worth it all for those who look for Him with hope, His return has awesome and terrifying implications for those who refuse to trust in His salvation (1:6–

2 Thessalonians 1

Greeting

¹Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy,

To the church of the Thessalonians in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:

^{2a}Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

God's Final Judgment and Glory

³We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is fitting, because your faith grows exceedingly, and the love of every one of you all abounds toward each other,

⁴so that ^bwe ourselves boast of you among the churches of God ^cfor your patience and faith ^din all your persecutions and ¹tribulations that you endure,

⁵*which is* ^emanifest ²evidence of the righteous judgment of God, that you may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, ^ffor which you also suffer;

^{6g}since it is a righteous thing with God to repay with ³tribulation those who trouble you,

⁷and to give you who are troubled ^hrest with us when ⁱthe Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with His mighty angels, ⁸in flaming fire taking vengeance on those who do not know God, and on those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

^{9j}These shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and ^kfrom the glory of His power, Word Studies: destruction

¹⁰when He comes, in that Day, ^lto be ^mglorified in His saints and to be admired among all those who ⁴believe, because our testimony among you was believed.

¹¹Therefore we also pray always for you that our God would ⁿcount you worthy of this calling, and fulfill all the good pleasure of His goodness and ^othe work of faith with power, ^{12p}that the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you, and you in Him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 Thessalonians 2

The Great Apostasy

¹Now, brethren, ^aconcerning the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ ^band our gathering together to Him, we ask you, ²not to be soon shaken in mind or troubled, either by spirit or by word or by letter, as if from us, as though the day of ¹Christ had come.

³Let no one deceive you by any means; for that Day will not come ^dunless the falling away comes first, and ^ethe man of ²sin is revealed, ^fthe son of perdition, Word Studies: falling away

⁴who opposes and ^gexalts himself ^habove all that is called God or that is worshiped, so that he sits ³as God in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God.

⁵Do you not remember that when I was still with you I told you these things?

⁶And now you know what is restraining, that he may be revealed in his own time.

⁷For ⁱthe ⁴mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only ⁵He who now restrains will do so until He is taken out of the way.

⁸And then the lawless one will be revealed, ^jwhom the Lord will consume ^kwith the breath of His mouth and destroy ^lwith the brightness of His coming. Word Studies: the lawless one

⁹The coming of the lawless one is ^maccording to the working of Satan, with all power, ⁿsigns, and lying wonders, ¹⁰and with all unrighteous deception among ^othose who perish, because they did not receive ^pthe love of the truth, that they might be saved.

¹¹And ^qfor this reason God will send them strong delusion, ^rthat they should believe the lie, ¹²that they all may be condemned who did not believe the truth but ^shad pleasure in unrighteousness.

Stand Fast

¹³But we are ⁶bound to give thanks to God always for you, brethren beloved by the Lord, because God ^tfrom the beginning ^uchose you for salvation ^vthrough ⁷sanctification by the Spirit and belief in the truth, ¹⁴to which He called you by our gospel, for ^wthe obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

¹⁵Therefore, brethren, ^xstand fast and hold ^ythe traditions which you were taught, whether by word or our ⁸epistle.

¹⁶Now may our Lord Jesus Christ Himself, and our God and Father, ^zwho has loved us and given us everlasting consolation and ^agood hope by grace, ¹⁷comfort your hearts ^band ⁹establish you in every good word and work.

2 Thessalonians 3

Pray for Us

¹Finally, brethren, ^apray for us, that the word of the Lord may run swiftly and be glorified, just as it is with you,

²and ^bthat we may be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men; ^cfor not all have faith.

³But ^dthe Lord is faithful, who will establish you and ^eguard you from the evil one.

⁴And ^fwe have confidence in the Lord concerning you, both that you do and will do the things we command you.

⁵Now may ^gthe Lord direct your hearts into the love of God and into the patience of Christ.

Warning Against Idleness

⁶But we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, ^hthat you withdraw ⁱfrom every brother who walks ^jdisorderly and not according to the tradition which ¹he received from us.

⁷For you yourselves know how you ought to follow us, for we were not disorderly among you;

⁸nor did we eat anyone's bread ²free of charge, but worked with ^klabor and toil night and day, that we might not be a burden to any of you,

⁹not because we do not have ^lauthority, but to make ourselves an example of how you should follow us.

¹⁰For even when we were with you, we commanded you this: If anyone will not work, neither shall he eat.

¹¹For we hear that there are some who walk among you in a disorderly manner, not working at all, but are ^mbusybodies. Article: Busy Waiting

¹²Now those who are such we command and ³exhort through our Lord Jesus Christ ⁿthat they work in quietness and eat their own bread.

¹³But as for you, brethren, ^odo not grow weary in doing good.

¹⁴And if anyone does not obey our word in this ⁴epistle, note that person and ^pdo not keep company with him, that he may be ashamed. Charts and Diagrams: Church Discipline

^{15q}Yet do not count him as an enemy, ^rbut ⁵admonish him as a brother.

Benediction

¹⁶Now may ^sthe Lord of peace Himself give you peace always in every way. The Lord be with you all.

¹⁷^tThe salutation of Paul with my own hand, which is a sign in every ⁶epistle; so I write.

¹⁸^uThe grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

Annotations for 2 Thessalonians

- 1:1 Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy were also the authors and editors of 1 Thessalonians. Silvanus (Latin for Silas) had been Paul's traveling companion ever since the start of the second missionary journey. He had participated in the founding of the church at Thessalonica (Acts 17:1–4). Timothy also was accompanying Paul on his second missionary journey. His report from the Thessalonian church had been the occasion for the writing of 1 Thessalonians (1 Thess. 3:6–8). To the church: The Greek word ekklesia means “gathering” or “assembly.” Even though the Thessalonians were experiencing persecution and were being infiltrated by false teachers, Paul still addresses them as an assembly in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. Their troubled circumstances did not change their position before God.
- 1:2 Paul's salutation is similar to those in other ancient letters (see Gal. 1:3; Col. 1:2; 1 Thess. 1:2), but his expression is filled with spiritual meaning. Grace is the unmerited favor God gives to believers through Jesus Christ. Peace refers to the end of enmity between God and people. The Thessalonians could experience peace with God even during severe persecution.
- 1:3 The faithfulness of the Thessalonian church in persecution gave Paul reason to praise God. Satan persecutes Christians in order to discourage and defeat them. These Christians had experienced persecution but continued to grow in Christ, in agreement with the apostle's earlier prayer in his first letter to them (see 1 Thess. 3:10; 4:9, 10). Here the apostle praises God because the Thessalonians' faith is growing exceedingly. They were growing beyond all natural expectation. Abounds pictures an expansive growth similar to the sudden surge of flood waters. The Thessalonians' steadfast faith not only strengthened them to withstand difficult circumstances, it also motivated them to express genuine love for others. A Christian's faith in Christ should always culminate in true love for others (see Christ's command in John 13:34, 35).
- 1:4 Persecution not only tests faith but reveals it and causes it to grow. Continued faith and endurance through persecutions provide a testimony for Christ, of which Paul was boasting to the other churches.
- 1:5, 6 Although the Thessalonians were enduring persecution (see Acts 17:5–9; 1 Thess. 2:14), Paul explains that their persecutors would be repaid by God. The judgment of God requires that the unrighteous be punished for their persecution of the righteous (see Ps. 9; 10; 17; 137; Rev. 6:9; Ps. 9; 10; 17; 137; 10). Also if the believers handle their persecutions properly, they will be counted worthy of great reward in the coming kingdom of God (Matt. 5:12; 1 Pet. 2:19, 20). Christians are called to endure suffering in this world, for they will receive a far greater reward in the next (see 2 Tim. 2:12).
- 1:7–9 Rest is the relief from affliction that will come at Christ's return (see Rev. 6:11). The Christian's race or warfare on this earth necessarily includes tension. This promise of future eternal rest helps the suffering Christian to endure present trials (see v. 4). When the Lord Jesus is revealed: Presently the Lord Jesus is enthroned in glory at the right hand of the Father (John 17:5). Stephen saw this glory before he was martyred (Acts 7:55, 56), but one day, and it may be soon, “every eye will see Him” (Rev. 1:7). Notice the threefold description of His appearance: from heaven with His mighty angels, in flaming fire. Although other passages picture His coming in the clouds, this one describes Him as encircled with leaping flames of fire, taking vengeance on those who have rejected Him. John the Baptist prophesied of this baptism by fire (see Matt. 3:11, 12; Luke 3:16, 17). Today is the day of salvation, but that day will be the day of vengeance on those who do not know God (unbelieving Gentiles; see Eph. 2:11, 12) and those who do not obey the gospel (unbelieving Jews who knew about God but who rejected His Son; Rom. 10:1, 16). There were both Jewish and Gentile converts in the Thessalonian church (see Acts 17:1–5). Therefore the persecuted Thessalonian believers could be encouraged by the fact that when Jesus is revealed from heaven with His angels, He will bring flaming fire and everlasting destruction on the enemies of God, the ones who were persecuting them (Rev. 19:12, 17–19; 20:10–15). The word destruction does not mean annihilation; it refers to the awful fate of those who reject Jesus, eternal separation from God (Matt. 25:42–46).

Word Studies

destruction

(Gk. olethros) (1:9; 1 Cor. 5:5; 1 Thess. 5:3; 1 Tim. 6:9) Strong's #3639

The Greek word for destruction does not mean annihilation, which as nonexistence could not be eternal, but rather the loss of everything worthwhile. In 1 Corinthians, Paul uses the word to speak of the devastating temporal consequences of sin (1 Cor. 5:5). Here and in 1 Tim. 6:9, Paul uses the same word to refer to the eternal consequences of sin. The penalty for sin is not annihilation, but eternal ruin, eternal separation from the love of Christ. Just as endless life belongs to Christians, endless ruin belongs to those who are opposed to Christ.

Go to the List of Word Studies

1:10–12 In contrast to the destruction of the wicked, Christ will be glorified in His saints. Christ will be glorified not only among but also in the saints, for believers reflect His glory. Paul continued to pray that the Thessalonian believers would live in a manner worthy of God, in a way that would glorify Christ (1 Thess. 2:12).

2:1, 2 After writing 1 Thessalonians, Paul had received word that the believers in Thessalonica were being misled by false teachers who were confusing the believers with erroneous ideas about the Second Coming. Paul's second letter was his attempt to correct these misunderstandings. The Greek word translated gathering together is found in the NT only here and in Heb. 10:25. There it refers to the local congregation, while here it is the congregation of the whole church. This will be the first time the whole church, including every believer, will be gathered before the Lord to worship Him. The phrase seems to refer to the event described in 1 Thess. 4:17, where Paul speaks of meeting the Lord in the air. The false teaching was that the day of the Lord (called the day of Christ here, but compare 1 Thess. 5:2–4) had already come, bringing with it the tribulations they were experiencing. Thus some Thessalonian believers thought the Second Coming had passed them by. Paul states that they were not to believe such teaching, whether by spirit or by word or by letter, as though it had come from him.

2:3 When Paul wrote 1 Thessalonians, the believers were in danger of losing hope in the Second Coming. In this letter, Paul was correcting the opposite extreme—that Jesus had already come. Paul restores balance to the church by describing some of the major events that would precede the day of the Lord (see 1 Thess. 5:1–11), in particular the falling away, and the revealing of the man of sin. The falling away, Paul declared, must come first. The Greek term translated falling away commonly means a military rebellion. But in the Scriptures, the word is used of rebellion against God, which will prepare the way for the Antichrist. Some translate the term as departure and understand it to be a reference to the Rapture. That is to say, the man of sin cannot be revealed until Christ comes to take His church to be with Him. As far as the word itself is concerned, it could refer to a spiritual departure (falling away), or it could refer to a physical departure (the Rapture). Paul does not use the title Antichrist for this man, but his description of him parallels John's description of the Antichrist (1 John 2:18; Rev. 13). The man of sin will lead the world into rebellion against God (v. 10), perform wonders through Satan's power (v. 9), and finally will present himself as a god to be worshiped (v. 4).

Word Studies

falling away

(Gk. apostasia) (2:3; Acts 21:21) Strong's #646

The meaning here is a falling away from the faith. The nation of Israel fell into repeated backslidings (Jer. 5:6). The prophet Jeremiah predicted the judgment of God upon such disloyalty: "Your own wickedness will correct you, and your backslidings will rebuke you" (Jer. 2:19). In the NT, apostasy is generally defined as the determined, willful rejection of Christ and His teachings by a Christian believer (John 15:22; Heb. 10:26–29). This is different from false belief, or error, which is the result of ignorance. The Day of Christ "will not come unless the falling away comes first, and the man of sin is revealed, the son of perdition" (2:3). Some Christian groups teach that falling away is impossible for those persons who have truly accepted Jesus as Savior and Lord.

2:4 The man of sin will proclaim himself to be divine and will sit in the temple of God, acting as if he is a god. Many leaders in history have called themselves gods, and the Antichrist is the final declaration of that blasphemy. He will tolerate no one else being worshiped but himself (see Rev. 13:6–8). Note the contrasts between the true God and the Antichrist. The One who deserves all worship and praise does not command worship but instead came to this world as a servant. In contrast, the one who deserves only contempt presents himself as a god. The man of sin will probably stand in a physical temple in Jerusalem, to declare himself to be god, the ultimate fulfillment of the "abomination of desolation" spoken of by Daniel (Dan. 7:23; 9:26, 27; 11:31, 36, 37; 12:11) and Jesus (Matt. 24:15; Mark 13:14). These prophecies may have been partially fulfilled when Antiochus Epiphanes erected a pagan altar to Zeus in the temple in Jerusalem in 167 B.C. (175–164 B.C.), or when Titus destroyed the temple in A.D. 70. Others have interpreted Paul's reference to the temple of God as a reference to the church. In other words, the man of sin will attempt to divert the church's true worship of God to himself.

2:5 Do you not remember: Paul reminds the Thessalonians of his previous teaching about the Second Coming, confirmed in his first letter to them (1 Thess. 4:13-5:11).

2:7 already at work: The evil and deception that the man of sin embodies already exist in this world. John states that there are many antichrists presently at work (see 1 John 2:18). Anyone who opposes Christ and His church and seeks to deceive others into worshiping false gods is against Christ, and in that case is an antichrist. He who now restrains: There was a good reason why the man of sin had not been revealed. The present restrainer, probably the Spirit of God, had to be taken out of the world. God has restrained sin in the world through the power of the Holy Spirit. Some have interpreted taken out of the way in this verse as a reference to the Rapture, for the church cannot exist without the Spirit's presence. Thus the removal of the church through the Rapture will be in effect the removal of all restraint on the power of sin in this world. The Roman state, the emperor of Rome, Paul's missionary work, the Jewish state, or the principle of law and government embodied in the state have all been proposed as the restrainer of lawlessness.

2:8, 9 Although the man of sin will be revealed as extremely powerful (Rev. 13:7), he will be destroyed by Christ and cast into the lake of fire when the Lord comes (Rev. 19:19, 20). The power, signs, and lying wonders of the lawless one will be overshadowed by the glory and brightness of Christ in His Second Coming. It is significant that Satan, in order to promote his lie at the end of the age and pass himself off as a god, will use the same kind of power, signs, and wonders that the Spirit of Christ used at the beginning of the age to authenticate the truth about Himself as God (see 2 Cor. 12:12; Heb. 2:4).

Word Studies

the lawless one

(Gk. ho anomos) (2:8; 1 Tim. 1:9; 2 Pet. 2:8) Strong's #459

The Greek word anomos literally means “without law.” Thus this word is depicting the “man of rebellion.” Just as Christ embodies righteousness, so the “man of lawlessness” will embody rebellion against God’s righteous law. This figure is probably the same person described by John as “the Antichrist” (1 John 4:2, 3) and “the beast” (Rev. 13:1). With his open defiance of the sovereign Ruler of the universe, this man is the embodiment of evil and the great opponent of Christ and His kingdom.

Go to the List of Word Studies

2:12 Unbelievers will share the condemnation of those who rejected the truth and took pleasure in their own unrighteousness. Rejection of the truth of the gospel always results in condemnation. Even those who never hear the gospel can reject the revelation of God in nature (Rom. 1:18–21).

2:13 Paul in these verses emphasizes the importance of believing the truth. Again he begins with thanksgiving (see 1:3; 1 Thess. 1:2; 2:13; 3:9). Paul was continually giving thanks to the Lord for the believers. He was thankful for their salvation, which was based on God’s choice of them, His work in them through the Spirit and the Word, and their ultimate glorification. chose: The Greek tense of this word indicates that in the past God had chosen the Thessalonians to be His people, set apart as holy to Him. Their salvation was accomplished by the Spirit when they placed their faith in Christ. Yet note the balance of the Spirit and the truth (the Word). The Spirit without the Word is mute; He has nothing to say. The Word without the Spirit is lifeless; it has no power to act. The work of the Spirit is always united with the work of the Word to convict the believer of the truth.

2:14 our gospel: In 1 Thess. 1:5, Paul uses this expression to speak of the Good News that Jesus died for us. In other passages he calls it the gospel of Christ (1 Thess. 3:2) and the gospel of God the Father (1 Thess. 2:8). This is the message that Paul had confidently proclaimed among the Thessalonians with the power of the Holy Spirit (see 1 Thess. 1:5). obtaining of the glory: Paul makes it clear that the Thessalonians have already been saved (v. 13) and called by God alone. But now he indicates the Thessalonians’ responsibility to respond to God’s work in them. Through the power of the Spirit (v. 13), the Thessalonians were to prepare on this earth for a glorious future with Christ by living in a holy manner (see 1:10; 1 Thess. 4:1, 2).

2:15 Traditions refers to instructions passed on from one person to another. Sometimes the word refers to human traditions, people’s opinions and speculations. But in this case Paul is referring to the revealed truth of God that contains no error. This is what Paul had passed on to them. He had communicated some of God’s truth when he was preaching among them, further truth by his first epistle, and now he was communicating more truth through a second letter. The NT had not yet been written, and the essential beliefs of the Christian faith were being communicated through the apostles’ preaching and letters. Having believed the truth, the Thessalonian believers were now to maintain it and stand fast in their faith.

2:16, 17 In preparation for the instructions that follow in ch. 3, Paul prays that God would encourage the Thessalonians and establish them in the truth (see a similar prayer in 1 Thess. 3:11–13). It was only because God had graciously chosen them as His own people, loved them, and given them everlasting salvation, that they could have hope. Paul uses the singular verbs comfort and establish with the plural subject, Jesus Christ and the Father, to indicate the unity and equality of these two Persons of the Godhead (see 1 Thess. 3:11).

3:1, 2 Paul not only prayed for the Thessalonians, but he also sensed his own need for their prayers. He asked them to pray for the advance of the gospel and for his own deliverance from human opposition. Run swiftly refers to the rapid spread of the gospel, while glorified expresses the idea of being triumphant. The verbs suggest not a single victory but a continuing series of victories marking the progression of the gospel throughout the world. Unreasonable means the men are capable of harmful deeds, while wicked indicates that they are evil in themselves and desire to corrupt others. These men may have been unbelieving Jews in Corinth who were persecuting Paul at the time he wrote this letter (see Acts 18:12, 13). Justice in this world may never come for Christians, but they can certainly pray for deliverance from the wicked.

3:3 Although Paul was aware that the Thessalonians might be tempted and prove unfaithful, he was confident that God would establish or strengthen them (2:17; 1 Thess. 3:2, 13). He knew that God would guard or protect them (see Phil. 1:6; 1 Thess. 5:24). In the previous verse, he had warned them concerning evil men (v. 2). Here Paul assures them that God will faithfully stand watch over them so that not even the evil one, Satan himself, could get hold of them. This passage must have been especially comforting to the Thessalonians, for they were still experiencing severe persecution on account of their faith (1:4).

3:4 Paul had confidence that the Thessalonians would obey his commands, but his confidence was in the Lord and based on what the Lord would do to help the Thessalonians stand true. Paul had a similar confidence regarding the church in Philippi (see Phil. 1:6).

3:5 With the prayer may the Lord direct your hearts, Paul was indicating that the heart, the seat of a person's will, is the place where spiritual renewal begins. There God plants His love and patience, traits that will produce a harvest of good works. Paul uses the word direct to indicate that God will clear away the obstacles that may stand in the way of their progress toward love and patience. Paul prays that the Thessalonians, when faced with persecution, will be able to show the same type of patience Jesus expressed when people rejected Him.

3:6 Paul uses here the strong word command (see v. 4; 1 Thess. 4:2, 11). This is not simply a suggestion but a binding order with the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ. The same word, found also in vv. 10 and 12, is used of a military command that one must obey or else face the penalty of treason. Paul instructs the Thessalonians to withdraw, or withhold fellowship, from a disobedient person. Among other things this would include not allowing the person to participate in love feasts and the Lord's Supper (see 1 Cor. 5:9–13). See Jesus' instructions in Matt. 18:15–17.

3:7, 8 Some Thessalonians, perhaps using the impending return of the Lord as an excuse, had refused to work and were expecting others in the church to feed them. In his previous letter Paul had already exhorted them to work (1 Thess. 4:11, 12). Evidently they had not heeded Paul's instruction, for in this letter Paul tells the church to discipline them (v. 6). As an example to all, Paul had worked . . . night and day when he preached among them. His goal was to avoid being a burden to anyone. Both the Greeks and the Romans despised manual labor; typically they used slaves for all such tasks. By contrast, the Jews regarded work as an evidence of good character and trained their children to work in a trade. Paul made tents in order to provide for his needs whenever this became necessary on his missionary journeys (Acts 18:1–3).

3:9 Christian workers can expect financial support, and the church is obligated to pay those who serve them (Luke 10:7; 1 Cor. 9:6–14; Gal. 6:6; 1 Tim. 5:17, 18). Yet Paul did not want to use his authority to demand payment. Rather, he wanted to be an example for others to follow. The fact that he worked would also cut off any opportunity to accuse him of greed. He wanted nothing to hinder the spread of the gospel (1 Cor. 9:12).

3:10 Again using the expression we commanded you this, Paul laid down the rule that if anyone does not work, neither should he eat. This applies to those unwilling to work, not to those unable to work.

3:11 Idleness breeds sin. Those who are disorderly, not working at all, become busybodies, causing trouble and division in the church.

Busy Waiting

Every generation of Christians must face the dilemma of how to live in the tension between the possibility of Christ's immediate return and the impossibility of predicting the moment. Many Christians unfortunately settle the problem by living as if Christ will not return. Meanwhile, others dabble in various fruitless but persistent schemes to "figure out" the time of Christ's return.

The young Thessalonian church struggled with persecution from the outset. Facing such difficulties, many of them found hope in the promise of Christ's return. Others misapplied the lesson by becoming lazy. After all, they reasoned, if Christ is already on His way, why participate in the details and responsibilities of life? Why sow if we will not be here to reap?

For those who had chosen to "coast" until Christ's return, Paul had blunt words: "If anyone will not work, neither shall he eat" (3:10). Paul understood the strong temptation to hide irresponsibility under a cover of spirituality. The integrity of the gospel was at stake.

In his final words of encouragement in 2 Thessalonians, Paul touched on the daily challenge for every person seeking to live for Christ: "But as for you, brethren, do not grow weary in doing good" (3:13). Herein lies the secret of being ready for Christ's return. If the hope of His arrival stirs up a wholehearted commitment to do good for His sake, we will be ready for Him. We must be busy waiting.

3:12 Again Paul says we command and exhort (see vv. 6, 10). He urges the Thessalonians to eat their own bread and to do so in a quiet manner, not causing division and disruption. Paul's cure for gossip is hard work.

3:14 do not keep company with him: Again (see v. 6) the believers were to withdraw fellowship and not associate with anyone who disregarded the words of this authoritative letter from the apostle Paul. Otherwise their pagan neighbors might think the Thessalonian Christians approved of that person's actions.

Church Discipline

In 2 Thess. 3:14, Paul instructs the Thessalonians to discipline one of their church members. What does church discipline involve? When should it be employed? What does the Scripture say about it? The following chart attempts to sort out a frequently misunderstood process.

The Definition	Church discipline is ultimately the denying of fellowship to a believer in Christ who is involved in open sin.
The Occasion	Church discipline involves Christians engaged in overt sin (Matt. 18:15–17 ; 1 Cor. 5:9–13), especially sexual immorality; those creating division within the body of Christ (Rom. 16:17 ; Titus 3:10); and those in open defiance of God’s appointed leadership in the church (3:6, 7, 14 ; Heb. 13:17).
The Reason	A church must exercise discipline because the church must remain pure (1 Cor. 5:8).
The Goal	The goal of church discipline is to cause the sinning person to repent (James 5:19, 20); to “gain back” or restore an erring brother (Matt. 18:15 ; Gal. 6:1); to make the sinful person feel ashamed enough to change (3:14).
The Steps	There are several distinct steps to church discipline. First, meet one-on-one with the person. Second, if necessary meet with the person and another church member. Third, if there is no change in behavior, announce the matter to the congregation so that the whole church can corporately encourage the person to repent. Finally, if all else fails put the sinning person out of the assembly (Matt. 18:15–17).
The Attitude	The tone of church discipline should be firm gentleness (Gal. 6:1). The people exercising church discipline should put away any spite, hatred, or malice so that they can facilitate true restoration.
The Commands	Matt. 18:15–17 ; Rom. 16:17 ; 1 Cor. 5:1–13 ; Gal. 6:1 ; 2 Thess. 3:6, 7, 14, 15 ; Titus 3:10, 11 ; Heb. 13:17 ; James 5:19, 20

3:15 admonish him as a brother: The disobedient one is not an enemy, but one who needs correction. Even though rebellion was to be dealt with, Paul demonstrates his tremendous compassion for fellow believers. He hated the sin but not the sinner.

3:16 In view of the possibility of disharmony in the church, Paul prayed that the Lord of peace would guide their actions, granting peace and unity to the church.

3:17 with my own hand: Paul dictated many of his epistles to a secretary. He adds a personal word in his own handwriting as evidence of the authenticity of this letter (see also Col. 4:18). This proof was necessary in this case because Paul suspected that the Thessalonians might have received a letter falsely attributed to him (see 2:2). To guard against this, Paul explicitly tells the Thessalonians that his handwriting at the end of a letter is the official sign that a letter was from him.

3:18 To all the difficulties that faced the Thessalonians and Paul as well, the solution was the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. Not only was Jesus the Thessalonians’ ultimate hope, but it was He who lovingly strengthened them to endure trials. It was Paul’s prayer that this would be evident in their midst.

Introduction

Sometimes the most difficult part of a teacher's job is to let the students go, to let them graduate and make their way in the world. One can sense this kind of anxiety in Paul's first letter to Timothy. He affectionately calls Timothy "a true son" (1:2), charging him again and again to remain faithful to what he had taught him (1:18; 4:12–16; 5:21; 6:11–13). The letter concludes with Paul's heartfelt cry: "O Timothy! Guard what was committed to your trust" (6:20).

Timothy had accompanied Paul for years (Acts 16:1–3; 17:15; 20:4), assisting him and acting as his liaison to a number of churches. Paul had not only taught Timothy the essentials of the Christian faith, he had modeled Christian leadership to him. Now Paul was leaving Timothy in charge of the church at Ephesus. From Macedonia, Paul wrote to encourage his "son" in the faith. In effect, this letter is Timothy's commission, his orders from his concerned teacher, the apostle Paul.

Author and Date The letter names Paul as its author, and the author's statements about his life in 1:12, 13 are consistent with what is known of him. The early church fathers Clement of Rome and Polycarp accepted the letter as one of Paul's, as did Irenaeus, Tertullian, and Clement of Alexandria.

Early in the nineteenth century, some scholars began to question Paul's authorship of the Pastoral Epistles (1 and 2 Timothy and Titus). Critics claimed that these letters were "pious forgeries" written in the second century. They leveled four different attacks on the integrity and authenticity of these letters. First is a historical problem. Since the chronological references in these letters do not correspond with the Book of Acts, critics assume that the letters were written at a much later time by an impostor. However, the letters could have been written soon after the events described in the Book of Acts. Many scholars hold that Paul was acquitted and released from the imprisonment described in Acts 28, and then traveled for several years in Asia Minor and Macedonia. During this time he wrote the disputed letters. Eventually he was imprisoned in Rome again, and then died in Nero's persecution.

Second, critics argue that the Pastoral Epistles do not fit Paul's writing style. These letters contain a number of words that occur only here in the New Testament but are common in the writings of the second century. This is taken as evidence that the letters are from the second century. The weakness of this argument is that there is a limited body of literature from the second century from which to draw such a dogmatic conclusion.

The third point relates to the form of church leadership described in the Pastoral Epistles. The structure of authority, including elders and deacons, seems to represent a more developed, second-century church. However, it is clear from Philippians 1:1 that the offices of bishop and deacon were already functioning during Paul's ministry.

The fourth argument involves theology. Critics claim that the heresy combated in the Pastoral Epistles is the full-grown Gnosticism of the second century. While it is true that Gnosticism was not fully developed until the second century, it is also certain that the heresy began slowly and evolved before it became a complete theological system. Paul dealt with similar false teachings in Colosse (see Col. 1:9–15). The heresy in 1 Timothy appears to be an early form of gnostic teaching that combined elements of Judaism (see 1:7), Persian thought, and Christianity.

There is no reason, therefore, to conclude that 1 and 2 Timothy are not authentic Pauline Epistles. First Timothy was probably composed shortly after Paul's release from his first Roman imprisonment. This means the book was composed in Macedonia around A.D. 62.

Historical Setting Timothy was a native of Lystra in Phrygia (see Acts 16:1–3). His father was Greek, and his mother Eunice and grandmother Lois were godly Jewish women (see 2 Tim. 1:5; 3:14, 15). It was through the influence of these women that Timothy learned the Hebrew Scriptures as a child. Paul calls Timothy a “true son in the faith” (1:2), suggesting that he was converted during Paul's first missionary visit to Lystra (see Acts 14:6, 19).

At the beginning of Paul's second missionary journey, Timothy was chosen by Paul to accompany him and Silas (see Acts 16:3). Since they would be preaching to Jews, Paul had Timothy circumcised (Acts 16:3), and evidently the leadership of the church laid hands on Timothy (4:14; 2 Tim. 1:6). He traveled with Paul and Silas helping them in their evangelization of Philippi and Thessalonica. Apparently he remained in Thessalonica (see Acts 17:10) and then joined Paul and Silas in Berea. In Corinth, Paul employed Timothy as a liaison between himself and the church in Thessalonica (see the Introduction to 1 Thessalonians). Later he used Timothy as a liaison again, this time to the church in Corinth, to teach the believers there (1 Cor. 4:17; 16:10). Acts does not record Timothy's travels during this period. He reappears in Ephesus (Acts 19:22), where Paul commissioned Timothy and Erastus to prepare the churches in Macedonia for his arrival. Timothy remained in Macedonia and accompanied Paul to Corinth, where presumably Paul wrote his letter to the Romans (see Rom. 16:21).

Then Timothy, along with six others, spearheaded Paul's journey to Troas (see Acts 20:4, 5). Later he comforted Paul in Rome during the apostle's first imprisonment (A.D. 60–62), sending greetings to the Colossians (see Col. 1:1), Philemon (see Philem. 1), and the Philippians (see Phil. 1:1). During Paul's imprisonment, Timothy traveled to Philippi to encourage the believers there and then report back to Paul in Rome (Phil. 2:19). After Paul's release, Timothy traveled with him to Ephesus. Timothy stayed there to confront the false teachers who were infiltrating the church, and Paul went on to Macedonia, where he wrote his first letter to Timothy (1:3). He wrote his second letter to him from prison (2 Tim. 1:8), imploring Timothy to come quickly. This was probably Paul's last letter, for he was soon to die. If Timothy did come quickly, he would have been with him as his "true son" in the final days before his execution (see 2 Tim. 4:11, 21).

Themes The central purpose of 1 Timothy is found in 3:15: "I write so that you may know how you ought to conduct yourself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth." The church is God's primary vehicle for accomplishing His work on earth (see Matt. 16:18–20). The Lord has ordained that men and women who have trusted Him as Savior should be involved in working out His will in local assemblies around the world (see Heb. 10:24, 25).

Paul wrote 1 Timothy in order to instruct his young protégé on how the church should function and on how mature men and women of God should interact in it (6:11–16). Specifics are given on developing and recognizing godly leadership and avoiding false doctrine in the church (3:1–13; 4:1–6). Paul insists that Christian maturity should be expected in leadership, while it is developed in the lives of all believers (4:6–10). Paul offers Timothy a whole list of extremely practical advice for leading a church. As he faced the problems and hardships of ministry in a local church, Timothy must have repeatedly read Paul's letter for the valuable insights it offers (4:15).

Christ in the Scriptures

In this letter Paul presents Jesus as the "one Mediator between God and men" (2:5), and reminds Timothy, his young apprentice, that "God was manifested in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen by angels, preached among the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up in glory” (3:16). Jesus came to earth to save sinners (1:15) by giving Himself as a ransom for all (2:6). Paul wants Timothy to understand that this One who is both God and Man not only has our salvation in mind but is also the source of spiritual strength, faith, and love (1:12, 14). No wonder Paul wants Timothy to focus on Jesus as he faces the challenges of ministry. Jesus is the Savior in every and all circumstances (4:10).

1 Timothy 1

Greeting

¹Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ, by the commandment of God our Savior and the Lord Jesus Christ, our hope,

²To Timothy, a ^atrue son in the faith:

^bGrace, mercy, and peace from God our Father and Jesus Christ our Lord.

No Other Doctrine

³As I urged you ^cwhen I went into Macedonia—remain in Ephesus that you may ¹charge some ^dthat they teach no other doctrine, Charts and Diagrams: Practical Advice for the Ministry

^{4e}nor give heed to fables and endless genealogies, which cause disputes rather than godly edification which is in faith.

⁵Now ^fthe purpose of the commandment is love ^gfrom a pure heart, from a good conscience, and from ²sincere faith,

⁶from which some, having strayed, have turned aside to ^hidle talk,

⁷desiring to be teachers of the law, understanding neither what they say nor the things which they affirm.

⁸But we know that the law is ⁱgood if one uses it lawfully,

⁹knowing this: that the law is not made for a righteous person, but for the lawless and insubordinate, for the ungodly and for sinners, for the unholy and profane, for murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, for manslayers,

¹⁰for fornicators, for sodomites, for kidnappers, for liars, for perjurers, and if there is any other thing that is ³contrary to sound doctrine, ¹¹according to the glorious gospel of the ^jblessed God which was ^kcommitted to my trust.

Glory to God for His Grace

(cf. Acts 8:1–3; 9:1–19)

¹²And I thank Christ Jesus our Lord who has ^lenabled me, ^mbecause He counted me faithful, ⁿputting me into the ministry, ¹³although ^oI was formerly a blasphemer, a persecutor, and an ⁴insolent man; but I obtained mercy because ^pI did it ignorantly in unbelief.

^{14q}And the grace of our Lord was exceedingly abundant, ^rwith faith and love which are in Christ Jesus.

^{15s}This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance, that ^tChrist Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief.

¹⁶However, for this reason I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might show all longsuffering, as a pattern to those who are going to believe on Him for everlasting life.

¹⁷Now to ^uthe King eternal, ^vimmortal, ^winvisible, to ⁵God ^xwho alone is wise, ^y*be* honor and glory forever and ever. Amen.

Fight the Good Fight

¹⁸This ⁶charge I commit to you, son Timothy, according to the prophecies previously made concerning you, that by them you may wage the good warfare,

¹⁹having faith and a good conscience, which some having rejected, concerning the faith have suffered shipwreck, ²⁰of whom are ^zHymenaeus and ^aAlexander, whom I delivered to Satan that they may learn not to ^bblaspheme.

1 Timothy 2

Pray for All Men

¹Therefore I ¹exhort first of all that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men, Word Studies: intercession

^{2a}for kings and ^ball who are in ²authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and ³reverence.

³For this is ^cgood and acceptable in the sight ^dof God our Savior, ^{4e}who desires all men to be saved ^fand to come to the knowledge of the truth.

^{5g}For there is one God and ^hone Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus,

⁶ⁱwho gave Himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time, Word Studies: ransom

^{7j}for which I was appointed a preacher and an apostle—I am speaking the truth ⁴in Christ and not lying—^ka teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth.

Men and Women in the Church

⁸I desire therefore that the men pray ^leverywhere, ^mlifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting; Article: A New Way to Worship

⁹in like manner also, that the ⁿwomen adorn themselves in modest apparel, with propriety and ⁵moderation, not with braided hair or gold or pearls or costly clothing, ^{10o}but, which is proper for women professing godliness, with good works.

¹¹Let a woman learn in silence with all submission.

¹²And ^pI do not permit a woman to teach or to have authority over a man, but to be in silence.

¹³For Adam was formed first, then Eve.

¹⁴And Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived, fell into transgression.

¹⁵Nevertheless she will be saved in childbearing if they continue in faith, love, and holiness, with self-control.

1 Timothy 3

Qualifications of Overseers

¹This is a faithful saying: If a man desires the position of a ¹bishop, he desires a good work.

²A bishop then must be blameless, the husband of one wife, temperate, sober-minded, of good behavior, hospitable, able to teach; Word Studies: bishop

³not ²given to wine, not violent, ³not greedy for money, but gentle, not quarrelsome, not ⁴covetous; In-Text Map: Paul's Fourth Missionary Journey c. A.D. 62–68

⁴one who rules his own house well, having his children in submission with all reverence

⁵(for if a man does not know how to rule his own house, how will he take care of the church of God?);

⁶not a ⁵novice, lest being puffed up with pride he fall into the same condemnation as the devil.

⁷Moreover he must have a good testimony among those who are outside, lest he fall into reproach and the ^asnare of the devil.

Qualifications of Deacons

⁸Likewise deacons must be reverent, not double-tongued, ^bnot given to much wine, not greedy for money, ⁹holding the ⁶mystery of the faith with a pure conscience.

¹⁰But let these also first be tested; then let them serve as deacons, being found blameless.

¹¹Likewise, their wives must be reverent, not ⁷slanderers, temperate, faithful in all things.

¹²Let deacons be the husbands of one wife, ruling their children and their own houses well.

¹³For those who have served well as deacons ^cobtain for themselves a good standing and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus.

The Great Mystery

¹⁴These things I write to you, though I hope to come to you shortly;

¹⁵but if I am delayed, I write so that you may know how you ought to conduct yourself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ⁸ground of the truth.

¹⁶And without controversy great is the ⁹mystery of godliness:

^dGod¹⁰ was manifested in the flesh,

^eJustified in the Spirit,

^fSeen by angels,

^gPreached among the Gentiles,

^hBelieved on in the world,

ⁱReceived up in glory.

1 Timothy 4

The Great Apostasy

¹Now the Spirit ¹expressly says that in latter times some will depart from the faith, giving heed ^ato deceiving spirits and doctrines of demons,

^{2b}speaking lies in hypocrisy, having their own conscience ^cseared with a hot iron, ³forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from foods which God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth.

⁴For every creature of God is good, and nothing is to be refused if it is received with thanksgiving;

⁵for it is ²sanctified by the word of God and prayer.

A Good Servant of Jesus Christ

⁶If you instruct the brethren in these things, you will be a good minister of Jesus Christ, ^dnourished in the words of faith and of the good doctrine which you have carefully followed.

⁷But ^ereject profane and old wives' fables, and ^fexercise yourself toward godliness.

⁸For ^gbodily exercise profits a little, but godliness is profitable for all things, ^hhaving promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come.

⁹This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance.

¹⁰For to this end ³we both labor and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, ⁱwho is the Savior of all men, especially of those who believe.

¹¹These things command and teach.

Take Heed to Your Ministry

¹²Let no one ⁴despise your youth, but be an ^jexample to the believers in word, in conduct, in love, ⁵in spirit, in faith, in purity.

¹³Till I come, give attention to reading, to exhortation, to ⁶doctrine. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Greek and Roman Schools

^{14k}Do not neglect the gift that is in you, which was given to you by prophecy ¹with the laying on of the hands of the eldership.

¹⁵Meditate on these things; give yourself entirely to them, that your progress may be evident to all.

¹⁶Take heed to yourself and to the doctrine. Continue in them, for in doing this you will save both yourself and those who hear you.

1 Timothy 5

Treatment of Church Members

¹Do not rebuke an older man, but exhort him as a father, younger men as brothers, ²older women as mothers, younger women as sisters, with all purity.

Honor True Widows

³Honor widows who are really widows.

⁴But if any widow has children or grandchildren, let them first learn to show piety at home and ^ato repay their parents; for this is ¹good and acceptable before God.

⁵Now she who is really a widow, and left alone, trusts in God and continues in supplications and prayers ^bnight and day.

⁶But she who lives in ²pleasure is dead while she lives.

⁷And these things command, that they may be blameless.

⁸But if anyone does not provide for his own, ^cand especially for those of his household, ^dhe has denied the faith ^eand is worse than an unbeliever.

⁹Do not let a widow under sixty years old be taken into the number, and not unless she has been the wife of one man, ¹⁰well reported for good works: if she has brought up children, if she has lodged strangers, if she has washed the saints' feet, if she has relieved the afflicted, if she has diligently followed every good work.

¹¹But ³refuse the younger widows; for when they have begun to grow wanton against Christ, they desire to marry, ¹²having condemnation because they have cast off their first ⁴faith.

¹³And besides they learn to be idle, wandering about from house to house, and not only idle but also gossips and busybodies, saying things which they ought not.

¹⁴Therefore I desire that the younger widows marry, bear children, manage the house, give no opportunity to the adversary to speak reproachfully.

¹⁵For some have already turned aside after Satan.

¹⁶If any believing ⁵man or woman has widows, let them ⁶relieve them, and do not let the church be burdened, that it may relieve those who are really widows.

Honor the Elders

¹⁷Let the elders who rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially those who labor in the word and doctrine.

¹⁸For the Scripture says, ^f“You shall not muzzle an ox while it treads out the grain,” and, ^g“The laborer is worthy of his wages.”

¹⁹Do not receive an accusation against an elder except ^hfrom two or three witnesses.

²⁰Those who are sinning rebuke in the presence of all, that the rest also may fear.

²¹I charge you before God and the Lord Jesus Christ and the ⁷elect angels that you observe these things without ⁱprejudice, doing nothing with partiality.

²²Do not lay hands on anyone hastily, nor ^jshare in other people’s sins; keep yourself pure.

²³No longer drink only water, but use a little wine for your stomach’s sake and your frequent ⁸infirmities.

²⁴Some men’s sins are ^kclearly evident, preceding them to judgment, but those of some men follow later.

²⁵Likewise, the good works of some are clearly evident, and those that are otherwise cannot be hidden.

1 Timothy 6

Honor Masters

¹Let as many ^abondservants as are under the yoke count their own masters worthy of all honor, so that the name of God and His doctrine may not be blasphemed.

²And those who have believing masters, let them not despise them because they are brethren, but rather serve them because those who are benefited are believers and beloved. Teach and exhort these things.

Error and Greed

³If anyone teaches otherwise and does not consent to ^bwholesome words, even the words of our Lord Jesus Christ, ^cand to the ¹doctrine which accords with godliness,

⁴he is proud, knowing nothing, but is obsessed with disputes and arguments over words, from which come envy, strife, reviling, evil suspicions, ⁵²useless wranglings of men of corrupt minds and destitute of the truth, who suppose that godliness is a means of gain. ³From ^dsuch withdraw yourself.

⁶Now godliness with ^econtentment is great gain. Article: The Challenge of Contentment

⁷For we brought nothing into this world, ⁴*and it is* ^fcertain we can carry nothing out.

⁸And having food and clothing, with these we shall be ^gcontent.

⁹But those who desire to be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and harmful lusts which drown men in destruction and perdition.

¹⁰For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, for which some have strayed from the faith in their greediness, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.

The Good Confession

¹¹But you, O man of God, flee these things and pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, gentleness.

¹²Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, to which you were also called and have confessed the good confession in the presence of many witnesses.

¹³I urge you in the sight of God who gives life to all things, and before Christ Jesus ^hwho witnessed the good confession before Pontius Pilate, ¹⁴that you keep this commandment without spot, blameless until our Lord Jesus Christ's appearing,

¹⁵which He will manifest in His own time, He who is the blessed and only ⁵Potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords, ¹⁶who alone has immortality, dwelling in ⁱunapproachable light, ^jwhom no man has seen or can see, to whom be honor and everlasting power. Amen.

Instructions to the Rich

¹⁷Command those who are rich in this present age not to be haughty, nor to trust in uncertain ^kriches but in the living God, who gives us richly all things ^lto enjoy.

¹⁸*Let them* do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to give, willing to share, ^{19m}storing up for themselves a good foundation for the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.

Guard the Faith

²⁰O Timothy! ⁿGuard what was committed to your trust, ^oavoiding the profane and ⁶idle babblings and contradictions of what is falsely called knowledge— Word Studies: idle babblings

²¹by professing it some have strayed concerning the faith. Grace be with you. Amen.

Annotations for 1 Timothy

1:1 Paul begins his first letter to Timothy by asserting his authority as an apostle of Jesus Christ. The Greek word for apostle means “sent one.” Thus Paul was declaring that he was an ambassador sent by Christ. The commandment of God refers to God’s sovereign commissioning of Paul’s ministry (see Acts 9). The authority of Paul’s ministry came from two sources: from God our Savior and from the Lord Jesus Christ. The title Savior identifies God as the source of our salvation, both our justification and sanctification. Paul speaks of Christ as our hope because He is the reason we can expectantly look forward to eternal life in glory.

1:2 Timothy was a young believer from Lystra who traveled with Paul during his second and third missionary journeys (Acts 16:2, 3). True son refers to a legitimate child who possessed all the rights and privileges of membership in a family. Paul was indicating total acceptance of Timothy as a believer.

1:3 It is not certain when Paul traveled to Macedonia. His request for Timothy to remain in Ephesus, ministering to believers there, demonstrates Paul’s confidence in the young man.

Practical Advice for the Ministry

Timothy was a young minister, appointed to lead the apparently contentious church at Ephesus. He had already learned the essentials of the gospel; now he had to learn how to lead. In this letter, Paul was passing on all the wisdom he had accumulated in his years of ministry. His insights are extremely practical and valuable even today.

- 1:4 The word fables is used in Titus 1:14 in connection with Jewish fables. Genealogies is used in Titus 3:9 within the context of the Law. The errors that Paul left Timothy to correct in Ephesus appear to have been primarily Jewish in nature, involving unrestrained speculation about genealogies and allegorical interpretations of the Law like those found in rabbinical literature. In Ephesus this could have been combined with Gnostic speculation concerning a number of spiritual beings. The Greek word for edification means “stewardship” and expresses the concept of orderly management of a household. Paul understands the church as the “house of God” (see 3:14, 15). Disputes do not promote “house order” in the church. The focus of a believer’s life should be the clear and sound doctrine found in the Word of God, not human speculation.
- 1:5 The purpose of Paul’s command to Timothy is the promotion of God’s love in the church (see John 13:34, 35).
- 1:6 Idle talk means “empty chatter.” Gossip, speculation, and criticism should not come from the lips of believers.
- 1:7 teachers of the law: This phrase is derived from Judaism and is used in Luke 5:17; Acts 5:34 in connection with the Pharisees. These were the individuals whom Timothy was to instruct and correct. Their errors came from their relation to the law. These men were loveless, legalistic teachers with impure hearts and motives. Instruction without love promotes legalism.
- 1:8 The proper function of the law is to make sinners aware of their sinfulness (see Rom. 3:20).
- 1:9 Paul’s list of those who have violated the law appears to parallel the order of the Ten Commandments (see Ex. 20:3–17). The first three pairs of violations recall the first four commands, which address a person’s relationship with God: the lawless and insubordinate, the ungodly and . . . sinners, and the unholy and profane. Following these are eight violations that parallel five of the last six commands of the Ten Commandments. Covetousness is not mentioned.
- 1:10 Fornicators are persons involved in sexual immorality in general. Sodomites are specifically male homosexuals (see 1 Cor. 6:9). But heterosexual and homosexual immorality are violations of the seventh commandment. kidnappers . . . liars . . . perjurers: These are violations of commandments eight and nine. Sound doctrine may also be translated “healthy teaching.” Sound is derived from the Greek for “in good health.” Doctrine is a key theme in 1 Tim. (see also 4:1, 6, 13, 16; 5:17; 6:1).
- 1:11 according to the glorious gospel: This phrase should be interpreted in its immediate context, a discussion about the purpose of the law. The proper use of the law is to demonstrate human sinfulness and our need for the Good News that Christ has saved us from bondage to the law and our own sins.
- 1:13 Before Paul trusted in Christ as Savior, he was a blasphemer, speaking against God; a persecutor, pursuing Christians like a hunter pursuing his prey (see Acts 8:3; 9:1–5); and an insolent man, a violent person acting out of personal pride. but I obtained mercy: If the apostle Paul could find mercy after the terrible things he did against Christ, then God surely offers salvation with “open arms” to all people (see 2:4).
- 1:14 Grace is God’s undeserved, unearned, freely given favor. The grace given to Paul was exceedingly abundant, overflowing beyond all expectations.
- 1:15 Paul summarized the heart of the gospel (v. 11): Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. World refers to all humanity. Save means to deliver or rescue. Christ came to die for the sins of humanity. of whom I am chief: Paul saw the degradation of sin and understood the sinfulness of human beings. Because of this, he placed himself first among sinners.

1:16 believe on Him: Over 185 times in the NT the sole condition given for salvation is belief, having faith or trust in Jesus Christ. The gospel is that Christ died for our sins, was buried, and rose on the third day. All those who place their trust in Jesus for salvation will be saved from the coming judgment. To add any other condition to faith for salvation is to make justification a matter of works (see Rom. 11:6; Gal. 2:16).

1:18 Apparently earlier in his ministry prophecies had been made about Timothy and his future role in the church. Paul urges Timothy to wage the good warfare. According to this powerful imagery, Christian ministry is spiritual warfare directed against God's enemies.

1:20 Hymenaeus and Alexander: Paul offered examples of two men (see also 2 Tim. 2:17, 18; 4:14) who were failing to fight the good fight (v. 18, 19). The phrase delivered to Satan is similar to 1 Cor. 5:5. The authority to "deliver over" was apostolic in nature. Paul did not deliver the two men because they were unbelievers, but so that they would learn not to blaspheme. In the NT the word translated learn is used only of God's discipline of believers (see 1 Cor. 11:32; Heb. 12:6, 7, 10). Paul was indicating that these men should be excluded from the church so that they might abandon their evil ways (1 Cor. 5:1–5).

2:1, 2 Therefore: Here Paul elaborates on what will build up the church (see 1:4). In these verses, Paul uses four of the seven NT terms for prayer. Supplications emphasizes personal need. The verb from which the noun is derived has the idea of "petition." Prayers is the general word for prayer. The term is always directed toward God with reverence or worship. Intercessions means "approaching with confidence," suggesting free access to God. Giving of thanks is an attitude of gratitude, the act of praising God for what He has done for us. Each of these aspects of prayer should be included in the prayer life of a church. For all men is the first object of prayer. This generic expression for male and female alike cannot be restricted to believers; it also includes nonbelievers, such as kings and all who are in authority. Peaceable refers to internal composure or an amiable attitude. The idea of praying for kings has a twofold emphasis. First, it is a specific way to pray for all men, because the actions of a king affect society as a whole. Second, it reminds believers that God is the ultimate Sovereign. He is in control, and our prayers affect decisions at the highest level.

intercession

(Gk. enteuxis, entugchanō) (2:1; Rom. 8:34; Heb. 7:25) Strong's #1783;
1793

Intercession is the act of petitioning God or praying on behalf of another person or group. The sinful nature of this world separates human beings from God. It has always been necessary, therefore, for righteous individuals to go before God to seek reconciliation between Him and His fallen creation. The sacrifices and prayers of OT priests (Ex. 29:42; 30:7) were acts of intercession that point forward to the work of Christ. Christ is, of course, the greatest intercessor. He prayed on behalf of Peter (Luke 22:32) and His disciples (John 17). Then in the most selfless intercession of all, He petitioned God on behalf of those who crucified Him (Luke 23:34). In heaven He intercedes for His church (Heb. 7:25). Finally, because of their unique relationship to God through Christ, Christians are urged to intercede for all people (1 Tim. 2:1).

2:4 Who desires all men to be saved does not mean that God has willed that everyone should come to salvation, for elsewhere Paul clearly teaches that only those who believe in Christ will receive salvation (see Rom. 1:16, 17; 3:21–26; 5:17). This is also the clear teaching of Jesus (John 3:15–18). Thus universal salvation is not the determinative will of God by which He sovereignly rules the world. Instead what Paul might be saying here is that the Savior God extends the offer of salvation to all. Christ died for the sins of all, but only those who believe receive the benefits of that sacrifice (see John 3:16; 2 Cor. 5:14, 15). The knowledge of the truth refers to Christian growth after being saved. God's desire is not only our salvation (justification) but also our growth in the truth (sanctification), so that we will not be led astray by false teachers (1:3, 4).

2:5 One God is a central truth of the Hebrew Scriptures. The only living God desires all to be saved. He is the only One to whom our prayers should be addressed. Mediator is a concept derived from the ceremonial worship prescribed in the OT. In the tabernacle and later in the temple, the priests meditated between God and the Israelites by offering animal sacrifices to atone for the sins of the people and by interceding to God for the nation. In their position as mediators, the priests were the only ones eligible to enter the Holy Place, the place where God had made His presence known. The one Mediator is the Man Christ Jesus (see Heb. 9:11–15). There is one God from whom salvation is available. There is only one way to Him, through the Mediator, Christ Jesus, who has the full nature of God and the full nature of man.

2:6 The work of the Mediator (v. 5) is described as giving Himself a ransom for all. The Greek word translated ransom is found only here in the NT. It specifically refers to a ransom paid for a slave. In Greek it is formed with a prefix that reinforces the idea of substitution (see Matt. 20:28; Mark 10:45). In other words, Christ substituted His life for ours. Our sins had separated us from God. Christ paid the penalty for our sins so that we could be reconciled to our Father.

Word Studies

(Gk. antilutron) (2:6) Strong's #487

The word ransom in Greek is antilutron made up of anti (signifying substitution) and lutron (the word used for the ransom of a slave or prisoner). The antilutron is a payment given instead of a slave or prisoner—that is, in substitution for him or her. The person holding the slave accepts the payment as a substitute. According to Gal. 3:13, Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law. The law held us captive in its condemnation, and no one but Christ could pay the price to release us from this bondage.

2:7 Teacher of the Gentiles describes the ministry to which Paul had been commissioned (see Acts 9:15; Rom. 11:13). Faith refers to one's initial salvation (justification); truth relates to the believer's growth in salvation (sanctification). Paul was called not only to preach the gospel to the Gentiles but also to guide their growth in the truth. This is why he left Timothy at Ephesus. Timothy was to charge the Ephesians not to teach other doctrines, fables, or endless genealogies (1:4).

2:8 The men refers to those involved in leading public worship. Leadership in public worship is not restricted to elders or those with specific gifts. Prayer is one of the central features of Christian worship. The Greek word translated men in this verse refers to males distinguished from females. Some have insisted that this means that males are to be the only leaders in public worship. On the other hand, Paul describes women as praying in public in some of his other letters (see v. 9; 1 Cor. 11:5). Lifting up holy hands is a Hebrew way of praying (see 1 Kin. 8:22; Ps. 141:2). Holy means “morally and spiritually clean.” Biblical prayer must be done with a clean heart and life (see Heb. 10:22). without wrath and doubting: Wrath is a slow, boiling type of anger. Doubting literally means “to think backward and forward.” It carries the idea of disputing. Prayer is to be offered without resentment or disputing among those in the church. If believers do not have good relations with others in the church, they should not lead in public worship.

A New Way to Worship

What is the proper way to worship God? For those who had grown up in the religious climate of Ephesus before the gospel, Christian worship called for altogether different behavior than they were used to practicing. So Paul offered guidelines for worship to the men and women in the Ephesian church (1 Tim. 2:8–15).

Ephesus was world-renowned for its magnificent temple of Diana (Artemis). Pagan cults flourished there, along with occult practices. In fact, books with magic recipes came to be known as “Ephesian books.”

Nevertheless, the gospel bore great fruit there and the community of believers grew rapidly. Yet some of the new converts brought their old way of life into the church and began teaching other doctrines (1:3–7). When it came to worship, many were used to wild rites and festivals. Ephesian women were particularly unacquainted with public behavior, having been excluded for the most part from public gatherings, except pagan rituals.

So Paul described the correct way of worship. Men, who were apparently given to anger and doubts, needed to stop wrangling and start praying (2:8). Likewise, women needed to focus on godliness and good works rather than clothing, jewelry, and hairstyles (2:9, 10). And because some were apparently disruptive, they needed to practice restraint (2:11)—not necessarily complete silence, but “quietness” (as the word is translated in 2 Thess. 3:12), since they likely participated in the prayers and other expressive parts of the worship gatherings (compare 1 Cor. 11:5; Eph. 5:19).

Today the message of Christ continues to attract people from a variety of backgrounds. Some, like the Ephesians, need to learn for the first time about worshiping God. Others bring cultural norms and expectations that are worth using in the worship experience, so long as they preserve biblical guidelines such as those that Paul gave to the Ephesians.

Palmyra funerary relief, third century A.D. Paul instructs the women to dress modestly (2:9, 10) rather than focusing on their fancy clothing, jewelry, and hairstyles.

2:9 in like manner also: This expression probably continues the discussion of prayer begun in v. 8. In other words, when men pray they are to possess sincere and holy attitudes; when women pray, they should be modest. modest apparel: The emphasis is that women should dress appropriately when at worship, and not put on extravagant clothes that draw attention to themselves. Propriety means reverence and respect, shrinking away from what is inappropriate. Moderation may also be translated “sound judgment” or “self-control.”

- 2:10 Paul exhorts the women at Ephesus to be concerned about clothing themselves with godly character instead of wearing inappropriate and lavish clothes. with good works: A Christian woman's beauty is found in her godly character and her love for the Lord as demonstrated in all types of good works.
- 2:11 Let a woman learn is a command. Paul ignored popular myths about women being incapable of learning and urged Timothy to provide opportunities for women to be educated. In silence refers to the woman's attitude or manner while learning, as should be true of all believers. Paul was not saying that a woman could not speak in the local assembly (see 1 Cor. 11:2–16). He was simply cautioning women to learn with an attitude of all submission and not in an unruly manner.
- 2:12 to teach: Paul uses a Greek word that indicates the type of teaching that was found in the Jewish communities and synagogues from which he had come. Such teaching was built on the revelation of God and assumed that there would be some sort of oversight, like that exercised in the early church by the elders (see 4:11; 4:16–5:2; 2 Tim. 3:17; 4:1–4; Titus 2:15; 3:8–11). Generally those who exercised this responsibility in the early church had the spiritual gift of teaching (see Rom. 12:7; 1 Cor. 12:28), but not every gift of teaching (by men or women) was necessarily to be exercised over the entire congregation. The word or seems to indicate that teach is defined by the phrase have authority over a man. It seems best to understand this passage as teaching that women may exercise their spiritual gifts in a variety of ministries in a local assembly (see 2 Tim. 3:14; Titus 2:3, 4), as long as those gifts are exercised under the appropriate leadership of men. Other commentators have viewed this verse as an example of Paul using his apostolic authority to curb the spread in Ephesus of false teaching (see 1:3–7) that apparently was becoming popular among some women who had not been properly instructed (see v. 11).
- 2:13, 14 For: Paul offers reasons for the directives of vv. 9–12. Adam was formed first refers to Gen. 2:7–25. In God's order of creation (see 1 Cor. 11:9), Adam was made before Eve. This is an implied reference to the privileges that a firstborn received in ancient society. These privileges were not given on the basis of inherent superiority but instead on being born first, something controlled by God Himself. The second reason for the prohibitions in vv. 9–12 is related to the Fall. Adam was not deceived points to the fact that Adam sinned with his eyes open; he knew what he was doing (see Rom. 5:12). woman being deceived: The verb indicates that Eve was "completely deceived." Paul's argument from creation and the Fall in these verses seems to indicate that the prohibitions in vv. 9–12 are permanent. (Some have argued that Paul was drawing an analogy between creation and the Fall and the present situation in the Ephesian church, where men were teaching and some women were being misled by false teachers.)
- 2:15 saved in childbearing: Some believe this verse refers to the birth of Christ and that the woman is Mary. However, it may refer to the woman's special task of bearing children (see Titus 2:3–5). The salvation referred to here is not justification, but daily sanctification. Most likely, Paul is referring to being delivered from the desire to dominate by recognizing one's appropriate place in God's creation order. If they continue suggests that this salvation (that is, sanctification) is conditioned upon women's continued walk in the faith, in love, in holiness, and in self-control.
- 3:1 bishop: This Greek word refers to a person who oversees a congregation. In many NT passages, the Greek words for bishop and elder are used interchangeably for the same office (see Titus 1:5–7).
- 3:2 Blameless means "not laid hold of." The idea is not that a bishop is sinless but that he displays mature, consistent Christian conduct that gives no reason for anyone to accuse him of anything. Husband of one wife literally means "a one-woman kind of man." This expression has been interpreted as a general exclusion from office of all who are sexually immoral or of polygamists, or as referring specifically to those who have remarried after divorce. This is also a qualification of deacons (v. 12). Temperate means "without wine," sober or clear-headed. Sober-minded means that an overseer must have control of his body and mind. It is a balanced state of mind arising out of self-restraint. Of good behavior means "orderly." Hospitable means "loving strangers." An overseer's home should be open for purposes of ministry. Able to teach could also be translated “qualified to teach,” or “teachable.” Since the passage is about character, it seems best to understand this qualification as being teachable, a necessity for a man of God (see 5:17; 2 Tim. 2:24; Titus 1:9 for the requirement that an elder should be able to teach).

(Gk. episkopos) (3:2; Acts 20:28; Phil. 1:1; Titus 1:7) Strong's #1985

The Greek term episkopos means “one who oversees.” In the NT, elders are described as overseeing a congregation. See Acts 20:17; 20:28, where the elders of the church at Ephesus are called overseers. Elders were responsible for the internal affairs of the church; and there seem to have been several elders in positions of responsibility in any given congregation (see Acts 14:23; Titus 1:5–7). After NT times, it became the custom to appoint one elder as the presiding elder and to give him the title of bishop.

Go to the List of Word Studies

3:3 Not given to wine means “not addicted to wine.” Not violent means “not a striker.” An elder should not be prone to violence or to striking others. not greedy for money: An overseer is not to have a materialistic attitude toward money or possessions. Part of this qualification is a warning to those in church leadership concerning proper management of God’s finances. Not quarrelsome means “without fighting.” This is the quality of being peaceable. A bishop or overseer should contend for the faith without being contentious. Not covetous means “not a lover of silver” (6:9). Note that this is a second warning about money. Certain Ephesian elders were receiving financial support from the ministry (5:17, 18). Paul exhorted them not to allow their desire for money to become a priority.

Paul’s Fourth Missionary Journey c. A.D. 62–68

It is clear from Acts 13:1—21:17 that Paul went on three missionary journeys. There is also reason to believe that he made a fourth journey after his release from the Roman imprisonment recorded in Acts 28. The conclusion that such a journey did indeed take place is based on: (1) Paul's declared intention to go to Spain (Rom. 15:24, 28), (2) Eusebius's implication that Paul was released following his first Roman imprisonment (Ecclesiastical History, 2.22.2–3), and (3) statements in early Christian literature that he took the gospel as far as Spain (Clement of Rome, Epistle to the Corinthians, ch. 5; Actus Petri Vercellenses, chs. 1–3; Muratorian Canon, lines 34–39).

The places Paul may have visited after his release from prison are indicated by statements of intention in his earlier writings and by subsequent mention in the Pastoral Letters. The order of his travel cannot be determined with certainty, but the itinerary below seems likely.

1. Rome—released from prison in A.D. 62
2. Spain—62–64 (Rom. 15:24, 28)
3. Crete—64–65 (Titus 1:5)
4. Miletus—65 (2 Tim. 4:20)

- 5. Colosse—66 (Philem. 22)
- 6. Ephesus—66 (1 Tim. 1:3)
- 7. Philippi—66 (Phil. 2:23, 24; 1 Tim. 1:3)
- 8. Nicopolis—66–67 (Titus 3:12)
- 9. Rome—67 (2 Tim. 1:17)
- 10. Martyrdom—67/68 (2 Tim. 4:6)

- 3:4 Rules means “stands before” or “manages.” his own house: An elder must manage his own family well. His children must submit to his leadership with reverence or respect.
- 3:6 Novice means “newly planted.” An elder is not to be a new believer. Being a new convert could put him in danger of being puffed up with pride. Such pride is described as the condemnation of the devil (see Ezek. 28:11–19).
- 3:7 good testimony: An elder must have a good reputation in the community (see Acts 6:3). A non-Christian should not be able to reproach or insult an elder. The elder’s good testimony avoids the snare of the devil, the traps or pitfalls of Satan (see 2 Tim. 2:26).
- 3:8 Deacons fill a second leadership position in the local assembly. The Greek word for deacon means “servant.” Although the word itself is not used in Acts 6, the seven godly men selected there to distribute food to widows appear to be the forerunners of this office and ministry. This verse and Phil. 1:1 indicate that the office of deacon was an established office in the early church. not double-tongued: This phrase speaks of the dangers of gossip, specifically saying one thing to one person and another to someone else.
- 3:9 The mystery of the faith is the doctrine clarified in v. 16 as the incarnation of God in the flesh. The Son of God becoming flesh to serve humanity (see Mark 10:43–45) is the embodiment of service.
- 3:10 tested: Deacons are to be evaluated, observed, and approved before being appointed to office. Their character in this approval process is to be blameless or “without accusation.”
- 3:11 Likewise, their wives: The similar phrasing of v. 8 seems to indicate that Paul was speaking of another office in the local body, the deaconess. These women, like deacons (vv. 8–10, 12, 13), served under the leadership of the elders. However some interpret this verse as referring to the wives of deacons and not to an office.
- 3:13 A twofold encouragement is given to deacons who serve well. First, they will receive a good standing, or respect. This relates primarily to their standing in the congregation, but also to their greater rewards for service at the judgment seat of Christ (see Rom. 14:10; 1 Cor. 3:10–15, 2 Cor. 5:10). Second, they develop boldness in the faith. Faithful servants develop confidence and assurance in their Christian walk.
- 3:15 Paul’s purpose in writing his first letter to Timothy was to give him instructions on how a local assembly and its leadership should function. church of the living God: The church universal is manifested in local assemblies around the world. the pillar and ground of the truth: Misconduct and disorder in the local church weaken the support of God’s truth in the world. Godly men and women gathering together in local assemblies to worship the Lord produce an orderly church, a church that testifies to others of the truth of God.
- 3:16 This verse contains an early hymn of the church. The hymn is three couplets. Manifested in the flesh refers to Christ’s incarnation, the fact that Jesus became man (see John 1:14). Justified in the Spirit refers to the Holy Spirit’s work in Jesus’ ministry and resurrection (see Matt. 3:15–17; John 16:7, 10; Rom. 1:4). Seen by angels refers to the angelic witness of Christ's ministry and resurrection. Preached among the Gentiles refers to the proclamation of Christ to the nations (see Col. 1:23). Believed on in the world refers to the response of individuals to God's plan of salvation (see 1 Cor. 1:18–25). Received up in glory refers to the Ascension; Christ is seated in God's presence in heaven (see Acts 1:9; Heb. 1:3, 4).

4:1 Paul begins a series of instructions specifically for Timothy. the Spirit expressly says: Paul may be referring to various prophecies inspired by the Holy Spirit concerning defection from God's truth (see Dan. 7:25; 8:23; Matt. 24:4–12), or he might be speaking of a revelation the Spirit had given to him. Depart here means literally "to stand away from." There will be various seasons in which some people will depart from their faith (1:19, 20). The reference here is not to a loss of salvation but to a failure to walk obediently (see John 19:25–27; 1 Cor. 3:1–3; 11:29, 30). The impact of satanic attack and influence is described in vv. 1–3. Doctrines of demons refers to following occult practices.

4:3, 4 The false teachers at Ephesus evidently disparaged the material world as evil, which became a central doctrine of the full-grown Gnosticism of the second century. In Gen. 1:31, God's creation is called "very good." Believers are to enjoy the good things God creates and gives them to manage.

4:5 Sanctified means "set apart." Marriage, eating, and possessions are, in reality, spiritual issues. They are to be enjoyed as the believer recognizes their proper purposes before God.

4:6 Continued growth in the church occurs through words of faith and instruction in good doctrine. Sound doctrine is the basis of a healthy ministry and correct practice.

4:7 Exercise is the normal term for the physical training of Greek athletes. True spirituality requires one to train at godliness in one's walk with the Lord.

4:8 Profits a little contrasts the short-term value of physical exercise with the long-term benefits of godliness for all things. Discipline in godliness affects both the present and future life of the believer. The present aspect includes obedience and a life of purpose (see John 10:10). The future aspect involves greater rewards in the coming reign of Christ (see 1 Cor. 3:10–15; 2 Cor. 5:9, 10).

4:10 Savior of all men describes God as the One who gives life, breath, and existence to all. Especially of those who believe draws a contrast between God's common grace to all and His special saving grace to those who trust Him as their Savior.

4:12 Youth was a term applied to men until they were 40. Timothy might have been between 35 and 40 years old at this time. The antidote for his youth was his life. He was to set an example in six areas: (1) in word, meaning conversation; (2) in conduct, or behavior; (3) in love, which is the love of God; (4) in spirit, the attitude or power of the Holy Spirit; (5) in faith, meaning trust in God; and (6) in purity, both in sexual matters and in thoughts (5:2). These godly elements are not only for the young, but should be desired and practiced by all. These qualities should be developed early in a Christian's life.

4:13 Reading is a command for public reading of the Scriptures (see Acts 13:15). Exhortation is an encouragement to obey the Scriptures. Doctrine is formal teaching and instruction in the Word of God (2:12).

Greek and Roman Schools

Ancient Greek and Roman schools were not compulsory, nor were they run by the government. In the Greek system, boys were sent to school at age six. Their education had three main divisions: music, gymnastics, writing. All Greek children were taught to play the lyre. Greek girls were taught to read and write by their mothers, who also taught them to weave, dance, and play a musical instrument. Greek boys could attend school until they were 16. After that, they were expected to train in sports.

Unlike the Greeks, the Romans used people of other nationalities to teach their children. Boys and girls entered formal school at age seven. At 13, if they had done well, children went to high school; there were 20 such schools in Rome in A.D. 30. Even Roman secondary education was taught in Greek, and the teachers were generally Greek slaves or freedmen.

4:14 Paul encourages Timothy to be diligent. The gift is the spiritual gift Timothy received from Christ (see Eph. 4:7, 8). by prophecy: Timothy's gift was given through a prophetic message (1:18) and with the laying on of . . . hands, probably at Lystra (see Acts 16:1). The laying on of hands signified the elders' commission and recognition of God's work in Timothy's life. Paul himself was part of the group that laid their hands on Timothy (see 2 Tim. 1:6).

4:15 Paul's care for Timothy, his "son in the faith" (see 1:2), is evident. He was instructing Timothy so that his progress would be evident to everyone in the church.

4:16 Save . . . yourself is not a reference to justification by works but to sanctification, the Christian's daily walk of faith (see Mark 8:34–38; John 12:25, 26). Those who hear you refers to the members in the church to whom Timothy was reading, exhorting, and teaching.

5:2 All purity is a word of caution to young men. They must respect the purity of the younger women as the purity of a sister.

5:3 Honor is a command to show respect, a respect demonstrated by one's attitude and through financial support (vv. 4, 8). Widows are those who have family to help support them (vv. 4, 16); the one who is really a widow is one without family support.

5:4 Family members are instructed to care for widows. Piety is respect, reverence, or obligation. repay: Honoring our parents includes caring for them physically and financially as they grow older. In effect, we are returning the time and energy they gave to us while we were young.

5:5 Trusts means to have hope or confidence in God.

5:6 This verse identifies widows living ungodly lives, who are not to be supported by the church.

Lives in pleasure refers to a life of comfort focused on one's own desires. Dead means separated from fellowship (see James 2:26). Widows in the church who choose to live for themselves are separating themselves from fellowship with God and the church.

5:8 A believer is to provide for his own (his near relatives) and his household (his immediate family). Failure to provide for one's family is equal to denial of the faith (see Ex. 20:12; Mark 7:9–12; Eph. 6:2). If a Christian cannot even care for his or her own family, how can that person sincerely love and care for others? worse than an unbeliever: Some unbelievers take better care of their families than believers do.

5:9 Taken into the number means to write down on a list. The list referred to here was most likely a list of widows whom the church was to assist. Widows who were enrolled on the list were to be at least sixty years old and the wife of one man. Some have maintained that this list was an official order of widows. These widows were to pray for the church (v. 5) and practice works of charity (v. 10).

5:10 Children refers either to the widow's own children or possibly to orphans. Lodged strangers indicates an attitude of hospitality. Washed the saints' feet demonstrates a servant's heart. Relieved the afflicted suggests giving aid to those facing adversity. Followed every good work indicates a commitment to serving.

5:11, 12 Refuse is a command to not put younger widows, those less than 60 years old, on the list of widows to be supported by the church. The reason for this refusal is that younger widows may grow wanton, which means to experience sexual desire, and thus desire to marry, presumably an unbeliever, since the marriage is said to be outside their first faith.

5:13, 14 It is best for those younger widows to remarry (see 1 Cor. 7:39, 40). Otherwise, they might become idle, without work. gossips and busybodies: Paul was concerned that younger widows would not have enough to do, and thus would bother everyone else with worthless talk or even harmful and divisive words.

5:17 The primary function of elders is to rule well. The word honor was used in ancient writings outside the Bible to refer to financial remuneration. Double refers to two types of honor: (1) respect for ruling well and (2) adequate pay for their diligent care of the church (see 1 Cor. 9:1–14). Those who labor in the word and doctrine are those elders who preach and teach the Scriptures.

5:18 For the Scripture says: With two quotations, one from Deut. 25:4 and the other from the words of Christ in Luke 10:7, Paul provides proof for the principle of providing adequate financial care for elders. The Luke passage is especially noteworthy because it shows that that Gospel was considered by Paul to be Scripture along with the Book of Deuteronomy.

5:19 An elder is protected against malicious attacks by the command not to receive an accusation, a charge or legal accusation, except when it comes from two or three witnesses (see Deut. 19:15; Matt. 18:16). Charges against elders are to be factual, not based on a single opinion or rumor.

5:20 Those who are sinning refers to elders who fail in their leadership, whether in the local church, in their social life, or in their home life. Rebuke is a command to bring a sin to light, to expose it before all, including other elders and the church body. the rest also may fear: The public rebuke of a sinning elder is to serve as a warning to other believers. God's discipline is consistent from leadership to laity. Sin is a serious matter in the lives of believers, especially those in leadership (see 1 Pet. 4:17). When leaders sin with impunity, church members might erroneously start justifying their own sins.

5:22 This verse warns against too hastily restoring a leader who has fallen. Correction in love and restoration to fellowship should occur as soon as possible, but restoration to leadership should not be made without time and biblical evaluation. Another interpretation of this verse suggests that it is a command to evaluate carefully anyone being considered for leadership, not just former leaders who want to be restored (3:1–14). Keep yourself pure is a caution for Timothy not to share responsibility for another person's sins by restoring or appointing someone who is not qualified.

5:25 cannot be hidden: Unnoticed good works will become evident, if not in this life then at the judgment seat of Christ (see 1 Cor. 3:10–15).

6:1 Bondservants . . . under the yoke refers to believers who are slaves. Believing slaves were to give their unbelieving masters all honor or respect. The life and actions of a Christian slave were to represent the Christian faith and Christ Himself. In the same way we should watch how we act at work. It is extremely important, for our actions testify to the reality of Christ's power in our lives.

6:2 Teach: Paul moves to the conclusion with a final warning for Timothy to instruct his congregation in order to combat the false teachings that were infiltrating that church (see v. 4, 5). The Greek word for teach means the formal presentation of doctrine (see 2:12), while the Greek word for exhort implies less formal instruction, a “coming alongside” to guide. These things is probably best understood as the contents of this letter.

6:3, 4 If anyone teaches otherwise: Here Paul refers to false teachers. He contrasts their “sick” teaching with the wholesome words (see “sound doctrine” in 1:10) of the Lord Jesus Christ. These false teachers were more interested in theory and debate than putting the truth into practice. They had a morbid desire to argue over words.

6:5 Destitute of the truth describes the uselessness of speculative religious arguments. These false teachers were using religion for their own financial gain. Probably they were hoping that their debates on religion would gain them a following and financial support.

The Challenge of Contentment

Paul's young disciple Timothy had his hands full in Ephesus. The apostle had left Timothy in that city to oversee the organization of the church. Timothy was to provide consistent teaching, help the church choose leaders, and model personal integrity as a leader.

Paul's first letter to Timothy contains both direction and encouragement for Timothy. Among his memorable objectives Paul included the following: “Now godliness with contentment is great gain” (6:6). Obviously, the absence of both godliness and contentment would indicate great loss, especially in the Christian life. Godliness without contentment would be a joyless and legalistic righteousness. Contentment without godliness describes a person sadly disconnected from God's truth.

What kind of life was Paul describing when he speaks of godly contentment? Paul describes such a person as having a firm understanding of the passing nature of life. The things of this world are here when we arrive and are left behind when we leave. Neither godliness nor contentment can be found in accumulating them. Things beyond God's provision of our basic needs (“food and clothing,” 6:8) can be enjoyed without becoming a necessity. Paul understood that if godliness (our desire to see God's character reproduced in us) and contentment (our acceptance of God's will in our lives) depend on our environment or circumstances, both will always be unstable.

Elsewhere, Paul indicates that godly contentment must be a learned response (see Phil. 4:11–13). Developing godly contentment lies well beyond our abilities. That is why along with Paul we must appeal to the right source for such a character trait: “I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me” (Phil. 4:13).

- 6:9 Two types of people are described in relation to wealth (see v. 17). The first type are those who desire to be rich. An inner lack of godliness and contentment leaves a vacuum filled with greed. This greed drives people into temptation, snares, and foolish and harmful lusts. Drown literally means to drag to the bottom. Paul was painting a graphic word picture of a greedy person drowning under the tremendous weight of material desires. Destruction and perdition are synonymous with ruin and irretrievable loss. This loss may be experienced in this life, as through a wrong purpose for living, or it may be experienced in the afterlife if material desires lead a person away from Christ (see 1:16; 2:4; Luke 16:1–14).
- 6:10 Money in and of itself is not a problem, but the love of money is. Love of money is a root, though not the root, of evil. The love of money can drive a person into all types of evil. Greediness may cause a believer even to stray from the faith. Christians may be blinded by greed and materialism to such a degree that they break away from their faith. many sorrows: A life focused on material things produces only pain.
- 6:11 Paul issues a powerful warning against materialism. Flee is a strong command. Pursue is a command to hunt or chase after some object. Righteousness, godliness, and faith are character qualities. Love, patience, and gentleness are fruit of the Spirit-controlled life (see Gal. 5:22). Men and women of God should pursue godliness, not materialism, with all of their being.
- 6:12 lay hold on eternal life: Eternal life is viewed as a free gift (see John 3:16; Eph. 2:8–10), a present experience (see John 10:10), and a reward (see Mark 10:29, 30; Luke 18:29, 30). Here Paul is not speaking of Timothy's salvation, but instead of his fruitfulness in this life and his rewards in the next. The good confession is Timothy's call and ministry. Paul was urging Timothy to continue his ministry of preaching the Word of God.
- 6:14 commandment: In the immediate context, Paul was exhorting Timothy to avoid empty religious argumentation (6:3–5) and the greed of materialism (6:6–10). Timothy was to remain faithful to Christ until He appeared again. Thus Paul was encouraging Timothy to focus on the return of Christ, not on temporal gain. The imminent return of Christ should be a motive for godly living (see 2 Pet. 3:10–16; 1 John 2:28).
- 6:15, 16 God will manifest the return of Christ in His own time. This will happen at a specific point in time that Jesus declared was known only to the Father (see Acts 1:6, 7). The last half of v. 15 and all of v. 16 form a doxology of praise to the Lord Jesus. Immortality may also be translated “without death.” Jesus is God and therefore can never die.
- 6:17 those who are rich: Paul has already condemned those who are attempting to become rich through the ministry (vv. 6–10). The second group of people Paul addresses in regard to wealth (see also v. 9) are those who are already wealthy. Paul encourages Timothy to tell the rich not to be high-minded or proud and not to trust in uncertain riches. Only the living God can provide for all of our needs.
- 6:18 Those with wealth are commanded to recognize God as the true source of their wealth and to be generous with their riches. The material blessings of God are to be enjoyed and used for the advancement of His Kingdom, not for self-centered living.
- 6:19 Storing up may also be translated “treasuring up,” a phrase similar to Jesus' challenge in Matt. 6:19–21 to lay up treasure in heaven. A believer's daily obedience to God builds a good foundation for the time to come. The Scriptures teach that a believer's works will be evaluated to see what his or her life in Christ has produced (see 1 Cor. 3:10–15).
- 6:20 The Greek term for committed is found only here and in 2 Tim. 1:12, 14. The deposit that Timothy had to guard was the truth revealed in this letter. Knowledge is the Greek word gnosis, from which the word Gnosticism is derived. Evidently an early form of Gnosticism had infiltrated the Ephesian church. This heresy taught that salvation came through the “knowledge” of spiritual mysteries. In unequivocal terms, Paul warns Timothy not to be caught up in this false teaching (see 1:3, 4; 6:3–5).

idle babblings

(Gk. kenophōnia) (6:20; 2 Tim. 2:16) Strong's #2757

This Greek word literally means “empty words.” In Paul’s writings, the Greek word kenos expresses the ultimate emptiness of all that is not filled with spiritual meaning. In other words, human achievement amounts to nothing if it does not come from the will of God. Nothing comes from this nothingness; it is futility. Paul uses a derivative of this word to describe the hollow words (see 6:20; 2 Tim. 2:16) spoken by Judaizers trying to entice the believers with their foolish philosophies (see Eph. 5:6; Col. 2:8). But the teaching committed to Paul and the apostles was not futile; it would last throughout eternity because it originated in God’s unchanging will (Matt. 5:18; 1 Cor. 15:12–15).

6:21 First Timothy closes as it begins (1:2), with an emphasis on God’s grace. The Greek word for you is plural, perhaps indicating that this letter was to be read to the church in Ephesus.

Introduction

When death nears, priorities change. In light of mortality, what used to seem significant may dim in comparison to one's ultimate fate. That is why we listen to a person's "last words." When all is said and done, everyone wants to know what gave that person hope in the face of death. Second Timothy is Paul's "last words." From a cold, lonely Roman prison, the aged apostle Paul wrote his final instructions to his protégé Timothy. Paul knew that this letter might well be his final contact with Timothy; his execution was most likely imminent. He implored Timothy to come quickly to his side. But in case he did not make it, Paul imparted his last words of encouragement to his "son" in the faith.

Author and Date The author of 2 Timothy identifies himself as Paul (1:1). Other remarks in the book are characteristic of Paul's ministry (see 3:10, 11; 4:10, 11, 19, 20). Many of the early church fathers such as Polycarp, Justin Martyr, and Irenaeus support Pauline authorship. For an explanation of the challenges to Pauline authorship of 2 Timothy, see the Introduction to 1 Timothy. Most of these challenges are based on the erroneous assumption that the theology and Greek style of this letter can only fit the context of the second century.

Many scholars believe that 2 Timothy was written during a second imprisonment of Paul in Rome (see 1:8, 16, 17; 4:6–13). According to the fourth-century church historian Eusebius, Paul was martyred during Nero's regime, sometime before A.D. 68. Since this letter was written immediately before Paul's death, it was probably written around A.D. 67.

Setting The Book of Acts ends with Paul under house arrest in Rome (Acts 28). But many scholars believe that Paul was acquitted, as he had expected (Phil. 1:19). From sporadic evidence in the Pastoral Epistles, we can trace Paul's travels after his imprisonment. He probably visited Crete (Titus 1:5), Ephesus (1 Tim. 1:3), Macedonia, and perhaps Colosse (Philem. 22) and Spain (see Rom. 15:24). Timothy traveled with Paul to Ephesus and was left there to confront the false teachers that were infiltrating the church in that city (1 Tim. 1:3).

Many believe that Paul was put in prison when Nero began his campaign of persecution, shortly after Rome burned down in A.D. 64. Nero blamed the Christians for starting the fire, and executed many of them with extreme cruelty. Soon afterward, the apostle Peter died for his faith by being crucified upside down, according to the church father Origen. As Paul penned his second letter to Timothy, he was aware of his coming death (4:6–8). A number of believers had deserted him (4:16), and only Luke was with him at the writing of this letter (4:11). At the end of the letter, one can sense Paul’s concern. He implores Timothy: “Be diligent to come to me quickly” (4:9). Paul did not want to leave this earth without seeing Timothy and Mark to give them some final words of wisdom (4:9–13).

Paul’s concern for Timothy arose out of their long relationship with each other. Ever since the beginning of the second missionary journey Timothy had been close to Paul, assisting him in his ministry, acting as his liaison, and learning from his godly example. Timothy’s devout mother Eunice and grandmother Lois had provided him with a grounding in the Hebrew Scriptures on which Paul could build (see 2 Tim. 1:5; 3:14, 15). Although evidently Timothy was slightly timid because of his young age (1:7; 1 Tim. 4:12), Paul developed his son in the faith by placing more and more responsibility on his shoulders. Timothy had functioned as Paul’s representative to Thessalonica (1 Thess. 3:2) and Corinth (1 Cor. 4:17). But leaving Timothy at Ephesus was a major step for Paul; as a concerned mentor, he wrote a letter to Timothy repeatedly charging him to remain faithful to the essentials of the Christian faith (1 Tim. 1:18; 4:12–16; 5:21; 6:11–13). Paul had served as Timothy’s spiritual mentor throughout his life. Now as he neared his death Paul wanted to see him one last time. And if that could not be, he wanted at least to give Timothy some final words of encouragement.

Purpose Paul’s primary purpose for writing this letter was to offer final instructions to Timothy regarding the Christian life. Second Timothy has an intensely personal nature and tone. One senses Paul’s strong love and concern for Timothy. Paul encourages his close friend to use his spiritual gifts. He writes to strengthen Timothy’s loyalty to Christ in the face of the suffering and persecution that would come. The apostle challenges Timothy to handle the Word of God accurately, faithfully instructing others in the truths of the faith. Warnings and instructions are given concerning how a believer should relate to the world in times of apostasy. In the closing chapter, Paul offers Timothy his final word of advice: “Preach the word! Be ready in season and out of season.” This was Paul’s own mission, to preach the gospel to the Gentiles; now he was passing it on to his beloved son in the faith, Timothy.

Paul's second purpose for writing this letter was to urge Timothy to join him in Rome. Paul knew that he was soon to die. He longed to see and have fellowship with his child in the faith one last time.

Theology Paul was well aware that hardships and conflict are a part of Christian ministry. One of the essential characteristics of a faithful servant of Christ is endurance in the midst of difficulties. To encourage Timothy in this virtue, the apostle reminds him that Jesus Christ is “of the seed of David” and “was raised from the dead” (2:8). Mention of the seed of David links Christ with the Davidic covenant (see 2 Sam. 7:11–16), which states that a Son of David will rule on his throne forever. Furthermore, Christ has been resurrected; He is alive. The promise of ruling and reigning with Him (see 2:11–13) is set before Timothy as a motive for faithful endurance in ministry. A special crown will be given to those who faithfully serve the Lord and wait for His return (4:8).

Chapter 3 develops the theme of apostasy in the latter days. Paul warns Timothy that difficulties are coming for believers, and he instructs him about how Christians are to respond and behave. Jesus had predicted that such times would come (John 15:18–25; 16:33; 17:15–18), and Paul himself had referred previously to these times (1 Thess. 3:1–8). Although he would not live to see these dreadful days, Paul still cared enough to urge Timothy to be bold in the work of the Lord, even in the midst of troubling times.

Christ in the Scriptures

In this follow-up correspondence, Paul identifies Christ Jesus as the One who appeared on earth in order to abolish death and bring life and immortality to light (1:10). But Paul is candid enough to move beyond the creedal affirmations of faith to speak about the personal consequences of following the Son of God. “All who desire to live godly in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution” (3:12). Jesus is nothing less than the source of our salvation, our faith, and the gospel we proclaim, which will surely make waves in the world. No wonder Paul writes to Timothy to inspire perseverance. Conflict and resistance come with the turf of discipleship. But Paul looks to the end of the race and reminds his friend that all who love Jesus' appearing will receive the crown of righteousness (4:8). Even more, they will one day reign with Christ (2:12).

2 Timothy 1

Greeting

¹Paul, an apostle of ¹Jesus Christ by the will of God, according to the ^apromise of life which is in Christ Jesus,

²To Timothy, a ^bbeloved son:

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Timothy's Faith and Heritage

³I thank God, whom I serve with a pure conscience, as my ^cforefathers did, as without ceasing I remember you in my prayers night and day,

⁴greatly desiring to see you, being mindful of your tears, that I may be filled with joy, ⁵when I call to remembrance ^dthe ²genuine faith that is in you, which dwelt first in your grandmother Lois and ^eyour mother Eunice, and I am persuaded is in you also.

⁶Therefore I remind you ^fto stir up the gift of God which is in you through the laying on of my hands.

⁷For ^gGod has not given us a spirit of fear, ^hbut of power and of love and of a sound mind.

Not Ashamed of the Gospel

⁸_iTherefore do not be ashamed of ^jthe testimony of our Lord, nor of me ^kHis prisoner, but share with me in the sufferings for the gospel according to the power of God,

⁹who has saved us and called us with a holy calling, ^lnot according to our works, but ^maccording to His own purpose and grace which was given to us in Christ Jesus ⁿbefore time began,

¹⁰but ^ohas now been revealed by the appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ, who has abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel, ¹¹_pto which I was appointed a preacher, an apostle, and a teacher ³of the Gentiles.

¹²For this reason I also suffer these things; nevertheless I am not ashamed, ^qfor I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep what I have committed to Him until that Day.

Be Loyal to the Faith

¹³Hold fast ^sthe pattern of ^tsound words which you have heard from me, in faith and love which are in Christ Jesus. Article: The Handbook for a Life's Work

¹⁴That good thing which was committed to you, keep by the Holy Spirit who dwells in us.

¹⁵This you know, that all those in Asia have turned away from me, among whom are Phygellus and Hermogenes.

¹⁶The Lord grant mercy to the ^uhousehold of Onesiphorus, for he often refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chain;

¹⁷but when he arrived in Rome, he sought me out very zealously and found me.

¹⁸The Lord ^vgrant to him that he may find mercy from the Lord ^win that Day—and you know very well how many ways he ^xministered ⁴*to me* at Ephesus.

2 Timothy 2

Be Strong in Grace

¹You therefore, ^amy son, ^bbe strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus.

²And the things that you have heard from me among many witnesses, commit these to faithful men who will be able to teach others also.

³You therefore must ^cendure¹ hardship ^das a good soldier of Jesus Christ.
Charts and Diagrams: Descriptions of the Christian Life

^{4e}No one engaged in warfare entangles himself with the affairs of this life, that he may please him who enlisted him as a soldier.

⁵And also ^fif anyone competes in athletics, he is not crowned unless he competes according to the rules.

⁶The hardworking farmer must be first to partake of the crops.

⁷Consider what I say, and ²may the Lord ^ggive you understanding in all things.

⁸Remember that Jesus Christ, ^hof the seed of David, ⁱwas raised from the dead ^jaccording to my gospel, ^{9k}for which I suffer trouble as an evildoer, ^leven to the point of chains; ^mbut the word of God is not chained.

¹⁰Therefore ⁿI endure all things for the sake of the ³elect, ^othat they also may obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eternal glory.

¹¹*This is* a faithful saying:

For ^pif we died with Him,
We shall also live with Him.

^{12q}If we endure,
We shall also reign with Him.

^rIf we deny Him,
He also will deny us.

¹³If we are faithless,
He remains faithful;
He ^scannot deny Himself.

Approved and Disapproved Workers

¹⁴Remind them of these things, ^tcharging them before the Lord not to ⁴strive about words to no profit, to the ruin of the hearers.

^{15u}Be diligent to present yourself approved to God, a worker who does not need to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. Word Studies: rightly dividing ¹⁶But shun profane and ⁵ⁱidle babblings, for they will ⁶increase to more ungodliness.

¹⁷And their message will spread like cancer. ^vHymenaeus and Philetus are of this sort, ¹⁸who have strayed concerning the truth, ^wsaying that the resurrection is already past; and they overthrow the faith of some.

¹⁹Nevertheless ^xthe solid foundation of God stands, having this seal: “The Lord ^yknows those who are His,” and, “Let everyone who names the name of ⁷Christ depart from iniquity.”

²⁰But in a great house there are not only ^zvessels of gold and silver, but also of wood and clay, some for honor and some for dishonor.

²¹Therefore if anyone cleanses himself from the latter, he will be a vessel for honor, ⁸sanctified and useful for the Master, ^aprepared for every good work.

^{22b}Flee also youthful lusts; but pursue righteousness, faith, love, peace with those who call on the Lord out of a pure heart.

²³But avoid foolish and ignorant disputes, knowing that they generate strife.

²⁴And ^ca servant of the Lord must not quarrel but be gentle to all, ^dable to teach, ^epatient,

^{25f}in humility correcting those who are in opposition, ^gif God perhaps will grant them repentance, ^hso that they may know the truth,

²⁶and that they may come to their senses and ⁱescape the snare of the devil, having been taken captive by him to do his will.

2 Timothy 3

Perilous Times and Perilous Men

¹But know this, that ^ain the last days ¹perilous times will come:

²For men will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy,

³unloving, ²unforgiving, slanderers, without self-control, brutal, despisers of good,

^{4b}traitors, headstrong, haughty, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, ^{5c}having a form of godliness but ^ddenying its power. And ^efrom such people turn away!

⁶For ^fof this sort are those who creep into households and make captives of gullible women loaded down with sins, led away by various lusts, ⁷always learning and never able ^gto come to the knowledge of the truth.

^{8h}Now as Jannes and Jambres resisted Moses, so do these also resist the truth: ⁱmen of corrupt minds, ^jdisapproved concerning the faith;

⁹but they will progress no further, for their folly will be manifest to all, ^kas theirs also was.

The Man of God and the Word of God

¹⁰But you have carefully followed my doctrine, manner of life, purpose, faith, longsuffering, love, perseverance, ¹¹persecutions, afflictions, which happened to me ^mat Antioch, ⁿat Iconium, ^oat Lystra—what persecutions I endured. And ^pout of them all the Lord delivered me.

¹²Yes, and ^qall who desire to live godly in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution.

^{13r}But evil men and impostors will grow worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived.

¹⁴But you must ^scontinue in the things which you have learned and been assured of, knowing from whom you have learned them,

¹⁵and that from childhood you have known ^tthe Holy Scriptures, which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

^{16u}All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, ^vand is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for ³instruction in righteousness, Word Studies: inspiration of God

¹⁷_wthat the man of God may be complete, ^xthoroughly equipped for every good work.

2 Timothy 4

Preach the Word

¹I ^acharge you ¹therefore before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, ^bwho will judge the living and the dead ²at His appearing and His kingdom: Word Studies: appearing

²Preach the word! Be ready in season and out of season. ^cConvince, ^drebuke, ^eexhort, with all longsuffering and teaching.

^{3f}For the time will come when they will not endure ^gsound doctrine, ^hbut according to their own desires, because they have itching ears, they will heap up for themselves teachers;

⁴and they will turn their ears away from the truth, and ⁱbe turned aside to fables.

⁵But you be watchful in all things, ^jendure afflictions, do the work of ^kan evangelist, fulfill your ministry.

Paul's Valedictory

⁶For ^lI am already being poured out as a drink offering, and the time of ^mmy departure is at hand.

⁷ⁿI have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith.

⁸Finally, there is laid up for me ^othe crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous ^pJudge, will give to me ^qon that Day, and not to me only but also to all who have loved His appearing.

The Abandoned Apostle

⁹Be diligent to come to me quickly;

¹⁰for ^rDemas has forsaken me, ^shaving loved this present world, and has departed for Thessalonica—Crescens for Galatia, Titus for Dalmatia.

¹¹Only Luke is with me. Get ^tMark and bring him with you, for he is useful to me for ministry.

¹²And ^uTychicus I have sent to Ephesus.

¹³Bring the cloak that I left with Carpus at Troas when you come—and the books, especially the parchments. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Books and Parchments

^{14v}Alexander the coppersmith did me much harm. May the Lord repay him according to his works.

¹⁵You also must beware of him, for he has greatly resisted our words.

¹⁶At my first defense no one stood with me, but all forsook me. ^wMay it not be charged against them.

The Lord Is Faithful

^{17x}But the Lord stood with me and strengthened me, ^yso that the message might be preached fully through me, and that all the Gentiles might hear. Also I was delivered ^zout of the mouth of the lion.

^{18a}And the Lord will deliver me from every evil work and preserve me for His heavenly kingdom. ^bTo Him be glory forever and ever. Amen!

Come Before Winter

¹⁹Greet ^cPrisca and Aquila, and the household of ^dOnesiphorus.

^{20e}Erastus stayed in Corinth, but ^fTrophimus I have left in Miletus sick.

²¹Do your utmost to come before winter. Eubulus greets you, as well as Pudens, Linus, Claudia, and all the brethren.

Farewell

²²The Lord ³Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Grace be with you. Amen.

Annotations for 2 Timothy

- 1:1 Paul speaks of himself in 1 Tim. as an apostle “by the commandment of God” (see 1 Tim. 1:1). In 2 Timothy he calls himself an apostle by the will of God (see also 2 Cor. 1:1; Eph. 1:1; Col. 1:1). according to the promise of life: Paul considers himself a bearer of a life-giving message. This message of life stands in ironic contrast to the fact that Paul was writing from a Roman prison, facing his execution. The characteristic phrase in Christ, found in other Pauline letters, also appears in this letter, further indicating that it came from Paul.
- 1:2 beloved son: In his first letter to Timothy, Paul referred to him as a “true son in the faith” (see 1 Tim. 1:2). Paul’s deep love and concern for this younger man of God is shown throughout this letter.
- 1:3 I serve is a priestly phrase often associated with worship. Forefathers were the patriarchs of the faith: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Paul had a great love for Israel (see Rom. 9:1–5). The reason he connects himself with Israel’s forefathers may be to demonstrate that he is not advocating a new religion but one of which the godly of the past are also a part. remember you in my prayers: Although he was most likely held in a cold and damp prison (4:13), the aged apostle was still worshipping God and offering prayers on behalf of Timothy. Christian service and worship go hand in hand in ministry. No matter what their circumstances, believers should pray to their heavenly Father, committing everything to His loving hands.
- 1:4 desiring to see you: Paul longed to see Timothy, possibly because the apostle realized his life would end soon (4:6–17).
- 1:5 The word translated genuine means “unhypocritical.” Paul rejoices when he recalls Timothy’s faithful grandmother Lois and mother Eunice, whose name means “Good Victory.” The prayers, witness, and faith of his godly mother and grandmother were central factors in the spiritual development of Timothy (see 1 Tim. 2:15).
- 1:6 stir up the gift: Timothy is urged to rekindle his spiritual gift (this idea is expressed in the negative in 1 Tim. 4:14). The desire to discover, develop, and deploy our specific spiritual gifts should be like a fire blazing within us. The constant struggle of Christians is to be diligent about our work for God and not to slacken our pace in this spiritual race. We need to make a conscious effort to exercise our gift for the common good of the body of Christ.
- 1:7 The Holy Spirit is the One who gives us spiritual gifts and empowers us to use them. God’s Spirit does not impart fear or cowardice, but power, love, and a sound mind, or “self-control.” The Spirit imparts power for the various circumstances of ministry. The love the Spirit gives to us should be directed toward other individuals. Furthermore, as we use our spiritual gifts to build up the church, we should exercise self-control, using our abilities only at the appropriate times.
- 1:8 Timothy is encouraged not to be ashamed or shrink back from the testimony of our Lord. Testimony is the witness of the Lord; the Greek term is the source of the English word martyr. Church tradition says that most of the apostles died as martyrs. Paul is concerned that in the face of vehement opposition Timothy might be afraid to witness. Share with me in the sufferings indicates that at times a faithful witness for the Lord will involve adversity. Paul’s call for boldness in vv. 7–9 may indicate that Timothy was timid. Every once in awhile he needed a gentle push to be bold.
- 1:9 God’s saving and calling of believers is not according to . . . works. It is impossible for people to earn their way into heaven. Salvation is according to God’s own purpose or sovereign plan (see Rom. 8:28–30; Eph. 1:11). Grace is God’s unearned favor. The Lord called us and saved us in Christ Jesus before time began.
- 1:10 The manifestation of God’s plan and grace has been revealed, or brought to light, in the appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ. abolished death: Fear of dying might have caused believers to shrink from testifying about their faith. The Greek term translated life is typically used of eternal life in the NT. God's life, unlike the life of humans, is immortal; He cannot die. Through their faith in Christ, believers have inherited eternal life. We have nothing to fear, not even death. Therefore we can proclaim with boldness our trust in Christ.

1:12 Paul's confidence in the gospel and his Savior enabled him to suffer without any shame. The phrase whom I have believed expresses Paul's unshakable trust in his Savior. What I have committed does not refer to something Paul had done for Christ, but to something he had entrusted to Him, like a deposit in a bank. This speaks not of Paul's confidence in himself but of Christ's trustworthiness. Paul was certain that God would keep his deposit, his life and the eternal rewards of his ministry. The apostle was preparing for imminent death, but in spite of this he was hopeful. He had spent his time, resources, and even his life on proclaiming the gospel, and this investment in Christ's kingdom would bring him an abundant reward in eternity (see Luke 19:15; 1 Cor. 3:10–15; Rev. 11:15, 18). God will protect us in life and in death. He will not forget a life of faithful service to Him when He returns.

1:13 Hold fast is a command to Timothy to persist in the sound words of healthy teaching (see 1 Tim. 1:3–10). Many who say they speak for Christ proclaim false doctrine. Like Timothy, we need to pursue sound teaching and avoid all teaching that does not conform to the Scriptures, no matter how good certain teachers might sound or how large their following might be.

The Handbook for a Life's Work

In his final and intimate letter to his “son in the faith,” Paul reminded Timothy of the essentials of the faith, the basis of Christian ministry. Paul did not want Timothy to drift away from the truth, as Phygellus and Hermogenes had done (1:15). Therefore he passionately exhorted Timothy to hold on tightly to the faith and to the sound teaching that Paul had entrusted to him (1:13).

Paul knew that consistency and personal integrity (2:22–26) would be a significant factor in the young pastor's effectiveness. So Paul warned Timothy about associations with others (3:1–5), encouraging him to reflect on their years together as an example of ethical consistency in the midst of difficulty (3:10–15). In fact, Paul wrote, “all who desire to live godly in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution” (3:12). Timothy certainly had vivid memories of trials in ministry to illustrate Paul's point (see Acts 19:21–20:6).

But Paul also made sure that whatever other counsel he gave his pupil, Timothy would find beneath it all a rock-solid dependence on God's Word. Timothy's authority would not come from his own wisdom, Paul's endorsement, or the acceptance of others. His teaching would stand only to the degree that it was based on Scripture.

Paul's ringing tribute to the authority and practicality of God's Word (3:16, 17) completes a section which begins in 2:2 with his charge to Timothy to “commit” what he had learned to “faithful men who will be able to teach others also.” In 3:17, Paul offered the central test for measuring whether the gospel torch had been successfully passed from one generation to the next. The application of God's Word in four distinct ways would insure that the next generation would become “complete, thoroughly equipped for every good work” (3:17). Effective teaching would include (1) doctrine, the basic truths of the faith; (2) reproof, or challenging and confronting each other with the Word of God; (3) correction, by providing guidance from the truths in Scripture; and (4) instruction in righteousness, the personal and practical application of biblical truths.

Paul was encouraging Timothy not only to pass the truths of Scripture on to the next generation, but also to pass on the basis of those truths, the Word of God itself. As we follow in Paul's footsteps, we too must make it clear that the authority of our teaching comes from the Bible. If we teach the truth but do not teach the source of truth, we will not succeed in passing on our faith. Our affirmations and actions have to be founded on God's Word or they will be little more than wishful thinking.

Go to the List of Articles

1:14 That good thing may be rephrased as “the good deposit.” Here the phrase refers to Paul's teachings to Timothy (see 1 Tim. 6:20). Keep means “to guard” or “to protect.” Who dwells in us describes the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in believers.

1:15–17 These verses describe those who had abandoned Paul. Yet even here, Paul recalls Onesiphorus (a name meaning “Help Bringer”). This man from Ephesus had refreshed Paul as if by a cup of cold water. We too should be a refreshment to other believers.

2:1 In light of the defections of others (1:15), Paul exhorts Timothy to be faithful. But Paul's call is for Timothy to be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. The emphasis is on the strength of Christ, not on Timothy's own power. If we trust in ourselves, we are doomed to fail.

2:2 Timothy is commanded to commit Paul's teaching to faithful men. Faithful men then have the responsibility of teaching others. This would be the basis for an endless chain of Christian discipleship, the teaching of Christian teachers (see Matt. 28:18–20). among many witnesses: Discipleship may occur in large groups, small groups, or one-on-one encounters. Here Paul emphasizes a group setting.

2:3–6 Three illustrations are given for faithfulness. The first is a soldier. The Christian walk is often presented as spiritual warfare. Effective service calls for singleness of purpose. The second illustration comes from athletics. The Greek games were important and demanded strenuous training (see 1 Cor. 9:25). No competitor could be crowned unless he competed in accordance with the rules. Here the reference is to a victor's wreath given in an athletic contest. Faithful believers will receive a victor's crown, not the royal crown which belongs to Jesus. Paul is saying that spiritual activity must be conducted within the directives of biblical faith and doctrine. To defect from true doctrine is to lose our reward (see 2 John 7, 8). The third illustration is that of a hardworking farmer. Conscientious, hard labor is necessary before a farmer can enjoy a bountiful harvest.

Descriptions of the Christian Life

In describing how Christians should live, Paul often resorts to analogies or metaphors. This chart lists some of the metaphors of the Christian life found in the New Testament.

Christians are called to be like . . . Soldiers

Text: 2 Tim. 2:3, 4

Meaning: Like a single-minded soldier, we should respond to the orders of our commanding officer, the Lord Jesus, with unquestioning obedience.

Christians are called to be like . . . Farmers

Text: 2 Tim. 2:6

Meaning: Farmers labor strenuously and consistently in order to reap a fruitful harvest. We also must work hard in serving the Lord.

Christians are called to be like . . . Athletes

Text: 2 Tim. 2:5

Meaning: Athletes follow strict training rules so as to avoid being disqualified from their race; we must display a similar measure of self-control.

Christians are called to be like . . . Workers

Text: 2 Tim. 2:15

Meaning: Our work is to “rightly divide” or correctly handle God’s Word so as to avoid shame.

Christians are called to be like . . . Vessels

Text: 2 Tim. 2:20, 21

Meaning: We must take care to keep ourselves pure, like a clean dish, so that we will be “useful for the Master.”

Christians are called to be like . . . Fishers of men

Text: Matt. 4:19

Meaning: As fishermen, we are called to “catch” men with the Good News of Christ.

Christians are called to be like . . . Salt

Text: Matt. 5:13

Meaning: As salt, we act as a godly preservative in an evil society; moreover, we make people thirsty to know their Creator.

Christians are called to be like . . . Light

Text: Matt. 5:14–16

Meaning: As light, we point the way to reconciliation with God, and we reflect God’s character, for He is the Light (John 1:7).

Christians are called to be like . . . Branches

Text: John 15:5

Meaning: As branches, we bear godly fruit as long as we are attached to the Vine, Christ.

Christians are called to be like . . . Stewards

Text: 1 Cor. 4:1, 2

Meaning: Like administrators, we have responsibilities to manage. God will evaluate how we handled the resources He has given us.

Christians are called to be like . . . Ambassadors

Text: 2 Cor. 5:20

Meaning: We are representatives of God’s kingdom to the lost citizens of this world.

Christians are called to be like . . . Living stones

Text: 1 Pet. 2:5

Meaning: In former days, God dwelt in a physical temple; now He dwells in His people, the church.

Christians are called to be like . . . Priests

Text: 1 Pet. 2:5, 9, 10

Meaning: Like priests, we have the privilege of approaching near to God, and the responsibility of helping others in reconciling themselves to Him.

Christians are called to be like . . . Sojourners

Text: 1 Pet. 2:11

Meaning: As children of God, we do not belong to the world. This world is not our home; we are only “passing through.”

- 2:8 Timothy is commanded to remember Christ’s resurrection. The seed of David emphasizes Jesus’ humanity and the fact that He would fulfill all the promises God had given to David (see 2 Sam. 7:11–16). Raised from the dead emphasizes that our Savior lives today seated at the right hand of God the Father.
- 2:9 Human circumstances cannot confine the word of God. Whether through a tract, a book, a Bible, or a simple statement, God uses His word to accomplish His purposes. There are numerous examples of people who were antagonistic to God’s truth but who surrendered their lives to God when He kept after them (see Paul’s conversion in Acts 9:1–25). We must not hide the gospel, but instead let it go forth unchained in spite of our own limitations.
- 2:10 Paul is able to endure his present difficult circumstances—his own imprisonment—because he knows that God’s work is still progressing among the elect, God’s chosen ones. The final outcome of their salvation will be the eternal glory of God’s coming kingdom.
- 2:11–13 This section is possibly a hymn or confession of the early church. The form resembles the parallelism of Hebrew poetry. The hymn reflects the themes of Christ’s death and resurrection introduced by Paul in v. 8.
- 2:11 if we died . . . We shall also live: Believers are united with Christ in His death and resurrection (see Rom. 6:8), which become our death to sin and our resurrection to eternal life.
- 2:12 If we endure: Persevering in the faith even in the face of hardship or persecution will result in a reward when Christ returns (see Luke 19:11–27; Rom. 8:17; Rev. 3:21). He will also deny us: If believers deny the enduring of persecution for Christ, He will deny them the reward and reign that could have been theirs.
- 2:13 Faithless describes the life of an immature believer who lives for oneself and not for the Savior (see 1 Cor. 3:1–3, 15). He remains faithful: Even when believers fail the Savior, He remains loyal. For Christ to abandon us would be contrary to His faithful nature (see John 10:27–30; Heb. 10:23; 13:5). Christ’s relationship with Peter is a great example of God’s faithfulness (see Luke 22:31–34).
- 2:15 What is approved is what remains after testing, like metals that have been refined by fire. Rightly dividing literally means “cutting straight.” word of truth: Truth defines the nature of Scripture. It is a beacon of truth in the darkness of all kinds of falsehoods. Teachers of the Bible should make every effort to handle His truth accurately. Failure to do so will lead to divine judgment (see James 3:1).

rightly dividing

(Gk. orthotomeō) (2:15) Strong's #3718

This word, which occurs only here in the NT, means “to cut straight,” as to cut a straight road or to keep a straight course. The idea could also be that of plowing a straight furrow or of squaring and cutting a stone to fit it in its proper place. In the Greek OT, the word is used in Prov. 3:6; 11:5 to depict God’s provision of a straight path for the righteous. Paul encouraged Timothy to handle the word of truth in a straight way, like a road that goes straight to its goal, without being turned aside by useless debates.

Go to the List of Word Studies

2:16–18 Paul warns Timothy about two men, Hymenaeus and Philetus, who taught that the resurrection of believers had already occurred (see 1 Tim. 1:20). This was probably an early form of Gnosticism that emphasized a spiritual resurrection as opposed to the Christian belief in a future bodily resurrection.

2:19 In spite of the unfaithful actions of some, the solid foundation of God stands. The tense of the verb indicates that Paul saw God’s truth as standing not only in the past but also in the present. Isaiah 40:8 reveals that God’s Word will also stand firmly in the future, since it is eternal. The Lord knows those who are His: This is an intimate, experiential knowledge that can only be obtained in a relationship. depart from iniquity: Our sure relationship with our Father in heaven should motivate us to a life of purity.

2:20, 21 The imagery of the house is used to describe two categories of believers. Gold and silver represent believers who are faithful and useful in serving Christ. Wood and clay represent believers who fail to honor the Lord (see 1 Cor. 3:12–15). Master is a strong term for God’s authority over the lives of believers regardless of their level of spiritual maturity. We choose to serve the Lord in the power of the Holy Spirit in order to be useful to our Master.

2:22, 23 Flee . . . pursue . . . avoid: In these verses Paul describes in practical terms how Timothy can be a useful vessel for God’s work.

2:24 Quarrel translates a military term for hand-to-hand combat. The Lord’s servant must not battle with words, but instead must be gentle and kind to all.

2:25, 26 Correcting means “training” or “bringing to maturity.” Those who are in opposition are those who place themselves in conflict with the preaching of God’s truth, such as Hymenaeus and Philetus (v. 17). The aim of correction is repentance, or a “change of thinking.” Paul exhorts Timothy to persevere in correcting his opponents because it is imperative that they should know the truth, even though they might oppose the truth at present with their false teachings about the resurrection (see v. 18). It was Paul’s hope that they would finally come to their senses, or become sober again. False teaching has an intoxicating effect that dulls the mind to God’s truth. Timothy’s persistence in correcting them might enable them to escape the snare of the devil. The devil takes captive believers who teach false doctrine, leading others astray. One of Satan’s tactics is to cause divisions in the church.

- 3:1 The exhortations of ch. 2 to endure hardship, be diligent, rightly divide the Word, and be a vessel fit for the Master's use are given in the context of difficult, even perilous times. Last days includes the whole time from the writing of this letter until the return of Christ.
- 3:5 A form of godliness is an outward appearance of reverence for God. Denying its power describes religious activity that is not connected to a living relationship with Jesus Christ. As time progresses, people would begin to participate in religious activities that are empty. Their activities have nothing to do with a true relationship with God or with individual faith in Jesus Christ. This kind of religion provokes God's anger (see Is. 1:10–18; Matt. 23:25–28). Turn away is a command for Timothy to avoid the evil persons described in vv. 2–5. We are not to link up in common cause with them (see 1 Cor. 15:33).
- 3:6 creep into households: The empty religious individuals of vv. 2–5 use deception to gain a hearing. Make captives is a military term for taking prisoners in war. The imagery of spiritual combat is clear in these verses. Gullible women are the target of attacks by false teachers. Evidently the false teachers at Ephesus had made significant inroads among a group of women in that church (1 Tim. 5:13–15). Here is the danger of ignorance. Hence, Paul instructs Timothy to “let a woman learn” (1 Tim. 2:11).
- 3:8 Paul gives a specific example of two men who resisted truth in Moses' time. Jannes and Jambres are not named in the OT, but according to Jewish tradition, they were two of the Egyptian magicians who opposed Moses (Ex. 7:11). Men of corrupt minds resist the truth because it unveils their shameful thinking and behavior.
- 3:9 their folly will be manifest: The character and empty religion of false teachers will ultimately be exposed (see Num. 32:23).
- 3:10, 11 you have carefully followed: Paul draws a sharp contrast between a Christian testimony and the way of the false teachers (vv. 2–9). He notes ten different qualities of his own teaching and life that Timothy had had opportunity to observe.
- 3:12 Those who want to live godly lives must be prepared for persecution, literally “to be hunted.” God does not promise us deliverance from persecution but deliverance through it. Persecution is one of the means God uses to develop our capacity to reign with Him in His kingdom (see 2:12; Matt. 5:10–12; Rev. 2:10).
- 3:13 The Greek word translated impostors can also mean sorcerers or swindlers. deceiving and being deceived: False teachers deceive themselves as well as others (see Matt. 15:18–20).
- 3:15 from childhood: Paul emphasizes Timothy's godly heritage (1:5). His mother Eunice and his grandmother Lois had faithfully taught him the Holy Scriptures. The truths of God's Word directed Timothy to Christ. God's Word and the Spirit of God are both essential for our salvation. The Word of God without the Spirit of God is lifeless; it has no power to act. But the Word of God empowered by the Spirit of God becomes a living force in our lives.
- 3:16 Paul emphasizes the preeminence of all Scripture. Given by inspiration is literally “God-breathed.” In this verse, Paul teaches that God was actively involved in the revelation of His truth to the apostles and prophets, who wrote it down. The Author of the Bible is God Himself. Thus Scripture is true in all that it affirms and is completely authoritative (see 1 Pet. 1:20, 21). The study of the Bible is profitable in at least four different ways. Doctrine is teaching. Paul highlights correct teaching first; Luke also emphasizes the Jerusalem church's commitment to doctrine first (see Acts 2:42). Reproof is conviction. This is not simply a rebuke; it is demonstrating some truth beyond dispute. Correction refers to setting something straight (2:15). Instruction refers to the process of training a child. In this list, only one of these terms is oriented to knowledge and information—that is, doctrine (see 1 Pet. 2:2). The other three in the list involve a change of life. Knowledge that does not change one's life is useless.

Word Studies

inspiration of God

(Gk. theopneustos) (3:16) Strong's #2315

The Greek word means “God-breathed,” from theos (God) and pneō (to breathe). Although it is difficult to fully recreate the thought of this Greek expression in English, we are fairly sure that Paul meant to say that all Scripture was breathed out from God. This is the primary meaning. But the expression could also mean that the Word was “inbreathed,” or inspired, by God. The first definition affirms the Bible’s divine origin; the second speaks of God’s spiritual presence in the Word. Thus God not only inspired the authors who wrote the words of the Bible, but He also inspires those who read it with a heart of faith.

- 3:17 The study of Scripture will make a believer complete, meaning “capable” or “proficient.” Thoroughly equipped means “fully prepared.” The person who masters the Word of God will never lose his or her way. every good work: Paul emphasizes the essential link between knowing God’s Word and applying it to one’s daily life. Right doctrine should produce right practice.
- 4:1, 2 I charge: Paul underscores the importance of his command to Timothy by calling on God and Jesus to be witnesses to it. He reminds Timothy that Jesus will return in judgment. Paul’s charge to Timothy is to preach the word. The foundation of any ministry is God’s Word. Preaching God’s truth is a sacred and demanding task, requiring perseverance and courage. Be ready means to take a stand. Timothy was to be alert at all times to his responsibilities, even when it was inconvenient. This type of ministry is not for a novice (see James 3:1). longsuffering . . . teaching: Patience and instruction are two necessary components of an effective ministry. True spiritual growth occurs over a period of time, through consistent teaching and application of God’s Word.

(Gk. epiphaneia) (1:10; 4:1, 8; 2 Thess. 2:8; 1 Tim. 6:14; Titus 2:13) Strong's #2015

This word literally means “a shining forth” and was used in Greek literature to denote a divine appearance. The English word epiphany is a close equivalent. The NT writers use the word to refer to Jesus’ first coming, the time when He entered this world as a man (see 1:10). They also use the word to speak of Jesus’ second coming, specifically to His appearance to all the world (see Matt. 24:27).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 4:3 Timothy needs to be alert and ready to preach God’s Word. Sound teaching is essential for spiritual maturity, but will not always be tolerated. There will come a time when people will seek out teachers to tell them what they want to hear and what makes them feel good.
- 4:4 People turn their ears to avoid truth. This is the sixth time that Paul uses the word truth in this short letter (see also 2:15, 18, 25; 3:7, 8). He had used the word five times in the first letter to Timothy (see 1 Tim. 2:4, 7; 3:15; 4:3; 6:5). As Paul faced execution, he was evidently concerned that his son in the faith would be tempted to depart from truth, lured by deceptive false teachers.
- 4:5 Watchful means “sober.” Endure afflictions refers to the hard toil of ministry, which will have its own reward (2:12). work of an evangelist: Evangelist is one of five offices mentioned by Paul in Eph. 4:11. An evangelist equips and encourages believers to share the Good News.
- 4:6 Paul is aware that the time of his death is near. A drink offering was an offering performed by pouring wine out on the ground or altar (Num. 28:11–31). Paul’s life was already being poured out in service to Jesus Christ, the Lamb (Rev. 5:4–6). my departure is at hand: Paul was confident that no one could touch him until the Heavenly Father ushered him into his eternal home with a victory celebration.
- 4:7 Paul had been vigilant in his service to God. Note that Paul did not make these comments until the end of his race, until he was about to die. He did not presume or rely on His past service. Instead he persevered, struggled, and served God until the end (see 1 Cor. 9:24–27).
- 4:8 Paul understood the eternal potential of a lifetime of faithful service to Christ. Jesus would return with rewards for those who stick it out over the long haul. The crown of righteousness is a special reward given to those who serve God faithfully on this earth (see Matt. 5:10–12). There will be as many crowns as there are runners who finish the race well. All who have loved His appearing are those believers in Christ who have lived faithfully in the hope of His return (see Titus 2:11–15; 1 John 2:28).
- 4:9 Paul is in prison and sends a heartfelt plea to Timothy, asking his young friend to come . . . quickly. Paul desired Christian fellowship and some words of encouragement from Timothy, the one he had trained in the faith.
- 4:10 Demas, Paul’s trusted coworker (see Col. 4:14, Philem. 24), had fled because he loved this present world. He could not endure the hardships of ministry and instead followed worldly pleasures and comfort.

4:11, 12 Only Luke is with me: The value of a trusted friend in the midst of hard times cannot be overstated. Paul’s reference to Mark as useful is a note of tender restoration. Mark’s desertion of Paul in Pamphylia on his first missionary journey had led to the separation of Paul and Barnabas at the beginning of Paul’s second missionary journey (see Acts 15:36–40). But later Paul and Mark were reconciled, and Mark served Paul in the ministry (Col. 4:10). Now at the end of his life, Paul expresses his appreciation of Mark’s service. to Ephesus: Paul was sending a faithful coworker Tychicus (see Acts 20:4; Eph. 6:21; Col. 4:7) to replace Timothy at Ephesus.

Books and Parchments

Paul requests of his friend Timothy that he bring with him “the books, especially the parchments” (4:13). The word for books (biblion) is common in the NT, but the word for parchments (membrana) is used only here—it is a word derived from Latin which means an animal skin used for writing. The two words in this passage have been interpreted in three different ways: (1) “The books” were copies of OT books, and “the parchments” were copies of various NT books; (2) “the books” were copies of OT and NT books, and “the parchments” were blank writing material or notebooks containing rough drafts; or (3) the two words signified the same thing: “the books—that is, the parchment notebooks.” If the third interpretation is correct, it suggests that Paul was anxious to recover some rough drafts he had left behind when he was arrested.

- 4:14, 15 Timothy is warned about Alexander. This is possibly the person named in 1 Tim. 1:20 or Acts 19:33, who caused harm to Paul's ministry in Ephesus. Jesus warned the apostles that they could expect opposition (see John 15:18–21).
- 4:16 Paul echoes the forgiving attitude of Christ. Although many had abandoned him, he asked God not to hold them accountable for their actions.
- 4:17 In spite of the failure of his friends, Paul was supported by the Lord, who always strengthens and empowers. Often people will fail us in troublesome times. The Lord, however, never fails His children, no matter how difficult the circumstances are (see Luke 22:32; Heb. 7:25). God had consistently empowered Paul during his life so that he could continue to preach the truth to the Gentiles. Lion is probably a reference to execution by lions. It is also possible that Paul is using the word as a metaphor for the spiritual conflict from which he was delivered.
- 4:18 Paul's expression of confidence in God builds to a crescendo of praise, ending with Amen.
- 4:19–21 Paul closes the epistle with a number of instructions regarding various individuals in his ministry. Greet Prisca and Aquila: Prisca is another name for Priscilla. Paul had met both Priscilla and Aquila in Corinth on his second missionary journey (Acts 18:1–3), and they had assisted in God's work in Ephesus (Acts 18:18, 19). Onesiphorus: This greeting indicates that Timothy was probably still at Ephesus, for Onesiphorus was from there (see 1:16–18; 1 Tim. 1:3). Trophimus, a member of the church of Ephesus (Acts 21:29), had traveled with Paul to Jerusalem (Acts 20:4).
- 4:22 The final note of this book and of Paul's ministry is grace, a fitting conclusion for this man of God and his faithful service to the Lord Jesus Christ. The fact that the pronoun you is plural may indicate that Paul intended this letter to be read before the congregation.

Introduction

“Point man,” “pinch hitter,” “clutch player,” “go-getter.” These terms describe a person who can be counted on, someone who knows what to do and how to do it and who works tirelessly to get it done. Titus was that kind of person.

He had to be. Much of his work, like the apostle Paul’s, was dangerous, unpopular, difficult, and tiring. It involved traveling, introducing strangers to new ideas, constantly making new friends, consistently battling new enemies, and even deflecting threats on one’s life. The number of people who could share such a load was small, but the early church desperately needed them. Not just anyone could start and maintain a new church in a hostile world. Yet Titus rose to the challenge.

The believers in Crete lacked leadership and were suffering as a result. False teachers were taking advantage of the absence of sound doctrine. Judging from Paul’s exhortations, the harmony and morals of the young congregation were disrupted. Paul relied on Titus to help them establish their leadership and make up their other deficits. Their struggles are repeated in every age, and this letter is as relevant today as it was to Titus.

Author and Date This letter says it was written by the apostle Paul (1:1), and there is little reason to doubt that he wrote it. Although some scholars have raised objections in the last two hundred years, these objections rest mainly on the assumption that Paul died at the end of the imprisonment described in Acts 28 and did not make the journey implied in the letter to Timothy and Titus. The historical details within Titus itself give us no reason to abandon the traditional view that Paul wrote this letter. Because the arguments against Pauline authorship are the same ones suggested against the Pastoral Epistles in general, see the Introduction to 1 Timothy for more information.

It seems that Paul wrote Titus some time between his two Roman imprisonments, between A.D. 62 and 65. Tradition holds that Titus was written shortly after 1 Timothy, around A.D. 63.

Historical Background Crete is a large island, approximately 160 miles long and 35 miles wide, in the Mediterranean Sea. The island is located 100 miles southeast of Greece. The Cretans developed a relatively prosperous agriculture and trading economy, creating one of the best-known business centers of the ancient world. Such prosperity also fostered a great deal of excess. In 1:12, Paul quotes the Greek poet Epimenides, who wrote “Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons.”

Paul may have planted a church on the island of Crete during a missionary trip after his first imprisonment in Rome, which ended about A.D. 62. When Paul departed from Crete, he left Titus behind to “set in order the things that [were] lacking” in the church (1:5).

Titus is mentioned numerous times in the New Testament as one of Paul’s most trusted assistants. He was a Greek and was converted by Paul (see Gal. 2:3). He assisted the apostle on some of his missionary journeys (see 2 Cor. 7:6, 7; 8:6, 16) and went with him to the Jerusalem council (see Acts 15:2; Gal. 2:1–3). Paul mentioned Titus several times in 2 Corinthians (see 2 Cor. 2:13; 7:6, 13, 14; 8:6, 16, 23; 12:18). Titus carried the letter to Corinth. While at Corinth, Titus was entrusted with collecting funds from the Corinthian church. Later Titus went to Dalmatia at Paul’s request (see 2 Tim. 4:10). Early church tradition says that Titus returned to Crete and spent the remainder of his life there.

Theology Although Titus contains only 46 verses, it covers a wide range of topics. It is a key New Testament book for church organization, with its guidelines for elders, pastors, and other believers. Furthermore, it contains one of the clearest statements about God's grace in all of the New Testament (2:11–14; 3:3–7). It explicates the significance of Christ's first (2:11) and second coming (2:13). The book contributes to our understanding of the work of the Holy Spirit in salvation and the Christian life (3:5). But it is known most for its practical instruction about the roles of men, women, and servants (2:2–10) and its instruction for dealing with false teaching (1:9–16; 2:1, 7, 8, 12, 15; 3:2, 8–11, 14). A church needs organization, sound doctrine, and good teaching to survive. In this letter, Paul gives Titus a succinct overview on how to lead a church.

Theme Whereas the letters to Timothy emphasize sound doctrine, the letter to Titus emphasizes good works (1:16; 2:7, 14; 3:1, 5, 8, 14). There were influential people in the church who were motivated by personal interest and selfish gain (1:11). In his letter, Paul exposes the ways this was affecting the doctrine (1:11) and practice (1:16) of the church and urges Titus to champion purity, service, and kindness toward others (2:11–15; 3:3–7). Paul reminds Titus that salvation is not based on our own “works of righteousness” (3:5) but rather is the result of God's work of kindness and love toward us (3:4). We are unable to do good works in our disobedient and selfish state (3:3). Salvation in Christ frees us to do good works, and the “washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit” (3:5) enables us.

God wants His people to devote themselves to doing good works (2:11, 12; 3:1, 8, 14). Older men (2:2), older women (2:3), young women (2:4, 5), young men (2:6–8), and servants (2:9, 10) should “adorn the doctrine of God our Savior in all things” (2:10). In his letter, Paul exhorts the believers at Crete to display the testimony of good works to outsiders (2:11, 12; 3:1, 8, 14). While good works are a Christian duty, they are also a gift from God. Through justification in Christ (3:7), God declares us righteous. We must have this legal standing in order to qualify before God to do good works. Redemption (2:14) removes us from the jurisdiction of Satan by paying the debt incurred by our sins. At the same time, it places us in the family of God so that we might be “His own special people, zealous for good works” (2:14).

Christ in the Scriptures

As in his other letters, Paul's greeting refers to the grace, mercy, and peace that are available from both God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ (1:4). And the reason Paul refers to them as a unit is because of his unflappable belief that Jesus is one with the Father. In Titus 2:13 Paul refers to Him as "our great God and Savior." Obviously that is not unique to this letter, but it is noteworthy. So is the way Paul calls attention to Jesus being the "blessed hope" who has yet to return to earth in a "glorious appearing."

Paul beautifully describes the Savior's redemptive work on our behalf: Jesus is the One "who gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from every lawless deed and purify for Himself His own special people, zealous for good works" (2:14). Certainly Titus got the message.

Titus 1

Greeting

¹Paul, a bondservant of God and an apostle of Jesus Christ, according to the faith of God's elect and ^athe acknowledgment of the truth ^bwhich accords with godliness, Word Studies: slave

²in hope of eternal life which God, who ^ccannot lie, promised before time began,

³but has in due time manifested His word through preaching, which was committed to me according to the commandment of God our Savior;

⁴To ^dTitus, a true son in our common faith:

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and ¹the Lord Jesus Christ our Savior.

Qualified Elders

⁵For this reason I left you in Crete, that you should ^eset in order the things that are lacking, and appoint elders in every city as I commanded you— In-Text

Map: Titus Ministered on the Island of Crete Bible Times & Culture Notes: Crete

⁶if a man is blameless, the husband of one wife, ^fhaving faithful children not accused of ²dissipation or insubordination.

⁷For a ³bishop must be blameless, as a steward of God, not self-willed, not quick-tempered, ^gnot given to wine, not violent, not greedy for money,

⁸but hospitable, a lover of what is good, sober-minded, just, holy, self-controlled, ⁹holding fast the faithful word as he has been taught, that he may be able, by sound doctrine, both to exhort and convict those who contradict.

The Elders' Task

¹⁰For there are many insubordinate, both idle ^htalkers and deceivers, especially those of the circumcision, ¹¹whose mouths must be stopped, who subvert whole households, teaching things which they ought not, ⁱfor the sake of dishonest gain.

^{12j}One of them, a prophet of their own, said, “Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons.”

¹³This testimony is true. ^kTherefore rebuke them sharply, that they may be sound in the faith,

¹⁴not giving heed to Jewish fables and ^lcommandments of men who turn from the truth.

^{15m}To the pure all things are pure, but to those who are defiled and unbelieving nothing is pure; but even their mind and conscience are defiled.

¹⁶They profess to ⁿknow God, but ^oin works they deny Him, being ⁴abominable, disobedient, ^pand disqualified for every good work.

Titus 2

Qualities of a Sound Church

¹But as for you, speak the things which are proper for sound doctrine:

²that the older men be sober, reverent, temperate, sound in faith, in love, in patience;

³the older women likewise, that they be reverent in behavior, not slanderers, not given to much wine, teachers of good things—

⁴that they admonish the young women to love their husbands, to love their children,

⁵to be discreet, chaste, ^ahomemakers, good, ^bobedient to their own husbands, ^cthat the word of God may not be blasphemed.

⁶Likewise, exhort the young men to be sober-minded,

⁷in all things showing yourself to be ^da pattern of good works; in doctrine showing integrity, reverence, ^eincorruptibility,¹

⁸sound speech that cannot be condemned, that one who is an opponent may be ashamed, having nothing evil to say of ²you.

⁹*Exhort* ^fbondservants to be obedient to their own masters, to be well pleasing in all things, not answering back,

¹⁰not ³pilfering, but showing all good ⁴fidelity, that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Savior in all things. Word Studies: God our Savior

Trained by Saving Grace

¹¹For ^gthe grace of God that brings salvation has appeared to all men, ¹²teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in the present age,
¹³looking for the blessed ⁱhope and glorious appearing of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ,
¹⁴who gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from every lawless deed ^kand purify for Himself ^lHis own special people, zealous for good works.
¹⁵Speak these things, ^mexhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no one despise you. Article: Personal Training

Titus 3

Graces of the Heirs of Grace

¹Remind them ^ato be subject to rulers and authorities, to obey, ^bto be ready for every good work,

²to speak evil of no one, to be peaceable, gentle, showing all humility to all men.

³For ^cwe ourselves were also once foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving various lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful and hating one another.

⁴But when ^dthe kindness and the love of ^eGod our Savior toward man appeared,

⁵^fnot by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us, through ^gthe washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit, Word Studies: washing of regeneration

⁶^hwhom He poured out on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior, ⁷that having been justified by His grace ⁱwe should become heirs according to the hope of eternal life.

⁸^jThis is a faithful saying, and these things I want you to affirm constantly, that those who have believed in God should be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable to men.

Avoid Dissension

⁹But ^kavoid foolish disputes, genealogies, contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and useless.

¹⁰Reject a divisive man after the first and second ¹admonition,

¹¹knowing that such a person is warped and sinning, being self-condemned.

Final Messages

¹²When I send Artemas to you, or ^mTychicus, be diligent to come to me at Nicopolis, for I have decided to spend the winter there.

¹³Send Zenas the lawyer and ⁿApollos on their journey with haste, that they may lack nothing.

¹⁴And let our people also learn to maintain good works, to meet urgent needs, that they may not be unfruitful.

Farewell

¹⁵All who are with me greet you. Greet those who love us in the faith.
Grace be with you all. Amen.

Annotations for Titus

1:1 Paul introduces the theme of the book, good works, in the first verse with the term godliness. Good works or works appears eight times in this epistle (twice in v. 16; 2:7, 14; 3:1, 5, 8, 14). At least two other phrases parallel the good works theme: “reverent in behavior” (2:3) and “adorn the doctrine of God” (2:10).

slave

(Gk. doulos) (1:1; John 13:16; 1 Cor. 7:21; Philem. 16; Rev. 6:15; 13:16)

Strong's #1401

This Greek word means “a bondsman,” one who is subject to the will of his master. The Roman Empire depended on slavery, and many Christians were slaves. The NT does not endorse slavery, nor does it promote a political crusade against it. Instead, Paul encouraged slaves to get their freedom if they could do so within the confines of the law (1 Cor. 7:21), and it seems that Paul was asking Philemon to set Onesimus free (Philem. 15, 16). To express his complete submission to God's will, Paul described himself as slave to God (see Rom. 1:1; Gal. 1:10).

1:2 cannot lie: This phrase translates a single Greek word meaning “truthful,” or “free from all deceit.” The salvation that God has promised to each of us who know His Son will be fulfilled; God is faithful to His promises.

1:3 The Greek word translated preaching was the word for the message proclaimed by a public herald. Paul places emphasis on the message, not the messenger. Christians should always focus on Christ, for He is the center of our faith, not any one preacher (see 1 Cor. 9:16; 2 Cor. 4:5). The power is in the truth of what is preached, the good news that Christ has saved us from our sins (see Rom. 1:15, 16; 1 Cor. 2:4). committed to me: A king's commission is a definite, official act, giving a person a task and authority to carry it out. Paul's commission was as God's “imperial secretary,” carrying the royal message of salvation.

1:5 Lacking indicates an unfinished organization of the churches in Crete due to the brevity of Paul's visit. Paul identifies three specific areas of shortcoming: (1) a lack of organization in the churches (vv. 5–9); (2) unchallenged false teachers (vv. 10, 11; 3:10, 11); (3) a need for teaching in doctrine and practical living (2:1–10; 3:1, 2). Titus was left behind to set in order these deficiencies. Titus's first step toward completing his task was to appoint elders in every city (see Acts 14:23). Apparently the early church had several leaders in a particular church instead of one principal leader. The Greek words for elder and bishop (literally, overseer) seem to have been used interchangeably by Paul (see v. 7). Elder perhaps speaks more of the office and its authority, while bishop may speak more of the person's function and the ministry of oversight (see Acts 20:17).

Crete

The Mediterranean island of Crete is 160 miles long and up to 35 miles wide. Its first-century inhabitants were notorious for untruthfulness and immorality (1:12, 13) and the expression “to act the Cretan” became an idiom meaning “to play the liar.” A number of Jews from Crete were present in Jerusalem on the Day of Pentecost (Acts 2:11) and some of them may have believed in Christ and introduced the gospel to their country. Although Paul was shipwrecked on Crete during his trip to Rome (Acts 27:7–13), he probably had little time for active ministry during that brief sojourn. The apostle spread the gospel in the cities of Crete after his release from Roman imprisonment and he left Titus there to finish organizing the churches. Not long after his departure, Paul wrote this letter to encourage and assist Titus in that task.

1:6 Blameless means to have nothing in one's conduct on which someone could base an accusation (see 1 Tim. 3:2). Such is to be the overall characteristic of an elder. Yet Paul further defines this blamelessness with 16 qualities. These qualities are in three areas: family life (v. 6), personal life (vv. 7, 8), and doctrinal beliefs (v. 9). The contrast between the blameless behavior of church elders and the base behavior of the false teachers should have been evident to all (vv. 10–16). husband of one wife: This phrase is found only in the Pastoral Epistles (see 1 Tim. 3:2, 12; 5:9). Its exact meaning is debated. The apostle might be barring a polygamist, a divorced or remarried man, or a man known to be unfaithful to his wife. Paul was emphasizing, as Jesus did (see Matt. 19:5), the importance of marital faithfulness. Marriage is the uniting of a man and a woman into "one flesh." faithful children: Not only should the man have a good relationship with his wife, he should also have children who demonstrate faithfulness to God. If a man has children who reject the ways of God, this reflects on the father's ability to lead others outside his home. This rule would apply to children who are not yet fully grown, but possibly not to adult children.

1:7–9 Elders were not to be self-willed, but self-controlled. If they were self-seeking, like the false teachers on Crete (vv. 10–16), they would not possess the character required to promote good works and sound doctrine among the believers. Convict means to rebuke in such a way as to produce repentance and confession of sin (see John 16:8). A rebuke can have the positive results of producing change in a person's life.

1:10, 11 many insubordinate: In these verses, Paul describes the characteristics of the false teachers whose teaching was contrary to the truth and was undermining the authority of church leaders. those of the circumcision: Apparently there were Jewish Christians in the churches of Crete who were limiting the Christian freedom of Gentile Christians by requiring an adherence to Jewish laws (see Gal. 3).

1:12 Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons: Paul is quoting the Cretan poet Epimenides, who wrote these words around 600 B.C. The Cretans were so much regarded as liars in the Mediterranean world that the expression "to Cretanize" meant to lie. Paul was contrasting the Cretans' reputation with God's. The Lord was incapable of lying (see v. 2).

- 1:14 The word fable is always used in contrast to Christian doctrine (see 1 Tim. 4:6, 7). These Jewish fables were probably legends about OT figures, like some that survive to this day in nonbiblical writings. This speculation was not only opposed to the truth, but it also undermined the faith (v. 13). commandments of men: The rules that come from false doctrine are contrasted with the good works (v. 16) that should proceed from sound doctrine. See Mark 7:1–16 for examples of fables and commandments of men.
- 1:15 In this verse Paul highlights the mistaken asceticism of the Cretan false teachers. They had identified certain foods and practices as defiled when in reality it was their minds that were defiled and unbelieving. On the other hand, to the pure all things are pure. Because the Cretan believers had placed their trust in Christ, focusing their minds on Him, they would be empowered by God’s Spirit to lead pure lives. Jesus taught the same principle in Matt. 15:11. Physical objects or external practices do not defile a person, but a mind focused on evil thoroughly corrupts. Although present-day believers are typically not concerned with Jewish ritual observances, the principle is still applicable. We should be more concerned about renewing our mind and focusing it on Jesus than observing a list of rules that have no biblical support.
- 2:1 Paul normally follows a rebuke of false doctrine with an admonition of how the believer should act (see 2 Tim. 3:10, 14). Sound means “healthy.” Paul makes frequent use of the term in the Pastoral Epistles. He uses it five times in Titus (see also 1:9, 13; 2:2, 8). Paul views sound doctrine as the root that produces the fruit of sound practice (good works), such as faith, love, and patience (v. 2), as well as sound speech (v. 8). Right thinking is the raw material for right actions (see Ps. 119:11; Prov. 23:7; Rom. 12:2; James 1:13–15). Our actions will naturally reveal the direction of our thoughts.
- 2:2 Older men refers to men older than about 50. The same is true of older women (see v. 3). The character of those who are mature should serve as a spiritual example to all. Maturity is not determined simply by age or even by how much a person knows; it is determined by how skilled a person is in applying the truth to life and in distinguishing good from evil (see Heb. 5:13, 14).
- 2:3 In keeping with the theme of good works (vv. 1, 2), older women are not to engage in evil practices like slander, gossip, or drunkenness; instead, they are to teach younger women (v. 4).
- 2:4 In this verse the word admonish means “to give encouragement through advice.” Older women are to pass on their insights to their younger counterparts. love their husbands: Paul speaks here not of romantic love, but of the commitment of a woman to her husband’s welfare.
- 2:5 homemakers: The importance that Paul places on the role of women in the home may also be seen in 1 Tim. 5:2–16 (see also Prov. 31). obedient to their own husbands: Women are not under the authority of men in general, but rather the authority of their own husbands. The Greek word translated obedient is a military term which indicates voluntary submission to the one in authority (see Eph. 5:21). that the word of God may not be blasphemed: Paul wanted the older women to teach the younger women so that their actions would glorify God, build His kingdom, and strengthen the family. Failure to follow Paul’s instructions would result in the word of God being maligned in the pagan community.
- 2:6 Young men are to pursue the character qualities that older men should possess already.
- 2:7, 8 a pattern of good works: Paul concludes his instructions to various age groups by reminding Titus that his personal life is an essential aspect of his teaching. More people will learn from our daily actions than from what we say. Therefore we must pay careful attention that our lives are in line with our beliefs.
- 2:9, 10 bondservants: Good works from a Christian slave would make the doctrine of God very attractive to a non-Christian master. Believing the teachings of Scripture is proper and good, but living those truths will influence the nonbelievers with whom we rub shoulders every day.

God our Savior

(Gk. sōtēr hēmōn theos) (1:3; 2:10; 3:4; 1 Tim. 1:1; 2:3) Strong's #4990; 2257; 2316

In the Pastoral Epistles, this expression or similar ones appear often. In each of these verses, the appellation seems to describe God the Father. The OT writers speak of God as Savior (see Ps. 24:5; Is. 12:2; 45:15, 21) and so do a few other NT writers (Luke 1:47; Jude 25). The Son is called Savior in the Pastoral Epistles (1:4; 2:13; 3:6; 2 Tim. 1:10), and in 2:13 the Son is called “our great God and Savior,” thus clearly identifying Jesus as God.

Go to the List of Word Studies

2:11 appeared: Twice in this context Paul speaks of Christ's appearance in history. The first time Christ came in grace to save men from their sins; the second time He will come in glory (v. 13) to reign.

2:12, 13 The appearance of the grace of God is to produce two results in the lives of believers: First, we are to resist the evil temptations of this world, living godly lives in this present age. Second, we are to look for Christ's return. Paul reminded Timothy that there is a special crown awaiting “all who have loved His appearing.” (see 2 Tim. 4:8). great God and Savior Jesus Christ: This is one of the strongest statements of the deity of Christ in the NT.

2:14 Redeem means “to purchase.” With His death on the Cross, Christ paid the price to release us from the bondage of sin (see Eph. 1:7) to which every unbeliever is a slave (see Rom. 6:6, 7, 17, 20). God's purpose in redeeming us is not only to save us from hell; He also wants to free us from sin so that we can produce good works that glorify Him (see Eph. 2:8–10).

2:15 rebuke: For the third time in this letter (see also 1:11, 13), Paul strongly commands Titus to confront false teachers.

Personal Training

In a world where education seems to be offered everywhere, the biblical description of the church as God's training center for holy living is often overlooked (2:1–15). This error becomes obvious when a church lacks leaders. Effective leadership in a church is the result of proper training. When young believers have not been trained the church begins to flounder.

Paul was one of the most effective leaders of the early church. He preached the gospel tirelessly, founded a succession of churches throughout Asia Minor and Greece, and grounded these churches in God's Word and the essentials of the Christian faith. But to be truly effective, Paul had to nurture others to follow in his footsteps and faithfully lead the church into the next century. Titus was one of the young men Paul was training for leadership. He had accompanied Paul early in his ministry (Gal. 2:1–3), had served as Paul’s representative (2 Cor. 7:5–16), and was considered a “fellow worker” (2 Cor. 8:23). When Paul wrote this letter, he had begun to pass the reins of leadership to this capable young man who was overseeing the churches on the island of Crete.

In his instructions to Titus, Paul reminds him of the traits of a spiritual leader (1:5–16). Paul had chosen Titus as a helper because he had evidenced these qualities. Now he had to model such traits to others, searching for those who could become leaders in the newly planted churches.

Paul instructed Titus to place the responsibility of moral leadership on the elders. Older men and women (2:1–5) had to lead the way in personal holiness. If their lives demonstrated the transforming power of the gospel, they would leave a lasting impact on following generations. Young men who saw older men diligently maintaining their faith in Christ would do likewise (2:2). Young women who heard older women encourage them to “love their husbands, to love their children” (2:4) would be more likely to take the counsel to heart if they saw their mentors doing that themselves. Titus himself was to exhort “young men” (2:6), while making sure that he was consistently following the pattern of life he was teaching (2:7).

The degree to which sound training exists in a local church practically determines the health of that church. The pastor may be the designated teacher, but the Bible makes everyone both a trainer and a trainee. Church members should rely on each other for spiritual guidance. The older generation should pass on to the next generation their vital Christian faith by word and example. The character that results from this process of spiritual training truly is an eye-catching advertisement for the gospel.

3:1, 2 Remind: Paul had already instructed the Cretans regarding submission and obedience to the authorities in their communities. Titus was to remind them of their duty to be good citizens, a virtue which the Cretans notoriously lacked (see 1:12). rulers and authorities: This phrase often refers to the angelic realm, including both good (see Eph. 3:10) and evil angels (see Eph. 6:12). Here it refers to civil leaders and institutions. Disobedience permeated the Cretans’ lifestyle, both in the church (v. 10) and in government. Titus must advise them to get along with civil authorities and to live peacefully with their neighbors. This type of life would reflect positively on the Christian faith and thus glorify God.

3:3 Paul provides another motive for good works by explaining the rationale for the Christian life. The believers were supposed to treat others the way God in His grace had treated them when they were involved in the ungodly activities noted in this verse (see Rom. 5:8).

3:5 not by works of righteousness: Since Paul has been exhorting Titus to emphasize good works in his ministry with the Cretans, he wants to make it clear that such works have no value in saving a person. Rather, it is solely on the basis of God’s mercy that we are delivered from the penalty of our sin. washing of regeneration: This phrase refers to the work of the Holy Spirit, who in a moment makes a person new by the cleansing of regeneration (the new birth). This new nature is the ground for living the Christian life and performing good deeds. renewing of the Holy Spirit: The continual process of Christian living is enabled by the Holy Spirit, resulting in growth in character and good works.

Word Studies

washing of regeneration

(Gk. loutron palingenesias) (3:5) Strong's #3067; 3824

The Greek word for washing can signify the receptacle of washing (the basin) or the act of washing itself. In Eph. 5:26, the only other NT occurrence of this word, the natural meaning is washing. Here also the action of washing is presented. Quite simply, the text says that regeneration is characterized by or accompanied by the action of washing. The regenerative activity of the Holy Spirit is characterized elsewhere in Scripture as cleansing and purifying (see Ezek. 36:25–27; John 3:5). The Greek term for regeneration literally means “being born again”—indicating a new birth effected by the Holy Spirit (see John 3:6; Rom. 8:16; Gal. 4:6). Thus God saved us through one process with two aspects: the washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Spirit.

Go to the List of Word Studies

3:7 we should become heirs: God justifies believers so that they might become coheirs with Jesus Christ in His coming reign (see Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:12).

3:8 This is a faithful saying: Paul is emphasizing that what he has written (vv. 4–8) is a trustworthy statement, one that is central to the Christian faith. There are four other places in the Pastoral Epistles where Paul labels his teaching as a faithful saying (see also 1 Tim. 1:15; 3:1; 4:9; 2 Tim. 2:11–13). It is significant that the faithful saying in Titus includes an admonition to maintain good works, the theme of the letter. These things are good and profitable: This emphasizes the practical benefit of good works.

3:9–11 Paul was admonishing Titus to avoid anything that would promote wickedness among the believers. Reject a divisive man: Titus was to cut off the church's relationship with any person who would not submit to correction after two warnings (see 2 Thess. 3:14, 15). The Greek word for warped here suggests that Satan is perverting this person. Sinning indicates that the man will not change his ways and thus continues to rebel against God.

3:12, 13 Tychicus, one of Paul's assistants, is also mentioned in Acts 20:4; Eph. 6:21; Col. 4:7; 2 Tim. 4:12. The city of Nicopolis was on the Adriatic coast of Greece. Apollos was a fellow worker of Paul's (see Acts 18:24; 19:1; 1 Cor. 1:12; 3:4–6, 22; 4:6; 16:12), an Alexandrian who had been taught by Priscilla and Aquila and had eloquently preached the gospel at Ephesus and Corinth (see Acts 18:24–19:1).

3:14 Paul ends his letter to Titus with an emphasis on good works, the theme of this letter (see 1:1). to meet urgent needs: Paul gives the Cretans a practical way they can start demonstrating their faith in good works: they can begin meeting the needs of other people. that they may not be unfruitful: A recurring theme throughout the NT is that believers should live up to their holy calling. They should continue being sanctified (see Heb. 10:14, 23–26). Justification is solely a gift from God, but we will be rewarded according to what we do on this earth (see Rev. 22:12). What a tragedy it will be for some to stand ashamed at Christ's return (see 1 John 2:28). How much better it will be to abound in good works which the Holy Spirit empowered us to do (see Phil. 4:17).

Introduction

Under Roman law, a slave who ran away from his master could face the death penalty. In spite of this possibility, the apostle Paul sent Onesimus, a runaway slave and a recent convert to Christianity, back to his owner Philemon to make restitution. The Epistle to Philemon is Paul's plea that Onesimus no longer be viewed as a runaway slave, but rather as a "beloved brother" (see vv. 16, 17; Col. 4:9). Obedience to these requests would require forgiveness and restoration, actions which no other slave owner would have to contemplate in the ancient world. But Christians were called to a higher calling, one that contradicted the expectations of the culture at large. While the world pursued power and glory, Christians were to pursue the way of the Cross—the way of forgiveness, servanthood, suffering, and love.

Author and Date Three times in this book (vv. 1, 9, 19) Paul identifies himself as its author. The vocabulary and style are clearly his, for many of the phrases in this letter are found in Paul's other letters (compare v. 4 with Phil. 1:3, 4). Also, many of those who sent their greetings with this letter are the same ones who did so in the letter to the Colossians. This fact indicates the close relationship between the two letters (see Col. 4:12–15 and the Introduction to Colossians).

Paul was a prisoner when he wrote this epistle, but his location is uncertain. Three possibilities have been suggested: Ephesus, Caesarea (see Acts 24–26), and Rome (Acts 28). But most hold that Paul wrote this letter during the first Roman imprisonment around A.D. 60, along with the other Prison Epistles—Ephesians, Philippians, and Colossians.

Occasion and Purpose The greeting and the content of the letter indicate that Philemon is the intended recipient. Philemon was a slave owner whose home served as the meeting place for a local church. Philemon probably lived in Colosse, a city in the Roman province of Asia Minor. He was a convert to Christianity as a result of Paul's ministry, possibly during the apostle's stay in Ephesus (see Acts 19:26). Apphia was probably his wife, and Archippus may have been his son, possibly serving at this time as the pastor of the church that met in Philemon's house (see Col. 4:17).

Philemon owned a slave named Onesimus, a common name for slaves in that period. Onesimus ran away and had apparently stolen something from his master. Having fled to Rome, the escaped slave providentially came into contact with Paul, became a Christian, and remained with the apostle for some time, serving him in prison. However, restoration and restitution needed to be made. It was agreed that Onesimus would return to Philemon, even though this could result in the former's death. Paul wrote a letter to his friend Philemon, pleading the cause of Onesimus. At the same time he wrote a letter to the church at Colosse and sent it with Tychicus (see Col. 4:7–9). The New Testament does not reveal what finally happened to Onesimus. Some have taken him to be the Onesimus who eventually became the bishop of Ephesus, mentioned by Ignatius in the early second century.

Slavery in the Ancient World To recognize the significance of this letter, it is essential to understand slavery as it existed in the first century. At that time the slave-master relationship was as common as the employee-employer relationship is today. Onesimus was a runaway Roman slave.

During this period, the Jews practiced slavery according to the provisions of the Law of Moses. A Jewish slave belonged to the family of the owner and had certain religious and social rights. If the slave was a Hebrew, the term of slavery was limited to six years. Jeremiah had warned that permanent slavery would bring about divine disfavor (Jer. 34:8–22). But even if the slave was a Gentile, the owner's power was limited by Jewish law. If a master punished and injured a slave in his possession, the slave was to be set free. If the punishment resulted in the slave's death, then the master was to be punished. The slave was viewed as a person and was to be treated fairly, which differed from the Roman system of slavery.

Among the Jews, slaves were only a small part of the total population. But in Rome, slaves outnumbered Roman citizens. Some of the wealthy Roman landowners may have had ten to twenty thousand slaves working on their estates. To the Romans, a slave was not a person and was basically thought of as property. Many slaves were treated humanely and sometimes were better off economically than many free persons, but there was still the fact that they were considered a possession. They were vulnerable to cruel treatment and could even be killed with impunity. With slaves far outnumbering citizens, controlling the slave population was an imperative to the Romans. To lose control of the slaves was to forfeit the social and economic basis of the Roman Empire.

Theology The Epistle to Philemon was not written to refute theological error or to teach doctrine. However, into this short letter Paul skillfully weaves the concepts of salvation (vv. 10, 16), substitution (v. 17), imputation (v. 18), and redemption (v. 19). Although here these ideas speak of Paul's relationship with Onesimus, they remind us of Christ's relationship with us (Gal. 4:1–7). We were once slaves to sin, but Christ redeemed us from our awful fate, death.

This letter is basically an earnest plea for a Christian love that would confront the cruelty and hatred embodied in the cultural institutions of that day. Paul commends Philemon for already expressing that type of love (vv. 5, 7). But to ensure that this love would be shown to Onesimus, Paul offers to pay Onesimus's debt (v. 19). Paul's love for Onesimus went beyond mere words; he was willing to give out of his own poverty to guarantee this slave's well-being.

Christ in the Scriptures

Onesimus, the new convert, has become a new creature in Christ and has become extremely valuable to Paul. But both of them know that Onesimus has a moral obligation as a Christian to return to Philemon. It is what Paul pens in this passionate letter (that the ex-slave will personally carry to Philemon) where we see Jesus in this book.

The forgiveness that the believer finds in Christ is beautifully portrayed by analogy. Although Onesimus is guilty of a great offense (vv. 11, 18), Paul is moved to intercede on his behalf. Paul lays aside his rights (v. 8) and becomes Onesimus's substitute by assuming his debt (vv. 18, 19)—as Jesus did for every one of us. We are like Onesimus: Paul's advocacy before Philemon is parallel to Christ's work of mediation before the Father on our behalf.

Philemon 1

Greeting

¹Paul, a ^aprisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy our brother,
To Philemon our beloved friend and fellow laborer, In-Text Map: Philemon Was a Member of the Church in Colosse ²to ¹the beloved Apphia, ^bArchippus our fellow soldier, and to the church in your house:
³Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Philemon's Love and Faith

^{4c}I thank my God, making mention of you always in my prayers, ^{5d}hearing of your love and faith which you have toward the Lord Jesus and toward all the saints, ⁶that the sharing of your faith may become effective ^eby the acknowledgment of ^fevery good thing which is in ²you in Christ Jesus.
⁷For we ³have great ⁴joy and ⁵consolation in your love, because the ⁶hearts of the saints have been refreshed by you, brother.

The Plea for Onesimus

⁸Therefore, though I might be very bold in Christ to command you what is fitting,

⁹yet for love's sake I rather appeal to you—being such a one as Paul, the aged, and now also a prisoner of Jesus Christ—

¹⁰I appeal to you for my son ⁸Onesimus, whom I have begotten while in my chains, ¹¹who once was unprofitable to you, but now is profitable to you and to me.

¹²I am sending him ⁷back. You therefore receive him, that is, my own ⁸heart, Bible Times & Culture Notes: Paul and Slavery

¹³whom I wished to keep with me, that on your behalf he might minister to me in my chains for the gospel.

¹⁴But without your consent I wanted to do nothing, ^hthat your good deed might not be by compulsion, as it were, but voluntary.

¹⁵For perhaps he departed for a while for this purpose, that you might receive him forever, ¹⁶no longer as a slave but more than a slave—a beloved brother, especially to me but how much more to you, both in the ⁱflesh and in the Lord.

Philemon's Obedience Encouraged

¹⁷If then you count me as a partner, receive him as you would me.

¹⁸But if he has wronged you or owes anything, put that on my account.

¹⁹I, Paul, am writing with my own ^jhand. I will repay—not to mention to you that you owe me even your own self besides.

²⁰Yes, brother, let me have joy from you in the Lord; refresh my heart in the Lord.

^{21k}Having confidence in your obedience, I write to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say.

²²But, meanwhile, also prepare a guest room for me, for ^lI trust that ^mthrough your prayers I shall be granted to you.

Farewell

²³ⁿEpaphras, my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, greets you, ²⁴*as do* ^oMark, ^pAristarchus, ^qDemas, ^rLuke, my fellow laborers.
²⁵^sThe grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

Annotations for Philemon

- 1, 2 Paul addresses the letter to Philemon and the Colossian church, but this intensely personal epistle uses the singular “I” and “you” (except in vv. 22 and 25), demonstrating that the letter is Paul’s plea to Philemon.
- 1 Paul identifies himself not as an apostle, but as a prisoner, because of his surrender to the cause of Christ and the fact that he was writing from prison in Rome (vv. 9, 10, 13, 23). Timothy was with Paul in Rome (see Col. 1:1) and in Ephesus. Philemon is called beloved. Paul’s plea (vv. 9, 10) will be built on the concept of love. Fellow laborer indicates someone who is united with Paul in the work of Christ.

Philemon Was a Member of the Church in Colosse

- 2 Apphia may have been the wife of Philemon. Archippus may have been the son of Philemon or perhaps an elder of the Colossian church (see Col. 4:17). fellow soldier: This term implies more than fellow laborer (v. 1). It is used only one other time in the NT, when Paul speaks of Epaphroditus (see Phil. 2:25). in your house: The church was meeting in Philemon’s house. Philemon may have been an active leader in the church.
- 4, 5 in my prayers: Philemon’s Christian life was a continual cause for thanksgiving whenever Paul prayed. love and faith . . . toward the Lord Jesus and toward all the saints: This may be an example of the literary device called a chiasmus, where parallel phrases are connected in reverse order. Thus the word faith refers to Christ, and the word love refers to the saints. Saints speaks of all believers. True love is expressed in action and not just in words (see 1 Cor. 13:1–7).

- 6 Paul prays that Philemon’s faith will be effective—a term that speaks of being in good working order (see Heb. 4:12, where powerful translates the same word). Working faith is a sharing faith; it is the acknowledgment of what Christ has done in the believer’s life (see Eph. 3:17–19). That kind of faith will also result in the sharing of possessions with other believers (see vv. 17, 18).
- 7 Rather than merely being happy because of Philemon’s love, the apostle remarkably stated that he had joy, even when he was in chains (see v. 1). A Christian’s joy in trying circumstances is a testimony to God’s peace. Consolation may also be translated “encouragement.” Philemon’s love brought joy and encouragement to Paul. Hearts refers to the inner emotional nature of a person (vv. 12, 20). Paul had heard that the hearts of the saints were also being refreshed by Philemon’s love (see Matt. 11:28; 1 Cor. 16:18).
- 8 Therefore: In light of the foundation that has been laid (vv. 4–7), Paul is ready to make his plea. very bold: This phrase speaks of “free and open speaking” (see 2 Cor. 3:12; Eph. 6:19). Paul’s apostolic authority and Philemon’s spiritual condition made Paul confident that he could command Philemon to do what is proper (see Col. 3:18).
- 9 Rather than commanding Philemon (v. 8), Paul preferred to appeal to Philemon on the basis of love. Appeal is the same word translated consolation in v. 7. Paul, the aged: The apostle is speaking either of the office of elder or of his old age.
- 10 My son is the Greek word for “child.” The imagery of a father and child is used at other times by Paul when speaking of his converts (see 1 Tim. 1:2; Titus 1:4). begotten: The apostle was personally responsible for bringing Onesimus to Christ (see 1 Cor. 4:15; Gal. 4:19).
- 11 Paul uses an interesting play on words here. Having just mentioned Onesimus, whose name means “Useful” (v. 10), the apostle describes him as someone who was formerly unprofitable (unuseful) but is now profitable. Paul is saying that Onesimus had become good and useful, even more so than Philemon could have imagined.
- 12 I am sending him back: Paul is referring the case back to Philemon for a decision. He encourages Philemon not to view Onesimus as a runaway slave. In fact, Onesimus had become a part of Paul’s own heart (vv. 7, 20).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Paul and Slavery

Although he was a Roman citizen himself, Paul brought to the nature of slavery a unique Christian understanding that was grounded in Hebraic ethics. In his letters Paul did not approve of slavery, but he also did not condemn it. He exhorted slaves to demonstrate Christian obedience and humility even to their masters (Eph. 6:5–8; Col. 3:22–25). In turn, Christian masters were to treat their slaves fairly (Eph. 5:9; Col. 4:1).

Some have criticized Paul and the NT church for not calling for an end to slavery. It is true that first-century believers didn’t actively campaign for an end to slavery, petition the government, or urge slaves to rebel. However, Paul clearly declared the equality of both slaves and free persons before Christ, a principle that would eventually undermine the institution of slavery (see 1 Cor. 7:22; Gal. 3:28; Eph.

6:8; Col. 3:11).

- 13 wished: Paul wanted to keep Onesimus in Rome, helping in the ministry, confident that Philemon would approve. Onesimus had been serving Paul in place of Philemon, giving Paul the aid Philemon could not.
- 14 Paul expressed his desire to have Philemon involved in the decision of whether Onesimus could remain with him. Therefore, he would act only with Philemon's consent. Philemon's good deed had to be voluntary. Service for Christ is never forced. Paul had given Philemon several good reasons to forgive Onesimus, but here he returns to the foundation of his argument: Philemon's actions had to proceed from his own love (v. 9).
- 15 departed for a while: It was God's plan that Onesimus would run away. receive him forever: Paul contrasts the temporary separation because of Onesimus's running away to the eternal benefit of his salvation.
- 16 no longer as a slave but . . . a beloved brother: Paul contrasts the lowly position of a slave to the high privilege of a Christian brother. in the flesh and in the Lord: Not only will Onesimus be useful on the human level, he will be useful for the work of the Lord.
- 17, 18 partner . . . owes: Onesimus had probably stolen something from Philemon when he left. Furthermore, he owed Philemon for the time he was gone. Paul uses business imagery in offering to pay for any loss Philemon suffered because of Onesimus's actions. Partner is a form of the Greek word for fellowship. Philemon was to receive Onesimus as he would his partner in Christ, Paul. put that on my account: This accounting imagery reminds us of the theological truth that our sins were charged over to Christ even though He had not earned them. Forgiveness is costly (see Is. 53:6).

- 19 my own hand: Paul wrote this note himself because it was a personal note, but also because the letter could be considered a legal document obligating him to pay the damages Onesimus had caused. I will repay: Paul promises to pay Onesimus's debt to assure the runaway slave's gracious reception by his owner. you owe me: The mention of Philemon's spiritual debt to Paul is not an attempt to cancel his own promise to pay; Paul chooses not to appeal to Philemon on the basis of this obligation.
- 20 The word translated joy in this verse is different from the one used in v. 7. The term here may also mean "benefit." Philemon's restoration of Onesimus would benefit Paul. refresh: What Philemon had done for other believers (v. 7), he could do for Paul by his kind treatment of Onesimus.
- 21 obedience: Paul is expecting Philemon to be compassionate to his former slave Onesimus (vv. 5, 7, 9).
- 22 prepare a guest room: Hospitality is a Christian virtue (see Rom. 12:13; 1 Tim. 3:2). Paul's mention of a possible visit adds weight to his request of Philemon. The term translated granted here is related to the Greek word for grace. Paul expects to be released from prison (see Phil. 2:24).
- 23, 24 These five coworkers are also mentioned in Col. 4:10–14.

Introduction

At first Christianity was Jewish. Jesus was a Jew, His disciples were Jews, and the first converts were Jews. Their first meetings took place in synagogues, and their first controversies concerned adherence to Jewish laws. Christianity's first critics knew it as a Jewish sect.

But for the first Jewish believers, believing in Christ raised many questions. What about the temple and animal sacrifices? What about the Law of Moses? Did believing in Christ negate so much that they had grown up believing? Was it really enough to trust in Christ? The Old Testament did not answer these questions.

Answers were needed right away for those who lived in the time of this book's writing. Tolerance would soon give way to torture and executions. Nero would not leave this odd group alone forever. Believing in Christ would be a life-or-death proposition, and the temptation for Jewish believers to go back to their old ways would be irresistible—unless they could know for sure they had made the right choice.

Author and Date No one knows for sure who wrote Hebrews. No one in the early church could say with certainty that they knew, though the church at Alexandria (Egypt) strongly believed it to be the apostle Paul's work. Yet Hebrews has been accorded one of the most respected places in the Bible. This book won its place in the New Testament by its merit, not by the esteem of its author.

Did Paul write Hebrews? The letter's vocabulary, style, and theology differ greatly from Paul's letters. Unlike the author of Hebrews, Paul always identified himself in his writings; in fact, in one of them he offered his name as proof of the letter's authenticity (see 2 Thess. 3:17, 18). The language of Hebrews is polished, deliberate, and without the outbursts of emotion so characteristic of Paul. Typically Paul used Greek, Hebrew, and other sources in his Old Testament quotations, while the author of Hebrews used only the Greek Septuagint. Hebrews 2:3 seems to say that the author did not hear the word of salvation directly from the Lord, whereas Paul did. If Paul wrote Hebrews, he left none of the usual clues.

Tertullian suggested that Barnabas wrote it. Barnabas was from Cyprus, where the Greek was of good quality, and Hebrews represents the Greek of the educated and cultural classes more than any other New Testament book. Barnabas was also a Levite (see Acts 4:36), a person who would be very familiar with Judaism's sacrificial system, central to the book's theme. Barnabas's name is translated in Acts 4:36 as "Son of Consolation" or "Son of Exhortation," a parallel to the description in Heb. 13:22.

Martin Luther and many contemporary scholars have speculated that Apollos wrote Hebrews. Apollos was a Jew, an Alexandrian, and a knowledgeable, eloquent man (see Acts 18:24). But none of the church fathers named him. And if Apollos did write Hebrews, the Alexandrian church would probably have known it because Apollos was an Alexandrian.

Could the author have been Priscilla, as the scholar Adolf Harnack suggested (see Acts 18:26)? The masculine participle in 11:32 probably rules that out. The original recipients knew who wrote it (see 13:18, 22-24), but they left no clue for us.

No one knows exactly when Hebrews was written either, although guessing a date is easier than guessing the author. If it was written to the Jewish believers at Rome, as is commonly assumed, then the fact that the community had not yet been called upon to suffer death for their faith suggests that the epistle should be dated before Nero's persecution of Christians in A.D. 64.

Recipients The original audience of Hebrews is not named. Some scholars have said that the book was written to Gentile Christians, arguing from the author's use of the Septuagint and from the absence of any mention of Gentile-Jewish controversy. Others have suggested that the letter was addressed to a mixed group of Jews and Gentiles.

But most scholars suppose that the addressees were Jewish Christians because of the book's heavy emphasis on Jewish topics and themes, especially the detailed discussion of the superiority of Jesus Christ over angels, Moses, Joshua, and Old Testament believers. Quotes of Old Testament passages appear throughout the book. Many of the author's themes assume an in-depth knowledge of Old Testament priesthood and sacrifice. Jews living outside of Jerusalem would almost certainly have been Greek-speaking, explaining the use of the Septuagint. The recipients are addressed as “brethren” throughout, and in the early church this would have included a large number of Jews. The title “To the Hebrews” is not from the author’s hands, but it is dated as early as the second century.

Where did the readers live? The expression “those from Italy” (13:24) may refer to those in Italy or originally from Italy but presently away from there. It seems most reasonable to think of the readers as Jewish believers at Rome. The letter was first known at Rome, and the concluding salutation easily fits this view (see 13:24; Acts 18:2). The reference to false teaching about food in 13:9 matches a similar problem in the Roman church (see Rom. 14:1—15:3).

Structure The structure of Hebrews is unique among the epistles of the New Testament. Was it a letter or a sermon? It has the ending of a letter but not the salutation of one. It does not name its author or its intended audience, yet it contains personal greetings, assumes that the readers knew who was writing to them, and mentions some well-known mutual acquaintances, such as Timothy (13:23). This mix of elements has caused much debate over what the Book of Hebrews really is, with no solid conclusion. The author himself calls it “the word of exhortation” (13:22).

Purpose The Book of Hebrews was written to address the doubts of those who were second-guessing their conversion to Christianity. “You began with God’s plan of salvation,” it says in effect. “You believed in His word and followed His plan of salvation through the temple sacrifices. And then when His once-for-all final sacrifice was made in Jesus Christ, you believed. That was as it should be. That was God’s plan. Do not go back on the steps you have taken!”

The author of Hebrews set out to show that Christianity is the true successor to Judaism. He centers his attention on three topics: (1) priesthood, or divine mediation (7:1–28; 10:19–22); (2) sacrifice, or divine redemption (9:11–10:18); (3) covenant, or divine promises (8:8–13; 9:15–22). He uses three Old Testament passages to prove his point: (1) Ps. 110:4, which announces a new priesthood providing the necessary divine mediation; (2) Ps. 40:6–8, which speaks of the new and final sacrifice providing divine redemption; (3) Jer. 31:31–34, which announces a new covenant that provides full and final forgiveness.

According to the author of Hebrews, all of this points to the supremacy and sufficiency of Christ. True spirituality comes through access to God (7:19; 10:19–22); and this spirituality can be found only through the Son of God, Jesus Christ. The Book of Hebrews establishes the supremacy and sufficiency of Christ over all (1:1–4; 9:11–14). His sacrifice was enough to take away our sin; He is all we need to come to God today.

Christ in the Scriptures

Although the identity of the author of Hebrews is difficult to trace, his message is quite easy to follow. Many Jewish believers, having stepped out of Judaism into Christianity, wanted to reverse their course in order to escape persecution from their countrymen. But the writer stops them in their tracks, exhorting them to “go on to perfection” (6:1). His appeal is based on the superiority of Christ. The Hebrew system of sacrifice and priestly rule pales in comparison to Christ’s work. The writer insists that Jesus is better than the angels, for even the angels worship Him (2:5). Jesus is better than Moses, for He created him (3:3). Jesus is better than the Aaronic priesthood, for His sacrifice was once for all time (5:4). And He is better than the Law, for He mediates a better covenant.

Hebrews 1

God's Supreme Revelation

(cf. John 1:1–4)

¹God, who ¹at various times and ^ain various ways spoke in time past to the fathers by the prophets,

²has in these last days spoken to us by His Son, whom He has appointed heir of all things, through whom also He made the ²worlds;

^{3b}who being the brightness of His glory and the express ^cimage of His person, and ^dupholding all things by the word of His power, ^ewhen He had ³by Himself ⁴purged ⁵our sins, ^fsat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, Word Studies: brightness

⁴having become so much better than the angels, as ^gHe has by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they.

The Son Exalted Above Angels

⁵For to which of the angels did He ever say:

^h*“You are My Son,
Today I have begotten You”?*

And again:

ⁱ*“I will be to Him a Father,
And He shall be to Me a Son”?*

⁶But when He again brings ^jthe firstborn into the world, He says:

^k*“Let all the angels of God worship Him.”* Word Studies: firstborn

⁷And of the angels He says:

^l*“Who makes His angels spirits
And His ministers a flame of fire.”*

⁸But to the Son He says:

^m*“Your throne, O God, is forever and ever;
A ⁶scepter of righteousness is the scepter of Your kingdom.
⁹You have loved righteousness and hated lawlessness;
Therefore God, Your God, ⁿhas anointed You
With the oil of gladness more than Your companions.”*

¹⁰And:

^o*“You, LORD, in the beginning laid the foundation of the earth,
And the heavens are the work of Your hands.
^{11p}They will perish, but You remain;
And ^qthey will all grow old like a garment;
¹²Like a cloak You will fold them up,
And they will be changed.
But You are the ^rsame,*

And Your years will not fail.”

¹³But to which of the angels has He ever said:

^s“*Sit at My right hand,
Till I make Your enemies Your footstool*”?

^{14t}Are they not all ministering spirits sent forth to minister for those who will ^uinherit salvation?

Hebrews 2

Do Not Neglect Salvation

¹Therefore we must give ¹the more earnest heed to the things we have heard, lest we drift away.

²For if the word ^aspoken through angels proved steadfast, and ^bevery transgression and disobedience received a just ²reward,

^{3c}how shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation, ^dwhich at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was ^econfirmed to us by those who heard Him, ^{4f}God also bearing witness ^gboth with signs and wonders, with various miracles, and ^hgifts³ of the Holy Spirit, ⁱaccording to His own will?

The Son Made Lower than Angels

(cf. Ps. 8:1–9)

⁵For He has not put ^jthe world to come, of which we speak, in subjection to angels.

⁶But one testified in a certain place, saying:

^k*“What is man that You are mindful of him,
Or the son of man that You take care of him?*

⁷*You have made him ⁴a little lower than the angels;
You have crowned him with glory and honor,*

⁵*And set him over the works of Your hands.*

^{8l}You have put all things in subjection under his feet.”

For in that He put all in subjection under him, He left nothing that is not put under him. But now ^mwe do not yet see all things put under him.

⁹But we see Jesus, ⁿwho was made ⁶a little lower than the angels, for the suffering of death ^ocrowned with glory and honor, that He, by the grace of God, might taste death ^pfor everyone. Article: Angels

Bringing Many Sons to Glory

¹⁰For it was fitting for Him, ^qfor whom are all things and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons to glory, to make the captain of their salvation ^rperfect through sufferings. Word Studies: captain

¹¹For ^sboth He who ⁷sanctifies and those who are being sanctified ^t*are* all of one, for which reason ^uHe is not ashamed to call them brethren,

¹²saying:

^v*“I will declare Your name to My brethren;
In the midst of the assembly I will sing praise to You.”*

¹³And again:

^w*“I will put My trust in Him.”*

And again:

^x*“Here am I and the children whom God has given Me.”*

¹⁴Inasmuch then as the children have partaken of flesh and blood, He ^yHimself likewise shared in the same, ^zthat through death He might destroy him who had the power of ^adeath, that is, the devil, ¹⁵and release those who ^bthrough fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.

¹⁶For indeed He does not ⁸give aid to angels, but He does ⁹give aid to the seed of Abraham.

¹⁷Therefore, in all things He had ^cto be made like His brethren, that He might be ^da merciful and faithful High Priest in things pertaining to God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people.

^{18e}For in that He Himself has suffered, being ¹⁰tempted, He is able to aid those who are tempted.

Hebrews 3

The Son Was Faithful

¹Therefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our confession, Christ Jesus, ²who was faithful to Him who appointed Him, as ^aMoses also was faithful in all His house.

³For this One has been counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as ^bHe who built the house has more honor than the house. Charts and Diagrams: The Majesty of Christ

⁴For every house is built by someone, but ^cHe who built all things is God.

^{5d}And Moses indeed was faithful in all His house as ^ea servant, ^ffor a testimony of those things which would be spoken afterward, ⁶but Christ as ^ga Son over His own house, ^hwhose house we are ⁱif we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope ¹firm to the end.

Be Faithful

(Ps. 95:7–11)

⁷Therefore, as ^jthe Holy Spirit says:

^k*“Today, if you will hear His voice,*

⁸*Do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion,
In the day of trial in the wilderness,*

⁹*Where your fathers tested Me, tried Me,
And saw My works forty years.*

¹⁰*Therefore I was angry with that generation,
And said, ‘They always go astray in their heart,
And they have not known My ways.’*

¹¹*So I swore in My wrath,
‘They shall not enter My rest.’ ”*

¹²Beware, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief in departing from the living God;

¹³but ²exhort one another daily, while it is called “Today,” lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin.

¹⁴For we have become partakers of Christ if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast to the end,

¹⁵while it is said:

¹*“Today, if you will hear His voice,*

Do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion.”

Failure of the Wilderness Wanderers

¹⁶^mFor who, having heard, rebelled? Indeed, was it not all who came out of Egypt, led by Moses?

¹⁷Now with whom was He angry forty years? Was it not with those who sinned, ⁿwhose corpses fell in the wilderness?

¹⁸And ^oto whom did He swear that they would not enter His rest, but to those who did not obey?

¹⁹So we see that they could not enter in because of ^punbelief.

Hebrews 4

The Promise of Rest

¹Therefore, since a promise remains of entering His rest, ^alet us fear lest any of you seem to have come short of it.

²For indeed the gospel was preached to us as well as to them; but the word which they heard did not profit them, ¹not being mixed with faith in those who heard it.

³For we who have believed do enter that rest, as He has said:

^b*“So I swore in My wrath,
‘They shall not enter My rest,’ ”*

although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.

⁴For He has spoken in a certain place of the seventh day in this way: ^c*“And God rested on the seventh day from all His works”*;

⁵and again in this place: ^d*“They shall not enter My rest.”*

⁶Since therefore it remains that some must enter it, and those to whom it was first preached did not enter because of disobedience,

⁷again He designates a certain day, saying in David, “Today,” after such a long time, as it has been said:

^e*“Today, if you will hear His voice,
Do not harden your hearts.”*

⁸For if ²Joshua had ^fgiven them rest, then He would not afterward have spoken of another day.

⁹There remains therefore a rest for the people of God.

¹⁰For he who has entered His rest has himself also ceased from his works as God did from His.

The Word Discovers Our Condition

^{11g}Let us therefore be diligent to enter that rest, lest anyone fall according to the same example of disobedience.

¹²For the word of God is ^hliving and powerful, and ⁱsharper than any ^jtwo-edged sword, piercing even to the division of soul and spirit, and of joints and marrow, and is ^ka discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.

^{13l}And there is no creature hidden from His sight, but all things are ^mnaked and open to the eyes of Him to whom we must give account.

Our Compassionate High Priest

¹⁴Seeing then that we have a great ⁿHigh Priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, ^olet us hold fast our confession.

¹⁵For ^pwe do not have a High Priest who cannot sympathize with our weaknesses, but ^qwas in all points tempted as we are, ^ryet without sin.

^{16s}Let us therefore come boldly to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need. Word Studies: mercy

Hebrews 5

Qualifications for High Priesthood

¹For every high priest taken from among men ^ais appointed for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins.

²He can ¹have compassion on those who are ignorant and going astray, since he himself is also subject to ^bweakness.

³Because of this he is required as for the people, so also for ^chimself, to offer sacrifices for sins.

⁴And no man takes this honor to himself, but he who is called by God, just as ^dAaron was.

A Priest Forever

^{5e}So also Christ did not glorify Himself to become High Priest, but it was He who said to Him:

^f*“You are My Son,
Today I have begotten You.”*

⁶As He also says in another place:

^g*“You are a priest forever
According to the order of Melchizedek”;*

⁷who, in the days of His flesh, when He had ^hoffered up prayers and supplications, ⁱwith vehement cries and tears to Him ^jwho was able to save Him from death, and was heard ^kbecause of His godly fear, ⁸though He was a Son, yet He learned ^lobedience by the things which He suffered.

⁹And ^mhaving been perfected, He became the author of eternal salvation to all who obey Him,

¹⁰called by God as High Priest ⁿ*“according to the order of Melchizedek,”*
Bible Times & Culture Notes: Melchizedek

¹¹of whom ^owe have much to say, and hard to explain, since you have become ^pdull of hearing.

Spiritual Immaturity

¹²For though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you again the first principles of the ²oracles of God; and you have come to need ^qmilk and not solid food. Word Studies: oracles

¹³For everyone who partakes only of milk is unskilled in the word of righteousness, for he is ^ra babe.

¹⁴But solid food belongs to those who are ³of full age, that is, those who by reason of ⁴use have their senses exercised ^sto discern both good and evil.

Hebrews 6

The Peril of Not Progressing

¹Therefore, ^aleaving the discussion of the elementary principles of Christ, let us go on to ¹perfection, not laying again the foundation of repentance from ^bdead works and of faith toward God, ^{2c}of the doctrine of baptisms, ^dof laying on of hands, ^eof resurrection of the dead, ^fand of eternal judgment.

³And this ²we will do if God permits.

⁴For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted ^gthe heavenly gift, and ^hhave become partakers of the Holy Spirit,

⁵and have tasted the good word of God and the powers of the age to come,

⁶ⁱif they fall away, to renew them again to repentance, ⁱsince they crucify again for themselves the Son of God, and put Him to an open shame.

⁷For the earth which drinks in the rain that often comes upon it, and bears herbs useful for those by whom it is cultivated, ^jreceives blessing from God;

^{8k}but if it bears thorns and briers, it is rejected and near to being cursed, whose end is to be burned.

A Better Estimate

⁹But, beloved, we are confident of better things concerning you, yes, things that accompany salvation, though we speak in this manner.

¹⁰For ¹God is not unjust to forget ^myour work and ⁴labor of love which you have shown toward His name, in that you have ⁿministered to the saints, and do minister.

¹¹And we desire that each one of you show the same diligence ^oto the full assurance of hope until the end, ¹²that you do not become ⁵sluggish, but imitate those who through faith and patience ^pinherit the promises.

God's Infallible Purpose in Christ

¹³For when God made a promise to Abraham, because He could swear by no one greater, ^qHe swore by Himself,

¹⁴saying, ^r“Surely blessing I will bless you, and multiplying I will multiply you.”

¹⁵And so, after he had patiently endured, he obtained the ^spromise.

¹⁶For men indeed swear by the greater, and ^tan oath for confirmation is for them an end of all dispute.

¹⁷Thus God, determining to show more abundantly to ^uthe heirs of promise ^vthe ⁶immutability of His counsel, ⁷confirmed it by an oath, ¹⁸that by two ⁸immutable things, in which it is impossible for God to ^wlie, we ⁹might have strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold of the hope ^xset before us.

¹⁹This hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, ^yand which enters the Presence behind the veil, ^{20z}where the forerunner has entered for us, even Jesus, ^ahaving become High Priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.

Hebrews 7

The King of Righteousness (Gen. 14:17–20)

¹For this ^aMelchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him,

²to whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all, first being translated “king of righteousness,” and then also king of Salem, meaning “king of peace,”

³without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like the Son of God, remains a priest continually. Word Studies: made like

⁴Now consider how great this man was, to whom even the patriarch Abraham gave a tenth of the ¹spoils.

⁵And indeed ^bthose who are of the sons of Levi, who receive the priesthood, have a commandment to receive tithes from the people according to the law, that is, from their brethren, though they have come from the loins of Abraham;

⁶but he whose genealogy is not derived from them received tithes from Abraham ^cand blessed ^dhim who had the promises.

⁷Now beyond all contradiction the lesser is blessed by the better.

⁸Here mortal men receive tithes, but there he receives them, ^eof whom it is witnessed that he lives.

⁹Even Levi, who receives tithes, paid tithes through Abraham, so to speak, ¹⁰for he was still in the loins of his father when Melchizedek met him.

Need for a New Priesthood

(Ps. 110:4)

^{11f}Therefore, if perfection were through the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the law), what further need was there that another priest should rise according to the order of Melchizedek, and not be called according to the order of Aaron?

¹²For the priesthood being changed, of necessity there is also a change of the law.

¹³For He of whom these things are spoken belongs to another tribe, from which no man has ²officiated at the altar.

¹⁴For it is evident that ^gour Lord arose from ^hJudah, of which tribe Moses spoke nothing concerning ³priesthood.

¹⁵And it is yet far more evident if, in the likeness of Melchizedek, there arises another priest

¹⁶who has come, not according to the law of a fleshly commandment, but according to the power of an endless life.

¹⁷For ⁴He testifies:

ⁱ*“You are a priest forever
According to the order of Melchizedek.”*

¹⁸For on the one hand there is an annulling of the former commandment because of ^jits weakness and unprofitableness, ¹⁹for ^kthe law made nothing ⁵perfect; on the other hand, there is the bringing in of ^la better hope, through which ^mwe draw near to God.

Greatness of the New Priest

²⁰And inasmuch as He was not made priest without an oath ²¹(for they have become priests without an oath, but He with an oath by Him who said to Him:

ⁿ“*The LORD has sworn
And will not relent,
‘You are a priest ⁶forever
According to the order of Melchizedek’ ”),*

²²by so much more Jesus has become a ⁷surety of a ^obetter covenant. Article: The Superiority of Jesus

²³Also there were many priests, because they were prevented by death from continuing.

²⁴But He, because He continues forever, has an unchangeable priesthood.

²⁵Therefore He is also ^pable to save ⁸to the uttermost those who come to God through Him, since He always lives ^qto make intercession for them.

²⁶For such a High Priest was fitting for us, ^rwho is holy, ⁹harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, ^sand has become higher than the heavens;

²⁷who does not need daily, as those high priests, to offer up sacrifices, first for His ^town sins and then for the people’s, for this He did once for all when He offered up Himself.

²⁸For the law appoints as high priests men who have weakness, but the word of the oath, which came after the law, appoints the Son who has been perfected forever.

Hebrews 8

The New Priestly Service

¹Now this is the main point of the things we are saying: We have such a High Priest, ^awho is seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, ²a Minister of ^bthe ¹sanctuary and of ^cthe true tabernacle which the Lord erected, and not man.

³For ^devery high priest is appointed to offer both gifts and sacrifices. Therefore ^e*it is* necessary that this One also have something to offer.

⁴For if He were on earth, He would not be a priest, since there are priests who offer the gifts according to the law;

⁵who serve ^fthe copy and ^gshadow of the heavenly things, as Moses was divinely instructed when he was about to make the tabernacle. For He said, ^h*“See that you make all things according to the pattern shown you on the mountain.”*

⁶But now ⁱHe has obtained a more excellent ministry, inasmuch as He is also Mediator of a ^jbetter covenant, which was established on better promises.

A New Covenant

(Jer. 31:31–34)

⁷For if that ^kfirst covenant had been faultless, then no place would have been sought for a second.

⁸Because finding fault with them, He says: ¹*“Behold, the days are coming, says the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah—*

⁹*“not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they did not continue in My covenant, and I disregarded them, says the LORD.*

¹⁰*“For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the ^mLORD: I will put My laws in their mind and write them on their hearts; and ⁿI will be their God, and they shall be My people.*

^{11o}“None of them shall teach his neighbor, and none his brother, saying, ‘Know the ^pLORD,’ for all shall know Me, from the least of them to the greatest of them. Word Studies: know

¹²*“For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, ^qand their sins ²and their lawless deeds I will remember no more.”*

^{13r}In that He says, “A new covenant,” He has made the first obsolete. Now what is becoming obsolete and growing old is ready to vanish away.

Hebrews 9

The Earthly Sanctuary

(cf. Ex. 25:10–40)

¹Then indeed, even the first covenant had ordinances of divine service and ^athe earthly sanctuary.

²For a tabernacle was prepared: the first part, in which was the lampstand, the table, and the showbread, which is called the ¹sanctuary;

^{3b}and behind the second veil, the part of the tabernacle which is called the Holiest of All,

⁴which had the ^cgolden censer and ^dthe ark of the covenant overlaid on all sides with gold, in which were ^ethe golden pot that had the manna, ^fAaron's rod that budded, and ^gthe tablets of the covenant;

⁵and ^habove it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy seat. Of these things we cannot now speak in detail.

Limitations of the Earthly Service

⁶Now when these things had been thus prepared, ⁱthe priests always went into the first part of the tabernacle, performing the services.

⁷But into the second part the high priest went alone ^jonce a year, not without blood, which he offered for ^khimself and for the people's sins committed in ignorance;

⁸the Holy Spirit indicating this, that ^lthe way into the Holiest of All was not yet made manifest while the first tabernacle was still standing.

⁹It was symbolic for the present time in which both gifts and sacrifices are offered ^mwhich cannot make him who performed the service perfect in regard to the conscience—

¹⁰*concerned* only with ⁿfoods and drinks, ^ovarious ²washings, ^pand fleshly ordinances imposed until the time of reformation.

The Heavenly Sanctuary

¹¹But Christ came as High Priest of ^athe good things ³to come, with the greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands, that is, not of this creation.

¹²Not ^rwith the blood of goats and calves, but ^swith His own blood He entered the Most Holy Place ^tonce for all, ^uhaving obtained eternal redemption.

¹³For if ^vthe blood of bulls and goats and ^wthe ashes of a heifer, sprinkling the unclean, ⁴sanctifies for the ⁵purifying of the flesh,

¹⁴how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered Himself without ⁶spot to God, ^xcleanse your conscience from ^ydead works ^zto serve the living God?

¹⁵And for this reason ^aHe is the Mediator of the new covenant, by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions under the first covenant, that ^bthose who are called may receive the promise of the eternal inheritance. Word Studies: redemption

The Mediator's Death Necessary

¹⁶For where there is a testament, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator.

¹⁷For ^ca testament is in force after men are dead, since it has no power at all while the testator lives.

^{18d}Therefore not even the first covenant was dedicated without blood.

¹⁹For when Moses had spoken every ⁷precept to all the people according to the law, ^ehe took the blood of calves and goats, ^fwith water, scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book itself and all the people,

²⁰saying, ^g“This is the ^hblood of the covenant which God has commanded you.”

²¹Then likewise ⁱhe sprinkled with blood both the tabernacle and all the vessels of the ministry.

²²And according to the law almost all things are ⁸purified with blood, and ^jwithout shedding of blood there is no ⁹remission.

Greatness of Christ's Sacrifice

²³Therefore it was necessary that ^kthe copies of the things in the heavens should be ¹⁰purified with these, but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these.

²⁴For ¹Christ has not entered the holy places made with hands, which are ¹¹copies of ^mthe true, but into heaven itself, now ⁿto appear in the presence of God for us;

²⁵not that He should offer Himself often, as ^othe high priest enters the Most Holy Place every year with blood of another—

²⁶He then would have had to suffer often since the foundation of the world; but now, once at the end of the ages, He has appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself.

^{27p}And as it is appointed for men to die once, ^qbut after this the judgment, ²⁸so ^rChrist was ^soffered once to bear the sins ^tof many. To those who ^ueagerly wait for Him He will appear a second time, apart from sin, for salvation.

Hebrews 10

Animal Sacrifices Insufficient

¹For the law, having a ^ashadow of the good things to come, and not the very image of the things, ^bcan never with these same sacrifices, which they offer continually year by year, make those who approach perfect.

²For then would they not have ceased to be offered? For the worshipers, once ¹purified, would have had no more consciousness of sins.

³But in those sacrifices there is a reminder of sins every year.

⁴For ^c*it is* not possible that the blood of bulls and goats could take away sins.

Christ's Death Fulfills God's Will

(cf. Ps. 40:6–8)

⁵Therefore, when He came into the world, He said:

^d*“Sacrifice and offering You did not desire,
But a body You have prepared for Me.*

⁶*In burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin
You had no pleasure.*

⁷*Then I said, ‘Behold, I have come—
In the volume of the book it is written of Me—
To do Your will, O God.’ ”*

⁸Previously saying, “Sacrifice and offering, burnt offerings, and offerings for sin You did not desire, nor had pleasure in them” (which are offered according to the law), ⁹then He said, “Behold, I have come to do Your will, ²O God.” He takes away the first that He may establish the second.

^{10e}By that will we have been ³sanctified ^fthrough the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

Christ's Death Perfects the Sanctified

¹¹And every priest stands ^gministering daily and offering repeatedly the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins.

^{12h}But this Man, after He had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down ⁱat the right hand of God, ¹³from that time waiting ^jtill His enemies are made His footstool.

¹⁴For by one offering He has perfected forever those who are being ⁴sanctified.

¹⁵But the Holy Spirit also witnesses to us; for after He had said before,

^{16k}“This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, says the LORD: I will put My laws into their hearts, and in their minds I will write them,”

¹⁷then He adds, ¹*“Their sins and their lawless deeds I will remember no more.”*

¹⁸Now where there is ⁵remission of these, there is no longer an offering for sin.

Hold Fast Your Confession

¹⁹Therefore, brethren, having ^mboldness⁶ to enter ⁿthe Holiest by the blood of Jesus,

²⁰by a new and ^oliving way which He consecrated for us, through the veil, that is, His flesh, Word Studies: new and living way

²¹and having a High Priest over the house of God,

²²let us ^pdraw near with a true heart ^qin full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water.

²³Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering, for ^rHe who promised is faithful.

²⁴And let us consider one another in order to stir up love and good works,

²⁵^snot forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as is the manner of some, but exhorting one another, and ^tso much the more as you see ^uthe Day approaching.

The Just Live by Faith

²⁶For ^vif we sin willfully ^wafter we have received the knowledge of the truth, there ^xno longer remains a sacrifice for sins, ²⁷but a certain fearful expectation of judgment, and ^yfiery indignation which will devour the adversaries.

²⁸Anyone who has rejected Moses' law dies without mercy on the testimony of two or three ^zwitnesses.

^{29a}Of how much worse punishment, do you suppose, will he be thought worthy who has trampled the Son of God underfoot, ^bcounted the blood of the covenant by which he was sanctified a common thing, ^cand insulted the Spirit of grace?

³⁰For we know Him who said, ^d*"Vengeance is Mine, I will repay,"* ⁷says the Lord. And again, ^e*"The LORD will judge His people."*

^{31f}It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

³²But ^grecall the former days in which, after you were ⁸illuminated, you endured a great struggle with sufferings:

³³partly while you were made ^ha spectacle both by reproaches and tribulations, and partly while ⁱyou became companions of those who were so treated;

³⁴for you had compassion on ⁹me ^jin my chains, and ^kjoyfully accepted the plundering of your ¹⁰goods, knowing that ^lyou have a better and an enduring possession for yourselves ¹¹in heaven.

³⁵Therefore do not cast away your confidence, ^mwhich has great reward.

³⁶ⁿFor you have need of endurance, so that after you have done the will of God, ^oyou may receive the promise:

³⁷*"For ^pyet a little while,
And ^qHe¹² who is coming will come and will not ¹³tarry.
³⁸Now ^rthe¹⁴ just shall live by faith;
But if anyone draws back,
My soul has no pleasure in him."*

³⁹But we are not of those ^swho draw back to ¹⁵perdition, but of those who ^tbelieve to the saving of the soul.

Hebrews 11

By Faith We Understand

¹Now faith is the ¹substance of things hoped for, the ²evidence ^aof things not seen.

²For by it the elders obtained a good testimony.

³By faith we understand that ^bthe ³worlds were framed by the word of God, so that the things which are seen were not made of things which are visible.

Faith at the Dawn of History

(Gen. 4:1–16; 5:18–24; 6:5–8:22)

⁴By faith ^cAbel offered to God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, through which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts; and through it he being dead still ^dspeaks. Article: Heroes of Faith

⁵By faith Enoch was taken away so that he did not see death, ^e“and was not found, because God had taken him”; for before he was taken he had this testimony, that he pleased God.

⁶But without faith it is impossible to please Him, for he who comes to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him.

⁷By faith ^fNoah, being divinely warned of things not yet seen, moved with godly fear, ^gprepared an ark for the saving of his household, by which he condemned the world and became heir of ^hthe righteousness which is according to faith.

Faithful Abraham

(Gen. 15:1–6; 21:1–7)

⁸By faith ⁱAbraham obeyed when he was called to go out to the place which he would receive as an inheritance. And he went out, not knowing where he was going.

⁹By faith he dwelt in the land of promise as in a foreign country, ^jdwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, ^kthe heirs with him of the same promise;

¹⁰for he waited for ^lthe city which has foundations, ^mwhose builder and maker is God.

¹¹By faith ⁿSarah herself also received strength to conceive seed, and ^oshe⁴ bore a child when she was past the age, because she judged Him ^pfaithful who had promised.

¹²Therefore from one man, and him as good as ^qdead, were born as many as the ^rstars of the sky in multitude—innumerable as the sand which is by the seashore.

The Heavenly Hope

¹³These all died in faith, ^snot having received the ^tpromises, but ^uhaving seen them afar off ⁵were assured of them, embraced them and ^vconfessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.

¹⁴For those who say such things ^wdeclare plainly that they seek a homeland.

¹⁵And truly if they had called to mind ^xthat country from which they had come out, they would have had opportunity to return.

¹⁶But now they desire a better, that is, a heavenly country. Therefore God is not ashamed ^yto be called their God, for He has ^zprepared a city for them.

The Faith of the Patriarchs

(Gen. 22:1–14; 48:8–16; 50:22–25)

¹⁷By faith Abraham, ^awhen he was tested, offered up Isaac, and he who had received the promises offered up his only begotten son,

¹⁸⁶of whom it was said, ^b“In Isaac your seed shall be called,”

¹⁹concluding that God ^cwas able to raise him up, even from the dead, from which he also received him in a figurative sense.

²⁰By faith ^dIsaac blessed Jacob and Esau concerning things to come.

²¹By faith Jacob, when he was dying, ^eblessed each of the sons of Joseph, and worshiped, leaning on the top of his staff.

²²By faith ^fJoseph, when he was dying, made mention of the departure of the children of Israel, and gave instructions concerning his bones.

The Faith of Moses

(Ex. 2:1–10; 12:31–51)

²³By faith ^gMoses, when he was born, was hidden three months by his parents, because they saw he was a beautiful child; and they were not afraid of the king's ^hcommand.

²⁴By faith ⁱMoses, when he became of age, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter,

²⁵choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the ⁷passing pleasures of sin, ²⁶esteeming ^jthe ⁸reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures ⁹in Egypt; for he looked to the ^kreward.

²⁷By faith ^lhe forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king; for he endured as seeing Him who is invisible.

²⁸By faith ^mhe kept the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, lest he who destroyed the firstborn should touch them.

²⁹By faith ⁿthey passed through the Red Sea as by dry land, whereas the Egyptians, attempting to do so, were drowned.

By Faith They Overcame

³⁰By faith ^othe walls of Jericho fell down after they were encircled for seven days.

³¹By faith ^pthe harlot Rahab did not perish with those who ¹⁰did not believe, when ^qshe had received the spies with peace.

³²And what more shall I say? For the time would fail me to tell of ^rGideon and ^sBarak and ^tSamson and ^uJephthah, also of ^vDavid and ^wSamuel and the prophets:

³³who through faith subdued kingdoms, worked righteousness, obtained promises, ^xstopped the mouths of lions,

^{34y}quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, became valiant in battle, turned to flight the armies of the aliens.

^{35z}Women received their dead raised to life again. Others were ^atortured, not accepting deliverance, that they might obtain a better resurrection.

³⁶Still others had trial of mockings and scourgings, yes, and ^bof chains and imprisonment.

^{37c}They were stoned, they were sawn in two, ¹¹were tempted, were slain with the sword. ^dThey wandered about ^ein sheepskins and goatskins, being destitute, afflicted, tormented—

³⁸of whom the world was not worthy. They wandered in deserts and mountains, ^fin dens and caves of the earth.

³⁹And all these, ^ghaving obtained a good testimony through faith, did not receive the promise, ⁴⁰God having provided something better for us, that they should not be ^hmade perfect apart from us.

Hebrews 12

The Race of Faith

¹Therefore we also, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, ^alet us lay aside every weight, and the sin which so easily ensnares us, and ^blet us run ^cwith endurance the race that is set before us, Charts and Diagrams: The Imperative of Faith

²looking unto Jesus, the ¹author and ²finisher of our faith, ^dwho for the joy that was set before Him ^eendured the cross, despising the shame, and ^fhas sat down at the right hand of the throne of God.

The Discipline of God

(Prov. 3:11, 12)

^{3g}For consider Him who endured such hostility from sinners against Himself, ^hlest you become weary and discouraged in your souls.

⁴ⁱYou have not yet resisted to bloodshed, striving against sin.

⁵And you have forgotten the exhortation which speaks to you as to sons:

^j*“My son, do not despise the ³chastening of the LORD,
Nor be discouraged when you are rebuked by Him;
⁶For ^kwhom the LORD loves He chastens,
And scourges every son whom He receives.”*

^{7l}⁴If you endure chastening, God deals with you as with sons; for what ^mson is there whom a father does not chasten?

⁸But if you are without chastening, ⁿof which all have become partakers, then you are illegitimate and not sons.

⁹Furthermore, we have had human fathers who corrected us, and we paid them respect. Shall we not much more readily be in subjection to ^othe Father of spirits and live?

¹⁰For they indeed for a few days chastened us as seemed best to them, but He for our profit, ^pthat we may be partakers of His holiness.

¹¹Now no ⁵chastening seems to be joyful for the present, but painful; nevertheless, afterward it yields ^qthe peaceable fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it.

Renew Your Spiritual Vitality

(Gen. 25:29–34; 27:30–40)

¹²Therefore ^rstrengthen the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees,
¹³and make straight paths for your feet, so that what is lame may not be dislocated, but rather be healed.

^{14s}Pursue peace with all people, and holiness, ^twithout which no one will see the Lord:

¹⁵looking carefully lest anyone ^ufall short of the grace of God; lest any ^vroot of bitterness springing up cause trouble, and by this many become defiled;

¹⁶lest there be any ^wfornicator or ⁶profane person like Esau, ^xwho for one morsel of food sold his birthright.

¹⁷For you know that afterward, when he wanted to inherit the blessing, he was ^yrejected, for he found no place for repentance, though he sought it diligently with tears.

The Glorious Company

¹⁸For you have not come ⁷to ^zthe mountain that may be touched and that burned with fire, and to blackness and ⁸darkness and tempest,

¹⁹and the sound of a trumpet and the voice of words, so that those who heard it ^abegged that the word should not be spoken to them anymore.

²⁰(For they could not endure what was commanded: ^b*“And if so much as a beast touches the mountain, it shall be stoned ⁹or shot with an arrow.”*

²¹And so terrifying was the sight that Moses said, ^c*“I am exceedingly afraid and trembling.”*)

²²But you have come to Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, to an innumerable company of angels,

²³to the ¹⁰general assembly and church of ^dthe firstborn ^e*who are* registered in heaven, to God ^fthe Judge of all, to the spirits of just men ^gmade perfect,

²⁴to Jesus ^hthe Mediator of the new covenant, and to ⁱthe blood of sprinkling that speaks better things ^jthan that of Abel. Word Studies: Mediator

Hear the Heavenly Voice

²⁵See that you do not refuse Him who speaks. For ^kif they did not escape who refused Him who spoke on earth, much more shall we not escape if we turn away from Him who speaks from heaven,

²⁶whose voice then shook the earth; but now He has promised, saying, ¹*“Yet once more I ¹¹shake not only the earth, but also heaven.”*

²⁷Now this, “Yet once more,” indicates the ^mremoval of those things that are being shaken, as of things that are made, that the things which cannot be shaken may remain.

²⁸Therefore, since we are receiving a kingdom which cannot be shaken, let us have grace, by which we ¹²may ⁿserve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear.

²⁹For ^our God is a consuming fire.

Hebrews 13

Concluding Moral Directions

¹Let ^abrotherly love continue.

^{2b}Do not forget to entertain strangers, for by so doing ^csome have unwittingly entertained angels.

^{3d}Remember the prisoners as if chained with them—those who are mistreated—since you yourselves are in the body also.

^{4e}Marriage is honorable among all, and the bed undefiled; ^fbut fornicators and adulterers God will judge.

⁵*Let your conduct be* without covetousness; be content with such things as you have. For He Himself has said, ^g*“I will never leave you nor forsake you.”*

⁶So we may boldly say:

^h*“The LORD is my helper;
I will not fear.
What can man do to me?”*

Concluding Religious Directions

⁷Remember those who ¹rule over you, who have spoken the word of God to you, whose faith follow, considering the outcome of their conduct.

⁸Jesus Christ is ⁱthe same yesterday, today, and forever.

⁹Do not be carried ²about with various and strange doctrines. For it is good that the heart be established by grace, not with foods which have not profited those who have been occupied with them.

¹⁰We have an altar from which those who serve the tabernacle have no right to eat.

¹¹For the bodies of those animals, whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest for sin, are burned outside the camp.

¹²Therefore Jesus also, that He might ³sanctify the people with His own blood, suffered outside the gate.

¹³Therefore let us go forth to Him, outside the camp, bearing ^jHis reproach.

¹⁴For here we have no continuing city, but we seek the one to come.

^{15k}Therefore by Him let us continually offer ^lthe sacrifice of praise to God, that is, ^mthe fruit of our lips, ⁴giving thanks to His name.

¹⁶ⁿBut do not forget to do good and to share, for ^owith such sacrifices God is well pleased.

^{17p}Obey those who ⁵rule over you, and be submissive, for ^qthey watch out for your souls, as those who must give account. Let them do so with joy and not with grief, for that would be unprofitable for you.

Prayer Requested

¹⁸Pray for us; for we are confident that we have ^sa good conscience, in all things desiring to live honorably.

¹⁹But I especially urge you to do this, that I may be restored to you the sooner.

Benediction, Final Exhortation, Farewell

²⁰Now may ^tthe God of peace ^uwho brought up our Lord Jesus from the dead, ^vthat great Shepherd of the sheep, ^wthrough the blood of the everlasting covenant, Word Studies: covenant

²¹make you ⁶complete in every good work to do His will, ^xworking in ⁷you what is well pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

²²And I appeal to you, brethren, bear with the word of exhortation, for I have written to you in few words.

²³Know that our brother Timothy has been set free, with whom I shall see you if he comes shortly.

²⁴Greet all those who ⁸rule over you, and all the saints. Those from Italy greet you.

²⁵Grace be with you all. Amen.

Annotations for Hebrews

- 1:1 Various times refers to the periods of OT history. Various ways refers to the different methods God used to communicate, including visitations, dreams, signs, parables, and events (see Is. 28:10).
- 1:2 By His Son may be rephrased as “in such a person as a Son.” The emphasis rests on the character of the revelation. It is a revelation of the Son, a revelation not so much in what He has said as in who He is and what He has done. heir of all things: Jesus will inherit everything because He is the eternal Son of God Himself (see Is. 9:6, 7; Mic. 5:2). His inheritance is universal dominion: He will rule over everyone and everything (see Rom. 4:13; Rev. 11:15). made the worlds: The Greek word for worlds can also mean “ages.” Thus worlds indicates the entire created universe, all space throughout all time. The Son is the Lord of all history. He has managed the universe throughout its history as Mediator under the Father.
- 1:3 The Son is the brightness of God’s glory, meaning the radiance that comes from God’s essential glory (see John 1:14; 2 Cor. 4:4, 6). The author of Hebrews is emphasizing that this is not a reflected brightness like the light of the moon. Instead this is an inherent brightness like a ray from the sun. Jesus’ glorious brightness comes from being essentially divine. The phrase express image occurs only here in the NT and means “exact representation” or “exact character.” In Greek literature the word was used of stamping a coin from the die. The Son is the exact representation of God’s being because He is God Himself (see Col. 1:15). In fact, the Greek word translated person here means “nature” or “being.” As Jesus said, “He who has seen me has seen the Father” (John 14:9). Upholding means “bearing” or “carrying,” referring to movement and progress toward a final end. The Son not only created the universe by His powerful word but also maintains and directs its course. Purged means “cleansed” or “purified.” The glory of redemption is far greater than the glory of creation. The Son of God came down not to dazzle us with His splendor but to purge our sins. Sat down suggests the formal act of assuming the office of High Priest and implies a contrast to the Levitical priest, who never finished his work and sat down (10:11–13).

Word Studies

brightness

(Gk. apaugasma) (1:3) Strong's #541

express image (Gk. charaktēr) (1:3) Strong's #5481

These two expressions occur only here in the NT. The Greek word for brightness expresses the brilliance emanating from a glorious source of light, such as the beams of the sun. Christ, as the effulgence of God's glory, is the radiance of God, revealing God's glory to humanity. The Greek word translated express image can mean the instrument used in engraving or stamping, but usually it means the image engraved or stamped. In this context, the word means that Christ is the exact representation of God's nature. Since God's essence, nature, and being are invisible, the Son reveals God to us, for He is an exact visible likeness of God.

1:4 The Son is better than the angels, or higher in rank, because He sits at the right hand of God (v. 3) and because of His eternal inheritance. The Son has obtained a greater name than the angels. This majestic picture builds up to the dramatic invitation in 4:16 for us to come boldly into the Son's presence.

1:5–14 The author of Hebrews uses seven OT citations to explain why the Son is superior to angels.

1:5 Angels are “sons” collectively, in that they were created by God (see Job 1:6). In contrast, Christ is uniquely and eternally the Son. He is superior to the angels. Today I have begotten You probably refers to the day Christ sat down at the Father's right hand after He accomplished His work as the Messiah. On that day the eternal Son entered into the full experience of His Sonship. I will be to Him a Father: This passage quotes 2 Sam. 7:14 and is a prophecy of Christ as the eternal Person in whom the Davidic line and kingdom culminates.

1:6 When He again brings is a reference to the Second Coming. Firstborn here refers to rank, meaning one who ranks above all others (see Ps. 89:27). The Son does not worship but is worshiped by angels. The quotation in this verse is either from the Septuagint version of Deut. 32:43 or from Ps. 97:7, where the Septuagint correctly renders the Hebrew text angels. The angels will worship the Son when He is enthroned as the King over the entire earth (2:5–9), after taking revenge on His enemies and restoring His people.

Word Studies

firstborn

(Gk. prōtotokos) (1:6; Rom. 8:29; Col. 1:15) Strong's #4416

The first part of this word (prōto) can indicate “first in time” (temporal priority) or “first in place” (preeminence). In this context, preeminence is in the forefront. Thus the Son of Man is the “chiefborn” among all God’s creatures. See Ex. 4:22; Deut. 21:16, 17; Ps. 89:23, where in the Greek OT prōtotokos is used to express the idea of preeminence. Understood as a second, separate description of Christ’s human nature, this title indicates that the Son in His humanity is now the foremost creature of all creation. But the designation in no way indicates that Christ Himself was created by God, for the next verse asserts that all things were created in, through, and for Christ. As a participant in the creation of all things, Christ cannot be a created being. Instead He is the Son of God, the Second Person of the Godhead, who has existed from eternity.

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 1:7 The Son is superior to angels because He is the Sovereign who is worshiped, while the angels are ministers, that is, servants of God. The author of Hebrews quotes Ps. 104 because that psalm places angels in a long list of created objects which God sovereignly controls.
- 1:8 O God: Jesus Christ is accorded the rank of full deity. The Son has an eternal throne, which means He possesses an eternal kingdom.
- 1:9 Companions comes from a word that means “close associates” or “partners.” The concept of believers being companions with Christ is key in Hebrews (3:1, 14; 6:4; 12:8). The term refers to those who will be participants with Christ in His reign.
- 1:10–12 The context of Ps. 102, from which these verses are taken, clearly indicates that the LORD is the One who would appear in the future to Israel and the nations (see Ps. 102:12–16). Thus the psalm can only refer to Jesus, the Second Person of the Trinity, the only One who would become incarnate. Jesus is God become man. The universe will perish (see 2 Pet. 3:10–13; Rev. 21:1), but the Son will remain forever. The universe will be changed, but the Son will remain the same (13:8).
- 1:13 Christ sits at the right hand of God until the final victory over all His enemies (see 1 Cor. 15:25–28).
- 1:14 Angels are mere servants (v. 7) who serve those who will inherit salvation. Salvation here is not justification because it is in the future, not in the past. The reference is to believers who inherit the kingdom or rule in God’s kingdom as a reward for their service to the Son (see 9:28; Col. 3:24). The author is speaking about “the world to come” (2:5). References to salvation in 2:3, 10; 5:9; 6:9 probably also concern the future.
- 2:1 The author issues the first of five exhortations (see vv. 1–4; 3:1–4:16; 5:11–6:20; 10:19–39; 12:1–29). Believers have heard from the Lord God because we have heard the gospel message. His very majesty demands that we listen attentively to what He says. drift away: The author’s audience was marked by immaturity and spiritual sluggishness (5:11, 12). The author warned them not to be carried away by the popular opinions that surrounded them. Instead they were to hold fast to Christ's words because they were the words of God.

2:2 the word spoken through angels: The Law was delivered from God to Moses by angels (see Deut. 33:2; Acts 7:38, 53; Gal. 3:19).

2:3 how shall we escape: If the people who heard the message delivered through angels were justly punished when they disobeyed the Law, how can believers expect to escape punishment when they neglect the even greater message delivered through the greater Messenger, the Son? We is found five times in vv. 1, 3. The author warns these believers, including himself, about neglecting salvation and losing out on the opportunity to reign with Christ. The great salvation (see Phil. 2:12, 13) cannot be a reference merely to justification because this salvation was first . . . spoken by the Lord. Justification was spoken of in the OT (see Gen. 15:6); but it was the Lord who first spoke of His followers inheriting His kingdom and reigning with Him (see v. 10; Luke 12:31, 32; 22:29, 30). those who heard Him: The author includes himself among those who had not heard the Lord Himself.

2:4 Signs and wonders refers to the miracles performed by the Holy Spirit through the Lord and His apostles in fulfillment of the ancient promises regarding the coming of the Messiah (see Acts 2:22, 43; 4:30; 5:12; 6:8; 14:3; 15:12; 2 Cor. 12:12).

2:5 The author returns to the theme of ch. 1 that the Son is superior to the angels. For connects this passage with 1:4–14, as the mention of angels in this verse and the allusion to Ps. 110 (v. 8) indicate. The world to come is the future rule of the Son and His companions (1:9) on the earth.

2:6–8 Since the Son's humanity might appear to be an obstacle to the claim of His superiority, the author of Hebrews cites Ps. 8, a lyrical reflection on Gen. 1, to prove that God has placed humanity over all created things, which includes the angelic world.

2:8 But now: The rule of human beings over God's creation has been delayed because of sin (v. 15). Humanity's collusion with Satan has brought all people into collision with God. Not yet indicates that the delay is only temporary.

2:9 Human beings will rule over creation, but it will be through Jesus Christ. But we see Jesus: The author uses Christ's human name Jesus for the first time in this letter. Citing phrases from Ps. 8, the author points out that Christ, by His humiliation and exaltation, has regained what Adam lost, the original calling for human beings to rule over God's creation (see Phil. 2:6–11; Rev. 5:1–14).

Angels

One of the most popular topics of speculation in recent years has been the subject of angels. Many books have been published that claim to offer first-hand accounts of experiences with angels. But as always, the Bible must remain our authority on the supernatural. By nature angels are spiritual beings (1:14). Their nature is superior to human nature (2:7), and they have superhuman power and knowledge (2 Sam. 14:17, 20; 2 Pet. 2:11). They are not, however, all-powerful and all-knowing (Ps. 103:20; 2 Thess. 1:7). Furthermore, artistic portrayals of angels as winged beings are generally without basis in the Bible (except for the cherubim and seraphim mentioned in Ex. 25:20; Is. 6:2, 6; Ezek. 1:6 and Rev. 4:8).

The Bible presents angels as real beings and provides limited information about them but for the most part leaves them veiled in mystery. However, God sometimes lifts the veil and allows humans to catch a glimpse of the spiritual activity and warfare taking place around us. Daniel saw some of that reality and found it overwhelming and troubling (Dan. 7:15; 8:27; 10:15, 16). On the other hand, Elisha experienced it and found it reassuring (2 Kin. 6:16, 17).

Angels were created by God (Ps. 148:2, 5) and were present to rejoice when He created the world (Job 38:4–7). In their original state they were holy, but before the creation of the world some of them rebelled against God and lost this exalted position. The leading angel in this revolt became the devil, also known as Satan (Gen. 3:4, 14; Rev. 12:4, 7–9).

Two of the vast company of angels are named in the Bible. They are the archangels Michael (Dan. 10:13, 21; 12:1; Jude 9; Rev. 12:7) and Gabriel (Dan. 8:16; 9:21; Luke 1:19, 26). Michael has the special task of caring for Israel, and Gabriel communicates special messages to God's servants.

Angels are never known to appear to wicked people—only to those whom the Bible views as good, such as Abraham, Moses, David, Daniel, Jesus, Peter, and Paul. They are charged with caring for such people and serving them in times of need (Ps. 91:11, 12; Heb. 1:14). This task is illustrated by the role the angels played in God's giving of the Law to Moses (Acts 7:38, 53; Heb. 2:2). Sometimes their guidance comes through human dreams (Gen. 28:12; 31:11).

Angels also protect the people of God (Ex. 14:19, 20; Dan. 3:28; Matt. 26:53). They meet a wide variety of human needs, including relieving hunger and thirst (Gen. 21:17–19; Mark 1:13) and overcoming loneliness and dread (Luke 22:43). They sometimes deliver the people of God from danger (Acts 5:19; 12:6–11).

Although they are not the objects of salvation, angels are interested in the salvation of human beings (Luke 15:10; 1 Cor. 4:9). They also were particularly active in the events surrounding the birth and resurrection of Jesus (Matt. 1:20; 2:13, 19; 28:2; Luke 1:11–38; 2:9–15; 22:43; 24:23; John 20:12). The frequency with which angels participate in human affairs has diminished since Pentecost, probably because of the larger role played by the Holy Spirit in the lives of Christians since then.

Jesus spoke frequently of angels, both good and bad (Matt. 13:41; 26:53; Mark 8:38; Luke 12:8, 9). Angels are quite real, and they play a vital part in God's plan for the world. As you develop your understanding and beliefs about angelic forces, good and evil, cosmic battles in the heavens, and other topics of the supernatural, be sure that they accord with Scripture. Sensational stories and wild speculations may make for interesting reading, but ultimately truth is at stake. God's revelation in Scripture can help you sort it all out.

The angel Gabriel appears to Mary to predict the birth of Jesus.

2:10 The Greek word for captain means “leader” or “originator.” The word describes a pioneer or pathfinder. Jesus’ endurance of sufferings on this earth makes Him our leader. He has already experienced the sufferings we must go through on this earth. He not only endured them but triumphed over sin, death, and Satan through them. His sinless life has blazed a path to God, a path we must follow. Jesus is our model, our leader, and our captain. He understands our pain because He Himself went through suffering. Salvation refers to our future salvation, our glorification in Christ’s coming kingdom (1:14).

captain

(Gk. archēgos) (2:10; 12:2; Acts 3:15; 5:31) Strong's #747

The Greek word for captain means “pioneer” or “leader.” It literally means “the first one to lead the way” from archē (“the first”) and agō (“to lead”). To express this idea of leadership, the word is translated in Acts 3:15; 5:31 as the “Prince” and in Heb. 12:2 as “the author.” Thus the writer of Hebrews is emphasizing that Jesus endured suffering and temptation on this earth in order to become a perfect leader. He is not only sinless but also can sympathize with our difficulties in following His perfect way, the Way that leads to glory.

2:11 all of one: This phrase refers either to the common humanity which Jesus shares with all believers, or to the fact that Jesus and believers all belong to God. Because the children of God and the Son Himself are from the same Father (see John 20:17), Jesus can call all believers His brethren.

2:12 Psalm 22, which is quoted here, describes the agony of a righteous sufferer. Ultimately the psalm is messianic. It depicts the sufferings of Christ. Jesus quoted Ps. 22:1 on the Cross (see Matt. 27:46). In this psalm, the Messiah refers to My brethren, identifying Himself with all those who place their faith in God.

2:13 The citations are from Is. 8:17, 18 and refer to a prophet, who, like the Lord Jesus, was persecuted and rejected but became a rallying point for the faithful.

2:14–16 Having established the unity between the Son and believers, the author concludes that there are two purposes of this close identification. The Son became human so that He could destroy the devil (v. 14) and release those who were in bondage to sin (v. 15).

2:14 shared in the same: Jesus Christ shared in our humanity by humbling himself to become a man (see Phil. 2:5–11). power of death: The devil tempts people to sin and then accuses them of rebelling against God (see Gen. 3; Job 1). By inducing them to sin, Satan delivers people over to death, the due penalty for their sin (Rom. 5:12). The devil is still active today (see 1 Pet. 5:8), but his power over death has been taken away from him. Christ's death fulfilled the penalty for sin. Thus by placing our trust in Christ, we can be free from Satan's evil grasp (see Luke 10:18; 2 Tim. 1:10; Rev. 1:18).

2:15 The devil uses the fear of death to enslave us. Through His death (v. 14), the Son eliminated such fear and broke the bondage of sin and death.

2:16 The seed of Abraham refers either to the physical descendants of Abraham or the spiritual children of Abraham—that is, the ones who, like Abraham, have placed their faith in God (see Gal. 3:7, 29). The author may have used this expression because the recipients of this letter were primarily Jewish believers. The author is pointing out that Christ came to the aid of Abraham's sons, not of the angelic hosts.

2:17 In all things includes Jesus' humanity (v. 14) and His suffering (v. 18). Jesus participated in our nature and in our sufferings on earth so that He could be a sympathetic Mediator between God and humanity. He understands our weaknesses and intercedes for us in the presence of God the Father. He is a merciful (sympathetic) and faithful (trustworthy) High Priest. This is the first time the title High Priest occurs in Hebrews, and the first time the title is applied to Jesus Christ in the Bible. Make propitiation refers to the satisfaction of the claims of a holy and righteous God against sinners who have broken His law. Christ appeased God's righteous wrath by dying on the Cross in our place (see Rom. 3:21–26). Although completely perfect and sinless, Christ voluntarily submitted to the penalty of sin, His agonizing death on the Cross. This voluntary sacrifice of Himself for our welfare satisfied the justice and holiness of God.

2:18 being tempted: Christ's suffering included temptation. He experienced the lure of sin, but He never surrendered Himself to it. He knows what it is like to be tempted, so He knows how to assist those who are being tempted.

3:1, 2 Partakers is the same Greek word that is translated companions in 1:9. The heavenly calling of these companions is to inherit salvation (1:14) and their future glory in Christ (2:10). The author of Hebrews invites Jewish believers to consider the faithfulness of Christ Jesus. Apostle means "one who is sent." This is the only passage in the NT that labels Jesus as the Apostle. The title indicates that Jesus was "sent" by God to reveal the Father (see John 4:34; 6:38; 7:28, 29; 8:16). The phrase in all His house is taken from Num. 12:7. House refers to the tabernacle, the center of Israelite worship. Moses had faithfully obeyed God's instructions concerning the tabernacle. In the same way, Jesus had been obedient to the mission the Father had given Him. Through His obedience, God established a new house of God, the church.

3:3, 4 He who built all things is God: The author of Hebrews equates Jesus with God. Thus Jesus is certainly worthy of more glory than Moses (1:2, 8, 10). The implication is that the covenant established through Jesus' death is more glorious than the covenant established at Mt. Sinai.

The Majesty of Christ

Hebrews is perhaps the greatest Christological book in the Bible, giving us a detailed description of the attributes and accomplishments of Jesus Christ. The following chart is a summary.

Christ is . . .	This means . . .

Christ is reigning and ruling with God the Father as Lord over all.

Christ is to be exalted more than the angels, no matter how glorious and awe-inspiring they are.

Christ is the founder of the effort to bring “many sons to glory” (2:10).

In dying for our sins, Christ overcame our greatest enemies—death and the devil.

Christ brought the ultimate sacrifice before God—His own blood—so that we might have fellowship with God.

Unlike Moses, who was merely a servant in the house of God, Christ is the “Son over His own house” (3:6).

While on this earth, Jesus experienced the temptations and trials of living in a fallen world. He understands the struggles we face and has compassion for us.

Christ’s priesthood is eternal. We will always have a perfect representative for us before the throne of God.

The old covenant with its earthly tabernacle and imperfect priests has been superseded by the sinless Christ. He is our High Priest who is interceding for us before God in heaven.

When we are discouraged, we can find strength and inspiration in Christ’s willingness to persevere.

Christ will care for us and lead us to our eternal home.

3:5 The author of Hebrews continues the comparison between Moses and Jesus. While Moses was faithful as a servant, Christ’s faithfulness was greater because it was performed by a Son. Things . . . spoken afterward indicates that Moses’ work pointed forward to Christ (9:10; 10:1–3). The regulations of the Law of Moses pointed out both the sin of humanity and the need for a perfect sacrifice to reconcile people to their holy Creator.

3:6 a Son over His own house: The Son is the One who will sit on the throne in the coming kingdom (1:8). He presently rules over the church and will rule over all creation when His opponents are completely defeated. His house consists of all those who believe in Him. hold fast the confidence . . . to the end: Those who endure to the end, steadfastly placing their hope in the Son, will live with Him in eternity.

3:7–11 The author of Hebrews quotes Ps. 95:7–11 to warn the Jewish Christians about hardening their hearts to God and the salvation He offers. Moses’ generation had refused to trust in God to provide for their needs in the wilderness (see Ex. 17:1–7), and the readers of this letter were in danger of not trusting in the salvation offered through God’s Son. If they were to hold fast to the end (see v. 6), they could not harden their hearts to God now (vv. 8, 13, 15). Instead they had to renew their belief in God's Word (vv. 12, 19), place their trust in Christ, and obey Him (v. 18). Rest is a key concept in Hebrews. In the OT, the conquest of the Promised Land and the cessation of fighting in the land was viewed as a form of rest (see Deut. 3:20; 12:9; 25:19; Josh. 11:23; 21:44; 22:4; 23:1). In the NT, rest speaks of the believer's eternal home and the joy that he or she will experience in Jesus' presence (4:1).

3:12, 13 The original recipients of this letter were probably believers (as indicated by the word brethren) who were in danger of departing from God (v. 12) and forsaking the assembly of believers (10:25). The author advises them not to do so but to remain in the assembly, urging each other on in the faith, in love, and in good works (10:24). Unbelief is a grave sin because it leads us away from God. In essence, it is a stubborn refusal to trust in the truthfulness of His word.

3:14 Exhorting each other to continue in the faith is important. Believers must hold their faith firmly to the end of their lives if they are to be partakers of Christ (vv. 15–19). Partakers is the same word translated companions in 1:9. Believers will be partners with Christ in His future kingdom (see Rev. 2:26, 27).

3:15–19 The author of Hebrews speaks of the Israelites' unbelief as sin (v. 17) and disobedience (v. 18). The Israelites did not enter God's rest, the Promised Land (v. 11), because they did not believe in God's promises to them (see Num. 1:1–34). They failed to possess their inheritance because they did not trust in God (see Deut. 12:9; Josh. 13:7). The Jewish Christians to whom this letter was addressed were in danger of following in their ancestors' footsteps. They were tempted to doubt the words of Jesus. With the rhetorical questions in these verses, the author of Hebrews was encouraging them to place their faith firmly in Christ (10:26; 12:1, 2).

4:1 The tragic unbelief of the desert generation of Israelites (3:7–19) serves as a warning for believers today to enter into God's rest, which is still offered to the faithful (see vv. 6–11).

4:2 The gospel was preached is the translation of a single Greek word meaning "the good news was announced." The good news of God's rest (v. 1) had been proclaimed to the Israelites. The generation led by Moses had failed to enter their rest, which was the Promised Land (see Deut. 12:9), because of their lack of faith. In the same way, the gospel of Christ that had been proclaimed to the author's audience was calling them into God's rest, but their unbelief would hinder them from entering into it.

4:4 God rested: The theme of rest has its beginning in God's own rest after creation. The fact that Genesis makes no mention of the evening of the seventh day of creation provides a basis for some Jewish commentators to conclude that the rest of God lasts throughout all of history.

4:7, 8 By merely entering the Promised Land, the Israelites had not entered God's rest, for David (years after Joshua had led the Israelites into the land) had warned his generation to not harden their hearts, so that they could enter God's rest (see 3:7–11). Like David, the author of Hebrews called the present generation to respond to God today (3:13), which is the day of repentance.

4:9 The Greek word for rest in this verse is different from the word used in vv. 1, 3, 5, 10, 11; 3:11, 18. This word means "Sabbath rest" and is found only here in the NT. Jews commonly taught that the Sabbath foreshadowed the world to come, and they spoke of "a day which shall be all Sabbath."

4:10 rest . . . from his works: This may refer to the rest believers will enter in when they finish their work for God's kingdom on this earth (see Rev. 14:13).

4:11 us: Including himself as well as his readers, the author exhorts believers to be diligent, a phrase meaning "make every effort." to enter that rest: The rest is not automatic. Determined diligence is required. The danger is that believers today, like the Israelites of the past, will not stand, but fall in disobedience.

4:12 The word of God is the measuring stick Christ will use at the judgment (see 2 Cor. 5:10). God's message is alive and active, penetrating the innermost parts of a person. It distinguishes what is natural and what is spiritual, as well as the thoughts (reflections) and intentions (insights) of a person. The word of God exposes the natural and spiritual motivations of a believer's heart (v. 7; 3:8, 10, 12, 15; 8:10; 10:16, 22; 13:9).

4:13 Naked and open suggests complete exposure and defenselessness before God. All believers must give account to the all-seeing, all-knowing God (see Rom. 14:10–12; 2 Cor. 5:10).

4:14 Then refers back to the subject of the High Priesthood of Christ (2:17–3:6). We have indicates possession. In the OT the high priest of Israel passed through the courts and veils into the Most Holy Place. Our High Priest has passed through the heavens to the very presence of God, where He sits at God’s right hand (1:3).

4:15 Sympathize means “to suffer with” and expresses the feeling of one who has entered into suffering. In all points tempted means Jesus experienced every degree of temptation (2:18).

4:16 Come is the same Greek word translated draw near in 10:22. This command strongly contrasts with God’s command at Mt. Sinai: “Do not go up to the mountain or touch its base (Ex. 19:12).

Because of Christ’s priestly work, believers can approach God’s presence. The writer of Hebrews is expressing the openness of God’s call in Christ, “Come” (see Rev. 22:17). Boldly is the same word that is rendered confidence in 3:6 (see 10:19) and means “plainness of speech,” “fearlessness,” or “courage.” Believers should courageously approach God in prayer because His is a throne of grace, and our High Priest sits at His right hand interceding for us.

Word Studies

mercy

(Gk. eleos) (4:16; Rom. 15:9; Eph. 2:4; Titus 3:5; Jude 21) Strong's #1656

The Greek word for mercy denotes an outward demonstration of pity, a sympathy that expresses itself in helping a person in need instead of remaining completely passive. The word eleos is often used in conjunction with the Greek word charis, translated grace (Eph. 2:4, 5; 1 Tim. 1:2; 1 Pet. 1:2, 3). A similar idea is expressed by the Hebrew word chesed, often translated lovingkindness or goodness. It is the “loyal love” that God freely showed the Israelites because of His covenant with them. The ultimate expression of God’s mercy is His voluntary offering of His only Son for our sins, even when we were still His enemies (Eph. 2:4, 5). Since Jesus, our Intercessor at the right hand of God (7:25), has experienced every kind of temptation we endure (4:15), we can approach Him with boldness, knowing that we will find sympathy and mercy. We who have experienced God’s mercy and forgiveness should, in turn, show mercy to others (Col. 3:12).

- 5:1–4 These verses explain what it means to be a high priest. A high priest must be a person (vv. 1–3) called by God (v. 4). A priest represents the people and thus must identify with their human nature. But he also represents God to the people and thus must be called by God to his office.
- 5:1 gifts and sacrifices: The primary reference here is to the work of the high priest on the Day of Atonement, the one day of the year when a priest entered into the Most Holy Place (9:7–10) to atone for the sins of the people and intercede for them.
- 5:2 Ignorant and going astray describes those who unintentionally sinned among the people (see Num. 15:30–36).
- 5:3 The high priest was required to offer a sacrifice for himself on the Day of Atonement (see 9:7; Lev. 16:6).
- 5:4 called by God: Aaron was appointed to the position of priest by God Himself (see Ex. 28:1), as were his successors (see Num. 20:23–28; 25:10–13). Those who challenged Aaron’s call or appointed themselves as priests were put to death by God (see Num. 16).
- 5:5, 6 Christ did not call Himself to the office of High Priest; the Father called Him to the honor. Both Ps. 2:7 and 110:4 are cited to prove this fact. Psalm 2:7 is also quoted in 1:5 to prove Christ’s superiority to the angels, and now the writer uses the quote to prove Jesus’ special relationship with God the Father. The quote from Ps. 110:4 highlights the eternal nature of Jesus’ priesthood. He will be Mediator between God and us forever.
- 5:8 He learned obedience: Jesus experienced all of what a person goes through on this earth. He knows how difficult it is to obey God completely, just as He understands the attractions of temptation (2:18). Yet He persisted in obedience, leading a sinless life (1 John 3:5).
- 5:9 having been perfected: This phrase does not suggest that Jesus had not been perfect before. It means that He successfully carried out God’s plan for Him. He endured suffering and temptation so that He could truly function as our High Priest, understanding our weaknesses and interceding before God for us. Author means “cause” or “source.” Jesus’ obedience to the Father led to Calvary, His own death on the Cross. The sacrifice of this sinless One in our place makes Him the source of our salvation.

5:10 Called here means “designated” and introduces Christ’s formal title, High Priest.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Melchizedek

One of the most mysterious figures in the OT serves as an illustration of Christ. Melchizedek appears in Gen. 14:18–20 and in Ps. 110. He was a real man, king of Salem (Jerusalem) and a priest of God. It was apparently in this priestly role that he first met Abraham returning from the rescue of his nephew Lot. Melchizedek praised God for giving the victory to Abraham, showing that there were people other than Abraham and his family who served the true God in ancient times. The writer to the Hebrews recalls the incident between Abraham and Melchizedek and shows the parallels between him and Christ. Both are kings of righteousness and peace, both have priesthoods superior to the Levitical order. In Ps. 110, a messianic psalm written by David, Melchizedek is also seen as a type of Christ.

A thirteenth-century A.D. mosaic of Abraham meeting Melchizedek

5:11 Though the author of Hebrews has much more to say about Jesus' priesthood, it will be hard to explain to the readers of this letter because they are dull of hearing. Dull means "sluggish." When these people heard the word of God they were not quick to accept it (6:11, 12). They had grown even more lazy in the faith, so explaining the truth to them would be difficult.

5:12 First principles are basic truths (6:1, 2). The phrase refers to the letters of the alphabet in writing or to addition and subtraction tables in arithmetic. First principles are the elements out of which everything else develops.

Word Studies

oracles

(Gk. logion) (5:12; Acts 7:38; Rom. 3:2; 1 Pet. 4:11) Strong's #3051

The Greek term logion is a diminutive of the word logos (in 5:13). Here it is not “the Word of God,” but “words from God” or “divine communications.” Peter uses the word for the teaching of Christian preachers (1 Pet. 4:11), while Paul employs the word to refer to the writings of the OT prophets (Rom. 3:2). Stephen uses the word to speak of God’s utterances on Mt. Sinai and His promises concerning the coming of the Messiah. The author of Hebrews uses this word for the basics of Christian doctrine, perhaps consciously contrasting this word to the logos, “the word of righteousness,” which is for the mature Christian (5:13).

Go to the List of Word Studies

5:13 unskilled in the word of righteousness: The readers of this letter did not necessarily lack information concerning righteousness; they lacked experience in practicing the information they had. Maturity comes from practice.

5:14 Full age describes the spiritually mature. Reason of use means “practice” or “habit.” Those who make a habit of obeying the message of righteousness mature in the faith and are able to distinguish good and evil.

6:1, 2 The author urges the readers of his letter to leave the basics and go on to perfection, meaning “maturity.” He lists six items in three couplets that he calls the elementary principles of Christ (see “the first principles” in 5:12). (1) Repentance from dead works refers to a change of mind about the demands of the Law of Moses (9:14). Even though the Law was good (see 1 Tim. 1:8), it was weak because of the weakness of our sinful nature (see Rom. 8:3). (2) What is needed for salvation is not lifeless works that cannot save, but faith directed toward God. (3) Baptisms refers either to the various baptisms in the NT (the baptism of Christ, of John, of believers, and the spiritual baptism of believers), or to the various ritual washings practiced by the Jewish people. (4) In the Book of Acts, the laying on of hands was used to impart the Holy Spirit (see Acts 8:17, 18; 19:6). It was also used for ordination for ministry (see Acts 6:6; 13:3). This practice is also found in the OT in commissioning someone to a public office (see Num. 27:18, 23; Deut. 34:9) or in the context of presenting a sacrificial offering to the Lord (see Lev. 1:4; 3:2; 4:4; 8:14; 16:21). (5) Resurrection of the dead refers to the resurrection of all people at the end times (Rev. 20:11–15). The resurrection is an OT teaching (Is. 26:19; Dan. 12:2) which was widely taught in first-century Judaism, especially by the Pharisees. To Christians, belief in the bodily resurrection of Jesus was essential, for without His resurrection there is no forgiveness of sin (see 1 Cor. 15:12–17). (6) Eternal judgment refers to the belief that everyone will be judged by the great Judge. The Scriptures indicate that there are two judgments: one for believers, in which Jesus determines every believer’s reward (1 Cor. 3:12–15), and the other a judgment of condemnation on unbelievers (Rev. 20:11–15).

6:4–6 This difficult passage concerning the falling away of some from the faith has been interpreted in various ways. Some insist that the author of Hebrews is speaking of nominal Christians who heard the truth and appeared to believe in Christ, but eventually demonstrated their shallow adherence to Christ by publicly renouncing Him. Others view these verses as a hypothetical argument. In other words, the author of Hebrews is using this hypothetical case to warn the spiritually immature (vv. 1–3) not to reject God’s offer of salvation (see v. 6; 3:12). Typically those who postulate these two positions cite the numerous passages that speak of a true believer’s eternal security (see John 6:39, 40; 10:27–29; Rom. 8:28–30). Once God has saved us, nothing can separate us from His love (Rom. 8:35–39). But another group of commentators insist that the author is speaking of genuine Christians who renounce Christ. They claim that this is a clear reading of this text and cite the numerous warnings in the NT to resist the deceptions of false teachers as additional evidence for their interpretation (2 Cor. 11:1–4, 13–15; 2 Tim. 2:17, 18; 1 John 2:21–25). Whatever way one interprets this passage, it is clear that the author of Hebrews has given us a clear warning not to renounce Christ or spurn His offer of salvation. Only those who believe in Jesus will be saved; and the day to embrace His gift of salvation is today (3:7–12).

6:4 Impossible is used three other times in the Book of Hebrews. It is impossible for the blood of animals to take away sin (10:4), for God to lie (v. 18), and for anyone to please God without faith (11:6). Here it is impossible to renew those who have fallen away from the faith (see v. 6). Enlightened is used in only one other place in Hebrews (the word is translated illuminated in 10:32). In that verse, enlightenment refers to a full knowledge of the truth. Tasted is used elsewhere in Hebrews of actual experience (2:9). Thus to taste the heavenly gift is to experience the gift of eternal life. The Greek word for partakers is used elsewhere in Hebrews of regenerate people (1:9; 3:1, 14).

6:6 The phrase if they fall away may also be rendered “having fallen away.” The fact that there is no hint of a conditional element in the Greek text argues against the “hypothetical” interpretation of this passage (see v. 4). Falling away here refers to deliberate apostasy (3:12), a defection from the faith. To renew means “to restore.” In other words, it is impossible for continuous effort on the part of anyone in the Christian community to restore an apostate back to fellowship with God. This is the reason for the strong warning of 3:13 to exhort one another to avoid a hard heart. Continuing Christian immaturity is dangerous. crucify again: Departing from the faith amounts to a fresh public rejection of Christ, a crucifixion of Him all over again.

6:7, 8 The author tells a short parable relating to agriculture to illustrate the spiritual truths conveyed in vv. 4–6. Rejected means “disqualified,” and the word is used of believers being disqualified from receiving rewards (see 1 Cor. 9:27; 2 Cor. 13:5, 7). Note that the ground that produced thorns is not cursed; instead it is near to being cursed (see 1 Cor. 11:29–31). Its ultimate end is burning, perhaps indicating the earthly, temporal judgment of God. In the OT, God’s judgment on His people is compared to the burning of a field (see Is. 9:18, 19; 10:17), indicating physical death, not eternal death. Perhaps this parable is an allusion to the fire which Jesus will use to reveal the quality of a believer’s works (see 1 Cor. 3:11–15). There was an ancient practice of burning a piece of ground to destroy weeds and make a field useful again. If such an allusion is intended here, then this passage could be teaching that while all human attempts to restore apostates are futile (v. 6), there is still hope that God will restore such a person.

6:9 With the warmth and affection of the title beloved, the author assures the Hebrews that he is confident of better things for them. Their good works were signs to the author that they had genuinely received Christ (v. 10).

6:12 Sluggish is the same word which is translated dull in 5:11 and initiates this exhortation to the Hebrews to grow in their faith (5:11–6:12).

6:13–15 Abraham is an example of faith and patience in God’s promise (see v. 12). He waited 25 years from the time the promise was first made until Isaac, the promised son, was born (see Gen. 12:4; 21:5).

6:16, 17 Confirmation means “guarantee.” An oath is used to guarantee an agreement.

6:18 The Lord confirmed His oath to Abraham by swearing by Himself (v. 13) because He alone is beyond deceit. The two immutable things are God's Word and God's oath. Since God does not lie and since He is all-powerful, He will fulfill all His promises. This unchanging nature of God is the believer's consolation and encouragement.

6:19 The believer's hope in Christ is secure, like an anchor. Furthermore this anchor is not in sand, but in the very presence of the Almighty. Behind the veil refers to the Most Holy Place, the place where God dwells.

6:20 The Greek word for forerunner was used in the second century A.D. of the smaller boats sent into the harbor by larger ships unable to enter due to the buffeting of the weather. These smaller boats carried the anchor through the breakers inside the harbor and dropped it there, securing the larger ship. Forerunner presupposes that others will follow. Thus Jesus is not only the believer's anchor but He is like a runner boat that has taken our anchor into port and secured it there. There is thus no doubt as to whether this vessel is going into port. The only question is whether it will go in with the sleekness of a well-trimmed sailing vessel or like a water-laden barge. Believers who have such a hope in the presence of God should come boldly before the throne of grace (see 4:14–16).

7:1 The mention of Melchizedek recalls the author's reference to this ancient priest in 5:10, 11. Melchizedek was both a king and a priest, a common combination in ancient times. Salem was later renamed Jerusalem.

7:2 The name Melchizedek means king of righteousness. Salem means peace. The ideal king rules in righteousness, which assures peace (see Is. 32:17).

7:3 without father . . . mother . . . genealogy: Genesis, a book with many genealogies, has none for Melchizedek. The author is not saying that Melchizedek was born without a father and mother, only that there is no record of his birth in the genealogies of Genesis. This description of Melchizedek prefigures the eternal priesthood of Jesus. Like Melchizedek, Jesus is both a Priest and a King, belonging to a righteous priesthood that is independent of Aaron's. Some commentators have cited this passage as evidence that Melchizedek is a preincarnate manifestation of Jesus. This is unlikely, for the author states that Melchizedek is like the Son of God, not the same as Him.

made like

(Gk. aphomoioō) (7:3) Strong's #871

This Greek word literally means “to make a facsimile,” or “to produce a model or copy.” Thus the author of Hebrews was highlighting the similarities between the Son of God and the way Scripture presents Melchizedek. In other words, the ancient priest-king of Salem was a copy of Jesus.

- 7:4 Melchizedek was great because Abraham gave him a tithe. In the Greek text the word patriarch is emphatic. The greatness of Abraham, the one who possessed the promises of God (v. 6), underscores the even greater rank of Melchizedek, the priest of righteousness.
- 7:8–10 Melchizedek was not only superior to Abraham, he was superior to the Levitical priesthood in two ways. First, the Levitical priests were mortal—that is, they died; and thus different priests represented the people at different times. In contrast, Melchizedek lives, meaning the OT does not record his death (v. 3). Second, in a sense, Levi paid tithes to Melchizedek through Abraham's gift. So to speak indicates that Levi, who was not yet born, did not literally pay tithes. However, because he descended from Abraham, he is counted as having paid tithes to Melchizedek too.
- 7:11 If the Levitical priesthood had been able to bring people to perfection, then a superior priest from the order of Melchizedek would not have been needed (see Ps. 110:4). If the priests under the Law of Moses could offer permanent reconciliation between God and His people, there would be no need for a coming Messiah, One who would restore the Israelites to their relationship with God.
- 7:12 Change means “removal” (12:27). If the Melchizedek priesthood removed the Levitical priesthood, then the Mosaic Law is also removed. In short, the believer is not under the Law but instead relies on the righteousness of Christ (see Rom. 6:14; Gal. 3:24, 25).
- 7:13, 14 He of whom these things are spoken is the Lord, who arose from another tribe, namely Judah. According to the Law, the tribe of Judah had nothing to do with the priesthood. The argument hinges on Ps. 110:4 (see also 5:6). If the OT said that another priest was coming from another tribe, then clearly the Law was going to be superseded.
- 7:15–18 The law, which regulated the priesthood, was fleshly in the sense that it regulated a person's external actions. The Lord, however, is a Priest according to the power of an endless life. This is proved by Ps. 110:4, quoted in v. 17. Jesus is a different kind of Priest, another indication that the Law has been changed. There has been an annulling, a putting away, of the Law.
- 7:20–22 Christ's priesthood is superior to the Levitical priesthood because it was established by an oath (see “the LORD has sworn” in Ps. 110:4).

The Superiority of Jesus

When it comes to spiritual matters, people are peculiar. They become obsessed with angels, but somehow ignore or forget the God who created and directs these heavenly messengers. They devote themselves to seeking and understanding “truth,” but they never encounter the Holy One who encompasses all truth. They engage in all sorts of rituals and practices to try to find and reach out to their Creator; but they somehow miss the fact that He has already reached down to them.

This is the case today, just as it was in the first century. In fact, this spiritual “peculiarity” is one of the reasons the Spirit of God inspired the letter to the Hebrews. To Jewish Christians who were dealing with persecution and hardship, who were doubting the truth of the gospel and the New Covenant, and who were considering the idea of turning away, the writer of Hebrews sent this clear message: Christ is the ultimate.

More than a mere prophet, Christ is God in the flesh (1:2, 3, 8). He is Creator (1:10–12) and Sustainer of all (1:3). As the “holy, harmless, undefiled” High Priest who is “separate from sinners” and “who does not need . . . to offer up sacrifices . . . for His own sins” (7:26, 27), Jesus Christ alone is capable of providing salvation and sanctification (2:10, 11).

Given these facts, it is easy to see why the author of Hebrews states that Christ is better than the angels (1:4). It is clear why even Moses pales in comparison. No wonder Hebrews states that Christ is the author and mediator of a better covenant (7:22; 8:6), that He offered a better sacrifice for sin (9:23), that He possesses a more excellent name (1:4), and that He carries out a more excellent ministry (8:6).

We must resist the temptation to settle for a superficial spirituality. Angels, rituals, and human role models all have their place. But none of these things compares to Christ. And therein lies the staggering promise of the gospel: Jesus Christ comes to us and offers Himself. Because of His perfect payment for sins, we can find the forgiveness we so desperately need. More than that, we can experience eternal life, which Jesus Himself described as an intimate, never-ending relationship with God the Father and God the Son. Given that mind-boggling opportunity, why would we look anywhere else or settle for anything less?

7:23, 24 Because Christ lives forever, His priesthood is unchangeable. In the Levitical system, the high priest’s office was always changing hands. When one high priest died, another assumed the office. Josephus estimated that there were 83 different high priests between Aaron and the fall of the temple in A.D. 70.

7:25 Christ is . . . able to save because He is fully God and fully human (2:18; 4:15). Since this verse speaks of Jesus’ present intercession for us, the word save in this verse speaks of our sanctification, the continuing process by which we are freed from the power of sin. This continuing process of salvation will eventually be completed in our glorification, when we are saved from the presence of sin. The word uttermost may speak of this glorification, this “complete” or “whole” salvation. come: The Greek verb for come is in the present tense. Therefore the word indicates that Jesus continues to save those who keep coming to Him. Our justification is a once-for-all event accomplished on the Cross, but our sanctification is a continuing process.

7:26–28 The author concludes this chapter with a summary of why Jesus’ priesthood is superior to any other. Higher than the heavens means Christ is exalted above all and sits in glory at the right hand of the Father (1:3; 2:9; 4:14). daily, as those high priests: The high priest offered an annual sacrifice on the Day of Atonement for the atonement of the people’s sins (9:7; 10:1), but the priests also offered sacrifices every day before the Lord (see Ex. 29:36). In contrast, Jesus offered Himself once, a perfect, sinless sacrifice for the sins of all. Since Jesus is perfect, He did not have to offer sacrifices for His own sins. The permanent, eternal nature of Jesus' priesthood established by an oath of God is in sharp contrast to the temporal, weak nature of the Levitical priesthood.

8:1 The main point of this section of Hebrews (vv. 1–6) is the High Priesthood of Christ, mentioned in 2:17–3:1 and developed in 4:14–7:28.

8:2 The sanctuary refers to the heavenly reality represented by the Most Holy Place (9:2, 8, 24; 10:19; 13:11). This reality is the presence of God. Our High Priest serves there and desires to bring us there (10:19).

8:4 according to the law: Only men from the tribe of Levi could serve as priests. Christ was not from that tribe (7:13, 14).

8:5 The Levitical priesthood served as a copy of the heavenly Priest. The same goes for the tabernacle. Moses was shown a pattern, a type or model, of the true tabernacle (see Ex. 25:40).

8:7 That first covenant is the Mosaic covenant (see v. 9; Ex. 19:5).

8:8 The new covenant is the “better covenant” of v. 6. This covenant was made with Israel and Judah, yet the church enjoys the spiritual blessings of this covenant now. The Abrahamic covenant was made with Abraham and his physical descendants (see Gen. 17:7), who would inherit the land (see Gen. 12:7; 13:14, 15). Yet the Abrahamic covenant also contained spiritual promises (see Gen. 12:3) in which the church participates (see Rom. 11:11–27; Gal. 3:13, 14). The new covenant in fact is a fulfillment of the spiritual redemption promised in the Abrahamic and Davidic covenants (see Matt. 26:26–29; Luke 22:20).

8:10–12 There are four provisions of the new covenant: (1) God's law will be written on believers' minds and hearts. This is in contrast to the Mosaic Law which was written on tablets of stone. (2) Believers will have a relationship with God fulfilling the promise of Lev. 26:12 (see 2 Cor. 6:16). (3) All will know God. No longer will Pharisees and scribes have to teach the intricacies of the Law to the people. (4) God will forgive the sins of believers and remember them no more. The continual sacrifice of animals for the atonement of sin will cease.

know

(Gk. ginōskō) (8:11; John 21:17; Gal. 4:9) Strong's #1097; (Gk. oida) (8:11; John 21:15–17; 2 Cor. 5:16; Gal. 4:8, 9) Strong's #1492

In the statement “know the LORD, for all shall know Me,” there are two different Greek words for know. The first word (ginōskō) means “to come to know” or “to know personally.” It can designate ongoing, personal knowledge, which implies a relationship between the knower and the person who is known. The second word (oida) is derived from the Greek verb meaning “to see.” Thus oida means “to perceive” or “to know absolutely.” It suggests complete knowledge, while ginōskō means a growing knowledge.

Go to the List of Word Studies

8:13 The presence of a new, better covenant not only demonstrates that the first covenant is not sufficient (v. 7), it also shows that the first covenant is obsolete and ready to vanish away. At the time the author of Hebrews wrote these words, the ceremonies of the Mosaic covenant were still being conducted in the temple in Jerusalem. In A.D. 70 the Roman general Titus destroyed the temple, fulfilling these words.

9:1 The first (Mosaic) covenant included an earthly sanctuary, the tabernacle (v. 2), in which divine service was offered.

9:2–5 These verses simply describe the furniture of the tabernacle. The tabernacle courtyard contained an altar for animal sacrifice, a laver for ceremonial washings, and the tent itself (the word tabernacle literally means “tent”). The tabernacle was divided into two rooms by a veil. The first part was the sanctuary or holy place, housing the lampstand, the table for the showbread, and the altar of incense. The second room was the Most Holy Place (v. 3) containing the ark of the covenant, in which were stored symbols of the Mosaic covenant. The pot of manna reminded the people of God’s miraculous provision for them in the wilderness. Aaron’s rod was a sign of the authority of the priesthood. God had ordained Aaron and his sons to be representatives of the people before Him. The tablets were the Ten Commandments given to the nation at Mt. Sinai. On top of the ark was the mercy seat, the place where God made His presence known. golden censer: In this passage, it sounds as if the censer was placed in the Most Holy Place, when in fact it was just outside the veil that separated the Most Holy Place from the holy place. Because of its function, the censer was commonly associated with the Most Holy Place (see Ex. 30:6; 40:6).

9:6 Every morning and every evening the priests entered the holy place to burn incense on the golden altar and trim the lamps (see Ex. 30:7, 8). Every week on the Sabbath, the showbread was changed (see Lev. 24:5–8).

9:7 Only the high priest could enter the Most Holy Place. Once a year, on the Day of Atonement, the high priest offered a blood sacrifice for himself and for the sins of ignorance committed by everyone in the nation of Israel (see Lev. 16). In the provisions of the Mosaic covenant, access to God was limited (compare the promises of the “new covenant” in 8:10, 11).

9:8 The fact that the high priest could enter the Holiest of All only once a year indicates the striking failure of the Mosaic covenant to bring believers into the presence of God.

- 9:9 The tabernacle was symbolic, an illustration of spiritual truths. The present time refers to the OT period. cannot make . . . perfect: The Mosaic covenant covered sins of ignorance (v. 7), but not premeditated sins or the sinful nature of all people (see Ps. 51). In other words, the old system was lacking. It did not completely reconcile the people to God.
- 9:11 Christ's tabernacle is better than the OT tabernacle (vv. 1–5). The good things to come include access to God (8:10–12). The preposition with in this context means “in connection with.” Therefore, the greater and more perfect tabernacle is not a reference to Christ's body but to the “true tabernacle” (see 8:2).
- 9:12 The service of the Levitical priest obtained a limited, recurring, symbolic type of redemption. Christ, with His own blood, obtained eternal redemption. His sacrifice never has to be repeated because it is perfect.
- 9:13 According to Mosaic Law, the blood of bulls and goats from the sacrifices made on the Day of Atonement would atone for the people's sins (v. 12). The ashes of a heifer were mixed with water and were used to cleanse a person who had become ceremonially defiled by touching a corpse (see Num. 19). The author of Hebrews points out that these ceremonies could purify only a person's exterior, not a person's heart.
- 9:14 The eternal Spirit is the Holy Spirit; all three persons of the Trinity are involved in cleansing. cleanse your conscience: The defilement is internal, not external (v. 13). Christ's death has the power to purify a person's mind and soul. Dead works are the rituals of the Mosaic Law that could not give life (6:1). Placing faith and confidence in what has already served its purpose and has now passed away is useless. It is disobedience. The author of Hebrews commands his audience to free their conscience from regulations of Mosaic Law and instead cling to Christ for cleansing. In doing so, they could truly serve the living God and not dead works.
- 9:15 The new covenant provides two gifts to a believer: redemption and inheritance. Believers receive redemption from the sins committed under the Law. In other words, Christ paid the price to free us from our own sin. His death substitutes for our death, the penalty of our sins. Like the Israelites, believers receive an inheritance, but our inheritance is eternal (v. 14). By imitating the faith and patience of Abraham, believers are assured that they will inherit the marvelous promises God has made (6:12; see the promises at 8:6–12).

redemption

(Gk. apolutrōsis) (9:15; Rom. 3:24; Eph. 1:14; Col. 1:14) Strong's #629

Two related words, lutrōsis and apolutrōsis, are both translated redemption and are frequently used by the NT writers. The first word indicates the act of freeing or releasing by paying a ransom price; the second, the act of buying back by paying a ransom price. Christ paid the ransom price with His own blood (1 Pet. 1:18, 19) and thus freed us from the demands of the law and its curse on sin to become children of God (Gal. 3:13; 4:5).

Go to the List of Word Studies

9:16, 17 Testament is the same word translated covenant in v. 15. It means a legal will. Before the provisions of a will take effect, the one who made it must die.

9:18–21 The Mosaic covenant was ratified by blood, that is to say, death. It was not the death of the one making the covenant, but the death of the animals offered as a sacrifice to God (see Ex. 24:1–8).

9:22 Almost indicates that there were exceptions to blood purification (see Lev. 5:11–13), but that they were few in comparison with the central importance of sacrifices made for the remission of sins (see Lev. 17:11).

9:24 Christ's sacrifice was better than sacrifices made under the Mosaic covenant because Christ did not enter a man-made sanctuary, which was a copy; instead, He entered the true sanctuary, which is in heaven—the very presence of God.

9:25, 26 Christ's sacrifice was better than sacrifices made under the Mosaic covenant because He did not offer an annual sacrifice of animals, but offered Himself once. at the end of the ages: The coming of Christ is the climax of the OT period.

9:27, 28 As men die once, so Christ died once—not like the repeated sacrifices of the Levitical system. Unlike men, Christ did not die and face judgment. He died once to appear a second time for salvation (1:14). Those who eagerly wait for Him are not necessarily all believers, but those who look for His return, those who are steadfast to the end.

10:1–4 Not the very image means “not the exact representation.” Perfect refers to the removal of the consciousness of sins (v. 2; 8:12; 9:9). The sacrifices of the Mosaic covenant prefigured Christ's ultimate sacrifice of Himself. Therefore these imperfect sacrifices of mere animals could not completely purify the person who offered them. If they had been able to, these sacrifices would have ceased. Instead of thoroughly atoning for the sins of the people, the annual sacrifice on the Day of the Atonement was a visible reminder of the people's sins.

10:5–7 Therefore: Based on the inadequacy of animal sacrifices, a conclusion is drawn. it is written of Me: The author presents Ps. 40 as a messianic psalm, for only Christ, and not David, could have fulfilled the prophecies of the book, the OT. To do Your will: The OT prophets had warned the Israelites that sacrifices alone would not please God. He desired obedience as well (Ps. 51:16, 17; Is. 1:13–17; see also Mark 12:33). This messianic psalm indicates that Jesus' obedience to God the Father was one of the reasons His sacrifice was better than the OT sacrifices.

- 10:8, 9 The author explains Ps. 40, concluding that God takes away the first, meaning the Levitical sacrificial system, to establish the second, namely, the Son's obedient sacrifice. The verb translated takes away means "abolishes." The imperfect sacrifices were abolished so that the perfect Sacrifice could impart true life.
- 10:10 Sanctified means "set apart." Believers have been separated from their sins and set apart to God by the once-for-all sacrifice of Christ.
- 10:11, 12 The author of Hebrews contrasts the Levitical priests with Jesus, our High Priest. The Levitical priests always stood before God. There were no seats in the sanctuary, for the priests' job was never done. There were always more sins for which to atone. In contrast, Christ sat down (1:3; 8:1) after offering Himself as a sacrifice. Sitting indicates that His work of atonement is finished. His final words on the Cross, "It is finished," declare this spiritual reality (John 19:30).
- 10:14 The finished work of Christ in dying for sin once for all (v. 10) has perfected (v. 1) forever those who are being sanctified, that is, those who have been set apart to God (see v. 10). Notice that the sanctification spoken of in v. 10 is positional; it refers to our justification, the fact that we have been declared righteous. However in this verse, sanctification refers to the gradual process by which believers are being made more and more perfect.
- 10:16–18 If full and final forgiveness has been achieved so that God does not remember sin any longer (v. 17), then no further sacrifice for sin is necessary. To remember sins no more does not mean to forget, but not to hold sin against us any longer.
- 10:19–25 In these verses, the author of Hebrews demonstrates the relationship between faith, hope, and love. Faith in God leads believers to place their hope in His promises. Restoring a right relationship with God then prompts believers to restore their relationships with others. Love for God demonstrates itself in love for others. The author exhorts his readers to faith, hope, and love through three commands: "let us draw near" (v. 22); "let us hold fast" (v. 23); and "let us consider" (v. 24).
- 10:19 Therefore recalls the therefore of 4:16. The author has spent five chapters explaining the superiority of Christ's priesthood to the Levitical priesthood and the superiority of the New Covenant to the Mosaic covenant. Unlike the Israelites, who approached God at Mt. Sinai with fear and trembling (Ex. 20:18–21), believers can approach God with boldness (see 3:6; 4:16; 10:35) because we possess Christ's righteousness and not our own. The Holiest refers to the very presence of God. On this earth, most of us do not have immediate access to a president or monarch. But through Christ's blood, we have perpetual access to God Himself.
- 10:20 The OT high priest passed through a veil to get to the Most Holy Place. Now believers enter God's presence through Christ's flesh, meaning His sacrificial death.

new and living way

(Gk. hodos prosphatos kai zōsa) (10:20) Strong's #3598; 4372; 2532; 2198

The Greek word for new is prosphatos, meaning “recently killed” or “freshly slain.” Because Christ shed His blood to prepare the way for us to enter the Most Holy Place, this way is “a freshly slain way,” a way ever fresh because of the eternal efficacy of Jesus’ blood. At the same time, this is the living way, for this way leads to our source of spiritual life, namely God Himself. Therefore, this way, prepared by Jesus’ death, leads to eternal life.

10:21 Believers have a High Priest who, having been tempted Himself, can sympathize with their weaknesses and perfectly represent them before God (4:14, 15).

10:22 Draw near is the same word rendered come in 4:16. Full assurance means “certainty” (6:11). our hearts sprinkled . . . our bodies washed: Our consciences can be cleansed through the blood of Christ (9:14). Just as the high priest washed before entering the Most Holy Place (Lev. 16:3, 4), so believers are cleansed before they come before the Holy One.

10:23 Confession of our hope is the believer’s confident expectation of the future. Promised here may refer to the promise of rest (4:1). If the believer does his or her part, there is no question that God will fulfill His part of the agreement (see 2 Tim. 2:11, 12).

10:24, 25 Consider means “to observe,” “to contemplate,” or “to have an intelligent insight into.” Note that love and good works need to be stirred up; they do not just occur. The Greek word translated stir up has come into English as paroxysm, which means a “convulsion.” In this context the Greek word speaks forcefully of the tremendous impact believers can have on each other. That is why the author exhorts the Hebrews to gather together. Evidently some believers had stopped attending the worship services of the church, perhaps because they feared persecution. The author does not use the usual Greek word for church, perhaps because the term had come to mean the spiritual, invisible body of believers. Instead he uses a compound form of the word synagogue, which specifically means the local, physical gathering of believers (see Ps. 40:9, 10; 42:4). Exhorting means coming alongside and inspiring another with the truth. The local assembly is where the gospel message is preached, but also where the Word of God is applied to the circumstances of our lives. Approaching may also be translated “at hand” (see Rom. 13:12; Phil. 4:5; James 5:8; 1 Pet. 4:7; Rev. 1:3). Knowing that Christ’s return is imminent, the believers were to encourage each other even more to remain faithful to Him (3:13).

10:26 sin willfully: The reference here is not to an occasional act of sin (which can be confessed and forgiven; see 1 John 1:8, 9), but to a conscious rejection of God. The OT speaks in Num. 15:30, 31 of committing willful sin. A person who sinned presumptuously was to be cut off from the people. To sin deliberately after receiving the knowledge of the truth is apostasy. If a Christian rejects God’s provision for his or her salvation, there is no other remedy for sins (see also Num. 15:29–31), since forgiveness of sins can only be found in Christ’s perfect sacrifice.

10:27 With no hope of forgiveness (v. 26), all that one can expect is judgment, described here as a

- fiery indignation. Those who choose to disobey God become His adversaries (see James 4:4).
- 10:28, 29 The specific sin in the OT that required two or three witnesses was idolatry (see Deut. 17:2–7). The judgment for idolatry was death by stoning. If idolatry was punished with physical death, how much worse punishment should someone receive who treats the word of Christ with disrespect or disdain? Counted the blood . . . a common thing means the blood of Christ is treated as no different from the blood of an ordinary man or the blood of an animal sacrifice. Insulted the Spirit of grace is a reference to the Holy Spirit, the agent of God’s gracious gift of salvation. A believer who commits these offenses will be judged with a punishment worse than physical death.
- 10:30, 31 The author quotes two passages from Deut. 32 to support his claim that judgment belongs to the Lord and that God’s people are not excused from God’s judgment. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God because there is no other sacrifice for sin than Christ’s sacrifice on the Cross (v. 26), only a fearful expectation of judgment (v. 27). All sin not covered by the blood of Christ will result in great loss at the judgment seat (see 1 Cor. 3:15; 2 Cor. 5:10).
- 10:32, 33 To encourage his readers, the author urges them to recall their former endurance, which occurred right after they were illuminated or converted (6:9–12). They had endured even though they were ridiculed because of their faith.
- 10:34 The people to whom Hebrews was written had shown compassion on the author when he was in prison and had joyfully accepted economic hardship.
- 10:35 To cast away one’s confidence is to lose conviction about the value of one’s Christian commitment. For the recipients of Hebrews to return to the safety of Judaism would mean a loss of eternal reward at the judgment seat of Christ.
- 10:37, 38 These verses focus the attention of a person facing trial on the imminent return of the Lord and the need to endure by faith (3:12, 13).
- 10:39 Those who draw back are in danger of destruction. The writer is confident that he and his readers believe to the saving of the soul. Those who live by faith (v. 38) invest their physical lives for eternal dividends.
- 11:1 This verse is not a definition of faith, but a description of what faith does. Substance means “essence” or “reality.” Faith treats things hoped for as reality. Evidence means “proof” or “conviction.” Faith itself proves that what is unseen is real, such as the believer’s rewards at the return of Christ (see 2 Cor. 4:18).
- 11:2 The elders are the believers of the OT. Good testimony refers to God’s approval; He considered them righteous because of their faith (see v. 4, 5, 7).
- 11:3 worlds: Faith understands that the invisible God created the vast universe.
- 11:4 Abel’s sacrifice was acceptable to God because of his faith, and was therefore declared righteous. Evidently Cain offered his sacrifices without faith (see Gen. 4). Abel still speaks to us because his righteous deeds have been recorded in Scripture.

Heroes of Faith

The Jewish Christians to whom the Epistle to the Hebrews is addressed were demoralized and discouraged. Christianity had proven difficult for them. It was radical. It set aside centuries of tradition. It emphasized a new but troubling kind of spiritual freedom. In short, it incurred the wrath of the Jewish religious establishment.

Many converts were ready to turn back and to leave the uneasy, uncharted waters of faith for the comfortable, familiar life of works and moral effort. This was the choice they faced: depending on the Law or following Jesus, trying to appease God or trusting in Him, a complicated religious system or a simple relationship with the living God through Christ.

After reminding these immature believers of the superiority of Jesus Christ, the writer of Hebrews, beginning in 10:19, demonstrates for them the superiority of faith. Faith means we cannot see the outcome, we are not sure what lies ahead (11:1). But we are convinced of the reality of God (11:6). In other words, “We’re not sure what the future holds, but we know Who holds the future.” Faith means clinging to the hope that God will eventually triumph; He will come back to earth in judgment, to reward those who have sought after Him (11:6). And so we obey. We do God’s bidding, even when submission is hard.

It is the response of obedience that qualifies the characters in ch. 11 as people of great faith. Abraham and Sarah believed God; consequently, they obeyed Him, regardless of the consequences. It is this kind of willing trust that pleases God (11:6). Anything less will not do.

Those who do not have faith cannot see past the physical world around them. They are limited by their temporal circumstances and are blind to what God is doing. But those who open their spiritual eyes can see the spiritual realities which transcend this world. Their hope is in God’s strength and in His faithfulness. In that hope they find the strength to endure. When it comes to faith, the world scoffs. Faith, at best, seems like a great waste; at worst, it seems almost suicidal. Do we really want to give up all the pleasures of this world for something elusive and ethereal?

Faith is never easy. But the more convinced we are of the reality of an all-good, all-powerful God, the more our trust will grow, and the less we will be overwhelmed by doubts and temptations.

11:6 The word comes is used repeatedly in Hebrews to refer to the privilege of drawing near to God (see 4:16; 7:25; 10:1, 22). Here the author of Hebrews explains that faith is mandatory for those who approach Him (see 10:22). rewarder: God rewards not only those who seek Him, but those who do good works in the Holy Spirit’s power (see Rev. 22:12).

11:7 Noah had never seen (v. 1) the flood God revealed to him. Yet he believed God in spite of this and heeded His warnings. His faith not only saved him from the deluge but also from God’s judgment, for He became an heir of righteousness.

11:8 Abraham did not know where he was going, yet he still placed his trust in God. Faith means obediently stepping into the unknown (v. 1). Abraham did this, and God considered him righteous because of it (Gen. 15:6; Rom. 4:1–12).

11:10 The city here is the New Jerusalem (see Rev. 21:2, 10). Abraham lived in the land waiting for the future yet unseen New Jerusalem.

11:11, 12 Though the Book of Genesis does not explicitly say so, Sarah evidently believed that nothing was too hard for the Lord (see Gen. 18:15). As a result, God blessed her with the promised son, though she was past the age of child-bearing.

11:13, 14 These all refers to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and Sarah (vv. 8, 9, 11), who died before taking possession of the land or seeing any of the other provisions of God’s covenant. Nevertheless, they endured in the faith, even to the end of their lives. strangers and pilgrims on the earth: These men and women of faith knew that this world was temporary, that their eternal home would be with God.

11:15 The patriarchs and Sarah did not return to Ur, even though they could have if they had wanted to. The recipients of Hebrews were to follow the patriarchs’ example and refuse to return to the religion of their ancestors, a religious system that no longer provided atonement for sin (see 8:7–

- 13). Similarly, present-day believers should refuse to return to the attractions of this world (see 2 Tim. 2:3, 4; 4:10).
- 11:17–19 When Abraham was tested, he believed that God could raise Isaac from the dead (see Gen. 22:5) if necessary. The incident is figurative of what God has done for us. Isaac was as good as dead, but God provided a ram to sacrifice in his place (Gen. 22:9–14). With God everything is possible. He is the Almighty, and His Son has triumphed over death (see John 11:38–44; 1 Cor. 15:54–57; Rev. 1:18).
- 11:20–22 Isaac, Jacob, and Joseph all believed until the end of their lives in the unseen future God had promised.
- 11:23 The parents of Moses had faith in God in the midst of opposition.
- 11:24–28 Moses believed God by refusing a high position in Pharaoh’s court. Instead, he chose suffering, forsook Egypt, and instituted the Passover.
- 11:26 The reproach of Christ refers to the earthly disgrace Christ received. Like Christ, Moses chose to suffer the indignities associated with God’s people, instead of embracing the worldly pleasures of Pharaoh’s court. The possibility of reward is the most frequently mentioned motivation for enduring in the faith (for example, see Matt. 5:10–12; 16:24–27; 1 Cor. 3:12–15; 2 Cor. 4:16–18; 2 Tim. 2:11–13; 1 John 2:28; Rev. 22:12).
- 11:27 forsook Egypt: Some commentators interpret this as a reference to Moses’ flight to Midian. However, the mention of not fearing the wrath of the king in this verse fits the events of the Exodus better. At that time Moses showed true courage, a resolute faith in the Lord (see Ex. 14:13, 14).
- 11:28 God told Moses to sprinkle blood on the doorposts. Moses believed God’s word, heeded His warning, and as a result the firstborn of every Israelite family was saved (Ex. 12:1–13).
- 11:30 It took faith for the warriors of Israel to destroy the walled city of Jericho by such unconventional means. Yet this act of faith brought the results they desired; God gave them victory over their enemies (Josh. 6).
- 11:35 The reference to women who received their dead is probably a reference to the raising of the son of the widow of Zarephath (1 Kin. 17:17–24) and of the Shunammite woman (2 Kin. 4:32–37). But the author of Hebrews also points out that not all who had faith won victories, at least not in the same hour. tortured: This is usually understood to be an allusion to the heroic martyrs of Maccabean times, who were well known. A better resurrection is a reference to a richer resurrection, an abundant entrance into the kingdom (see 2 Pet. 1:11), which is our eternal reward.
- 11:37 Zechariah was stoned (2 Chr. 24:20, 21). According to Jewish tradition, the prophet Isaiah was sawn in two. Urijah was slain with the sword (see Jer. 26:20–23). Wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins is probably a reference to Elijah (see 2 Kin. 1:8).
- 11:39, 40 Made perfect means “made complete.” This completion, the realization of all of God’s promises in Christ’s coming kingdom, awaits all believers.
- 12:1 The cloud of witnesses refers to the people of faith mentioned in ch. 11. They are not actually spectators watching us; they are witnesses testifying to the truth of the faith (11:2, 4–6). Weight is anything that hinders a runner.

The Imperative of Faith

What is faith?

- Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen (11:1).

Why is faith important?

- Without faith it is impossible to please God (11:6).

In what does faith believe?

- Faith believes that God is, and that He is a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him (11:6).

What does faith look like in a person's life?

- Abel offered a costly sacrifice (11:4).
- Enoch lived in a way that pleased God (11:5).
- Noah obeyed divine warnings and built a giant ark (11:7).
- Abraham left Ur at God's calling and went out, not knowing where he was going (11:8).
- Sarah bore Isaac in her old age (11:11).
- Abraham was willing to offer up Isaac, his only son, trusting that God was able to raise him up (11:17–19).
- Isaac blessed his sons and exhorted them to obey the covenant (11:20).
- Jacob likewise reminded his sons of God's promises (11:21).
- Joseph expressed his confidence that God would bring the Israelites out of Egypt (11:22).
- Moses' parents refused to carry out the commands of Pharaoh to kill their child (11:23).
- Moses turned his back on the passing pleasures of sin and sided with the downtrodden children of Israel, leading them out of Egypt and obediently carrying out the difficult commands of God (11:24–29).
- The Israelites, led by Joshua, trusted God to give them victory over the city of Jericho (11:30).
- Rahab believed in the power of God and helped the Israelite spies (11:31).
- Many other Old Testament people of faith trusted God for power and victory and refused to compromise their faith in God, even in the midst of life-threatening circumstances (11:32–38).

What happens to the faithful?

- Some died without having received the promises (11:13).
- Some have to find consolation in the truth that they will not realize the full blessings of God until they enter heaven (11:14–16).
- Some experience miraculous deliverance (11:33–35).
- Others, despite their implicit trust in God, experience torture, mockings, scourgings, imprisonment, stonings, destitution, affliction, and torment (11:35–38).

What is God's verdict on those who faithfully endure?

- They are those of whom the world is not worthy (11:38).

How should the lives of faithful believers affect us?

- We should be motivated to lay aside every weight, and the sin which so easily ensnares us, and . . . run with endurance the race that is set before us (12:1).

Go to the List of Charts and Diagrams

- 12:2 Looking here means “fixing one’s eyes trustingly.” We need to consistently focus on Christ instead of our own circumstances. finisher: Christ has done everything necessary for us to endure in our faith. He is our example and model, for He focused on the joy that was set before Him. His attention was not on the agonies of the Cross, but on the crown; not on the suffering, but the reward.
- 12:3 Consider here involves the idea of comparison, as an accountant would compare the various columns of a balance sheet. Believers should compare their sufferings to the torture Christ endured on their behalf (v. 4).
- 12:4 not yet resisted to bloodshed: Christ died (v. 3); but the community that received the letter to the Hebrews had not yet suffered deadly persecutions.
- 12:5, 6 Proverbs 3:11, 12 teaches that divine discipline demonstrates divine love. Scourges means “whips,” and is used figuratively of punishment. In the context of these verses, this discipline includes persecution (vv. 3, 4).
- 12:7 for what son: Sons are naturally disciplined out of love by their fathers. They should accept and learn from this discipline. In the same way, God disciplines us because He wants to make us better.
- 12:8 In Roman society an illegitimate son was one who had no inheritance rights.
- 12:9 Believers should not only endure God’s discipline, they should readily be in subjection to their heavenly Father.
- 12:10, 11 our profit: Although fathers discipline for awhile as they see fit, God disciplines us with our good welfare in mind. With every trial, God is fashioning us into a holy people, set apart for His good purposes (see v. 14; 10:10). The peaceable fruit of righteousness suggests that the result of God’s chastening is peace and righteousness.
- 12:12, 13 Borrowing the language of Is. 35:3, the author admonishes his readers to renew their strength so that they can endure the race of faith (see v. 1).
- 12:15–17 Believers pursuing peace and practical righteousness (v. 14) should watch for three dangers: (1) falling short of God’s grace—that is, refusing Christ’s gracious offer of salvation and His provision for their needs (see 4:16); (2) allowing a root of bitterness to grow in their assembly—perhaps allowing idol worshipers to remain in the church (see Deut. 29:18); and (3) becoming sexually immoral or irreligious. Esau illustrates those who are irreligious. Under the Law, the eldest son would receive a double inheritance (see Deut. 21:17). Esau lost his inheritance, which included God’s gracious promises, by despising it and valuing the pleasure of food over it (Gen. 25:34).
- 12:18–24 In these verses, the author of Hebrews contrasts the Mosaic covenant with the New Covenant by contrasting two mountains: Mt. Sinai and Mt. Zion. At Mt. Sinai, the Israelites received the Law from God with fear and trembling, for God displayed at that time His awesome power (see Ex. 19:10–20:26). In contrast, Christian believers have come to a heavenly Jerusalem on Mt. Zion through Jesus’ blood. This mountain is a celebration of the Holy One, attended by angels, believers, and righteous people. The author makes the contrast between the two covenants vivid, and then once again exhorts his readers not to reject Christ’s offer of salvation (see vv. 25–29).
- 12:23 In the OT the firstborn received a double inheritance (see Deut. 21:17). These then are heirs who are in heaven awaiting the kingdom (1:14). Just men made perfect refers to all believers who have died. They are just because they have been justified, and perfect because they are now “complete” in heaven.
- 12:24 The blood of Abel cried out for revenge (see Gen. 4:10); the blood of Christ speaks of redemption.

Mediator

(Gk. mesitēs) (8:6; 9:15; 12:24; Gal. 3:19, 20; 1 Tim. 2:5) Strong's #3316

This Greek word means “a go-between,” an intermediary between two parties. Paul describes Moses as a mediator of the first covenant: he acted as a liaison between God and the Israelites, communicating the obligations of the covenant to Israel and pleading the Israelites’ case before God (see Gal. 3:19, 20). In a similar way, Jesus is the Mediator of the New Covenant. He established it through His own death, commissioning His disciples to preach the Good News. Now He sits at the right hand of God interceding for us (7:25).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 12:25 Him who speaks from heaven is Christ, who spoke on earth and is now in heaven. much more: Greater revelation means greater responsibility (2:1–4). If the Israelites were judged for not believing in God’s promises (Num. 14:20–25), we too will be judged for disbelief.
- 12:26–28 The earth shook at Mt. Sinai. The earth and heaven will shake in the latter days (see Matt. 24:29). But the kingdom of God will not be shaken, for it will endure throughout all eternity (Luke 18:29).
- 12:29 our God is a consuming fire: The author concludes his lengthy warning to those who are tempted to abandon the faith (2:1–12:29) with a vivid description of God’s judgment (Deut. 4:24). The Lord will judge His people (10:27, 30).
- 13:1 continue: The recipients of this letter had practiced brotherly love (see 6:10); but the author feared that the idea of returning to some form of Judaism might be hindering them from encouraging each other in the faith (10:24, 25).
- 13:2 Entertained angels is a reference to men in the OT who encountered heavenly beings. These men included Abraham (see Gen. 18), Lot (see Gen. 19), Gideon (see Judg. 6), and Manoah (see Judg. 13). The idea is that when you practice hospitality you may be helping a messenger of God without realizing it.
- 13:3 Remember the prisoners probably refers to believers who were being persecuted for the faith. The recipients of this letter had remembered those who were suffering (10:32–34). In the body is not a reference to the body of Christ, but to the physical body. The recipients of this letter were vulnerable to similar persecution as long as they were alive.
- 13:5, 6 Covetousness is addressed in the last of the Ten Commandments (see Ex. 19:17). This attitude destroys a person’s inheritance in the kingdom (see 1 Cor. 6:9, 10). I will never leave you nor forsake you: This quotation is one of the most emphatic statements in the NT. In Greek it contains two double negatives, similar to saying in English, “I will never, ever, ever forsake you.” Jesus uses the same technique to express the certainty of eternal life for believers (see John 10:28).
- 13:8 the same: The unchanging nature of the Son was mentioned at the beginning of this book (1:12). yesterday: Christ gave His grace to the former leaders who trusted Him (see v. 7). today, and forever: Christ’s grace is presently and permanently available to all who believe in Him.
- 13:9 Strange doctrines implies ideas foreign to the gospel message. Many of the ideas which the author of Hebrews was confronting were Jewish in origin—pertaining to ritual observances, sacrificial feasts, and various laws identifying what was clean and unclean.

13:10, 11 The word altar is used figuratively of the sacrifice of Christ. On the Day of Atonement, the high priest did not have the right to eat the sacrificed animal because it had atoned for the people's sins. Instead, it was burned outside the camp. The believer has a sacrifice, Jesus Christ. He atoned for the sins of humanity with His death on the Cross. But unlike the high priests of the OT, believers receive their sustenance from Christ in a symbolic way, by believing in Him (see John 6:41–58).

13:12, 13 To be outside the gate was considered a disgrace to Jews because it meant being separated from the community. The author exhorts his readers to take on Christ's reproach or disgrace (see Moses' example in 11:26). In essence, the author's command to go forth to Christ was a command to abandon Judaism. Anyone found with Christ—outside of the city gate—would be considered outside the Jewish community.

13:14 Believers do not have a permanent home on earth. They seek the eternal city which is in an eternal kingdom (11:10, 16; 12:22, 28).

13:15, 16 Although the OT sacrifices are now obsolete (8:13), believers are to offer spiritual sacrifices, which include their praise, their possessions, and even their lives (see Rom. 12:1, 2).

13:17 The current leaders would give an account of their service at the judgment seat of Christ (see Rom. 14:10–12).

13:18, 19 A good conscience is one that is not accusing. that I may be restored to you: Something hindered the author's coming, though it was probably not prison (see v. 23).

13:20 The title God of peace is used six times in the NT (see also Rom. 15:33; 1 Cor. 14:33; 2 Cor. 13:11; Phil. 4:9; 1 Thess. 5:23). Whenever the title was used, some sort of difficulty existed among the recipients of the letter. This is also the case here: The readers of Hebrews were wondering whether they should reject Christianity and return to Judaism in the face of increasing persecution. Jesus is the great Shepherd of the sheep, having laid down His life for them (see John 10:15) and now continuing to make intercession for them (7:25). The New Covenant is an everlasting covenant; it will never become obsolete like the Mosaic covenant (8:13).

(Gk. diathēkē) (9:15, 16, 17, 18, 20; 13:20; Matt. 26:28; Gal. 3:17) Strong's #1242

The word diathēkē can refer either to an agreement or a will (or testament). In 9:15–20, the author of Hebrews explains why the second covenant (8:7) has succeeded the first one made at Mt. Sinai. The explanation employs an analogy to a “will.” Thus the author uses the word diathēkē throughout the section, employing the two different meanings of the word and tying them together. Just as the stipulations of a will go into effect when a person dies, so Christ died to initiate the New Covenant, the covenant that frees us from bondage to the first covenant.

Go to the List of Word Studies

13:22 The word of exhortation refers to the whole Epistle to the Hebrews. It is an exhortation not to depart from the living God (3:12), but to go on to maturity (6:1) and endure in the faith to the end (3:6, 14). In few words is used as a comparison to what more could have been said (5:11; 9:5).

13:23 Timothy was a well-known associate of Paul. Two NT letters are addressed by name to him. Set free probably means released from prison.

13:24 Those from Italy may refer to people living in Italy, or else to people from there who were now living elsewhere. Because of its ambiguity, this phrase does not reveal the location of the author or of the recipients.

13:25 In light of what has been said about grace in the letter (see v. 9; 2:9; 4:16; 10:29; 12:15), this closing is particularly appropriate.

Introduction

From fixing a car to wallpapering a bedroom, “how-to” books explain how things are done, with helpful pointers and colorful illustrations. The Epistle of James is the “how-to” book of the Christian life. It is one of the most practical books in the New Testament because it offers instruction and exhortation to Christians who are experiencing problems, as all of us do.

As if the trials themselves were not bad enough, James points out the dangers that come with them. Besides the obvious pitfall of failing to place our trust in the Lord and thus not enduring, James speaks of prejudice, improper speech, judging one another, leaving God out of our plans, and even bitterness. Like the author of a “how-to” book, James explains in a few words the responsibilities of a Christian, while supplying apt illustrations from real-life categories such as shipping and horseback riding.

Author and Date The author of this epistle identifies himself with the phrase “James, a bondservant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ.” James is a common name in the New Testament. The accompanying phrase could have described any Christian, suggesting that this particular James must have been a church leader who needed no further introduction.

Four men named “James” are mentioned in the New Testament: (1) James, the son of Zebedee and brother of John (see Matt. 4:21), a disciple and apostle of Christ; (2) James, the son of Alphaeus (see Matt. 10:3), called “the Less” or “the Younger,” also one of the apostles; (3) James, the father of an apostle named Judas (see Luke 6:16); and (4) James, the half brother of Jesus, traditionally called “the Just” (see Matt. 13:55). He became the leader of the Jerusalem church (see Acts 15:3; Gal. 2:9) and seems to be the most probable author of this epistle. If he was the author, it is noteworthy that he did not mention his relation to Jesus in this letter. Instead his sole claim to authority was his spiritual servanthood to the Lord Jesus Christ (see 1:1).

Though not universally agreed upon, the evidence is strong that James is one of the oldest books in the New Testament. Since the letter contains no specific references to time or events that would indicate a particular date, one must consider the Jewish tone of the letter and the letter’s accurate reflection of the general situation found in the early apostolic church. Many scholars assign a date somewhere between A.D. 44 and 62. The first date is the time when James became the leader of the Jerusalem church, taking Peter’s place after he was released from prison in the year Herod Agrippa I died (see Acts 12:5–23). The second date is the date given by Josephus, the first-century Jewish historian, for the martyrdom of James. In the end, an early date of around A.D. 46 seems reasonable for this letter.

Recipients The salutation identifies the readers of James as “the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad.” Some believe this letter was directed to all Jews living outside of Palestine, including both Christian and non-Christian Jews. This seems unlikely, however, since James identifies himself as a follower of Christ and refers to his readers as a community of believers (see 1:18; 2:1, 7; 5:7). Others hold that the salutation is a figurative reference to all Christian churches, represented symbolically by ancient Israel. This too is improbable since the letter contains recognizable Jewish elements. There is also a third possibility, that the readers were Jewish Christians living outside of Palestine. Since this letter was a circular letter that was passed from church to church, no specific geographical destination is pinpointed.

Most of the recipients seem to have been poor and suffering from oppression imposed by their fellow Jews, among whom they were living. Evidently some of these Jewish Christians had been imprisoned and deprived of their possessions and livelihoods. Under such conditions, they fell into the clutches of worldliness, fought among themselves, favored the rich over the poor, and lost their original love for one another.

Theology The Epistle of James is more practical than doctrinal. Nevertheless, James contains theological statements. God is “the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation” (1:17), meaning that He is the Creator and is unchangeable. Jesus is “the Lord of glory” (2:1), a reference to Jesus’ deity. James asserts that Jesus is coming again (5:7, 8), and when He does, He will judge all of humanity (5:9).

But the major theological issue in James is faith and works (2:14–26). Many contend that James is talking about true faith versus false faith. But it seems apparent that James is not questioning whether the recipients were genuine believers; he repeatedly calls them “brethren,” “my brethren,” or “my beloved brethren” (2:1, 14). These are clearly people who were exercising saving faith. Thus what James is discussing is faith that is alone, meaning without works. He calls faith without works “dead,” indicating that it was faith that was once alive (2:17, 26). For James, works is a natural result of faith. When a person truly believes in something, he or she will act on that belief. With this letter, James was sounding a wake-up call to all Christians: “Get your life in line with what you believe!”

Christ in the Scriptures

Compared to New Testament writers, James says little about Jesus. He begins his book referring to the Lord Jesus Christ (1:1; 2:1) and anticipates “the coming of the Lord” (5:7), but that’s about it in terms of direct references. Still, James’ message is virtually saturated in Jesus’ teachings. The Sermon on the Mount in particular figures prominently into James’ thinking with multiple indirect references to that most famous of Jesus’ sermons (1:2 is based on Matt. 5:10–12; 1:4 is connected to Matt. 5:48; 2:13 relates to Matt. 6:14, 15; 4:11 relates to Matt. 7:1, 2; 5:2 is understood in light of Matt. 6:13).

Through his teaching, James presents Jesus as One who insists that the righteousness of His followers exceeds that of the Pharisees (Matt. 5:20).

James 1

Greeting to the Twelve Tribes

¹James, ^aa bondservant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ,
To the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad:
Greetings.

Profiting from Trials

²My brethren, ^bcount it all joy ^cwhen you fall into various trials,

^{3d}knowing that the testing of your faith produces ¹patience.

⁴But let patience have its perfect work, that you may be ²perfect and complete, lacking nothing.

^{5e}If any of you lacks wisdom, ^flet him ask of God, who gives to all liberally and without reproach, and ^git will be given to him.

^{6h}But let him ask in faith, with no doubting, for he who doubts is like a wave of the sea driven and tossed by the wind.

⁷For let not that man suppose that he will receive anything from the Lord;

⁸*he is* ⁱa double-minded man, unstable in all his ways.

The Perspective of Rich and Poor

⁹Let the lowly brother glory in his exaltation, Charts and Diagrams: Rich or Poor?

¹⁰but the rich in his humiliation, because ^jas a flower of the field he will pass away.

¹¹For no sooner has the sun risen with a burning heat than it withers the grass; its flower falls, and its beautiful appearance perishes. So the rich man also will fade away in his pursuits.

Loving God Under Trials

¹²_kBlessed is the man who endures temptation; for when he has been approved, he will receive ^lthe crown of life ^mwhich the Lord has promised to those who love Him.

¹³Let no one say when he is tempted, “I am tempted by God”; for God cannot be tempted by evil, nor does He Himself tempt anyone.

¹⁴But each one is tempted when he is drawn away by his own desires and enticed.

¹⁵Then, ⁿwhen desire has conceived, it gives birth to sin; and sin, when it is full-grown, ^obrings forth death.

¹⁶Do not be deceived, my beloved brethren.

¹⁷_pEvery good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and comes down from the Father of lights, ^qwith whom there is no variation or shadow of turning. Word Studies: good gift

¹⁸_rOf His own will He brought us forth by the ^sword of truth, ^tthat we might be a kind of firstfruits of His creatures.

Qualities Needed in Trials

¹⁹³So then, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, ^uslow to speak, ^vslow to wrath;

²⁰for the wrath of man does not produce the righteousness of God.

Doers—Not Hearers Only

²¹Therefore ^wlay aside all filthiness and ⁴overflow of wickedness, and receive with meekness the implanted word, ^xwhich is able to save your souls.

²²But ^ybe doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves.

²³For ^zif anyone is a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like a man observing his natural face in a mirror;

²⁴for he observes himself, goes away, and immediately forgets what kind of man he was.

²⁵But ^ahe who looks into the perfect law of liberty and continues in it, and is not a forgetful hearer but a doer of the work, ^bthis one will be blessed in what he does.

²⁶If anyone ⁵among you thinks he is religious, and ^cdoes not bridle his tongue but deceives his own heart, this one's religion is useless.

²⁷^dPure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this: ^eto visit orphans and widows in their trouble, ^f*and* to keep oneself unspotted from the world.

James 2

Beware of Personal Favoritism

¹My brethren, do not hold the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, ^a*the Lord* of glory, with ^bpartiality.

²For if there should come into your assembly a man with gold rings, in ¹fine apparel, and there should also come in a poor man in ²filthy clothes,

³and you ³pay attention to the one wearing the fine clothes and say to him, “You sit here in a good place,” and say to the poor man, “You stand there,” or, “Sit here at my footstool,” ⁴have you not ⁴shown partiality among yourselves, and become judges with evil thoughts?

⁵Listen, my beloved brethren: ^cHas God not chosen the poor of this world to be ^drich in faith and heirs of the kingdom ^ewhich He promised to those who love Him?

⁶But ^fyou have dishonored the poor man. Do not the rich oppress you ^gand drag you into the courts?

⁷Do they not blaspheme that noble name by which you are ^hcalled?

⁸If you really fulfill the royal law according to the Scripture, ⁱ“You shall love your neighbor as yourself,” you do well;

⁹but if you ⁵show partiality, you commit sin, and are convicted by the law as ^jtransgressors.

¹⁰For whoever shall keep the whole law, and yet ^kstumble in one point, ^lhe is guilty of all.

¹¹For He who said, ^m“Do not commit adultery,” also said, ⁿ“Do not murder.” Now if you do not commit adultery, but you do murder, you have become a transgressor of the law.

¹²So speak and so do as those who will be judged by ^othe law of liberty.

¹³For ^pjudgment is without mercy to the one who has shown ^qno ^rmercy.
^sMercy triumphs over judgment.

Faith Without Works Is Dead

(cf. Gen. 22; Josh. 2)

¹⁴What does it profit, my brethren, if someone says he has faith but does not have works? Can faith save him?

¹⁵If a brother or sister is naked and destitute of daily food,

¹⁶and ^vone of you says to them, “Depart in peace, be warmed and filled,” but you do not give them the things which are needed for the body, what does it profit?

¹⁷Thus also faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead. Article: Faith and Works

¹⁸But someone will say, “You have faith, and I have works.” ^wShow me your faith without ⁶your works, ^xand I will show you my faith by ⁷my works.

¹⁹You believe that there is one God. You do well. Even the demons believe—and tremble!

²⁰But do you want to know, O foolish man, that faith without works is ⁸dead?

²¹Was not Abraham our father justified by works ^ywhen he offered Isaac his son on the altar?

²²Do you see ^zthat faith was working together with his works, and by ^aworks faith was made ⁹perfect?

²³And the Scripture was fulfilled which says, ^b“Abraham believed God, and it was ¹⁰accounted to him for righteousness.” And he was called ^cthe friend of God.

²⁴You see then that a man is justified by works, and not by faith only.

²⁵Likewise, ^dwas not Rahab the harlot also justified by works when she received the messengers and sent them out another way?

²⁶For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also.

James 3

The Untamable Tongue

¹My brethren, ^alet not many of you become teachers, ^bknowing that we shall receive a stricter judgment.

²For ^cwe all stumble in many things. ^dIf anyone does not stumble in word, ^ehe is a ¹perfect man, able also to bridle the whole body.

³Indeed, ^fwe put bits in horses' mouths that they may obey us, and we turn their whole body.

⁴Look also at ships: although they are so large and are driven by fierce winds, they are turned by a very small rudder wherever the pilot desires.

⁵Even so ^gthe tongue is a little member and ^hboasts great things. See how great a forest a little fire kindles!

⁶And ⁱthe tongue is a fire, a world of ³iniquity. The tongue is so set among our members that it ^jdefiles the whole body, and sets on fire the course of ⁴nature; and it is set on fire by ⁵hell.

⁷For every kind of beast and bird, of reptile and creature of the sea, is tamed and has been tamed by mankind.

⁸But no man can tame the tongue. It is an unruly evil, ^kfull of deadly poison.

⁹With it we bless our God and Father, and with it we curse men, who have been made ¹in the ⁶similitude of God. Word Studies: similitude of God

¹⁰Out of the same mouth proceed blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not to be so.

¹¹Does a spring send forth fresh water and bitter from the same opening?

¹²Can a ^mfig tree, my brethren, bear olives, or a grapevine bear figs? ⁷Thus no spring yields both salt water and fresh.

Heavenly Versus Demonic Wisdom

¹³ⁿWho is wise and understanding among you? Let him show by good conduct that his works are done in the meekness of wisdom.

¹⁴But if you have ^obitter envy and ⁸self-seeking in your hearts, ^pdo not boast and lie against the truth.

^{15q}This wisdom does not descend from above, but is earthly, sensual, demonic.

¹⁶For ^rwhere envy and self-seeking exist, confusion and every evil thing are there.

¹⁷But ^sthe wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, willing to yield, full of mercy and good fruits, ^twithout partiality ^uand without hypocrisy.

^{18v}Now the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace by those who make peace.

James 4

Pride Promotes Strife

¹Where do ¹wars and fights come from among you? Do they not come from your desires for pleasure ^athat war in your members?

²You lust and do not have. You murder and covet and cannot obtain. You fight and ²war. ³Yet you do not have because you do not ask.

^{3b}You ask and do not receive, ^cbecause you ask amiss, that you may spend it on your pleasures.

^{4a}Adulterers and adulteresses! Do you not know that ^dfriendship with the world is enmity with God? ^eWhoever therefore wants to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God.

⁵Or do you think that the Scripture says in vain, ^f“The Spirit who dwells in us yearns jealously”?

⁶But He gives more grace. Therefore He says:

^g“*God resists the proud,
But gives grace to the humble.*”

Humility Cures Worldliness

⁷Therefore submit to God. ^hResist the devil and he will flee from you.

⁸ⁱDraw near to God and He will draw near to you. ^jCleanse your hands, you sinners; and ^kpurify your hearts, you double-minded.

^{9l}Lament and mourn and weep! Let your laughter be turned to mourning and your joy to gloom.

^{10m}Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and He will lift you up.

Do Not Judge a Brother

¹¹ⁿDo not speak evil of one another, brethren. He who speaks evil of a brother ^oand judges his brother, speaks evil of the law and judges the law. But if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge.

¹²There is one ⁵Lawgiver, ^pwho is able to save and to destroy. ^qWho⁶ are you to judge ⁷another?

Do Not Boast About Tomorrow

¹³Come now, you who say, “Today or tomorrow ⁸we will go to such and such a city, spend a year there, buy and sell, and make a profit”;

¹⁴whereas you do not know what will happen tomorrow. For what is your life? ^rIt is even a vapor that appears for a little time and then vanishes away.

¹⁵Instead you ought to say, ^s“If the Lord wills, we shall live and do this or that.”

¹⁶But now you boast in your arrogance. ^tAll such boasting is evil.

¹⁷Therefore, ^uto him who knows to do good and does not do it, to him it is sin.

James 5

Rich Oppressors Will Be Judged

¹Come now, you ^arich, weep and howl for your miseries that are coming upon you!

²Your ^briches ¹are corrupted, and ^cyour garments are moth-eaten.

³Your gold and silver are corroded, and their corrosion will be a witness against you and will eat your flesh like fire. ^dYou have heaped up treasure in the last days.

⁴Indeed ^ethe wages of the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out; and ^fthe cries of the reapers have reached the ears of the Lord of ²Sabaoth. Word Studies: Lord of Sabaoth

⁵You have lived on the earth in pleasure and ³luxury; you have ⁴fattened your hearts ⁵as in a day of slaughter.

⁶You have condemned, you have murdered the just; he does not resist you.

Be Patient and Persevering

⁷Therefore be patient, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. See how the farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth, waiting patiently for it until it receives the early and latter rain.

⁸You also be patient. Establish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord ⁶is at hand.

⁹Do not ⁷grumble against one another, brethren, lest you be ⁸condemned. Behold, the Judge is standing at the door!

¹⁰^gMy brethren, take the prophets, who spoke in the name of the Lord, as an example of suffering and ^hpatience.

¹¹Indeed ⁱwe count them blessed who ^jendure. You have heard of ^kthe perseverance of Job and seen ^lthe end intended by the Lord—that ^mthe Lord is very compassionate and merciful.

¹²But above all, my brethren, ⁿdo not swear, either by heaven or by earth or with any other oath. But let your “Yes” be “Yes,” and your “No,” “No,” lest you fall into ⁹judgment.

Meeting Specific Needs

(cf. 1 Kin. 18:41–46)

¹³Is anyone among you suffering? Let him ^opray. Is anyone cheerful? ^pLet him sing psalms.

¹⁴Is anyone among you sick? Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, ^qanointing him with oil in the name of the Lord. Word Studies: anointing

¹⁵And the prayer of faith will save the sick, and the Lord will raise him up. ^rAnd if he has committed sins, he will be forgiven.

¹⁶¹⁰Confess your trespasses to one another, and pray for one another, that you may be healed. ^sThe effective, ¹¹fervent prayer of a righteous man avails much.

¹⁷Elijah was a man ^twith a nature like ours, and ^uhe prayed earnestly that it would not rain; and it did not rain on the land for three years and six months.

¹⁸And he prayed ^vagain, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth produced its fruit.

Bring Back the Erring One

¹⁹Brethren, if anyone among you wanders from the truth, and someone ^wturns him back, ²⁰let him know that he who turns a sinner from the error of his way ^xwill save ¹²a soul from death and ^ycover a multitude of sins.

Annotations for James

- 1:1 Early church tradition identifies the author James as the half brother of Christ (see the Introduction; 1 Cor. 15:7). To the twelve tribes: This salutation probably means the letter is for Jewish Christians living outside of Palestine. The letter was not intended for one specific church but was to be passed around among various local assemblies.
- 1:2 Trials are of outward circumstances—conflicts, sufferings, and troubles—encountered by all believers. Trials are not pleasant and may be extremely grievous, but believers are to consider them as opportunities for rejoicing. Troubles and difficulties are a tool which refines and purifies our faith, producing patience and endurance.
- 1:3 The word translated testing of your faith occurs only here and in 1 Pet. 1:7. The term, which means “tested” or “approved,” was used for coins that were genuine and not debased. The aim of testing is not to destroy or afflict, but to purge and refine. It is essential to Christian maturity, for even Abraham’s faith had to be tested (see Gen. 22:1–8). The meaning of patience transcends the idea of bearing affliction; it includes the idea of standing fast under pressure, with a staying power that turns adversities into opportunities.
- 1:4 If a believer endures a trial, he or she will be perfect, meaning “having reached the end,” and complete, meaning “whole.”
- 1:5 The wisdom God gives is not necessarily information on how to get out of trouble but rather insight on how to learn from one’s difficulties (see also Prov. 29:15). It is not more information about how to avoid times of testing but instead a new perspective on trials. The wisdom of God begins with a genuine reverence for the Almighty (see “the fear of the LORD” in Ps. 111:10; Prov. 9:10) and a steadfast confidence that God controls all circumstances, guiding them to His good purposes (Rom. 8:28).
- 1:6 Doubting means “to be divided in one’s mind” or “to debate.” The term does not describe a momentary doubt but a divided allegiance, an uncertainty.
- 1:8 Double-minded is literally “two souls.” If one part of a person is set on God and the other is set on this world (see Matt. 6:24), there will be constant conflict within.
- 1:9–11 James offers two examples of trials (vv. 2–8): one is of a lowly brother and the other is about a rich man. Probably lowly means “poor,” in contrast to the other man who is rich. The poor believer is to glory (see “count it all joy” in v. 2) in the fact that God has exalted him by allowing him to experience difficult circumstances, for these will only perfect his character and faith (v. 4). The rich believer can also glory when a trial brings him low because it teaches him that life is short, and that his pursuits, that is, his business, will fade away. The rich man should always trust the Lord, not himself or his money.

Rich or Poor?

In ancient Israel, there were grasses that sprouted out of the ground in the morning and by the afternoon would wither away under the intense heat of the summer sun. James compares the instability of wealth to this type of grass; it is here today and gone tomorrow. The following chart delineates what Scripture says about riches.

The World's View of Riches

- Money brings freedom.
- Money brings security.
- Money is what matters.
- Money is power.
- Money establishes not only your net worth, but your worth as a person.
- Money makes you successful.
- Money gives you options.
- Money brings happiness.
- Money is your reward. Save it, and spend it on yourself.
- Money is your possession. Spend it on whatever you want.

The Word's View of Riches

- The desire for money can be enslaving and lead to destruction; only Christ brings true freedom (1 Tim. 6:7–10).
- Worldly wealth is very insecure; it will quickly pass away (1:10). Real security is found in knowing and trusting God (Jer. 9:23, 24; 1 Tim. 6:17–19).
- Christ and the kingdom of God are what matters (Matt. 6:33; Phil. 3:7–10).
- Power comes from being filled with the Spirit (Acts 1:8; 3:1–10).
- Your worth is based on what God says, not what your bank statement says (John 3:16; Eph. 1:3–14).
- Success comes from knowing and doing what God says (Josh. 1:8).
- God is the One who ultimately gives you options (Eph. 3:20).
- The happiness that money brings is short-lived. And in the long run, money can actually produce “many sorrows” (1 Tim. 6:10). Lasting joy comes from knowing God (5:1–6; John 15:11; 16:24).
- Give as much as you can (Matt. 6:19–24; Acts 20:35; 2 Cor. 9:6–11; 1 Tim. 6:18).
- All that you have is God's to do with as He pleases. You are merely a manager of His possessions (Ps. 24:1; Luke 19:11–27; 2 Cor. 5:10).

1:12 The believer who endures trials demonstrates that he or she loves Jesus and therefore will receive the crown of life (see Rev. 2:10) at the judgment seat of Christ. The Bible describes the believer's reward (see 2 Cor. 5:10; Rev. 22:12) under various vivid images such as precious metals (see 1 Cor. 3:8–14), garments (Rev. 3:5, 18; 19:7, 8), and crowns (see 1 Cor. 9:25; Rev. 2:10; 3:11).

1:13 The focus of the chapter turns from trials (vv. 2–12) to temptation (vv. 13–18). nor does He . . . tempt anyone: Enticement to sin does not come from God. God will never deliberately lead a person to commit sin because that would not only go against His nature, but it would be opposed to His purpose of molding His creation into His holy image. Yet God does sometimes place His people in adverse circumstances for the purpose of building godly character (see Gen. 22:1, 12).

1:14, 15 Drawn away and enticed express the intensity with which desire lures an individual until he or she is tragically entrapped. Sin does not force itself on the unwilling, but is chosen because of its attractions. Conceived suggests the image of a person's will bending toward and finally seizing evil. This same idea is vividly illustrated by the tragic path of an addict: A habit once acquired completely controls that person eventually. Full-grown suggests bringing a goal to completion. The idea here is that sin has reached its maturity and has possessed the very character of the individual. Death here refers to physical death (see Prov. 10:27; 11:19; Rom. 8:13).

good gift

perfect gift (Gk. dōrēma teleion) (1:17) Strong's #1434; 5046

In the Greek text there are two separate words to describe God's giving. The first word (dosis) means "the act of giving" and is accompanied by the adjective for good, while the second (dōrēma) denotes the actual gifts received and is preceded by the adjective for perfect. The first expression emphasizes the goodness of receiving something from God, while the second, the perfect quality of whatever God gives. God's giving is continuously good; and His gifts are always perfect.

- 1:19 The conclusion of the introduction of James (vv. 2–18) is that enduring trials leads to a crown of life (v. 12) and yielding to temptation can lead to physical death (v. 15). Since that is the case, the believer in the midst of a trial needs to be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath. These three exhortations reveal the outline of this letter (see 1:21–2:26 for “swift to hear”; 3:1–18 for “slow to speak”; 4:1–5:18 for “slow to wrath”).
- 1:20 If a believer gets angry in difficult circumstances, the practical righteousness of God will not be evident in his or her life. When someone wrongs us, the natural reaction is to retaliate, at least verbally (see v. 19). But this response does not glorify God. Holding one's tongue, trying to understand the other person's position, and leaving vindication to God demonstrates godly love in tense situations (Rom. 12:17–21).
- 1:21 The word of God that has been implanted in the believer's heart should be received with meekness—describing a teachable spirit—without resistance, disputing, or questioning. Receiving God's Word in this way will save the believer's soul, a word meaning “life.” Sin leads to death (v. 15). Obedience prevents death; it protects a believer from sinful behavior that can lead directly or indirectly to physical death (see v. 15; 1 Cor. 11:30).
- 1:22 be doers of the word, and not hearers only: Believers who hear the Word of God (v. 19) must receive it with a teachable spirit (v. 21), applying it to their daily lives. To hear and not obey is to be deceived.
- 1:25 The perfect law of liberty is the law of love. Loving God and loving one's neighbor sums up the Law (see Matt. 26:36–40). But it is Christ's love (Eph. 3:17–19) which frees us from our sins to truly love others (John 8:36–38; Gal. 5:13).
- 1:27 To visit comes from the Greek word usually translated bishop, a person who oversees God's people (1 Tim. 3:1). Orphans and widows were among the most unprotected and needy classes in ancient societies (see Ezek. 22:7). Pure religion does not merely give material goods for the relief of the distressed, it also oversees their care (see Acts 6:1–7; 1 Tim. 5:3–16).
- 2:1 The faith of our Lord Jesus Christ includes the fact that God loves the world and that Christ died for it. If God and Christ show grace and mercy without favoritism, so should believers (vv. 8, 13).
- 2:5 God has chosen to use poor people who are rich in faith to advance His kingdom. Those who love Him and obey Him (see John 14:15; 15:9–17) and endure the testing of their faith (1:12) will inherit the kingdom. This inheritance means more than entering the kingdom; it also involves ruling with Christ (see 1 Cor. 6:9; Gal. 5:21; 2 Tim. 2:12).

- 2:8, 9 The royal law is the law of love (see 1:25; Lev. 19:18; Matt. 22:39), a law superior to all other laws. if you show partiality, you commit sin: James alludes to Lev. 19:15, which prohibits favoritism to either the poor or the rich.
- 2:10 he is guilty of all: God does not allow selective obedience. We cannot choose to obey the parts of the Law that are to our own liking and disregard the rest. Some of the Pharisees were guilty of this. They carefully observed some of the requirements of the Law, such as keeping the Sabbath, and ignored others, such as honoring their parents (see Jesus' comments in Matt. 15:1–7). Sin is violation of the perfect righteousness of God, who is the Lawgiver. James is saying that the whole divine law has to be accepted as an expression of God's will for His people. The violation of even one commandment separates an individual from God and His purposes.
- 2:12, 13 Believers will be judged by the law of liberty, which is the law of love (see 1:25). Believers who do not practice partiality, but who practice love (vv. 5, 8) and mercy, will triumph at the judgment seat. Those who have not shown mercy will not receive mercy.
- 2:14 my brethren: James addresses this section to people who have exercised genuine faith. The issue in this section (2:14–26) is faith without works (v. 17) versus faith accompanied by works (v. 18). Genuine faith will naturally produce good works; the two complement each other. When someone truly believes in a cause, that belief will change the way that person lives. Works are actions which follow the “royal law” of love (see vv. 8, 15, 16). James is implying in this verse that faith in Christ will demonstrate itself in love for others (see Jesus' command to His disciples in John 13:34, 35).
- 2:17 Some interpreters conclude that James is speaking about genuine faith which has become dead. Others maintain that this verse is referring to a faith that was never alive.

Faith and Works

The great reformer Martin Luther, champion of the doctrine of salvation through faith alone, never felt good about the epistle of James. He called it an “epistle full of straw” in the preface to his 1522 edition of the New Testament, and he put the book in the appendix. He preferred Paul's wording of the faith-works equation: “A man is justified by faith apart from the deeds of the law” (Rom. 3:28).

In a sense, Luther had little choice. He was surrounded by men who said that good works could save you. He knew that God alone could save through faith alone, and his mission was to tell them.

But Luther went too far when he put James in the appendix to the New Testament. Neither faith nor works can be cut off and thrown away. James was taking aim at freeloaders, those who claimed to have no need for good deeds since they had faith. The reality is that if you have faith, works will naturally be a product. You cannot get rid of works just because they do not save you. You cannot sever the effect from the cause. Just as an apple tree will bear apples, so faith will produce good works (see Luke 6:43, 44).

Paul had the opposite problem in view when he wrote Romans. His letter targeted those who placed their faith in the Law of Moses. Their trust was in their own good works, and not in God. That is why Paul wrote a defense of faith, and that is why Luther preferred it to James's defense of works.

Faith and works are not enemies. True faith and righteous works go hand in hand. They are two parts of God's work in us. Faith brings a person to salvation, and works bring that person to faithfulness. Faith is the cause, works are the effect. James believed it, and so did Paul.

2:19 Even the demons know that there is one God (see Deut. 6:4), but they do not love Him (see Deut. 6:5). Their kind of belief does not lead to love, submission, and obedience; instead it leads to hatred, rebellion, and disobedience.

2:20 James calls the person who separates faith and works (see v. 18) foolish, meaning “empty-headed.”

2:21 James clearly teaches justification by faith, for he quotes Gen. 15:6 in v. 23, which obviously connects the crediting of righteousness, that is, salvation, to Abraham’s belief (see Paul’s explanation of Gen. 15:6 in Rom. 4:1–12). The justification by works of which James is speaking is a different type of justification. This type of justification is before other people. In other words, James is using the word justified to mean “proved.” We prove to others our genuine faith in Christ through our works. But the justification that comes through faith is before God, and we do not “prove” ourselves to Him; instead, God declares us righteous through our association with Christ, the One who died for our sins (Rom. 3:28).

2:22 Faith and works should be together; there is a close relationship between the two. Faith produces works; and works makes faith perfect, meaning “mature” or “complete.”

2:23 By offering Isaac (see Gen. 22:1–12), Abraham endured the test and demonstrated his complete trust in God. His obedience made him a friend of God (see John 15:14).

3:1 we shall receive a stricter judgment: James does not give the warning of judgment to others without applying it to himself. Teachers will stand before the judgment seat of Christ and be judged more strictly than others. Their greater influence translates into greater responsibility. Judgment here most likely does not refer to eternal separation from God; rather it suggests a thorough judgment of teachers before Christ (Matt. 5:19; Rom. 14:10–12). Leadership imposes responsibility.

3:2 Perfect here means “mature.”

3:6 An uncontrolled tongue can defile the whole body, or the whole person. Course of nature may also be translated “wheel of life,” meaning the whole course of life.

3:7, 8 no man can tame the tongue: The instincts of animals can be subdued through conditioning and punishment, but the sinful nature that inspires evil words is beyond our control. Only the work of the Holy Spirit within us can bring this destructive force under control.

3:9 Bless our God may refer to the Jewish practice of saying “blessed be He” whenever God’s name was mentioned. James is pointing out the inconsistency of blessing God while cursing people who are created in His image. similitude of God: God created human beings, both man and woman, in His own image (see Gen. 1:26). Today, people still reflect God's image, though badly marred by sin (see Gen. 9:6).

Word Studies

similitude of God

(Gk. homoiosis theou) (3:9) Strong's #3669; 2316

The Greek expression means “God’s likeness.” Although human beings have lost much of Godlikeness, there is still enough in our make-up to hint at what we once were like and what we can become again through the work of Christ. It is interesting how the ancient Alexandrian Christians understood Gen. 1:26, where man and woman are created in the “image” and “likeness” of God. The “image” was that Godlike part of us that we never lost in the Fall, while the “likeness” was that Godlike part of humanness that we have yet to acquire. By “image” they meant a person’s physical and intellectual nature; by “likeness” they meant a person’s moral being.

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 3:10–12 Pouring salt water into fresh produces salt water; and mixing bad fruit with good fruit produces a bushel of rotten fruit. Likewise, mixing the contradictory speech of blessing and cursing will only produce negative results.
- 3:13 The solution for the problem of controlling our tongues is to seek divine wisdom (see 1:5). The person who possesses godly wisdom (v. 17) will meekly show it with works, not just words. That is, believers should be slow to speak (1:19).
- 3:16 Evil produces confusion. On the other hand, God brings harmony and wisdom (see 1 Cor. 14:33). Anyone who is involved in envy and strife is confused. This confusion corrupts human relationships. It is likely that the Jewish Christians to whom James was writing were going through turmoil because of sinful acts like the ones mentioned here. James wanted his readers to set aside their petty attitudes and seek reconciliation.
- 3:17 The main characteristic of godly wisdom is that it is pure, meaning “free from defilement.” Bitterness, envy, and selfish behavior thoroughly corrupt a person (vv. 14, 16). Godly wisdom is also peaceable, describing a spirit of tranquility and calmness. It does not suggest compromising truth just for the sake of peace, which would promote falsehood. In addition, godly wisdom is undivided, without favoritism, unwavering, and consistent. without hypocrisy: True wisdom is sincere and unpretentious.
- 4:1 The conflict within us is between our sinful desires for pleasure and the desire for God’s will, an attitude the Holy Spirit has placed within us (v. 5).
- 4:2 The source of conflict among believers is often material things. James attributes fighting, murder, and war to materialism. John also warns believers of lusting after “the things in the world” (see 1 John 2:15, 16).
- 4:3 because you ask amiss: Some might have protested James’ admonition (vv. 1, 2) by claiming that they had not received an answer to their prayers (see Matt. 7:7). James responds by suggesting that they were praying for the wrong things. Instead of praying for their sinful desires, they should have been praying for God’s good will for them. Often the reason God does not supply what a person desires is simply that He knows it would not benefit that person (see Phil. 4:19). God is not obliged to answer our prayers in the affirmative. He will not act in ways that are contrary to His will, even if He is besieged by fervent prayers. Anytime we seek to further our personal pleasures through prayer, we are asking amiss (see Matt. 6:33).

4:4 This verse does not speak of God's attitude toward the believer but of the believer's attitude toward God. The difference between the world and God is so vast that as we move toward the world we alienate ourselves from God. In the world, sin is considered acceptable and pleasurable. Ultimately the world has lost its awareness of sin, and thus sin has become habitual.

4:5 Scripture says: James probably does not have any specific OT reference in mind; instead he is speaking of a general concept in Scripture. The jealous yearning in this verse most likely refers to God's jealousy for His people, a concept prevalent in the OT (Ex. 20:5; 34:14; Ps. 78:58; 79:5) and an idea that fits the context. The friendship with the world mentioned in v. 4 would naturally provoke God's jealousy. However, the expression Spirit who dwells in us could also indicate our individual human spirit. Then the jealous yearning would be the covetous desire of people, recalling the theme of v. 2 (see Gen. 8:21 for a possible OT reference).

4:6 God resists the proud: James quotes from Prov. 3:34 to prove his point. Those who submit to divine wisdom will receive the necessary grace from God to put into practice the kind of life James describes (see 3:13–18). On the other hand, those who elevate themselves will face a formidable foe (v. 4). God Himself will fight against their plans because they are not on His side.

4:7 submit to God: We must follow in order the two commands in this verse. First we must submit to God by abandoning our selfish pride (see vv. 1–6). Submitting to the Lord also involves putting on the whole armor of God, an image that includes everything from placing our faith in Him to immersing ourselves in the truth of God's Word (see Eph. 6:11–18). Second, we must resist any temptation that the devil throws our way. Then the Evil One will have no choice but to flee, for we will belong to the army of the living God.

4:9 Lament and mourn and weep: When a believer who has fallen into sin responds to God's call for repentance, he or she should place laughter and joy aside to reflect on the sin with genuine sorrow (2 Cor. 7:9, 10). In this verse, laughter seems to refer to the loud revelry of pleasure-loving people. They immerse themselves in a celebration of their sins in an effort to forget God's judgment. A Christian should never laugh at sin. However, Christian sorrow leads to repentance; repentance leads to forgiveness; and forgiveness leads to true joy over one's reconciliation with God (see Ps. 32:1; 126:2; Prov. 15:13).

4:11, 12 There is one Lawgiver: The NT teaches us not to judge (see Matt. 7:1), for God is the ultimate Judge and the One who will take vengeance on those who practice evil (Rom. 12:9; Heb. 10:30). Yet the Scriptures also exhort the church to exercise judgment over its members (see 1 Cor. 6:2–5). This type of judgment is corporate discipline exercised in accordance with biblical truths and the pattern in Matt. 18:15–20.

4:13 we will go . . . make a profit: The problem here is not the plan or the concept of planning; it is leaving God out of the plan (v. 15).

4:17 It is sin to doubt whether an action is right and yet go ahead and do it; it is also a sin to know what is right and yet not do it (see Rom. 14:23). This is a stern warning against sins of omission (see Luke 16:19–31 for an example of neglecting to do what is right).

5:1–6 In the spirit of the OT prophets, James pronounces judgment on employers who treat their employees unjustly (Is. 3:14, 15; 10:2). God will judge those who oppress the poor (see Ezek. 18:12, 13).

5:2, 3 In the ancient world food, costly garments, and precious metals were conspicuous signs of wealth. James pronounces judgment and destruction on all three.

Lord of Sabaoth

(Gk. kurios Sabaōth) (5:4; Rom. 9:29) Strong's #2962; 4519

The name means “the Lord of hosts,” “the Lord of armies,” or “the Master of creation.” It was suitable for James to use this familiar OT title (Ps. 24:10) in a letter to Jewish Christians, for they would have understood that the choice of this particular name of God was especially appropriate in this context. The rich oppress the poor because they think no one will stand up for them. But the Lord of all the hosts of heaven and earth is their Defender, and He is coming back to make all things right (5:7).

Go to the List of Word Studies

5:7 be patient: James urges believers to maintain an attitude of patience while suffering injustices.

Though every effort should be made to improve conditions and achieve justice, believers must keep a spirit of patient endurance, even in the midst of cruel treatment. The early church lived in the expectation of the imminent coming of the Lord. Their hope was that at that time justice would be handed both to the oppressor and the oppressed. At Christ's coming, wrongs will be righted and believers will be rewarded for their faithfulness to Christ (see Prov. 14:14; Matt. 5:12).

5:8, 9 Expressions like at hand and the Judge is standing at the door indicate that the Lord could return at any moment.

5:12, 13 James is not forbidding a believer from taking an oath in court or invoking God as witness to some significant statement (see 1 Thess. 2:5). Instead he is prohibiting the ancient practice of appealing to a variety of different objects to confirm the veracity of one's statement. This practice was extremely close to idolatry, for it implied that such objects contained spirits. The warning in these verses can serve as a reminder to us to watch what we say. We should not use God's name in a reckless manner; and we should be careful to speak the truth.

5:14 Literally the Greek term translated elders meant those advanced in years (see 1 Tim. 5:1). However, the word also referred to those holding positions of authority in the community or in a local congregation. As church officers, elders were responsible for pastoral supervision and spiritual leadership. The term is used interchangeably with bishop in the NT (see 1 Tim. 3:1; 5:17; Titus 1:5–9). Anointing him with oil may refer to medicinal treatment (see Luke 10:34). Yet in this passage it most likely refers to the healing power of the Holy Spirit, for v. 15 speaks of prayer saving the person. In either case, there is no indication that calling the elders excludes the use of a physician or medicine.

Word Studies

anointing

(Gk. aleiphō) (5:14; Matt. 6:17; Mark 6:13; Luke 7:38; John 11:2; 12:3)

Strong's #218

The Greek word aleiphō was commonly used in Greek literature to describe a medicinal anointing. Another Greek word, chriō, was used to describe a sacramental anointing. The distinction is still observed in modern Greek, with aleiphō meaning “to daub” or “to smear,” and chriō meaning “to anoint.” Furthermore, oil was one of the most common medicines of biblical times. Thus James was prescribing both prayer and medicine in this verse.

Go to the List of Word Studies

5:15 the prayer of faith: Whether a believer is healed through medicine or through miraculous means, all healing is ultimately from the Lord. That is why prayers should be consistently offered for the sick (see 4:3 for an improper attitude towards prayer). if he has committed sins: The NT teaches that sickness may be the consequence of sin (see Matt. 9:2), but not invariably (John 9:1–3). Yet when sin is involved, confession is a prerequisite to healing (see v. 16).

5:16, 17 Confess: This confession is not necessarily between the sick person and the elders, though this is not ruled out altogether. Instead, this exhortation is intended for the sick person and any person with whom the sick one needs to be reconciled. Effective, fervent prayer . . . much: This can mean either that (1) prayer is effective when it is used or (2) fervent prayer accomplishes great results. The illustration of Elijah may favor the latter meaning, for he prayed earnestly.

5:20 The covering of sins is an OT image for forgiveness (Ps. 32:1).

Introduction

Returning good for evil sounds noble, and Christians agree that it is the right thing to do; however, in the midst of trials and persecutions, showing kindness to our persecutors can be extremely difficult. The Christians of Asia Minor who received this letter from Peter had discovered this. They had found that a life lived for God is often a life of many difficulties. Some of their troubles came from their neighbors, while some came from government authorities. Peter wrote to these Christians to encourage them, to explain to them why suffering occurs, and to remind them of their eternal reward at the end of this earthly life.

Author Early church tradition affirms that the apostle Peter was the author of the letter known as 1 Peter. Those in the modern era who challenge his authorship argue that the vocabulary and literary style of the letter is more advanced than the vocabulary of an “uneducated and untrained” fisherman (see Acts 4:13). Many of these critics also assert that the theology of the letter is too much like Paul’s. It reflects Paul’s thought rather than the experiences of the earthly life of Jesus Christ, as one might expect from Peter, one of Jesus’ closest friends. Finally, these critics claim that the persecutions described in this letter could not have taken place during Peter’s lifetime. But none of these arguments is conclusive. Peter was from Galilee, a region that was bilingual. People who grew up there had to know two languages, Greek and Aramaic. As a fisherman, functioning in the business world of his day, Peter must have been reasonably fluent in Greek. Moreover Peter, having “been with Jesus” (see Acts 4:13), must have learned how to express himself from the Master Communicator Himself. As one of the first teachers and preachers of the gospel, Peter would have been able to express himself eloquently in Greek (see Acts 2). If his own Greek style was not sufficiently polished, Peter could certainly have dictated this letter, perhaps to Silvanus (see 5:12), who would have polished his presentation (see also Acts 15:22–29). That Peter’s letter reflects ideas similar to those found in the writings of the apostle Paul is understandable because the two men knew each other (see Gal. 2:7–9). Peter had read Paul’s letters (see 2 Pet. 3:15, 16), and both men were under the guidance of the Holy Spirit when they wrote. Thus finding Pauline concepts in this letter is not a strong argument that Peter cannot be the author.

The issue about the author's seeming unfamiliarity with the earthly life of Jesus is best handled by looking at the letter itself, which reveals that the author is thoroughly acquainted with Christ's earthly sufferings and claims to be an eyewitness to them (see 2:21–23; 3:18; 4:1; 5:1). Moreover, the purpose of the letter was not to provide a record of the life of Christ. Instead, Peter was encouraging Christians with the comforting spiritual realities behind the persecution they faced.

Finally, the sporadic and local persecution before Nero's reign (before A.D. 68) is the persecution that Peter is probably addressing in this letter. Although severe official persecution did not begin until the reigns of Domitian (A.D. 95) or Trajan (A.D. 112), early Christians experienced oppressive local persecution from the beginning (see Acts 14:19). In conclusion, there is no substantial evidence that contradicts the plain assertion of the letter that it is from the apostle Peter (see 1:1).

Date and Place of Writing Church tradition tells us that Peter died in Rome during the anti-Christian persecution that took place during the reign of Nero (A.D. 54–68), so A.D. 67 is probably the latest this letter could have been written.

There are several indications that Peter wrote the letter around A.D. 62–64. First, Paul makes no reference to Peter being in Rome when Paul was writing his letters from there (Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon), sometime between A.D. 60–62. Moreover, in his letter Peter makes no reference to Paul as being in Rome, identifying only Silvanus and Mark as his companions (5:12, 13). These facts suggest that Peter was writing after A.D. 62. But the fact that Peter admonishes his readers to submit to governmental authorities in 2:13–15 may indicate a date before the more severe persecution which occurred after the burning of Rome in A.D. 64.

Of course, this dating assumes that Peter wrote this letter from Rome and not from some other location. Peter concludes the letter by sending greetings from “she who is in Babylon” (5:13). Three locations are generally suggested for this reference: Babylon on the Euphrates River in Mesopotamia, a lesser-known city in the ancient world also called Babylon, and Rome.

The argument in favor of the Mesopotamian Babylon is its identity in the Old Testament as a city of great power, a city feared and hated by the Israelites (see 2 Kin. 24; 25; Is. 39; Jer. 25). Yet by the first century A.D., Babylon was an insignificant town with no real power. More importantly, there is no record of Peter ever having been there. Other cities named Babylon (such as the Roman military outpost located in Egypt near where Cairo stands today) are excluded as well, because none of these towns played a significant role in early Christian history.

However, Rome was a widely-recognized center of opposition to Christianity and also the seat of power in the Roman Empire. In the New Testament, Babylon is used as a veiled reference to the city of Rome, the center of the kingdom of darkness (see Rev. 14:8; 16:19; 17:5; 18:2, 10, 21). Moreover, many of Peter's readers would understand Babylon as a place of exile, something with which they themselves could identify, since Peter addresses them as pilgrims scattered throughout Asia Minor. In this way Peter was concluding his letter where it began, with a sense that he and his fellow Christians had not yet arrived "home." Peter was using Babylon as a code word readily understood by early Christians to mean Rome, yet at the same time symbolizing more than just that earthly city.

Setting To reach the centers of the provinces of ancient Asia Minor (present-day Turkey) to which Peter was writing, his letter had to travel many hundreds of miles over rugged terrain and treacherous seas. The bearer of the letter would have encountered Jews and Gentiles, Christians and pagans, free citizens and slaves. Some of the places in which the letter was read were cosmopolitan trade centers that were links between the Middle East and Europe. Other places were isolated villages. Yet throughout Asia Minor, small groups of Christians of a wide variety of social, ethnic, and cultural backgrounds would gather to hear God's word, to praise God, and to encourage one another in the faith.

Theology Peter blended five different themes in this letter. (1) He emphasized that Christians can expect suffering as a natural part of a life dedicated to Christ. Suffering was God's tool to shape godly character within them (1:6, 7; 3:14; 4:12–14). (2) He went on to exhort Christians to live righteous and holy lives in the face of the evils they were experiencing (1:13–16, 22; 2:1–5, 11, 12; 3:15; 4:1, 2, 7–11; 5:8–10). No matter how tempting it was, Christians were not to return evil for evil. That is a worldly and not a Christian response to persecution. (3) No matter how much suffering they experienced, Peter assured the Christians in Asia Minor they did not deserve it. Their suffering was a part of their service to God and His kingdom (2:20; 3:16, 17; 4:15–19). Although Christians would suffer injustice on this earth, there would come a time when God would right every wrong and reward those who have endured persecution for His name. (4) In light of this, Peter encouraged Christians to submit themselves to others for the sake of the gospel and for the sake of harmonious interpersonal relationships (2:13–19; 3:1–9; 5:1–7). Christ would eventually judge their actions, and the difficulties they were experiencing would not be an excuse for rebellion and dissension. (5) Finally Peter used this letter as an opportunity to drive home the central truth of the gospel, that Jesus endured the agony of the Cross to save us from our bondage to sin (1:2–5, 7–11, 17–21; 2:21–24; 3:18–22). Christ’s example—His sinless life, His quiet endurance of suffering, and His commitment to the truth—should be our model in all the difficulties of this life.

Christ in the Scriptures

For Peter, Jesus is the basis for our living hope and inheritance (1:3, 4). What is more, the love relationship that is available with Him is a source of inexpressible joy (1:8). Peter is quick to convey what Paul and the Gospel writers have already established—that Jesus’ suffering and death provide redemption for all who trust in Him “who Himself bore our sins in His own body on the tree, that we, having died to sins, might live for righteousness—by whose stripes you were healed” (2:24).

Jesus also is lifted up as the Overseer and Chief Shepherd of all Christians (2:25; 5:4), and when He appears, those who have a relationship with Him will be glorified.

First Peter was written to the churches in Asia Minor (see 1:1), including Cappadocia, seen here. Cappadocia is known for these strange rock formations, into which local peoples carved subterranean towns, seeking shelter from the conquerors.

Greeting to the Elect Pilgrims

¹Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ,

To the ¹pilgrims ^aof the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, In-Text Map: Peter Wrote This Letter to Provinces in Asia Minor

^{2b}elect ^caccording to the foreknowledge of God the Father, ^din sanctification of the Spirit, for ^eobedience and ^fsprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ:

^gGrace to you and peace be multiplied.

A Heavenly Inheritance

^{3h}Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who ⁱaccording to His abundant mercy ^jhas begotten us again to a living hope ^kthrough the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,

⁴to an inheritance ²incorruptible and undefiled and that does not fade away, ^lreserved in heaven for you,

^{5m}who are kept by the power of God through faith for salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.

⁶ⁿIn this you greatly rejoice, though now ^ofor a little while, if need be, ^pyou have been ³grieved by various trials,

⁷that ^qthe genuineness of your faith, being much more precious than gold that perishes, though ^rit is tested by fire, ^smay be found to praise, honor, and glory at the revelation of Jesus Christ,

^{8t}whom having not ⁴seen you love. ^uThough now you do not see Him, yet believing, you rejoice with joy inexpressible and full of glory, ⁹receiving the end of your faith—the salvation of your souls.

¹⁰Of this salvation the prophets have inquired and searched carefully, who prophesied of the grace that would come to you,

¹¹searching what, or what manner of time, ^vthe Spirit of Christ who was in them was indicating when He testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ and the glories that would follow.

¹²To them it was revealed that, not to themselves, but to ⁵us they were ministering the things which now have been reported to you through those who have preached the gospel to you by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven—things which ^wangels desire to look into.

Living Before God Our Father

¹³Therefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and rest your hope fully upon the grace that is to be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ;

¹⁴as obedient children, not ^xconforming yourselves to the former lusts, as in your ignorance;

¹⁵ybut as He who called you is holy, you also be holy in all your conduct,

¹⁶because it is written, ^z“Be holy, for I am holy.”

¹⁷And if you call on the Father, who ^awithout partiality judges according to each one’s work, conduct yourselves throughout the time of your ⁶stay here in fear;

¹⁸knowing that you were not redeemed with ⁷corruptible things, like silver or gold, from your aimless conduct received by tradition from your fathers, ¹⁹but ^bwith the precious blood of Christ, ^cas of a lamb without blemish and without spot.

²⁰dHe indeed was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was ⁸manifest ^ein these last times for you

²¹who through Him believe in God, ^fwho raised Him from the dead and ^ggave Him glory, so that your faith and hope are in God.

The Enduring Word

²²Since you ^hhave purified your souls in obeying the truth ⁹through the Spirit in ¹⁰sincere ⁱlove of the brethren, love one another fervently with a pure heart,

^{23j}having been born again, not of ¹¹corruptible seed but ¹²incorruptible, ^kthrough the word of God which lives and abides ¹³forever,

²⁴because

^l*“All flesh is as grass,*

And all ¹⁴the glory of man as the flower of the grass.

The grass withers,

And its flower falls away,

^{25m}But the ¹⁵word of the LORD endures forever.”

ⁿNow this is the word which by the gospel was preached to you.

1 Peter 2

¹Therefore, ^alaying aside all malice, all deceit, hypocrisy, envy, and all evil speaking,

^{2b}as newborn babes, desire the pure ^cmilk of the word, that you may grow ¹thereby, ³if indeed you have ^dtasted that the Lord is gracious.

The Chosen Stone and His Chosen People

(Ps. 118:22; Is. 28:16)

⁴Coming to Him as to a living stone, ^erejected indeed by men, but chosen by God and precious, ⁵you also, as living stones, are being built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ.

⁶Therefore it is also contained in the Scripture,

^f*“Behold, I lay in Zion
A chief cornerstone, elect, precious,
And he who believes on Him will by no means be put to shame.”*

⁷Therefore, to you who believe, He is precious; but to those who ²are disobedient,

^g*“The stone which the builders rejected
Has become the chief cornerstone,”*

⁸and

^h*“A stone of stumbling
And a rock of offense.”*

ⁱThey stumble, being disobedient to the word, ^jto which they also were appointed. Word Studies: word

⁹But you are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, His own special people, that you may proclaim the praises of Him who called you out of ^kdarkness into His marvelous light;

^{10l}who once were not a people but are now the people of God, who had not obtained mercy but now have obtained mercy.

Living Before the World

¹¹Beloved, I beg you as sojourners and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts^m which war against the soul, Article: The Christian Calling: Holiness

¹²ⁿhaving your conduct honorable among the Gentiles, that when they speak against you as evildoers, ^othey may, by your good works which they observe, glorify God in the day of visitation.

Submission to Government

(cf. Rom. 13:1–5)

^{13p}Therefore submit yourselves to every ³ordinance of man for the Lord's sake, whether to the king as supreme,

¹⁴or to governors, as to those who are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers and for the praise of those who do good.

¹⁵For this is the will of God, that by doing good you may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men—

^{16q}as free, yet not ^rusing liberty as a cloak for ⁴vice, but as bondservants of God.

¹⁷Honor all people. Love the brotherhood. Fear ^sGod. Honor the king.

Submission to Masters

(Is. 53:7–9)

¹⁸*Servants, be* submissive to your masters with all fear, not only to the good and gentle, but also to the harsh.

¹⁹For this is ^ucommendable, if because of conscience toward God one endures grief, suffering wrongfully.

²⁰For ^vwhat credit is it if, when you are beaten for your faults, you take it patiently? But when you do good and suffer, if you take it patiently, this is commendable before God.

²¹For ^wto this you were called, because Christ also suffered for ⁵us, ^xleaving ⁶us an example, that you should follow His steps: Word Studies: example

²²“*Who^y committed no sin,
Nor was deceit found in His mouth*”;

^{23z}who, when He was reviled, did not revile in return; when He suffered, He did not threaten, but ^acommitted Himself to Him who judges righteously;

^{24b}who Himself bore our sins in His own body on the tree, ^cthat we, having died to sins, might live for righteousness—^dby whose ⁷stripes you were healed.

²⁵For ^eyou were like sheep going astray, but have now returned ^fto the Shepherd and ⁸Overseer of your souls.

1 Peter 3

Submission to Husbands

¹Wives, likewise, be ^asubmissive to your own husbands, that even if some do not obey the word, ^bthey, without a word, may ^cbe won by the conduct of their wives, ^{2d}when they observe your chaste conduct accompanied by fear.

^{3e}Do not let your adornment be merely outward—arranging the hair, wearing gold, or putting on fine apparel—

⁴rather let it be ^fthe hidden person of the heart, with the ¹incorruptible beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit, which is very precious in the sight of God.

⁵For in this manner, in former times, the holy women who trusted in God also adorned themselves, being submissive to their own husbands, ⁶as Sarah obeyed Abraham, ^gcalling him lord, whose daughters you are if you do good and are not afraid with any terror.

A Word to Husbands

^{7h}Husbands, likewise, dwell with them with understanding, giving honor to the wife, ⁱas to the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life, ^jthat your prayers may not be hindered. Word Studies: heirs together

Called to Blessing

⁸Finally, all of you be of one mind, having compassion for one another; love as brothers, be tenderhearted, be ²courteous;

⁹^knot returning evil for evil or reviling for reviling, but on the contrary ^lblessing, knowing that you were called to this, ^mthat you may inherit a blessing.

¹⁰For

ⁿ*“He who would love life*

And see good days,

^o*Let him ³refrain his tongue from evil,*

And his lips from speaking deceit.

¹¹*Let him ^pturn away from evil and do good;*

^q*Let him seek peace and pursue it.*

¹²*For the eyes of the LORD are on the righteous,*

^r*And His ears are open to their prayers;*

But the face of the LORD is against those who do evil.”

Suffering for Right and Wrong

^{13s}And who is he who will harm you if you become followers of what is good?

^{14t}But even if you should suffer for righteousness' sake, you are blessed.
^u“And do not be afraid of their threats, nor be troubled.”

¹⁵But ⁴sanctify ⁵the Lord God in your hearts, and always ^vbe ready to give a defense to everyone who asks you a reason for the ^whope that is in you, with meekness and fear;

^{16x}having a good conscience, that when they defame you as evildoers, those who revile your good conduct in Christ may be ashamed.

¹⁷For it is better, if it is the will of God, to suffer for doing good than for doing evil.

Christ's Suffering and Ours

¹⁸For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring ⁶us to God, being put to death in the flesh but made alive by the Spirit,

¹⁹by whom also He went and preached to the spirits in prison,

²⁰who formerly were disobedient, ⁷when once the Divine longsuffering waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was being prepared, in which a few, that is, eight souls, were saved through water.

^{21y}There is also an antitype which now saves us—baptism ^z(not the removal of the filth of the flesh, ^abut the answer of a good conscience toward God), through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, ²²who has gone into heaven and ^bis at the right hand of God, ^cangels and authorities and powers having been made subject to Him.

1 Peter 4

¹Therefore, since Christ suffered ¹for us in the flesh, arm yourselves also with the same mind, for he who has suffered in the flesh has ceased from sin,

²that he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh for the lusts of men, ^abut for the will of God.

³For we have spent enough of our past ²lifetime in doing the will of the Gentiles—when we walked in lewdness, lusts, drunkenness, revelries, drinking parties, and abominable idolatries.

⁴In regard to these, they think it strange that you do not run with them in the same flood of dissipation, speaking evil of you.

⁵They will give an account to Him who is ready ^bto judge the living and the dead.

⁶For this reason ^cthe gospel was preached also to those who are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but ^dlive according to God in the spirit.

Serving for God's Glory

⁷But ^ethe end of all things is at hand; therefore be serious and watchful in your prayers.

⁸And above all things have fervent love for one another, for ^f“love will cover a multitude of sins.” Word Studies: love

^{9g}Be hospitable to one another ^hwithout grumbling.

¹⁰ⁱAs each one has received a gift, minister it to one another, ^jas good stewards of ^kthe manifold grace of God.

¹¹If anyone speaks, let him speak as the ³oracles of God. If anyone ministers, let him do it as with the ability which God supplies, that ^min all things God may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom belong the glory and the ⁴dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Suffering for God's Glory

¹²Beloved, do not think it strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened to you; Bible Times & Culture Notes: Persecutions

¹³but rejoice ⁿto the extent that you partake of Christ's sufferings, that ^owhen His glory is revealed, you may also be glad with exceeding joy.

¹⁴If you are ⁵reproached for the name of Christ, ^pblessed are you, for the Spirit of glory and of God rests upon you. ⁶On their part He is blasphemed, ^qbut on your part He is glorified.

¹⁵But let none of you suffer as a murderer, a thief, an evildoer, or as a ⁷busybody in other people's matters.

¹⁶Yet if anyone suffers as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God in this ⁸matter.

¹⁷For the time has come ^rfor judgment to begin at the house of God; and if it begins with us first, ^swhat will be the end of those who do not obey the gospel of God?

¹⁸Now

^t*“If the righteous one is scarcely saved,
Where will the ungodly and the sinner appear?”*

¹⁹Therefore let those who suffer according to the will of God ^ucommit their souls to Him in doing good, as to a faithful Creator.

1 Peter 5

Shepherd the Flock

¹The elders who are among you I exhort, I who am a fellow elder and a ^awitness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the ^bglory that will be revealed:

^{2c}Shepherd the flock of God which is among you, serving as overseers, ^dnot by compulsion but ¹willingly, ^enot for dishonest gain but eagerly; Charts and Diagrams: Church Leaders

³nor as ^fbeing ²lords over ^gthose entrusted to you, but ^hbeing examples to the flock;

⁴and when ⁱthe Chief Shepherd appears, you will receive ^jthe crown of glory that does not fade away.

Submit to God, Resist the Devil

⁵Likewise you younger people, submit yourselves to your elders. Yes, ^kall of you be submissive to one another, and be clothed with humility, for

^l*“God resists the proud,
But ^mgives grace to the humble.”*

⁶Therefore humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time, ⁷casting all your care upon Him, for He cares for you.

⁸Be ³sober, be ⁴vigilant; ⁵because your adversary the devil walks about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour.

⁹Resist him, steadfast in the faith, knowing that the same sufferings are experienced by your brotherhood in the world.

¹⁰But ⁶may the God of all grace, ⁿwho called ⁷us to His eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after you have suffered a while, ⁸perfect, establish, strengthen, and settle you.

^{11o}To Him be the glory and the dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Farewell and Peace

¹²By ^pSilvanus, our faithful brother as I consider him, I have written to you briefly, exhorting and testifying ^qthat this is the true grace of God in which you stand.

¹³She who is in Babylon, elect together with you, greets you; and so does ^rMark my son.

¹⁴Greet one another with a kiss of love. Peace to you all who are in Christ Jesus. Amen.

Annotations for 1 Peter

1:1 Peter, the author of this letter, writes to Christians living in Asia Minor (present-day Turkey). By way of encouragement, he identifies them as people who live in the light of their relationship to God the Father, God the Holy Spirit, and God the Son (v. 2). apostle: Peter received a special commission from the Lord to act with official authority as God's representative among believers, in order to carry God's message to them. pilgrims: These believers do not belong to the world around them but to a heavenly world. Dispersion: This term conveys the idea of being scattered among strangers, much like the Jewish exiles of the OT who were not living in their homeland but in Babylon. Pontus . . . Bithynia: Peter addresses his letter to the believers in the provinces of Asia Minor. This region had been thoroughly evangelized by Paul during his missionary journeys (see Acts 2:9–11; 16:6, 7; 18:23; 19:26).

1:2 Believers are chosen to be included in God's family, not on the basis of what they have done or who they are, but on the basis of God's eternal wisdom. Sanctification is the ongoing process whereby the Holy Spirit works in believers, making their lives holy, separated from their old ways and to God in order to be more like Him. obedience: One reason that God chooses us is so that we might serve Him. sprinkling of the blood: This concept, the second reason why God chooses us, draws our attention to three situations in the OT when the Israelites were sprinkled with the blood of animals: (1) Moses' sprinkling of blood on the Israelites at Mt. Sinai, to symbolize their initiation into the covenant (see Ex. 24:5–8); (2) the sprinkling of Aaron and his sons to be the priests of Israel (see Ex. 29:19–21); and (3) the sprinkling of blood performed by priests over healed lepers to symbolize their cleansing (see Lev. 14:1–9). Any of these three cases could be the one that Peter has in mind here.

1:3 according to His abundant mercy: Our salvation is grounded in God's mercy, His act of compassion toward us despite our condition of sinfulness. has begotten us again: God has given believers a new, spiritual life that enables us to live in an entirely different dimension than the one our physical birth allowed. to a living hope: Hope here does not imply a wishfulness but rather a dynamic confidence that does not end with this life but continues throughout eternity. through the resurrection: Although this phrase may modify the phrase "to a living hope," the context suggests that it is to be understood as the means of our salvation rather than the means of our hope (see 1 Cor. 15:12–19).

1:4 The Greek word translated inheritance here suggests both a present and a future reality. God has already determined what we will one day experience in its totality. reserved: God has set aside in heaven a wonderful inheritance that is waiting for us even now.

1:5 who are kept: God keeps His people safe from external attack and safe within the protective boundaries of His kingdom. revealed: We do not now see or understand fully the salvation that God has prepared for us, but one day we will (1 Cor. 4:5; 1 John 3:2).

1:6 grieved: While there is much rejoicing because of the salvation God has prepared for us, there will also be agony because of the pressures and difficulties of life. by various trials: In this context (v. 7), trials refers to ordeals that we encounter in life rather than those things that would induce us to sin. Note that no one particular problem is in view here, but rather all the testings of life.

1:7 genuineness: As the purity of gold is brought forth by intense heat, so the reality and purity of our faith are revealed as a result of the fiery trials we face. Ultimately the testing of our faith not only demonstrates our final salvation but also develops our capacity to bring glory to the Lord Jesus Christ when He comes into His kingdom and we reign with Him (see Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:12; Rev. 5:9–12).

1:8 having not seen: Only a few believers had the privilege of walking and talking with Jesus when He was on earth (see John 20:29).

1:9, 10 receiving the end: There is a final, positive outcome for trusting God through all the difficulties of life—our salvation, which here has an eschatological sense. salvation of your souls: This phrase refers to our glorification in heaven and perhaps the rewards we will receive for following Christ (see Matt. 16:24–27; James 1:21). the prophets: Peter indicates that the OT prophets knew of the gracious salvation we would one day receive and, as a result, studied it carefully and intensively.

1:11 The focus of the OT prophets' study (v. 10) was not the what of our salvation but the when. They wanted to know when the Messiah would suffer and when the glories of the end times would be revealed. Note that the Spirit of Christ, rather than the prophets themselves, was prophesying (see 2 Pet. 1:20, 21). The prophets were mouthpieces for God, not inventors of their own new ideas.

1:12 was revealed: God made known to the prophets that they would not experience all that we experience in Christ and that they were serving God for our benefit. by the Holy Spirit: Although humans may preach God's message of salvation, ultimately the Holy Spirit is the One who proclaims these great truths. Even the angels are amazed at what a wonderful salvation God has enacted on our behalf (see Eph. 3:10).

1:13 gird up the loins of your mind: Just as people in biblical times would gather up their long robes and tie them around their waists so that they could move quickly and freely, we need to do whatever it takes to focus our thoughts on those things that allow us to serve God successfully, all the while eliminating any thoughts that would trip us up (see Heb. 12:1). be sober: Peter's concern here is primarily using mentally or spiritually sound judgment. rest your hope: We need to exhibit confidence that God will accomplish all that He promised He would do (see v. 3; Rom. 8:24, 25).

1:14 not conforming yourselves: Believers should not pattern their lives after the desires that controlled them when they were not Christians, when they did not know God's ways (see Rom. 12:2).

1:15 Holy refers to being set apart or separate. We are to live so as to be dedicated totally to God and separated totally from the sin of this world.

1:17 who without partiality judges: Our heavenly Father is also our earthly Judge. Moreover, our relationship to Him as His children does not imply that we will escape judgment. God does not show favoritism in judgment but invokes His judgment on all people according to their works. in fear: For Christians, this phrase should be understood as something between terror and reverential awe. We need to remember that God is both our merciful Savior (vv. 3, 18–21) and our holy Judge (vv. 15–17).

1:18 Redeemed suggests the idea of offering something, usually money, in exchange for the freedom of a slave or a prisoner of war. God bought our freedom, paying for us with His Son's life (v. 19).

your aimless conduct: Peter's focus is not on any specific action, but on the way of life that his readers inherited from their ancestors. Those old ways were futile, empty of power and incapable of securing salvation. Peter's readers needed to be snatched from their hopeless condition.

1:19 precious blood: God's way of salvation is contrasted to human attempts at gaining salvation through the use of earthly means (v. 18). a lamb: Peter describes Christ as the ultimate sacrificial Lamb, who is offered in our place to pay the price for our sins. The analogy here may be a reference either to the Passover lamb (see Ex. 12:3–6) or to the many lambs without blemish that were offered as part of the OT sacrificial system (see Lev. 23:12; Num. 6:14; 28:3).

1:20 foreordained: God has known (v. 2) the One who would bring salvation, even as He has known those to whom that salvation is offered and secured (see Rom. 11:2). but was manifest: This phrase contrasts with the first half of the verse. What was known only to God before the creation of the world is now made known to us.

1:22 Peter does not say that we purify our own souls but that we accomplish the purification of our souls by obedience to God's truth. It is unclear whether this obedience is a reference to the conversion process or to the sanctifying process after one's conversion. The former seems more likely in the context of vv. 20, 21; the latter seems more likely in light of Peter's general theme of holiness in this letter.

1:23 born again: Though this phrase is commonly used by Christians today, it is rarely found in the NT (see John 3:3–8 for Jesus' use of the phrase). Christians are dead in sin before their life is renewed by the Spirit (see Eph. 2:1). The same idea is expressed by "the washing of regeneration" (see Titus 3:5) and the concept of "children of God" in John's first letter (see 1 John 3:1, 2).

1:24 withers . . . falls away: Peter reminds his readers of our transitory nature with an OT quote, comparing us to the temporary things of this world—a direct contrast to God's permanent work and His eternal word (vv. 23, 25; see Is. 40:6–8).

2:2 Desire does not mean merely to want something, but rather to long for something with all of one's being. that you may grow: The purpose of studying God's truth is not only to learn more, but to become mature in the faith.

2:4 living stone: This phrase anticipates the OT quotations in vv. 6–8. Jesus, as a living stone, is superior to the OT temple. These words also may be a subtle attack on the dead stone idols that the Gentiles worshiped prior to becoming Christians. Thus Jesus is greater than the traditions received from the fathers (1:18), He is greater than the temple in Jerusalem, and He is greater than the traditions of the Gentiles with their lifeless stone idols. The new building of God, of which Jesus is the Cornerstone, is living; it is the assembly of all believers, the church (v. 5). rejected: Not to receive Christ is to reject Him (see John 3:18; Rom. 1:18–23).

2:5 Christians are part of God's great spiritual building project. Stones here refers to stones that are shaped and ready for use in construction, as opposed to natural rock. a holy priesthood: Unlike the OT priesthood, in which only those who were born into a certain tribe could be priests, all who are reborn into God's family, that is, all believers, are priests who have the privilege and responsibility of offering spiritual sacrifices to God (see Rom. 12:1, 2; Heb. 13:15, 16).

2:6 chief cornerstone: Jesus is the foundation stone from which the placement of all other living stones in the spiritual house (v. 5) is determined (see Is. 28:16). In ancient buildings, the cornerstone was first situated on the foundation and then all of the other stones were aligned to it. Thus as part of the house of God, we need to keep our focus on our Cornerstone (see Heb. 12:2).

put to shame: Those who trust in Jesus will never be embarrassed by making Him the focus of their lives.

2:7 Rejected suggests that unbelievers, after examining Jesus to see if He meets their needs, declared Him to be useless or undesirable. Though He was not what they wanted, He is specifically the One whom God the Father has chosen to be the foundation of His eternal work.

2:8 stone of stumbling . . . rock of offense: Unbelievers, because they do not follow God's Word, find Jesus to be repugnant, an obstacle in their way and a cause for disapproval and anger. they also were appointed: The Greek does not clearly indicate whether those who are presently unbelieving (v. 7) are appointed to stumbling, to being disobedient, or to both. However, the context reveals that it is God who does the appointing.

word

(Gk. logos) (1:23; 2:8; 3:1, 15; 4:5; Rom. 9:6; Eph. 1:13) Strong's #3056;
(Gk. rhēma) (1:25; Rom. 10:17; Eph. 5:26) Strong's #4487

In 1:23 the Greek expression for word is logos, referring primarily to the idea. In 1:25 the Greek term is rhēma, referring primarily to the spoken word. The spoken word is the gospel preached and proclaimed (see the use of rhēma in Rom. 10:17, 18). “The word of the Lord” is the gospel message about the Lord Jesus Christ. This word can regenerate men and women. Peter adapted the OT text (which says “the word of our God” in Is. 40:6–8) to its NT context.

Go to the List of Word Studies

2:9 But you: This verse provides a direct contrast to the previous verse, a contrast between those who believe in Jesus Christ and those who do not. a chosen generation: God has not left to chance those who will be part of a unique body of people, a group who will serve Him. He has reserved that decision for Himself. a royal priesthood: Believers are transformed not only internally (see v. 5, which describes us as being made into “a holy priesthood”) but also externally. We are a priesthood that functions in a ruling capacity, as kings. a holy nation: Believers are a unified group of people who are set apart for God’s use. His own special people: God protects those whom He has adopted into His family.

2:10 obtained mercy: Although we once deserved condemnation because of unbelief (see John 3:18, 36; Eph. 2:1–3), we no longer are under the sentence of judgment (see Eph. 2:4–7).

2:11 sojourners and pilgrims: With these words, Peter reminds believers (1:1) that this earth is not our home. We are foreigners here, traveling to our eternal home, heaven. The word translated abstain literally means “to hold away from one’s person.” In other words, we must distance ourselves from our own self-indulgent urges. war: Life is not a game but a war to be waged, and that war is a matter of eternal life or death (see Rom. 7:23; James 4:1). Yet the war is not necessarily fought on a physical, temporal plane, but on a spiritual one.

The Christian Calling: Holiness

Writing to believers in Christ who were experiencing extreme persecution at the hands of a pagan culture, Peter advocated holy living. Seven times in Peter’s first letter, we find the word holy (hagios in Greek) used in reference to conduct or behavior. And even when the word is not explicitly used, pure conduct is called for again and again.

Holy implies sacredness, being consecrated to God, or being worthy of God. In order to qualify for this label, a person or thing has to be free from impurity. There can be no hint of moral pollution or spiritual defilement. To be holy is to be free from anything that would offend a perfect God.

This state may seem impossible to achieve. After all, how can imperfect, fallen creatures like ourselves live up to the command to “be holy in all [our] conduct” (1:15)? The answer is found in the opening sentence of Peter’s letter. Sanctification, the process by which we are made holy, is “of the Spirit” (1:2). The Holy Spirit of God, who indwells us at the moment of salvation, is able to transform us. By the power of the Spirit we find the ability to “abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul” (2:11). As we yield ourselves to God, and as we soberly and vigilantly resist the devil (5:9) and all his temptations, we will find that God is able to “perfect, establish, strengthen, and settle” us (5:10).

Holy living should be our goal not merely because God commands it, but also because it befits our true identity. In Christ we are no longer citizens of a sinful world, but the “people of God” (2:10). We are “sojourners and pilgrims” in this world, on our way to our true home, which is heaven (2:11).

Furthermore, holiness serves an evangelistic purpose. It is a “holy nation” and “special people” who are able to “proclaim the praises of Him who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light” (2:9). It is our “honorable” conduct and “good works” that cause evildoers to glorify God (2:12).

Finally, Peter speaks of the day when we will stand before God and give an account for the way we have lived. Those who have maintained a lifelong fear (reverence) of God resulting in holy living will be best prepared for that day of reckoning (1:17).

Go to the List of Articles

2:12 Gentiles here refers to those who are not believers in Christ, not to those who are not Jews. they speak against you as evildoers: Despite our good works, those who are unbelievers will slander us. they observe: The Greek word for observe, used only here and in 3:2, implies a conscious, ongoing examination—in this case, of the actions of believers. The day of visitation probably refers to the final day of judgment when all people, believers and unbelievers alike, will fall on their knees and acknowledge who Jesus Christ is and what He has done through His people.

2:13 Peter forcefully commands Christians to submit voluntarily to governing authorities. He does not make submission a matter of personal conviction or choice. He decrees that it is an obligation for all Christians. to every ordinance of man: This phrase suggests that the submission of Christians is not to be exercised solely in relation to civil authorities (v. 14), but to all kinds of rules that Christians encounter (2:18; 3:1).

2:14 governors: This term was used by the Greeks for all people, apart from the supreme ruler of a nation (v. 13), who exercise authority on behalf of the government of a country.

2:15 the will of God: The authority backing Peter’s command for civil obedience is the God of the universe, the Sovereign Ruler over all citizens and governments and over all Christians and non-Christians. put to silence: Our actions should make our accusers speechless, like a muzzle placed over their mouths.

2:16 not using liberty: Freedom in Christ must be used wisely (see 1 Cor. 6:12, 13; 10:23–31). A cloak for vice may be understood either as an excuse made up before the fact (a reason for wrongdoing), or after the fact (a cover-up for wrongdoing). The context here seems to support the second. as bondservants of God: We should submit all our actions to God, for He is our Master.

2:17 Fear God: Our reverence for God should be the basis of our relationships with others. All people are created in His image, and He is the One who has placed some people in authority over us. Therefore we should treat everyone with love and respect.

2:18 Servants: Somewhere from one-third to half of the population of the Roman Empire were slaves. The percentage of Christians who were slaves may have been even higher. be submissive . . . with all fear: Workers are to take their responsibilities seriously. but also to the harsh: Christians are to serve even the worst of bosses with respect.

2:19 Those who suffer faithfully but unjustly as a result of their service to God please Him. Such suffering has a great reward (see Matt. 5:10–12; Rom. 8:17, 18; Phil. 1:19; 2 Tim. 2:12). Peter himself had asked Jesus about this and received an exciting encouragement about the divine compensation package (see Matt. 19:27–30). endures: Believers are not merely to survive the difficulties that come their way, rather they are to bear patiently their heavy loads. Grief here is not the result of loss but of being afflicted. wrongfully: This verse is about injustice, about people being treated worse than they deserve.

2:20 Credit suggests benefit or personal gain. There is no advantage to believers for successfully enduring a deserved punishment for wrongdoing, yet there is great value when we honor God with our actions when we are unfairly condemned by others (3:17). take it patiently: Endurance and perseverance in the face of suffering please God.

2:21 For to this you were called: Part of being a Christian is the privilege of serving God faithfully when we encounter undeserved judgment (see Phil. 1:29). leaving us an example: Observing how Christ handled unjust punishment gives us insight as to how we also may endure such trials.

Word Studies

example

(Gk. hupogrammos) (2:21) Strong's #5261

In common Greek usage, this word designated a tablet that contained the entire Greek alphabet. Students would use this to trace the alphabet, learning each letter from alpha to omega. The life of Jesus, a life of suffering, is just such a tracing tablet. We, the learners of Jesus, are to trace this life, beginning from alpha and going on to omega.

Go to the List of Word Studies

2:22 Who committed no sin: Christ was perfect in everything He did, even when He was wrongly condemned to death by the world. Nor was deceit found: In His thoughts and attitudes, Jesus was perfect.

2:24 who Himself bore our sins: The Greek wording emphasizes Jesus' personal involvement in the act of paying the price for our sins. It also emphasizes that it is our sins that Jesus bore on the Cross. The tree is the Cross. that we . . . might live for righteousness: The purpose of Christ's bearing our sins is that we might live to please Him. by whose stripes: The Greek word for stripes is singular rather than plural. Thus our spiritual healing comes neither from Jesus' day-to-day sufferings nor from His sufferings that led to the Cross, but from the one ultimate wound—His death.

2:25 Shepherd: This title portrays Christ as One who tenderly and wisely provides for all our needs. Overseer: Christ is also our Guardian, our Protector, the One who watches over us. This is the only place where the titles Shepherd (Pastor) and Overseer (Bishop or Elder) are used in the singular. No one else is qualified to be the one Shepherd and Overseer of our souls—only Christ is. For this reason the NT regularly describes the church and its congregations as having more than one leader (see Titus 1:5).

3:1 In the same manner that citizens are to relate to their government leaders (2:13–17) and employees to their employers (2:18–25), so wives are to relate to their husbands. be submissive: Wives are commanded to place themselves willingly under the guidance and control of their husbands, living in such a way that their husbands will be challenged to live in obedience to God's truth. do not obey the word: Peter here is referring to non-Christian husbands (v. 20; 2:7, 8; 4:17). without a word: A godly wife does not preach to her husband with words but with the Christlike beauty of her daily life. may be won: The goal of her actions is to see the unbelieving husband become a Christian (see 1 Cor. 9:19–22).

3:2 chaste conduct: The Christian wife is to live without moral defect or blemish. Fear here refers to respect for God.

3:3 Do not let your adornment be merely outward: Christians are to spend more time developing their inner character than attempting to make themselves look beautiful on the outside (see 1 Sam. 16:7). Peter is not condemning women who wear jewelry. He is emphasizing the importance of a woman's character.

3:4 Incorruptible beauty involves inner qualities that do not decay or fade like makeup, jewelry, and clothes (v. 3). gentle and quiet spirit: Peter encourages Christian wives to exhibit attitudes that do not demand personal rights, attitudes that are not harsh and grating but are soothing and tranquil.

3:6 calling him lord: Sarah was not worshiping Abraham; she was showing him respect. not afraid: Fear of her husband should not be the driving force that causes a Christian wife to practice the principles of godly marital relations.

3:7 Christian husbands are to demonstrate toward their wives the same unselfish spirit as Christian citizens (2:13–17), Christian subordinates (2:18–25), and Christian wives (vv. 1–6). with understanding: A Christian husband should be intimately aware of his wife's needs, her strengths and weaknesses, and her goals and desires. He should know as much about her as possible in order to respond in the best way to her. giving honor: A Christian husband gives honor to his wife because she deserves honor (vv. 1–6). weaker vessel: The weakness in view here is primarily physical weakness, since the term vessel means the human body. being heirs together: The relationship described here is one between a Christian husband and his Christian wife, since all Christians and only Christians are heirs of the grace of life (see Rom. 8:17). that your prayers may not be hindered: A Christian husband's spiritual relationship with God is directly affected by the way he treats his wife.

heirs together

(Gk. sunklēronomos) (3:7; Rom. 8:17; Eph. 3:6; Heb. 11:9) Strong's #4789

The Greek word means “joint-heirs” or “coheirs.” For Christian couples to be “joint-heirs” is for them to have an equal share and joint-participation in the Father’s kingdom. The concept of inheritance is prominent both in the OT and NT (see Num. 26:56; Ps. 25:13; Is. 60:21; Matt. 5:5; Gal. 3:29). For believers, Jesus promises an eternal inheritance in His kingdom. Paul uses the same Greek word to describe Christians’ participation with Christ in glory (see Eph. 3:6).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 3:9 reviling for reviling: Peter encourages Christians to act like the Lord Jesus. He endured suffering and ridicule in silence, entrusting His just cause to the ultimate Judge (2:23). but on the contrary blessing: Peter emphasizes the contrast between our natural tendency as human beings, to get even when we are offended, with the way we should act as believers: returning good to those who hurt us (see Eph. 4:25, 29). that you may inherit a blessing: Christ will reward us for any suffering we endure in His name (see Matt. 5:10–12; 19:27–30).
- 3:12 Peter uses the imagery of eyes and ears to remind his readers that God knows everything about believers, especially their suffering, and that He listens and responds to their cries for help (see Heb. 4:12–16). the face of the LORD is against: In direct contrast to God’s all-knowing and all-caring interest in His children who serve Him, He is diametrically opposed to those who do not follow His path of righteousness.
- 3:14 Since not everything in the world functions as it should, even those who do God’s will may undergo suffering. for righteousness’ sake: Believers should make certain that when they suffer it is only because they have served God faithfully and not because they have done anything wrong (4:14, 15). you are blessed: God specially honors those who suffer for doing what is right (see Matt. 5:10–12).
- 3:15 sanctify the Lord God: Believers should acknowledge the eternal holiness of Christ by revering Him as the Lord of the universe who is in control of all things. to give a defense: Peter assumes that the Christian faith will be falsely accused. He therefore encourages Christians to have rational answers to respond to those false accusations. Meekness is the same term translated gentle in v. 4. Meekness is not weakness. Scripture indicates that both Moses and Christ were meek men; however, they were certainly not weak men. Fear implies a high degree of reverence or respect.
- 3:17 for it is better: Peter is not encouraging believers to seek out situations in which they will experience suffering. Instead, he is saying that believers should make certain that when they suffer it is the result of having been faithful to God rather than because they have done evil (see 2:19, 20). if it is the will of God: Suffering may be part of God’s perfect and wise plan for a believer (see Matt. 5:10–12).
- 3:18 once for sins: Christ’s death on the Cross was a once-for-all event. He died once for our sins; He does not have to be “recrucified” each time we sin. that He might bring us to God: Christ died so that we can be reconciled to God.

3:19, 20 There are various interpretations of the meaning of these verses, primarily because of the ambiguity of the phrase spirits in prison. The Greek term translated spirits can refer to human spirits, angels, or demons. There are three main interpretations: (1) Some interpret these verses as describing Jesus as going to the place where fallen angels are incarcerated and declaring His final victory over evil in His work on the Cross. These commentators suggest that Peter is referring to the days of Noah because these fallen angels were typified by the gross immorality of those “spirits” who married human women at that time (see Gen. 6:1–4; 2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 1:6). Depending on the commentator, this proclamation is assigned to the time between Christ’s crucifixion and resurrection, or to a time after Christ’s ascension to heaven. (2) Others hold that spirits refers to human spirits. Thus Christ preached to human beings who had died in Noah’s day and were in the realm of the dead (hell or Hades). Although some have insisted that Christ’s preaching included an offer of salvation to these people, this is at best unlikely and at worst misleading, for Scripture never concedes a “second chance” for sinners after death. The content of Christ’s preaching was most likely a proclamation of His victory over sin. (3) Finally, another major interpretation understands this passage as describing Christ preaching through Noah to the unbelievers of his day. Since they rejected Noah’s message of salvation, they were presently in prison—that is, hell.

3:21 an antitype which now saves us: The symbolic act of baptism is the answer of a good conscience of one who has been saved from the penalty of sin (see Rom. 4:1–6) by trusting in the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ (see Rom. 6:4, 5). The floodwaters symbolize the baptismal waters, which in turn symbolize the salvation that can be obtained through Christ’s death (see Matt. 28:19, 20; Acts 2:38).

3:22 Being at the right hand of God means that Christ is in a position of power and authority.

4:1 in the flesh: Christ’s suffering was real because He took on our human nature. arm yourselves: In order to fight the good fight successfully, believers must take on the same mind as Christ (see Phil. 2:5). He who has suffered in this context refers to suffering Christians. has ceased from sin: Those who serve God faithfully in the midst of suffering take on a different attitude toward sin than what they previously held. Sin no longer holds the same grip on them. The phrase has ceased here does not suggest that those who have suffered become sinlessly perfect or that they will never sin again.

4:3 Lewdness speaks of insolent, shameless behavior that goes unchecked in a person’s life. Revelries refers to long, protracted feasts that involve much drinking and immorality. abominable idolatries: The idea here is that some forms of idolatry may have been detestable even to the civil authorities. Of course, all types of idolatry are hateful to God (see Ex. 20:3–5; Deut. 7:25; 32:16, 17).

4:4 they think it strange: Unbelievers cannot understand the transformed lives of believers. flood of dissipation: In contrast to believers, who live in order to please God, unbelievers live without thought of the eternal consequences of their acts. They fill their lives with evil deeds that have no eternal value. speaking evil of you: Unbelievers typically ridicule those who refuse to follow them in their frivolous and wicked lifestyles.

4:5 They will give an account: Although unbelievers think they are free to do as they please, they are greatly mistaken. There are consequences to what they do. One day they will stand defenseless before God and give an account of all of their wickedness (see Rev. 20:11–15).

4:6 There are four main interpretations of who Peter refers to when he speaks of the dead in this verse. (1) Some see a connection between the gospel preached in this verse and the proclamation of Christ in 3:19, 20. Accordingly, they understand this verse to be about Christ offering salvation to those who lived in pre-Christian times (see 3:19, 20). This is most likely mistaken, because there is no indication in Scripture that anyone gets a “second chance” to be saved after death. (2) Another group of commentators also connects this preaching to 3:19, 20, but holds that this verse is speaking of Christ preaching the gospel only to the righteous people of OT times. The other two interpretations maintain that this verse is not connected to 3:19, 20: (3) One view has Peter speaking of the gospel which was preached to believers who are now dead. They had died just like other people, but they were now living with God. (4) The final and perhaps the most sound interpretation of this verse is that Peter is referring to the spiritually dead. The gospel was being preached to them so that they could come alive spiritually.

4:7 Christ can come in judgment at any time. Therefore, everyone should be ready to give a reason for the way he or she has lived. serious: Christians should curb all sinful passions in light of the coming of the Lord. watchful: Peter urges his readers to be sober-minded and disciplined so that they can offer their prayers to God.

4:8 love will cover a multitude of sins: Peter is not suggesting that one Christian's love atones for another Christian's sins. Rather, by introducing this proverb from the OT (see Prov. 10:12), he is reminding us that love does not stir up sins. We can demonstrate our love for our fellow believers by truly forgiving them and not talking openly about their past sins.

Word Studies

love

(Gk. agapē) (4:8; Rom. 5:5, 8; 1 John 3:1; 4:7, 8, 16; Jude 21) Strong's #26

This Greek word was rarely used in Greek literature prior to the NT. When it was used, it denoted showing kindness to strangers, giving hospitality, and being charitable. In the NT, the word agapē took on a special meaning: It was used by the NT writers to designate a volitional love as opposed to the purely emotional kind. It is a self-sacrificial love, a kind naturally expressed by God but not so easily by men and women.

- 4:9 Be hospitable: In NT times, hospitality typically meant housing and feeding travelers for two to three days with no expectation of payment in return. without grumbling: Being truly hospitable required personal sacrifice. Therefore many who performed such acts of kindness to strangers sometimes complained behind the backs of their guests about the hardships of caring for them. In this letter, Peter exhorts those Christians to serve others cheerfully.
- 4:10 As each one has received a gift: Every believer is gifted to serve. Stewards are managers or trustees who will be held accountable for using their gift in the best interest of the One who gave it to them.
- 4:11 as the oracles of God: Those who teach God's truth to others should teach it in a reverent manner so that their hearers will respect the Word of God. with the ability which God supplies: Not relying on their own strength, Christians should use the power God gives them to do His will on earth.
- 4:12 do not think it strange: Apparently Peter's readers were astonished that they had to suffer as Christians, especially to the extent that they were suffering. The Greek word translated fiery trial here was also used to speak of the intense fire that burned away impurities in metals (1:6, 7). to try you: For Christians the purpose of suffering is to prove their true character, to clear away the dross of sin and to allow the pure nature of Christ to show itself. some strange thing: Christians should expect and prepare for suffering.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Persecutions

Trials were common to first-century Christians. The Book of Acts testifies that Christians were slandered, defamed, boycotted, mobbed, imprisoned, and even killed because of their faith. Although cultural progress may not have touched many of the cities in which Christians lived, hostility to the gospel and to Christians themselves was there. Christians were targets of attack because they no longer participated in pagan religious practices. Since they were the ones who abandoned the so-called gods of the people, Christians were blamed for everything from natural disasters to economic downturns. They were even more vulnerable because they were often strangers in a city, having been driven out of other cities by persecution or having come from a Jewish background. These early Christians often had little security, low social status (many were slaves), and little recourse to government protection. Peter wrote to encourage them.

4:13 when His glory is revealed: Suffering will be part of the Christian experience until Christ returns (see Rom. 8:18–22).

4:14 reproached: Christians may be unjustly blamed because of their association with Christ. Peter calls this situation blessed because it brings great reward in the next life (see Matt. 5:10–12). rests upon you: When Christians suffer unjustly on behalf of Christ, they will discover that the close relationship they have with God during that period will refresh their spirit.

4:15 busybody: Meddling in other people's business is equated with murdering and stealing.

4:17 the time has come for judgment: Judgment does not always imply condemnation in Scripture. When used in relation to Christians, it consistently refers to the evaluation of a believer's works for the purpose of reward (see 1 Cor. 3:10–15). the house of God: The focus here is not on a building but on believers. those who do not obey: Throughout this letter, Peter speaks of those who are not part of God's eternal family as being disobedient (2:7, 8; 3:1, 20).

4:18 scarcely saved: No one deserves to be saved, and no one is able to be saved by his or her good works (see Eph. 2:8, 9). Since everyone deserves condemnation, the fact that anyone is saved is solely the result of God's grace. appear: If God does not hold back judgment from His own people, imagine the end of the enemies of God who have no one to justify them before Him (see Ps. 1:4–6; Rev. 20:11–15).

4:19 Christians are to entrust their very lives to God, especially in the midst of suffering, always recognizing that He is the faithful Creator who is in control of all things. God never gives us more than we can handle (see 1 Cor. 10:13); everything He does always has a good purpose (see Rom. 8:28).

5:1 Peter sees himself on the same level as the rest of the elders. Partaker is a key term in the Epistle to the Hebrews (see Heb. 3:1, 14). It speaks of sharing in Christ's reign in the coming kingdom (see Rom. 8:17; Rev. 2:26–28; 5:9, 10). Peter considers himself to be already participating partly in the glory that one day he will experience fully.

5:2 Shepherd the flock of God: An ancient Israelite shepherd would go before his sheep to lead them; he would not drive the sheep in front of him. Church leaders should lead the people of God in the same way: feeding, protecting, and guiding them (see John 21:15–17). Christian leaders should also remember that they have been given responsibility for tending a flock that belongs to God, not to themselves. serving as overseers: Church leaders must do everything in their power to ensure that the Christians under their care are living according to God's Word. not by compulsion: The work of the ministry is to be done joyfully, not merely as a duty. not for dishonest gain: Christian leaders need to make certain that their work is not motivated by money, but by a passion for the good of those believers put in their charge (see 1 Tim. 3:3, 8; Titus 1:11).

Church Leaders

Peter concludes his first letter with an exhortation for overseers to “shepherd the flock of God” (5:2). The following is a summary of the responsibilities and qualification of overseers and of deacons, the other church officials mentioned in the New Testament.

MeaningOverseers/Bishops/Elders

The Greek word diakonos literally means “servant.”

5:3 nor as being lords over: Echoing a command that Peter heard directly from Jesus during His earthly ministry, Peter reminds all Christian leaders that they need to perform the role of servants, not of masters, to those whom God has assigned to their care (see Matt. 20:25–28; Mark 10:42–45).

being examples: Christian leaders should be a godly model to other believers (see Phil. 3:17; 2 Thess. 3:9; 1 Tim. 4:12). Christ Himself set the example for all of us (see John 13:15).

5:4 Chief Shepherd: Elsewhere Jesus is called the Shepherd (2:25), the good Shepherd (see John 10:11, 14), and the great Shepherd (see Heb. 13:20). crown of glory: God guarantees that those ministers who serve Him faithfully, in accordance with the guidelines of vv. 2, 3, will receive an eternal reward in Christ's coming kingdom.

5:7 casting all your care upon Him: We need to present all our worries, anxieties, and problems to God in order to let Him handle them.

5:8 Be sober means to be self-disciplined, to think rationally and not foolishly. Be vigilant means to be alert to the spiritual pitfalls of life and take appropriate steps to make certain that we do not stumble. your adversary: Satan is our avowed enemy. He never ceases from being hostile toward us; he is constantly accusing us before God (see Job 1:9-2:7; Zech. 3:1; Luke 22:31; Rev. 12:10). like a roaring lion: Satan is both cunning and cruel. He attacks when least expected and desires to destroy completely those whom he attacks.

5:9 Resist him: We are not commanded to run, but to resist—to fight rather than flee. Victory comes when we remain committed to God, because He is greater than our enemy (see 1 John 4:4).

5:10 perfect: Like a doctor setting a broken bone, God will mend our broken lives and make us whole. establish: God will make our way stable, despite the instability we feel living in a world that inflicts suffering upon us. strengthen: God will give us the ability to succeed in all that we do for Him. settle: As a consequence of our facing the attacks of our enemy, God will build in us a firm foundation that will make us steadfast and immovable.

5:11 the glory and the dominion: God is in control of all things both in this world and throughout eternity. Amen: Responding to the Word of God by saying “amen” echoes a Jewish practice of declaring that everything that had been said is true and that the hearers were committed to putting into practice that truth (see Phil. 4:20).

5:12 Silvanus, whose Aramaic name was Silas, worked closely with both Peter and Paul (see Acts 15:40; 16:19, 25, 29; 2 Cor. 1:19; 1 Thess. 1:1). testifying: Peter uses an intensive verb form here to show the intensity of his commitment to witness unashamedly of God’s truth. Contrast Peter’s cowardly behavior prior to Jesus’ crucifixion (see Matt. 26:69–75; Mark 14:66–72; Luke 22:54–62; John 18:25–27).

5:13 She indicates the people who comprise the local church in the city from which Peter was writing (the Greek word for church is a feminine noun). Peter uses the term Babylon to refer to Rome. By the first century, the original Babylon was a small and insignificant town (see the Introduction to 1 Peter). elect together with you: All of the people of God are chosen by Him to be His people (1:2). Mark my son: John Mark (see Acts 12:12, 25; 15:37, 39) was Peter’s spiritual son, not his physical one.

5:14 a kiss of love: Early Christians and Jews greeted fellow believers with a kiss on the cheek. Here Peter is encouraging believers to treat fellow believers as part of one large spiritual family of God (see Rom. 16:16; 1 Cor. 16:20; 2 Cor. 13:12; 1 Thess. 5:26).

Introduction

Teaching and learning is important because it involves truth and error. What a student learns becomes ingrained in the heart and soul. The student develops an attachment to it. If this “learning” is false—if the student comes to believe that something untrue is actually true—so much the worse. It will be hard to convince the person otherwise. And if the truth or error involves our eternal destiny, the stakes only go up. This is why Peter wrote his second epistle. The Christian faith that Peter had faithfully preached was not just a matter of philosophy. It was a matter of eternal life and death. Yet there were those who were peddling their own propaganda, falsehoods that contradicted the truth. Peter had to say something; he had to confront these falsehoods so they would not be mistaken for the truth.

Author Second Peter is one of the New Testament books that struggled the longest to gain acceptance into the New Testament canon. Church authorities such as Origen (around A.D. 240) accepted it as canonical but admitted that it was a “disputed” book. Early critics believed it was written by a disciple of Peter in the second century who used Peter’s name. They based their belief on differences of language and style between it and 1 Peter, as well as differences in subject matter and approach. Furthermore they noted the similarities between 2 Peter and Jude, asserting that the unknown writer of 2 Peter borrowed from Jude, something the apostle Peter would have never done.

Nevertheless, by the fourth century A.D. the church councils had accepted 2 Peter as one of Peter’s authentic letters. Modern studies have shown that the differences with 1 Peter are not nearly as great as earlier critics contended, and the stylistic differences can be accounted for by the use of different secretaries. First Peter may have been written with the help of Silvanus (see 1 Pet. 5:12). It is quite likely that Peter either wrote the second letter himself or employed another scribe to write it down—perhaps Mark. Although 2 Peter does not refer to as many events in the life of Jesus as 1 Peter does, it accurately describes the Transfiguration, the prophecy of Peter’s own death, the day of the Lord’s coming as a thief in the night, and the prediction of the appearance of false prophets. All of these are clear allusions to Jesus’ life as recorded in the Gospels.

There is clear evidence from the early centuries of Christianity that the church did not tolerate those who wrote in an apostle’s name. In one instance (specifically The Acts of Paul and Thecla), the author of such a work was disciplined for doing so. Paul also condemned such practices in his Thessalonian letters (2 Thess. 3:17). From the preceding evidence, it is reasonable to maintain that Simon Peter wrote this letter, just as the letter itself asserts (see 1:1).

Date and Recipients Second Peter can be dated sometime between A.D. 64 and 68. It was probably written from Rome, where early church tradition has the apostle spending the closing years of his life. Peter died a martyr around A.D. 68, and the epistle was written shortly before that (see 1:14, 15).

Peter addressed his letter “to those who have obtained like precious faith with us” (1:1), a way of saying “to all believers everywhere.” He had written 1 Peter to the widely scattered Christians in the Asia Minor provinces of Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia. By the time he wrote 2 Peter, they were no doubt even more widely scattered. Some have noted that 2 Peter seems to be addressed to a group whom Peter knows well and who were facing a specific false teaching. Even if this is the case, the readers seem to be largely Gentiles (because of the multiple references to licentious lifestyles, a characteristic of Gentiles) or a mixed group of Jews and Gentiles, probably living in one of the provinces mentioned above. Word of their difficulties with false teachers had reached Peter in Rome, and he dispatched this letter to them to encourage them and warn them of the dangers they faced.

Relationship of 2 Peter to Jude The obvious similarities between 2 Peter and Jude call for an explanation (compare ch. 2 with Jude 4–18). Some have suggested that Peter borrowed from Jude, while other have maintained the opposite. In addition, some have suggested that both authors borrowed from another, anonymous source. This type of borrowing was fairly common in the first century. For example, it is evident that Luke used other sources when he wrote his Gospel (see Luke 1:1–4). Most scholars agree that the more complete and precise statements in Jude point to Peter borrowing from Jude. The fact that the early church treated James, a half brother of Jesus, with utmost respect (Acts 12:17; 15:13; 21:18; Gal. 1:19) may help explain why Peter borrowed from the letter of another half brother of Jesus, Jude.

Theology With its emphasis on holy living and its efforts to refute false teachings, 2 Peter stresses sanctification. Ultimately Peter traces the motivation for leading a holy life back to the imminent return of Christ and the punishment and rewards Jesus would bring. The letter groups these teachings into five different themes. (1) Initially Peter asserts his own authority and the authority of the apostles' teaching. Their instruction would help the readers of 2 Peter to distinguish truth from error. (2) Evidently the recipients of this letter were having trouble establishing the connection between following Christ and leading a holy life. Peter reiterated to them that discipleship to Christ means putting away all kinds of immorality. (3) Furthermore Peter warned them not to imitate the arrogance of the false teachers, who were slandering spiritual beings. (4) To encourage them to persevere and to remain faithful to the truths of the faith, Peter depicted the day of the Lord, which would result in a new heaven and new earth. (5) Towards the end of his letter, Peter encouraged his readers to be patient. God had good reasons for delaying Christ's return and the fulfillment of His prophetic program. The day of the Lord had been delayed, but it was still imminent. For this reason, they should vigilantly watch their belief and practice so that they would not be deceived by falsehood.

Christ in the Scriptures

As in his first epistle, Peter points to Jesus as the means by which our inner lives can remain godly. The Lord Jesus Christ, he says, is the source of full knowledge and power for the attainment of spiritual maturity (1:2, 3, 8; 3:18). Peter recalls the glory of Jesus' transfiguration on the holy mountain. He should know; he was there. Reflecting on that unforgettable experience, Peter anticipates the Lord's glorious return to earth. Then it won't just be three men on a mountain who see Him; all will behold His glory.

2 Peter 1

Greeting the Faithful

¹Simon Peter, a bondservant and ^aapostle of Jesus Christ,

To those who have ¹obtained ^blike² precious faith with us by the righteousness of our God and Savior Jesus Christ:

^{2c}Grace and peace be multiplied to you in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord,

³as His ^ddivine power has given to us all things that pertain to life and godliness, through the knowledge of Him ^ewho called us by glory and virtue,
Word Studies: divine power

^{4f}by which have been given to us exceedingly great and precious promises, that through these you may be ^gpartakers of the divine nature, having escaped the ³corruption that is in the world through lust.

Fruitful Growth in the Faith

⁵But also for this very reason, ^hgiving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, to virtue ⁱknowledge,

⁶to knowledge self-control, to self-control ⁴perseverance, to perseverance godliness,

⁷to godliness brotherly kindness, and ^jto brotherly kindness love.

⁸For if these things are yours and abound, you will be neither ⁵barren ^knor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

⁹For he who lacks these things is ^lshortsighted, even to blindness, and has forgotten that he was cleansed from his old sins.

¹⁰Therefore, brethren, be even more diligent ^mto make your call and election sure, for if you do these things you will never stumble;

¹¹for so an entrance will be supplied to you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Peter's Approaching Death

¹²For this reason ⁿI will not be negligent to remind you always of these things, ^othough you know and are established in the present truth.

¹³Yes, I think it is right, ^pas long as I am in this ⁶tent, ^qto stir you up by reminding you, ¹⁴^rknowing that shortly I must ⁷put off my tent, just as ^sour Lord Jesus Christ showed me.

¹⁵Moreover I will be careful to ensure that you always have a reminder of these things after my ⁸decease.

The Trustworthy Prophetic Word

(Matt. 17:5; Mark 9:7; Luke 9:35)

¹⁶For we did not follow ^tcunningly devised fables when we made known to you the ^upower and ^vcoming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were ^weyewitnesses of His majesty. Article: The Bible: Trustworthy and True

¹⁷For He received from God the Father honor and glory when such a voice came to Him from the Excellent Glory: ^x“This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.”

¹⁸And we heard this voice which came from heaven when we were with Him on ^ythe holy mountain.

¹⁹And so we have the prophetic word confirmed, which you do well to heed as a ^zlight that shines in a dark place, ^auntil ^bthe day dawns and the morning star rises in your ^chearts; Word Studies: morning star

²⁰knowing this first, that ^dno prophecy of Scripture is of any private ¹⁰interpretation, ²¹for ^eprophecy never came by the will of man, ^fbut ¹¹holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.

2 Peter 2

Destructive Doctrines

¹But there were also false prophets among the people, even as there will be ^afalse teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Lord who bought them, and bring on themselves swift destruction.

²And many will follow their destructive ways, because of whom the way of truth will be blasphemed.

³By covetousness they will exploit you with deceptive words; for a long time their judgment has not been idle, and their destruction ¹does not slumber.

Doom of False Teachers

⁴For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but cast them down to ²hell and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved for judgment;

Article: Demons

⁵and did not spare the ancient world, but saved Noah, one of eight people, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood on the world of the ungodly;

⁶and turning the cities of ^bSodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them to destruction, making them an example to those who afterward would live ungodly;

⁷and ^cdelivered righteous Lot, who was oppressed by the filthy conduct of the wicked

⁸(for that righteous man, dwelling among them, ^dtormented his righteous soul from day to day by seeing and hearing their lawless deeds)—

⁹*then* ^ethe Lord knows how to deliver the godly out of temptations and to reserve the unjust under punishment for the day of judgment,

¹⁰and especially ^fthose who walk according to the flesh in the lust of uncleanness and despise authority. ^g*They are* presumptuous, self-willed. They are not afraid to speak evil of ³dignitaries, ¹¹whereas ^hangels, who are greater in power and might, do not bring a reviling accusation against them before the Lord.

Depravity of False Teachers

¹²But these, ⁱlike natural brute beasts made to be caught and destroyed, speak evil of the things they do not understand, and will utterly perish in their own corruption,

^{13j}and will receive the wages of unrighteousness, as those who count it pleasure ^kto ⁴carouse in the daytime. ¹*They are* spots and blemishes, ⁵carousing in their own deceptions while ^mthey feast with you,

¹⁴having eyes full of ⁶adultery and that cannot cease from sin, enticing unstable souls. ⁿ*They have* a heart trained in covetous practices, and are accursed children.

¹⁵They have forsaken the right way and gone astray, following the way of ^oBalaam the son of Beor, who loved the wages of unrighteousness;

¹⁶but he was rebuked for his iniquity: a dumb donkey speaking with a man's voice restrained the madness of the prophet.

^{17p}These are wells without water, ⁷clouds carried by a tempest, for whom is reserved the blackness of darkness ⁸forever.

Deceptions of False Teachers

¹⁸For when they speak great swelling words of emptiness, they allure through the lusts of the flesh, through lewdness, the ones who ⁹have actually escaped from those who live in error.

¹⁹While they promise them liberty, they themselves are slaves of ¹⁰corruption; ⁹for by whom a person is overcome, by him also he is brought into ¹¹bondage.

²⁰For if, after they ^rhave escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are ^sagain entangled in them and overcome, the latter end is worse for them than the beginning.

²¹For ^tit would have been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than having known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered to them.

²²But it has happened to them according to the true proverb: ^u“A dog returns to his own vomit,” and, “a sow, having washed, to her wallowing in the mire.”

2 Peter 3

God's Promise Is Not Slack

(Gen. 6:5—8:22)

¹Beloved, I now write to you this second epistle (in both of which ^aI stir up your pure minds by way of reminder),

²that you may be mindful of the words ^bwhich were spoken before by the holy prophets, ^cand of the commandment of ¹us, the apostles of the Lord and Savior,

³knowing this first: that scoffers will come in the last days, ^dwalking according to their own lusts, Charts and Diagrams: Right Living in a Wretched World

⁴and saying, “Where is the promise of His coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of ^ecreation.”

⁵For this they willfully forget: that ^fby the word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth ^gstanding out of water and in the water, ^{6h}by which the world that then existed perished, being flooded with water.

⁷But ⁱthe heavens and the earth which are now preserved by the same word, are reserved for ^jfire until the day of judgment and ²perdition of ungodly men.

⁸But, beloved, do not forget this one thing, that with the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and ^ka thousand years as one day.

^{9l}The Lord is not slack concerning His promise, as some count slackness, but ^mis longsuffering toward ³us, ⁿnot willing that any should perish but ^othat all should come to repentance.

The Day of the Lord

¹⁰But ^pthe day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in which ^qthe heavens will pass away with a great noise, and the elements will melt with fervent heat; both the earth and the works that are in it will be ⁴burned up.

¹¹Therefore, since all these things will be dissolved, what manner of persons ought you to be ^rin holy conduct and godliness, ^{12s}looking for and hastening the coming of the day of God, because of which the heavens will ^ube dissolved, being on fire, and the elements will ^umelt with fervent heat?

¹³Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for ^vnew heavens and a ^wnew earth in which righteousness dwells.

Be Steadfast

¹⁴Therefore, beloved, looking forward to these things, be diligent ^xto be found by Him in peace, without spot and blameless;

¹⁵and consider that ^ythe longsuffering of our Lord is salvation—as also our beloved brother Paul, according to the wisdom given to him, has written to you,

¹⁶as also in all his ^zepistles, speaking in them of these things, in which are some things hard to understand, which untaught and unstable people twist to their own destruction, as they do also the ^arest of the Scriptures.

¹⁷You therefore, beloved, ^bsince you know this beforehand, ^cbeware lest you also fall from your own steadfastness, being led away with the error of the wicked;

^{18d}but grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. ^eTo Him be the glory both now and forever. Amen. Word Studies: knowledge

Annotations for 2 Peter

1:1 apostle: With this term Peter identifies himself as an authorized spokesman for the truth that Christ proclaimed. In vv. 1–4 Peter describes the resources his readers have that will make growth in grace and knowledge possible. His apostleship is the first of these resources. like precious faith: Anyone who has faith in Jesus has the same access to God as any other believer. This access is the second great resource that Peter’s readers possess. It was obtained when they were given the gift of righteousness (justification). The righteousness believers are given is the righteousness of Christ Himself. our God and Savior Jesus Christ: This title of Jesus reflects Peter’s great confession in John 6:69: “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.”

1:2 Grace and peace is a common Christian greeting in the epistles, combining Greek and Hebrew salutations. However, the phrase is more than a salutation to Peter. He sees grace and peace as blessings that spring from the knowledge of God and Jesus. The Greek word translated knowledge is a key word in this letter. It describes a special kind of knowledge, a kind that is complete. Since our knowledge of Jesus grows as we mature in the faith, we will experience His grace and peace on many different occasions in our Christian walk.

1:3 The apostle Paul identifies the divine power referred to here as “the power of His resurrection” (see Phil. 3:10; 4:13). This power is the third resource for godly living that Peter lists in this letter (v. 1). by glory and virtue: These words suggest the qualities of Jesus that attract believers to Him. The glory that John saw in Jesus (see John 1:14) was His authority and power. The glory that Peter saw probably was manifested at the Transfiguration (vv. 16–18). Jesus’ virtue is His moral excellence that continually awed His disciples.

Word Studies

divine power

(Gk. theios dunamis) (1:3) Strong's #2304; 1411

divine nature (Gk. theios phusis) (1:4) Strong's #2304; 5449

These are unique expressions in the NT. The divine power is the power God used in raising Christ from the dead, and that same power is available to the church (Eph. 1:19, 20). This divine power has provided us with the spiritual ability to live a godly life. The divine nature is the nature that characterizes God, the nature that is expressed in holiness, virtue, righteousness, love, and grace (see 1:5–7). By being regenerated with the divine nature, believers can exhibit the same characteristics.

Go to the List of Word Studies

1:4 Great and precious promises refers to the numerous offers of divine provision found in Scripture. These promises offer us the glory and virtue of Christ as the basis for our growing participation in the divine nature. We have Christ within us, as He promised (see John 14:23), to enable us to become increasingly Christlike (see 2 Cor. 3:18). Because we have become new creatures in Christ, we have already escaped the corruption (the moral ruin) that is in the world through lust (perverted desire). We should make our escape from this world evident to all by our godly behavior and the renewing of our mind (see Rom. 12:2). These promises are the fourth resource (vv. 1, 3) upon which believers may draw for sustaining help.

1:5 add: This exhortation begins a section (vv. 5–11) in which Peter describes the responsibilities that result from possessing the godly resources described in vv. 1, 3, 4. Faith marks the beginning of the Christian life (see Acts 3:16; Rom. 3:28; Heb. 11:6). Through genuine faith, God grants eternal life to a spiritually dead person (see Eph. 2:1). Virtue is the same word used in v. 3 in reference to Christ's character. We cannot produce virtue ourselves; but we can choose to obey the virtuous promptings of the Holy Spirit who lives in us. Knowledge (practical wisdom) is obtained by dedicating ourselves to learning God's truth in the Scriptures and putting that truth into action.

1:6 Self-control means mastering one's emotions rather than being controlled by them. The false teachers whose views Peter was exposing believed that knowledge freed people from the need to control their passions. perseverance: A person who exercises self-control will not easily succumb to discouragement or the temptation to quit. Viewing all circumstances as coming from the hand of a loving Father who is in control of all things is the secret of perseverance.

1:7 The Greek word for godliness was used by ancient pagans to describe a religious individual who kept in close touch with the gods. Here Peter uses the word to speak of the need for Christians to be continually aware of God's presence. Knowing that all of our life is in His hands should influence every aspect of our life. We should live for God and not for ourselves. Brotherly kindness is so closely linked with godliness that 1 John 4:20 says, "If someone says, 'I love God,' and hates his brother, he is a liar." As Jesus taught in John 15:12–17, love involves serving one another, sharing with one another, and praying for one another. Love here refers to God's kind of love, which originates not in the one loved but in the one who loves. God loves because He is love; we are to love because we are from God.

1:8 neither barren nor unfruitful: The presence of the qualities listed in vv. 5–7 marks a healthy Christian and assures productivity in our lives.

1:9 The lack of fruitfulness (v. 8) in a believer's life may be caused by two factors: blindness and forgetfulness. A shortsighted person is one who looks only at earthly and material values—what is close at hand—and does not see the eternal spiritual realities. Concerned only with this present life, such a person becomes blind to the things of God, forgetting the wonderful sense of cleansing that comes from turning oneself over to Christ.

1:11 entrance . . . abundantly: Peter distinguishes between a just-barely-made-it entrance into the eternal kingdom and a richly abundant one. The Scripture indicates that fruitful and faithful living here will be rewarded by greater privileges and rewards in glory (see Rev. 22:12).

1:12 to remind you: Three times in vv. 12–15 Peter speaks of his desire to remind his readers of the truth he has already shared. To do otherwise would be negligence on his part, since even established Christians can lose sight of the importance of pressing on to the end.

1:13, 14 Peter is conscious of the short time he has to be in his body. Paul also viewed his body as a tent or tabernacle, a temporary residence (see 2 Cor. 5:1). Jesus had told Peter that when he was old he would be taken captive and put to death (see John 21:18, 19). Now that he had little time left, Peter encouraged his readers to seize the opportunity to display Christ's love while they still could.

1:15 careful to ensure: Several early church fathers took these words to be Peter's promise to leave behind a testimony of the truth for his readers, which they considered to be the Gospel of Mark (a Gospel widely regarded as Peter's testimony of the life of Jesus). Peter describes his decease as an exodus or departure (see Paul's use of the term in 2 Tim. 4:6).

1:16 False teachers were claiming that Jesus' resurrection and return, as well as the Holy Spirit's indwelling of believers, were all cunningly devised fables. Peter countered their faith claims with an eyewitness account. Peter himself had actually seen the power and coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. These are the twin themes of this letter: the power of Jesus available for holy living and the coming of Jesus as the glorious hope of each believer.

The Bible: Trustworthy and True

Is the Bible a trustworthy document? Are the Scriptures true as written? Or are they full of myths that may have symbolic value but little if any basis in fact? People have been questioning the biblical record almost from its beginnings. Peter, for instance, encountered skepticism as he presented the gospel in the first century. His claims about Jesus were nothing but cleverly devised fables, some said—a charge he vehemently denied (1:16).

Today the Bible's credibility and authority are still attacked. Yet how many of its critics have carefully studied its teaching? How many have even looked at the story of how it came to be written?

A careful reader will recognize that the Bible is not so much a single book as a library of 66 books. It contains a variety of literary genres: history, poetry, narrative, exposition, parable, and "apocalyptic" (see Rev. 10:1–10). Its many authors wrote during a period of some two thousand years using three languages—Hebrew, Greek, and Aramaic. Probably all but one were Jews.

Remarkably, the writers tell one unified story:

- They offer the same understanding of God throughout. He is one God, Creator, Savior, and Judge. He is all-powerful, all-knowing, and eternal. His character is holy, good, loving, and just.
- They offer the same understanding of human nature. People are made in God's image and are capable of great good. Yet they are also sinful and capable of great wickedness. The great need of humanity is to be reconciled to God and to each other.
- They offer a common understanding of Jesus Christ. He is both God and man. He became a real human being in order to show the world the God it could not otherwise perceive. Something deeply significant happened as a result of His death on the cross, making it possible for God and humanity to be reconciled.

- They offer the same hope. God will accomplish His purposes for His creation.

Aside from the internal evidence that Scripture is what it claims to be—the very words of God—is a growing body of external evidence that supports its reliability as a document. For example, scholars have found many contemporary sources that parallel the Scriptural record. For instance, Jesus is mentioned by two Roman writers of the first century, Tacitus (Annals 15.44) and Pliny the Younger (Letters 19.96), as well as by some Jewish writings of that period, including Josephus (Antiquities 18.3.3) and the Mishnah, a collection of traditions under compilation in Jesus' day.

Another body of research that proves invaluable for biblical studies is archaeology. Countless discoveries have helped to verify the text of Scripture, most notably the Dead Sea Scrolls. Likewise, digs throughout the Mediterranean have supported biblical references to various places and people and the events of which they were a part thousands of years ago.

The more one examines the evidence, the more one becomes convinced that the Bible is more than a cleverly devised tale. It has the ring of authenticity. But in that case, readers ought to pay attention to its message. That is the ultimate issue. As Mark Twain aptly put it, it is not the things in the Bible that people can't understand that prove troublesome, but the things they can understand. Even if people are convinced that the Bible is true from cover to cover, will they heed its message?

The Great Isaiah Scroll found at Qumran

1:17, 18 Along with James and John, Peter heard the voice of the Father during the Transfiguration (see Matt. 17:1–13). That voice conferred honor upon Jesus by identifying Him as “My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased” (see Matt. 17:5). Jesus’ glory was displayed in His shining garments (see Mark 9:3).

1:19 We have the prophetic word confirmed may be rephrased as “we have the prophetic word as a surer confirmation.” As strong as an eyewitness account (vv. 16–18) may be, there is an even stronger confirmation that Jesus is who He said He was. The written Scriptures are even more trustworthy than the personal experience of the apostle Peter. They cast a light that shines like a lamp in a dark place and will continue to do so until the morning star rises (see Rom. 13:12–14). In other words, the truths in the Bible will continue to point to the source of all truth, Christ, until He returns in glory.

(Gk. phōsphoros) (1:19) Strong's #5459

The Greek term means “light-bearer” or “light-bringer.” Christ is the morning star, as elsewhere He is called the Bright and Morning Star (Rev. 22:16) and the Dayspring, that is, the rising sun (Luke 1:78). Presently, Christ shines in our hearts; when He returns, He will arise in our hearts and bring us into a perfect day. His outward coming will be matched by an inward rising, “an illuminating transformation” of our spirits.

- 1:20 of any private interpretation: Although some have taken this phrase to mean that no individual Christian has the right to interpret prophecy for himself or herself, the context and the Greek word for interpretation indicates another meaning for the verse. The Greek word for interpretation can also mean “origin.” In the context of v. 21, it is clear that Peter is speaking of Scripture’s “origin” from God Himself and not the credentials of the one who interprets it. There is no private source for the Bible; the prophets did not supply their own solutions or explanations to the mysteries of life. Rather, God spoke through them; He alone is responsible for what is written in Scripture.
- 1:21 prophecy never came by the will of man: No mere mortal chose to utter his own thoughts as though they were God’s. On the contrary, God chose holy men to be His spokesmen, men who uttered thoughts given to them by the Holy Spirit.
- 2:1 Just as God’s prophets of the past were opposed by false prophets, believers are opposed by false teachers. The difference in terminology suggests that the false teachers among Peter’s readers made no claim to being prophets, but were distorting the Scriptures with heretical interpretations. Peter’s certainty that there will be such false teachers probably rests on Jesus’ predictions (see Matt. 24:4, 5). False teachers could be recognized by their secretive approaches, their doctrinal errors (such as a denial of Christ), and by their abrupt departure from the Christian community (see 1 John 2:19).
- 2:2 destructive ways: Peter is addressing here the ethical implications of false teaching. The Greek word translated destructive means “shameful” or “deliberately immoral.” The false teachers gloried in the privileges of Christianity but treated its moral demands with indifference. blasphemed: The truth of Christian redemption is held in contempt by many because of the immoral behavior of professing Christians.
- 2:3 covetousness: The false teachers did not hesitate to take advantage of their followers in order to enrich themselves. judgment . . . destruction: Peter turns from the description of the false teachers to a description of their fate. Verses 4–8 provide three vivid examples of judgment on false teachers of the past.
- 2:4 the angels who sinned: There are two main interpretations of this passage, depending on one’s understanding of Gen. 6:1–6. Some think that Peter is referring to “sons of God” in Gen. 6:2. According to this interpretation, the “sons of God” were angels who rebelled against God and their role in creation. They began to engage in forbidden practices with the daughters of men. Their outrageous conduct was met with immediate judgment: The angels were cast into hell, or Tartarus, a place of final punishment. Tartarus involves severe limitation of action, symbolized by chains, and almost total lack of understanding, symbolized by darkness. A second group of commentators balk at the suggestion of sexual relations between angels and women. They consider this verse to be simply a reference to those angels who fell with Satan.

Demons

Demons are another name for fallen angels who joined the kingdom of Satan in rebellion against God.

The origin of demons is not explicitly discussed in the Bible. But the New Testament speaks of the fall and later imprisonment of a group of angels (1 Pet. 3:19, 20; 2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 6). The group that participated in the fall apparently followed one of their own number, Satan. The fall occurred before God's creation of the world. In retaliatory hatred for God, Satan and his angels tirelessly seek to contaminate the human race with wickedness (Gen. 3; Matt. 25:41; Rev. 12:9).

A symbolic view of this "initial" fall appears in Revelation 12:4 where the dragon (a symbol for Satan) "drew a third of the stars of heaven" (a symbol for fallen angels) and "threw them to the earth." Thus Satan has his own "angels," who most students see as the demons of this era (Matt. 25:41; Rev. 12:9).

Because the Jews believed God's power was unlimited, the Old Testament contains little information about demons. The primitive status of the understanding of demons during this time is perhaps reflected in the way the Old Testament relates the fallen angels to God. It was a "distressing [or evil] spirit from God" (1 Sam. 16:15, 16, 23) that brought great distress to Saul the king. It was a "lying spirit" from the Lord about whom Micaiah, the prophet of the Lord, spoke (1 Kin. 22:21–23). In short, this is not to say God willed, but rather allowed the evil spirit to do its work. The Bible reveals also that all pagan worship is a fountainhead of demon activity (Lev. 17:7; Ps. 106:37). Demons function with greater freedom to work their bondage wherever human activities open to their "worship"—that is, participate in carnal activities that disobey God's Word, indulge the flesh, and cooperate with hell's agenda of sin, lust, and self-indulgence.

The New Testament accepts the Old Testament teaching about evil spirits and advances the doctrine significantly. Demons are designated in a number of different ways in the New Testament. They are called "unclean spirits" (Matt. 10:1; Mark 6:7), "evil spirits" (Luke 7:21; Acts 19:12, 13), "deceiving spirits" (1 Tim. 4:1), and a "spirit of error" (1 John 4:6). The Bible warns against occult involvements, showing demon activity proliferates in such an evil spiritual environment. Luke describes one demon as a "spirit of divination" (Acts 16:16). Isaiah 8:19–22 and 47:9–15 clearly reinforce the danger-avoiding direction of Leviticus 17:7, in the spirit of the truth inherent in Deuteronomy 18:9–14 and 32:15–18. Paul clearly held this understanding (1 Cor. 10:20, 21) and warns against believers conceding any territory in their souls to the devil or his cohorts (Eph. 4:25–32; see v. 27).

A prime purpose of Jesus' earthly ministry was to overcome the power of Satan. This included His conquest of the demonic realm (Matt. 12:25–29; Luke 11:17–22; John 12:31; 1 John 3:8). This explains the fierce conflict between Jesus and these evil spirits while He was on earth, and why Jesus promises His people—the redeemed—authority over and power to cast out demons (Matt. 10:8; Mark 16:17).

Following the resurrection of Jesus and His return to heaven, these demonic principalities and powers have continued their warfare against those who are His followers (Rom. 8:38, 39; Eph. 6:12). Yet Satan and his allies will finally be overthrown by God. After Christ returns, the devil and his angels will be defeated and thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone (Matt. 25:41, Rev. 20:10). This is a doom with which demons are quite familiar (Matt. 8:29). God will achieve the ultimate victory in this conflict which has been going on since the beginning of time.

2:5 did not spare the ancient world: Peter's second example of God's judgment (see v. 4) is the flood that came upon the ungodly in Noah's day (see 3:6; 1 Pet. 3:20). Noah is called a preacher of righteousness because his righteous life put to shame the immoral lives of his neighbors. Noah's building of the ark would certainly have given him the opportunity to explain the coming judgment and to invite people to repent and believe in God. But his entreaties fell on deaf ears, just as the truth of Christ's atonement fell on the deaf ears of the false teachers of Peter's day. Such indifference and unbelief brought the ungodly of Noah's world to certain destruction.

2:6 Sodom and Gomorrah is Peter's third example of God's judgment (see vv. 4, 5). Genesis 19 makes it clear that sexual perversion was the primary cause of the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah.

2:7, 8 Three times in these two verses Lot is described as a righteous man. The Genesis account seems to portray Lot as a man influenced by the values of the world. Here we are told of Lot's reaction to evil: He was depressed by the filthy conduct of the wicked and upset at their lawless actions. Lot was considered righteous by God because he refused to join in the immoral revelry of that city. For this reason he was delivered by divine intervention.

2:9, 10 the Lord knows how: God is in full control of all events. He delivers the godly out of, but not away from, their trials. He also sees that the unjust do not escape their day of punishment. Two particular groups are singled out for judgment: those who live in unclean lust and those who hold authority in contempt. presumptuous, self-willed: These words describe the character and methods of false teachers. Their actions are characterized by boldness; they recklessly defy both God and man. Behind their presumption is a commitment to their own desires. The dignitaries that the false teachers slander are probably angels, although the word can refer to people in authority. The reference here is almost certainly to Jude 9, where the archangel Michael, disputing with Satan over the body of Moses, does not revile the devil but simply says, "The Lord rebuke you."

2:12 like natural brute beasts: False teachers are compared to animals in their behavior because they act in ignorance of the realities of death and judgment. Like animals, they also react only to present circumstances, without giving thought to the consequences of their actions.

2:13 False teachers are perverse in their display of evil, like those who carouse in the daytime. Even pagan societies thought it strange and unnatural to hold drunken revels in broad daylight. However, the false teachers had no qualms about practicing their erroneous concept of Christian liberty in clear daylight. As a result, they would receive the wages of unrighteousness, that is, spiritual death (see Rom. 6:23). The feast mentioned here may have been the agape, or love feast, built around the celebration of the Lord's Supper. On the other hand, the term may simply refer to social contact with the heretical teachers. The heretics were so self-deceived that they actually thought they were celebrating their freedom in Christ with their drunken revelry at the Lord's Table. In fact, they were spots and blemishes, disfiguring and degrading the purity of the Lord's feast.

2:14 The eyes of the false teachers were full of adultery. They looked lustfully at women. They could not cease from sin because their fantasizing had become habitual. As a consequence, they convinced certain unstable souls in the church that adultery was acceptable Christian behavior and lured them into sexual immorality. Enticing means "to catch with bait." These new, unstable converts, not yet fully grounded in Christ, were easily hooked into an immoral lifestyle.

2:15, 16 The account of Balaam in Num. 22-24 is used here, as well as in Jude 11 and Rev. 2:14, to depict the danger of forsaking the right way and going astray. Balaam's primary downfall was that he loved the wages of unrighteousness. He sold his prophetic powers to the pagan king Balak and, for a promised monetary reward, sought to curse the children of God.

2:17 wells . . . clouds: Peter accuses the heretical teachers of awakening false expectations, like springs that contain no water or storm clouds that darken but produce no rain.

2:18 Allure , like enticing in v. 14, means "to catch with bait." The bait is great swelling words of emptiness, high-sounding promises that prove to have no real content. The hook is the lusts of the flesh, normal sexual desires that are practiced in wrong ways. The heretical teachers clearly were implying that once the soul is saved, what is done in the body is of no importance. those who live in error: The guarding of the flock from "wolves in sheep's clothing," as Jesus described false teachers, was one of the primary concerns of the apostles and is one of the chief tasks of pastors.

2:19 The irony of false teaching is that it promises great freedom while its advocates are already slaves to sin. The gospel offers release from the corruption of the world, but the false teachers were involved in moral ruin by their immoral practices (vv. 14–18) and greedy motivations (v. 3). These false teachers were probably twisting the Christian concept of freedom from the law into a license for sinning (see Paul's condemnation of this type of thinking in Rom. 6).

2:20 they have escaped: The subject of this phrase is the heretical teachers who are called "slaves of corruption" in v. 19. This verse seems to indicate that the teachers had formerly turned from the pollution of the world through a full and experiential knowledge of Christ. Now, however, they have fallen again into immorality, even becoming teachers of sinful lifestyles. As a result, the latter end is worse for them than the beginning. This phrase is almost certainly taken from Jesus' words in Matt. 12:45 and probably reflects Peter's memory of that occasion.

2:21 better . . . not to have known: Knowledge without obedience is dangerous. Jesus said of Judas that it would have been better for him not to have been born than to have turned from the truth he had known (see Matt. 26:24). The phrases way of righteousness and holy commandment emphasize the ethical content of the knowledge the false teachers had (v. 20). They knew what was right and holy, but they deliberately chose to do what was wrong and corrupt.

2:22 according to the true proverb: Jews considered dogs and pigs among the lowest of animals, so Peter chooses these animals to describe people who have known the truth but have turned away from it. The first proverb is found in Prov. 26:11; the second is from the Syrian story of Ahikar, known to Peter and his readers.

3:1 Peter returns to his exhortation of the believers, addressing them as beloved (see vv. 8, 14, 17). this second epistle: It is natural to assume that the first epistle Peter implies here is 1 Peter. However, 1 Peter is not really a letter of reminder, as Peter suggests here (1:12–15). In addition, 1 Peter was sent to a wide range of readers living in five different provinces (see 1 Pet. 1:1), while this letter seems to be addressed to a single church (or nearby churches) whose people and circumstances Peter knows well. For these reasons, many believe that the first letter referred to here was one written to the same readers as 2 Peter, but now lost to us (see Paul's reference to an earlier letter in 1 Cor. 5:9). In both letters to this congregation, Peter sought to awaken his readers' pure minds to the dangers of phony leaders who claimed to be Christians.

3:2 words which were spoken before: The only way Peter's readers could recognize the errors of the heretical teachers was to compare their teaching with the teaching of the holy prophets and apostles. As Peter had already reminded his readers in 1:21, "holy men" spoke words given to them by the Holy Spirit, which were therefore utterly reliable. These completely reliable words are in the Bible, God's Word. The commandment of the apostles probably refers to the new commandment Jesus gave, that believers should love one another (see John 13:34, 35).

3:3 A primary motivation for righteous living was the expectation of Christ's return (see 1 John 3:2, 3). However, the unforeseen delay in that coming would soon produce scoffers who would mock the coming, because they desired to live in ways that fulfilled their self-indulgent desires. The suggestion is that the scoffers here and the heretical teachers of ch. 2 are one and the same. The apostles had predicted that such scoffing would occur (see 2 Tim. 3:1–5; James 5:3; Jude 18). The last days refers to the present age (see Heb. 1:2). Throughout the centuries, scoffers have denied the Second Coming whenever hedonism and humanism have prevailed in the church.

Right Living in a Wretched World

Writing to beleaguered Christians in an evil world where false teachers were aggressively spreading dangerous heresies, Peter urged, “grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ” (3:18). The following is a summary of the components of spiritual growth Peter advocated.

Practice: Godly Living

Passage: 1:1–15

Principles

- Through Christ we have been given everything we need to live godly lives.
- We are partakers of the divine nature.
- We have been freed from the power of the old corrupt, sinful nature.

Practice: Reliance on the Scriptures

Passage: 1:16–21; 3:1, 2

Principles

- Christian doctrine is not just another point of view; it is not a fable.
- The Scriptures can be trusted because they were written by prophets and apostles inspired by the Holy Spirit.
- The Scriptures function as a light in a dark age; they are an absolute in a relativistic world.

Practice: Opposition to False Teaching

Passage: 2:1–22

Principles

- We are not to be swayed by the large numbers of people who are persuaded by unbiblical ideas.
- Judgment is guaranteed for all who oppose the truths of God.
- We should exercise discernment granted by the Holy Spirit to detect the deceptive teachings and alluring promises of the ungodly.

Practice: Watchfulness

Passage: 3:3–18

Principles

- By looking for the return of Christ, we can avoid the sinful traps of the world.
- We need to take care that we do not become lax in our thinking—God has set a day which will mark the end of this world as we know it.
- God’s promise of judgment should prompt us to encourage others to repent and believe in Christ.

- 3:4 all things continue: The basis for denying the supernatural reappearance of Jesus is that nothing of that nature has occurred in the past. The fathers who fell asleep refers to the OT patriarchs.
- 3:5, 6 they willfully forget: The scoffing teachers would choose to overlook events such as creation and the Flood. The people of Noah's time did not believe in Noah's warning because they had never experienced a flood. They forgot, as the false teachers later would, that God created the entire universe by His word, something that they also had not experienced. Just as creation was by His word, the world is being sustained by His word. Likewise, the world's judgment and destruction would be by His word. God is in control, no matter what happens to this world.
- 3:8 a thousand years: God will surely accomplish His purposes and promises, even though it may appear that He is slow in doing so. His timing is always perfect.
- 3:9 The delay of God's judgment is not due to slackness, but to the Lord's longsuffering attitude toward His people. not willing that any should perish: This text does not teach that God actually decrees that all will be saved (universalism). The reference here is not to God's decree, but to His desire. Obviously everything that a sovereign God decrees will occur. Here Peter is describing the sovereign God's desire that all people would turn to Him and turn away from unprofitable lives (see 1 Tim. 2:4).
- 3:10 Day of the Lord here describes the end-time events, the Second Coming (see the descriptions of the end times in Dan. 9:24–27; 1 Thess. 5:2; 2 Thess. 2:1–12). At the end of this age in the day of the Lord's judgment, the heavens will pass away with a great noise and the elements will melt, presumably by fire (v. 12). Peter's description requires the unlimited power of God in dissolving the very elements of the universe, from which He will create a new heaven and new earth (see v. 13; Rev. 21; 22).
- 3:11 what manner of persons: The primary purpose of prophetic teaching is not to satisfy our curiosity but to motivate us to change our lives. Rather than working for things that will ultimately be destroyed, we should work for things that are eternal.
- 3:15, 16 Note that Peter equates the letters of Paul with the rest of the Scriptures, indicating that Peter considered the apostle Paul's writings to be the Word of God. Note that Peter considers Paul's writings on the end times to be hard to understand. This should be a comfort to each of us who attempt to interpret the writings of Paul on the coming of Christ. Even Peter found them difficult. Because of this, however, Peter says some people who are untaught and unstable destroy themselves. Untaught refers to one whose mind is untrained and undisciplined in habits of thought. Unstable refers to one whose conduct is not properly established on the truths of God's Word.
- 3:17, 18 Peter admonishes his readers that since they know truth, they should depart from the error of the wicked and grow in the grace and knowledge of the Lord.

knowledge

(Gk. gnōsis) (1:5; 3:18; Eph. 3:19; Phil. 3:8; Col. 2:3) Strong's #1108

This Greek word for knowledge usually connotes progressive, experiential, and personal knowledge; it is knowledge that can grow. We need to grow in our actual, personal knowledge of Jesus Christ; such knowledge is the greatest protection against false teachings. One of the prominent themes in this epistle is Peter's exhortation to the believers to attain a fuller, more thorough knowledge of Jesus Christ (1:8; 2:20; 3:18).

Introduction

Part of the arrogance of human nature is to think that we know more than others do. In this letter, the apostle John addresses the problem of false teachers who were making lofty claims about their knowledge regarding the deity and nature of Christ. John counters their false claims by reminding his readers of the eyewitness accounts of the apostles, including himself. Jesus Christ came in human flesh, lived a human life, died, and then was raised from the dead. He was fully human and fully God. Anything else being taught by others was false. In this letter, John sounded the alarm: False teaching could not be tolerated. Falsehoods would lead to immorality, and immorality would lead to eternal death. In contrast, the truth would demonstrate itself in love, and love would lead to eternal life. For John, what one believed truly mattered.

Author and Date The author of this letter is understood to be John, the beloved apostle. Though he does not identify himself in this letter, the similarity of vocabulary and writing style between this book and the Gospel of John argues convincingly that both were written by the same person. The writings of the early church fathers, from Ignatius to Polycarp, also identify John as the author of this letter. Furthermore, in the epistle's first few verses (1:1–4), the author places himself among the eyewitnesses of the earthly life of Christ, as one who literally saw and touched “the Word of life.” Obviously such a description fits an apostle but not a second-generation church leader. Finally, the author virtually calls himself an apostle (the “we” of 1:1–3; 4:14 seems to refer to the apostles).

Although some have argued that the epistle was written before the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, a later first-century date allows for the appearance of the ideas that later developed into Gnosticism, ideas that John was probably addressing in this letter. On the other hand, the letter could not have been written later than the end of the first century, when John died. Also, the evidence of early second-century writers who knew of the epistle and quoted from it demonstrates that it was written prior to then. Thus 1 John probably was written just a few years before the Book of Revelation.

In determining the date of the writing, several factors should be considered. First, the tone of the book and especially the attitude of the author toward the readers suggest an older person addressing a younger generation. Second, Irenaeus indicates that John lived in Ephesus and wrote to the churches of Asia. John's letters to the churches of Asia in Revelation (see Rev. 2; 3) substantiate Irenaeus's comment. It is natural to conclude that 1 John is directed to these same believers. Third, Paul visited Ephesus several times between A.D. 53 and 56, using the city as the center of his evangelism efforts. Timothy was in Ephesus with Paul around A.D. 63 and was still there when Paul wrote him around A.D. 67. There is no indication that Timothy and John were at Ephesus at the same time, so John must have visited Ephesus after Timothy's departure. This would put the date of the writing of 1 John after A.D. 67 but before A.D. 98. A date around A.D. 90 seems reasonable.

Historical Background Gnosticism was a problem that threatened the church in Asia Minor during the second century A.D. Gnosticism was a teaching that blended Eastern mysticism with Greek dualism (which claimed that the spirit is completely good, but matter is completely evil). This teaching was present in the church in a seminal form during the latter years of the first century. By the middle of the second century it had become a fully developed theological system, which included Gnostic gospels and epistles. John recognized the danger of Gnosticism and wrote to counteract its influence before it could sweep through the churches of Asia Minor. Based on the concept that matter is evil and spirit is good, some Gnostics concluded that if God was truly good He could not have created the material universe. Therefore, some lesser god had to have created it. According to them, the God of the Old Testament was this lesser god. The dualistic views of Gnosticism were also reflected in the prevalent belief that Jesus did not have a physical body. This teaching, called Docetism, claimed that Jesus only appeared to have a human body and never actually suffered pain and death on the Cross.

Another heresy that John addressed in this letter and personally confronted at Ephesus was Cerinthianism. This heresy taught that Jesus was just a man upon whom the “Christ” descended at His baptism, that the Christ then departed from Jesus just before His crucifixion, and that thus the spiritual Christ did not really suffer and die for humanity’s sins on the Cross, but only appeared to.

There are several indications that John was addressing these heresies in this epistle. Note the use of expressions like “which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled” (1:1); “every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is of God” (4:2); and “He who came by water and blood” (5:6). All of these phrases use explicit and vivid language to describe the Incarnation, the truth that Jesus is both completely God and completely human.

Purpose and Themes John most likely wrote this letter with two purposes in mind—one pastoral and one polemical. John’s pastoral purpose was to promote fellowship (1:3). But for the believers to have true fellowship, they needed to understand the true nature of God (1:5; 2:29; 4:7, 8). Thus the pastoral purpose naturally leads to the polemical purpose (2:26), which was to protect his readers against the deceptive ideas of false teachers. If the believers were deceived by false doctrine, they would eventually lose their unity, which is possible only in the love of Christ. Evidently some deceivers had arisen among the believers (2:18, 19, 26). If Christians could sort out truth from falsehood, they would be able to maintain their unity in the faith and have an opportunity to show love to their fellow believers (3:11). For John, a person's behavior was naturally a result of that person's belief.

In accordance with John's purpose, fellowship dominates the first portion of this letter (1:5—2:27), while assurance of salvation dominates the remainder. Key concepts in the letter include eternal life, knowing God, and abiding in the faith. In addition, John develops theological ideas in this letter through explicit contrasts, such as walking in light or in darkness, children of God or of the devil, life or death, love or hate. With these contrasts John was attempting to draw a clear line between true and false teachers.

John was writing to believers who were dealing with a particular type of false teaching, the contagious heresy of early Gnosticism. He wrote this letter to encourage them to abide in what they had heard from the beginning so that they could maintain their fellowship with God and their love for fellow believers. In short, he exhorted them to make their belief in Christ evident to all, so that correct doctrine could be identified by their righteous life and their wholehearted love for others.

Christ in the Scriptures

A heretical movement known as Gnosticism was gaining in popularity. It denied that Jesus really did have a human body. John explains clearly that Jesus was both divine and human—he had seen that with his own eyes, having been witness to Jesus' life as well as to His transfiguration. “That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, concerning the Word of life . . .” (1:1).

But John is not only concerned with countering the Gnostics' claims. He also desires to encourage the persecuted believers by reminding them of Jesus' present ministry among them. The Savior's blood continually cleanses us from all sin. That's because, as John emphasizes, Jesus is our righteous Advocate before the Father.

1 John 1

What Was Heard, Seen, and Touched

(John 1:1–5)

¹That ^awhich was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have ^bseen with our eyes, ^cwhich we have looked upon, and ^dour hands have handled, concerning the ^eWord of life—

²^fthe life ^gwas manifested, and we have seen, ^hand bear witness, and declare to you that eternal life which was ⁱwith the Father and was manifested to us—

³that which we have seen and heard we declare to you, that you also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship ^jis with the Father and with His Son Jesus Christ.

⁴And these things we write to you ^kthat ¹your joy may be full.

Fellowship with Him and One Another

⁵^lThis is the message which we have heard from Him and declare to you, that ^mGod is light and in Him is no darkness at all.

⁶ⁿIf we say that we have fellowship with Him, and walk in darkness, we lie and do not practice the truth.

⁷But if we ^owalk in the light as He is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and ^pthe blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanses us from all sin.

⁸If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. Article: Freedom from Guilt

⁹If we ^qconfess our sins, He is ^rfaithful and just to forgive us our sins and to ^scleanse us from all unrighteousness.

¹⁰If we say that we have not sinned, we ^tmake Him a liar, and His word is not in us.

1 John 2

¹My little children, these things I write to you, so that you may not sin. And if anyone sins, ^awe have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. Word Studies: advocate

²And ^bHe Himself is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only but ^calso for the whole world.

The Test of Knowing Him

³Now by this we know that we know Him, if we keep His commandments.

⁴He who says, "I know Him," and does not keep His commandments, is a ^dliar, and the truth is not in him.

⁵But ^ewhoever keeps His word, truly the love of God ¹is perfected ^fin him. By this we know that we are in Him.

^{6g}He who says he abides in Him ^hought himself also to walk just as He walked.

⁷²Brethren, I write no new commandment to you, but an old commandment which you have had ⁱfrom the beginning. The old commandment is the word which you heard ³from the beginning.

⁸Again, ^ja new commandment I write to you, which thing is true in Him and in you, ^kbecause the darkness is passing away, and ^lthe true light is already shining.

^{9m}He who says he is in the light, and hates his brother, is in darkness until now.

¹⁰ⁿHe who loves his brother abides in the light, and ^othere is no cause for stumbling in him.

¹¹But he who ^phates his brother is in darkness and ^qwalks in darkness, and does not know where he is going, because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

Their Spiritual State

¹²I write to you, little children,
Because ^ryour sins are forgiven you for His name's sake.

¹³I write to you, fathers,
Because you have known Him who is ^sfrom the beginning.
I write to you, young men,
Because you have overcome the wicked one.

I write to you, little children,
Because you have ^tknown the Father.

¹⁴I have written to you, fathers,
Because you have known Him who is from the beginning.
I have written to you, young men,
Because ^uyou are strong, and the word of God abides in you,
And you have overcome the wicked one.

Do Not Love the World

^{15v}Do not love the world or the things in the world. ^wIf anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

¹⁶For all that is in the world—the lust of the flesh, ^xthe lust of the eyes, and the pride of life—is not of the Father but is of the world.

¹⁷And ^ythe world is passing away, and the lust of it; but he who does the will of God abides forever.

Deceptions of the Last Hour

^{18z}Little children, ^ait is the last hour; and as you have heard that ^bthe⁴ Antichrist is coming, ^ceven now many antichrists have come, by which we know ^dthat it is the last hour.

^{19e}They went out from us, but they were not of us; for ^fif they had been of us, they would have continued with us; but they went out ^gthat they might be made manifest, that none of them were of us.

²⁰But ^hyou have an anointing ⁱfrom the Holy One, and ^jyou⁵ know all things. Word Studies: anointing

²¹I have not written to you because you do not know the truth, but because you know it, and that no lie is of the truth.

^{22k}Who is a liar but he who denies that ^lJesus is the Christ? He is antichrist who denies the Father and the Son.

^{23m}Whoever denies the Son does not have the ⁿFather either; ^ohe who acknowledges the Son has the Father also.

Let Truth Abide in You

²⁴Therefore let that abide in you ^pwhich you heard from the beginning. If what you heard from the beginning abides in you, ^qyou also will abide in the Son and in the Father.

^{25r}And this is the promise that He has promised us—eternal life.

²⁶These things I have written to you concerning those who try to ⁶deceive you.

²⁷But the ^sanointing which you have received from Him abides in you, and ^tyou do not need that anyone teach you; but as the same anointing ^uteaches you concerning all things, and is true, and is not a lie, and just as it has taught you, you ⁷will abide in Him.

The Children of God

²⁸And now, little children, abide in Him, that ⁸when He appears, we may have ^vconfidence and not be ashamed before Him at His coming.

^{29w}If you know that He is righteous, you know that ^xeveryone who practices righteousness is born of Him.

1 John 3

¹Behold ^awhat manner of love the Father has bestowed on us, that ^bwe should be called children of ¹God! Therefore the world does not know ²us, ^cbecause it did not know Him.

Charts and Diagrams: The Facts of Love in 1 John

²Beloved, ^dnow we are children of God; and ^eit has not yet been revealed what we shall be, but we know that when He is revealed, ^fwe shall be like Him, for ^gwe shall see Him as He is.

^{3h}And everyone who has this hope in Him purifies himself, just as He is pure.

Sin and the Child of God

⁴Whoever commits sin also commits lawlessness, and ⁱsin is lawlessness.

⁵And you know ^jthat He was manifested ^kto take away our sins, and ^lin Him there is no sin.

⁶Whoever abides in Him does not sin. Whoever sins has neither seen Him nor known Him.

⁷Little children, let no one deceive you. He who practices righteousness is righteous, just as He is righteous.

^{8m}He who sins is of the devil, for the devil has sinned from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, ⁿthat He might destroy the works of the devil.

⁹Whoever has been ^oborn of God does not sin, for ^pHis seed remains in him; and he cannot sin, because he has been born of God.

The Imperative of Love

(Matt. 22:39)

¹⁰In this the children of God and the children of the devil are manifest: Whoever does not practice righteousness is not of God, nor is he who does not love his brother.

¹¹For this is the message that you heard from the beginning, ^qthat we should love one another, ¹²not as ^rCain who was of the wicked one and murdered his brother. And why did he murder him? Because his works were evil and his brother's righteous.

¹³Do not marvel, my brethren, if ^sthe world hates you.

¹⁴We know that we have passed from death to life, because we love the brethren. He who does not love ³his brother abides in death.

¹⁵Whoever hates his brother is a murderer, and you know that ^uno murderer has eternal life abiding in him.

The Outworking of Love

^{16v}By this we know love, ^wbecause He laid down His life for us. And we also ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

¹⁷But ^xwhoever has this world's goods, and sees his brother in need, and shuts up his heart from him, how does the love of God abide in him?

¹⁸My little children, ^ylet us not love in word or in tongue, but in deed and in truth.

¹⁹And by this we ⁴know ^zthat we are of the truth, and shall ⁵assure our hearts before Him.

^{20a}For if our heart condemns us, God is greater than our heart, and knows all things.

²¹Beloved, if our heart does not condemn us, ^bwe have confidence toward God.

²²And ^cwhatever we ask we receive from Him, because we keep His commandments ^dand do those things that are pleasing in His sight.

²³And this is His commandment: that we should believe on the name of His Son Jesus Christ ^eand love one another, as He gave ⁶us commandment.

The Spirit of Truth and the Spirit of Error

²⁴Now ^fhe who keeps His commandments ^gabides in Him, and He in him. And ^hby this we know that He abides in us, by the Spirit whom He has given us.

1 John 4

¹Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but ^atest the spirits, whether they are of God; because ^bmany false prophets have gone out into the world.

²By this you know the Spirit of God: ^cEvery spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is of God, ³and every spirit that does not confess ¹that Jesus ²Christ has come in the flesh is not of God. And this is the spirit of the Antichrist, which you have heard was coming, and is now already in the world.

⁴You are of God, little children, and have overcome them, because He who is in you is greater than ^dhe who is in the world.

^{5e}They are of the world. Therefore they speak as of the world, and ^fthe world hears them.

⁶We are of God. He who knows God hears us; he who is not of God does not hear us. ^gBy this we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error.

Knowing God Through Love

(cf. John 3:16)

^{7h}Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God; and everyone who ⁱloves is born of God and knows God.

⁸He who does not love does not know God, for God is love.

^{9j}In this the love of God was manifested toward us, that God has sent His only begotten ^kSon into the world, that we might live through Him.

¹⁰In this is love, ^lnot that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son ^mto be the propitiation for our sins. Word Studies: sin

¹¹Beloved, ⁿif God so loved us, we also ought to love one another.

Seeing God Through Love

^{12o}No one has seen God at any time. If we love one another, God abides in us, and His love has been perfected in us.

^{13p}By this we know that we abide in Him, and He in us, because He has given us of His Spirit.

¹⁴And ^qwe have seen and testify that ^rthe Father has sent the Son as Savior of the world.

^{15s}Whoever confesses that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him, and he in God.

¹⁶And we have known and believed the love that God has for us. God is love, and ^the who abides in love abides in God, and God ^uin him.

The Consummation of Love

¹⁷Love has been perfected among us in this: that ^vwe may have boldness in the day of judgment; because as He is, so are we in this world.

¹⁸There is no fear in love; but perfect love casts out fear, because fear involves torment. But he who fears has not been made perfect in love.

^{19w}We love ³Him because He first loved us.

Obedience by Faith

²⁰^xIf someone says, “I love God,” and hates his brother, he is a liar; for he who does not love his brother whom he has seen, ⁴how can he love God ^ywhom he has not seen?

²¹And ^zthis commandment we have from Him: that he who loves God must love his brother also.

1 John 5

¹Whoever believes that ^aJesus is the Christ is ^bborn of God, and everyone who loves Him who begot also loves him who is begotten of Him.

²By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and ^ckeep His commandments.

^{3d}For this is the love of God, that we keep His commandments. And ^eHis commandments are not burdensome.

⁴For ^fwhatever is born of God overcomes the world. And this is the victory that ^ghas overcome the world—¹our faith.

⁵Who is he who overcomes the world, but ^hhe who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

The Certainty of God's Witness

⁶This is He who came ⁱby water and blood—Jesus Christ; not only by water, but by water and blood. ^jAnd it is the Spirit who bears witness, because the Spirit is truth.

⁷For there are three that bear witness ²in heaven: the Father, ^kthe Word, and the Holy Spirit; ¹and these three are one. Charts and Diagrams: The Trinity

⁸And there are three that bear witness on earth: ^mthe Spirit, the water, and the blood; and these three agree as one.

⁹If we receive ⁿthe witness of men, the witness of God is greater; ^ofor this is the witness of ³God which He has testified of His Son.

¹⁰He who believes in the Son of God ^phas the witness in himself; he who does not believe God ^qhas made Him a liar, because he has not believed the testimony that God has given of His Son.

¹¹And this is the testimony: that God has given us eternal life, and this life is in His Son.

^{12r}He who has the Son has ⁴life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have life.

¹³These things I have written to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, that you may know that you have eternal life, ⁵and that you may continue to believe in the name of the Son of God.

Confidence and Compassion in Prayer

¹⁴Now this is the confidence that we have in Him, that ^sif we ask anything according to His will, He hears us.

¹⁵And if we know that He hears us, whatever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we have asked of Him.

¹⁶If anyone sees his brother sinning a sin which does not lead to death, he will ask, and ^tHe will give him life for those who commit sin not leading to death. ^uThere is sin leading to death. ^vI do not say that he should pray about that.

^{17w}All unrighteousness is sin, and there is sin not leading to death.

Knowing the True—Rejecting the False

¹⁸We know that ^xwhoever is born of God does not sin; but he who has been born of God ^ykeeps^{6 7} himself, and the wicked one does not touch him.

¹⁹We know that we are of God, and ^zthe whole world lies under the sway of the wicked one.

²⁰And we know that the ^aSon of God has come and ^bhas given us an understanding, ^cthat we may know Him who is true; and we are in Him who is true, in His Son Jesus Christ. ^dThis is the true God ^eand eternal life.

²¹Little children, keep yourselves from idols. Amen.

Annotations for 1 John

- 1:1–4 These verses show similarities to the prologue of the Gospel of John (see John 1:1–18). However, while the Gospel of John emphasizes the metaphysical nature of Jesus, the Word, these verses emphasize the personal experience of the apostles with the incarnate Word. The memory of Jesus Christ burned in the mind of John as he reflected on the three and a half years that he and the other disciples were with the Lord. Now he wanted to be sure that the churches under his care enjoyed fellowship with the resurrected Lord and with other disciples.
- 1:1 That which could refer to (1) the revelation about Christ, (2) the teachings of Christ, (3) the eternal life manifested by Christ, or (4) Christ Himself. The words heard, seen, looked upon, and handled indicate that Christ Himself is the likely subject. The beginning may refer to creation or to the beginning of Christ's ministry. If it is creation, it is like the statement about Christ and creation in the Gospel (John 1:1). However, the context makes it likely that the reference is to the beginning of Christ's ministry, similar to 2:7, 24; 3:11. We is probably a reference to the apostles. The Word of life may refer to Jesus, who is the Word (see John 1:1) and the life (see John 14:6), or possibly to the gospel message and all that it says about eternal life. Most likely, the reference is to Jesus, the Word who brings life. This life is a gift from God, a gift that cannot be earned or taken from us.
- 1:2 The life that was manifested to the apostles is now declared by them. The life was not hidden or obscured so that few, if any, could find it. Rather, this life was made known openly and had its origin in God the Father. God had provided truth about Himself in nature and through the prophets of old, but the revelation in His Son (see Heb. 1:1, 2) is God's finest and clearest presentation of Himself.
- 1:3 The primary reason John writes is to provide his readers with an understanding of what they must do to have fellowship with the apostles and God. Fellowship carries both the idea of a positive relationship that people share and participation in a common interest or goal.
- 1:4 A Christian can have no real joy except in a proper relationship with God and others (see Ps. 16:11; 51:12; John 15:11).
- 1:5 God is light by nature, in His essential being, just as He is Spirit (see John 4:24) and love (4:8). Light refers to God's moral character. no darkness at all: God is holy, untouched by any evil or sin. Because God is light, those who desire fellowship with Him must also be pure.
- 1:6 Verses 6–10 contain three contrasts between words and works, or saying one thing and doing another. Following each contrast is the result of the action. If we say: The first false claim is to have fellowship with God while failing to reflect His moral character. Walk refers to a way of life or daily practice. To walk in darkness means to live contrary to the moral character of God, to live a sinful life. To claim fellowship with God without living a moral life or practicing the truth is to live a lie, since God cannot compromise His holiness to accommodate sin.
- 1:7 To walk in the light is to live in such a way that one is enlightened by the truth of who God is. with one another: When a Christian's conduct reflects God's moral character, then real fellowship is possible with other Christians. But it may be that one another refers to fellowship with God rather than fellowship with other believers. Our fellowship with God is dependent on walking in God's light, where sin is revealed. Such revelation enables us to see our sins and brings us to Jesus to seek salvation. Only the blood of Jesus Christ can cleanse us from all sin, making it possible for imperfect believers to have fellowship with a holy God.
- 1:8 The second false claim (see also v. 6) is that we have no sin. The idea would be that our sin nature is completely gone. To say this is to deceive ourselves (see 2 Chr. 6:36; John 9:41). The truth is God's revelation, which says just the opposite. To have no sin is to have no need of a Savior, which would make the coming of Jesus unnecessary.

Freedom from Guilt

No one likes to feel guilty. Like an unwelcome guest, guilt shows up at the worst possible time and does not go away no matter how much you wish it would.

Yet the truth is that we need guilt. It is the only proper response to any offense, whether a selfish thought or a premeditated murder. Even a nonbeliever wants a burglar to feel remorse for his theft. Why? Because he should. Guilt exposes the truth that we wish to avoid: we have all sinned. John puts it this way: “If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us” (1:8).

But John does not leave us with this dismal picture of ourselves. Instead he goes on to paint a glorious portrait of a forgiving God. This is our only hope: “If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness” (1:9). Guilt does more than just deliver the distressing news. It unlocks the door to forgiveness. Progress, change, reform, and most important of all, God’s forgiveness all start with confession.

Confession works against the worst part of human nature, the part that imagines itself to be better than it really is. What person has not felt, “I’m not perfect, but I’m not as bad as my next-door neighbor”? This mindset always stops short of confessing; it would rather ignore or ease feelings of guilt than admit them. But only open confession of our sins will completely cleanse us. Only when we admit that we are sinners, unworthy of God’s grace, can we make a fresh start.

C. S. Lewis said that “No man knows how bad he is till he has tried very hard to be good.” Similarly, we can never know how much we need freedom until we try to unload our burden of sin. Yet God’s forgiveness will liberate us to begin anew on the path of righteousness.

1:9 Though John uses we primarily to refer to himself and the other apostles as eyewitnesses of Christ (v. 1), here the term includes all believers who confess (acknowledge) sin. God says that we are sinners in need of forgiveness. To confess is to agree with Him, to admit that we are sinners in need of His mercy. If a believer confesses his or her specific sins to God, He will cleanse all unrighteousness from that person. Forgiveness and cleansing are guaranteed because God is faithful to His promises. Those promises are legitimate because God is just. God can maintain His perfect character and yet forgive us because of the perfect and righteous sacrifice of Jesus, His own Son (2:2).

1:10 we have not sinned: We may admit to having a sin nature while still denying any personal sin and therefore any need for confession. The Greek verb translated we have not sinned indicates a denial in the past that continues to the present. Unlike v. 8, which speaks of the guilt of sin or a sinful nature, this verse is about the denial of any particular sins. To make this denial is to call God a liar because God’s word emphasizes the penetrating nature of sin (see Rom. 7:14–24). Denying that sin is in us indicates that God’s word is not in us. In other words, a person who denies committing sinful acts does not have the Word of God changing his or her life.

2:1 With fatherly concern, the aged apostle John addresses his readers affectionately as children. that you may not sin: John’s statements about sin (1:8, 10) were designed to make believers aware of sin’s ever-present danger and to put them on guard against it. According to Greek grammar, the if before anyone sins carries the added sense of “and it is assumed that we all do.” This statement is not an encouragement to sin but a warning to all Christians to be on guard against sinful tendencies. Advocate: This Greek word is also used of the Holy Spirit in John 14:16, referring to a Helper for us in understanding the truth of God's Word. Here the word describes the intercessory work of the Son. When we sin, Jesus represents us as our Advocate with the Father to plead our cause in heaven's court. Satan, on the other hand, is the accuser of believers (see Zech. 3; Rev. 12:10).

(Gk. paraklētos) (2:1; John 14:16, 26; 15:26; 16:7) Strong's #3875

The Greek word literally means “one who is called to our side.” This could be a comforter, a consoler, or a defense attorney. In John 14:26 and 15:26, the Holy Spirit is called our paraklētos, our Comforter. Here Christ is called our paraklētos, our Advocate. While the Holy Spirit works within us to comfort and help us, Christ represents us before the Father in heaven. The two Paracletes work together in perfect harmony (see Rom. 8:26, 27, 34).

2:2 Propitiation brings about the merciful removal of guilt through divine forgiveness. In the Greek OT (the Septuagint), the Greek term for propitiation was used for the sacrificial mercy seat on which the high priest placed the blood of the Israelites' sacrifices (see Ex. 25:17–22; 1 Chr. 28:2). This practice indicates that God's righteous wrath had to be appeased somehow. God sent His Son and satisfied His own wrath with Jesus' sacrifice on the Cross. Our sins made it necessary for Jesus to suffer the agonies of crucifixion; but God demonstrated His love and justice by providing His own Son. The sacrifice of Jesus' sinless life is so effective that it can supply forgiveness for the whole world (see 2 Cor. 5:14, 15, 19; Heb. 2:9). Christ's death is sufficient for all, but efficient only for those who believe in Christ. Not everyone will be saved, but Jesus offers salvation to all (see Rev. 22:17).

2:3–11 In this section, three false claims are exposed, each introduced by the phrase “he who says.”

2:3 we know Him: The NT speaks of knowing God in two senses. One who has trusted Christ knows Him (see John 17:3), that is to say, has met Him. One who has previously met the Lord can also come to know Him intimately (see Phil. 3:10). In this verse John is talking about knowing the Lord intimately.

2:4 does not keep His commandments: Disobedience shows a lack of personal knowledge of Christ. To claim to know Christ while disobeying His Word is to lie. truth is not in him: Not only does the conflict of word and action make a person a liar, but it also shows that the truth is not a controlling influence in that person's life (1:6, 8, 10).

2:5 perfected: This verb expresses the idea of maturity and completeness. The love of God is perfected may mean one of two things: (1) The believer's love for God grows as he or she keeps God's Word, or (2) as the believer pursues fellowship and obedience, God's love for him or her is more fully completed. The second is indicated here. The believer begins to know by experience that he or she is in Him. As John explains in the next verse, in Him means “abiding in Him.” Word is a synonym for commandment in vv. 3, 4. The love of God here may refer to (1) God's love for men, (2) a godly kind of love, or (3) a person's love for God.

2:6 abides in Him: Abiding is habitual obedience. It has the idea of settling down in Christ or resting in Him. It is evidenced by a life modeled after Christ. ought . . . to walk: The admonition to live by the teaching of Jesus reveals that this conformity comes from us. Slaves must follow the commands of their masters or they will be punished. Employees need to do their work to keep their jobs.

However, the Christian as a child of God ought to obey God because of a sincere desire to do so. It should be a joy to follow in the footsteps of the One who died for us.

2:7 old commandment: In vv. 3–6, John insists that the test of personal intimacy and knowledge of God is obedience to Christ’s commandments. But which ones? John emphasizes that he has no new obligation in mind, but rather what the believers have known from the beginning (see v. 24; 1:1; 3:11; 2 John 5).

2:8 The new commandment that John refers to is love (v. 10). It may be that John is simply repeating the statement of Christ in John 13:34. true in Him and in you: The command to love reached its truest and fullest expression in the life of Christ. He demonstrated what true love is by coming into our world and giving His life for us. Christians should follow His supreme example. We know that the new commandment is in effect because the darkness is passing away, and the true light is already shining. This new commandment of love belongs to the new age begun by Christ.

2:9 Brother here refers to a fellow believer.

2:11 he who hates his brother: Hating one’s brother opposes the teaching of Christ to love one another. The idea that one could hate a brother and yet claim fellowship with God shows the utter darkness that has blinded the Christian to the truth. The believer who hates is in darkness and not light, in sin and not in fellowship with God. does not know where he is going: A believer who hates his brother has lost his spiritual perspective and sense of direction (see 2 Pet. 1:9).

2:12–14 These verses contain two sets of three items, describing John’s readers as little children, fathers, and young men. These three classifications are not physical age groups or spiritual stages. Rather, it seems that each group is a reference to all of John’s readers. For example, viewed as little children, they know their sins are forgiven. Viewed as fathers, they not only have a relationship with God, but they also have knowledge of God that comes from obedience to His commandments. Viewed as young men, they are strong.

2:15 Do not love the world may be rephrased as “stop loving the world.” John’s readers were acting in a way that was inconsistent with the relationship with Christ. World here is the morally evil system opposed to all that God is and holds dear. In this sense, the world is the satanic system opposing Christ’s kingdom on this earth (see v. 16; 3:1; 4:4; 5:19; John 12:31; 15:18; Eph. 6:11, 12; James 4:4).

2:16 the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life: The world is characterized by these three lusts, which have been interpreted as corresponding to the three different ways Eve was tempted in the garden (see Gen. 3:6), or the three different temptations Jesus experienced (see Luke 4:1–12). However, the correspondences are not close enough to make it certain that John was alluding to either of these. Instead, John was probably making a short list of the different ways believers could be lured away from loving God. The lust of the flesh refers to desires for sinful sensual pleasure. The lust of the eyes refers to covetousness or materialism. The pride of life refers to being proud about one’s position in this world.

2:17 passing away: John highlights the brevity of life. To be consumed with this life is to be unprepared for the next. What a tragedy to invest our resources in what will not last.

2:18 last hour: John views the rise of those who deny the truth of Christ from within the Christian community as an indication of the beginning of the end of all things. Antichrists is a combination of two Greek words: anti, meaning “instead of” or “against,” and christos, meaning “anointed one.” Antichrists most likely means those who seek to take the place of Christ. The many antichrists are the false teachers John opposed in this letter (see v. 22; 4:3; 2 John 7). They are reminiscent of the false christs Jesus told the disciples about (see Matt. 24:24). They are forerunners of the future Antichrist, also known as the beast in the Book of Revelation (see Rev. 13:1–18), who will exalt himself above God (see Dan. 9:27; 11:31; 12:11; Matt. 24:15).

2:19 When the false teachers went out from among the believers, they revealed that they did not belong to the Christian community; they were never true believers. they . . . us: In the opening verses of this book, John made a distinction between we and you (1:1, 3). We, the apostles, were the eyewitnesses of Christ, you were the readers. That same distinction is probably maintained here (see also v. 20). Thus when John says these false teachers were not of us, he means they did not agree with the teaching of the apostles. These antichrists had departed from the apostolic churches, and their attitudes and actions were not of the apostolic persuasion. If they had been in harmony with the apostles, they would have remained in fellowship with them (1:1–3).

2:20 Anointing here refers either to the Holy Spirit or to Scripture. This anointing is the protection that believers have against the false teachers. John says that these believers are in contrast to the ones who went out (v. 19), who were representatives of the Antichrist. The true Anointed One, Jesus, also has representatives who are anointed. Since only God knows everything, the phrase all things must be limited in some way. In this context, all things is all the truth the believers needed to resist the antichrists (v. 21). One of the main heresies the first-century church faced was Gnosticism, whose followers claimed to have secret knowledge of the truth that led to salvation. Here John was opposing this teaching by asserting that all believers knew the truth. As an apostle, John was merely reminding them of what they already knew, not acting as an exclusive source of the truth.

Word Studies

anointing

(Gk. chrisma) (2:20; 2 Cor. 1:21) Strong's #5545

The Greek term chrisma is related to the title Christ, which means “Anointed One,” and is used in the Greek OT (the Septuagint) for the anointing of a high priest (see Ex. 29:17). The anointing here depicts the impartation of the Holy Spirit to a person (see also Is. 61:1). As Christians, now indwelt by the Holy Spirit, we are joined to the Anointed One and share in His anointing (2 Cor. 1:21, 22). Therefore we can know all things with respect to truth and falsehood. Because the Spirit lives within us, we know all that we need to know in order to resist the temptations of false teachers and to live godly lives in this world.

- 2:22, 23 Denying the deity of Jesus is the same as denying the Father and the Son. In John's epistles, denying that Jesus is the Christ includes denying that He came in the flesh (see 1:1–3; 4:3; 2 John 7). A person cannot worship God while denying Jesus' full deity and full humanity.
- 2:24 The message they heard from the beginning was that Jesus is the Christ (v. 22), the Son of God (v. 22) who had come in the flesh (1:1–3). If John's readers would resist the lies of the antichrists and hold on to the truth they had been taught from the beginning, they would continue abiding in fellowship with the Son and the Father.
- 2:25 Eternal life speaks of both the quality of life in the present, a life filled with the joy of God, and the promise of a future life in eternity.
- 2:26 Those who try to deceive you refers to false teachers, or antichrists. You indicates that it is possible for believers to be deceived by false teaching.
- 2:27 We are to base our walk with the Lord on the truth He has given us. Believers who know God's standards and desires for us but fail to put these truths into practice in their lives will also not mature in Christ (see Heb. 5:11-6:12).
- 2:28-4:6 Because God is righteous, the divine sonship of Christians is revealed through righteous living, which includes love of fellow believers and orthodox belief in the deity of Jesus. This section moves from John's emphasis on fellowship to its basis, assurance of salvation.
- 2:28 John has been urging his readers to let what they have heard from the beginning abide in them (vv. 24–27). Here he advises them to abide in Christ Himself. If we abide in Christ we will avoid embarrassment when He returns. ashamed: The shame is the result of not having had a lifestyle of obedience when Christ returns.
- 2:29 Since God is righteous, those who practice righteousness will be recognized as being born of God. This verse does not say that everyone who is born of God practices righteousness. Believers can walk in darkness and sin (1:6, 8; 2:1). The point here is that when a child exhibits the nature of his or her father, he or she is perceived as the child of the father.
- 3:1 Behold what manner of love: John stands in amazement of God's love. But the greater amazement and appreciation is for the fact that God's love is expressed to human beings, that Christians are included in His family. God loves all believers, the weak as well as the strong. John describes Jesus on the night of His betrayal as “having loved His own who were in the world,” and writes that “He loved them to the end” (John 13:1). God’s love is in stark contrast to the love of the world. The world loves those who love them, while God loves even those who disobey Him.

The Facts of Love in 1 John

In five short chapters, John uses different forms of the word love 46 times. He wanted to teach his readers the importance of love in the Christian walk.

3:2 be like Him: Though we do not know all the specifics of our future existence, we do know that we will have a body like Christ's (see Phil. 3:21). Believers will put on immortality and become free from the sin nature that presently plagues us.

3:3 Everyone who has the hope of seeing Christ and being like Him (v. 2) realizes that Christ is morally pure. This realization helps a person pursue purity even more.

3:4 The sin described in this verse is not occasional sin but a consistent lifestyle of sin. Lawlessness is not the absence of law but active rebellion against the law.

3:5, 6 If Christ is sinless and the purpose of His coming was to remove sin, then whoever abides in Him does not sin. Habitually sinful conduct indicates an absence of fellowship with Christ. Thus if we claim to be a Christian but sin is our way of life, our status as children of God can legitimately be questioned.

3:7 let no one deceive you: Evidently the antichrists who were denying the doctrine of Christ (2:22) were also claiming to know God, yet were living in unrighteousness (1:6). True believers practice righteousness because the One in whom they dwell is righteous. God's righteousness is revealed in His children through their conduct. Righteous conduct does not produce righteous character, but reveals its presence in us.

3:8 Satan's sinful nature is shown through the lives of those who belong to him. Jesus' purpose in coming was to destroy the devil's works. A person who sins, even a believer, is of the devil in the sense that he is participating in the devil's activity (2:19). Thus John is indicating that it is possible for believers to do that which is of the devil (see Mark 8:31–33; James 3:6).

3:9 The seed that remains is probably the divine nature in which believers can participate (see 2 Pet. 1:4). But the seed has been variously interpreted as Jesus, the Holy Spirit, Scripture, or the gospel message. In other words, this verse is saying that habitual sin is not consistent with the Christian walk.

- 3:10 Christians manifest their nature by practicing righteousness (2:7). Children of the devil display their basic nature by sinning. Believers who sin are not expressing their nature as children of God; instead, they are following the devil's pattern.
- 3:11 John identifies loving one another as absolutely basic to living for Christ and advancing His kingdom.
- 3:12 Cain is identified as a spiritual child of the devil. His brother Abel is identified as a child of God. Cain's act of murder was the epitome of hatred, and thus came from the wicked one (v. 8).
- 3:14 Love for fellow believers is evidence that one has passed from the realm of death to the sphere of life. The tense of the verb have passed indicates that something experienced in the past has continuing and abiding results in the present. Thus John is saying that Christians, who have experienced Christ's salvation in the past, should demonstrate their salvation by loving their fellow believers in the present.
- 3:15 eternal life abiding in him: Those who do not love their fellow Christians are not living in the light but instead are living in the darkness (2:11). They are not abiding in life but in death (v. 14). What they are doing is not of God but of the devil (v. 8). Eternal life is not abiding in these believers in the sense that it is not the controlling factor in their lives.
- 3:17 Goods means "course of life," "living," or "livelihood." This same Greek word is translated life in 2:16. It refers to the material objects that sustain life. Therefore, the need that is mentioned is for food, clothing, and shelter. Believers can lay down their lives for fellow believers (see v. 16) by giving some of their livelihood to those who are in need. By giving our material possessions to others, we can demonstrate the same type of self-sacrificial love that Christ demonstrated on the Cross (see v. 16).
- 3:18 To love in word is to speak loving words but to stop short of doing anything to prove that love. The opposite of loving in word is loving in deed and in truth.
- 3:19 We can be assured of the presence of eternal life within us when we demonstrate self-sacrificial love to others. Believers who begin to truly love (v. 18) will know their behavior has its source in the truth and therefore will have confidence before God (v. 21). Thus love benefits the giver and the receiver both. Of the truth means being identified with Him who is the Truth. Before Him recalls 2:28, 29 and refers to the Christian's appearance before the judgment seat of Christ (2 Cor. 5:9, 10).
- 3:20 Our heart condemns us in that we recognize that we do not measure up to the standard of love and feel insecure in approaching God. Our conscience may not acknowledge the loving deeds we have done in the power of the Holy Spirit, but God does, and He is superior to our heart. Unlike our conscience, God takes everything into account, including Christ's atoning work for us. God is more compassionate and understanding toward us than we sometimes are toward ourselves.
- 3:24 Abides in this verse describes the mutual indwelling of Jesus and the Christian. The believer abides in Christ by keeping His commandments. Christ abides in the obedient believer as One who is "at home" with that believer. Jesus spoke of this mutual abiding in John 15:4, 5, 7.
- 4:1 John speaks of the spirits of teachers in a way similar to what Paul says about the spirits of the prophets in 1 Cor. 14:32. John is not referring here to demon possession, but to teachers who promote error. Believers have the Holy Spirit (3:24); but false prophets obey evil spirits. A true prophet is one who receives direct revelation from God. A false prophet claims to have received direct revelation from God but in fact promotes erroneous ideas.
- 4:2 By this you know: One test of whether a person is led by the Holy Spirit is whether that person's beliefs agree with the truth of God's Word (see 2:22; 1 Cor. 12:3). Jesus Christ has come in the flesh: This test seems to be aimed at Docetists. They taught that Christ did not have a physical body. The test may also be aimed at the followers of Cerinthus who claimed that Jesus and "the Christ" were two separate beings, one physical and the other spiritual. In this letter, John is careful to use the name and title of Jesus Christ together to clearly express the complete union of the two titles in one person.

- 4:3 Cerinthus, a false teacher of John's day, denied the Incarnation by teaching that the divine Christ descended on the human Jesus at His baptism and then departed before His crucifixion (2:22). John teaches that Jesus did not merely enter into an already existing human being, but He came as a human being. The Greek tense of the verb has come and the meaning of the noun flesh indicate that not only did Jesus come as a human being, He was still a human being even as John wrote. God the Son is forever fully God and fully man. He is immortal and has received a resurrected human body that does not age or die. A denial of Jesus' full and true humanity proves that a teacher is not of God.
- 4:4 We can overcome by recognizing false teachers and refusing to follow them. He who is in you is the Holy Spirit. He who is in the world is the devil (5:19).
- 4:5 They is a reference to the false prophets (v. 1) who have the spirit of the Antichrist (v. 3). The false teachers, being a part of the world system ruled by Satan, are accepted by the world. The world believes their false teachings and receives them into fellowship.
- 4:6 We refers to the apostles, who find acceptance only among those who know God. He who knows God (2:3) listens to what the apostles have to say. This passage, then, gives two tests of the spirit: (1) the confession of Jesus as the Christ, the Son of God come in the flesh (vv. 1-3); (2) the acceptance of the teaching of the apostles.
- 4:7 Love for one another, which here means fellow Christians, proves our spiritual birth and our relationship with God. Born of God recalls Jesus' conversation with Nicodemus in John 3:3-6. Knows God recalls Jesus' words in John 14:7.
- 4:8 Know God here refers to an intimate, experiential knowledge (v. 6; 2:3) of God, rather than just information about God. John never says that those who do not love are not born of God (v. 7). Yet it is impossible to know God intimately without loving others, for God is love: Anyone in whom God dwells reflects His character. To claim to know God while failing to love others is to make a false claim (1:6).
- 4:9 The love of God for His children was visibly demonstrated through Jesus' work on the Cross on our behalf. Only begotten Son expresses the sense of uniqueness, not a literal birth (see Heb. 11:17). John is the only NT author who calls Jesus this (see John 1:18; 3:16, 18). In other words, Jesus is the unique Son of God; no other person is God's Son in the way He is.

Word Studies

sin

(Gk. hamartia) (1:7, 9; 2:2; 3:4, 9; 4:10; 5:16; Gal. 1:4) Strong's #266

The word literally means “to miss the mark,” to err. In this verse, there is one kind of sin one can recover from and another kind of sin from which one can't recover. The difference is one which John's readers were expected to recognize. We can only conjecture. The content of this letter suggests that those who had abandoned the Christian community (2:18, 19) in pursuit of heretical, “antichrist” teachings were irrecoverable. Their denial of Jesus' true person (4:1–3) leads to unrepentant sin, which finally produces spiritual death.

- 4:13 By this looks forward to the evidence of His Spirit rather than back to the evidence of love (vv. 7–11) for proof that we abide in Him, and He in us (3:24). Mutual abiding refers to the fellowship we have with God as a result of our salvation. The evidence that God abides in us and we in Him is the experience of the Holy Spirit dwelling in us. In the remainder of this passage (vv. 12–16), John explains how a believer can know that the Spirit is working in his or her life (vv. 15, 16).
- 4:15 A sincere confession of belief is an indication that the confessor is saved. Abides in this context refers to salvation rather than the fellowship that results from salvation. To be a Christian, a person must believe that Jesus is the Son of God.
- 4:16 And we have known is parallel to “and we have seen” in v. 14. Abides in love means the Christian lives within the sphere of God's love. That love is both experienced and expressed through the Christian's life.
- 4:17 The mature expression of perfected love (v. 12) produces confidence as a Christian anticipates Jesus' judgment of the world. A person who abides in love will not be ashamed when Jesus returns (see 2:28; John 15:9–17).
- 4:18 A mature understanding of God's love removes any fear of God's judgment.
- 5:1 The condition for being born of God, for being a child of God, is believing or trusting in Jesus Christ. Only correct, sincere belief produces spiritual birth. This birth is reflected in love for others who also have been born into the family of God (2:3–11).
- 5:3 The love of God demands obedience (see John 14:15). However, rather than being burdensome, God's commands free believers to be the people they were originally created to be: holy beings who clearly reflect the image of God.
- 5:4 Whatever speaks of the new nature of the child of God. Regeneration (that is, our spiritual rebirth) provides victory over the world which is opposed to God. The faith that overcomes the world is faith in Jesus Christ as the Son of God (see v. 5), who died for us (v. 6). The one who overcomes the world obeys God rather than following the expectations of the world. If we love God, we will find obeying Him a pleasure.
- 5:6 Water and blood have been interpreted in at least four ways: (1) as Jesus' baptism and death, (2) as His incarnation, (3) as the water and blood that flowed from His side on the Cross, and (4) as the baptism of the believer and the Lord's Supper. Most scholars favor the first interpretation. John is correcting the false teacher Cerinthus, who claimed that the Spirit came on Jesus at His baptism but left Him before His death (see 4:2, 3).

5:7, 8 The Holy Spirit testifies in accord with the water and the blood (v. 6) that Jesus is the Son of God.

The Trinity

First John as a whole is clearly founded on the doctrine of the Trinity. From evidence throughout Scripture (see Matt. 28:19), it is clear that God is both one and three. God the Father, God the Son, and God the Spirit are one God, but they are also distinct Persons of the Godhead. Throughout his first epistle, John illustrates how each Person of the Godhead works with and through the others to accomplish God's plan of salvation for us.

God the Father

- Through Christ, we have fellowship with the Father (1:3).
- God is light (1:5).
- The Father has great love for His children (3:1).
- God is “greater than our heart, and knows all things” (3:20).
- God is love (4:8).
- God “sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins” (4:10).
- God abides in believers, and they in Him (4:15).
- God is the Giver of eternal life through Jesus Christ (5:11).

God the Son

- Jesus is called “the Word of life” (1:1).
- Jesus’ blood cleanses us from sin (1:7).
- Jesus is our Advocate with the Father (2:1).
- Jesus is the propitiation for our sin (2:2).
- Jesus is sinless (3:5).
- The Son of God destroyed the works of the devil (3:8).
- Jesus has come in the flesh (4:2).
- The Son is the Savior of the world (4:14).
- The Son is the source of eternal life (5:11).
- Believing in the Son of God is necessary for us to inherit eternal life (5:13).

God the Holy Spirit

- The Spirit indwells us and gives assurance of salvation (3:24).
- The Spirit causes us to confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh (4:2).
- The Spirit is the gift of God to all believers (4:13).
- The Spirit bears witness to the truth and to Jesus Christ (5:6).
- The Spirit is one with the Father and the Son (5:7, 8).

5:10 The witness looks back to the anointing of the believer described in 2:27 and refers either to the Holy Spirit or to the testimony of the Scripture. The last part of the verse suggests that the Scripture is meant. John is contrasting those who accept and those reject what God says. A person who trusts in Jesus possesses the witness, namely, the truth of God (v. 9). The one who rejects God's testimony is claiming that God is a liar.

5:11 This is the testimony is the same phrase as what is translated "this is the witness" in v. 9. God's witness or testimony is that He has given us eternal life . . . in His Son. Eternal life is not a wage to be earned, but a gift to be received from God (see Rom. 6:23).

5:12 John clearly states that our relationship with the Son determines whether we possess eternal life.

5:13 Some assume that the phrase these things refers to the whole book of 1 John and conclude that the way to know that one has eternal life is not only to believe in the Son but also to live a righteous life and love fellow believers. However, the phrase does not refer to the whole book but to the immediately preceding verses and similar expressions throughout this letter (vv. 9–12; 2:1, 12–14, 21, 26; 4:1). In other words, the foundation of assurance of salvation is belief in God's Word and His Son, of whom the Spirit and Scripture testify (vv. 11, 12). Those who trust Christ can know they have eternal life because God says they have it.

5:14, 15 The key to knowing that God hears our prayers is to pray according to His will.

5:16, 17 A believer should intercede for a sinning fellow Christian provided that (1) the believer sees the brother sinning and (2) the sin does not lead to death. Death may refer either to spiritual or physical death, though physical death is probably the case here. give him life: The believer can pray with confidence knowing that it is the will of God that sinning believers should stop sinning. A sin leading to death may refer to blaspheming the Holy Spirit, rejecting Christ as Savior, rejecting the humanity or deity of Jesus, a specific sin such as murder (3:12, 15), or a life of habitual sin. Whatever it is, the sin seems to be a flagrant violation of the sanctity of the Christian community (see Acts 5:1–11; 1 Cor. 5:5; 11:30). In other words, John is encouraging us to help fellow believers who are straying; we can be the tools God uses to restore an erring brother or sister to true fellowship.

5:18–20 These verses contain three concluding absolute truths, each of which is introduced by the phrase we know (vv. 18, 19, 20). The general idea of this concluding section is that a proper relationship with God results in confidence of our position in Christ within a hostile world. We is possibly another reference to the apostles (1:1). Does not sin conveys the idea of not practicing sin as a habitual lifestyle. The phrase cannot mean that believers do not sin because John just spoke of seeing a believer sinning (v. 16).

5:19 The apostles are of God, meaning He is the source of their actions and attitudes (see 2:19). Satan does not touch the one born of God (v. 18), but he does have the whole world in his grip and under his dominion.

5:20 The understanding that Christ gives enables us to know God in a personal, intimate sense.

Jesus Christ is the true God; to know Him is to have eternal life.

5:21 Idols here may refer to literal idols, foods sacrificed to idols, false ideas in contrast to God's truth, or the doctrines of false teachers. John has just reminded his readers of the true God (v. 20). It is appropriate that he closes by exhorting them to stay away from false gods.

Introduction

The early church had its hands full with false teachers. First there were the Judaizers, who held that Gentiles who did not observe Jewish rituals could not be Christians. Then there were false apostles, who specialized in attacking Paul's credibility. Later came Docetists, Gnostics, and many others who distorted the truth. Each brought their own version of the truth.

Second John is testimony to the fact that no question consumed more time than "Who is Jesus?" The false teachers, who prompted John to write this letter were promoting a heresy about this question. This heresy, called Docetism, was the teaching that Christ did not actually come in the flesh. In other words, Christ did not have a body but only seemed to have a body and to suffer and die on the Cross (see v. 7). Yet these teachers claimed to be Christians, teaching the truths of Jesus' life and death.

John would have none of it. He urged the believers to cling to the truth: Jesus Christ came in the flesh. The word truth appears five times in the first four verses. John wanted believers to guard against falsehood, and the best way to do that would be to arm themselves with the truth.

Author and Date The evidence is that the apostle John wrote this letter. Some have argued that there were two Johns, the apostle and a church leader known as John the Elder. But as with 1 John, evidence from the early church fathers identifies this letter with the apostle. Other evidences favoring John the apostle as the author of this letter are the similarity of the language and content of 1 and 2 John. John may have used the title Elder as an affectionate description of himself, since his authority as an apostle would not be in question at this late date.

This epistle was probably written soon after 1 John, for it assumes that the readers will understand what is meant by “antichrist” in verse 7. No firm date can be given because there is insufficient information in the letter itself and from church fathers. A date between A.D. 80 and 100 would fit. Early church writers stated that John was based in Ephesus following the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, and it is likely that this letter was written there.

Historical Background The early church made a practice of supporting traveling ministers and teachers with gifts and hospitality. Christians in each church would house these missionaries and provide for their needs (see 3 John 5, 6). Since false teachers also relied on this hospitality, John urged his readers to show discernment and not to support traveling teachers “who do not confess Jesus Christ as coming in the flesh” (v. 7).

Audience John wrote this letter “to the elect lady and her children.” This is either a figurative reference to a church community or a literal reference to a specific person. Several arguments favor the figurative meaning and several favor the literal. In defense of the figurative, the issues addressed seem to reflect the problems faced by a church more than an individual. The plural pronouns in verses 6, 8, 10, 12 imply an audience of more than just one person. Neither the lady nor her children are named directly, although in 3 John three names appear. The fact that both Paul and John personified the church as a woman in other passages provides supporting evidence for the theory that this letter was addressed to the church as a whole (see 2 Cor. 11:2; Eph. 5:25–27, 31, 32; Rev. 21:2, 9; 22:17). And finally, the greeting of verse 13 makes better sense when it is understood as a greeting from one congregation to another rather than from a group of relatives to their aunt.

It is just as possible that John wrote this letter to a literal woman. The phrase “elect lady” makes sense as a title for a well-known and respected woman. The reference to her children walking in the truth also makes sense when taken literally. The greeting from her sister’s children in verse 13 would fit this interpretation. The Greek word translated elect could be a woman’s name, with lady added as a title of respect, as in “Lady Eklekta.” As for the greeting, Paul forwarded greetings from others in his personal letter to Philemon (see Philem. 23–25), so for John to do so in verse 13 of this letter would not be unprecedented. And finally, the plural references in verses 6, 8, 10, and 12 could well refer to the woman and her children. The proof is not conclusive for either possibility, so the true identity of John’s audience for this letter probably will always remain unknown. Yet the message of the letter remains clear: vigilantly guard against false teaching, and persevere in the truth.

Christ in the Scriptures

Once again John takes sharp aim at those who deny the bodily reality of Jesus. The Jesus of whom he writes (and whom he knows intimately) had flesh and blood and bones. He labels the insurrectionists as false teachers. And whereas John often proclaims the message to “love one another,” he forcefully demands that Christians have nothing to do with heretics. The reason is obvious. In order to have a relationship with God the Father, we must abide “in the doctrine of Christ” (v. 9). We cannot approach the Father without going through Jesus. For John, the person and work of Jesus Christ affect every area of life and faith.

2 John 1

Greeting the Elect Lady

¹The Elder,

To the ¹elect lady and her children, whom I love in truth, and not only I, but also all those who have known ^athe truth,

²because of the truth which abides in us and will be with us forever:

^{3b}Grace, mercy, and peace will be with ²you from God the Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

Walk in Christ's Commandments

⁴I ^crejoiced greatly that I have found some of your children walking in truth, as we received commandment from the Father.

⁵And now I plead with you, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment to you, but that which we have had from the beginning: ^dthat we love one another.

^{6e}This is love, that we walk according to His commandments. This is the commandment, that ^fas you have heard from the beginning, you should walk in it.

Beware of Antichrist Deceivers

⁷For ^gmany deceivers have gone out into the world ^hwho do not confess Jesus Christ as coming in the flesh. ⁱThis is a deceiver and an antichrist.

^{8j}Look to yourselves, ^kthat ³we do not lose those things we worked for, but that we may receive a full reward.

^{9l}Whoever ⁴transgresses and does not abide in the doctrine of Christ does not have God. He who abides in the doctrine of Christ has both the Father and the Son.

¹⁰If anyone comes to you and ^mdoes not bring this doctrine, do not receive him into your house nor greet him; Bible Times & Culture Notes: Hospitality

¹¹for he who greets him shares in his evil deeds.

John's Farewell Greeting

¹²ⁿHaving many things to write to you, I did not wish to do so with paper and ink; but I hope to come to you and speak face to face, ^othat our joy may be full.

^{13p}The children of your elect sister greet you. Amen.

Annotations for 2 John

- 1 The Elder is probably the apostle John. The title can refer either to an old man, an older person deserving respect, or a church leader. Here the word probably refers to the author's authority in the church. The elect lady may be a specific person, or the phrase may be a figurative description of the local church (see the Introduction to 2 John). I love in truth: John links truth and love. The second use of truth refers to the body of doctrine that is true. This is God's revelation, the clear teachings and commands of Scripture.
- 3 If we wish to experience God's grace, mercy, and peace, we must commit ourselves to His truth and communicate His love. Blessing comes from the Father and Son equally. John affirms the deity of Jesus by affirming the Son's equality with the Father.
- 4 Walking in truth means having an authentic relationship with God. Our walk with the Lord if genuine must be based upon His Word.
- 5 Specifically, our walk with God is based on His commandment to love one another (see John 13:34, 5 Specifically, our walk with God is based on His commandment to love one another (see 35).
- 6 God's love is the basis of His desire for our obedience, and it is the reason He has revealed His will through His commandments in His Word. We prove our obedience to Him by demonstrating love toward one another. Love is an unlimited resource readily available to us, and it is tremendously effective in furthering the work of Christ.
- 7 One of the stumbling blocks to Christians is the many deceivers who subtly blur the truth about Jesus. Walking in truth means responding to deceivers by guarding against and rejecting them. Coming in the flesh refers to the Incarnation, the fact that Jesus is the God-man. The humanity of Jesus provides a test by which false teachers can be identified. The Gnostic heresy, against which John wrote in 1 and 2 John, included a denial of the physical body of Christ. People who deny the physical reality of Jesus are not Christians, but antichrists.
- 8 Being seduced by false teachers is one way that Christians can lose their reward at the judgment. With this in mind, John writes that the reason to guard against deceivers is our own desire not to lose our reward at the judgment seat of Christ. Jesus cautioned the church at Philadelphia to "hold fast what you have, that no one may take your crown" (see Rev. 3:11). Every believer has the potential of a full reward or a complete loss of reward (see 1 Cor. 3:15). The determining factor is our faithfulness to Christ. Justification is not in view here because it is not something we worked for, but something we received as a gift from God (see Rom. 4:1–6; Eph. 2:8).
- 9 Transgresses has the strong sense of running too far ahead, going too far. This is probably an allusion to the Gnostics who considered themselves as having advanced beyond basic Christianity. Departure from Christ into doctrinal error indicates that a person does not have God. Love for God means supporting the truth and rejecting those who stand against it.
- 10 This doctrine refers to the Christian belief that Jesus is God come "in the flesh" (v. 7); He is completely human and completely divine. A Christian should not only refuse to receive false teachers in the sense of supporting them while they visit the community, a Christian should also avoid appearing to endorse their teachings. The proper response to deceivers is to reject them as unbelievers. This shows how seriously we should take the Scriptures and how careful we should be in evaluating the teachings of everyone.

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Hospitality

Hospitality is the practice of entertaining strangers graciously. Hospitality was a very important trait in Bible times. In the NT, the Greek word translated “hospitality” literally means “love of strangers” (Rom. 12:13). In the OT, Abraham was the host to angels unaware; he invited strangers into his house, washed their feet, prepared fresh meat, had Sarah bake bread, and later accompanied them as they left (Gen. 18:1–15). Even today a traditional greeting to the guests among the bedouin people of the Middle East is “You are among your family.”

Hospitality was specifically commanded by God (Lev. 19:33, 34; Luke 14:13, 14; Rom. 12:13). It was to be characteristic of all believers (1 Pet. 4:9), especially bishops (Titus 1:7, 8; 1 Tim. 3:2). Jesus emphasized the importance of hospitality by answering the question of who should inherit the kingdom: “I was a stranger and you took Me in” (Matt. 25:35).

11 greets him shares: To greet someone means to identify with that person publicly. This can refer to a personal greeting by an individual (v. 1) or to the church's public welcome of a false teacher (v. 10).

Introduction

Struggles with forces outside the church can be harmful enough, but struggles within a church can be devastating. Third John was written in response to one such struggle within a local church. One of the church leaders, Diotrephes, had asserted control over the congregation to such an extent that he was prohibiting representatives of other churches from ministering to his congregation. Worse yet, he began driving away members of his own church who dared to help the representatives after he had refused to accept them. Diotrephes's actions violated Christ's command to love one another.

This was not a case of doctrinal deviation but of moral failure. However, it was as much a threat to the life of the church as the false teaching addressed in 1 and 2 John. Faithful members of the church community were being hurt by Diotrephes's arrogant attitude. The apostle John felt the need to deal with the problem and was planning a personal visit. In the meantime, the letter's recipient Gaius needed encouragement, and Demetrius needed support in his ministry.

Author and Date As with 1 and 2 John, the author of this epistle is generally accepted to be the apostle John. Similarities among the letters and early church tradition speak strongly of John's authorship. Although some have proposed that there were two Johns, the apostle and a church leader known as John the Elder, the consensus remains that the apostle wrote this letter.

No information is given within the epistle to indicate its date. The circumstance addressed in 3 John is markedly different from that of John's first two letters, and it is not possible to say whether it was written before or after 1 and 2 John. The letter was probably sent from Ephesus, where early church tradition says John located his ministry following the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

Recipient The recipient of the letter was a Christian named Gaius, though no other record of him has been found to date. He was likely a member of one of the churches in Asia Minor to which John's influence had spread during his Ephesian ministry. He seems to have had the resources to show hospitality to itinerant preachers, and he was certainly a prominent and trustworthy person to whom John could give the task of standing firm against the authoritarianism of Diotrephes until the apostle could come to deal with the problem himself.

Historical Background The background of this epistle is similar to that of John's first two epistles, though the problem threatening the addressees of 3 John is made clearer from the content of the letter.

The early church had the practice of sending out itinerant ministers as messengers of the apostles or churches. These men would minister in a local church for a period of time, providing spiritual encouragement and doctrinal instruction. They were the equivalent of our modern evangelists, ministers, and missionaries who travel from their home churches to provide teaching and encouragement to other believers. Itinerant ministers were expected to know and teach the doctrines of the apostles, and while they were with the church, the community of Christians benefiting from their ministry was expected to support them. Titus's ministry as Paul's representative to the church in Corinth (see 2 Cor. 2:12, 13; 7:6–15; 8:6) and to the churches of Crete (see Titus 1:5) is an example of this. As the itinerant ministers traveled from one place of ministry to the next, they would seek assistance and comfort from the churches of the communities through which they passed. This practice is reflected in Paul's instructions to Titus to assist Zenas and Apollos as they traveled (see Titus 3:13).

As is true today, some leaders, filled with personal ambition instead of the love of Christ, sought to control their local congregations with an iron hand. In this case, a man named Diotrephes was trying to assert his leadership even against the apostles. Diotrephes had asserted his influence and was driving out legitimate representatives of the apostles in order to maintain his personal control.

Christ in the Scriptures

In verse 7, John is referring to a group of itinerant Christian missionaries. They are ministering “for His name's sake.” Jesus is the means and motivation for taking the Good News to the world. That is, after all, why these missionaries were on the move and in need of Christian hospitality and fellowship. Without such, they would have no place to stay.

3 John 1

Greeting to Gaius

¹The Elder,

To the beloved Gaius, ^awhom I love in truth:

²Beloved, I pray that you may prosper in all things and be in health, just as your soul prospers.

³For I ^brejoiced greatly when brethren came and testified of the truth that is in you, just as you walk in the truth.

⁴I have no greater ^cjoy than to hear that ^dmy children walk in ¹truth.

Gaius Commended for Generosity

⁵Beloved, you do faithfully whatever you do for the brethren ²and for strangers,

⁶who have borne witness of your love before the church. If you send them forward on their journey in a manner worthy of God, you will do well, Word Studies: church

⁷because they went forth for His name's sake, ^etaking nothing from the Gentiles.

⁸We therefore ought to ^freceive³ such, that we may become fellow workers for the truth.

Diotrephes and Demetrius

⁹I wrote to the church, but Diotrephes, who loves to have the preeminence among them, does not receive us.

¹⁰Therefore, if I come, I will call to mind his deeds which he does, ^gprating⁴ against us with malicious words. And not content with that, he himself does not receive the brethren, and forbids those who wish to, putting them out of the church.

¹¹Beloved, ^hdo not imitate what is evil, but what is good. ⁱHe who does good is of God, ⁵but he who does evil has not seen ^jGod.

¹²Demetrius ^khas a good testimony from all, and from the truth itself. And we also ⁶bear witness, ^land you know that our testimony is true.

Farewell Greeting

- 1 The Elder is the apostle John. The word Elder can refer to an old man, an older person deserving respect, or a church leader. Here the word is an appeal to writer's authority in the church. Gaius was a common Roman name. The Gaius to whom John wrote was a Christian in one of the churches of Asia Minor.
 - 2 may prosper . . . be in health . . . soul prospers: John's greeting may imply that Gaius was physically weak, though spiritually strong. More probably John is simply following the pattern of greetings common to Greek letters.
 - 3 The reason for John's prayer is the testimony of others that Gaius walks in the truth. Truth here refers to the body of truth given to the church through the apostles and prophets, that is, the Scripture. Gaius walks according to the Word of God rather than the ways of the world.
 - 4 My children is a description Paul uses of those he has led to saving faith in Christ (see 1 Cor. 4:14–

17) and may indicate that Gaius was one of John's converts. It may also be a term John uses to describe those under his pastoral care, as reflected in 1 John 2:1, 12, 18, 28; 3:7, 18; 4:4; 5:21. To walk in truth means to walk according to God's Word, the revelation of His truth.

5–12 In these verses John affirms Gaius's responsibility to assist Demetrius despite the opposition of Diotrephes and his expulsion of those who received traveling missionaries. In the first part of this section (vv. 5–8), John says that Gaius's support of itinerant preachers should be continued in order for him to be a fellow worker in the truth. In the last part of the section (vv. 9–11), John promises that Diotrephes's opposition will be addressed by him when he arrives. Meanwhile, John endorses Demetrius as a legitimate teacher who is deserving of shelter and support (v. 12).

5 you do faithfully: Gaius's support of the brethren, including those he does not know personally, reflects his faithfulness to the Lord. This emphasizes the importance of serving the Lord by being faithful in our responsibilities within our local churches.

6 worthy of God: These people had reported to others about Gaius's ministry in their lives.
